8 And the word of Yahweh came to Zechariah, saying, 9 "Thus says Yahweh of Armies: Judge with true justice; show steadfast love and compassion, each to his brother; 10 do not exploit the widow, the orphan, the foreigner, or the poor; and let none of you plan harm against a fellow Israelite in your heart." 11 But they would not pay attention; they turned a stubborn back and dulled their ears so they could not listen. 12 They made their hearts like adamant so as not to hear the law and the words that Yahweh of Armies had sent by his Spirit through the former prophets. Therefore great wrath came from Yahweh of Armies. 13 "And it came to pass that as he called and they would not hear, so they called and I would not hear," says Yahweh of Armies, 14 "and I scattered them with a storm wind among all the nations that they had not known. Thus the land was left desolate behind them, so that no one went to and fro, and they made the pleasant land a desolation."

Notes

- a (7:1) Kislev (Chislev) is the ninth month. As commonly reckoned, this was about December 7, 518 BC, nearly two years after the visions of 1:7–6:15.
- b (7:2) Or "Now Bethel-sharezer had sent Regem-melech and his men." Sharezer means "protect the king"; Regem-melech perhaps "friend of the king." The Septuagint has "And Sarasar and Arbeseer the king and his men sent to Bethel."
- c (7:3) Hebrew "in the fifth month," that is, Ab. The fast in this month mourned the burning of the temple in 586 BC (2 Kings 25:8–9). The Septuagint has "The holy offering has come in here in the fifth month."

- d (7:5) Hebrew “in the fifth and in the seventh,” that is, Ab and Tishri. The fast in the seventh month mourned the murder of Gedaliah (2 Kings 25:25).
- e (7:7) Hebrew Negev, “the dry country,” the south of Judah; and the Shephelah, “the lowland,” the low hills toward the coast.

Chapter 8

1 And the word of Yahweh of Armies came, saying, 2 “Thus says Yahweh of Armies: I am jealous for Zion with great jealousy, and I am jealous for her with great wrath. 3 Thus says Yahweh: I have returned to Zion and will dwell in the midst of Jerusalem, and Jerusalem shall be called the City of Faithfulness, and the mountain of Yahweh of Armies, the Holy Mountain. 4 Thus says Yahweh of Armies: Old men and old women will yet dwell in the broad places of Jerusalem, each man with his staff in his hand for very age. 5 And the streets of the city shall be full of boys and girls playing in its streets. 6 Thus says Yahweh of Armies: If it is too wonderful in the eyes of the remnant of this people in those days, should it also be too wonderful in my eyes? declares Yahweh of Armies. 7 Thus says Yahweh of Armies: Behold, I will save my people from the land of the sunrise and from the land of the sunset,[a] 8 and I will bring them to dwell in the midst of Jerusalem.
And they shall be my people, and I will be their God, in faithfulness and in righteousness.” 9 Thus says Yahweh of Armies: “Let your hands be strong, you who hear in these days these words from the mouth of the prophets, which were spoken in the day the house of Yahweh of Armies was founded, that the temple might be built. 10 For before those days there were no wages for people or for animals; and nobody who traveled was safe from the enemy; I set everyone against his own neighbor. 11 But now I will not deal with the remnant of this people as in the former days, declares Yahweh of Armies. 12 For peace will be sown: the vine will yield its fruit, the soil will give its harvest, and the skies will release their dew. I will let the remnant of this people inherit all of this.[b] 13
And as you have been a curse among the nations, O house of Judah and house of Israel, so will I save you, and you shall be a blessing. Do not fear, but let your hands be strong.”

14 For this is what Yahweh of Armies says: "Just as I resolved to bring calamity on you when your ancestors made me furious, and I did not change my mind, says Yahweh of Armies, 15 so in these days I have turned and purposed to do good to Jerusalem and to the house of Judah. Fear not. 16 These are the things you are to do: Speak truth each man with his neighbor; judge with truth and with a judgment of peace in your gates. 17 Do not scheme harm against your neighbor in your heart, and do not delight in perjury; for I hate all of these things, declares Yahweh." 18 And the word of Yahweh of Armies came to me, saying, 19 "This is what Yahweh of Armies says: The fasts of the fourth month (June– July), the fifth, the seventh, and the tenth (December–January) will become happy and joyful holidays for Judah's house, times of cheerful celebration.[c] So cherish truth and peace.
20 "Thus says Yahweh of Armies: Peoples shall yet come, even the inhabitants of many cities. 21 And the inhabitants of one will go to another, saying, 'Let us go promptly to seek the favor of Yahweh, and to seek Yahweh of Armies. I too will go.' 22 Many peoples and strong nations shall come to seek Yahweh of Armies in Jerusalem and to entreat the favor of Yahweh. 23 Thus says Yahweh of Armies: In those days it shall be that ten men out of all the languages of the nations shall grasp, yes, grasp the corner of the garment of a man who is a Jew,[d] saying, 'We will go with you, for we have heard that God is with you.'"

Notes

- a (8:7) Literally "from the land of the rising and from the land of the going in of the sun," that is, from east and west.
- b (8:12) Or "For there shall be the seed of peace." The Septuagint has "But I will show peace."
- c (8:19) Hebrew "the fast of the fourth, … the fifth, … the seventh, and … the tenth" months. The fourth month (Tammuz) mourned the breach of Jerusalem's wall (Jeremiah 39:2); the fifth (Ab), the temple's burning; the seventh (Tishri), Gedaliah's murder; and the tenth (Tebeth, December–January), the beginning of the siege (2 Kings 25:1). See 7:3, 7:5.
- d (8:23) Hebrew kanaph, the "corner" or "hem" of a garment, where tassels were worn (Numbers 15:38).

Chapter 9

1 An oracle.[a]
The word of Yahweh is against the land of Hadrach, and Damascus is its resting place.
For to Yahweh is the eye of mankind and of all the tribes of Israel;[b] 2 and Hamath also, which borders on it,
Tyre and Sidon, though they are very wise.
3 And Tyre built a fortress for herself,[c] and piled up silver as the dust, and gold as the mire of the streets.
4 Look, the Lord will dispossess her and hurl her might into the sea, and fire will consume her.
5 Ashkelon will see and be afraid, and Gaza, and she will tremble greatly,
and Ekron, for her hope is put to shame.
A king will perish from Gaza, and Ashkelon will not be lived in;
6 a mixed people shall dwell in Ashdod,[d] and I will cut off the pride of the Philistines.
7 And I will remove his blood from his mouth, and his detestable things from between his teeth, and he too will be left over for our God;
he will be as a chief in Judah,[e] and Ekron like the Jebusite.
8 And I will camp around my house as a garrison, against any who pass through and return;
no taskmaster will pass through them again,
for now I have seen with my eyes.
9 Celebrate loudly, Zion's daughter!
Call out joyfully, Jerusalem's daughter!
See, your king comes to you;
he is just and brings deliverance,[f] humble, mounted on a donkey, on a young donkey, a donkey's foal.[g] 10 I will take away the chariot from Ephraim and the warhorse from Jerusalem;

the warrior's bow will be snapped,
and he will proclaim peace to the nations;
his dominion will stretch from sea to sea, and from the Euphrates to earth's farthest edges.[h] 11 As for you, because of the blood that sealed your covenant,
I will release your captives from the dry cistern.
12 Return to the stronghold, O prisoners of hope;
today also I declare that I will restore to you double.
13 For I have bent Judah as my bow;
I have filled the bow with Ephraim.
I will stir up your sons, O Zion, against your sons, O Javan,[i]
and wield you like a warrior's sword.
14 Then Yahweh will appear over them, and his arrow will go forth like lightning;
the Lord Yahweh will blow the ram's horn[j]
and will march in the storms of the south.
15 Yahweh of Armies will be a shield over them; they will devour and will tread upon the stones of the sling;[k]
they will drink, they will roar as with wine, and they will be filled like the basin,
like the corners of the altar.
16 And Yahweh their God will save them in that day like a flock, his people;
for they are stones of a crown, sparkling over his land.[l] 17 How good he is, and how lovely!
Grain will make the young men thrive,
and fresh wine the young women.

Notes

- a (9:1) Hebrew massa', "burden" or "oracle." Chapters 9–11 and 12–14 begin with the same heading, and Malachi 1:1 does too.
- b (9:1) Or "for Yahweh has an eye on mankind." The Hebrew is difficult. The Septuagint has "for the Lord looks upon men, and upon all the tribes of Israel." Hadrach was a region in Syria.
- c (9:3) Hebrew matsor, "stronghold," is a play on Tsor, "Tyre."
- d (9:6) Hebrew mamzer, a word of uncertain meaning, perhaps "people of mixed birth" or "foreigners." It appears elsewhere only in Deuteronomy 23:2.
- e (9:7) Or "like a chief" (Hebrew 'alluph). The Septuagint has "a captain of a thousand."
- f (9:9) Hebrew nosha', literally "saved" or "delivered," perhaps meaning "victorious." The Septuagint has "saving." "Humble" ('ani) also means "afflicted" or "poor"; the Septuagint has "meek."
- g (9:9) Quoted in Matthew 21:5 and John 12:15. Hebrew poetry often repeats an idea in two parallel lines (here, "on a donkey, on a colt"). Matthew's account mentions both a donkey and a colt (Matthew 21:2–7).
- h (9:10) Compare Psalm 72:8. "The River" is the Euphrates.
- i (9:13) Hebrew Yavan, Ionia, that is, the Greeks. The Septuagint has "the Greeks."
- j (9:14) Hebrew shophar. Here the divine name is Adonai YHWH, translated "the Lord Yahweh."
- k (9:15) Or "they shall devour and trample on the sling stones." The Hebrew is difficult. The Septuagint differs.
- l (9:16) The Hebrew is uncertain, and the verb may mean "sparkle" or "be raised like a banner." The Septuagint has "for holy stones are rolled upon his land."

Chapter 10

1 Ask of Yahweh rain
in the time of the latter rain; Yahweh makes the lightning flashes,
and he gives them rain in showers,
to each man grass in the field.
2 For the teraphim have spoken iniquity,[a] and the diviners have seen a lie, and the dreams speak falsehood;
they comfort with vapor.
Therefore they have wandered off like a flock;
they are oppressed, for there is no shepherd.
3 "My anger is hot against the shepherds, and I will punish the leaders;[b] for Yahweh of Armies cares for his flock, the house of Judah, and will make them like his majestic steed in battle.

4 From him shall come the cornerstone,
from him the tent peg,
from him the battle bow,
from him every ruler—all of them together.
5 And they will be like warriors, trampling in the mire of the streets in war;
and they will fight, for Yahweh is with them, and the riders of horses will be put to shame.
6 I will strengthen Judah's house, and rescue Joseph's house, and bring them back to live here, because I feel compassion for them;
it will be as though I had never rejected them;
for I am Yahweh their God, and I will respond to them.
7 And Ephraim will be like a warrior, and their heart will be glad as with wine;
and their sons will see and be glad;
their heart will exult in Yahweh.
8 I will hiss for them and gather them,
for I have ransomed them;
and they will increase as they increased before.
9 And I will sow them among the peoples, and in distant places they will remember me;
and they will live with their sons and will turn back.
10 And I will bring them back from the land of Egypt, and from Assyria I will gather them;
and to the land of Gilead and Lebanon I will bring them,
and room will not be found for them.
11 He will cross the sea of trouble, and beat down the sea's waves,
and the Nile's depths will all run dry; Assyria's arrogance will be humbled, and Egypt's scepter will vanish.

12 I will make them strong in Yahweh, and they shall walk in his name,"[c] declares Yahweh.

Notes

- a (10:2) Hebrew teraphim, household idols used in divination (compare Genesis 31:19 and Ezekiel 21:21).
- b (10:3) Hebrew ʿattudim, "male goats," that is, the leaders of the flock.
- c (10:12) A Qumran Minor Prophets scroll (4QXII-g) reads "they shall glory in his name," and the Septuagint is similar ("they shall boast in his name").

Chapter 11

1 Open your doors, O Lebanon, that the fire may devour your cedars!
2 Howl, O cypress, for the cedar is fallen, because the majestic ones are laid waste!
Howl, O oaks of Bashan, for the forest that could not be entered has come down![a] 3 Hark, the howling of the shepherds, for their splendor is laid waste!
Hark, the roaring of young lions, for the pride of the Jordan is laid waste![b] 4 Thus said Yahweh my God: "Shepherd the flock doomed to slaughter.
5 Their buyers butcher them and go unpunished, and their sellers declare, 'Praise Yahweh, I am rich!' and their own shepherds show them no compassion. 6 For I will no more pity the inhabitants of the land, declares Yahweh. But see, I am handing the men over, each one into his neighbor's hand and into his king's hand; and they shall beat the land to pieces, and from their hand I will not rescue." 7 So I shepherded the flock doomed to slaughter, truly the afflicted of the flock.[c] And I took two staffs; one I named Favor, and the other I named Union.[d] And I shepherded the flock. 8 And I made away with the three shepherds in one month.[e] And my soul was short with them, and their soul also abhorred me. 9 Then I said, "I will not feed you. The dying, let it die; and the perishing, let it perish; and those that remain, let them eat each one the flesh of her fellow." 10 Then I took my staff called Favor and snapped it in two, canceling the covenant I had made with all the nations. 11 So it was annulled on that day, and the afflicted of the flock, who were watching me, knew that it was the word of Yahweh. 12 And I said to them, "If it is good in your eyes, give my hire; and if not, refrain." And they weighed my hire, thirty pieces of silver (about 12 ounces).[f] 13 And Yahweh said to me, "Cast it to the potter—the splendid price at which I was valued by them!" And I took the thirty pieces of silver and cast them to the potter in the house of Yahweh.[g] 14 Then I broke my second staff, even Union, so as to break the brotherhood between Judah and Israel.

15 And Yahweh said to me, "Take for yourself again the gear of a foolish shepherd.

16 For see, I am raising up a shepherd in the land; the perishing he will not visit, the young he will not seek, the broken he will not heal, the one standing he will not sustain; but the flesh of the fat he will eat, and he will tear off their hoofs.

17 Woe to the worthless shepherd, who forsakes the flock!
A sword upon his arm
and upon his right eye!
His arm shall wither away completely, and his right eye shall be dimmed completely!"

Notes

- a (11:2) Hebrew (Qere) "the inaccessible forest" or "the forest of the vintage" (Kethiv). The Hebrew is uncertain.
- b (11:3) Hebrew ge'on hayyarden, "the pride of the Jordan," that is, the thick growth along its banks (Jeremiah 12:5).
- c (11:7) Or, with a slightly different division of the Hebrew letters, "for the sheep merchants" (likena'ane hatstso'n); so also in verse 11. The Septuagint has "in the land of Canaan" here, and in verse 11 "the Canaanites."
- d (11:7) Hebrew No'am, "Favor" or "Pleasantness," and Hovelim, "Union" or "Binders." The Septuagint has "Beauty" and "Line."
- e (11:8) Who the three shepherds were is unknown. There have been many suggestions.
- f (11:12) Hebrew "thirty of silver," that is, thirty shekels. A shekel is about 0.4 ounce (11.5 grams), so the total is about 12 ounces (345 grams). This was the compensation for a slave gored by an ox (Exodus 21:32). Compare Matthew 26:15 and 27:3–10. Matthew 27:9 attributes the prophecy to Jeremiah; it combines this passage with themes from Jeremiah (18:2–3, 19:1–13, and 32:6–15).

- g (11:13) Hebrew yotser, "potter." The Syriac version reportedly has "treasury" ('otsar), a difference of one letter. Compare Matthew 27:6–7. The Septuagint has "Drop them into the furnace ... and cast them into the furnace in the house of the Lord." The phrase "the lordly price" is sarcastic.

Chapter 12

1 The burden of the word of Yahweh concerning Israel. The declaration of Yahweh, who spreads out the heavens and lays the foundation of the earth and shapes the spirit of man in his inward parts: 2 "See, I am making Jerusalem a bowl of reeling to all the peoples round about; and upon Judah also it will be, in the siege against Jerusalem.[a] 3 And in that day I will make Jerusalem a burdensome stone for all the peoples; all who lift it will be badly gashed; and all the nations of the earth will be gathered together against her. 4 On that day, declares Yahweh, I will afflict every horse with panic and its rider with insanity; but I will keep my eyes open over Judah's house, while I strike all the nations' horses with blindness. 5 And the chiefs of Judah will say in their heart, 'The inhabitants of Jerusalem are a strength to me in Yahweh of Armies their God.'

6 "In that day I will make the chiefs of Judah like a firepot among pieces of wood, and like a torch of fire among sheaves; and they will consume, on the right hand and on the left, all the peoples round about; and Jerusalem will yet dwell in her own place, in Jerusalem. 7 "Yahweh will rescue the tents of Judah first, so that the glory of David's house and of Jerusalem's residents will not exceed Judah's. 8 On that day Yahweh will defend those living in Jerusalem; the weakest among them on that day will be as strong as David, and David's house will be like God, like Yahweh's angel leading them. 9 And on that day I will seek to destroy all the nations that come against Jerusalem.

10 "I will pour out on David's house and on Jerusalem's residents a spirit of grace and pleading; they will look at me, whom they stabbed;[b] they will mourn for him as people mourn for an only child, and weep bitterly for him as people weep for a firstborn. 11 In that day the lamentation in Jerusalem will be great, like the lamentation of Hadad-rimmon in the valley of Megiddon.[c] 12 And the land will lament, clan by clan apart: the clan of the house of David apart, and their women apart; the clan of the house of Nathan apart, and their women apart; 13 the clan of the house of Levi apart, and their women apart; the clan of the Shimeites apart, and their women apart; 14 all the clans that remain, clan by clan apart, and their women apart.

Notes

- a (12:2) Or "And Judah also will be in the siege against Jerusalem." The Hebrew is difficult.
- b (12:10) Some Hebrew manuscripts reportedly read "to him whom they have pierced," as John 19:37 quotes it (compare Revelation 1:7). The Septuagint has "they shall look upon me, because they have mocked me."
- c (12:11) Hadad-rimmon may be a place near Megiddo, or the name of a storm god (Hadad, also called Rimmon) whose mourning rites were well known. Some connect it with the national mourning for King Josiah, who was killed at Megiddo (2 Chronicles 35:22–25). The Septuagint has "the pomegranate grove cut down in the plain."

Chapter 13

1 "On that day a fountain will be opened to David's house and to Jerusalem's residents, to cleanse them from sin and defilement.[a]

2 "And it will be in that day, declares Yahweh of Armies, that I will cut off the names of the idols out of the land, and they will no more be remembered; and the prophets also and the unclean spirit I will make pass out of the land. 3 And it will be, if a man prophesies again, that his father and his mother who gave him birth will say to him, 'You will not live, for you have spoken falsehood in the name of Yahweh'; and his father and his mother who gave him birth will run him through when he prophesies. 4 And it will be in that day that the prophets will be ashamed, each one of his vision when he prophesies; and they will not wear a mantle of hair in order to lie. 5 He will say, 'I am no prophet; I am a farmer, because I have been someone's servant since I was young.'[b] 6 And one will say to him, 'What are these wounds between your hands?'[c] And he will say, 'Those with which I was struck at the house of those who love me.'

7 "O sword, wake up against my shepherd, against the man who is my associate," declares Yahweh of Armies.

"Strike the shepherd, and the flock will scatter;[d] and I will bring back my hand upon the little ones.
8 Throughout the whole land, declares Yahweh, two thirds will be struck down and die,
and one third will survive.
9 That third I will pass through the fire, refine them the way silver is refined,
and assay them the way gold is assayed.
They will invoke my name, and I will respond;
I will say, 'They are my people,' and they will say, 'Yahweh is our God.'"

Notes

- a (13:1) Hebrew "for sin and for impurity." The second word (niddah) is used for ritual impurity.
- b (13:5) Or "for the land has been my possession since my youth" (reading a different word division). The Hebrew is difficult. The Septuagint has "for a man brought me up thus from my youth."
- c (13:6) Hebrew "between your hands," that is, on the chest or back. Such wounds were self-inflicted in ecstatic rites (1 Kings 18:28).
- d (13:7) Quoted in Matthew 26:31 and Mark 14:27. The Septuagint has "smite the shepherds, and draw out the sheep" (Codex Alexandrinus: "the shepherd").

Chapter 14

1 See, a day is coming that belongs to Yahweh, and your spoil will be shared out in your midst. 2 And I will gather all the nations to Jerusalem for war; and the city will be captured, and the houses looted, and the women violated; and half the city will go forth into captivity, but the remainder of the people will not be cut off from the city. 3 Then Yahweh will go out and fight against those nations as when he fights on a day of battle. 4 And his feet will stand in that day upon the Mount of Olives, which faces Jerusalem on the east; and the Mount of Olives will be split through its middle toward the east and toward the west into a very great valley; and half of the mountain will withdraw northward and half of it southward. 5 You will run to my mountain valley, for the valley between the mountains will extend to Azal.[a] You will run just as you ran from the earthquake in the time of

Uzziah, king of Judah.[b] Then Yahweh my God will arrive, with all his holy ones.[c] 6 On that day there shall be no light, cold, or frost.[d] 7 It will be a one-of-a-kind day, known only to Yahweh, neither daytime nor nighttime, yet when evening comes there will be light.
8 On that day fresh water will flow out of Jerusalem, some toward the eastern sea and some toward the western sea; it will flow in both summer and winter.[e] 9 And Yahweh will be king over all the earth. On that day Yahweh will be one and his name one.[f]
10 All the land will be changed into a level plain like the Arabah, from Geba to Rimmon, south of Jerusalem; and she will be raised high and will dwell in her place, from the Gate of Benjamin to the site of the First Gate, as far as the Corner Gate, and from the Tower of Hananel as far as the king's winepresses. 11 And they will dwell in her, and there will no more be a ban of destruction;[g] and Jerusalem will dwell securely.
12 And this will be the plague with which Yahweh will strike all the peoples who have warred against Jerusalem: he will make their flesh waste away while they stand on their feet, and their eyes will waste away in their holes, and their tongue will waste away in their mouth.
13 And it will be in that day that a great confusion from Yahweh will be among them; and they will grasp each man the hand of his neighbor, and his hand will rise up against his neighbor's hand. 14 And Judah also will fight in Jerusalem; and the riches of all the nations round about will be gathered: gold and silver and clothing in very great quantity.
15 And so will be the plague of the horse, the mule, the camel, and the donkey, and every beast that is in those camps: like this plague.
16 And it will be that every one left of all the nations that came against Jerusalem will go up year by year to bow down to the King, Yahweh of Armies, and to celebrate the Feast of Booths. 17 And if any of the families of the earth do not go up to Jerusalem to worship the King, Yahweh of Armies, there will be no rain on them. 18 And if the clan of Egypt does not go up and does not come, then not upon them;[h] there will be the plague with which Yahweh strikes the nations that do not go up to celebrate the Feast of Booths. 19 This will be the penalty of Egypt, and the penalty of all the nations that do not go up to celebrate the Feast of Booths.

20 On that day the horses' bells will carry the inscription "Holy to Yahweh." The cooking pots in Yahweh's house will be as sacred as the bowls in front of the altar. 21 And every pot in Jerusalem and in Judah will be holy to Yahweh of Armies; and all who sacrifice will come and take from them and cook in them. And there will no longer be a trader[i] in the house of Yahweh of Armies in that day.

Notes

- a (14:5) Azal (or Azel) is an unknown place. The Septuagint has "And the valley of my mountains shall be closed up … and shall be blocked up," reading nistam ("shall be stopped up") for nastem ("you shall flee").
- b (14:5) Compare Amos 1:1. The earthquake was in the eighth century BC.
- c (14:5) Hebrew "with you." The Septuagint, the Latin Vulgate, and other ancient versions have "with him."
- d (14:6) Or "there shall be no light; the glorious ones shall congeal." The Hebrew is difficult. The Septuagint has "there shall be no light, and … cold and frost."
- e (14:8) The eastern sea is the Dead Sea; the western sea is the Mediterranean.
- f (14:9) Compare Deuteronomy 6:4 (the Shema): "Hear, O Israel: Yahweh our God, Yahweh is one."
- g (14:11) Hebrew herem, the ban that devoted something to destruction.
- h (14:18) The Hebrew is abrupt; the sense is probably "then no rain shall fall on them." The Septuagint omits "not" and reads "then upon them shall be the overthrow."
- i (14:21) Hebrew kena'ani, "Canaanite," also "merchant" (compare Proverbs 31:24).

Malachi

Old Testament

Chapter 1

1 A burden:[a] the word of Yahweh to Israel by the hand of Malachi.[b] 2 "I have loved you," says Yahweh. But you say, "In what way have you loved us?" "Was not Esau brother to Jacob?" declares Yahweh.
"Yet I loved Jacob, 3 and Esau I hated;[c] and I have made his mountains a waste and given his inheritance to the jackals of the wilderness." 4 Though Edom declares, "We have been crushed, but we will come back and rebuild the ruins," Yahweh of Armies[d] replies: "Let them build; I will demolish. They will be called 'Wicked Territory,' the people Yahweh has cursed for all time." 5 You will witness it yourselves, and you will declare, "Yahweh is great, even beyond Israel's borders!"
6 "A son honors a father, and a servant his master. If then I am a father, where is my honor? And if I am a master, where is the fear of me? says Yahweh of Armies to you, O priests, who despise my name. And you say, 'Wherein have we despised your name?' 7 By offering defiled bread upon my altar. And you say, 'In what way have we defiled you?'
By your saying, 'The table of Yahweh is despicable.' 8 And when you bring the blind to sacrifice, is it not evil? And when you bring the lame and the sick, is it not evil? Bring it, I pray, to your governor; will he be pleased with you, or lift up your face? says Yahweh of Armies. 9 And now, entreat, I pray, the face of God, that he may be gracious to us. From your hand this has come; will he lift up any of your faces? says Yahweh of Armies. 10 Who is there even among you that would shut the doors, so that you would not light my altar for nothing? I have no delight in you, says Yahweh of Armies, and I will not accept an offering from your hand. 11 From sunrise to sunset my name is honored among the nations, and in every place incense and a pure gift[e] are brought to my name; for my name is honored among the nations, says Yahweh of Armies. 12 But you are profaning it when you say, 'The table of the Lord[f] is defiled, and its fruit, its food, is despicable.' 13 And you say, 'See, what a weariness!' and you sniff at it,[g] says Yahweh of Armies. And you bring what was torn, and the lame, and the sick; so you bring the offering. Should I accept it from your hand? says Yahweh. 14 Cursed be the cheat who has in his flock a male and vows it, and then sacrifices a blemished thing to the Lord. For I am a great King, says Yahweh of Armies, and my name is feared among the nations.

Notes

- a (1:1) Hebrew massa', "burden" or "oracle," a heavy pronouncement (compare Zechariah 9:1 and 12:1).
- b (1:1) Malachi means "my messenger" (compare 3:1). It may be the prophet's name or a title; the Septuagint has "by the hand of his messenger," and Jewish tradition (the Targum) identified the author with Ezra. The book is usually dated to the fifth century BC, after the second temple was built (515 BC) and probably before the reforms of Nehemiah.
- c (1:3) Quoted in Romans 9:13. In Hebrew idiom "love" and "hate" here express choosing and not choosing (compare Genesis 25:23).
- d (1:4) Hebrew YHWH Tseva'ot, traditionally "the LORD of hosts." The "armies" are the forces of heaven (the angels and the stars) and sometimes the armies of Israel. The title is translated "Yahweh of Armies" throughout.
- e (1:11) Or "will be offered." The Hebrew participles can be read as present or future. The Septuagint has "my name has been glorified among the nations; and in every place incense is offered."
- f (1:12) Hebrew Adonai, "Lord," also in verse 14. Some Hebrew manuscripts reportedly have YHWH here, and verse 7 has "the table of Yahweh."
- g (1:13) According to rabbinic tradition, this is one of the "corrections of the scribes" (tiqqune sopherim): the original reading was "you sniff at me," changed out of reverence. The Septuagint has "I have utterly scorned them."

Chapter 2

1 "And now, O priests, this commandment is for you. 2 If you refuse to listen, and refuse to take it to heart and honor my name, says Yahweh of Armies, I will send a curse on you and turn your blessings into curses. In fact, I already have, because you have not taken it to heart. 3 See, I am rebuking your seed,[a] and I will spread dung on your faces, the dung of your feasts; and one will carry you away to it. 4 And you will know that I have sent this commandment to you, that my covenant may be with Levi, says Yahweh of Armies. 5 My covenant was with him, of life and of peace; and I gave them to him, for fear; and he feared me and stood in awe before my name. 6 The law of truth was in his mouth, and iniquity was not found on his lips; he walked with me in peace and in uprightness, and he turned many back from iniquity. 7 For the lips of a priest should guard knowledge, and they should seek the law from his mouth; for he is the messenger of Yahweh of Armies. 8 But you have turned aside out of the way; you have made many stumble in the law; you have corrupted the covenant of Levi, says Yahweh of Armies. 9 So I have made you contemptible and humiliated in front of everyone, since you do not follow my ways but play favorites when you teach the law."

10 Have we not all one father? Has not one God created us? Why then do we deal treacherously each man with his brother, to profane the covenant of our fathers? 11 Judah has dealt treacherously, and an abomination has been committed in Israel and in Jerusalem; for Judah has profaned the holy place of Yahweh, which he loves, and has married the daughter of a foreign god.[b] 12 May Yahweh cut off from the tents of Jacob the man who does this, him who wakes and him who answers,[c] and him who brings an offering to Yahweh of Armies.
13 And this second thing you do: you cover the altar of Yahweh with tears, with weeping and groaning, because he no longer turns to the offering or accepts it with favor from your hand. 14 And you say, "For what reason?" Because Yahweh has been witness between you and the wife of your youth, with whom you have dealt treacherously,[d] though she is your companion and the wife of your covenant. 15 Did he not make them a unity, with a share of spirit that is his? And what did that unity seek? Children who belong to God.[e] So protect your spirit, and let no one betray the wife he married in his youth. 16 "For he who hates and sends away,"[f] says Yahweh, the God of Israel, "covers his garment with violence," says Yahweh of Armies. So guard yourselves in your spirit, and do not deal treacherously.
17 You have worn Yahweh out[g] with your talk. Yet you ask, "How have we worn him out?" By claiming, "Everyone who does evil is good in Yahweh's sight, and he is pleased with them," or by asking, "Where is the God of justice?"

Notes

- a (2:3) Or "your offspring." The Septuagint has "I will separate the shoulder from you," reading zeroa', "arm," for zera', "seed," and the Latin Vulgate has "I will throw the arm (shoulder) to you."
- b (2:11) That is, has married women who worship other gods.
- c (2:12) Hebrew 'er we'oneh, an obscure idiom, perhaps meaning "everyone." A Qumran Minor Prophets scroll (4QXII-a) reads 'ed, "witness," giving "witness and answerer" (that is, any advocate). The Septuagint has "until he is cast down."
- d (2:14) A Qumran Minor Prophets scroll (4QXII-a) lacks "with whom you have dealt treacherously."
- e (2:15) The Hebrew of this verse is very difficult, and the translation is uncertain. Another possible rendering is "Did not one God make her, flesh and spirit belonging to him? And what does the one God seek? Godly offspring." A Qumran Minor Prophets scroll (4QXII-a) reads "And you said, 'What is the one seeking?'"
- f (2:16) Hebrew ki sane' shallah, "for he hates, send away," which may also mean "For I hate divorce" (traditional rendering, reading the first verb as "I hate"). A Qumran Minor Prophets scroll (4QXII-a) reads "For if you hate, send her away," and then "they cover violence upon my garment." The Septuagint has "But if you hate her and send her away ... then ungodliness will cover your thoughts." Compare Deuteronomy 24:1–4.
- g (2:17) A Qumran Minor Prophets scroll (4QXII-a) has "And you have wearied God."

Chapter 3

1 "See, I am sending my messenger, and he will clear a way before me;[a] and suddenly the Lord[b] whom you are seeking will come to his temple, even the messenger of the covenant in whom you delight. See, he is coming, says Yahweh of Armies. 2 But who can endure the day of his coming? And who can stand when he appears? For he is like a refiner's fire and like fullers' lye. 3 And he will sit as a refiner and purifier of silver, and he will purify the sons of Levi and refine them like gold and like silver; and they will be to Yahweh those who bring offerings in righteousness. 4 Then the offering of Judah and Jerusalem will be pleasing to Yahweh, as in the days of old and as in former years.

5 "I will approach you to hold court, and I will testify without delay against sorcerers, adulterers, and perjurers, against those who cheat workers of their wages and exploit widows and orphans, against those who deny justice to the foreigner and have no reverence for me, says Yahweh of Armies.

6 "For I, Yahweh, have not changed; and you, O sons of Jacob, have not come to an end. 7 From the days of your fathers you have turned aside from my statutes and have not kept them. Return to me, and I will return to you, says Yahweh of Armies. But you say, 'In what way shall we return?' 8 Can a person cheat God?[c] Yet you are cheating me. You ask, 'How have we cheated you?' In tithes and offerings. 9 With the curse you are cursed, for you are robbing me, the whole nation of you. 10 Bring the full tenth to the storehouse so there is food in my house. Try me in this, says Yahweh of Armies: see whether I will fling open the windows of heaven and pour down blessing on you beyond what you can hold. 11 And I will rebuke the devourer for your sakes, and he shall not destroy the fruit of your ground, and the vine in the field will not be barren for you, says Yahweh of Armies. 12 Then every nation will call you fortunate, for yours will be a delightful land, says Yahweh of Armies.
13 "Your words have been strong against me, says Yahweh. Yet you say, 'What have we spoken among ourselves against you?' 14 You have said, 'It is vain to serve God. What gain is it that we have kept his charge and that we have walked as mourners before Yahweh of Armies? 15 And now we are calling the arrogant happy; not only are the doers of wickedness built up, but they test God and escape.'" 16 Then those who feared Yahweh spoke with one another. And Yahweh paid attention and heard, and a book of remembrance was written before him for those who feared Yahweh and esteemed his name. 17 "They will be mine, says Yahweh of Armies, in the day that I am preparing, a treasured possession;[d] and I will spare them as a man spares his son who serves him. 18 Then once more you will see the difference between the righteous and the wicked, between him who serves God and him who has not served him.

Notes

- a (3:1) Quoted in Mark 1:2, Matthew 11:10, and Luke 7:27, where it is applied to John the Baptist. "My messenger" (mal'akhi) is the same word as the name Malachi

(1:1). A Qumran Minor Prophets scroll (4QXII-a) begins the verse with "Therefore," and it is that scroll's reading that the verse begins a new section after 2:17.

- b (3:1) Hebrew ha'adon, "the Lord," not the divine name YHWH or the title Adonai. Here it is used of God himself, who comes to his own temple.
- c (3:8) Hebrew yiqba', "rob," perhaps a play on the name Jacob (ya'aqov, verse 6). The Septuagint has "Will a man insult God?" (probably reading ya'qov, "cheat"; compare Genesis 27:36).
- d (3:17) Hebrew segullah, the word used in Exodus 19:5 and Deuteronomy 7:6 for Israel as God's own treasured possession.

Chapter 4

1 "For see, the day is coming, burning like an oven,[a] and all the arrogant and every doer of wickedness will be stubble; and the day that is coming will set them ablaze, says Yahweh of Armies, so that it will leave them neither root nor branch. 2 But for you who revere my name, the sun of justice will rise, bringing healing in its rays;[b] and you will go out leaping like calves released from the barn. 3 And you will tread down the wicked, for they will be ashes under the soles of your feet in the day that I am preparing, says Yahweh of Armies.
4 "Remember the law of Moses my servant, which I commanded him at Horeb for all Israel, statutes and judgments.
5 "See, I am sending to you Elijah the prophet[c] before the coming of the great and fearful day of Yahweh. 6 And he will turn the heart of fathers to sons and the heart of sons to their fathers, lest I come and strike the land with a ban of destruction."[d]

Notes

- a (4:1) Malachi 4:1–6 in English Bibles is 3:19–24 in the Hebrew Bible, which has only three chapters. The Septuagint, like the English Bible, has four chapters.
- b (4:2) Or "wings," meaning the rays of the sun. The image is of a winged sun disk, a common symbol in the ancient Near East. Compare Luke 1:78.
- c (4:5) Elijah means "My God is Yahweh." The Septuagint has "Elias the Tishbite" and places verse 4 ("Remember the law of Moses") after verse 6, at the end of the book. In Jesus' teaching the coming of Elijah is fulfilled in John the Baptist (Matthew 11:14; 17:10–13; Mark 9:11–13; compare Luke 1:17).
- d (4:6) Hebrew herem, the ban that devoted something to destruction. The Septuagint has "and the heart of a man to his neighbor, lest I come and strike the land utterly." Verse 6 is quoted in part in Luke 1:17. Because the book ends with a curse, in Jewish synagogue reading verse 5 is repeated after verse 6. In one Qumran Minor Prophets scroll (4QXII-a), Malachi is reportedly followed by Jonah, so that in that copy it did not end the collection.

Tobit

Apocrypha

Chapter 1

1 The book of the words of Tobit,[a] the son of Tobiel,[b] the son of Ananiel, the son of Aduel, the son of Gabael, the son of Raphael,[c] the son of Raguel, from the line of Asiel, from the tribe of Naphtali, 2 who in the days of Enemessar[d] king of the Assyrians was carried away captive from Thisbe, which lies to the right[e] of Kedesh[f] of Naphtali in Upper Galilee, above Asher,[g] behind the road toward the setting sun, to the left of Phogor.
3 I, Tobit, walked in ways of truth and in righteous deeds all the days of my life, and I did many acts of charity[h] for my kindred[i] and for my people who had gone with me in the captivity into the land of the Assyrians, to Nineveh. 4 When I was in my homeland, in the land of Israel, still a young man, the whole tribe of my forefather[j] Naphtali split away from the house of my forefather David and from Jerusalem, the city picked from all Israel's tribes as the site where all the tribes should offer sacrifice. The temple, God's dwelling place, had been dedicated there, and it was built for every generation to come. 5 All my kindred and the house of my ancestor Naphtali used to sacrifice to the calf made by Jeroboam king of Israel at Dan,[k] on all the mountains of Galilee. 6 But I alone, again and again, went to Jerusalem for the festivals, as it is written for all Israel in an everlasting decree.
I would hurry off to Jerusalem carrying the first fruits and the first yield of the crops, the tenth of the livestock, and the first shearings of the sheep, 7 and I would hand them to the priests, the sons of Aaron, for the altar. The tenth of the grain, of the wine and olive oil, of the pomegranates and the figs, and of the rest of the fruit of the trees I gave to the sons of Levi who ministered in Jerusalem. The second tenth I converted into silver in each of the six years,[l] and I would go and spend it in Jerusalem year by year. 8 I gave the third tenth[m]

to the orphans and the widows and to the converts who had joined themselves to Israel; every third year I brought it in and gave it to them, and we ate it according to the decree set down about it in the law of Moses and with the directions that Deborah,[n] the mother of our ancestor Ananiel, had given, because when my father died he left me fatherless.

9 When I came of age I took a wife from the descendants of our own family, and I fathered a son by her, and I named him Tobias.[o] 10 After I was carried captive to Assyria, when I was taken as a captive and came to Nineveh, all my kindred and those of my own people were eating the food[p] of the nations, 11 but I guarded myself[q] and did not eat the food of the nations. 12 Because I was mindful of my God with my whole heart,[r] 13 the Most High granted me favor and good standing[s] in the presence of Enemessar, and I became his buyer of everything he needed. 14 I used to travel to Media and buy for him from there until he died. While in the land of Media I left bags of silver amounting to about 750 pounds[t] in the keeping of Gabael,[u] the brother of Gabri. 15 But when Enemessar died and his son Sennacherib[v] became king in his place, the roads into Media became unsafe,[w] and I could no longer travel to Media.

16 In the days of Enemessar I did many acts of charity for my kindred, those of my own people. 17 I would give my food to the hungry and clothing to the naked, and if I saw that one of my people had died and had been thrown out behind the wall of Nineveh, I would bury him. 18 I also buried any whom Sennacherib killed when he came back in flight from Judea, in the days of the judgment that the King of heaven carried out on him for the blasphemies he had spoken.[x] For in his anger he put many of the Israelites to death; and I would steal their bodies and bury them, and Sennacherib searched for them but did not find them. 19 Then one of the people of Nineveh went and reported me to the king, saying that it was I who buried them, and I hid myself. When I found out that the king had learned about me and that I was being sought for execution, I was afraid, and I ran away. 20 Everything I owned was seized; nothing at all was left to me that was not carried off to the royal treasury, except my wife Anna[y] and my son Tobias.

21 But before forty days[z] had gone by, two of his sons murdered him and escaped to the mountains of Ararat. And his son Esarhaddon[aa] reigned after him. He appointed Ahikar,[ab] the son of my brother Anael, over the entire accounting of his kingdom, and he held authority over the whole administration. 22 Then Ahikar spoke up for me, and I went back down to Nineveh. Now Ahikar had been chief cupbearer, keeper of the signet ring,[ac] administrator, and treasurer under Sennacherib king of the Assyrians, and Esarhaddon kept him on as second in rank.[ad] He was my nephew[ae] and one of my own relatives.

Notes

- a (1:1) Tobit: Greek Tōbith; the shorter Greek recension (GI, Codex Vaticanus and Codex Alexandrinus) spells it Tōbit. The name probably represents Hebrew Tobi, "my good," perhaps short for Tobiyah, "Yahweh is my good"; the Qumran Aramaic copies of Tobit are reported to spell it Tobi. This translation follows the longer Greek recension (GII) of Codex Sinaiticus throughout; footnotes note where the shorter GI differs significantly.
- b (1:1) Tobiel: "God is my good." Ananiel means "God has been gracious"; Aduel and Gabael are of uncertain meaning; Raguel means "friend of God"; Asiel means "God has made."
- c (1:1) Raphael: "God heals" (Hebrew rafaʾ, "heal," plus ʾel, "God"), here an ancestor of Tobit; the same name is borne by the angel who appears in chapter 3. GI lacks "son of Raphael, son of Raguel."
- d (1:2) Enemessar: the Greek form of the name of Shalmaneser V, king of Assyria 727–722 B.C. Historically the people of Naphtali were deported by his predecessor Tiglath-pileser III about 733/732 B.C. (2 Kings 15:29); the book's chronology is not precise.
- e (1:2) To the right: that is, to the south, for one facing east.
- f (1:2) Kedesh: Greek Kydiōs, Kedesh in Naphtali (Joshua 20:7). GI lacks "Upper" and the rest of the verse after "Asher."
- g (1:2) Asher: Greek Assēr; many take this to be Hazor (compare 2 Kings 15:29). Phogor, later in the verse, is of uncertain location (perhaps Peor); scholarly review recommended.
- h (1:3) Acts of charity: Greek eleēmosynai, "acts of mercy, almsgiving," a key word in Tobit.
- i (1:3) Kindred: Greek "brothers," here fellow Israelites, as often in this book.
- j (1:4) Ancestor: Greek "father," here and in "my ancestor David."
- k (1:5) The calf that Jeroboam made: see 1 Kings 12:28–30. GI reads "All the tribes that broke away together sacrificed to Baal, the heifer," and lacks "on all the mountains of Galilee."

- l (1:7) In each of the six years: Greek "for the six years," of uncertain sense; perhaps the six years of the seven-year cycle other than the sabbatical year. On the second tenth (tithe), eaten in Jerusalem, see Deuteronomy 14:22–26. GI says only that he sold the second tenth. Scholarly review recommended.
- m (1:8) The third tenth: Greek "it"; compare Deuteronomy 14:28–29 and 26:12. GI reads "the third I gave to those to whom it was due."
- n (1:8) Deborah: "bee." GI calls her "my father's mother." Since Ananiel was Tobit's grandfather (verse 1), "the mother of our ancestor Ananiel" would make Deborah his great-grandmother.
- o (1:9) Tobias: from Hebrew Tobiyah, "Yahweh is good." GI names Tobit's wife, Anna, here.
- p (1:10) Food: Greek "breads," bread standing for food in general, here and in verse 11.
- q (1:11) Guarded myself: Greek "kept my soul."
- r (1:12) Heart: Greek "soul." Sinaiticus reads "and when I was mindful"; GI reads "because I remembered God."
- s (1:13) Good standing: Greek morphē, "form, appearance," here the impression he made.
- t (1:14) About 750 pounds: Greek "ten talents of silver," about 340 kilograms; reckoned at about 75 pounds (34 kilograms) to the talent. On the Attic standard a talent was 6,000 drachmas, so ten talents were about 60,000 days' wages for a laborer, an enormous fortune. GI adds "at Rages in Media."
- u (1:14) Gabael: meaning uncertain; GI spells his brother's name Gabrias.
- v (1:15) Sennacherib: king of Assyria 705–681 B.C. He was in fact the son of Sargon II, who followed Shalmaneser V (Enemessar).
- w (1:15) Became unsafe: Greek "broke away" (S) or "became unsettled" (GI).
- x (1:18) The blasphemies he had spoken: see 2 Kings 18:13–19:37 and Isaiah 36–37.
- y (1:20) Anna: the Greek form of Hannah, "grace, favor."
- z (1:21) Forty days: GI reads "fifty days." On the murder of Sennacherib see 2 Kings 19:37.
- aa (1:21) Esarhaddon: Greek Sacherdonos; king of Assyria 681–669 B.C.
- ab (1:21) Ahikar: Greek Achicharos (GI Achiacharos), the wise courtier who is the hero of the ancient Story of Ahikar, known from an Aramaic papyrus found at Elephantine in Egypt (fifth century B.C.) and from many later versions. A cuneiform tablet from Uruk is reported to name a scholar of Esarhaddon's time "whom the Arameans call Ahuqar." Tobit makes him a kinsman (see also 2:10; 11:18; 14:10). Anael is of uncertain meaning.
- ac (1:22) Keeper of the signet ring: Greek "over the ring," the officer responsible for the king's seal.
- ad (1:22) Second in rank: or "a second time"; the Greek ek deuteras can mean either. GI calls Ahikar only "the cupbearer" and lacks "under Sennacherib king of the Assyrians."

- ae (1:22) Nephew: Greek exadelphos, usually "cousin," but here a brother's son, as in verse 21. GI lacks "and one of my own relatives."

Chapter 2

1 So in the reign of Esarhaddon I came back to my house, and Anna my wife and Tobias my son were restored to me. On our feast of Pentecost,[a] the holy Feast of Seven Weeks, a fine dinner was made ready for me, and I took my place at the table. 2 The table was set before me, with many delicacies laid out on it, and I said to my son Tobias, "My child, go, and if you find any poor man among our kindred, among the captives from Nineveh,[b] who is mindful of God with his whole heart,[c] bring him, and he will eat together with me. See, child, I will wait for you until you come back." 3 So Tobias went to look for some poor man among our kindred. He came back and said, "Father!" And I said to him, "Here I am, my child." He answered, "Father, look, one of our people has been murdered and thrown out in the marketplace, and he was strangled right there just now." 4 I jumped up and left the dinner before I had tasted any of it. I took him up from the square and laid him in one of the outbuildings until the sun went down, so that I could bury him. 5 Then I came back, washed myself, and ate my food in mourning. 6 And I remembered the saying of the prophet, the words Amos had spoken against Bethel:[d] "Your festivals will be turned into mourning, and all your songs into a lament." And I wept.
7 When the sun had set, I went off, dug a grave, and buried him.
8 My neighbors laughed at me and said, "He is not afraid anymore!
He was already hunted to be put to death for this very thing, and he ran away; and look, here he is burying the dead again!" 9 That same night I bathed, went into my courtyard, and lay down to sleep beside the courtyard wall, with my face uncovered because of the heat.[e] 10 I did not know that there were sparrows on the wall above me, and their warm droppings settled in my eyes and brought on white films.[f] I went to the physicians to be cured, but the more they smeared their ointments on me, the more my eyes were blinded by the white films, until I lost my sight entirely. For four years I could not see. All my kindred grieved for me, and Ahikar provided for me for two years before he went to Elymais.[g]

11 At that time my wife Anna took in women's work for hire.[h] 12 She would deliver it to the owners, and they would pay her wages. On the seventh day of Dystrus (February–March)[i] she cut the woven piece off the loom and delivered it to the owners, and they paid her the full wage and also gave her a young goat from their flock for a meal.[j] 13 When she came to me, the young goat started bleating. I called out and asked her, "Where did this young goat come from? You did not steal it, did you? Hand it back to the owners, because eating stolen goods is forbidden to us." 14 She told me, "It was handed to me as a present, over and above my wages." But I did not believe her, and I kept telling her to give it back to the owners, and I flushed with anger at her over it. Then she retorted, "So what of your acts of charity? What of your righteous deeds? Look, all this about you is plain to see!"[k]

Notes

- a (2:1) Pentecost: Greek pentēkostē, "fiftieth," the Festival of Weeks, seven weeks after Passover (Leviticus 23:15–21; Deuteronomy 16:9–10), in late spring (May–June).
- b (2:2) Among the captives from Nineveh: or "among the Ninevite captives." GI is much shorter in verses 2–5.
- c (2:2) Mindful of God with his whole heart: Greek "who remembers with his whole heart"; GI reads "who is mindful of the Lord."
- d (2:6) Amos … against Bethel: Amos 8:10. Bethel means "house of God." GI reads "I remembered the prophecy of Amos" and has "all your merrymaking" for "all your songs."
- e (2:9) Because of the heat: GI instead says that, having buried him, he lay down "defiled" (compare Numbers 19:11–13) by the courtyard wall, with his face uncovered.
- f (2:10) White films: Greek leukōmata, white opacities over the eyes, apparently a form of corneal scarring. GI is shorter: "the physicians did not help me," and lacks the four years and the two years.
- g (2:10) Elymais: the region of ancient Elam, east of Babylonia.
- h (2:11) Took in women's work for hire: Greek ēritheueto, "worked for wages," probably at spinning and weaving.

- i (2:12) Seventh day of Dystrus: Dystrus was a month of the Macedonian calendar, corresponding roughly to the Jewish month Adar (February–March). Sinaiticus alone gives the date and the details of the loom.
- j (2:12) For a meal: Greek "for the hearth," of uncertain sense; perhaps "for a festive meal."
- k (2:14) These things are well known about you: or "See, everything about you is known!" The sense of Anna's retort is debated; she may mean that everyone now sees how his good deeds have turned out. GI reads "Look, everything about you is known." Scholarly review recommended.

Chapter 3

1 Then, sick at heart[a] and groaning, I wept, and with groans I began to pray: 2 "You are righteous, O Lord,[b] and all your deeds are righteous, and all your ways are mercy and truth; you are the judge of the world.[c] 3 And now, O Lord, remember me and look on me. Do not punish me for my sins and for my unintentional errors, or for those of my ancestors, who sinned before you 4 and disobeyed your commandments. You handed us over to plunder, to captivity, and to death, and made us a byword, a thing for gossip, and an object of scorn among all the nations among whom you have scattered us. 5 And now your many judgments are true in dealing with me for my sins, because we have not kept your commandments and have not walked in truth before you. 6 So now treat me however you see fit, and order my spirit taken from me, so that I may leave the earth and become dust.[d] Death is better for me than life, since I have had to listen to groundless insults, and my sorrow is huge. Lord, command that I be freed from this misery; send me to my eternal home, and do not turn your face from me, Lord. Death is better for me than seeing so much misery in my life and hearing such taunts." 7 That same day it happened that Sarah,[e] the daughter of Raguel who lived in Ecbatana[f] in Media, also heard insults, from one of her father's maidservants. 8 For she had been married to seven husbands, and Asmodeus,[g] the evil demon, had killed each of them before he could sleep with her as husbands normally do. The maid told her,
"You are the one who kills your husbands! Look, seven husbands have already had you, and you have not had the name of even one of them.[h] 9 Why are you lashing out at us? Because your husbands are dead? Go and join them! May we never see a son or a daughter of yours!" 10 That day she was heartbroken to the core and wept. She climbed to her father's upstairs room, intending to hang herself. But she reconsidered and said, "No; people might mock my father and tell him, 'You had one dear daughter, and she hanged herself because of her wretchedness.' Then I would send my aged father to Hades[i] in grief. It is better not to hang myself, but to plead with the Lord that I may die, so that I need not hear such taunts for the rest of my life." 11 At that moment, stretching out her hands toward the window, she prayed: "You are blessed, compassionate God, and your name is blessed forever; may all you have made bless you forever. 12 And now I have lifted my face and my eyes to you. 13 Give the word that I be released from the earth, so that I no longer have to hear insults. 14 You know, Master, that I am pure of any defilement with a man, 15 and I have not tarnished my own name or my father's name in the country where I am a captive. I am my father's only child; there is no other child to inherit from him, and no near relative or kinsman for whom I might preserve myself as a wife.[j] Seven husbands of mine have already died; why should I go on living? But if you are not willing to end my life, Lord, then hear the taunts I endure."[k]

16 At that very time the prayers of both of them were heard in the presence of the glory of God.[l] 17 And Raphael was sent to heal the two of them: to strip the white films from Tobit's eyes, so that with his own eyes he might see God's light; and to give Sarah, Raguel's daughter, as wife to Tobias son of Tobit, and to set her free from Asmodeus the evil demon,[m] because Tobias had the right to marry her before all others who wanted to take her. At that same moment Tobit came back from the courtyard into his house, and Sarah daughter of Raguel came down from the upper room.

Notes

- a (3:1) Sick at heart: Greek "grieved in soul." GI reads "And in grief I wept and prayed in anguish, saying."
- b (3:2) Lord: Greek kyrios, which in the Greek scriptures regularly stands for the divine name YHWH of the Hebrew text. Since Tobit survives complete only in Greek (and its Semitic original only in fragments), this translation renders kyrios as "Lord" throughout. Scholarly review recommended.

- c (3:2) You are the judge of the world: or "you judge forever." GI reads "and you render true and righteous judgment forever."
- d (3:6) Turn to dust: Greek "become earth."
- e (3:7) Sarah: Hebrew Sarah, "princess." Greek Sarra.
- f (3:7) Ecbatana: the capital of Media (modern Hamadan in Iran).
- g (3:8) Asmodeus: Greek Asmodaios (GI Asmodaus), probably from Avestan aēshma-daēva, "demon of wrath," the demon of fury in Persian tradition; some instead derive it from Hebrew shamad, "destroy." In later Jewish tradition he appears as Ashmedai, king of the demons.
- h (3:8) You have not borne the name of a single one of them: Greek ouk ōnomasthēs, "you have not been named for one of them," that is, none has lived to give you his name and a family. GI reads ouk ōnasthēs, "you have not had the benefit of one of them."
- i (3:10) Hades: the Greek name for the realm of the dead, corresponding to Hebrew Sheol.
- j (3:15) For whom I should keep myself as a wife: marriage within the clan was expected; see 4:12–13 and Numbers 36:6–9. GI reads "no close kinsman nor any son of his."
- k (3:15) Listen now to the insults I suffer: Greek "hear my reproach." GI reads "command that I be looked on with pity, and that I no longer hear reproach."
- l (3:16) The glory of God: GI reads "the glory of the great Raphael."
- m (3:17) Set her free from Asmodeus the evil demon: GI reads "to bind Asmodeus the evil demon" (compare 8:3).

Chapter 4

1 That day Tobit called to mind the silver he had deposited with Gabael at Rages[a] in Media, 2 and he said to himself, "Look, I have asked for death. Why not call my son Tobias and explain to him about this silver before I die?" 3 So he summoned Tobias his son, and when the boy came, he told him, "Bury me properly. Show honor to your mother; do not forsake her for the rest of her days. Do whatever pleases her, and never cause her spirit grief in any matter. 4 Remember her, my child, for she went through many dangers on your account while she carried you in her womb. And when she dies, lay her beside me in the same grave.
5 "Every day you live, my child, keep the Lord in mind, and do not choose to sin or to break his commandments. Practice righteousness throughout your life, and never walk in the paths of wrongdoing, 6 for those who act faithfully will prosper in what they do. 7 To everyone who does what is right[b] give alms from what you own, and never let your eye be stingy when you give alms. Do not look away from any poor person, and God's face will not look away from you. [8] Give charity in proportion to what you have: if you have much, give from your abundance; if you have little, do not be afraid to give charity even from that little. [9] For in this way you store up a good treasure for yourself against the day of need, [10] because charity rescues from death and keeps one from going into the darkness. [11] Indeed, for all who practice it, charity is a worthy offering in the sight of the Most High.

[12] "Guard yourself, my child, against all sexual immorality. Above all, marry a woman of your ancestors' stock; do not take a foreign wife, one who is not from your father's tribe, for we are the sons of prophets. Remember, my child, that Noah, Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, our forefathers from the beginning, each married a woman of his own kin, and they were blessed in their children, and their offspring will possess the land. [13] So now, my child, love your kindred, and do not be too proud at heart to take a wife for yourself from among your kindred, the sons and daughters of your people. For in pride there is ruin and great disorder, and in idleness there is loss and dire want, for idleness is the mother of famine. [14] Do not hold back a worker's pay overnight, but pay him immediately. If you serve God, he will reward you. Be careful, my child, in all you do, and be well trained in all your behavior. [15] And whatever you hate, do it to no one. Drink no wine to the point of drunkenness, and do not let drunkenness travel along with you on your way. [16] Share your food with the hungry and your clothing with those who have none. Whatever you have in excess, give as charity, and do not let your eye be grudging when you give charity. [17] Pour out your bread on the tomb of the righteous,[c] but give nothing to sinners. [18] Seek advice from every sensible person, and do not scorn any useful counsel. [19] Bless the Lord God at every season, and pray to him to make your ways straight and to bring success to all your paths and purposes. For wisdom does not belong to any nation;[d] it is the Lord who will give them good counsel. But whomever the Lord wishes, he brings low, even to the lowest depths of Hades. So now, my child, keep these commandments in memory, and let them never be wiped from your heart.

20 "And now, my child, I am making known to you that I left about 750 pounds of silver[e] in trust with Gabael son of Gabri at Rages in Media.
21 Do not be afraid, my child, that we have fallen into poverty. Great riches are yours if you fear God, run from every sin, and do what is good before the Lord your God."

Notes

- a (4:1) Rages: a city of Media, near modern Tehran (ancient Rhagae, modern Rey).
- b (4:7) To all who practice righteousness: at this point Sinaiticus passes directly from these words (verse 7) to "the Lord will give them good counsel" (verse 19), apparently through a scribe's accidental omission. The remainder of verse 7, verses 8–18, and the first part of verse 19 (through "does not belong to any nation") are translated from GI (Vaticanus and Alexandrinus). Fragments of this section are reported to survive among the Qumran copies (4Q200). Scholarly review recommended.
- c (4:17) Pour out your bread on the tomb of the righteous: probably a reference to providing food for the mourners at the funeral of the righteous (compare Jeremiah 16:7); the sense is debated.
- d (4:19) Wisdom does not belong to any nation: Greek "every nation does not have counsel," translated from GI. GI then reads "but the Lord himself gives all good things, and whomever he wishes he humbles, as he pleases." The rest of the verse follows Sinaiticus.
- e (4:20) About 750 pounds of silver: Greek "ten talents of silver," about 340 kilograms; see the note on 1:14.

Chapter 5

1 Then Tobias answered his father Tobit, "Father, I will do everything you have commanded me. 2 But how can I recover it from him, seeing that the man has never met me and I have never met him? What token shall I show him, so that he knows who I am and believes me and pays out the silver? Besides, the roads into Media are unknown to me; how am I to get there?" 3 Tobit replied to Tobias his son, "He gave me his signature on a bond, and I gave him mine; I tore it in two, and each of us kept a half, and I put my half with the silver.[a] And now twenty years have gone by since I left this silver in his care. So now, my child, look for a dependable man to accompany you, and we will pay him wages till you come home; then fetch this silver from him."

4 Tobias went out, then, in search of someone to make the journey to Media with him, a man acquainted with the road. And going out he found Raphael the angel standing right before him, though he had no idea that this was an angel of God. 5 Tobias said to him, "Where are you from, young man?" He replied, "From the Israelites, your kindred, and I have come here to look for work." Tobias said to him, "Do you know the road that goes to Media?" 6 He answered, "Yes; I have been there many times, I am familiar with it, and I know all the routes. I have gone to Media often, and I used to lodge with Gabael our kinsman, who lives at Rages in Media. From Ecbatana to Rages is a regular two days' journey,[b] since Rages lies in the mountains." 7 Tobias said, "Stay here for me, young man, while I go inside and let my father know, because I need you to come with me on the road, and I will see that you are paid." 8 He said to him, "Very well, I will stay here; only do not be long." 9 So Tobias went in and told his father Tobit, "Listen, I have found a man from among our kindred, the Israelites." Tobit said to him, "Call the man in to me, so that I may learn what his family is and what tribe he is from, and whether he is reliable enough to go with you, my child." 10 So Tobias went out and called him: "Young man, my father wants you." He went in, and Tobit was the first to greet him. The young man said to him, "I wish you much joy!" But Tobit answered him, "What joy is left to me anymore? I am a man whose eyes have failed; the light of the sky is hidden from me, and I lie in the dark like the dead, who never again behold the light. I live, yet I dwell among the dead. I hear human voices, yet I cannot see the speakers." The young man said to him, "Take courage; God will soon heal you. Take courage." Then Tobit told him, "Tobias, my son, wishes to travel to Media. Can you go with him and guide him? I will pay what you are owed, brother." He replied, "I am able to go with him; every road is known to me. Many times I have made the trip to Media and have crossed all its plains and its mountains; I know every road there." 11 Then Tobit said to him, "Brother, what family are you from, and from what tribe? Tell me, brother." 12 He said, "What need do you have of a tribe?" Tobit said to him, "I want to know truly whose son you are, brother, and what your name is." 13 He answered, "I am Azariah,[c] son of Hananiah the great, from among your kindred." 14 Then Tobit said to him, "Welcome, and may you be safe and well, brother! Do not take it amiss, brother, that I wished to learn the truth of your lineage.

As it happens, you are a kinsman, and from a fine and worthy family.
Hananiah and Nathan, the two sons of Shemeliah[d] the great, were known to me; they would make the pilgrimage to Jerusalem with me and bow in worship beside me there, and they never strayed. Good men, your kindred! Good is the root you spring from. Welcome!" 15 Then he said to him, "I will pay you a wage of a drachma[e] a day, and your expenses, as I do for my son. 16 Go along with my son, and I will add still more to your pay." 17 He replied, "I will go with him; have no fear. We will leave in good health and come back to you in good health, for the road is safe." Tobit said to him, "Blessings on you, brother!" Next he summoned his son and told him, "My child, make ready what the road requires and set off with your kinsman. May the God who is in heaven keep you safe there and bring you home to me unharmed, and may his angel travel at your side to protect you, my child." So Tobias went out to begin his journey; he kissed his father and mother, and Tobit said to him, "Go in good health."[f] 18 At this his mother burst into tears and said to Tobit, "Why did you send my boy away? Is he not the staff we lean on, coming and going in our sight? 19 Do not let money be added to money;[g] let it rather be counted as nothing beside our child. 20 The life the Lord has granted us is enough for us." 21 But he said to her, "Do not worry. Our child will go in good health and return to us in good health. On the day he comes back to you unharmed, you will see him with your own eyes. 22 Do not worry; have no fear for them, my sister.[h] A good angel will keep him company; he will have a prosperous journey and will return unharmed." 23 And she stopped weeping.

Notes

- a (5:3) He gave me his signature … with the silver: the deposit was secured by a written bond, signed by both parties and cut in two so that the halves could later be matched. GI is much shorter in verses 2–3.

- b (5:6) Two days from Ecbatana to Rages: in fact the distance from Ecbatana (Hamadan) to Rages (near Tehran) is about 185 miles (300 kilometers), and Ecbatana, not Rages, lies on the higher ground; the book's geography is not exact.
- c (5:13) Azariah: "Yahweh has helped." Hananiah means "Yahweh has been gracious." Greek Azarias son of Ananias. The angel takes a fitting name, since he has come to help (compare 12:15).
- d (5:14) Shemeliah: Greek Semelios, perhaps for Hebrew Shemaiah ("Yahweh has heard"); GI reads Semeias, and Jathan for Nathan ("he has given").
- e (5:15) A drachma: a Greek silver coin of about 4.3 grams (0.15 ounce), the usual daily wage of a laborer in the Hellenistic period. In modern terms, one drachma was roughly a day's pay for an unskilled worker; its silver content alone would be worth only a few dollars today. GI has Tobit ask "what wage shall I pay you?" before naming the drachma.
- f (5:17) Go in good health: GI is much shorter in this verse and adds, "and the young man's dog went along with them." Sinaiticus mentions the dog at 6:1.
- g (5:19) Do not let money be added to money: the Greek is obscure; literally "may silver not reach silver (or 'come first before silver'), but let it be the offscouring of our child," that is, may the money be counted as worthless compared with our son. GI has the same wording.
- h (5:22) My sister: a term of affection for his wife (compare 7:15; 8:4, 7).

Chapter 6

1 So the lad left home with the angel beside him, and the dog left with him too[a] and followed after them. The pair traveled on until night fell for the first time, and they halted for the night by the river Tigris. 2
The young man went down to the Tigris to wash his feet, and a great fish sprang from the water, eager to gulp down the boy's foot, and he shouted. 3 But the angel told the young man, "Seize it! Get a firm hold on the fish!" So the young man overpowered the fish and hauled it up onto the bank. 4 Then the angel said to him, "Slit the fish open and take out its gall, its heart, and its liver, and keep them by you, but throw the entrails away. For the gall, the heart, and the liver are useful as medicine." 5 The young man cut the fish open and gathered up the gall, the heart, and the liver. He roasted part of the fish and ate it, and he salted the rest and kept it.
6 Then the two of them traveled on together until they drew near to Media. 7 And then the young man put a question to the angel: "Brother Azariah, what is the medicine in the heart and the liver of the fish, and in its gall?" 8 He told him, "As for the heart and the liver of the fish, burn them so that their smoke rises before any man or woman who suffers an assault from a demon or an evil spirit, and every such assault will flee from that person, and they will never stay with him again. 9 And as for the gall, use it to anoint the eyes of a person on whose eyes white films have formed; blow on the films, on the eyes themselves, and they become well."

10 When he had entered Media and was already approaching Ecbatana,[b] 11 Raphael said to the young man, "Brother Tobias!" He answered, "Here I am." Raphael told him, "Tonight we must lodge at the home of Raguel. The man is your relative, and he has a daughter named Sarah. 12 He has no male heir and no other daughter besides Sarah alone, and you, more than anyone else, are her nearest kinsman with the right to marry her.[c] The right to inherit her father's possessions also falls justly to you. The girl is sensible, courageous, and very beautiful, and her father is a good man." 13 And he went on, "You have the right to take her. Hear me, then, brother: this night I will talk with her father concerning the girl, to secure her as a bride for you; and once we are back from Rages we will hold her wedding. I am certain that Raguel cannot in any way withhold her from you or pledge her to someone else; he would incur the penalty of death under the ruling of the book of Moses,[d] because he knows that the right of inheritance gives you, above every other man, the claim to take his daughter. Hear me now, brother: this night we will talk about the girl and arrange your betrothal to her, and on our return from Rages we will receive her and lead her home with us to your house." 14 Then Tobias answered Raphael, "Brother Azariah, I am told she has been married seven times over, and each of those husbands perished in the bridal room; the very night he went in to her, he died. People say, I have heard, that some demon was their killer. 15 So now I am afraid. It does her no harm, but anyone who tries to come near her, it kills. I am my father's only son. I fear I will die and bring my father's and my mother's life down to their grave in sorrow over me; and they have no other son to bury them." 16 But Raphael said to him, "Have you forgotten the instructions of your father, who charged you to marry a woman from your father's house? So now listen to me, brother: pay no attention to this demon, but take her. I know that before this night is over she will become your wife. 17 Once you enter the bridal room, take a portion of the liver of the fish, along with the heart, and set them on the embers of the incense. The odor will spread; the demon will catch the smell and run away, and it will never again be seen near her for all time. 18 And before you are to be united with her, both of you must first rise and pray, and implore the Lord of heaven to grant you mercy and deliverance. Have no fear; she was destined for you from eternity. It is you who will rescue her, and she will go away with you; I expect, too, that she will bear you children, who will be as dear to you as brothers. Do not worry." 19 When Tobias heard Raphael's words, and learned that she was his kinswoman,[e] of the lineage of his father's house, he loved her deeply, and his heart clung to her.

Notes

- a (6:1) The dog came out with him: Sinaiticus mentions the dog only here and at 11:4; GI places it at 5:16. Dogs are seldom viewed favorably in the Bible, and the detail is unusual.
- b (6:10) Approaching Ecbatana: GI reads "as they came near to Rages," evidently in error, since Raguel lived at Ecbatana (3:7).
- c (6:12) Nearest kinsman with the right to marry her: Greek "nearest to her to inherit her." Compare the laws on heiresses marrying within their father's tribe (Numbers 27:1–11; 36:1–12).
- d (6:13) The penalty of death under the ruling of the book of Moses: no such penalty appears in the law of Moses; the statement may reflect a later interpretation, and its basis is uncertain. Scholarly review recommended.
- e (6:19) Kinswoman: Greek "sister," here a relative of his own clan. GI reads simply "when Tobias heard these things, he loved her."

Chapter 7

1 When he reached Ecbatana, he said to him, "Brother Azariah, take me straight to our kinsman Raguel." So he brought him to Raguel's house, and they found the man seated beside the gate of the courtyard. They were the first to greet him, and he answered them, "Joy and greetings to you, brothers! You are welcome here, and safe and sound." And he led them into his house. 2 He said to Edna[a] his wife, "How much this young fellow looks like my kinsman Tobit!" 3 Edna questioned them: "Where do you come from, brothers?" They told her, “We belong to the descendants of Naphtali, who were taken captive to Nineveh.” 4 She asked them, “Do you know our kinsman Tobit?” They said to her, “We do know him.” 5 She asked them, “Is he well?” They replied, “He is alive and well.” And Tobias added, “He is my father.” 6 At that Raguel leaped to his feet, kissed him, and wept. Then he spoke to him: “A blessing on you, my boy, son of a fine and noble father! Oh, what a wretched misfortune, that a man so righteous, so generous in charity, should have gone blind!” And he threw his arms around the neck of his kinsman Tobias and wept. 7 Edna his wife wept for Tobit, and Sarah their daughter wept as well. 8 Raguel then killed a ram from his sheep and received them with eager hospitality.

9 After they had bathed and washed and reclined to dine, Tobias said to Raphael, “Brother Azariah, speak to Raguel, so that he will give me Sarah my kinswoman.” 10 Raguel overheard the words and said to the young man, “Eat and drink and enjoy yourself tonight. For there is no man except you, brother, who has the right to take my daughter Sarah; and likewise I have no authority to give her to anyone but you, since you are my nearest relative. But I must tell you the truth plainly, my boy. 11 Seven men of our kindred have received her from me in marriage, and each died the night he went in to her. But now, my boy, eat and drink; the Lord will deal kindly with you both.” 12 But Tobias said, “I will eat nothing here, and drink nothing, until you settle my affair.” Raguel said to him, “I will. She is yours by the ruling of the book of Moses, and heaven itself has decreed that she is to be yours. Receive your kinswoman. You are her brother from this moment, and she is your sister.[b] From today and for all time she belongs to you. My child, may the Lord of heaven grant you success this night, and may he show you mercy and peace.” 13 Then Raguel called for Sarah his daughter. She came, and taking her hand, he gave her over to Tobias with the words, “Receive her, in keeping with the law and with the ruling recorded in the book of Moses that grants her to you as a wife. Keep her, and bring her home unharmed to your father; the God of heaven grant you a prosperous journey in peace.” 14 Then he called for her mother and told her to fetch a scroll, and he wrote out a marriage contract,[c] stating that he gave her to Tobias as his wife under the terms of the law of Moses. After that they started to eat and drink.

15 Raguel called his wife Edna and told her, "My sister, get the second bedroom ready, and bring her into it." 16 She went and spread the bed in that room, just as he had said, and led Sarah in. She wept over her; then, wiping away her tears, she said to her, 17 "Courage, daughter!
The Lord of heaven grant you gladness instead of grief. Courage, daughter!" And she went out.

Notes

- a (7:2) Edna: from Hebrew ʿednah, "pleasure, delight."
- b (7:12) Her brother … your sister: terms of endearment used of husband and wife (compare Song of Songs 4:9–10), here also implying kinship.
- c (7:14) Marriage contract: Greek "a written record of cohabitation"; this is among the earliest references in Jewish literature to a written marriage contract (compare the later ketubbah). GI adds that "they set their seals to it."

Chapter 8

1 Once the eating and drinking were over, they were ready to go to bed; so they led the young man away and took him into the bridal room. 2 Tobias called to mind what Raphael had said. Taking the liver and the heart of the fish from the bag he carried, he laid them on the embers of the incense. 3 The smell of the fish held the demon back,[a] and it fled off to the regions of upper Egypt.[b] Raphael went after it, and there he bound it hand and foot and fettered it at once. 4 The others went out and shut the door of the bedroom. Then Tobias got up from the bed and said to her, "Get up, my sister; let us pray and ask our Lord to show us mercy and grant us deliverance." 5 She rose, and the two of them started praying, pleading that they might be kept safe. He began with these words: "You are blessed, God of our fathers, and your name is blessed through all the ages to come! Let the heavens and your whole creation bless you through all the ages.
6 It was you who made Adam, and you made Eve his wife to be his helper and support; the two of them are the source of all humankind.
You declared, 'It is not good that the man should be by himself; let us make a helper for him who corresponds to him.'[c] 7 And now, it is not out of lust[d] that I am taking this kinswoman of mine, but in sincerity.

Command that mercy be shown to her and to me, and that we may grow old side by side." [8] And together they said, "Amen, amen." [9] Then they slept through the night.
[10] But Raguel rose and called his servants to him, and they went out and dug a grave, for he said, "He may die, and then we would become a laughingstock and a byword." [11] Once the grave was dug, Raguel returned to the house and summoned his wife, [12] saying, "Send one of the maids to go in and see whether he is alive. If he is dead, we can bury him without anyone knowing." [13] So they sent the maid, lit the lamp, and opened the door. She went in and found the two of them sound asleep together. [14] The maid came out and told them that he was alive and that nothing bad had happened. [15] Then they blessed the God of heaven and said, "Blessed are you, O God, with every pure blessing; let them bless you through all the ages. [16] Blessed are you, because you have made me glad; what I feared has not come to pass, but you have dealt with us according to your great mercy. [17] Blessed are you, because you have had mercy on two only children. Show them mercy, Master, and deliverance; bring their lives to completion in gladness and mercy." [18] After that he told his servants to shovel the earth back into the grave before dawn came.
[19] He told his wife to bake a great many loaves; and going out to the herd, he brought back two oxen and four rams and ordered them slaughtered, and they began to prepare the feast. [20] Then he called Tobias and said to him, "For fourteen days you are not to stir from here. Stay right here, eating and drinking with me, and cheer the heart of my daughter, who has suffered so much. [21] Take half of all I own here and now, and return to your father unharmed; the remaining half is yours when my wife and I are dead. Be of good heart, my child! From now on I am a father to you, and Edna a mother; we are yours, and your sister's,[e] from now and forever. Be of good heart, my child!"

Notes

- a (8:3) Held the demon back: or "checked" or "repelled"; the Greek verb is unusual here. GI reads "When the demon smelled the odor."

- b (8:3) Upper Egypt: Egypt was traditionally regarded as a home of magic and of demons. GI reads "the remotest parts of Egypt, and the angel bound him."
- c (8:6) It is not good for the man to be alone: Genesis 2:18.
- d (8:7) Lust: Greek porneia, "sexual immorality," here desire without regard to God's law.
- e (8:21) Your sister: that is, Sarah, his wife.

Chapter 9

1 Then Tobias called Raphael and said to him, 2 "Brother Azariah, take along four of the servants and a pair of camels and go to Rages. Visit Gabael, hand him the bond, collect the silver, and bring him back with you to the wedding celebration. 3 You are aware that my father must be reckoning the days, and should I be one day overdue, I would grieve him sorely;[a] 4 and you see what Raguel has sworn, and I cannot break his oath." 5 So Raphael, with the four servants and the two camels, made the journey to Rages in Media, and they lodged with Gabael. Raphael gave him his bond and explained to him that Tobias son of Tobit had taken a wife and was inviting him to the wedding celebration. Gabael rose and counted out the bags to him, their seals intact, and they loaded them together. 6 Early in the morning they all set out together and came to the wedding feast. Entering Raguel's home, they found Tobias at table. He leaped up and embraced Gabael, and Gabael burst into tears and blessed him, saying, "Good and noble son of a good and noble man, righteous and generous in charity! May the Lord grant heaven's blessing to you and your wife, to your father, and to your wife's mother. Blessed be God, for I have seen my cousin Tobit's very likeness!"[b]

Notes

- a (9:3) Distress: Sinaiticus runs verses 3 and 4 together (Rahlfs prints them as "3–4"); they are divided here according to the usual numbering. GI lacks both verses, and in verse 2 has "take a servant" rather than four.
- b (9:6) My cousin Tobit's very likeness: Greek "Tobit my cousin, like him," meaning that Tobias resembles his father. GI omits the whole of Gabael's speech, reading only "and Tobias blessed his wife."

Chapter 10

1 Meanwhile, day after day, Tobit kept counting the days: how many it would take Tobias to get there and how many to come back. When the days had run out and his son had not appeared, 2 he said, "Could he have been held up there? Or could Gabael be dead, with nobody left to pay him the silver?" 3 And he began to be anxious. 4 His wife Anna kept saying, "My child has perished; he is no longer among the living." She began to weep and wail over her son, and she said, 5 "Alas for me, my child! Why did I allow you to go, light of my eyes?"[a] 6 But Tobit kept saying to her, "Hush, do not worry, my sister; he is well. No doubt something has come up to keep them busy there. His companion is a man to be trusted, a kinsman of ours. Stop grieving over him, my sister; he will soon be back." 7 She answered him, "Hush yourself, and do not try to deceive me. My child has perished." And she would rush out and watch the road her son had taken, every day, and would believe no one. When the sun went down, she would go inside and lament and weep all night long, without any sleep.[b] 8 When the fourteen days of wedding festivities that Raguel had vowed to hold for his daughter were finished, Tobias came to him and said, "Send me off, because I know my father and mother no longer expect to see me again. So now, father, I ask you to let me leave, so that I can go back to my father. I have already told you how I left him." 9 Raguel urged Tobias, "Stay, child, stay here with me. I will dispatch messengers to Tobit your father, who will tell him how you are." But Tobias said, "By no means. I beg you to send me back from here to my father." 10 Then Raguel rose and handed over to Tobias his wife Sarah, together with a half share of all his goods: menservants and maidservants, cattle and flocks, donkeys and camels, garments, silver, and household utensils. 11 He sent them away in good health.
He embraced Tobias and said to him, "Farewell, my child; go in health.
May the Lord of heaven make the way prosperous for you and for Sarah your wife, and may I see children of yours before I die." 12 And he said to his daughter Sarah, "Go to your father-in-law's house, for from now on they are your parents as much as those who gave you birth. Go in peace, daughter. May I hear good reports of you as long as I live." Then he kissed them good-bye and sent them off. 13 And Edna said to Tobias, "My son and beloved brother, may the Lord restore you safely, and may I live to see children born to you and to my daughter Sarah before my death. In the presence of the Lord I am entrusting my daughter to your keeping. Never cause her sorrow as long as you live. Go in peace, my son. Henceforth I am a mother to you, and Sarah a sister.[c] May every one of us prosper alike, every day that we live." And she kissed them both and sent them off in good health. 14 So Tobias left Raguel's house in health and joy, blessing the Lord of heaven and earth, King over all things, because he had prospered his way. And he said to him,[d] "It has been granted you to honor them all the days of their life."

Notes

- a (10:5) The light of my eyes: GI reads "I do not care about anything, my child, since I let you go, the light of my eyes."
- b (10:7) Without any sleep: GI is shorter in verses 6–7 and adds that she would not eat during the day and did not stop lamenting her son Tobias until the fourteen days of the wedding were over.
- c (10:13) A sister: here, a relative by marriage.
- d (10:14) He said to him: the Greek of Sinaiticus is apparently damaged here; the sense may be a blessing spoken to Tobias, that he would have the privilege of honoring his parents-in-law ("them") as long as they lived. GI reads "and he blessed Raguel and Edna his wife." Scholarly review recommended.

Chapter 11

1 As they drew near to Kaserin,[a] which lies opposite Nineveh, Raphael said, 2 "You know the condition in which we left your father. 3 Let us rush ahead of your wife and get the house ready while the others are still traveling." 4 So the two of them went on together. And Raphael said to him, "Keep the gall ready in your hand." And the dog trotted along at their heels, behind Raphael and Tobias.[b]

5 Anna, meanwhile, sat watching the road by which her son would come. 6 She spied him on his way and called to his father, "See, here comes your son, along with the man who went with him!" 7 Before Tobias came up to his father, Raphael told him, "I am sure that his eyes will be opened. 8 Rub the gall of the fish onto his eyes; the medicine will contract the white films and strip them from his eyes, and your father will look up and behold the light." [9] Anna ran up and threw her arms around her son's neck, saying to him, "I have seen you, my child! Now I can die." And she wept. [10] Tobit got up and, stumbling as he went, made his way out through the courtyard door. [11] Tobias went up to him with the fish's gall in his hand. He blew into his eyes, took hold of him, and said, "Be brave, father!" Then he applied the remedy to him and left it on for a while.[c] [12] Next, using both hands, he peeled the films away from the corners of his eyes. [13] Tobit threw his arms around his neck and wept, and said to him, "I can see you, my son, the light of my eyes!" [14] And he said, "Blessed is God, and blessed his great name, and blessed all his holy angels! May his great name rest upon us,[d] and blessed be all the angels to all the ages. For he afflicted me with the scourge, yet now I behold my son Tobias!" [15] Tobias went in rejoicing and blessing God aloud with his whole voice. He told his father that his journey had prospered, that he had brought back the silver, and how he had married Sarah, Raguel's daughter, and that she was even now on her way and close to the gate of Nineveh.

[16] Then Tobit went out toward the gate of Nineveh, rejoicing and praising God, to welcome his son's bride. The people of Nineveh, watching him walk with all his vigor and no one guiding him by the hand, were astonished. And Tobit declared in front of them that God had been merciful to him and had opened his eyes. [17] When Tobit reached Sarah, his son Tobias's wife, he blessed her and said, "Welcome, daughter, and good health to you! Blessed is your God for bringing you to us, daughter; blessed is your father, blessed is my son Tobias, and blessed are you, daughter. Come into your home in good health, with blessing and joy; come in, daughter." [18] On that day joy came to every Jew living in Nineveh. [19] And Ahikar and Nadab,[e] Tobit's nephews, came to him full of joy.

Notes

- a (11:1) Kaserin: an otherwise unknown place; the name may be corrupt. GI reads simply "until they came near to Nineveh."
- b (11:4) Behind Raphael and Tobias: the Greek of Sinaiticus is awkward here ("behind him, and Tobias"). GI places the dog "behind them" and puts the command about the gall before the departure.

- c (11:11) Left it on for a while: the sense of the Greek verb (epedōken) is uncertain. GI describes the treatment differently: Tobias sprinkled the gall on his father's eyes, and when they smarted, Tobit rubbed them and the films scaled off.
- d (11:14) Rest upon us: literally "be upon us." GI reads more briefly: "Blessed are you, O God, and blessed is your name forever, and blessed are all your holy angels; for you scourged me and had mercy on me."
- e (11:19) Ahikar and Nadab: on Ahikar see the note at 1:21. GI reads "Achiacharus and Nasbas his nephew," and adds that Tobias's wedding was celebrated with gladness for seven days.

Chapter 12

1 When the wedding celebration was over, Tobit called his son Tobias and said to him, "My child, see to it that you pay the man who went with you his wages, and give him something more besides." 2 Tobias answered him, "Father, how much shall I pay him? It would be no loss to me to give him half of the goods he brought back with me. 3 He has led me back safe and sound; he cured my wife; he brought the silver back with me; and he cured you too. How much more should I pay him as wages?" 4 Tobit said to him, "It is only right, my child, that he should receive half of everything he brought back." 5 So Tobias called him and said, "Take as your wages half of everything you brought back, and go in health."
6 Then Raphael called the two of them aside in secret and told them, "Bless God, and in the sight of all who live acknowledge the kindness he has shown you, so that they may bless and sing praise to his name. Make known to all people the words of God, as is fitting, and do not hesitate to give him thanks. 7 It is right to keep a king's secret, but the works of God are to be revealed and acknowledged with honor. Do what is good, and evil will not overtake you. 8 Prayer with truthfulness is good, and charity with righteousness, better than wealth with wrongdoing. Better to give charity than to hoard gold.[a] 9 Charity rescues from death, and it purges away every sin. Those who give charity will have their fill of life. 10 Those who commit sin and wrongdoing are enemies of their own selves.
11 "I will disclose the whole truth to you and will keep nothing hidden from you. I have already declared it to you, saying, 'It is right to keep a king's secret, but the works of God are to be revealed with glory.'

12 Now then: when you prayed, you and Sarah, I was the one who carried the memorial of your prayer[b] into the presence of the Lord's glory; and I did the same each time you gave burial to the dead. 13 And when you did not hesitate to get up and leave your meal and went and laid out the dead man, then I was sent to you to test you.[c] 14 And God has sent me at the same time to bring healing to you and to Sarah, your son's wife. 15 I am Raphael, one of seven angels who attend and go in before the Lord's glory."[d] 16 The two of them were shaken; they fell on their faces in fear. 17 But he told them, "Have no fear; peace to you. Bless God for all time. 18 As for me, when I was with you, I was not with you by any favor of my own, but by the will of God. Bless him every day; sing his praise. 19 You watched me, but I ate nothing; what you saw was a vision.[e] 20 So now bless the Lord here on earth and thank God. See, I am ascending to the one who sent me. Record everything that has happened to you."
And he ascended. 21 They rose to their feet, but he was no longer to be seen. 22 They kept blessing God and singing hymns to him, and they gave thanks to him for these great works of his, that an angel of God had appeared to them.

Notes

- a (12:8) Better to give charity than to hoard gold: GI reads "Prayer is good with fasting and charity and righteousness. A little with righteousness is better than much with wrongdoing."
- b (12:12) The record of your prayer: Greek mnēmosynon, "memorial," a term used of offerings that bring something to God's remembrance (compare Leviticus 2:2; Acts 10:4).
- c (12:13) To test you: GI reads instead "your good deed did not escape me; I was with you."
- d (12:15) Seven angels: compare Revelation 8:2. GI describes Raphael as one of the seven holy angels who carry the prayers of the saints and go in before the glory of the Holy One. On the meaning of Raphael's name see the note at 1:1.
- e (12:19) A vision: that is, an appearance only. GI reads "All these days I merely appeared to you; I did not eat or drink, but you were seeing a vision."

Chapter 13

1 Then Tobit said:[a]

2 “Blessed is God, the ever-living, and blessed his reign!
For he chastises, and he shows mercy;
he brings down to Hades, to the lowest depths of the earth, and he himself brings up from the great destruction;
there is nothing that can slip from his hand.
3 Give him thanks, you children of Israel, in the sight of the nations, for he himself has scattered you among them, 4 and there he has displayed his majesty to you.
Exalt him in the presence of all that lives, for it is he who is Lord to us, he who is God to us;
he is Father to us, and God for all the ages.
5 He will chastise you for your wrongdoing, and he will have mercy on all of you and gather you out of all the nations wherever you have been scattered among them.[b] 6 Once you return to him wholeheartedly, with your entire soul, to practice faithfulness before him, he too will return to you and no longer conceal his face from you.
7 Look now at all he has done with you, and praise him aloud with your whole mouth.
Bless the Lord of righteousness, and lift high the King of the ages.
8 Here, in the country of my captivity, I praise him;
I proclaim his might and his majesty to a sinful people.[c] Return, sinners, and act righteously in his sight; who can tell? He may take pleasure in you and deal kindly with you.
9 I extol my God;
my soul extols heaven’s King and will exult in his majesty.
10 Let everyone declare it and praise him in Jerusalem.
Jerusalem, city of holiness,

he will chastise you for the deeds of your children, yet once more he will show compassion to the offspring of the just.
11 And once more your tent will be rebuilt for you with joy.[d] 12 May he bring gladness within you to every captive, and cherish within you all who are wretched, to all generations forever.
13 A brilliant light will blaze to all the earth's limits;
from afar a multitude of nations will come to you, and the dwellers at the world's remotest edges to your holy name, carrying gifts in their hands for heaven's King.
Age upon age will give exultation within you, and the name of the elect city will last for every age to come.
14 A curse on all who speak harshly of you!
Accursed will be all who tear you down and pull down your walls, all who overturn your towers and set fire to your dwellings;
but blessed forever will be all who revere you.
15 Then go and exult among the offspring of the just, since every one of them will be assembled to bless the eternal Lord.
How fortunate are your lovers!
How fortunate those whose joy will be in your peace!
16 Fortunate as well are all who mourned for you because of every blow you bore;
for in you they will find joy, and they will look on the fullness of your gladness forever.
Bless the Lord, my soul, the mighty King!
17 For Jerusalem will be rebuilt as a city,[e] his house for all the ages.
I will be happy if a remnant of my descendants survives to look on your splendor and praise heaven's King.
Of sapphire and emerald Jerusalem's gates will be made,
and of costly stone every wall of yours;
of gold Jerusalem's towers will be constructed,
their ramparts of refined gold.
Jerusalem's squares will be laid with garnet[f] and Ophir stone.[g] 18 Jerusalem's gateways will ring with songs of gladness, and every house in her will shout, 'Hallelujah!

Israel's God be blessed!'

And those he has blessed will praise his holy name for all time and beyond."

Notes

- a (13:1) Then Tobit said: GI reads "Then Tobit wrote a prayer of rejoicing and said."
- b (13:5) Scattered among them: Sinaiticus reads "and he will have mercy on all of you from all the nations wherever you have been scattered among them"; the words "and gather you" are supplied from GI to complete the sense.
- c (13:8) To a nation of sinners: verses 8–10 are missing from Sinaiticus, apparently through a scribe's eye skipping a line, and are translated here from GI (Vaticanus). Small Qumran fragments of this hymn are reported (4Q198–200), but they do not cover the whole gap. Scholarly review recommended.
- d (13:11) Your tent: that is, the Temple, pictured as God's dwelling-tent.
- e (13:17) Rebuilt as a city: the Greek of Sinaiticus is awkward (literally "will be built for the city"); GI reads simply "Jerusalem will be built."
- f (13:17) Garnet: Greek anthrax, a deep-red precious stone (perhaps carbuncle or ruby). GI adds beryl.
- g (13:17) Ophir: Greek Souphir, a form of Ophir, the land famous for its gold (1 Kings 9:28).

Chapter 14

1 So ended the words of Tobit's song of praise.[a] 2 Tobit died in peace at the age of one hundred twelve and was buried with honor in Nineveh. He had been sixty-two years old when he lost the use of his eyes, and after his sight returned he lived in prosperity, giving charity and continuing to bless God and to proclaim God's majesty.[b]

3 As he lay dying, he summoned his son Tobias and gave him these instructions: "My child, take your children away 4 and hurry off to Media, for I put my trust in the word God spoke through Nahum[c] concerning Nineveh, that it will all come true and will overtake Assyria and Nineveh. Whatever the prophets of Israel whom God sent have spoken, all of it will happen; not one of their words will fall short, and everything will come about at its proper time. There will be more safety in Media than in Assyria or Babylon. For I know and trust that everything God has said will be carried out and will come to pass; not one word of his sayings will fail. Our kindred who live in the land of Israel will all be dispersed and carried off as captives from that good land. The whole land of Israel will become a wasteland; Samaria and Jerusalem will be a wasteland, and God's house will be in mourning and will lie burned for a time. 5 Yet God will once more show them mercy and restore them to Israel's land. Again they will build the house, though it will not equal the former one, until the period of the appointed ages is fulfilled. After that they will all return from their captivity and rebuild Jerusalem in splendor, and in her God's house will be built anew,[d] in keeping with what Israel's prophets have foretold about her. 6 Then all the nations throughout the whole earth will turn and fear God in truth. Every one of them will abandon the idols that have deceived them into falsehood, and they will bless the everlasting God in righteousness. 7 All the children of Israel who are rescued in those days, who remember God faithfully, will be assembled and make their way to Jerusalem, and dwell securely in the land of Abraham forever, and it will be handed over to them. Whoever loves God in sincerity will be glad, but those who practice sin and wrongdoing will vanish from all the earth.[e] 8 "And now, my children, I charge you: serve God faithfully and do what pleases him. Your children are to be instructed to practice righteousness and charity, to keep God in mind, and to bless his name at every season, faithfully and with all their strength.[f] 9 And now you, my child, leave Nineveh; do not stay on here. On the day you bury your mother beside me, do not spend that very night within the city's limits. For I can see that there is much wickedness in it, and great treachery is carried on there, and the people have no shame. 10 Consider, my child, all that Nadab did to Ahikar, who had brought him up. Was not Ahikar sent down alive into the earth?[g] But God paid back the disgrace to Nadab's face: Ahikar came out into the light, while Nadab went into the everlasting darkness, because he had tried to kill Ahikar. Because Ahikar gave charity, he escaped the deadly trap that Nadab had set for him, but Nadab himself fell into the deadly trap, and it destroyed him.[h] 11 So now, my children, see what charity accomplishes, and what wrongdoing accomplishes: it brings death.

But now my breath is failing me." They placed him upon his couch, and he breathed his last; and they gave him an honorable burial.[i]

12 After his mother's death, Tobias laid her in the tomb with his father.
Then, with his wife, he departed for Media and made his home at Ecbatana alongside Raguel, the father of his wife. 13 He looked after them in their old age with every respect and buried them at Ecbatana in Media, and he inherited the household of Raguel as well as that of his father Tobit. 14 He died with honor at the age of one hundred seventeen.[j] 15 Before his own death he witnessed and was told of the ruin of Nineveh, and he watched its prisoners being marched off to Media, those whom Cyaxares[k] king of Media had taken captive. He praised God for everything he had brought upon the inhabitants of Nineveh and Assyria. While still alive he exulted over Nineveh's fate, and he blessed the Lord God for all ages upon ages.

Notes

- a (14:1) Song of praise: Greek exomologēsis, "thanksgiving" or "confession," referring to the hymn of chapter 13.
- b (14:2) Majesty: GI gives different figures: Tobit was fifty-eight years old when he lost his sight, and he regained it eight years later. GI also omits his age at death here, giving it instead in verse 11 (one hundred fifty-eight years).
- c (14:4) Nahum: the prophet whose book foretells the fall of Nineveh (612 BC). GI reads "Jonah," whose preaching announced Nineveh's overthrow (Jonah 3:4). Some later manuscripts of GI also read "Nahum."
- d (14:5) Will be rebuilt: GI adds "for all generations forever, with a glorious building." Tobit's words look ahead to the modest Second Temple (compare Ezra 3:12; Haggai 2:3) and then to a glorious final restoration.
- e (14:7) Vanish from all the earth: GI's verse 7 is quite different. It says that his people will give thanks to God, that the Lord will lift up his people, and that all who truly love the Lord God and are righteous will rejoice and show mercy to their kindred.
- f (14:8) All their strength: Sinaiticus runs verses 8 and 9 together (Rahlfs prints them as "8–9"); they are divided here according to the usual numbering. GI lacks this exhortation.
- g (14:10) Sent down alive into the earth: in the Story of Ahikar (see the note at 1:21), Ahikar, falsely accused by his adopted son Nadab, was hidden alive in an underground chamber until he could be vindicated. GI names the nephew "Aman" instead of Nadab.
- h (14:10) Destroyed him: GI says that "Manasseh" (apparently a corruption of the name of Ahikar) gave charity and was rescued.
- i (14:11) Buried with honor: GI adds that he was one hundred fifty-eight years old.

- j (14:14) One hundred seventeen: GI reads “one hundred twenty-seven years, in Ecbatana of Media.”
- k (14:15) Cyaxares: Greek Achiacharos, king of the Medes (about 625–585 BC), who with the Babylonian Nabopolassar destroyed Nineveh in 612 BC. GI reads “Nebuchadnezzar and Ahasuerus.” Neither manuscript tradition matches the historical record precisely; scholarly review recommended.

Judith

Apocrypha

Chapter 1

1 It was the twelfth year of the reign of Nebuchadnezzar,[a] king of Assyria, whose seat was Nineveh, that mighty city. In those days Arphaxad[b] reigned over the Medes in Ecbatana.[c] 2 Around Ecbatana he built walls of hewn stones, each stone about four and a half feet thick and nine feet long.[d] He made the wall about a hundred five feet high and seventy-five feet thick. 3 At its gates he set up towers about a hundred fifty feet high, laying their foundations ninety feet wide. 4 He made its gates tall enough to rise about a hundred five feet, and sixty feet wide, so that his mighty army could march out through them and his infantry could parade in formation. 5 In those days King Nebuchadnezzar waged war against King Arphaxad in the great plain, the plain that lies within the borders of Ragau.[e] 6 Rallying to Arphaxad's side[f] came all the hill-dwellers, the peoples on the banks of the Euphrates, Tigris and Hydaspes,[g] and those of the plains ruled by Arioch king of the Elymaeans.[h] Many nations joined forces with the people of Cheleoud.[i] 7 Then Nebuchadnezzar king of the Assyrians dispatched messengers to every inhabitant of Persia and to every western people: to the inhabitants of Cilicia, of Damascus, of Lebanon and the Antilebanon, and of the whole seaboard, 8 to those among the nations of Carmel and Gilead, upper Galilee and the great plain of Esdraelon,[j] 9 to everyone in Samaria and the towns around it, to the land across the Jordan up to Jerusalem, Betane, Chelous and Kadesh, and the River of Egypt,[k] to Tahpanhes and Raamses, and throughout the land of Goshen, 10 even beyond Tanis and Memphis, and to every inhabitant of Egypt up to Ethiopia's frontier. 11 But the inhabitants of that entire region scorned the order of Assyria's king Nebuchadnezzar and refused to go to war at his side. They had no fear of him; to them he was no more than a single man. They sent his envoys back empty-handed and in disgrace.

12 Nebuchadnezzar's anger blazed fiercely against all that land, and he took an oath by his throne and his royal power to avenge himself on all the territory of Cilicia, Damascus and Syria, and would slay with his sword the inhabitants of Moab, the Ammonites, all of Judea, and every soul in Egypt, up to the shores of the two seas.[l] 13 In the seventeenth year he drew up his forces against King Arphaxad and overpowered him in battle. He routed Arphaxad's entire army, all his cavalry and all his chariots. 14 He took possession of his cities and went on as far as Ecbatana. He seized its towers, plundered its marketplaces, and turned its splendor into shame. 15 He captured Arphaxad in the mountains of Ragau, ran him through with his spears, and finished him off once and for all. 16 Then he returned to Nineveh with his spoil, he and his whole combined army, an immense multitude of fighting men; and there he and his army took their ease and feasted for one hundred twenty days.

Notes

- a (1:1) Nebuchadnezzar: Nebuchadnezzar II (reigned 605–562 BC) was in fact king of Babylon, not of Assyria, and Nineveh had been destroyed in 612 BC, before his reign began (see 2:28 and 5:18–19, where the return from exile is already past). The book's combination of historical names from different periods is widely understood as deliberate: the story gathers the great enemies of Israel into a single figure, and the opening signals to the reader that this is an exemplary tale rather than a chronicle. Scholarly review recommended.
- b (1:1) Arphaxad: not known from other sources. Suggested identifications (for example Phraortes, king of the Medes, about 675–653 BC, or Deioces, the founder of Ecbatana) are reported but uncertain.
- c (1:1) Ecbatana: the Median capital, modern Hamadan in western Iran.
- d (1:2) About four and a half feet thick and nine feet long: literally "three cubits in breadth and six cubits in length." A cubit, the length from the elbow to the fingertip, was about 18 inches (45 cm), so the stones were about 1.4 m by 2.7 m. In verses 2–4, the wall was 70 cubits high (about 32 m) and 50 cubits thick (about 23 m); the towers were 100 cubits high (about 45 m) on foundations 60 cubits wide (about 27 m); and the gates were 70 cubits high (about 32 m) and 40 cubits wide (about 18 m). The dimensions are deliberately vast.
- e (1:5) Ragau: the same as Rages in Tobit (Rhagae), southeast of modern Tehran.

- f (1:6) Rallying to Arphaxad's side: literally "there came together to him"; the Greek may also be read as gathering to Nebuchadnezzar.
- g (1:6) Hydaspes: a river in northwestern India (the Jhelum), far from the scene; the name may be a corruption of another river name, possibly the Choaspes near Susa.
- h (1:6) Elymaeans: the people of Elam, east of the lower Tigris.
- i (1:6) Cheleoud: unidentified; some identify it with the Chaldeans. Scholarly review recommended.
- j (1:8) Esdraelon: the Greek form of Jezreel, the broad valley between Galilee and Samaria.
- k (1:9) The River of Egypt: the Wadi el-Arish in northern Sinai, the traditional southern border of Canaan.
- l (1:12) The two seas: perhaps the Mediterranean and the Red Sea (or the Persian Gulf).

Chapter 2

1 In year eighteen, on the first month's twenty-second day (March–April),[a] word went forth in the house of Nebuchadnezzar, Assyria's king, that he would take vengeance on all the earth, as he had declared. 2 He summoned all his officials and all his nobles, laid before them his secret plan, and with his own lips pronounced utter ruin upon the region. 3 They resolved to destroy everyone who had not heeded the command of his mouth. 4 His plan complete, Nebuchadnezzar king of Assyria sent for Holofernes,[b] supreme commander of his forces and next in rank to the king, and told him, 5 "Thus says the great king, the lord of the whole earth: Go out from my presence, and take with you men who trust in their own strength, one hundred twenty thousand foot soldiers and a force of twelve thousand horses with their riders. 6 March out against the whole land to the west, because they disobeyed the command of my mouth. 7 Order them to prepare earth and water,[c] because I am coming out against them in my fury and will cover the whole face of the earth with the feet of my army, and I will hand them over to my troops to plunder. 8 Their wounded will fill their ravines, and every stream and river will overflow, choked with their dead. 9 Their captives I will carry off to the farthest limits of all the earth. 10 Go, then, and seize all their territory for me in advance. If they surrender to you, you are to hold them for me until the day of their punishment. 11 But as for those who resist, show them no pity; hand them over to slaughter and plunder throughout your whole territory. 12 For as I live, and by the power of my kingdom, I have spoken, and I will accomplish this by my own hand. 13 And you, do not transgress a single one of your lord's commands, but carry them out to the letter, just as I have ordered you, and do not delay in doing them." 14 So Holofernes went out from the presence of his lord and summoned all the princes, generals and officers of the Assyrian army. 15 He mustered picked men for battle, as his lord had ordered him, one hundred twenty thousand of them, with twelve thousand mounted archers, 16 and he organized them as a great army is marshaled for war. 17 He took along a huge number of camels, donkeys and mules to carry their baggage, and sheep, oxen and goats beyond counting for their provisions, 18 as well as ample rations for every man, and a great quantity of gold and silver from the royal treasury. 19 Then he and his entire force took the road, to march in advance of King Nebuchadnezzar and to blanket the whole western face of the earth with their chariots, horsemen and choice foot soldiers. 20 A vast motley crowd came out with them, as numerous as locusts or as the sand of the earth, for their multitude was beyond counting.

21 They marched three days out of Nineveh to the edge of the plain of Bectileth,[d] and from Bectileth they made camp near the mountain that lies to the north[e] of upper Cilicia. 22 From there he took his whole force, foot soldiers, horsemen and chariots, and moved off into the highlands. 23 He cut his way through Put and Lud[f] and pillaged every one of the people of Rassis and the Ishmaelites who lived along the edge of the desert, south of the land of the Cheleans. 24 Then he crossed the Euphrates, passed through Mesopotamia, and demolished every walled town by the Wadi Abron,[g] all the way to the sea. 25 He seized the territory of Cilicia, cut down all who opposed him, and came to the borders of Japheth, which face Arabia to the south. 26 He surrounded all the Midianites, set fire to their tents, and looted their sheepfolds. 27 Descending into the Damascus plain while the wheat was being harvested, he set all their fields on fire, wiped out their flocks and herds, sacked their towns, laid waste their plains,[h] and cut down all their youths with the edge of the sword.

28 Terror and dread of him overwhelmed everyone along the coast, the people of Sidon and Tyre, the inhabitants of Sur and Ocina, and everyone in Jamnia. The people of Azotus and Ashkelon were frightened of him.[i]

Notes

- a (2:1) First month (March–April): the month Nisan, the first month of the spring new year.
- b (2:4) Holofernes: a Persian name (compare Orophernes, a Cappadocian prince of the 2nd century BC, and a Persian general of the 4th century BC named in Diodorus, as reported). Its use for an Assyrian commander is another sign of the book's blending of periods.
- c (2:7) Earth and water: the traditional Persian demand for tokens of submission (Herodotus, Histories 6.48).
- d (2:21) Bectileth: an unknown location; three days' march from Nineveh would not reach Cilicia, and the geography of the campaign is schematic.
- e (2:21) To the north: Greek "on the left," facing east.
- f (2:23) Put and Lud: peoples usually placed in Africa and Asia Minor (Genesis 10:6, 13, 22); here the names seem to be used freely. Rassis is unidentified (perhaps Rhosus in Cilicia, or Tarsus); the Cheleans are perhaps the Chaldeans or the people of Chaluus.
- g (2:24) Wadi Abron: unidentified; perhaps the Habor (Khabur), a tributary of the Euphrates, or a corruption of "Hebrews."
- h (2:27) Laid waste their plains: literally "winnowed their plains," scattering them like chaff.
- i (2:28) Azotus and Ashkelon: Philistine cities on the coast; Azotus is Ashdod, and Jamnia is Jabneh (Yavneh). Sur and Ocina are not certainly identified.

Chapter 3

1 So they sent envoys to him with offers of peace, who said, 2 "Here we are, servants of the great king Nebuchadnezzar, bowing low in your presence. Deal with us however you see fit. 3 Our farmsteads, all our lands, every wheat field, our flocks and herds, and all the sheepfolds of our encampments lie before you; do with them as you please. 4 Our towns too, with their inhabitants, are your slaves. Come and treat them in whatever way seems good to you." 5 The men came to Holofernes and reported to him in these words.

6 Then he and his army went down to the coast. He stationed garrisons in the hilltop towns and took picked men from them as auxiliaries.
7 These people and all the surrounding countryside welcomed him with garlands, dancing and tambourines. 8 Yet he demolished all their shrines[a] and hacked down their sacred groves; for he had been commissioned to wipe out every god of the earth, so that every nation would worship Nebuchadnezzar alone, and people of every tongue and tribe would call upon him as god.
9 Then he came toward Esdraelon, near Dothan,[b] which faces the great ridge[c] of Judea. 10 His troops made camp between Geba and Scythopolis,[d] and he stayed there for a whole month in order to gather all the supplies for his army.

Notes

- a (3:8) Shrines: so a probable reading; the Greek manuscripts read "borders" (horia), perhaps a confusion with "holy places" (hiera). Scholarly review recommended.
- b (3:9) Dothan: Greek Dōtaia, the Dothan of Genesis 37:17, north of Samaria.
- c (3:9) Ridge: Greek "saw," evidently the jagged mountain ridge running north–south through the hill country (perhaps the Carmel range).
- d (3:10) Scythopolis: the Greek name of Beth-shan, at the eastern end of the Jezreel valley. Geba here is perhaps Jaba, south of Dothan.

Chapter 4

1 The Israelites living in Judea heard of everything that Holofernes, commander-in-chief of Nebuchadnezzar king of the Assyrians, had done to the nations, and how he had stripped all their temples and given them over to destruction. 2 They were utterly terrified at his approach and were deeply alarmed for Jerusalem and for the Temple of the Lord their God.[a] 3 For they had only lately come up from captivity; the people of Judea had only recently been gathered together, and the vessels, the altar and the house had just been consecrated anew after their profanation.[b] 4 They dispatched messengers throughout the territory of Samaria, to Kona and Beth-horon, Belmain and Jericho, Choba and Aesora, and the Salem valley.[c] 5 They occupied all the summits of the high mountains, fortified the villages on them, and laid in provisions in readiness for war, since their fields had just been harvested.

6 Joakim, high priest[d] in Jerusalem in those days, sent a letter to the inhabitants of Bethulia[e] and Betomesthaim,[f] which faces Esdraelon across the plain near Dothan, 7 ordering them to hold the mountain passes, since through them lay the way into Judea. It would be easy to stop the enemy as they came up, for the approach was so narrow that only two men at a time could pass. 8 The Israelites did as Joakim the high priest and the council of elders of all the people of Israel, sitting in Jerusalem, had commanded them.
9 All the men of Israel called upon God most earnestly and abased themselves most earnestly, 10 they, their wives, their little children and their cattle; every resident alien, hired laborer and purchased slave among them wrapped sackcloth around their waists. 11 All the men, women and children of Israel who lived in Jerusalem lay prostrate before the Temple, strewed ashes on their heads, and spread out their sackcloth before the Lord. 12 They even draped the altar in sackcloth, and with one accord they called out earnestly to the God of Israel not to let their infants be carried off as plunder, their wives taken as spoil, the towns of their inheritance destroyed, and the sanctuary profaned and mocked, to the gloating of the nations. 13 The Lord heard their voice and looked upon their distress. Throughout Judea and in Jerusalem the people fasted for many days before the sanctuary of the Lord Almighty.[g] 14 Joakim the high priest, and all the priests who stood in the Lord's presence and served him, wrapped their loins in sackcloth as they presented the daily burnt offering, the vow offerings, and the people's voluntary gifts. 15 There were ashes on their turbans, and with all their might they cried out to the Lord to look with favor on the whole house of Israel.

Notes

- a (4:2) The Lord their God: in Judith, as elsewhere in the Greek scriptures, Greek kyrios ("Lord") normally stands for the divine name YHWH of the Hebrew Bible, which this translation renders "Yahweh" in books translated from Hebrew. Because Judith survives only in Greek, kyrios is rendered "Lord" throughout. Scholarly review recommended.
- b (4:3) After their profanation: the setting presupposes the return from the Babylonian exile (after 538 BC) and the rebuilding of the Temple, although the king is called Nebuchadnezzar. Some see an echo of the rededication of the Temple under Judas Maccabeus in 164 BC (1 Maccabees 4:36–59).

- c (4:4) Valley of Salem: most of these places are not certainly identified. Beth-horon lies northwest of Jerusalem; Kona, Belmain, Choba and Aesora are unknown, and Salem may be Salim near the Jordan (compare John 3:23).
- d (4:6) Joakim the high priest: a high priest named Joiakim served after the return from exile (Nehemiah 12:10, 26), but the Joakim of Judith cannot be fixed historically.
- e (4:6) Bethulia: the town where most of the story takes place, otherwise unknown. Its name may be symbolic, suggesting Hebrew betulah, "virgin," or bet-eloah, "house of God." Its setting here, guarding the passes near Dothan, would place it in the hill country north of Samaria; sites such as Mithiliya and Sanur have been proposed (reported).
- f (4:6) Betomesthaim: unidentified.
- g (4:13) The Lord Almighty: Greek kyrios pantokratōr, "Lord, ruler of all," the usual Greek rendering of "Yahweh of hosts."

Chapter 5

1 Word reached Holofernes, commander-in-chief of the Assyrian army, that the Israelites had made ready for war: they had shut off the passes through the hill country, walled in every summit of the high mountains, and laid obstacles across the plains. 2 He was seized with violent anger, and he called together all the rulers of Moab, the generals of Ammon, and all the governors of the coast, 3 and said to them, "Now tell me, you Canaanites, who are these people that inhabit the hill country? What towns do they live in? How large is their army, and where does their power and strength lie? Who has set himself up as their king, to lead their forces? 4 And why, alone among all the peoples of the west, have they turned their backs and refused to come out and meet me?"

5 Then Achior,[a] chief of all the sons of Ammon, replied, "May my lord be pleased to hear a word spoken by your servant. I will give you a true account of this nation dwelling in the highlands close to your camp, and nothing false shall come from your servant's mouth. 6 These people are descended from the Chaldeans.[b] 7 At one time they lived as aliens in Mesopotamia, because they would not follow the gods of their forebears in the land of the Chaldeans. 8 They abandoned their ancestors' customs and began worshiping the God of heaven, whom they had come to know. Their relatives expelled them from the presence of their gods, and they escaped to Mesopotamia and lived there as foreigners for many years. 9 Then their God told them to leave the place where they were staying and go to the land of Canaan. They settled there and grew rich in gold and silver and in great herds of livestock. 10 But hunger overspread the face of Canaan, so they went down into Egypt and sojourned there while their food held out; and in that land they grew into a vast throng, a race too many to count.

11 But the king of Egypt rose up against them and dealt craftily with them, forcing them to toil at brickmaking; they humiliated them and made them slaves. 12 They raised a cry to their God, who smote all Egypt with incurable plagues; and so the Egyptians expelled them from their presence. 13 Then God dried up the Red Sea before them, 14 and led them by the road to Sinai and Kadesh-barnea. They expelled all who lived in the wilderness, 15 and took up residence in the land of the Amorites. In their strength they wiped out all the people of Heshbon, and crossing the Jordan they took possession of the whole hill country. 16 They dispossessed the Canaanite, the Perizzite, the Jebusite, the people of Shechem, and every Girgashite, and dwelt in that land for many days. 17 As long as they did not sin before their God, prosperity was theirs, for the God who is with them hates wrongdoing. 18 But when they strayed from the path he had set for them, they were wiped out in many wars and deported to a foreign land. Their God's temple was leveled, and their enemies captured their towns. 19 But now they have come back to their God and returned from the places where they had been dispersed. They have reoccupied Jerusalem, the site of their sanctuary, and resettled the hill country, which had lain deserted.[c] 20 So now, my master and lord, if there is any error in this people, if they are sinning against their God, and if we find out that they have this offense among them, then we will go up and defeat them. 21 But should their people be free of lawlessness, my lord had best leave them alone, lest their Lord and God shield them and we become a byword of disgrace in all the earth." 22 When Achior stopped speaking, all the people standing around the tent began to grumble, and Holofernes' officers and all those from the coast and from Moab said he ought to be cut to pieces. [23] "We will not be afraid of the Israelites," they said. "They are a people with neither the power nor the might to make a strong stand in battle. [24] So let us go up, Lord Holofernes, and they will be swallowed up by your whole army."

Notes

- a (5:5) Achior: a Hebrew-sounding name, perhaps "brother of light." His later conversion (14:10) makes this Ammonite a notable figure, since Deuteronomy 23:3 excluded Ammonites from the assembly of Israel.
- b (5:6) Chaldeans: that is, from Ur of the Chaldeans (Genesis 11:31). Achior's summary of Israel's history follows Genesis through Kings.
- c (5:19) Left desolate: this presupposes the return from exile (after 538 BC), centuries after the historical Nebuchadnezzar of Assyria in the story. See the note at 1:1.

Chapter 6

[1] When the uproar among the men around the council had subsided, Holofernes, commander-in-chief of the Assyrian army, spoke to Achior in front of the whole crowd of foreigners and of all the Moabites: [2] "And who are you, Achior, you and these hirelings of Ephraim,[a] to play the prophet among us as you have done today, telling us not to make war on the race of Israel because their God will protect them? Who is god but Nebuchadnezzar? His power he will dispatch to wipe them from the earth's face, and their God will not rescue them. [3] We his servants will strike them down as if they were one man. They will not withstand the might of our cavalry. [4] We will burn them up with it;[b] the blood of these people will make their hills drunk, and their corpses will fill their lowlands. Not even the print of their feet will stand against us; they will perish utterly. This is the word of King Nebuchadnezzar, master of all the earth; and when he speaks, not one thing he says will prove empty. [5] As for you, Achior, you Ammonite hireling, who have uttered these words in your hour of wickedness, from this day you will not see my face again until I take vengeance on this race that came out of Egypt. [6] Then the iron of my army and the spear[c] of my servants will run through your ribs, and you will drop down among their slain at my return. [7] My slaves will now take you back into the hill country and leave you in one of the towns beside the passes. [8] You will not die until you are destroyed along with them. [9] And if in your heart you are so confident they will not be taken, why let your face fall? I have said it; no word of mine will come to nothing."

[10] Then Holofernes commanded the slaves who attended him in his tent to arrest Achior, conduct him back to Bethulia, and deliver him into Israelite hands. [11] His slaves therefore seized him, marched him outside the camp onto the plain, and from the middle of the plain headed up into the highlands until they reached the springs beneath Bethulia. [12] When the men of the hilltop town saw them, they grabbed their weapons and went out to the crest of the hill, and all the slingers prevented them from climbing by showering them with stones. [13] So they slipped down under cover of the hill, bound Achior, left him lying at the foot of the hill, and went back to their lord. [14] Coming down out of their town, the Israelites went over to him, loosed his bonds, brought him into Bethulia, and stood him before the magistrates of their town, [15] who in those days were these: Uzziah[d] the son of Micah, a Simeonite; Chabris the son of Gothoniel; and Charmis the son of Melchiel. [16] These summoned every elder of the town; all the youths and the women came running to the gathering; and Achior was made to stand in the midst of the whole populace while Uzziah asked him what had occurred. [17] He answered by relating what had been said at Holofernes' council, everything he himself had said before the Assyrian officers, and all of Holofernes' bragging against Israel's house. [18] Then the people bowed down in worship before God and called aloud, [19] "Lord God of heaven, look on their arrogance, and pity the humiliation of our race. Look with favor today on the faces of those who are consecrated to you." [20] Then they reassured Achior and praised him highly. [21] Uzziah brought him from the gathering to his house and held a drinking feast for the elders, and through the whole of that night they called upon Israel's God to help them.

Notes

- a (6:2) Hirelings of Ephraim: a taunt, suggesting that Achior has been bought by the Israelites; Ephraim stands for Israel. Some manuscripts read "hireling of Ammon," as in verse 5.
- b (6:4) With it: perhaps "with them," that is, with our cavalry, or "in their own land." The Greek is obscure.
- c (6:6) Spear: literally "people," perhaps by confusion with a similar word; the parallel with "sword" suggests a weapon. Scholarly review recommended.
- d (6:15) Uzziah: "Yahweh is my strength."

Chapter 7

1 On the following day Holofernes gave orders to his whole army, and to all the peoples who had joined him as allies, to break camp and march against Bethulia, to seize beforehand the ascents into the hill country, and to open war on the Israelites. 2 That day every fighting man among them set out. Their force of warriors numbered one hundred seventy thousand foot soldiers and twelve thousand horsemen,[a] not counting the baggage train and the men on foot who went with it, a vast host indeed. 3 They pitched camp in the valley close to Bethulia, beside the spring. Their camp stretched in breadth toward Dothan as far as Belbaim, and in length from Bethulia to Cyamon,[b] which looks out over Esdraelon.

4 When the Israelites caught sight of that multitude they were badly shaken, and each one said to his neighbor, "These men will now lick clean the whole face of the earth. Neither the high mountains nor the ravines nor the hills will bear their weight." 5 Each man took up his weapons of war, and after kindling beacon fires on their towers they stood guard all that night.

6 On the second day Holofernes paraded all his cavalry within sight of the Israelites in Bethulia. 7 He inspected the approaches to their town and searched out its springs of water. These he took over, posting detachments of soldiers at them, and then went back to his own troops.

8 Then all the chiefs of the descendants of Esau, all the leaders of the Moabite people, and the commanders of the coastland came to him and said, 9 "Will our master please listen to a word, so that no disaster strikes your army? 10 This people, the Israelites, put no trust in their spears; they rely on the heights of the mountains where they make their homes, for the summits of their mountains are hard to reach. 11 So, master, do not fight them in regular battle formation, and not a single man of your troops will fall. 12 Remain in your camp and keep every soldier of your army safe. Let your servants instead get control of the spring that flows from the foot of the mountain, 13 since that is where all the inhabitants of Bethulia draw their water. Thirst will destroy them and they will hand over their town. Meanwhile we and our people will climb the nearby mountain peaks and camp on them as an outpost, so that not one man gets out of the town. 14 They, their wives and their children will waste away from hunger, and before the sword ever reaches them they will lie strewn in the streets where they live. 15 In this way you will pay them back with an evil reward, because they rebelled and would not come out peaceably to meet you." 16 Holofernes and all his attendants were pleased with this advice, and he ordered it carried out as proposed. 17 Accordingly the Ammonite force broke camp, and five thousand Assyrian troops with them; pitching their tents along the valley, they took control of the Israelites' waters and the fountains that fed them. 18 Edom's sons and Ammon's sons, for their part, climbed up and made camp in the highlands facing Dothan, and detached some of their number to the south and east, toward Egrebel near Chus, on the Mochmur ravine.[c]

The remainder of the Assyrian host took up position on the plain and blanketed the whole countryside; their tents and baggage were pitched in one enormous crowd, a host beyond measure.
19 Then Israel's people raised a cry to the Lord their God, since their courage had sunk; every foe of theirs ringed them about, and there was no slipping out from the midst of them. 20 The whole Assyrian force, infantry, chariots and cavalry, kept them surrounded for thirty-four days, until every water jar belonging to the people of Bethulia was empty. 21 Their cisterns were running dry, and there was not a single day on which they had water enough to drink, for it was doled out to them by measure. 22 Their children lost courage, while the women and youths collapsed from thirst in the town squares and the gateways; they had no strength left.

23 Then the whole people, young men, women and children, thronged around Uzziah and the rulers of the town, and with loud cries they said before all the elders, 24 "God be judge between you and us! You have done us a grave wrong by not making terms of peace with the Assyrians. 25 Now no one can help us. God has handed us over to them, to be crushed in front of them by thirst and total destruction.
26 Summon them now and surrender the whole town to be plundered by the troops of Holofernes and all his army. 27 It is better for us to become their prey; we will be slaves, but we will stay alive, and we will not have to watch our infants die before our eyes, or our wives and children breathing their last. 28 Heaven and earth we summon as witnesses against you, and our God, Lord of our fathers, who is punishing us as our own sins and our fathers' sins deserve: may he not act today according to these words!" 29 Then the entire assembly broke into loud weeping with one voice, and they cried out to the Lord God at the top of their voices. 30 Uzziah said to them, "Courage, my brothers! Let us hold out five days more. In that time the Lord our God will turn his mercy toward us again, for he will not forsake us utterly. 31 But if these days pass with no help reaching us, I will do as you say." 32 Then he sent the people away, each to his own post. The men went off to the walls and towers of their town, and they sent the women and children home. And there was deep dejection throughout the town.

Notes

- a (7:2) Twelve thousand horsemen: compare 2:15, where the force numbers 120,000 infantry and 12,000 mounted archers. The figures are those of the story, not of history.
- b (7:3) Cyamon: Belbaim (perhaps the Belmain of 4:4) and Cyamon are not certainly identified; Cyamon may be Tell Qaimun (Jokneam), at the western edge of the Jezreel valley (reported).
- c (7:18) Wadi Mochmur: Egrebel may be Akrabbeh, southeast of Shechem; Chus and the Wadi Mochmur are unidentified (reported).

Chapter 8

1 In those days word of all this reached Judith.[a] She was the daughter of Merari, and her ancestry went back through Ox, Joseph, Oziel, Elkiah, Ananias, Gideon and Raphain, Ahitub, Elijah, Hilkiah, Eliab, Nathanael, Salamiel, and Sarasadai, up to Israel himself.[b] 2 Her husband Manasseh, from her own tribe and clan, had died during the barley harvest (April–May).[c] 3 While he stood over the men binding sheaves in the field, the burning heat struck his head; he took to his bed and died in Bethulia, his own town, and was laid to rest beside his fathers in the countryside lying between Dothan and Balamon. 4 For three years and four months now Judith had been living as a widow at home. 5 On the roof of her house she had put up a tent for herself. She wore sackcloth around her waist and dressed in the garments of her widowhood. 6 All the days of her widowhood she kept a fast, apart from sabbath eves and sabbaths, new-moon eves and new moons, and the feasts and joyful occasions of Israel's house.[d] 7 She was lovely in form and very beautiful to look upon. Her husband Manasseh had left her gold and silver, male and female servants, livestock and fields, and she remained on her estate. 8 No one spoke a word of ill against her, for she feared God greatly.

9 When Judith learned of the bitter words the people had spoken against their ruler, disheartened as they were by the lack of water, and learned too of all that Uzziah had said to them, how he had sworn to hand the town over to the Assyrians after five days, 10 she sent her maid,[e] who managed all her property, to summon Chabris and Charmis, the elders of her town. 11 When they arrived she said to them, "Hear me, you who govern Bethulia's inhabitants! The word you spoke before the people today was not right. You have sworn this oath, pronounced between God and yourselves, pledging to give up the city to our foes if within those days the Lord does not turn to bring you aid. 12 Who are you, then, to make trial of God this very day and to stand in God's stead in the midst of mortals? 13 Now you are probing the Lord Almighty, yet you will never understand anything! 14 You cannot fathom the depths of the human heart or grasp what a person is thinking. How then can you search out God, who made all these things, or read his mind, or comprehend his reasoning? No, my brothers, do not provoke the Lord our God to anger. 15 For if he does not choose to help us within five days, he still has power to protect us on any day he wishes, or else to destroy us before our enemies. [16] Do not try to bind the Lord our God by pledges as to his plans. God is no man, that threats should move him, nor a son of man, to be brought to terms.[f] [17] So while we wait for the deliverance that comes from him, let us call on him to help us, and he will hear our voice if it pleases him.

[18] "For in our generations there has never arisen, nor is there now, any tribe or clan or district or town of ours that bows down to gods made by hands, as happened in former times. [19] It was for this that our fathers were given up to the sword and to pillage and fell with a great fall in the sight of our foes. [20] We, however, know no god other than him; and so we hope he will not look past us or past any of our race. [21] For if we are taken, all Judea will be taken likewise, and our holy places will be plundered; and God will require of us, at the cost of our blood, their profanation. [22] The killing of our kin, the land's captivity, the laying waste of our inheritance, all this he will turn back upon our heads among whatever nations we come to serve; and we will become a thing to stumble over and to scorn in our owners' sight. [23] Our servitude will not end in goodwill; rather the Lord our God will make it a disgrace.

[24] "Therefore, brothers, let us show our kin what we are made of, since their very lives hang upon us, and on us rest the holy things, the house and the altar. [25] Whatever happens, let us thank the Lord our God, who is putting us through a trial just as he did our ancestors. [26] Call to mind his dealings with Abraham, his testing of Isaac, and what befell Jacob in Mesopotamia of Syria as he shepherded the flocks of Laban, his mother's brother. [27] He has not put us through the fire as he did them, to search out their hearts, nor has he exacted punishment from us; it is for warning that the Lord lashes those who come near him."

[28] Uzziah answered her, "All that you have said, you have spoken with a good heart, and there is no one who can stand against your words. [29] This is not the first day your wisdom has come to light. Since your earliest days the whole people has known how discerning you are, because what your heart shapes is good. [30] But the people were terribly thirsty, and they compelled us to act as we promised them and to bind ourselves by an oath that we cannot break. 31 So now pray for us, for you are a devout woman, and the Lord will send rain to fill our cisterns, and we will no longer faint." 32 Judith said to them, "Listen to me. I am going to do a deed that will be told to the children of our race from generation to generation. 33 Station yourselves at the town gate tonight, and I will go out with my maid. Before the day you set for handing the town over to our enemies, the Lord will rescue Israel through me. 34 But you are not to inquire into my doing. I will tell you nothing until the thing I am to do has been accomplished." 35 Uzziah and the magistrates replied, "Depart in peace. The Lord God be ahead of you, to repay our enemies!" 36 Then they turned away from the tent and went back to their stations.

Notes

- a (8:1) Judith: Hebrew Yehudit, "Jewess" or "Judean woman," the feminine of Judah. The name presents her as an embodiment of her people, much as her town Bethulia and her husband Manasseh may carry symbolic weight. Her long genealogy, the longest given for any woman in the Greek Bible, underlines her standing.
- b (8:1) Son of Israel: that is, son of Jacob. Several names in the list (Merari, Ox, Sarasadai) are uncertain, and the manuscripts differ; Latin and some Greek witnesses connect her with the tribe of Simeon (compare 9:2). Scholarly review recommended.
- c (8:2) Barley harvest: in Palestine the barley harvest fell in the spring, in the months of Nisan and Iyyar.
- d (8:6) Of the house of Israel: Judith exempts the days on which Jewish practice forbade fasting. The rules about the eves of sabbaths and new moons reflect later Jewish custom (compare Mishnah, Taanit).
- e (8:10) Her maid: Greek habra, a favorite or personal maid, one who has charge of a household.
- f (8:16) Won over by bargaining: or "to be brought to terms"; the Greek speaks of submitting a case to arbitration.

Chapter 9

1 Then Judith threw herself face down, sprinkled ash over her head, and laid bare the sackcloth she had on beneath. At that very hour in Jerusalem the evening incense[a] was being offered in God's house, and Judith called aloud to the Lord, saying: 2 "Lord, God of Simeon my forefather, into whose hand you put a sword to take revenge on the foreigners who had loosened a virgin's girdle to defile her, stripped her thigh to shame her, and polluted her womb to disgrace her[b]—for you had said, 'This shall not be done,' yet they did it— 3 for that deed you gave up their rulers to slaughter, and their bed, which blushed at their deceit, you made a bed deceived and bloodied.[c] You struck down slaves together with princes, and princes upon their thrones. 4 Their wives you gave up as plunder and their daughters as captives, with all their loot divided among the sons you loved, who were fired with zeal for you, who abhorred the defilement of their blood and appealed to you for help. God, my God, listen to me too, a widow. 5 For it is you who brought about those events and what went before them and what came after. The present and the things yet to come you have planned, and what you had in mind has come to pass. 6 What you intended stood by your side and answered, 'Look, we are present!' Every road of yours lies ready, and you judge with knowledge beforehand.

7 "See, the Assyrians are swollen with their might. They exult in horse and rider; they glory in the strength of their infantry; their trust is in buckler and javelin, bow and sling, and they fail to recognize you as the Lord who crushes wars. 8 Lord is your name.[d] Break their strength by your power; bring down their might in your anger. For they have resolved to defile your holy places, to pollute the tabernacle where your glorious name rests, and to hew down the horn of your altar with iron. 9 Look upon their pride; send your fury on their heads. Give into my hand, a widow's hand, strength for what I have planned. 10 By the guile of my lips strike down slave together with master, and master together with servant. Shatter their arrogance by the hand of a woman.

11 "For your strength does not lie in numbers, nor your sovereignty in the mighty. God of the humble you are, aid of the little ones, upholder of the feeble, shelter for the despairing, rescuer of the hopeless. 12 Yes, O yes, my father's God, God of Israel's inheritance, master of the heavens and the earth, maker of the seas, sovereign over everything you have made: listen to my plea! 13 Make my words and my deceit a wound and a bruise to those who have plotted cruel things against your covenant, against your consecrated house, against the summit of Zion, and against the house your children possess. 14 Let all your people and every tribe come to acknowledge and perceive that you are God, God of every power and strength, and that there is no other who shields the race of Israel but you alone!"

Notes

- a (9:1) The evening incense: incense was burned in the Temple every evening and morning (Exodus 30:7–8), and the evening offering became a customary hour of prayer (compare Psalm 141:2; Daniel 9:21).
- b (9:2) To disgrace her: the rape of Dinah, avenged by her brothers Simeon and Levi (Genesis 34). Judith's prayer approves the vengeance that Genesis 49:5–7 condemns.
- c (9:3) Deceived and bloodied: the Greek is compressed; the sense seems to be that the bed on which the Shechemites had acted deceitfully became the place where they were deceived and killed.
- d (9:8) Lord is your name: compare Exodus 15:3, "Yahweh is his name." Here the Greek kyrios plainly stands for the divine name. See the note at 4:2.

Chapter 10

1 When she had ceased crying out to the God of Israel and had brought all these words to a close, 2 she rose from where she lay prostrate, called her maid, and went down into the house where she used to spend her sabbaths and her feast days. 3 She took off the sackcloth that clothed her and put aside her widow's garments. She bathed her body in water and anointed herself with rich ointment, combed out the hair of her head and set a headband on it, and put on the festive clothes she used to wear while her husband Manasseh was alive. 4 Sandals she bound on her feet, and she put on her ankle chains, bangles, finger rings, earrings and all her finery. Thus she adorned herself lavishly, so as to beguile the eyes of any men who might see her. 5 She gave her maid a wineskin and a flask of oil, packed a bag with parched grain, fig cakes, and loaves of ritually clean bread,[a] tied up all her supplies, and handed them to the maid to carry.

6 Then they went out to the gate of the town of Bethulia and found Uzziah standing there with the town elders, Chabris and Charmis. 7 When these men saw her, her face transformed and her clothing changed, they were struck with exceeding wonder at her beauty and said to her, [8] "May the God of our fathers grant you favor and bring your undertakings to fulfillment, to the glory of Israel's people and the exaltation of Jerusalem." [9] She bowed to worship God and told them, "Order the town gate opened for me, and I will go out to carry through the plan you and I discussed." So they told the young men to open it for her, as she had asked. [10] This they did. Judith went out, she and her servant girl with her, and the men of the town kept her in sight until she had gone down the mountain and crossed the valley; after that they could see her no longer.

[11] The two of them were walking straight ahead along the ravine when an Assyrian patrol met her. [12] Taking her into custody, they questioned her: "Whose are you? Where do you come from, and where are you going?" She answered, "I am a daughter of the Hebrews,[b] and I am running away from them, since they are about to be given over to you to be devoured. [13] I am on my way to Holofernes, the commander of your army, to give him a truthful report. I will show him a road he can take to make himself master of the whole hill country without losing one of his men, body or breath." [14] As the men listened to her words and studied her face, she seemed to them marvelously beautiful, and they said to her, [15] "You have saved your life by hurrying down to our lord's presence. Go now to his tent; some of us will escort you until they put you into his hands. [16] And when you stand before him, have no fear in your heart. Report to him as you have spoken, and he will deal kindly with you." [17] They chose a hundred of their men to accompany her and her maid, and these brought them to the tent of Holofernes.

[18] People came running from all over the camp, for the news of her arrival spread from tent to tent. They gathered in a ring about her where she stood in front of Holofernes' tent until they had told him about her. [19] They marveled at her beauty, and judged the Israelites by her. "Who could despise these people," they said to one another, "when they have women like this among them? It would be a mistake to leave even one of their men alive, for if they were let go they would be able to outwit the whole world!"

20 Then out came those who slept near Holofernes,[c] together with every servant of his, and they led her inside. 21 Holofernes was resting on his bed under the canopy,[d] which was woven of purple and gold, with emeralds and other precious stones. 22 When they told him about her, he came out into the front part of the tent, with silver lamps carried before him. 23 As Judith came before him and his attendants, they all marveled at the beauty of her face. She fell on her face and did obeisance to him, and his slaves raised her up.

Notes

- a (10:5) Ritually pure bread: literally "pure loaves," food prepared in keeping with the Jewish dietary laws, so that she would not have to eat the food of the Gentiles (compare 12:1–4). The Greek words for her containers do not imply fixed measures.
- b (10:12) Daughter of the Hebrews: that is, a Hebrew woman. "Hebrew" is the name Israelites typically used of themselves when speaking to foreigners.
- c (10:20) Those who slept near Holofernes: his personal attendants or bodyguards.
- d (10:21) Canopy: Greek kōnōpion, a net or curtain hung around a bed to keep off gnats and mosquitoes; the source of English "canopy." It reappears at 13:9 and 16:19.

Chapter 11

1 Holofernes spoke to her: "Be brave, lady; do not be afraid at heart.
Never yet have I done hurt to any man who elected to be a servant of Nebuchadnezzar, sovereign of the whole earth. 2 As for your nation up in the highlands, if they had not treated me with contempt I should not have raised a spear against them. It is their own doing. 3 But tell me now, why did you run away from them and come over to us? You have come to safety. Courage! You will live through this night and through all the nights to follow. 4 No one is going to wrong you; rather, you will be treated well, as the servants of my lord King Nebuchadnezzar are."
5 Judith said in reply, "Receive what your bondwoman has to say, and allow your handmaid to address you face to face; not one lie will I speak to my lord[a] tonight. 6 If you follow the advice of your servant girl, God will bring the matter to a full conclusion through you, and my lord will not fail in his designs. 7 As surely as Nebuchadnezzar lives, king of all the earth, and as his power lives, who sent you to set every living being in order, not only do human beings serve him because of you, but through your strength the wild animals, the cattle and the birds of the sky will live for Nebuchadnezzar and all his house.[b] 8 We have heard of your wisdom and your clever designs. It is reported throughout the world that you alone are excellent in all the kingdom, mighty in knowledge, and wonderful in military strategy.

9 "Now as for the speech Achior made at your council, we have heard what he said, for the men of Bethulia spared him, and he told them all that he had declared before you. 10 Therefore, my master and lord, do not brush aside what he said, but remember it, because it is true. Our people cannot be punished, and the sword cannot overcome them, unless they sin against their God. 11 "But now, so that my lord may not be thwarted and his purpose fail, death is about to fall upon them. A sin has taken hold of them by which they will anger their God whenever they commit this outrage. 12 Since their food is giving out and their water is almost gone, they have decided to lay hands on their livestock, and they have resolved to consume everything that God by his laws forbade them to eat. 13 The firstlings of the grain, too, and the tenths of wine and oil, which they had hallowed and kept back for the priests who stand before our God's face in Jerusalem, they now mean to devour entirely, holy things that none of the common people is permitted even to handle.[c] 14 They have sent men to Jerusalem to bring back permission from the council of elders, because even the people living there have done this. 15 Once word reaches them and they carry it out, that same day they will be surrendered to you to be wiped out.
16 "Because of this, once your bondwoman knew all these things, I made my escape from them; and God has dispatched me to do deeds together with you that will leave the world astonished, everyone who comes to hear them. 17 For your slave is a God-fearing woman who worships the God of heaven night and day. Now, my lord, I will remain with you, but every night your slave will go out into the ravine and pray to God, and he will tell me when they have committed their sins. 18 Then I will return and let you know, and you will sally forth at the head of all your forces, and none of them will be able to withstand you. 19 I will lead you through the middle of Judea until you come to Jerusalem, and I will set your seat[d] in its midst. You will drive them like sheep without a shepherd, and not even a dog will so much as growl at you.[e] These things were told me through my foreknowledge; they were revealed to me, and I have been sent to announce them to you." 20 Holofernes and his whole retinue were delighted with what she said; her wisdom amazed them, and they exclaimed, 21 "From one end of the earth to the other there is no woman like her for beauty of face and wisdom of speech!" 22 Holofernes told her, "God did well in sending you on before your people, so that strength might come into our hands, and ruin upon those who have slighted my lord. 23 Charming you are to look upon, and fine in what you say. Should you carry out what you have promised, your God will be my God,[f] and in King Nebuchadnezzar's house you will have a place, and your name will be famous across the earth."

Notes

- a (11:5) My lord: Judith's speech is full of double meanings. "My lord" (Greek kyrios) can refer to Holofernes or to God, and much of what she says (verses 6, 16, 19) is true in a sense Holofernes does not perceive.
- b (11:7) All his house: the language echoes Jeremiah 27:6, where God gives even the wild animals to serve Nebuchadnezzar.
- c (11:13) With his hands: first fruits and tithes belonged to the priests (Numbers 18:12–13, 21–32; Deuteronomy 18:4). Eating them was a grave offense for anyone else.
- d (11:19) Seat: Greek diphros, a seat or chair, here the chair of state or chariot seat of a conqueror.
- e (11:19) Growl at you: compare Exodus 11:7. "Like sheep without a shepherd" echoes 1 Kings 22:17.
- f (11:23) Your God shall be my God: an ironic echo of Ruth 1:16.

Chapter 12

1 Then he ordered her to be brought into the place where his silver dinnerware was kept, and gave instructions that a table be laid for her with some of his own delicacies and that she be served his own wine to drink. 2 But Judith said, "I will not eat any of it, lest it become a cause of offense.[a] I will be supplied from the things I have brought with me." 3 Holofernes said to her, "But if what you have with you runs out, where can we get you more of the same? None of your race is here with us." [4] Judith replied, "By your life, my lord, before your bondwoman has used up the supplies I carry, the Lord will have accomplished through my hand the thing he has resolved."

[5] Then Holofernes' attendants brought her into the tent, and she slept on into the middle of the night. Toward the morning watch[b] she got up [6] and sent a message to Holofernes: "My lord, kindly command that your bondwoman be let out for prayer." [7] Holofernes ordered his guards not to stop her. She stayed in the camp for three days, and each night went out to the Bethulia ravine and washed at the spring in the camp.[c] [8] After coming up from it, she would plead with the Lord, the God of Israel, to guide her path for the rescue of her people.
[9] Then she would return purified and remain in the tent until she ate her food toward evening.
[10] When the fourth day came, Holofernes gave a drinking party for his personal servants alone and summoned none of those on duty. [11] To Bagoas,[d] the eunuch who had charge of everything that was his, he said, "Go now and coax this Hebrew woman staying with you to come and share our food and drink. [12] It would be a disgrace to us if we let such a woman go without enjoying her company. If we do not win her over, she will laugh at us."
[13] So Bagoas left Holofernes' presence and went to her. "Let not this fair girl be reluctant," he said, "to come before my lord, to be honored in his sight, to join us in drinking wine for gladness, and this day to become like one of the daughters of Assyria who wait upon Nebuchadnezzar in his palace." [14] Judith answered, "And who am I to say no to my lord? Anything that seems good in his eyes I will hurry to do, and it will be my delight till the day I die."[e] [15] So she arose and arrayed herself in her clothing and all her woman's finery. Her maid went ahead and spread on the ground for her, opposite Holofernes, the fleeces she had received from Bagoas for her daily use, so that she might recline on them to eat.
[16] Judith came in and lay down. At the sight of her Holofernes was beside himself; he was shaken to the soul and gripped by a fierce longing to have her, for ever since the day he first set eyes on her he had been watching for a chance to beguile her. [17] "Come, drink!" Holofernes urged her. "Share our merriment!" [18] Judith answered, "Indeed I will drink, my lord, for today my life means more to me than in all the days since I was born." [19] Then she took the food her maid had prepared and ate and drank in front of him. [20] Holofernes took such pleasure in her that he poured down wine in vast amounts, more than he had ever drunk in a single day in all his life.

Notes

- a (12:2) Offense: Greek skandalon, a stumbling block; that is, a violation of the Jewish dietary laws (compare Daniel 1:8; Tobit 1:10–11).
- b (12:5) The morning watch: the last watch of the night, before dawn.
- c (12:7) At the spring in the camp: she bathes for ritual purity before prayer. Some manuscripts omit "in the camp."
- d (12:11) Bagoas: a Persian name, borne by the powerful eunuch who served Artaxerxes III in the fourth century BC (Diodorus 16.47; reported). Its use here is another of the book's Persian-period touches.
- e (12:14) The day of my death: like 11:5, an answer that Holofernes hears as submission, but which the reader hears as loyalty to the Lord.

Chapter 13

[1] As evening came on, his slaves made haste to withdraw. Bagoas shut the tent from outside, closing off the attendants from his master's presence, and they went off to their beds; all of them were worn out, because the drinking had gone on so long. [2] Judith was left by herself in the tent, with Holofernes sprawled across his bed, for he was sodden with wine. [3] Judith had told her maid to wait outside her bedchamber and watch for her to come out, as on other days, since she said she would be going out to pray; and she had spoken to Bagoas in the same terms. [4] Everyone left his presence, and no one, young or old, remained in the bedroom. Then Judith, standing next to his bed, prayed silently: "Lord, God of all might, look now at what my hands are about to do for the glory of Jerusalem. [5] For now is the moment to come to the aid of your heritage and to carry out my design for the shattering of the enemies who have risen up against us." [6] Stepping to the post of the bed that stood at Holofernes' head, she unhooked his short sword[a] that hung there. [7] Drawing close to the bed, she grasped the hair of his head and said, "Lord God of Israel, give me strength this day!” 8 Then with all her might she struck at his neck twice and cut off his head. 9 She rolled his body off the bedding and pulled the canopy down from the posts. A moment later she went out and handed Holofernes’ head to her maid, 10 who put it into her food bag. Then the two of them went out together, as was their habit, to pray. They passed through the camp, skirted that ravine, climbed the mountain to Bethulia and came to its gates.

11 From a distance Judith hailed the sentries at the gates: “Open up, open the gate! God is with us, our God, still working might in Israel and power over our foes, as he has today!” 12 When the men of her town heard her voice, they hurried down to the gate of their town and summoned the elders. 13 Everyone, from the least to the greatest, came running, for it seemed past belief that she had returned. They opened the gate and let the women in, then lit a fire to see by and crowded around them. 14 In a ringing voice she called out to them, “Give praise to God, give praise! Praise the God who has not taken away his kindness from Israel’s house, but by my hand has broken our foes tonight!” 15 Then she pulled the head from the bag, lifted it up, and told them, “Look, the head of Holofernes, general of the Assyrian army, and here is the netting under which he lay in his stupor. The Lord has struck him down by a woman’s hand.[b] 16 As the Lord lives, who protected me on the way I went, it was my face that seduced him to his destruction; yet he committed no sin with me to defile and shame me.”
17 Astonishment seized the whole people; they bent low in worship of God and said together, “Blessed be you, our God, who today have made nothing of your people’s enemies!” 18 Uzziah then said to her, “My daughter, the Most High God has blessed you beyond every woman upon the earth;[c] and blessed be the Lord God, maker of heaven and earth, who directed you to wound the head of the chief of our enemies. 19 Never shall the hope you showed[d] fade from the hearts of people as they remember God’s might, for all ages. 20 God grant that this be an everlasting glory to you, and may he visit you with blessings, since you did not hold back your own life when our people were humbled, but went out to meet our fall, walking a straight road before our God." And all the people said, "Amen! Amen!"[e]

Notes

- a (13:6) Short sword: Greek akinakēs, the Persian short sword or dagger, another Persian-period detail.
- b (13:15) The hand of a woman: compare Judges 4:9, 21 (Jael and Sisera) and 9:53–54 (Abimelech). The phrase answers Judith's prayer at 9:10.
- c (13:18) Above all the women on earth: compare the blessing on Jael in Judges 5:24, and on Mary in Luke 1:42.
- d (13:19) Your hope: some manuscripts read "your praise."
- e (13:20) Amen! Amen!: Greek genoito, genoito, "so be it, so be it," the usual Greek rendering of Hebrew amen.

Chapter 14

1 Then Judith told them, "Brothers, hear me. Take this head and fasten it up on the battlements of your wall. 2 When dawn lights the sky and the sun comes up over the land, each of you is to take his gear of war, and every strong man is to march out of the town. Put a leader at their head, as though you meant to go down into the plain upon the Assyrian outpost; only do not go down. 3 Then they will seize their arms and hurry to their camp and rouse the officers of the Assyrian army. These will rush to the tent of Holofernes and will not find him.
Panic will fall on them, and they will flee before you. 4 Then you, and everyone who dwells anywhere in Israel's territory, must follow on their heels and strike them down along their roads. 5 But first, before any of this, call Achior the Ammonite to me, that he may look on and know the man who held Israel's house in contempt and packed him off to us as though to die." 6 They therefore sent for Achior from Uzziah's house. When he arrived and beheld Holofernes' head in a man's hand amid the gathered people, he fell forward on his face and his senses left him. 7 Once they had lifted him up, he dropped at Judith's feet and bowed down before her, saying, "May you be blessed in all Judah's dwellings, and among all nations! Whoever hears your name will tremble. 8 So now, relate to me everything you have done during these days." Judith then recounted to him before all the people everything she had done from the day she left until the hour she spoke with them. 9 When she finished speaking, the people raised a great shout, and their town rang with joyful noise. 10 When Achior saw all that the God of Israel had done, he believed in God firmly. He was circumcised, and was joined to the house of Israel, remaining so to this day.[a] 11 As soon as day broke, they hung the head of Holofernes from the wall. Every man took up his weapons, and they went out by companies to the passes in the mountains. 12 When the Assyrians saw them, they sent a message to their commanders, who went to the generals, the captains over thousands, and every other officer. 13 They came to Holofernes' tent and said to the steward of all his household, "Wake our lord, for the slaves have dared to come down against us to give battle, to their own utter destruction." 14 So Bagoas went in and knocked at the entrance of the tent,[b] for he supposed that Holofernes was sleeping with Judith. 15 When no one answered, he opened it and went into the bedchamber and found him sprawled dead on the platform,[c] with his head cut off and gone. 16 He cried out with a loud voice, weeping and groaning and shouting, and tore his clothes. 17 Then he went into the tent where Judith had been lodging; finding her gone, he leaped out among the troops and cried, 18 "The slaves have broken faith! A single Hebrew woman has put shame on King Nebuchadnezzar's house. See: Holofernes on the ground, and no head on him!" 19 On hearing these words the Assyrian army's chiefs ripped their tunics, their spirits were thrown into turmoil, and a mighty cry and clamor went up in the midst of the camp.

Notes

- a (14:10) To this day: Deuteronomy 23:3 forbade Ammonites to enter the assembly of the LORD. Achior's full acceptance into Israel by circumcision is one of the book's striking features; later rabbinic discussion debated how such a rule applied (reported). Scholarly review recommended.
- b (14:14) The entrance of the tent: literally "the curtain of the tent," perhaps clapping his hands before it, since one could not knock on a curtain.
- c (14:15) Platform: Greek chelōnis, literally "tortoise," apparently the low step or footboard of a couch. The sense is uncertain.

Chapter 15

1 When those still in their tents heard it, they were dumbfounded at what had happened. 2 Fear and trembling fell upon them; no man held his place beside his comrade any longer, but streaming out all together they fled along every track across the plain and through the hill country. 3 Those who had camped in the hills around Bethulia were routed as well. Then the Israelites, every fighting man among them, poured out against them. 4 Uzziah sent messengers to Betomasthaim, Bebai, Choba and Kola,[a] and throughout Israel's territory, to report what had been accomplished and to urge all of them to pour out upon the enemy and destroy them. 5 On hearing this, the Israelites with one accord fell upon them and cut them down as far as Choba.
Men came also from Jerusalem and from all the hill country, for word had reached them of what had befallen the enemy's camp. Those in Gilead and in Galilee outflanked them and inflicted heavy losses, until they had passed Damascus and its borders. 6 The remaining people of Bethulia swept down on the Assyrian camp, plundered it, and became very rich. 7 The Israelites, returning from the slaughter, took possession of what was left; and the villages and farmsteads of the hill country and the plain seized a great deal of booty, for there was an immense quantity of it.

8 Then the high priest Joakim, together with the council of elders of Israel resident in Jerusalem, arrived to view the benefits the Lord had wrought for Israel, to see Judith with their own eyes, and to wish her peace. 9 When they came to her, they all blessed her with one voice and said to her, "You are Jerusalem's pride, Israel's great glory, the great boast of our race! 10 "All this your hand has achieved; you have wrought blessing for Israel, and God has been pleased with them.
May the Lord Almighty bless you for ever and ever!" And all the people said, "Amen!"

11 For thirty days the whole people stripped the camp of spoil. To Judith they presented Holofernes' tent, every piece of his silver plate, his couches and drinking bowls, and all his gear. She accepted these, packed her mule, yoked her wagons, and piled everything onto them.
12 Every woman in Israel hurried to see her; they called down blessings on her, and a band of them formed a dance for her. In her hands she took leafy wands,[b] and passed them to the women about her; [13] and she and her companions wore wreaths of olive leaves. She walked in front of everyone in the dance, leading all the women, while all Israel's men followed, armed and garlanded, singing as they went. [14] Judith began this song of thanksgiving before all Israel, and all the people loudly sang this hymn of praise after her.[c]

Notes

- a (15:4) Kola: Betomasthaim is probably the Betomesthaim of 4:6. Bebai, Choba (compare 4:4) and Kola are unidentified.
- b (15:12) Leafy wands: Greek thyrsoi, the leafy staffs carried in processions in honor of Dionysus. Here they are simply festive emblems (compare 2 Maccabees 10:7).
- c (15:14) After her: this verse is 16:1 in the Latin-based numbering of the KJV Apocrypha, where chapter 15 has 13 verses and chapter 16 has 26. This translation follows the Greek numbering (14 and 25 verses).

Chapter 16

The Song of Judith

[1] Judith said:

Lead off for my God with tambourines, sing to the Lord with cymbals;
weave for him a psalm and a song of praise;
exalt him, and call upon his name.

[2] For the Lord is a God who crushes wars;[a] he set his camp in the midst of his people and snatched me from the hand of my pursuers.

[3] Out of the northern hills Asshur came marching, tens of thousands strong in his might;
their host stopped up the torrent beds,
and their horsemen blanketed the hills.

[4] He vowed to set my borders ablaze, to slay my young men with the sword,
to dash my nursing infants to the ground, to seize my little ones as plunder and make my maidens his spoil.

5 The Lord Almighty has thwarted them by a woman's hand.
6 For their champion did not fall by young men's blows, nor did sons of Titans[b] strike him down, nor towering giants attack him;
but Judith, Merari's daughter, undid him by the beauty of her face.
7 She stripped off her widow's robe for the lifting up of Israel's sufferers.
With fragrant oil she smoothed her face, 8 bound up her hair with a headband, and put on a linen gown to lead him astray.
9 Her sandal ravished his eye, her beauty took his soul captive,
and the sword went through his neck!
10 Persians shuddered at her daring, and Medes were dismayed at her boldness.[c] 11 Then my lowly ones shouted for joy, and my weak ones cried aloud, and the enemy cowered;[d] they lifted their voices, and the enemy was routed.
12 Sons of slave girls pierced them through;
they wounded them like the children of deserters.
They perished before the battle line of my Lord.
13 To my God I will raise a fresh hymn:
Lord, great are you, and full of glory, wonderful in strength, unconquerable.
14 Let all your creation serve you, for you spoke, and they came to be.
You sent out your spirit, and it built them;
there is none who can withstand your voice.
15 For the mountains will be shaken to their foundations, and the waters with them;
before your face the rocks will melt like wax.
But to those who fear you you will still show mercy.

16 For every sacrifice as a fragrant aroma is a small thing, and all the fat for burnt offerings to you a very little thing;
but the one who reveres the Lord stands great for all time.
17 Woe to the nations that rise up against my race!
On judgment day the Lord Almighty will repay them, giving their bodies over to fire and worm,
and they will weep in pain forever.[e]
18 When they got to Jerusalem, they worshiped God. Once the people were cleansed, they presented their burnt offerings, their voluntary offerings, and their gifts. 19 Every article of Holofernes that the people had bestowed on her Judith consecrated to God; the canopy too, which she had carried off for herself from his sleeping quarters, she presented to God as a dedicated gift. 20 For three months the people continued feasting in Jerusalem before the sanctuary, and Judith stayed with them.
21 After this they all returned home, each to his own inheritance. Judith went back to Bethulia and lived on her estate, and in her time she was honored throughout the whole country. 22 Many longed to wed her, yet from the day her husband Manasseh died and was joined to his people, she never lay with a man as long as she lived. 23 Her fame went on increasing, and she grew old in the house of her husband until she was a hundred and five. Her maid she released into freedom. At Bethulia she died, and they laid her in the tomb-cave of Manasseh her husband. 24 For seven days Israel's house lamented her. While still living she had shared out her goods among all the near kin of Manasseh her husband and among her own closest relations. 25 In Judith's lifetime, and for many days after she died, there was no one to make the Israelites afraid again.[f]

Notes

- a (16:2) A God who crushes wars: so Exodus 15:3 in the Greek, "the Lord who shatters wars." The song draws on the Song of the Sea (Exodus 15) and the Song of Deborah (Judges 5).
- b (16:6) Titans: in Greek myth the Titans were the older race of gods; in the Greek Bible the word can render Hebrew Rephaim, the legendary giants (as in 2 Samuel 5:18, 22 in some Greek manuscripts).

- c (16:10) Boldness: the mention of Persians and Medes, rather than Assyrians, is one of the book's anachronisms (see the note at 1:1).
- d (16:11) Cowered: the subjects of the verbs in this verse are ambiguous in the Greek; the translation supplies "the enemy" where the sense seems to require it. Scholarly review recommended.
- e (16:17) Weep in pain forever: compare Isaiah 66:24; Sirach 7:17. This is one of the earliest expressions of eternal punishment for the wicked.
- f (16:25) Long time after her death: the Vulgate adds that the day of Judith's victory was celebrated as a festival among the Jews; this is not in the Greek.

Additions to Esther

Apocrypha

Chapter 1

Addition A: Mordecai's Dream and the Eunuchs' Plot

Greek Esther 1:1a–r (KJV Apocrypha 11:2–12:6). In the Greek book this stands before Esther 1:1.

1 It was the second regnal year of Artaxerxes the Great,[a] on the first day of Nisan (March–April),[b] that Mordecai[c] son of Jair, son of Shimei, son of Kish, of Benjamin's tribe, beheld a dream. 2 A Jew by birth, he made his home in the city of Susa,[d] a man of standing who waited on the king within his court. 3 He was one of that captive company whom Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon had carried off out of Jerusalem along with Jeconiah king of Judea.[e] And this was his dream: 4 Behold, voices and din, thunderclaps and quaking, turmoil upon the earth! 5 And behold, two huge dragons[f] came out, the pair of them primed to wrestle, and from them there rose a mighty roar. 6 At that roar every nation got itself ready for war, to wage battle on a nation of righteous ones. 7 And behold, a day of murk and gloom, of pressure and narrow straits, of ill-usage and vast turmoil upon the earth! 8 The whole righteous nation was thrown into confusion; dreading the evils laid up for them, they braced themselves to perish, and they raised a cry to God. 9 And out of their cry, as if out of a small spring, there came to be a great river, waters in plenty. 10 Light, and the sun came up; the humble were raised on high and swallowed up the illustrious.
11 Mordecai, the one who had seen this dream and what God had purposed to do, awoke; he held it fast in his heart and longed to grasp it in its every word, until night came.
12 Now Mordecai was taking his ease in the court with Gabatha and Tharra,[g] two of the king's eunuchs who kept watch over the court.
13 He caught their reckonings and searched out their worries, and he learned that they were making ready to lay hands on King Artaxerxes; so he informed the king about them. 14 The king put the two eunuchs to examination; they owned the deed and were led away.[h] 15 The king wrote these matters down for a record, and Mordecai likewise put into writing an account of them. 16 Then the king charged Mordecai to serve in the court and bestowed gifts on him in return for these things. 17 But Haman son of Hammedatha, the Bougaean,[i] enjoyed great honor in the king's sight, and he looked for a way to do harm to Mordecai and to his people because of the king's two eunuchs.[j]

Notes

- a (1:1) Artaxerxes: the Greek Esther calls the king Artaxerxes (Old Persian Artakhshaça, "whose rule is through truth," reported); the Hebrew book calls him Ahasuerus (Ahashverosh), who is generally identified with Xerxes I (486–465 BC). On that identification the second year is about 485/484 BC. Josephus likewise calls him Artaxerxes (reported).
- b (1:1) Nisan: the first month of the Jewish year, of Babylonian origin; it began at the new moon of March–April.
- c (1:1) Mordecai: Greek Mardochaios, Hebrew Mordekhai, probably a name formed from that of the Babylonian god Marduk. Jair means "he gives light," Shimei "heard," and Kish perhaps "gift" (reported); Shimei and Kish are names connected with the family of Saul (2 Samuel 16:5; 1 Samuel 9:1). Benjamin means "son of the right hand."
- d (1:2) Susa: Hebrew Shushan, a royal residence of the Persian kings in Elam, in southwest Iran. Greek "Susa the city" may mean the city as distinct from the fortified citadel (compare Esther 1:2 Hebrew), but the distinction is not certain.
- e (1:3) Jeconiah: Greek Iechonias, also called Jehoiachin ("Yahweh establishes"), deported in 597 BC (2 Kings 24:12–15). Read strictly, this would make Mordecai well over a hundred years old under Xerxes. The same difficulty arises in Hebrew Esther 2:6, where the clause may instead refer to his great-grandfather Kish.
- f (1:5) Dragons: Greek drakontes, great serpents or dragons. Mordecai explains them in Addition F (F4) as himself and Haman.
- g (1:12) Gabatha and Tharra: these are Bigthan (or Bigthana) and Teresh in Hebrew Esther 2:21. The KJV Apocrypha begins chapter 12 with this verse (A12 = KJV 12:1). The plot reported here doubles the one told in Esther 2:21–23, which the Hebrew places in the seventh year or later.
- h (1:14) Were led away: a common Greek euphemism for being taken off to execution. KJV has "strangled." In Hebrew Esther 2:23 the two are hanged (or impaled) on a stake.
- i (1:17) Haman: Greek Aman; the meaning of the name is uncertain (perhaps Persian or Elamite, reported). Hammedatha (Greek Amadathos) is a Persian name, perhaps "given by the moon" or "given by Haoma" (reported). "Bougaean" (Greek Bougaios) is obscure; it seems to stand where the Hebrew calls him an "Agagite" (Esther 3:1), linking him with Agag the Amalekite (1 Samuel 15:8). In Addition E (E10) he is called a Macedonian. Review.

- j (1:17) Because of the king's two eunuchs: here Haman's enmity comes from the fate of the eunuchs, whereas in Esther 3:2–6 it comes from Mordecai's refusal to bow to him. The two motives stand side by side in the Greek book.

Chapter 2

Addition B: The King's Letter against the Jews

Greek Esther 3:13a–g (KJV Apocrypha 13:1–7). In the Greek book this follows Esther 3:13.

1 And of the letter this is the copy: "The Great King Artaxerxes writes thus to the governors of the hundred and twenty-seven provinces from India to Ethiopia,[a] and to the district officials set beneath them: 2 "Having become ruler over many nations and gained mastery over the whole inhabited world, I have willed, never buoyed up by the brashness of my power but ever handling affairs with fairness and mildness, to establish for my subjects lives free of every billow, to furnish a kingdom tamed and open to travel as far as its outermost limits, and to bring back that peace for which every person yearns. 3 When I put the question to my counselors how this end might be attained, Haman—one excelling among us in good sense, shown to be unwavering in his loyalty and firm in his faithfulness, and holding as his prize the second dignity of the realm— 4 made plain to us that, mingled among all the tribes over the world, there is a certain hostile people whose laws set it against every nation, a people who forever brush aside the edicts of the kings, so that the joint rule[b] which we steer without fault cannot be settled firm. 5 Since we have therefore perceived that this nation, unique among all, lies continually athwart every human being, following an alien code of living by its laws, and bearing ill will to our affairs, bringing the foulest evils to pass, so that the kingdom fails to win stability, 6 we have accordingly given orders that the persons pointed out to you in the writings of Haman—who has charge of our affairs and is a second father to us[c]—be wholly uprooted, women and children with them, by their enemies' swords, with no compassion and no sparing, on the fourteenth of the twelfth month, Adar (February–March), of this current year,[d] [7] to the end that those who were of old, and are now, ill-disposed may in a single day go down by force to Hades,[e] and for the time hereafter leave our affairs to us steady and untroubled to the last."

Notes

- a (2:1) India to Ethiopia: the limits of the Persian empire as given in Esther 1:1. "India" is the Indus valley region; "Ethiopia" (Hebrew Cush) is the Nile land south of Egypt. Additions B and E were composed in Greek, in the ornate style of Hellenistic royal correspondence; the KJV Apocrypha prints B as 13:1–7.
- b (2:4) Joint rule: Greek synarchia, a rare word for a shared or unified government; the sense is uncertain.
- c (2:6) Second father: an honorary title for the king's chief minister; compare Genesis 45:8 and Addition E (E11).
- d (2:6) Fourteenth … Adar: the Greek text of Esther 3:7 likewise has the fourteenth, but Hebrew Esther 3:13 and Addition E (E20) have the thirteenth. Adar is the twelfth month, beginning at the new moon of February–March.
- e (2:7) Hades: Greek Hadēs, the realm of the dead, corresponding to Hebrew Sheol.

Chapter 3

Addition C: The Prayers of Mordecai and Esther

Greek Esther 4:17a–z (KJV Apocrypha 13:8–14:19). In the Greek book this follows Esther 4:17.

[1] Then Mordecai besought the Lord, recalling to mind every work of the Lord, and spoke:[a] [2] "Lord, Lord, King holding sway over all things, since the whole universe rests in your authority, and none can stand opposed to you when your will is to save Israel— [3] for it was you who made the heaven and the earth and everything to be wondered at under heaven, [4] and Lord of all are you; nor is there one who shall array himself against you, who are the Lord. [5] All things are known to you. You know, Lord, that it was not in insolence, nor in haughtiness, nor in a craving for glory that I did this, the not bowing low before the haughty Haman;[b] [6] for I would have been well content to kiss the very soles of his feet to keep Israel safe. [7] Rather, I acted so, lest I set a mortal's glory higher than God's glory; and to none will I bow low except to you, my Lord, and I will not do these things in haughtiness. [8] And now, Lord God, the King, God of Abraham,[c] have pity on your people, for they are watching us to bring us to ruin, and they have set their hearts on destroying your inheritance from the first. 9 Do not look past your portion, which you ransomed out of the land of Egypt for your own. 10 Give ear to my plea; show mercy to your allotted share, and change our mourning into feasting, so that living we may hymn your name, Lord; and do not blot out the mouth of those who give you praise." 11 And all Israel shouted aloud with their whole strength, for their death stood before their eyes.

12 Esther the queen too, gripped by mortal anguish, fled for refuge to the Lord.[d] 13 Putting off the robes of her glory, she wrapped herself in robes of hardship and lament. Instead of costly fragrances she heaped her head with ash and filth; she brought her body very low, and every spot that her joyful adornment had graced she covered with locks of her twisted hair. 14 And she made her plea to the Lord God of Israel, saying: "My Lord, our King, you alone are he; come to my aid, who am alone and have no helper apart from you, 15 since my danger lies in my hand.[e] 16 I have heard from my birth, in the tribe of my father's house, that you, Lord, chose out Israel from among all the nations, and our fathers from all who went before them, as a possession forever, and that you performed for them whatever you had spoken. 17 But now we have done wrong before your face, and you have given us up into our enemies' grasp, 18 in return for our giving glory to their gods. Just are you, Lord! 19 And now they have not had their fill of the bitterness of our bondage; they have laid their hands on the hands of their idols,[f] 20 to cancel what your mouth decreed, to wipe out your inheritance, to block up the mouth of those who praise you, and to snuff out the glory of your house and of your altar; 21 to open the mouth of the nations to extol the virtues of vain things, and to have a king of flesh held in wonder forever. 22 Do not, Lord, hand over your scepter to things that have no being;[g] do not let them jeer at our fall, but turn their counsel back upon themselves, and make a public example of the one who began this against us. 23 Remember, Lord; reveal yourself in the hour of our distress, and put courage into me, King of the gods and Master over every power. 24 Set fitting and well-measured speech in my mouth before the lion,[h] and turn his heart to loathing of him who makes war on us, to make an end of him and those who are of one mind with him. 25 But us, deliver by your hand, and help me, who am alone and have none but you, Lord. 26 Knowledge of everything is yours, and you know that I have hated the glory of the lawless and loathe the bed of the uncircumcised and of every foreigner.[i] 27 You know my constraint: that I loathe the emblem of my proud station that rests on my head on the days I am on display; I loathe it like a cloth of a woman's impurity,[j] and on my days of quiet I do not put it on. 28 Your slave woman has not eaten at the table of Haman, nor have I honored a banquet of the king, nor drunk wine of drink offerings.[k] 29 Since the day of my change of fortune until now your slave woman has found no gladness except in you, Lord God of Abraham. 30 O God, mighty over all, hear the voice of those who have lost hope; save us from the hand of the wicked, and save me from my fear."

Notes

- a (3:1) The Lord: Greek kyrios, used throughout these prayers, where the Hebrew book of Esther never names God at all. The KJV Apocrypha prints Mordecai's prayer as 13:8–18 (C1 = 13:8). Review.
- b (3:5) Bowing low: Greek proskynein, the bow or prostration paid to Persian kings and high officials. Mordecai explains here a refusal that the Hebrew book leaves unexplained (Esther 3:2–4).
- c (3:8) Abraham: "father of a multitude" (Genesis 17:5).
- d (3:12) Esther: Greek Esthēr, Hebrew Ester, perhaps from Persian stāra, "star," or from the name of the goddess Ishtar (reported); her Hebrew name was Hadassah, "myrtle" (Esther 2:7). The KJV Apocrypha begins chapter 14 here (C12 = 14:1).
- e (3:15) My danger lies in my hand: that is, "I am taking my life in my hands"; compare Judges 12:3 and 1 Samuel 19:5.
- f (3:19) Laid their hands on the hands of their idols: that is, they have made a solemn pledge before their gods.
- g (3:22) Things that have no being: the idols, or the false gods they represent.
- h (3:24) The lion: the king.
- i (3:26) Bed of the uncircumcised: the prayer presents Esther's marriage to the Persian king as something forced on her, answering a question the Hebrew book does not raise.
- j (3:27) A cloth of a woman's impurity: Greek rhakos katamēniōn, a menstrual cloth (compare Leviticus 15:19–24; Isaiah 64:6). The "emblem" is her royal headdress.
- k (3:28) Wine of drink offerings: wine poured out to pagan gods (compare Deuteronomy 32:38). Compare Daniel 1:8, and contrast Hebrew Esther, which says nothing about Esther keeping food laws.

Chapter 4

Addition D: Esther Goes In to the King

Greek Esther 5:1, 1a–f, 2, 2a–b (KJV Apocrypha 15:1–16). In the Greek book this takes the place of Hebrew Esther 5:1–2.

1 On the third day, when she left off praying, she laid aside the garments of her worship[a] and arrayed herself in her splendor. 2 Then, made radiant, she invoked God, overseer and savior of all, and took along her two maids; 3 on the one she leaned, as a woman given to delicate ways,[b] 4 while the other came after, bearing up her gown. 5 She herself was rosy in the full bloom of her loveliness, her face glad as though it were loving, but her heart was pinched tight with fear. 6 Having passed through all the doors, she came to stand face to face with the king. He was sitting upon the throne of his kingdom, robed in all the attire of his majesty, the whole of it gold and precious stones, and he was exceedingly fearsome. 7 Lifting his face, ablaze with glory, he looked upon her in the full heat of wrath; the queen dropped, her color turned as she swooned, and she sank forward over the head of the maid going before her. 8 Then God turned the king's spirit to mildness;[c] in anxious haste he leapt up off his throne and gathered her into his arms till she recovered, and he soothed her with peaceable words, saying to her: 9 "Esther, what troubles you? Your brother am I.[d] Be of good courage; 10 by no means shall you die, for our ordinance is a common one. Come forward."[e] 11 And lifting the golden staff he laid it upon her neck, 12 kissed her, and said, "Talk with me." 13 Her answer to him was: "My lord, you appeared to me like an angel of God, and at the dread of your glory my heart was shaken.[f] 14 For you are a marvel, my lord, and your face is brimful of graces." 15 But as she was conversing with him, she fell down from faintness; 16 and the king was in turmoil, and his whole retinue set about reviving her.

Notes

- a (4:1) The garments of her worship: Greek therapeia, which can mean either worship or servitude; the garments are her mourning clothes of C13.
- b (4:3) Given to delicate ways: or "as one daintily bred." The Greek pictures a lady of the court leaning on an attendant.

- c (4:8) God turned the king's spirit: this sentence states what the Hebrew book only implies; God's action is the turning point of the Greek story.
- d (4:9) Brother: an affectionate form of address; compare Song of Songs 4:9, "my sister, my bride."
- e (4:10) Our ordinance is a common one: Greek koinon to prostagma hēmōn. The sense is uncertain: perhaps "the order applies to ordinary subjects, not to you," or "our command is shared between us." Review.
- f (4:13) My lord: here Greek kyrios addresses the king, not God.

Chapter 5

Addition E: The King's Letter on Behalf of the Jews

Greek Esther 8:12a–x (KJV Apocrypha 16:1–24). In the Greek book this follows Esther 8:12.

1 Set down below is a transcript of the letter: "Artaxerxes, the Great King, to the district rulers of the hundred and twenty-seven satrapies stretching from India to Ethiopia, and to all who are of one mind with our government: greeting.[a] 2 "Many who are honored over and over by the boundless generosity of their benefactors grow the more swollen in mind; 3 and not only do they seek to do mischief to our subjects, but, unable to carry their glut of good things, they take in hand to scheme against their very benefactors. 4 Not only do they root out thankfulness from among people, but, carried away by the bragging of those who have never tasted goodness, they imagine they will slip past the justice of God, who sees all things always, the justice that hates evil. 5 Often, too, the coaxing of friends who were trusted to manage affairs has made many of those set in high office share the guilt of innocent blood and wrapped them in disasters past remedy, 6 when such men, through the lying sophistry of their malice, beguiled the guileless good faith of the rulers. 7 And one may see this not so much from the more ancient histories that we have handed down, as by looking into what has been wickedly carried out close at hand through the plague of those who hold power undeservingly. 8 We must take thought for the days to come, that we may furnish the kingdom undisturbed and at peace for all humankind, 9 making use of changes and always deciding matters that come into view with a more reasonable response. 10 For Haman son of Hammedatha, a Macedonian,[b] truly a stranger to Persian blood and far removed from our kind nature, was hosted among us [11] and met with the goodwill that we bear toward every nation, so far that he came to be proclaimed our father and continued to be honored with prostration by everyone, as the figure next after the royal throne. [12] But he did not bear his high station; he set to work to strip us of our dominion and of our breath, [13] and with tangled tricks of deceit he begged for the ruin of Mordecai, our savior and benefactor at all times, and of Esther, the faultless partner of our royal rule, together with their whole nation. [14] For by these means he thought to find us bereft and to carry over the sovereignty of the Persians to the Macedonians. [15] We, however, find that the Jews, handed over to obliteration by this thrice-accursed wretch,[c] are no malefactors, but live as citizens under the most just of laws, [16] being sons of the Most High, the most great and living God, who keeps the kingdom on its course for us and for our ancestors in the finest condition. [17] You will therefore do well to make no use of the documents dispatched by Haman son of Hammedatha, [18] because the very man who devised these things has been hung up[d] at the gates of Susa with all his house, God, who rules over everything, having swiftly paid him back the judgment he merited. [19] Set out the copy of this letter openly in every place, and let the Jews follow their own customs, [20] and lend them aid, so that they may ward off those who assail them in their time of trouble on the thirteenth of the twelfth month, Adar (February– March), on that same day.[e] [21] For God, who wields all power, has made this day for them a joy, in place of ruin for the chosen race. [22] And you too, among your named festivals, keep it as a day of note with every kind of feasting, [23] so that now and in later times it may be salvation for us and for the Persians who wish us well, but for those who plot against us a remembrance of their destruction. [24] Any city or land whatever that does not act in keeping with these orders shall be devoured in fury by spear and fire; it shall be rendered not only untrodden by people but most odious to beasts and birds for all time."

Notes

- a (5:1) Greeting: Greek chairein, the usual opening of a Hellenistic letter. Like Addition B, this letter was composed in Greek in an elaborate rhetorical style. The KJV Apocrypha prints it as 16:1–24 (E1 = 16:1).
- b (5:10) A Macedonian: in Addition A (A17) Haman is a "Bougaean." Calling the Persian king's enemy a Macedonian reflects the Hellenistic setting of the additions, after Alexander's conquest of Persia (331 BC). Some witnesses read differently (reported).
- c (5:15) Thrice-accursed: Greek trisalitērios, a strong term of abuse.
- d (5:18) Hung up: Greek estaurōsthai, which can mean impaled, crucified or hanged. In Hebrew Esther 7:10 Haman alone is hanged, and his ten sons are killed and hung up afterward (9:7–14).
- e (5:20) Thirteenth … Adar: compare Hebrew Esther 8:12 and 9:1. Addition B (B6) has the fourteenth. Adar began at the new moon of February–March.

Chapter 6

Addition F: The Dream Explained, and the Colophon

Greek Esther 10:3a–l (KJV Apocrypha 10:4–11:1). In the Greek book this closes the book, after Esther 10:3.

1 And Mordecai said, "From God these things have come.[a] 2 For I have called to mind the dream I saw about these matters; not one word of it has gone unfulfilled. 3 The little spring that turned into a river—there was light and sun and plentiful water—the river is Esther, whom the king wedded and made queen. 4 The two dragons are myself and Haman. 5 The nations are those that banded together to destroy the name of the Jews. 6 And my nation, this is Israel, who cried aloud to God and were saved. Yes, the Lord saved his people; the Lord delivered us out of all these evils; and God worked the signs and the great portents such as have not occurred among the nations. 7 On this account he appointed two lots,[b] the one for God's people and the other for every nation; 8 and these two lots came to the hour and the season and the day of judgment in God's presence and among all the nations. 9 And God remembered his people and gave judgment in favor of his inheritance. 10 So these days shall be theirs in the month of Adar (February–March), on the fourteenth and fifteenth of that month, with gathering and joy and gladness in God's presence, age after age without end, among Israel his people."

11 Dated the fourth year that Ptolemy and Cleopatra reigned:[c] Dositheus,[d] who claimed to be a priest and Levite, together with Ptolemy his son, delivered the foregoing letter of Purim,[e] affirming that it was genuine and that Lysimachus son of Ptolemy, one of the residents of Jerusalem, had translated it.

Notes

- a (6:1) From God: the KJV Apocrypha prints F1–10 as 10:4–13 and the colophon (F11) as 11:1; its chapter 11 then continues with Addition A (11:2). This is why the Vulgate numbering places the dream after its interpretation.
- b (6:7) Two lots: an explanation of the name Purim, from Akkadian puru, "lot" (Esther 3:7; 9:24–26). Here the lots become symbols of God's judgment between Israel and the nations.
- c (6:11) Ptolemy and Cleopatra: several Ptolemaic kings ruled with a queen named Cleopatra, so the date is uncertain. The proposals most often made are 114/113 BC (Ptolemy IX), 78/77 BC (Ptolemy XII) and 49/48 BC (Ptolemy XIII), reported. Ptolemy means "warlike." Review.
- d (6:11) Dositheus: "gift of God." Lysimachus means "loosing of battle." This note, a colophon, vouches for the Greek translation of the book as it was brought to Egypt.
- e (6:11) Letter of Purim: the Greek has "the letter of Phrourai," apparently a form of Purim; it may refer to the whole book or to the Purim letter of Esther 9:20–32.

Wisdom of Solomon

Apocrypha

Chapter 1

1 Love justice, you rulers of the earth;
think of the Lord[a] with goodness,
and search for him with a sincere heart, 2 for he lets himself be found by those who do not test him, and reveals himself to those who do not doubt him.
3 For crooked reasonings separate people from God, and his power, when it is tested, exposes the foolish; 4 because wisdom will not enter a soul that devises evil, nor dwell in a body held in pledge to sin.
5 For a holy spirit of discipline[b] will flee from deceit, and will withdraw from senseless reasonings, and will be put to shame when wrongdoing comes in.
6 For wisdom is a spirit that cherishes humanity, yet she will not let a blasphemer go unpunished for what he says;[c] for God observes his inmost feelings,[d] watches his heart truly, and listens to his tongue.
7 Because the spirit of the Lord has filled the inhabited world, and that which holds all things together has knowledge of every voice.
8 Therefore no one who utters unjust things will escape notice, nor will Justice,[e] when she convicts, pass him by.
9 For the schemes of the ungodly will be investigated, and news of what they say will reach the Lord,
to convict them of their lawless acts; 10 because a jealous ear hears all things, and the murmur of grumbling is not hidden.

11 So protect yourselves from pointless complaining, and keep your tongues from slander;
for no whispered word is without consequence,[f]
and a deceitful mouth kills the soul.
12 Do not court death by the error of your life, nor draw destruction on yourselves by the works of your hands; 13 because God did not make death, and he takes no delight in the destruction of the living.
14 He made everything so that it could exist, the creatures[g] of the world are health-giving,
there is no deadly poison in them,
and Hades has no dominion[h] on earth.
15 For justice is immortal.[i] 16 But the ungodly invited death with their hands and words;[j] they thought of it as a friend and pined away, and they struck a pact with it, since they deserve to be among its possessions.

Notes

- a (1:1) Greek kyrios, "Lord," the Septuagint's usual rendering of the divine name YHWH; this translation keeps "Lord" in the Greek books. The opening address "you who judge the earth" echoes Ps 2:10.
- b (1:5) Or "of instruction"; Greek paideia, training or correction. Some manuscripts (as reported, Sinaiticus) read "of wisdom."
- c (1:6) Greek "from his lips."
- d (1:6) Greek "his kidneys," thought of as the seat of the emotions.
- e (1:8) Greek dikē, justice personified as an avenging power.
- f (1:11) Or "goes unpunished"; Greek "will not go empty."
- g (1:14) Or "the creatures," "the things that come into being"; Greek geneseis.
- h (1:14) Or "palace," "dominion"; Greek basileion.
- i (1:15) The Latin tradition adds a further line, "but injustice is the acquisition of death," which is not in the Greek manuscripts used here.
- j (1:16) That is, death.

Chapter 2

1 For, reckoning wrongly, they said to themselves,
"Brief and full of grief is this life of ours, and for a mortal's end there is no cure, nor is anyone known who has come back[a] out of Hades.

2 For we were born by sheer accident, and after this we will be as if we had never existed;
the breath in our nostrils is a puff of smoke,
and thought is a spark struck by our pulsing heart;
3 when it is put out, the body will turn to ashes, and the spirit will be scattered like thin air.
4 In time our name will be forgotten, and nobody will recall what we did;
our lives will vanish like the remnants of a cloud, and disperse like fog driven off by the sun's beams and pressed down by its warmth.
5 For our allotted time is the passing of a shadow, and there is no going back from our end, because it is sealed up and no one turns it back.
6 "Come, then, let us enjoy the good things that are present, and make use of the creation[b] eagerly, as in youth.
7 With wine of great price and with perfumes let us be filled, and let no blossom of spring[c] get by us.
8 Let us crown ourselves with rosebuds before they wither.
9 Let none of us go without his share in our revelry;
everywhere let us leave tokens of our merriment, because this is our portion, and this our lot.
10 Let us oppress the poor man who is just;
let us not spare the widow, nor respect the gray hairs of the aged, many in years.
11 But let our strength be our law of justice, for what is weak proves itself useless.
12 "Let us lie in wait for the just man, because he is inconvenient to us, and he opposes our deeds;
he reproaches us for sins against the law,
and charges us with sins against our training.

13 He claims to possess knowledge of God, and names himself a son[d] of the Lord.
14 He has become to us a reproof of our thoughts;
he is a burden to us even to look at, 15 because his life is unlike that of others, and his paths are of another kind.
16 We are counted by him as something counterfeit, and he keeps away from our ways as from uncleanness;
he calls the last end of the just happy,
and boasts that God is his father.
17 Let us find out whether what he says is true, and make trial of how things go with him when he departs.
18 For if the just man is God's son, he will help him, and will rescue him from the hand of his adversaries.
19 Let us examine him with insult and torture, so that we may know his gentleness, and put his forbearance to the proof.
20 Let us condemn him to a shameful death, for, according to his words, he will be watched over."[e] 21 Thus they reasoned, and they were led astray, for their wickedness blinded them, 22 They had no knowledge of God's hidden counsels,[f] they set no hope on the payment due to holiness, and they did not judge that spotless souls have a reward of honor; 23 for God created humankind for incorruption, and made it the image of his own eternity;[g] 24 but death entered the world through the devil's[h] jealousy, and those on his side experience it.

Notes

- a (2:1) Or "to release anyone."
- b (2:6) Or "of created things."
- c (2:7) Some manuscripts read "flower of the air"; others "flower of life."
- d (2:13) Or "servant"; Greek pais can mean either.
- e (2:20) Literally "for there will be a visitation of him according to his words."
- f (2:22) Greek mystēria, "mysteries."

- g (2:23) Some manuscripts read "of his own nature" (Greek idiotētos for aidiotētos), as reported.
- h (2:24) Greek diabolos, "slanderer," here commonly understood of the serpent of Gen 3.

Chapter 3

1 But the souls of the just are in the hand of God, and no torment will ever[a] touch them.
2 In the eyes of the foolish they seemed to have died, and their departure was reckoned an affliction, 3 and their going from us a ruin;
but they are at peace.
4 For though in the sight of people they were punished, their hope is full of immortality.
5 After a small correction they will receive great blessings, for God tried them and judged them fit for himself; 6 like gold in the furnace he tried them, and like a whole burnt offering[b] he accepted them.
7 In the time of their visitation they will shine out, and they will run like sparks through stubble.
8 Nations they shall judge, over peoples they shall hold sway, and over them the Lord shall be king to the ages.
9 Whoever has put trust in him shall come to understand what is true, and those faithful in love shall remain beside him, for favor and mercy belong to those he has chosen.[c] 10 But the ungodly will receive punishment as their reasonings deserve, those who disregarded the just[d] and rebelled against the Lord; 11 for whoever despises wisdom and discipline is miserable; their hope is empty, their labors unprofitable,
and their works useless.
12 Their wives are foolish, and their children evil; cursed is their offspring.

13 Blessed is the childless woman who is pure, who has never shared a bed in sin;
she will bear fruit at the visitation of souls.
14 Blessed too the eunuch who has worked no lawless thing with his hand nor plotted evil things against the Lord;
to him a chosen gift shall be given for his fidelity, and in the Lord's sanctuary a portion all the more delightful.
15 For good toil yields a fruit of glory, and the root of good sense never gives way.
16 But the children of adulterers will never mature,
and the offspring of an illicit union will disappear.
17 Even if they live long, they will be counted as nothing, and at the last their old age will be without honor.
18 Should they die quickly, hope is not theirs, nor any comfort in the day when the verdict is given.[e] 19 For hard is the end of an unrighteous generation.

Notes

- a (3:1) The Greek uses an emphatic double negative.
- b (3:6) Greek holokarpōma, a sacrifice wholly consumed on the altar.
- c (3:9) Some manuscripts add "and he watches over his holy ones," as at 4:15.
- d (3:10) Or "what is just."
- e (3:18) Greek "of decision," that is, of the verdict.

Chapter 4

1 Childlessness joined to virtue is better, for in remembering virtue[a] there is deathlessness, since both with God and among mortals it is recognized.
2 While it is here, people copy it;
once gone, they long for it;
and through the age it walks in procession wearing the crown, victor in the contest whose prizes carry no stain.
3 But the fertile families of the ungodly will be useless; grown from illegitimate cuttings, they will not root deeply or stand firmly.

4 Though for a season they may sprout in branches, yet, set unsteadily, they will be rocked by the wind and torn up by the roots under the gales' force.
5 Their shoots will be snapped off unfinished, their fruit worthless,
unripe for food, fit for nothing at all.
6 For children born of unlawful unions[b] are witnesses of wickedness against their parents when they are examined.
7 But the just, though he come to his end early, will be at rest.
8 For honorable old age is not that of long time, nor is it measured by number of years; 9 but understanding is gray hair for human beings, and a spotless life is ripe old age.
10 Being pleasing to God, he was loved, and while living among sinners he was taken up.[c] 11 He was snatched away so that evil might not alter his understanding or guile deceive his soul.
12 For the bewitching of trivial things obscures what is good, and the roving of desire perverts an innocent mind.
13 Made complete in a brief span, he filled out lengthy times; 14 for his soul was pleasing to the Lord;
therefore he hurried him[d] out of the midst of wickedness.
But the peoples saw and did not understand,
nor did they take such a thing to heart, 15 that grace and mercy are with his chosen ones, and he watches over his holy ones.
16 A righteous person who has died will judge the living ungodly, and a youth swiftly made complete will judge the long old age of the unrighteous.
17 They will look on the wise man's death without grasping what the Lord intended for him or why he set him in safety.

18 They will look on and sneer, but the Lord will mock them.
19 After that they will become dishonored corpses, an object of abuse among the dead for ages;
for he will dash them down speechless, headfirst, and shake them from their bases;
they will be left utterly desolate to the end,
they will be in anguish,
and all memory of them will perish.
20 Cowering, they will come to the counting of their sins, and their own lawless acts will stand opposite and accuse them.

Notes

- a (4:1) Greek "of it."
- b (4:6) Greek "of lawless sleep."
- c (4:10) Greek metetethē, the word used of Enoch in Gen 5:24 (Septuagint).
- d (4:14) Or "it hurried"; the subject may be the soul.

Chapter 5

1 Then the righteous one will take his stand with much boldness facing those who afflicted him and who set his toils at nothing.
2 At the sight they will be thrown into turmoil by a terrible fear and stand astonished at a deliverance beyond all expectation.
3 Repenting, they will say to one another, and groan through distress of spirit: 4 "This is the man we used to laugh at, whom we made a proverb of scorn — senseless that we were!
His way of life we counted lunacy, and his death a dishonor.
5 How has he been numbered among the children[a] of God, and his lot is among the holy ones?
6 We wandered, then, from the road of truth;
the light of righteousness never shone for us, and for us the sun never rose.

7 We were glutted on lawless and ruinous tracks;
we went through deserts with no road;
the Lord's way we never knew.
8 What did our arrogance profit us?
And what good has wealth, with our boasting, brought us?
9 "All those things have passed away like a shadow, and like a rumor that runs by;
10 like a ship that passes through the surging water, and when it has gone through, no trace of it can be found,
no track of its keel in the waves; 11 or as with a bird darting through the air:
no mark of its course is to be found, but the slight breeze, whipped by the stroke of its feathers and split by its whirring force, is crossed by its beating wings,
and afterward nothing in it shows that it went that way; 12 or as, when an arrow is shot at a target, the air, cut through, at once closes up again,
so that no one knows its pathway.
13 So it is with us: no sooner were we born than we ceased to exist, and we had no mark of virtue to display, but were used up in our wickedness." 14 For the hope of the ungodly is like chaff[b] carried by the wind, and like fine frost[c] driven away by a storm;
it is scattered like smoke before the wind, and it passes like the memory of a guest who stays a single day.
15 But the righteous live to the age, in the Lord is their recompense, and the Most High takes thought for them.
16 Therefore they will receive a majestic kingdom and a beautiful crown from the Lord's hand, for he will cover them with his right hand and protect them with his arm.
17 He will take his zeal as his full armor, and will arm creation to repel his enemies;

18 he will put on justice as a breastplate, and wear impartial judgment as a helmet;
19 he will take holiness as an invincible shield, 20 he will whet unbending anger into a blade, and the world[d] will go to war at his side against those who have lost their senses.
21 Well-aimed shafts of lightning will fly, and as from a well-drawn bow of clouds they will leap to the target, 22 and hailstones full of fury will be shot as from a sling;
the sea's water will rage against them,
and rivers will flood over them without mercy; 23 a blast of might[e] will stand up against them and scatter them like a whirlwind winnowing grain.
So lawlessness will turn the whole earth to desert,
and ill-doing will topple the seats of the powerful.

Notes

- a (5:5) Greek "sons"; the "holy ones" may be angels.
- b (5:14) Greek chnous, fine down or dust.
- c (5:14) Some manuscripts read "spider's web" (Greek arachnē for pachnē), as reported.
- d (5:20) Greek kosmos, "the world."
- e (5:23) Or "a spirit of power."

Chapter 6

1 Listen, therefore, you kings, and understand;
learn, you judges of the ends of the earth.
2 Give ear, you who rule over multitudes, and who take pride in throngs of nations.
3 For your authority came to you from the Lord, and your rule from the Most High,
who will examine what you do and scrutinize your plans.
4 For though you were ministers of his reign, you gave no upright judgment, you did not guard the law, and you did not walk by God's design.

5 Fearfully and fast he will stand over you, since on those who stand high a sharp judgment comes.
6 The least may be forgiven out of pity, but the strong will be strongly examined.
7 For the Master of all does not back away before anyone, and is not impressed by rank,
since he made small and great alike,
and cares for them all equally.
8 For the mighty a stern scrutiny lies ahead.
9 To you, then, O sovereigns, my words are addressed, so that you may learn wisdom and not fall away.
10 For those who keep holy things in holiness will be made holy,
and those who have been taught them will find a defense.
11 Therefore set your desire on my words;
long for them, and you will be instructed.
12 Wisdom is bright and never fades, readily noticed by those who love her,
and discovered by those who look for her.
13 She is quick to be recognized by those who long for her, coming to meet them first.
14 Whoever rises early to seek her will not grow weary, for he will find her sitting at his gates.
15 To think upon her is the perfection of understanding, and whoever keeps vigil for her sake will soon be free from care, 16 For she herself goes round looking for those who deserve her;
she shows herself to them kindly along their roads and comes to meet them in every purpose of theirs.
17 Her starting point is the truest longing for discipline;
and care for discipline is love; 18 and love of her is the keeping of her laws, and attention to her laws is assurance of incorruption, 19 and incorruption brings one near to God;
20 Thus the longing for wisdom raises one up to royal rule.[a]

21 If, then, you delight in thrones and scepters, O sovereigns of peoples, honor wisdom, so that you may reign for ever.
22 What wisdom is and how she came to be I will declare, and I will not hide secret things from you, but I will trace her out from the beginning of creation, and bring the knowledge of her into the open,
and I will not pass by the truth;
23 nor will I travel in company with wasting envy, for envy has no fellowship with wisdom.
24 A host of the wise keeps the world safe, and a prudent king is the steadiness of a people.
25 Therefore be instructed by my words, and you will profit.

Notes

- a (6:20) Verses 17–20 form a chain argument (sorites), each clause taking up the last word of the one before.

Chapter 7

1 I too am mortal, like everyone, a descendant of the earth-born first-formed one;[a]
and in a mother's womb I was sculpted into flesh, 2 within a period of ten months,[b] curdled in blood from a man's seed and the pleasure that comes with sleep.
3 And when I was born, I too drew in the common air and fell upon the earth that suffers alike for all;
my first sound, like that of all, was a cry.
4 I was nursed in swaddling clothes and with cares.
5 For no king has had any other beginning of existence;
6 there is for all one entrance into life, and a like departure.
7 Therefore I prayed, and understanding was granted me;
I called upon God, and a spirit of wisdom came to me.
8 I preferred her before scepters and thrones, and wealth I held as nothing beside her.
9 Nor did I liken any priceless gem to her,
for all gold in her sight is a little sand,
and silver will be counted as clay before her.

10 Beyond health and good looks I loved her, and I chose to have her rather than light, because the radiance that comes from her never sleeps.
11 Together with her all good things came to me, and in her hands wealth past counting.
12 Over all of them I was glad, since wisdom goes at their head, though I was unaware that she was the one who bore[c] them.
13 Without guile I learned, and without grudging I share;
I do not hide away her riches;
14 for she is an unfailing treasure for human beings;
those who make use of it gain friendship with God, commended by the gifts that come from instruction.
15 May God grant me to speak as he would have it,[d] and to think thoughts worthy of what has been given me, for he is himself the guide even of wisdom,
and the one who sets the wise aright.
16 For in his hand are both we ourselves and our sayings, and all good sense and the know-how of the crafts.
17 He himself gave me true knowledge of the things that are:
to know how the universe is put together and how its elements act; 18 the beginning and end and middle of times, the shifts of the solstices[e] and the changes of the seasons, 19 the cycles of years and the positions of the stars, 20 the nature of animals and the moods of wild beasts, the power of spirits[f] and the thoughts of people,
the kinds of plants and the properties of roots; 21 whatever is hidden and whatever is manifest I learned,
for wisdom, the artisan of all things, taught me.
22 For there is in her a spirit, thinking and holy,
only-begotten, many-sided, fine,
quick to move, distinct, unsoiled, plain, unharmed, fond of the good, sharp, 23 unhindered, beneficent, humane, steadfast, sure, free from care,

all-powerful, overseeing all,
and passing through all spirits that are intelligent, pure, and most subtle.[g] 24 For wisdom is more mobile than any motion; because of her purity she pervades and penetrates all things.
25 For she is a vapor of the power of God, and an unalloyed outflow of the glory of the Almighty;[h] therefore nothing defiled finds its way into her.
26 For she is a reflected radiance of everlasting light, a spotless mirror of the working of God,
and an image of his goodness.
27 One, she has power for everything; abiding in herself, she makes everything new;
and age after age, crossing into devout souls,
she fashions friends of God and prophets.
28 For God loves nothing except the one who lives together with wisdom.
29 For she is lovelier than the sun, and above every arrangement of stars;
set beside light, she is found ahead of it; 30 for night succeeds to it, but against wisdom evil does not prevail.

Notes

- a (7:1) That is, Adam.
- b (7:2) Ten lunar months, about nine calendar months.
- c (7:12) Greek genesin, "origin" or "begetter"; some manuscripts read genetin, "mother."
- d (7:15) Or "to speak with judgment."
- e (7:18) Greek tropōn, "turnings," the turning points of the sun's course.
- f (7:20) Or "winds."
- g (7:23) Verses 22–23 list twenty-one attributes (3 × 7), a number of perfection.
- h (7:25) Greek pantokratōr, "ruler of all."

Chapter 8

1 From end to end she stretches out in strength, and she manages the whole well.

2 Her I loved and sought out from my youth;
I sought to take her as a bride for myself, and became a lover of her beauty.
3 She proclaims her noble birth by living with God, and the Master of all loved her.
4 For she is an initiate in the knowledge of God, and one who chooses among his works.
5 If riches are a possession to be desired in life, what is richer than wisdom, who works all things?
6 And if understanding is at work, who more than she is the artisan of what exists?
7 Does someone love righteousness?
The fruit of her toils is the virtues;
for she teaches moderation and good sense, righteousness and manliness;[a] and for mortals in this life there is nothing more profitable than these.
8 Does someone long for much experience?
She knows the ancient things and guesses the coming ones;
she knows the twists of sayings and how riddles are untied;
signs and portents she knows in advance, and how the seasons and the ages turn out.
9 So I resolved to bring her home to live with me, knowing she would advise me well and comfort me in worry and sorrow.
10 Through her I will gain fame among crowds and respect from the elders, young as I am.
11 Sharp I shall be found in giving judgment, and before the powerful I shall be a marvel.
12 When I am quiet they will wait on me, and when I speak they will pay attention, and if I go on talking, they will put hands over their mouths.
13 Through her I shall possess deathlessness, and I shall leave to those who come after me a memory that lasts for ever.

14 I shall order the affairs of peoples, and nations shall be made subject to me.
15 Fearsome tyrants will be afraid when they hear of me;
I will prove kind toward the people, and brave in battle.
16 Entering my house I shall take my rest beside her,
for there is no bitterness in her company, no pain in living with her, but good cheer and joy.
17 Turning these things over within myself, and weighing them in my heart,
that deathlessness lies in being akin to wisdom, 18 and good delight in her friendship, and in the toils of her hands riches that do not run out,
and good sense in practice at her side,
and fair fame in taking part in her words,
I went all around searching how I might take her for my own.
19 I was a child of good nature, and a good soul fell to my lot;
20 or rather, being good, I entered an undefiled body.[b] 21 But perceiving that I would not otherwise gain possession of her unless God gave her — and it was a mark of understanding to know whose gift she was —
I appealed to the Lord and implored him, and with my whole heart I said:

Notes

- a (8:7) The four cardinal virtues of Greek philosophy.
- b (8:20) The verse reflects the Greek idea of the soul's existence before the body; verse 19 states it the other way.

Chapter 9

1 "God of the fathers and Lord of mercy, who made all things by your word, 2 and by your wisdom formed humankind to have dominion over the creatures that came into being by you, 3 and to govern the world in holiness and justice, and to pronounce judgment in uprightness of soul,

4 grant me the wisdom that shares the seat of your thrones, and do not reject me from among your children.[a] 5 For I am your slave and your slave-girl's son, a weak human being, of brief time,
and too slight for understanding of right and of laws; 6 for even if one is perfect among the children of men, yet without the wisdom that comes from you he will be counted as nothing.
7 It was you who picked me as king of your people and as judge of your sons and your daughters.
8 You ordered me to build a sanctuary on your holy mountain, and an altar in the city where you make your dwelling,
a replica of the sacred tent you prepared long ago.
9 Wisdom is with you; she knows what you do and was there when you created the world, she grasps what pleases you and what accords with your commands.
10 Send her forth from the holy heavens, and from the throne of your glory dispatch her,
that she may be with me and labor with me,
and that I may learn what is pleasing to you.
11 For she knows all things and has insight into them, and in what I do she will lead me with good sense and keep watch over me by her glory.
12 And my deeds shall be acceptable, and I shall judge your people righteously, and be worthy of my father's throne.[b] 13 "For what human being can learn the counsel of God?
Or who can conceive what the Lord wills?
14 For the reasonings of mortals are timid,
and our designs are likely to fail; 15 for a perishable body weighs down the soul, and this earthly tent burdens the mind that ponders many things.

16 Even what is on earth we picture with difficulty, and what lies in our hands we discover with toil;
but the things in the heavens, who has tracked them down?
17 Who has learned your counsel, unless you gave wisdom and sent your holy spirit from on high?
18 So it was that the ways of earth's dwellers were made straight, and human beings learned the things that please you, and through wisdom they were brought to safety."

Notes

- a (9:4) Or "servants"; Greek paides.
- b (9:12) Greek "thrones," a plural of majesty.

Chapter 10

1 She it was who guarded the father of the world, the first to be shaped, when he had been created alone, and drew him out of his own fall,
2 and gave him strength to rule over all things.
3 But when one who was unjust[a] turned from her in his anger, he was destroyed together with the brother-killing rage he gave way to.
4 And when because of him the earth was drowned, wisdom saved it once more, piloting the righteous one[b] on a cheap timber.
5 She too, when the nations were thrown into confusion in their unanimity of wickedness,[c] knew the righteous one[d] and kept him faultless before God and held him firm against his tender feeling for his child.
6 She rescued a just man[e] when the ungodly were perishing;
he fled from the fire that came down on the Five Cities.
7 To their evil there still bears witness a smoking land left waste, and plants that bear fruit not brought to its time, and, standing as a memorial of a soul without faith, a pillar of salt.
8 For they walked past wisdom and so were not merely harmed by not knowing what is good, but also left to the living a monument to their senselessness, that what they stumbled in might not escape notice.

9 Wisdom rescued from troubles those who served her.
10 She guided a righteous one[f] along straight paths when he fled from the anger of his brother;
she let him see God's kingdom,
she gave him the knowledge of holy things, she made him thrive in his hard work and multiplied what his labors produced.
11 In the greed of those who overpowered him she stood at his side and gave him wealth.
12 From his foes she kept him, and from those lying in ambush she made him safe;
and a stiff contest she awarded to him,[g] that he might know that reverence for God is stronger than all.
13 When a just man[h] was sold, she did not abandon him, but rescued him from sin.
14 She descended with him into the pit, and did not abandon him in his chains, until she delivered to him a royal scepter and power over those who had oppressed him;
she exposed his accusers as liars,
and granted him lasting glory.
15 A holy people and a blameless offspring she delivered from a nation of oppressors.
16 Into the soul of the Lord's attendant[i] she went,
and she stood up to fearsome kings with portents and signs.
17 To the holy ones she paid out the reward of their toil;
she led them on a wonderful road,
and she was for them a covering in the day and a blaze of stars all night.
18 She brought them over the Red Sea, and led them through deep waters; 19 but their enemies she drowned, and cast them up from the depth of the abyss.

20 So the righteous carried off spoil from the ungodly, and they hymned, Lord, your holy name, and with one heart they praised your hand that fought for them; 21 for wisdom opened the mouths of the mute, and made the tongues of infants speak clearly.

Notes

- a (10:3) Cain (Gen 4). Throughout chapters 10–19 the biblical figures are not named.
- b (10:4) Noah (Gen 6–9).
- c (10:5) At Babel (Gen 11).
- d (10:5) Abraham (Gen 12–22; for the child, Gen 22).
- e (10:6) Lot (Gen 19). The "Five Cities" (Greek Pentapolis) are those of Gen 14:2.
- f (10:10) Jacob (Gen 27–31).
- g (10:12) Jacob's wrestling at the Jabbok (Gen 32).
- h (10:13) Joseph (Gen 37–41).
- i (10:16) Moses.

Chapter 11

1 She prospered their works by the hand of a holy prophet.
2 Through a desert where no one lived they made their way, and in places with no path they set up their tents.
3 They took a stand against those at war with them and beat back their enemies.
4 They were thirsty and called on you, and from a sheer cliff water was given them,
and from hard rock relief from thirst.
5 For by the very means through which their foes were chastised, by these, when they were at a loss, they received benefit.[a] 6 In place of a river's ever-running spring churned with gore and filth[b] 7 as a reproof of the order to murder the babies, you gave them plenty of water when they had no hope of it, 8 making plain by the thirst they then felt in what manner you chastised their opponents.
9 For when they were put to the test, though they were being corrected with mercy, they learned how the ungodly suffered when judged with anger.

10 For you tested them as a father does in warning, but you examined the others as a stern king does in condemnation.
11 Whether absent or present, they were equally distressed, 12 for double sorrow gripped them, and they moaned as they remembered the past.
13 For when they heard that through their own punishments the others had been benefited, they perceived the Lord.
14 For the one whom long before they had cast out and exposed[c] and then rejected with scorn, him they admired at the end of the events, having thirsted in a way unlike the just.
15 As repayment for their foolish and wicked reasoning, which misled them into worshiping mindless snakes and contemptible animals,[d] you sent a horde of mindless beasts against them as punishment, 16 so they would know that the instruments of someone's sin are the instruments of his punishment.
17 For your almighty hand, which fashioned the world from shapeless matter, had no shortage of ways to send a horde of bears or fierce lions against them, 18 or newly created unknown beasts full of rage, either breathing out fiery breath,
or belching thick smoke,
or flashing terrible sparks from their eyes; 19 not only could their harm destroy them utterly, but even the very sight of them could kill by fright.
20 Even without these, they could have been felled by one breath, hunted down by justice
and blown away by your mighty spirit.
But you have ordered everything by measure, number, and weight.
21 For great might is ever at your side, and the strength of your arm, who shall stand against it?

22 The whole universe before you is like the small weight that turns a balance,[e] and like a dewdrop at dawn coming down to the ground.
23 But you are merciful to all, because you can do everything, and you pass over human sins so that people may repent.
24 For you love all things that exist, and loathe none of the things you have made;
for you would never have formed anything if you had hated it.
25 How would anything remain if you did not wish it?
Or what you had not called, how would it be kept?
26 You spare all things, because they are yours, O Master, lover of souls.[f]

Notes

- a (11:5) The theme of chapters 11–19: the same elements that punished Egypt benefited Israel.
- b (11:6) The first plague (Exod 7:14–24).
- c (11:14) Moses as an infant (Exod 1:22–2:3).
- d (11:15) Egyptian animal worship.
- e (11:22) Compare Isa 40:15.
- f (11:26) Or "lover of life."

Chapter 12

1 For your incorruptible spirit is in all things.
2 So those who slip you reprove bit by bit, and in the things where they go wrong you remind and admonish them, that they may be set free from evil and put their trust, Lord, in you.
3 For the ancient dwellers in your holy land[a] 4 you hated, because they practiced hateful deeds, acts of witchcraft and impious rites, 5 pitiless killers of children and devourers at banquets of men's flesh and of blood.
Initiates out of the midst of a frenzied band,[b] 6 and parents who slaughtered souls that had no helper, you resolved to wipe out by our fathers' hands,

7 so that the land most precious of all in your sight might receive a worthy colony of God's children.[c] 8 Yet even these, as human beings, you spared; you sent hornets[d] ahead of your host to make an end of them by degrees, 9 not that you could not hand the ungodly over to the righteous in a battle line, or rub them out all together through terrible beasts or a harsh word; 10 But by judging them gradually you gave them time to repent, though you knew well that their origin was wicked, their evil was inborn,
and their thinking would never change.
11 For their seed was cursed from the start,[e] nor was it out of fear of anyone that you granted impunity for what they did wrong.
12 For who shall say, "What did you do?"
Or who shall stand up against your sentence?
Who shall charge you over nations destroyed that you yourself had made?
Or who shall come and stand against you as pleader for unrighteous men?
13 There is no god but you, who cares for all, that you should show him your verdicts were not unjust; 14 nor shall king or tyrant be able to look you in the face on behalf of those you have punished.
15 Being righteous, you order all things righteously, and you judge it foreign to your might to pass sentence on one who ought not to be chastised.
16 For your strength is the source of justice, and your sovereignty over all causes you to spare all.
17 For you display strength when someone doubts that your power is complete, and among those who do know it you put boldness to shame.

18 But you, master of strength, judge with gentleness, and with great sparing you govern us;
for the power is at hand for you whenever you will.
19 By such deeds you taught your people that the righteous man must be a lover of humankind, and you made your sons to be of good hope, that for sins you grant a change of mind.
20 For if the enemies of your children, who were owed death, you punished with such heed and such pardon, giving them times and room in which to be rid of evil, 21 with what exactness you have judged your own sons, to whose fathers you gave oaths and covenants of good pledges!
22 So while you discipline us, you strike our enemies ten thousand times harder, so that we think of your goodness when we judge, and expect mercy when we ourselves are judged.
23 So those who lived unjustly and foolishly you tormented with their own abominations.
24 For they wandered very far along the roads of going astray, taking for gods the most worthless and dishonored of animals, fooled the way infants are who have no sense.
25 And so, as on children without reason, you sent a judgment that made sport of them.
26 But those not set right by playful rebukes of correction shall find a judgment worthy of God.
27 For in the very things that made them suffer and chafe, in the things they counted gods and by which they were punished, they saw and acknowledged as true God him whom they had refused to know before;
and so the utmost sentence came down on them.

Notes

- a (12:3) The Canaanites.
- b (12:5) The Greek of verses 5–6 is difficult and the text may be corrupt.
- c (12:7) Or "servants."
- d (12:8) Or "hornets" (Exod 23:28; Deut 7:20).

• e (12:11) Compare the curse of Canaan, Gen 9:25.

Chapter 13

1 For by nature all people were futile in whom ignorance of God was present, and from the good things that are seen they had no strength to know Him Who Is,[a] nor, paying heed to the works, did they recognize the craftsman; 2 but either fire or wind or swift air, or the circle of the stars or rushing water or the lights of heaven, governors of the world, they took for gods.
3 If, delighted by their beauty, they supposed these to be gods, let them know how much better than these is their Master, for the first author of beauty created them; 4 and if they were struck with wonder at their power and working, let them perceive from these how much more powerful is the one who formed them.
5 For from the greatness and beauty of created things their Maker is seen by analogy.[b] 6 Yet on these people the blame is slight, for perhaps they go astray while seeking God and wanting to find him; 7 for, living among his works, they search, and they are won over by the sight, because what they see is beautiful.
8 But again, not even they are to be pardoned;
9 for if they had power to know so much that they could make a guess at the age,[c] how did they not sooner find the Master of these things?
10 But wretched, with their hopes in dead things, are those who called the works of human hands gods, gold and silver, worked with skill, and likenesses of living things, or a useless stone, the work of an ancient hand.
11 Suppose a woodcutter saws down a tree easy to handle, skillfully strips off all its bark, and, shaping it handsomely, makes a useful vessel for the service of life, 12 and burns the leftovers of his work to cook his food and eat his fill; 13 and the leftover from these, good for nothing,

a crooked stick grown full of knots, he takes and carves with the care of his idle hours, and shapes it with the experience of his leisure;[d]
he forms it into the image of a man, 14 or likens it to some worthless creature, smearing it with red ochre and painting its surface red with paint, and covering every blemish in it; 15 then, making for it a dwelling worthy of it, he sets it in the wall and fastens it with iron.
16 So he takes thought for it that it may not fall, knowing that it cannot help itself,
for it is an image and needs help.
17 When he prays for his property, his marriage, and his children, he feels no shame addressing something lifeless;
for health he appeals to something feeble, 18 for life he begs what is dead, for aid he entreats what is utterly inexperienced, for a journey what cannot use its feet, 19 and for getting and working and good fortune in the use of his hands he begs strong handiness of the thing most helpless in its hands.

Notes

- a (13:1) Greek ton onta, "the one who is," echoing the Septuagint of Exod 3:14.
- b (13:5) Greek analogōs, "correspondingly."
- c (13:9) Greek aiōn, here perhaps "the universe."
- d (13:13) Some manuscripts read "with the skill of understanding." Compare Isa 44:9–20.

Chapter 14

1 Again, someone preparing to sail and about to cross the wild waves calls upon a piece of wood more rotten than the vessel that carries him.

2 For that boat was thought up by the craving for profit, and wisdom as craftswoman put it together; 3 but it is your providence, Father, that steers it, because you have given it a way even in the sea and a safe path among the waves, 4 showing that you can save from every danger, so that even one without skill may go aboard.
5 It is your will that the works of your wisdom should not be idle; therefore people entrust their lives even to the smallest timber, and passing through the surge on a raft they are brought safely through.
6 For at the start too, as the proud giants were being destroyed,[a] the world's hope fled for refuge on a raft and, piloted by your hand, bequeathed to the age a seed of new birth.
7 For blessed is the wood through which righteousness comes;[b] 8 but the handmade thing is accursed, both it and the one who made it — he, because he worked it, and the perishable thing, because it was named a god.
9 For hated alike by God are the impious and his impiety;
10 For the deed done shall be chastised along with its doer.
11 So on the idols of the nations too there shall come a visitation, since among the things God made they turned into a loathsome thing, traps for human souls
and a noose for the feet of fools.
12 For the devising of idols was the beginning of fornication,[c] and their invention the corruption of life; 13 For they were not there at the start, and they shall not remain to the age; 14 For through the empty conceit of human beings they entered the world, and therefore a speedy end has been planned for them.

15 For a father, consumed with untimely grief for a child suddenly taken from him, made an image of him,
and now honored as a god one who was once a dead human being,
and handed on to those under him mysteries and initiations.
16 Then, strengthened by time, the impious habit was guarded as if it were law, and by order of tyrants the carved figures received worship.
17 When people could not honor kings face to face, since they lived far away, they imagined the king's likeness from a distance and made a visible statue of the king they revered, so that in their eagerness they could flatter the absent king as if he were there.
18 And to heighten the cult even among those who did not know him, the craftsman's love of distinction pushed them on.
19 For he, wishing perhaps to gratify the man in power, used his art to force the likeness into something finer; 20 and the crowd, drawn in by the charm of the workmanship, now reckoned as an object of reverence the one they had a little earlier honored as a man.
21 And this became a hidden trap for life,[d] because people, in bondage to misfortune or to tyranny, bestowed on stones and wood the name that ought not to be shared.
22 Then it was not enough for them to go wrong about knowing God, but living in a great war of ignorance,
they label such terrible evils peace.
23 For whether they practice child-slaying rites or secret mysteries, or hold frenzied revels with strange laws, 24 they keep neither their lives nor their marriages clean any longer;
one man ambushes and kills another, or wounds him by corrupting his wife; 25 and all is a confusion of blood and murder, theft and deceit, corruption, faithlessness, tumult, perjury,

26 harassing of the good, forgetfulness of favors, defilement of souls, interchange of sex,[e] disorder in marriages, adultery, and debauchery.
27 For worshiping idols that must not even be named[f] is the start, source, and end of all evil.
28 For they either rave in their merriment, or prophesy lies, or live unjustly, or readily commit perjury; 29 for since they trust in lifeless idols, they swear wickedly and expect to suffer no harm.
30 But on both counts what is just will come after them:
that they thought badly of God, attaching themselves to idols, and that they swore unjustly and with guile, holding holiness in contempt.
31 For it is not the power of what people swear by,
but the righteous penalty for sinners, that always catches up with the wrongdoing of the unjust.

Notes

- a (14:6) Gen 6:1–4. The "raft" is Noah's ark.
- b (14:7) Later Christian writers applied this line to the cross; in its setting it refers to the ark.
- c (14:12) Here, as often in the prophets, a figure for unfaithfulness to God.
- d (14:21) Greek "for living."
- e (14:26) Greek geneseōs enallagē, "exchange of origin"; the sense is disputed, perhaps "perversion of nature."
- f (14:27) Or "nameless idols."

Chapter 15

1 But you, our God, are kind and truthful, long-suffering, governing everything with mercy.
2 For even if we sin, we are yours, aware of your might;
but we will not sin, knowing that you count us as yours.
3 For to be acquainted with you is righteousness made whole, and to recognize your might is the taproot of deathlessness.
4 We have not been led astray by what human craft has wickedly devised, nor by the barren toil of those who paint shadow-pictures, a shape smeared with assorted colors, 5 the sight of which comes to fools as a reproach,[a] and one longs for the breathless form of a dead likeness.

6 Lovers of evil things and worthy of such hopes are those who make them and those who desire them and those who worship them.
7 For a potter, pressing soft earth, toils to mold each thing for our use;
yet out of one and the same clay he forms the vessels meant for clean work and those for the opposite, all in the same way; and what use each of them is to have,
the clay-worker decides.
8 And with evil labor he molds a vain god from the same clay, he who a little while ago came into being out of earth and in a little while goes back to that from which he was taken, when the debt of the soul lent him is called in.
9 Yet his care is not that he must labor and die, nor that his span of life is short;
rather he vies with goldsmiths and silversmiths and copies the bronze-workers, and holds it a glory to shape false things.
10 His heart is ashes, his hope cheaper than dirt, and his life of less worth than clay, 11 for he never knew the One who molded him, who breathed into him a soul that works and blew into him a spirit of life.
12 He reckoned our life to be a plaything, and existence a fair for making profit, for one must make money, he says, from any source, even from evil.
13 For this one knows beyond all others that he is sinning, when out of earthly stuff he makes brittle wares and graven images.

14 But most foolish of all, and more miserable than an infant's soul, are the enemies of your people who oppressed them.[b] 15 For they counted even every idol of the nations as gods, which have no eyes to use for seeing,
no nostrils for drawing in air,
no ears for hearing,
no fingers on their hands for touching,
and feet that are idle for walking.
16 For a human being made them, and one whose own spirit is borrowed formed them;
for no human being can form a god like himself.
17 Being mortal, with lawless hands he works a corpse;
for he outranks what he reveres:
he once had life, but they never.
18 Moreover, they worship even the most hateful animals, which, compared for stupidity, are worse than all others; 19 Nor do they even happen to be fair to look at, as animals go, so as to be wanted, but they have fled both from God's praise and from his blessing.[c]

Notes

- a (15:5) Or, with a slight change, "stirs desire in fools."
- b (15:14) The Egyptians.
- c (15:19) Compare Gen 1:31; 3:14.

Chapter 16

1 So by creatures of that same sort they paid a fitting penalty, tortured by swarms of vermin.
2 In place of that punishment you did good to your people, and for the craving of their appetite you made ready a novel taste, quails for food,[a] 3 so that the others, wanting food, might turn away even from the hunger they could not help because of the hideousness of the creatures sent upon them,[b] while your people, after going short for a little while, might share in a novel taste.

4 For on those tyrants a want that could not be avoided had to come, but to these it had only to be shown how their foes were being tortured.
5 For even when the dreadful fury of beasts came upon them, and they were perishing by the bites of twisting snakes,[c] your anger did not stay to the end; 6 for a short time they were thrown into alarm for their correction, having a token of rescue to bring the command of your law to mind.
7 For the one who turned was kept safe not by the thing he looked at,
but on account of you, who rescue all.
8 And in this too you persuaded our foes that you are he who sets free from every harm.
9 For them the bites of locusts and of flies killed, and no cure for their life was discovered, since they deserved to be chastised by such things; 10 but your sons not even the fangs of venom-spitting serpents overcame, for your mercy came alongside and cured them.
11 For to call your sayings to mind they were stung, and swiftly brought through safely, so that they might not fall into deep forgetting and be cut off from your good deeds.
12 For it was neither herb nor plaster that made them well, but your word, Lord, which makes all things whole.
13 For you hold authority over life and over death,
and you bring down to the gates and bring up.
14 A man may kill through his evil, but the spirit, once gone out, he does not bring back, nor does he free the soul that has been taken.
15 To escape from your hand is impossible; 16 For the ungodly, who denied that they knew you, were whipped by the might of your arm, chased by strange rains and hailstorms and downpours that would not be begged off,

and eaten up by fire.[d] 17 For—the most amazing thing—in water, which puts out everything, the fire burned even more strongly,
since the universe fights for the righteous.
18 For at one time the flame was tamed, so as not to burn up the animals sent against the ungodly, but that they themselves, on seeing it, might grasp that God's judgment was driving them; 19 and at another time, even in the midst of water, it blazed beyond fire's own power, to ruin the yield of an unrighteous land.
20 In place of these you fed your people the nourishment of angels, and bread made ready you sent them from heaven without their labor, having power for every pleasure and fitting every taste.[e] 21 For your food[f] showed your kindness toward your children, and, suiting the appetite of whoever ate it,
it turned into whatever each one desired.
22 Snow and ice[g] held out against fire and did not melt, that they might know that it was fire that ruined the enemies' harvests, fire flaming in the hail and lightning-flashing in the rains; 23 and this same fire, again, so that the righteous might be fed, had forgotten even its own power.
24 For the creation that serves you, its maker, is stretched tight to chastise the unrighteous, and slackens to do good to those who rely on you.
25 So then too, being changed into everything, it was in service to your gift that nourishes all,
according to the wish of those in want, 26 so that your sons, whom you loved, Lord, might learn that it is not the yield of harvests that feeds a human being, but your saying that keeps safe those who believe in you.[h]

27 For what was not ruined by fire melted simply when it was warmed by a brief sunbeam, 28 so that people would know they must get up before sunrise to thank you, and must address you as daylight begins; 29 For the ungrateful man's hope will thaw like winter's hoarfrost and run off like water that serves no purpose.

Notes

- a (16:2) Num 11:31–32; Exod 16:13.
- b (16:3) The frogs and other plagues (Exod 8).
- c (16:5) Num 21:6–9.
- d (16:16) The plague of hail and lightning (Exod 9:13–35).
- e (16:20) The manna (Exod 16; Ps 78:25). Jewish tradition held that the manna tasted as each person wished.
- f (16:21) Or "sustenance"; Greek hypostasis.
- g (16:22) "Snow and ice" here describe the manna (Num 11:7; Exod 16:14, 21).
- h (16:26) Compare Deut 8:3.

Chapter 17

1 Great are your judgments and hard to recount;
therefore souls without instruction went astray.
2 For when lawless men had supposed that they held a holy nation in their power, they lay prisoners of darkness and captives of a long night, shut in under their roofs, exiles from the everlasting providence.[a] 3 For thinking to go unseen in their secret sins, they were scattered under a dark curtain of forgetfulness, horribly dismayed and thrown into panic by apparitions.
4 For not even the inner chamber that held them kept them free of fear, but noises crashed around them and terrified them, and gloomy phantoms with unsmiling faces appeared.
5 No force of fire had strength to give light, nor did the bright flames of the stars endure to lighten that hateful night.

6 Only a self-kindled blaze showed through to them, full of fear, and, terrified at the sight they could not see,
they thought the things they did see worse still.
7 The tricks of the magic art lay humbled, and its boast of wisdom was put to a shameful test.
8 For those who promised to drive away terrors and disorders from a sick soul were themselves sick with a fear that deserved laughter.
9 For even when nothing alarming was there to frighten them, they were startled out of their wits by vermin creeping past and by reptiles hissing, 10 they perished trembling, refusing even to look at the air, which can be fled from nowhere.
11 For wickedness is a cowardly thing, condemned by its own witness;[b] squeezed by conscience, it always magnifies its troubles.
12 For fear is nothing but the surrender of the help that comes from reasoning; 13 and the weaker the expectation within, the greater it reckons its ignorance of the cause that brings the torment.
14 But they, all through that night that was truly powerless, that came upon them from the recesses of powerless Hades, sleeping the same sleep, 15 were now driven by monstrous specters, now paralyzed by their soul's surrender;
for sudden and unexpected fear rushed upon them.
16 And so whoever had dropped down there was held fast, shut up in a prison without iron bars.
17 For whether he was a farmer or a shepherd, or a laborer out in the wild,
he was caught and suffered the unavoidable doom;
18 for they were all tied by a single chain of darkness.
Whether it was a whistling breeze,
a melodious song of birds in the thick branches,
or the rhythmic roar of rushing water,

19 or the harsh clatter of rocks tumbling down, or the unseen racing of animals at play, or the voice of wild beasts roaring in their utmost savagery, or an echo rebounding from the mountains' hollows, it unstrung them with terror.
20 For the whole world was lit up with brilliant light and went about its work unhindered, 21 while over them alone a heavy night was spread, an image of the darkness that was to receive them;
but heavier than the darkness were they to themselves.

Notes

- a (17:2) The ninth plague, darkness (Exod 10:21–23), is the subject of 17:1–18:4.
- b (17:11) The Greek of the first line is difficult; Swete's text repeats part of the second line.

Chapter 18

1 But for your holy ones there was very great light.
Those others,[a] hearing their voice but not seeing their shape, called them blessed, because they too had not suffered; 2 and because they, though wronged before, were doing them no harm, they were thankful, and begged their pardon for having been at odds with them.[b] 3 In place of these things you provided a pillar of flaming fire as a guide for an unknown journey, and a sun that would do no harm on their glorious wandering abroad.
4 For those others deserved to be robbed of light and imprisoned in darkness, who had kept your sons shut up, through whom the imperishable light of the law was to be given to the world.
5 After they decided to kill the babies of the holy ones, when one child was abandoned and rescued,[c] you removed their many children as punishment, and drowned them all together in the mighty flood.

6 That night was made known beforehand to our fathers,[d] so that, knowing surely the oaths in which they trusted, they might be of good courage.
7 By your people there was awaited rescue for the righteous and ruin for the enemies; 8 for with that by which you took vengeance on our opponents, with this you summoned us and gave us glory.
9 For the pious children of good people made sacrifice in secret,[e] and together agreed to the divine law, that the holy ones would equally share blessings and dangers;
and already they were chanting the praises of their ancestors.[f] 10 But the discordant cry of the enemies echoed back, and a pitiful sound of mourning for children was carried abroad.
11 Slave and master were punished with like penalty, and the commoner suffered the same as the king; 12 and all together, by one kind of death, they had corpses beyond counting;
for the living were not even enough to bury them, since in one instant their most prized offspring had been destroyed.
13 For though they had disbelieved everything because of their sorceries, at the destruction of the firstborn they acknowledged the people to be God's son.
14 For when quiet silence held all things in its embrace, and night in her own swiftness was at midcourse, 15 your all-powerful word leaped from heaven, from the royal throne, a stern warrior, into the midst of the doomed land, 16 holding the sharp sword of your sincere command;
he stood and filled everything with death,
and while on earth he touched the sky.
17 Then at once apparitions in dreadful dreams troubled them, and unexpected fears assailed them; 18 and one here, another there, flung down half dead, made known the cause for which they were dying;

19 for the dreams that disturbed them had warned of this beforehand, so that they might not perish without knowing why they suffered.
20 The righteous too were touched by a trial of death, and in the wilderness a slaughter broke out among the multitude;[g] yet the anger did not stay long.
21 For a faultless man[h] hurried to defend them, bringing the weapon of his own service, prayer and the atoning offering of incense;
he stood against the fury and ended the calamity, proving that he was your servant.
22 He overcame the anger[i] not by bodily strength, not by the working of weapons, but by a word he brought the chastiser under,
calling to mind the oaths and covenants of the fathers.
23 For when the dead were already piled in heaps on each other,
he took his stand between and restrained the fury,
and blocked its path to the living.
24 For upon his robe reaching to the feet was the whole world,[j] and the glories of the fathers on the carving of the stone in four rows, and your majesty on the diadem of his head.
25 To these the destroyer yielded; these he[k] feared;
for only to taste of the wrath was enough.

Notes

- a (18:1) Greek "those," the Egyptians.
- b (18:2) The sense of the second line is uncertain; it may mean "and asked as a favor that they would depart."
- c (18:5) Moses (Exod 2:1–10). The "mighty water" is the Red Sea (Exod 14).
- d (18:6) The Passover night (Exod 11–12); compare Gen 15:13–14.
- e (18:9) The Passover sacrifice (Exod 12).
- f (18:9) Or "the fathers already leading the songs of praise."
- g (18:20) Num 16:41–50.
- h (18:21) Aaron.
- i (18:22) Greek ochlon, "the multitude," probably a slip for cholon, "the wrath," as many editors read.
- j (18:24) Exod 28. Philo and Josephus interpret the high priest's vestments as an image of the cosmos.

• k (18:25) Greek “they”; some manuscripts read “he.”

Chapter 19

1 But upon the ungodly a merciless anger pressed to the end, for he knew beforehand even what they would do:
2 how, though they themselves had permitted your people to depart and hurriedly sent them on their way, they would change their minds and pursue them.
3 For with their mourning still in their hands, and while they were wailing over the tombs of the dead,
they drew upon themselves another senseless thought, and those whom they had entreated to leave and thrown out, these they hunted as runaways.
4 For the necessity they had earned dragged them to this end, and cast into them oblivion of what had befallen, so that they might fill up beforehand the chastisement still lacking to their torments, 5 and that your people might experience an incredible journey, while they themselves met a strange death.
6 For the whole creation was shaped again from above in its own kind,[a] serving your particular commands, that your servants might be guarded unharmed.
7 There was beheld the cloud that shaded the encampment, the rising of dry land out of water that had stood there before, out of the Red Sea a road with nothing in its way,
and a green-bearing plain out of the violent surge, 8 through which the whole nation passed, protected by your hand, after gazing on marvelous wonders.
9 For they ranged like horses, and leaped like lambs,
praising you, Lord, who delivered them.
10 For they still recalled what happened during their stay, how in place of livestock the land produced gnats, and in place of fish the river belched out a swarm of frogs.

11 Later on they saw also a new brood of birds, when, carried away by desire, they asked for dainty dishes;
12 for, to satisfy them, quails came up from the sea.[b] 13 The punishments came upon the sinners not without prior signs in the violence of thunder;[c] for they suffered justly for their own wicked acts, for they practiced a more bitter hatred of strangers.
14 Others[d] had refused to receive strangers when they arrived, but these made slaves of guests who were their benefactors.
15 And not only so, but there will be some punishment for those others, because they received foreigners with hostility; 16 but these, after receiving them with festal celebrations, afflicted with dreadful labors those who had already shared the same rights.
17 And they were struck with blindness too, as those others were at the doors of the righteous one,[ef] when, wrapped in gaping darkness, each went seeking the passage through his own doors.
18 For the elements, being retuned among themselves, as on a harp the sounds alter the name of the rhythm[g] while always keeping their tone, as one may picture exactly from viewing what happened.
19 For things of dry land were turned into water creatures, and swimming things went over onto the earth;[h] 20 Fire retained its strength in water, and water forgot its fire-quenching nature.
21 Flames, by contrast, did not eat away the bodies of the fragile creatures that moved among them, nor did they melt the ice-like, easily dissolved heavenly food.[i] 22 For in all respects, Lord, you have made your people great and glorified them, and you did not overlook them, standing by them at every time and place.

Notes

- a (19:6) The thought recalls a new creation; compare 19:18–21.
- b (19:12) Num 11:31.
- c (19:13) Swete's text, following Vaticanus, places the clause "for they practiced a more bitter hatred of strangers" at the end of verse 13; the numbering of verses 13–14 differs among editions.
- d (19:14) The men of Sodom (Gen 19).
- e (19:17) The ninth plague (Exod 10:21–23).
- f (19:17) Lot (Gen 19:11).
- g (19:18) The Greek text of this verse is uncertain in places; Swete marks two words as doubtful.
- h (19:19) The Israelites with their cattle passed through the sea; the frogs came up onto land.
- i (19:21) The manna; compare 16:22.

Sirach (Ben Sira)

Apocrypha

Chapter 1

Prologue of the Greek Translator

Many great things have been handed down to us through the Law and the Prophets and the other writers who came after them, and on their account Israel deserves praise for instruction and wisdom. Now it is right not only that those who read should themselves become learned, but that lovers of learning should be able, by speaking and by writing, to be of service to those outside. So my grandfather Jesus, after devoting himself more and more to reading the Law and the Prophets and the rest of the ancestral books, and after gaining a good command of them, was moved to write something of his own on matters of instruction and wisdom, so that those who love learning, once they had taken this in as well, might go much further in a life lived by the law. / You are urged, then, to read with goodwill and close attention, and to make allowance wherever, despite the care spent on the rendering, we may seem to fall short with some of the phrases. For what is said in Hebrew does not have the same force when it is carried over into another tongue. And this is true of more than this book: when the Law itself, the Prophecies, and the remaining books are read in their original language, they differ considerably. / In the thirty-eighth year of King Euergetes I came to Egypt and stayed some time, and I found a copy that gave no small instruction. I thought it most necessary to apply some zeal and labor of my own to translating this book. Through that span of time I brought much wakefulness and skill to the task of finishing the book and publishing it for those living abroad who wish to love learning and are training their ways to live by the law.

The Wisdom of Jesus son of Sirach

1 All wisdom is from the Lord, and it is with him to the age.

2 The sand of the seas, the drops of rain, and the days of the age — who will number them out?
3 The height of heaven, the breadth of the earth, the depths below, and wisdom itself: who can trace them?
4 Wisdom was created before all things, and prudent understanding is from the age.
5 [The spring of wisdom is God's word on high,
and her paths are commands everlasting.][c] 6 The root of wisdom — to whom has it been laid bare?
Her clever devices — who has come to know them?
7 [Wisdom's knowledge — to whom has it been shown?
Her rich experience — who has grasped it?] 8 There is One who is wise, exceedingly to be feared, seated upon his throne — 9 the Lord. He himself created her; he saw her and numbered her and poured her out over all his works, 10 upon all flesh, as he chose to give,
and he supplied her richly to those who love him.[d] 11 The fear of the Lord is glory and a ground for boasting, gladness and a garland of exultation.
12 The fear of the Lord will delight the heart and will give gladness and joy and long days.[e] 13 With the one who fears the Lord it will go well at the last; on the day of his death he will find favor.[f] 14 To fear the Lord is where wisdom begins; with the faithful she was created in the womb.
15 Among human beings she made her nest, a foundation from the age, and among their offspring she will be held in trust.
16 To fear the Lord is wisdom's fullness;
she makes people drunk with her fruits.
17 She will fill her whole house with things to be desired, and her storerooms with her produce.

18 The fear of the Lord is wisdom's garland, making peace and sound health bloom.[g] 19 He saw her and numbered her;[h] she rained down knowledge and discerning understanding, and raised high the glory of those who hold her fast.
20 To fear the Lord is the root of wisdom, and length of days are her branches.
21 [The fear of the Lord drives sins away, and where it stays, it turns aside all anger.] 22 Unrighteous rage cannot be acquitted,[i] for the swing of his rage is his ruin.
23 Until the right time the patient will hold out, and later gladness will spring up for him.
24 Until the right time he will hide his words, and the lips of many will tell out his good sense.
25 In wisdom's treasure chests are the proverbs of knowledge, but reverence for God is a horror to the sinner.
26 If you crave wisdom, keep the commandments, and the Lord will furnish her to you.
27 Wisdom and instruction are found in the fear of the Lord, and he delights in faithfulness and gentleness.
28 Do not be disobedient to the fear of the Lord, and do not come to him with a doubled heart.
29 Do not act a part in people's mouths,[j] and keep watch on your lips.
30 Do not exalt yourself, or you may fall and bring disgrace upon your own soul.
The Lord will expose your secrets and throw you down before the whole assembly, because you did not approach him in the fear of the Lord, and your heart was full of deceit.

Notes

- a (1:title) Greek Iēsous, the Greek form of Joshua (Hebrew Yeshua). In 50:27 the author is called "Jesus son of Sirach son of Eleazar of Jerusalem"; Hebrew MS B there reads "Simeon son of Jeshua son of Eleazar son of Sira," as reported.

- b (1:title) Ptolemy VIII Euergetes II, who counted his reign from 170 BC; his thirty-eighth year is 132 BC. The translator arrived then and finished the work some time later.
- c (1:5) Verse 5 is lacking in Swete's text and in the oldest Greek manuscripts; it belongs to the longer Greek recension (GII) and the Latin. So also verses 7 and 21 below.
- d (1:10) The Greek of the second translation adds: "Love for the Lord is glorious wisdom; he gives a share of her to those he appears to, so that they may see him."
- e (1:12) GII adds: "The fear of the Lord is a gift from the Lord, and it sets one upon paths of love."
- f (1:13) Or "he will be blessed"; the Greek manuscripts differ, as reported.
- g (1:18) GII adds: "Both are gifts of God for peace; boasting opens wide for those who love him."
- h (1:19) The first line repeats 1:9; some editors treat it as a scribal repetition.
- i (1:22) Greek "be justified."
- j (1:29) Or "before people"; the Hebrew is not extant here.

Chapter 2

1 Child, if you come forward to serve the Lord, get your soul ready for testing.
2 Keep your heart straight and stand firm, and do not rush about in the time of calamity.
3 Cling to him and do not draw away, so that you may be made great at your end.
4 Whatever is brought upon you, take it, and in the turns of your humbling be patient.
5 For in fire gold is assayed, and those acceptable to God in the furnace of humbling.[a] 6 Trust him, and he will take your part;
make your ways straight and set your hope on him.
7 You who fear the Lord, wait for his mercy, and do not swerve, so that you do not fall.
8 You who fear the Lord, trust him, and your wage will not slip away.
9 You who fear the Lord, hope for good things, for gladness of the age and for mercy.[b] 10 Look at the generations of old and see:
who ever trusted the Lord and was shamed?

Who stayed in the fear of him and was abandoned?
Who called upon him and was overlooked by him?
11 For the Lord is full of pity and mercy;
he lets sins go and saves in a time of affliction.
12 Woe to timid hearts and drooping hands, and to the sinner who sets foot on two tracks!
13 Woe to the drooping heart, for it has no trust!
Therefore it will have no shelter.
14 Woe to you who have thrown away your endurance!
What will you do on the day the Lord makes his visit?
15 Those who fear the Lord will not defy his words, and those who love him will keep to his ways.
16 Those who fear the Lord will look for what pleases him, and those who love him will find their fill in the law.
17 Those who fear the Lord will make their hearts ready, and before him they will bring their souls low.
18 Let us fall into the hands of the Lord and not into human hands;
for as his greatness is,
so too is his mercy.[c]

Notes

- a (2:5) GII adds: "In sickness and in poverty be confident in him."
- b (2:9) GII adds: "For his reward is an everlasting gift with joy."
- c (2:18) Compare 2 Sam 24:14. Some witnesses add a line, as reported: "and as his name is, so also are his works."

Chapter 3

1 Listen to me, your father, children, and act accordingly, so that you may be kept safe.
2 For the Lord gave the father glory over the children, and made firm the mother's right over her sons.
3 Whoever honors a father atones for sins,
4 and whoever gives glory to his mother is like one storing up treasure.
5 Whoever honors a father will have gladness from his own children, and on the day of his prayer he will be heard.

6 Whoever gives glory to a father will have long days, and whoever heeds the Lord will give his mother rest;
7 he will serve his parents as a slave serves masters.[a] 8 In deed and in word honor your father, so that blessing from him may come upon you.
9 For a father's blessing props up the houses of children, but a mother's curse pulls up foundations.
10 Do not seek glory in your father's dishonor, for that is no glory to you.
11 For a person's glory springs from his father's honor, and a mother in disgrace is a reproach to her children.
12 Child, support your father in his old age, and never grieve him while he lives; 13 even if his understanding fails, bear with him, and do not slight him while you are in your full strength.
14 For kindness to a father will not be forgotten;
it will be built up for you as a credit against sins; 15 on the day of your affliction it will be remembered for you;
like fair weather on frost,
so your sins will dissolve.
16 Like one who reviles God is he who leaves his father in the lurch, and one who stirs his mother to anger lies under the Lord's curse.
17 Child, carry out your tasks with mildness, and you will be loved by those whom God accepts.[b] 18 The greater you are, the more you must make yourself low, and you will find favor before the Lord.
19 [Many stand high and are famed,
yet to the gentle he discloses his secret things.][c] 20 For the Lord's might is great, and by the lowly he is glorified.
21 What is too hard for you, do not seek out; what is too strong for you, do not search into.
22 Think about what you have been commanded,
for you have no need of things hidden.

23 Do not busy yourself with matters beyond your tasks, for more than human understanding has already been shown you.
24 For their own conjecture has misled many,
and wicked fancies have made their thinking slide.
25 With no pupils in the eyes there will be no light; and where knowledge is lacking, make no claim to wisdom.[d] 26 A stubborn heart will come to grief at the end, and whoever loves danger will perish in it.
27 A stubborn heart will be weighed down by troubles, and the sinner piles sin upon sin.
28 For the misfortune of the proud there is no cure, since a plant of wickedness has taken root in him.
29 The mind of the prudent will ponder a parable, and an attentive ear is what the wise desire.
30 Water puts out a blazing fire, and almsgiving atones for sins.
31 Whoever repays favors keeps the future in mind, and when he begins to fall he will find something to lean on.

Notes

- a (3:7) GII prefixes: "Whoever fears the Lord will honor his father."
- b (3:17) Greek "by an acceptable person"; the Hebrew (MS A, as reported) has "more than one who gives gifts."
- c (3:19) Verse 19 is lacking in Swete's text; it belongs to GII.
- d (3:25) Verse 25 is lacking in Swete's text and in the main Greek manuscripts; it is found in other witnesses and in the Hebrew (MS A), as reported.

Chapter 4

1 Child, do not cheat the poor man of his living, and do not keep needy eyes waiting.
2 Do not pain a hungry soul, and do not exasperate a man in his want.
3 Do not add turmoil to a heart already provoked, and do not put off a gift to one in need.
4 Do not spurn a suppliant in distress, and do not turn your face from a poor man.

5 Do not turn your eye from one who begs, and give no one occasion to curse you; 6 for if he curses you in the bitterness of his soul, his Maker will listen to his plea.
7 Make yourself dear to the assembly, and bow your head to a great man.
8 Bend your ear to a poor man, and answer him with peaceable words, mildly.
9 Rescue the wronged from the hand of the wrongdoer, and do not lose heart when you sit in judgment.
10 Be like a father to orphans, and like a husband to their mother;
then you will be like a son of the Most High,
and he will love you more than your own mother does.
11 Wisdom raises her sons on high and takes hold of those who seek her.
12 Whoever loves her loves life, and those who rise at dawn to meet her will be filled with gladness.
13 Whoever holds her fast will inherit glory, and wherever she enters, the Lord gives blessing.
14 Those who wait on her minister to the Holy One, and those who love her the Lord loves.
15 Whoever obeys her will judge nations, and whoever attends to her will dwell in confidence.[a] 16 If he trusts her, he will inherit her, and his descendants will hold her as a possession.
17 For at first she walks with him by twisting ways;
she brings fear and cowardice upon him and torments him with her discipline until she can trust his soul, and she tests him with her ordinances.
18 Then she comes straight back to him again and gladdens him and lays bare her secrets to him.

19 If he goes astray, she will abandon him and hand him over to his own downfall.
20 Watch for the right time and guard yourself from evil, and do not be ashamed where your own soul is concerned.
21 There is a shame that brings sin, and there is a shame that brings glory and grace.
22 Do not show favor to others against your own soul,
and do not let deference be your downfall.
23 Do not hold back a word when it can bring rescue.[b] 24 For by speech wisdom is made known, and instruction by the utterance of the tongue.
25 Do not argue against the truth,
but be abashed at your own want of learning.
26 Feel no shame in owning up to your sins, and do not push against the stream of a river.
27 Do not lay yourself down as a doormat for a fool,[c] and do not show favor to a ruler.
28 Contend for the truth until death, and the Lord God will fight on your side.
29 Do not be rough with your tongue, or sluggish and slack in your works.
30 Do not be a lion in your own house, or full of suspicious fancies among your servants.
31 Do not let your hand be held open to take and clenched shut when it is time to pay back.

Notes

- a (4:15) The Hebrew (MS A), as reported, has "will judge truly" (one letter different from "nations") and "will dwell in my inner rooms"; from verse 15 to 19 the Hebrew speaks in the first person as Wisdom.
- b (4:23) GII adds: "and do not hide your wisdom for the sake of looking well."
- c (4:27) Greek "do not spread yourself beneath."

Chapter 5

1 Do not lean on your money, and do not say, "I am self-sufficient."

2 Do not follow your own soul and your strength so as to walk in the cravings of your heart.
3 And do not say, “Who will lord it over me?”
for the Lord will surely exact punishment.
4 Do not say, “I sinned, and what happened to me?”
for the Lord is slow to anger.
5 Do not be so free of fear about atonement that you add sin to sins.
6 And do not say, “His compassion is great;
he will atone for the mass of my sins”;
for mercy and wrath are both with him,
and his rage settles upon sinners.
7 Do not wait to turn back to the Lord, and do not keep putting it off from day to day;
for suddenly the Lord’s wrath will burst out, and in the time of punishment you will be wiped out.
8 Do not lean on unjust money, for it will be no use to you on the day of disaster.
9 Do not winnow in every wind, and do not walk down every path;
that is what the double-tongued sinner does.
10 Stand fixed in what you understand, and let your word be one.
11 Be quick to listen,
and give your answer with patience.
12 If you have understanding, answer your neighbor;
if not, put your hand on your mouth.
13 Glory and disgrace come by talking, and a person’s tongue can be his fall.
14 Do not get called a whisperer,
and do not set ambushes with your tongue;
for shame falls on the thief,
and harsh condemnation on the double-tongued.
15 In great and small alike do not act in ignorance.

Chapter 6

1 Do not turn from friend into enemy;
a bad name inherits shame and reproach,
as does the sinner with a double tongue.
2 Do not lift yourself up in your soul's own counsel, or your soul will be torn in pieces as by a bull;[a] 3 you will eat up your leaves and lose your fruit and leave yourself like a dried-out tree.
4 A wicked soul ruins the one who owns it and makes him a thing for his enemies to gloat over.
5 A sweet throat multiplies its friends, and a gracious tongue multiplies friendly greetings.
6 Let those at peace with you be many,
but let your counselor be one in a thousand.
7 If you gain a friend, gain him by putting him to the test, and do not be quick to trust him.
8 For there is a friend who is a friend when it suits him, but will not stay by you on the day of your distress.
9 Another friend turns into an enemy and will expose the quarrel, to your disgrace.
10 And there is a friend who shares your table
but will not stay by you on the day of your distress.
11 In your good times he will be like a second self and speak freely to your servants; 12 if you are brought low, he will turn against you and hide himself from your sight.
13 Keep yourself apart from your enemies, and be on your guard with your friends.
14 A trustworthy friend is a stout covering;
the man who has found one has found treasure.
15 Nothing can be traded for a faithful friend, and no scale can weigh his worth.
16 A faithful friend is a medicine that gives life, and those who fear the Lord will find one.

17 Whoever fears the Lord keeps his friendship straight, for as he is, so too is his neighbor.
18 Child, from your youth choose instruction, and on into gray hairs you will keep finding wisdom.
19 Approach her as a farmer does, plowing and sowing,
and wait for the good harvest she brings.
You will work only a little in tilling her,
and before long you will eat what she yields.
20 How very rough she is to the untaught!
The witless will not stay with her.
21 Like a weighty stone for testing strength she will rest on him, and he will lose no time in flinging her away.
22 For wisdom is as her name is,
and she is not plain to many.[b] 23 Listen, child, and accept my judgment, and do not refuse my counsel.
24 Put your feet into her fetters and your neck into her collar.
25 Set your shoulder under her and carry her,
and do not chafe at her bonds.
26 Come to her with all your soul, and keep her ways with all your might.
27 Track her out and search, and she will become known to you;
and once you have hold of her, do not let her go.
28 For in the end you will discover her repose, and she will turn for you into joy.
29 Her fetters will become a strong shelter for you, and her collar a robe of glory.
30 For there is a golden ornament upon her,
and her bonds are a thread of violet.[c] 31 You will put her on like a robe of glory and set her on yourself like a crown of exultation.
32 If you are willing, child, you will be trained, and if you give your soul to it, you will be shrewd.

33 If you love to listen, you will take in,
and if you bend your ear, you will be wise.
34 Stand among the company of the elders;
who is wise? Fasten yourself to him.
35 Be eager to hear every godly discourse, and do not let proverbs of understanding slip away from you.
36 If you see a man of understanding, get up early to go to him, and let your foot wear down his doorsteps.
37 Ponder the ordinances of the Lord, and meditate on his commandments at all times.
He himself will make your heart firm, and the wisdom you long for will be given to you.

Notes

- a (6:2) The Greek is obscure; the Hebrew (MS A) differs, as reported.
- b (6:22) Probably a play on Hebrew musar, "discipline," which can also mean "withdrawn" or "held back."
- c (6:30) Greek hyakinthinos, the blue-violet dye of the tassels in Num 15:38.

Chapter 7

1 Do no evil, and evil will never lay hold of you.
2 Stand off from what is unjust, and it will swerve away from you.
3 Child, do not sow the furrows of injustice, or you will reap sevenfold from them.
4 Do not ask the Lord for high command, or the king for a seat of honor.
5 Do not justify yourself before the Lord, and do not play the sage in the king's presence.
6 Do not seek to become a judge, or you may not be strong enough to root out injustice;
you may be overawed in the presence of a powerful man and lay a stumbling block in the path of your uprightness.
7 Do not sin against the populace of the city, and do not throw yourself down in the crowd.
8 Do not tie on a sin twice over,
for not even for one will you go unpunished.

9 Do not say, “He will regard the abundance of my gifts, and when I bring them to God Most High, he will take them.” 10 Do not lose heart in your prayer, and do not neglect to give alms.
11 Do not laugh at a person in bitterness of soul, for there is One who brings low and lifts up.
12 Do not plow up a lie against your brother, or do the like to a friend.
13 Refuse to tell any lie at all,
for the habit of it leads to no good.
14 Do not prattle in the company of elders, and do not repeat yourself in your prayer.
15 Do not hate laborious work, or farming, which was created by the Most High.
16 Do not reckon yourself in the throng of sinners;
bear in mind that wrath does not linger.
17 Humble yourself deeply, for fire and worms are the punishment of the ungodly.[a] 18 Do not trade a friend for something of no account, or a true brother for the gold of Ophir.[b] 19 Do not pass over a wise and good wife, for her grace is worth more than gold.
20 Do not ill-treat a servant who works in good faith, or a hired man who gives himself to the work.
21 Let your soul love a good servant;
do not deprive him of his freedom.[c] 22 Do you have cattle? Look after them; and if they are useful to you, keep them.
23 Do you have children? Train them, and bend their necks from their youth.
24 Do you have daughters? Take care of their bodies, and do not let your face shine on them too brightly.
25 Marry off your daughter, and a great task is done;
but give her to a sensible man.

26 Is there a wife to your liking? Do not send her away; but to a wife you loathe do not entrust yourself.[d] 27 Honor your father with all your heart, and do not forget the labor pains of your mother.
28 Remember that through them you came into being;
and what can you repay them for what they gave you?
29 With all your soul hold the Lord in awe, and hold his priests in high regard.
30 With all your strength love the One who made you, and do not abandon his ministers.
31 Fear the Lord and honor the priest, and give him the portion that was commanded for him:
the firstfruits, the guilt offering, the gift of the shoulders, the sacrifice of consecration, and the firstfruits of the holy things.[e] 32 Stretch out your hand to the poor as well, so that your blessing may be made complete.
33 A gift brings grace before everyone who lives;
do not withhold kindness even from the dead.
34 Do not keep away from those who weep, but mourn with those who mourn.
35 Do not be slow to visit the sick, for by such deeds you will be loved.
36 In all you say, remember your last end,
and you will never sin.

Notes

- a (7:17) The Hebrew (MS A), as reported, reads "for what awaits mortals is worms"; the Greek introduces the idea of punishment by fire (compare Isa 66:24).
- b (7:18) Greek Soupheir, the gold-land of Ophir.
- c (7:21) Compare Exod 21:2; Deut 15:12–18.
- d (7:26) The second line is lacking in Swete's text; it is found in other witnesses and in the Hebrew (MS A), as reported.
- e (7:31) Compare Lev 7:28–36; Num 18:8–20; Deut 18:3–4.

Chapter 8

1 Do not fight it out with a powerful man, or you may fall into his hands.

2 Do not quarrel with a rich man, or he may set his weight against you;
for gold has ruined many
and has bent the hearts of kings.
3 Do not fight it out with a loud-mouthed man, and do not pile wood on his fire.
4 Do not make sport with an ill-bred man, or your forebears may be insulted.
5 Do not reproach a person who is turning from sin;
remember that we all are liable to penalty.
6 Do not dishonor a person in his old age, for some of us also are growing old.
7 Do not gloat over the dead;
remember that we all come to our end.
8 Do not disregard the discourse of the wise, but occupy yourself with their proverbs;
for from them you will learn instruction and how to serve the great.
9 Do not miss the talk of the aged,
for they too learned from their fathers;
from them you will learn understanding and how to give an answer when it is needed.
10 Do not kindle a sinner's coals, or you may be scorched in the flame of his fire.
11 Do not jump up and leave before an insolent man, or he will sit like an ambush at your mouth.
12 Do not lend to a man stronger than you;
and if you lend, count it as lost.
13 Do not stand surety beyond your means;
and if you do, give thought to paying.
14 Do not go to law against a judge, for they will decide for him as his rank requires.
15 Do not take to the road beside a daredevil, or he will be heavy on you;

he will act on his own whim, and his folly will drag you down to ruin with him.
16 Do not pick a fight with a hot-tempered man, and do not cross the wilderness in his company;
for blood counts as nothing in his eyes, and where there is no help he will strike you down.
17 Do not take counsel with a fool, for he cannot keep a matter to himself.
18 Do nothing secret in front of a stranger, for you do not know what it will bring forth.
19 Do not lay your heart open to everyone, and do not let anyone count it a favor to you.[a]

Notes

- a (8:19) Or, by another reading, "and do not drive away your good fortune"; the Greek is uncertain.

Chapter 9

1 Do not be jealous over the wife you hold close, and do not school her in evil to your own hurt.
2 Do not give your soul to a woman so that she sets her foot upon your strength.
3 Do not go to meet a loose woman, or you may fall into her snares.
4 Do not linger with a woman who sings to the harp, or you may be caught by her tricks.
5 Do not fix your gaze on a maiden, or you may be tripped up and pay fines because of her.[a] 6 Do not give your soul to prostitutes, or you may lose your inheritance.
7 Do not peer about in the lanes of the city, and do not wander in its deserted corners.
8 Turn your eye away from a shapely woman, and do not stare at beauty that belongs to another;
by a woman's beauty many have been led astray,
and from it desire is kindled like fire.

9 Never sit at table with a married woman, and do not carouse with her over wine, or your soul may lean toward her,
and in your passion you may slide into ruin.[b] 10 Do not desert an old friend, for a new one does not match him.
A new friend is new wine;
when it has grown old, you will drink it with gladness.
11 Do not envy a sinner's glory,
for you do not know how he will be overthrown.
12 Do not delight in what delights the ungodly;
remember that they will not go unpunished before they reach Hades.
13 Stay away from a man who has the power to kill,
and the fear of death will not haunt you.
If you do go near him, do not make a false move, or he may take your life.
Know that you are walking among traps and strolling along a city's battlements.
14 As far as you can, size up your neighbors, and consult with the wise.
15 Let your discussion be with people of understanding, and let all your talk be about the law of the Most High.
16 Let righteous men be your companions at table, and let your boasting be in the fear of the Lord.
17 A work wins praise for the craftsman's hand, and a ruler of the people for the wisdom of his speech.
18 A man of loose tongue is dreaded in his city, and one who is rash in his talk will be hated.

Notes

- a (9:5) Compare Exod 22:16–17; Deut 22:28–29.
- b (9:9) Greek "with your spirit"; the Hebrew (MS A), as reported, has "in blood," that is, to a death sentence (compare Lev 20:10).

Chapter 10

1 A wise judge will school his people, and the rule of a man of understanding will be well ordered.
2 As the people's judge is, so are his officers, and as the city's ruler is, so are all who dwell in it.
3 An unschooled king will ruin his people, but a city is settled through the good sense of those in power.
4 Authority over the earth lies in the Lord's hand, and at the right season he will raise up over it the one who is fit.
5 A man's success lies in the Lord's hand, and on the person of the scribe he will lay his own glory.[a] 6 Do not nurse rage at your neighbor for every wrong, and do nothing by deeds of insolence.
7 Arrogance is hateful before the Lord and before people, and injustice gives offense to both.
8 Kingship is shifted from nation to nation because of injustice and insolence and money.[b] 9 Why is earth and ashes proud?
Even while alive, its innards are cast away.[c] 10 A long illness — the physician scoffs at it;
a king today, and tomorrow he will be dead.
11 For when a person dies, creeping things and wild beasts and worms are what he inherits.
12 The start of human pride is standing off from the Lord:
the heart has withdrawn from its Maker.
13 For the start of pride is sin, and whoever clings to it showers forth abomination.
On this account the Lord brought on them strange calamities and overturned them utterly.
14 The Lord has pulled down the thrones of rulers and seated the gentle in their stead.
15 The Lord has plucked up the roots of nations and planted the lowly in their stead.

16 The Lord has overturned the lands of nations and destroyed them down to the foundations of the earth.
17 Some of them he has dried up and destroyed, and he has made their remembrance cease from the earth.
18 Arrogance was not created for human beings, nor savage anger for those born of women.
19 What seed is held in honor? Human seed.
What seed is held in honor? Those who fear the Lord.
What seed is held in dishonor? Human seed.
What seed is held in dishonor? Those who step over commandments.
20 Among brothers their leader is held in honor, and those who fear the Lord are so in his eyes.
21 [The fear of the Lord is where acceptance begins, but hardness and arrogance are where rejection begins.][d] 22 Rich man, man of note, and poor man alike — their boast is the fear of the Lord.
23 It is not just to dishonor a poor man who has understanding, and it is not proper to give glory to a sinful man.
24 Magnate, judge, and ruler will receive honor, yet not one of them stands above the man who fears the Lord.
25 Free men will wait upon a wise servant,
and a man of knowledge will not grumble at it.
26 Do not play the sage over doing your work, and do not give yourself airs in the time of your want.
27 Better the man who works and has plenty of all things than the one who struts about with airs and lacks bread.
28 Child, give your soul glory in meekness, and give it honor according to its worth.
29 Who will declare righteous one who sins against his own soul?
And who will give glory to one who dishonors his own life?
30 A poor man is given glory for his knowledge, and a rich man is given glory for his riches.

31 One given glory in poverty — how much more in riches!
And one held in dishonor in riches — how much more in poverty!

Notes

- a (10:5) Greek grammateus, "scribe"; the Hebrew (MS A), as reported, has "ruler" or "lawgiver" (mehoqeq).
- b (10:8) GII adds: "Nothing is more lawless than one who loves money, for such a one puts his own soul up for sale."
- c (10:9) The Greek is difficult (literally "I cast away"); the sense is that the body is decaying even in life.
- d (10:21) Verse 21 is lacking in Swete's text; it belongs to the longer Greek recension (GII).

Chapter 11

1 The wisdom of a lowly man will lift up his head and seat him in the midst of great men.
2 Do not praise a man for his good looks, and do not loathe a person for how he appears.
3 Small among winged things is the bee, but its fruit is first among sweet things.
4 Do not boast of the wrapping of your garments, and do not exalt yourself on a day of glory;
for the works of the Lord are wonders, and his works are hidden from human beings.
5 Many tyrants have sat down upon the ground, and one no one suspected has worn the diadem.
6 Many potentates have been deeply disgraced, and men of note have been handed into others' hands.
7 Before you examine, find no fault; understand first, and then rebuke.
8 Before you hear, do not answer, and do not throw in words in the middle of another's speech.
9 Do not wrangle over a matter that is no need of yours, and do not sit in session when sinners give judgment.
10 Child, do not let your dealings be about many things;
if you multiply them, you will not go clear;

if you chase, you will not catch up,
and if you run off, you will not escape.
11 There is one who labors and toils and hurries, and he falls all the further behind.
12 There is one who is sluggish and in want of help, short of strength and rich in poverty;
and the eyes of the Lord have looked on him for good,
and he has set him upright out of his low estate 13 and lifted up his head, and many have been astonished at him.
14 Good things and bad, life and death, poverty and riches — they come from the Lord.
15 [From the Lord come wisdom, discernment, and knowing the law;
from him come love and the paths of good deeds.][a] 16 [Wandering and darkness were formed along with sinners, and for those who glory in wickedness, evil ages with them.] 17 The Lord's gift abides with the godly, and his good pleasure will prosper them to the age.
18 There is one who grows rich by vigilance and pinching, and this is the share of his wage: 19 when he says, "I have found rest, and now I will eat from my goods," he does not know what time will go by before he leaves them to others and dies.
20 Stand fast in your covenant and be occupied with it, and grow old in your work.
21 Do not wonder at the works of a sinner;
trust in the Lord and keep at your labor;
for it is a light thing in the Lord's eyes swiftly, in a moment, to make a poor man rich.
22 The blessing of the Lord is in the wage of the godly, and in a swift hour he makes his blessing burst into bloom.
23 Do not say, "What need have I,
and what good things will be mine from now on?"

24 Do not say, "I am self-sufficient, and what evil can be mine from now on?"
25 On a day of good things, bad things slip from memory, and on a day of bad things, good things are not recalled.
26 For it is a light thing for the Lord on the day of one's end to pay a person back according to his ways.
27 An hour of hardship makes delight forgotten, and at a person's end his deeds are uncovered.
28 Count no one blessed before his end;
by his children a man will be known.
29 Do not bring every man into your house, for the snares of the treacherous are many.
30 A decoy partridge in a basket — such is the heart of the proud, and like a spy he watches for your fall; 31 for he lies in ambush, turning good things to evil, and on things worth choosing he will fix a blemish.
32 From one spark of fire a whole hearth of coals grows, and a sinful man lies in ambush for blood.
33 Beware of a wrongdoer, for he devises wickedness, or he may give you a blemish to the age.
34 Lodge a stranger in your house, and he will twist you round with troubles and make you a stranger to your own.

Notes

- a (11:15) Verses 15 and 16 are lacking in Swete's text; they belong to the longer Greek recension (GII).

Chapter 12

1 If you do good, know whom you are doing it for,
and there will be thanks for your good deeds.
2 Do good to a godly man, and you will find repayment, if not from him, then from the Most High.
3 No good things come to one who persists in evil, or to one who gives no alms.

4 Give to the godly man,
and do not take the sinner's part.
5 Do good to the lowly,
and do not give to the ungodly;
hold back his loaves and do not give them to him, so that he does not gain the upper hand over you by them;
for you will meet double evil for all the good you do him.
6 For the Most High himself hates sinners and will pay out vengeance on the ungodly.
7 Give to the good man,
and do not take the sinner's part.
8 A friend is not made known[a] in good times, and an enemy is not hidden in bad times.
9 In a man's good times his enemies are in sorrow, and in his bad times even his friend goes off from him.
10 Never trust your enemy,
for as bronze corrodes, so does his wickedness.
11 Even if he humbles himself and walks about stooped, set your soul on watch and guard yourself from him, and be to him like one who has wiped a mirror clean, and you will know that it has not rusted through to the end.[b] 12 Do not stand him next to you, or he may overturn you and take your place;
do not seat him at your right hand,
or he may go after your seat,
and at the last you will recognize my words and be pierced by what I have said.
13 Who has pity on a charmer bitten by his serpent, or on anyone who comes close to wild animals?
14 So too with one who goes about with a sinful man and is mixed up in his sins.
15 He will stay with you an hour, but if you lean aside, he will not hold out.

16 With his lips the enemy will speak sweetly, but in his heart he will plot to tip you into a pit;
with his eyes the enemy will shed tears, but if he finds his moment, he will not be sated with blood.
17 If evils meet you, you will find him there before you, and as though helping, he will clip your heel.
18 He will wag his head and clap his hands and whisper much and change his countenance.

Notes

- a (12:8) Greek "will not be punished"; probably a scribal slip for "will not be known," which the Hebrew supports, as reported.
- b (12:11) Ancient mirrors were polished bronze, which tarnished and had to be wiped.

Chapter 13

1 Whoever touches pitch will be smeared, and whoever goes about with an arrogant man will become like him.
2 Do not lift a load too heavy for you, and do not go about with one stronger and richer than you.
What partnership can the clay pot have with the kettle?
This one will knock against it, and that one will be smashed.
3 A rich man does wrong, and he even snorts with anger;
a poor man is wronged, and he must also plead.
4 If you are of use, he will work you;
and if you fall short, he will abandon you.
5 If you have means, he will live with you and empty you out, and it will cost him no pain.
6 Has he need of you? He will lead you astray and smile at you and give you hope; he will speak fair words to you and say, "What is your need?" 7 He will shame you with his dainties until he has emptied you out two or three times, and at the last he will make sport of you.

After this he will see you and abandon you and wag his head at you.
8 Take care not to be led astray and humbled in your merriment.[a] 9 When a potentate calls you in, keep your distance, and he will call you in all the more.
10 Do not crowd in, or you may be thrust away;
and do not stand far off, or you may be forgotten.
11 Do not venture to talk with him as an equal, and do not believe his abundant words;
for by much talk he will test you,
and while smiling he will scrutinize you.
12 Pitiless is the one who does not keep words to himself;
he will not spare you harm and chains.
13 Keep watch and take great heed, for you are walking side by side with your own fall.
14 [When you hear this while asleep, rouse yourself;
love the Lord every day you live, and call to him to save you.][b] 15 Every living creature loves its like, and every person loves his neighbor.
16 All flesh flocks together by kind, and a man will cleave to the one who is like him.
17 What partnership can a wolf have with a lamb?
So it is with a sinner toward a godly man.
18 What peace has a hyena with a dog?
And what peace has a rich man with a poor one?
19 Wild asses in the desert are the quarry of lions;
just so, the poor are the grazing ground of the rich.
20 Lowliness is an abomination to the proud;
just so, a poor man is an abomination to the rich.
21 When a rich man totters, he is propped up by friends, but when a lowly man falls, he is shoved away by friends too.

22 When a rich man trips, there are many to take his part;
he utters unspeakable things, and they declare him right.
A lowly man trips, and they rebuke him on top of it;
he gives voice to good sense, and no room is given him.
23 A rich man speaks, and all go quiet, and they lift his word up to the clouds.
A poor man speaks, and they say, "Who is this?"
and if he stumbles, they help to knock him down.
24 Riches are good where there is no sin, and poverty is evil, in the mouth of the ungodly.
25 A person's heart alters his face, whether for good or for evil.
26 The trace of a heart in good things is a cheerful face, but the finding out of proverbs is reasoning with toil.

Notes

- a (13:8) The Hebrew (MS A), as reported, has "in your folly."
- b (13:14) Verse 14 is lacking in Swete's text; it belongs to the longer Greek recension (GII).

Chapter 14

1 Blessed is the man who has not slipped with his mouth and has not been pierced with grief for sin.
2 Blessed is the one whose soul has not condemned him and who has not fallen from his hope.
3 Riches are not fitting for a stingy man, and to a begrudging person, what good is money?
4 One who gathers by stinting his own soul gathers for others, and on his good things others will live in luxury.
5 One who is mean to himself — to whom will he be good?
He will take no joy in his own money.
6 No one is meaner than the man who begrudges himself, and this is the repayment of his wickedness.
7 Even if he does good, he does it by forgetfulness, and at the last he lays bare his wickedness.

8 Evil is the one who begrudges with his eye, turning away his face and overlooking souls.
9 The eye of the greedy is not filled by his share, and wicked injustice dries up the soul.
10 An evil eye is grudging over bread, and at his own table it is lacking.
11 Child, as far as you have the means, treat yourself well, and bring offerings to the Lord worthily.
12 Remember that death will not delay, and the covenant of Hades has not been shown to you.
13 Before you come to your end, do good to a friend, and as far as your strength allows, reach out and give to him.
14 Do not cheat yourself of a good day, and do not let a share of good desire slip past you.
15 Will you not leave your labors to another, and your toils for dividing by lot?
16 Give and take, and treat your soul kindly,
for in Hades there is no seeking of delight.
17 All flesh grows old like a garment, for the covenant from the age is, "You shall surely die." 18 Like leaves flourishing on a thick tree, some it drops and others it puts forth:
so is the generation of flesh and blood,
one comes to its end and another is born.
19 Every work decays and gives out, and the one who works at it will go away along with it.
20 Blessed is the man who will meditate on wisdom and who will reason with his understanding, 21 who ponders her ways in his heart and will gain insight into her secrets.
22 Go out after her like a tracker, and lie in wait at her entryways.
23 He peeps in through her windows and will listen at her doorways;

24 he lodges close beside her house and will drive a peg into her walls; 25 he will pitch his tent at her side and will lodge in a lodging of good things; 26 he will set his children in her shelter and will camp beneath her branches; 27 Under her he will find cover from the burning heat, and in her splendor he will lodge.

Chapter 15

1 The one who fears the Lord will do this, and the one who holds fast to the law will lay hold of her.
2 Like a mother she will come out to meet him, and as a bride taken in her youth she will receive him.
3 She will feed him the bread of understanding and give him the water of wisdom to drink.
4 He will lean on her and not be bent, and he will hold to her and not be put to shame.
5 She will lift him up above his neighbors and open his mouth in the midst of the assembly.
6 Gladness and a crown of exultation and an everlasting name will be his inheritance.
7 Senseless people will never lay hold of her,
and sinful men will never see her.
8 She is far from arrogance, and lying men will never call her to mind.
9 Praise is not seemly in a sinner's mouth, for it was not sent from the Lord.
10 For praise will be spoken in wisdom, and the Lord will prosper it.
11 Do not say, "It was through the Lord that I fell away," for what he hates, you are not to do.
12 Do not say, "He is the one who led me astray," for he has no need of a sinful man.

13 Every abomination the Lord has hated, and it is not dear to those who fear him.
14 He himself made humankind from the beginning and left them in the hand of their own counsel.[a] 15 If you choose, you will keep the commandments, and acting in good faith is a matter of your own choosing.
16 He has laid before you fire and water;
stretch out your hand to whichever you choose.
17 Before human beings lie life and death, and whichever one pleases him will be given to him.
18 For great is the wisdom of the Lord;
he is strong in dominion and beholds all things; 19 and his eyes are upon those who fear him, and he himself will take note of every human deed.
20 He has commanded no one to be ungodly, and he has given no one leave to sin.

Notes

- a (15:14) Greek diaboulion, "deliberation"; the Hebrew, as reported, has yetser, "inclination," the word from which later Jewish teaching on the good and evil inclinations developed.

Chapter 16

1 Do not long for a crowd of useless children, and do not take delight in ungodly sons.
2 If they multiply, do not delight in them, unless the fear of the Lord is with them.
3 Do not put your trust in their life, and do not rely on their place;[a]
for one is better than a thousand, and to die childless than to have ungodly children.
4 For through one man of understanding a city will be peopled, but a tribe of the lawless will be laid waste.
5 Many such things my eyes have seen, and my ear has heard things mightier than these.

6 Fire will be kindled in a gathering of sinners, and wrath has flared up against a disobedient nation.
7 He did not make atonement for the giants of old,[b] who revolted in their strength.
8 He did not spare those among whom Lot sojourned, whom he abhorred for their arrogance.
9 He did not pity the nation marked for destruction,[c] those driven out in their sins; 10 so too with the six hundred thousand foot soldiers who banded together in their hardness of heart.[d] 11 Even if there is one stiff-necked man, it would be a wonder if he goes unpunished;
for mercy and wrath are both with him;
he is a potentate in forgiving and in pouring out wrath.
12 As great as his mercy, so great also is his reproof;
he will judge a man according to his works.
13 The sinner will not escape with his plunder, and the endurance of the godly will not be cut short.
14 He will make room for every act of mercy;
each will find according to his works.
15 [The Lord made Pharaoh hard, so that he would not acknowledge him, that his deeds might be known throughout the world below heaven.][e] 16 [His mercy is plain to all his creation, and he apportioned his light and his darkness to Adam.] 17 Do not say, "I will hide from the Lord; who will remember me from on high?
I will not be remembered among so great a people;
what am I, a soul, in the whole vast creation?" 18 Look: heaven and the heaven of heaven, the abyss and the earth, will shake when he visits.
19 The mountains along with the foundations of the earth, when he looks on them, are shaken with trembling.

20 Yet no heart will give thought to these things, and who will ponder his ways?
21 As a squall that no person will see,
so the greater part of his works are hidden.
22 Works of justice — who will announce them?
Or who will wait for them? For the covenant is far off." 23 Lacking in heart is the one who ponders these things, and a senseless man who has gone astray ponders folly.
24 Listen to me, child, and learn knowledge, and set your heart on my words.
25 I will reveal instruction by weight and announce knowledge with exactness.
26 When the Lord judged his works from the beginning, and from their making he marked out their portions, 27 he set his works in array to the age, and their first principles for their generations;
they neither hunger nor grow weary,
and they do not give out from their works.
28 Not one of them jostles its neighbor, and to the age they will not disobey his word.
29 And after this the Lord looked down on the earth and filled it with his good things.
30 With every kind of living soul he covered its face, and to it they return.

Notes

- a (16:3) Greek "their place," perhaps meaning their standing or number; GII and the Hebrew add lines here, as reported.
- b (16:7) Gen 6:1–4.
- c (16:9) The Canaanites (compare Deut 7:1–2; 20:16–18).
- d (16:10) Israel in the wilderness (Num 11:21; 14:22–35).
- e (16:15) Verses 15 and 16 are lacking in Swete's text; they belong to the longer Greek recension (GII). Compare Exod 7–11.

Chapter 17

1 The Lord formed a human being from the earth and sent him back into it again.

2 Days by number and a set span he gave them, and he gave them authority over the things on it.
3 He clothed them with strength befitting himself[a]
and made them after his own image.
4 He laid the dread of them on all flesh, to be lords over beasts and birds.
5 [They were given the use of the five powers of the Lord;
for a sixth he granted them a share of mind, and for a seventh, speech, the interpreter of his powers.][b] 6 Deliberation and tongue and eyes, ears and a heart to think with, he gave them.
7 With knowing and discerning he filled them, and he pointed out to them good and evil.
8 He set his eye on their hearts to show them the greatness of his works,[c] 9 so that they would recount the greatness of his works,[d]
10 and they will praise the name of his holiness.
11 He set knowledge before them and gave them the law of life as their allotment.
12 An everlasting covenant he established with them and pointed out his judgments to them.
13 Their eyes saw the greatness of his glory, and their ear heard the glory of his voice.
14 He said to them, "Keep away from everything unjust," and he gave each of them commands about his neighbor.
15 Their ways are before him at all times;
they will not be hidden from his eyes.
16 [Their ways from youth lean toward evil, and they cannot make themselves hearts of flesh in place of stone.] 17 He appointed a ruler over every nation, but Israel is the Lord's own portion.[e] 18 [Israel, his firstborn, he rears with discipline, and sharing with him the light of his love, he does not neglect him.]

19 All their works are as plain to him as the sun, and his eyes are always on their ways.
20 Their injustices are not hidden from him, and all their sins are before the Lord.
21 [But the Lord, being good and knowing what they are made of,
has not left or forsaken them, but has spared them.] 22 A man's almsgiving is like a signet with him, and a person's kindness he will keep like the pupil of the eye.
23 Afterward he will rise up and repay them and render their due on their own heads.
24 Yet for those who repent he has granted a way back, and he comforts those whose endurance is giving out.
25 Turn back to the Lord and leave off sins;
beg before his face and make the stumbling less.
26 Return to the Most High and turn away from injustice, and hate abomination with all your might.
27 In Hades, who will praise the Most High in the place of the living who give him thanks?
28 From a dead man, as from one who is not, thanksgiving perishes;
the living and healthy will praise the Lord.
29 How great the mercy of the Lord, and his atonement for those who turn to him!
30 For not all things can be in human beings, since a son of man is not deathless.
31 What is brighter than the sun? Yet even it fails.
And flesh and blood will ponder evil.
32 He inspects the host of the height of heaven, but human beings are all earth and ashes.

Notes

- a (17:3) Greek "according to themselves"; the Latin and Syriac point to "like himself."
- b (17:5) Verse 5 is lacking in Swete's text; it belongs to the longer Greek recension (GII), which counts the five senses as powers given by the Lord. So also verses 16, 18, and 21 below.
- c (17:8) GII adds: "and he granted them to boast of his wonders to the age."

- d (17:9) Swete's text, like the NRSV, has verses 9 and 10 in the reverse order; they are given here in numerical order.
- e (17:17) Compare Deut 32:8–9 in the Greek, where the nations are allotted "according to the number of the angels of God."

Chapter 18

1 The one who lives to the age created all things alike;[a] 2 the Lord alone will be declared righteous.
3 [He steers the world by the span of his hand, and all things obey his will;
for he is king of all things by his might,
setting apart among them the holy from the common.][b] 4 To no one has he given leave to declare his works;
and who will track out his mighty acts?
5 The strength of his greatness — who will count it up?
And who will go on to tell out his mercies?
6 One cannot take away or add,
and one cannot track out the wonders of the Lord.
7 When a person has finished, then he is beginning, and when he leaves off, then he will be at a loss.
8 What is a human being, and what is he good for?
What is his good, and what is his evil?
9 The number of a man's days — a hundred years is many.[c] 10 Like a drop of water from the sea and a pebble of sand, so are a few years set in the day of the age.
11 That is why the Lord bears long with them and lavishes his mercy upon them.
12 He saw and recognized that their overthrow is wretched;
therefore he made his atonement abundant.
13 A person's mercy is toward his neighbor, but the Lord's mercy is toward all flesh;
he reproves and trains and teaches and turns them back, as a shepherd his flock.
14 He has mercy on those who welcome discipline and who hurry toward his judgments.

15 Child, do not attach blame to good deeds, or the grief of words to any gift.
16 Will the dew not cool the burning wind?
Just so, a word is better than a gift.
17 See — is not a word above a good gift?
And both are found with a gracious man.
18 A fool reproaches without grace, and a begrudging man's gift makes the eyes waste away.
19 Before you speak, learn,
and before sickness, look after yourself.
20 Before judgment, examine yourself, and in the hour of visitation you will find atonement.
21 Before you fall ill, humble yourself, and in the season of sins, show a turning back.
22 Let nothing keep you from paying a vow in its season, and do not wait until death to be set right.
23 Before you vow, make yourself ready, and do not be like a man who puts the Lord to the test.
24 Remember the wrath of the end days and the season of vengeance, when he turns away his face.
25 Remember the time of hunger in the time of fullness, poverty and want in days of riches.
26 From dawn until dusk the season shifts, and all things are quick before the Lord.
27 A wise man will be wary in everything, and in days of sinning he will guard against offense.
28 Every man of understanding knows wisdom, and to the one who finds her he will give acknowledgment.
29 Those with understanding in sayings have themselves become wise and have poured out apt proverbs.
30 Do not walk behind your desires, and keep yourself back from your cravings.
31 If you grant your soul the good pleasure of desire, it will make you a thing for your enemies to gloat over.

32 Do not take delight in much luxury, and do not be bound to its outlay.
33 Do not become a beggar by feasting on borrowed money when you have nothing in your purse.[d]

Notes

- a (18:1) Greek koinē, “in common,” “alike”; the Latin reads “all at once.”
- b (18:3) Verse 3 is lacking in Swete’s text; it belongs to the longer Greek recension (GII).
- c (18:9) GII adds: “but no one can reckon the sleep of each one in eternity.”
- d (18:33) GII adds: “for you will be plotting against your own life.”

Chapter 19

1 A laborer who is a drunkard will not grow rich;
one who scorns small things will fall little by little.
2 Wine and women make men of understanding fall away,
and one who cleaves to prostitutes grows more brazen.
3 Rot and worms will inherit him, and a brazen soul will be taken off.
4 One who trusts quickly is light of heart, and one who sins will offend against his own soul.
5 One who takes delight in his heart will be condemned,[a] 6 and one who hates chatter has less of evil.
7 Never repeat a word,
and you will be none the worse.
8 To friend or to foe do not tell it, and unless it is a sin for you, do not uncover it; 9 for he has heard you and kept watch on you, and in due season he will hate you.
10 Have you heard a word? Let it die with you.
Take heart; it will not burst you.
11 Over a word a fool goes into labor, like a woman in labor over her infant.
12 An arrow fixed in the flesh of the thigh — so is a word in a fool’s belly.

13 Reprove a friend: perhaps he did not do it;
and if he did something, so that he does not add to it.
14 Reprove a neighbor: perhaps he did not say it;
and if he has said it, so that he does not say it again.
15 Reprove a friend, for it is often slander, and do not believe every word.
16 There is one who slips, but not from the soul;
and who has not offended with his tongue?
17 Reprove your neighbor before you threaten,
and give place to the law of the Most High.
18 [The fear of the Lord is where acceptance begins, and wisdom wins his love.][b] 19 [Knowing the Lord's commandments is a discipline that gives life, and those who do what pleases him pluck the fruit of the tree of deathlessness.] 20 The whole of wisdom is the fear of the Lord, and every wisdom includes carrying out the law.
21 [When a slave tells his master, "I will not do as you please," even if he does it afterward, he angers the one who feeds him.] 22 Knowing evil is not wisdom, and where sinners counsel there is no good sense.
23 There is a craftiness, and it is an abomination, and there is a fool who merely lacks wisdom.
24 Better one who falls short in understanding and is God-fearing than one who abounds in good sense and steps over the law.
25 There is a cleverness that is exact and unjust, and there is one who twists a favor to bring a judgment to light.
26 There is a wicked man who goes bent over in black, and his insides are full of deceit; 27 he lowers his face and plays deaf, but where he is not noticed he will get the jump on you; 28 and if for lack of strength he is kept from sinning, when he finds the season he will do harm.

29 From his look a man is known, and from meeting his face a man of understanding is known.
30 A man's dress and the grin of his teeth and the steps he takes report what he is.

Notes

- a (19:5) GII adds: "but one who resists pleasures crowns his life." Verse 5b and part of verse 6 in older English versions also come from GII.
- b (19:18) Verses 18, 19, and 21 are lacking in Swete's text; they belong to the longer Greek recension (GII).

Chapter 20

1 There is a reproof that is out of season, and there is one who keeps silent, and he is shrewd.
2 How much better to reprove than to nurse anger!
3 And one who confesses will be kept from loss.
4 A eunuch's lust to deflower a girl — such is one who works out judgments by force.
5 There is one who keeps silent and is found wise, and there is one who is hated for great chatter.
6 There is one who keeps silent, for he has no answer, and there is one who keeps silent, knowing the season.
7 A wise man will hold his peace until the season, but a boaster and a fool will overshoot the season.
8 One who multiplies words will be loathed, and one who takes power to himself will be hated.
9 There is good luck for a man in bad things, and there is a windfall that turns to loss.
10 There is a gift that will not profit you, and there is a gift whose repayment is double.
11 There is a loss on account of glory, and there is one who has raised his head from low estate.
12 There is one who buys much for little and pays for it sevenfold.
13 The wise in speech makes himself loved, but the graces of fools will be poured out for nothing.

14 A senseless man's gift will not profit you, for his eyes are many instead of one.[a] 15 He will give little and reproach much, and he will open his mouth like a town crier;
today he will lend, and tomorrow he will ask it back;
a hateful man is such a one.
16 The fool says, "I have no friends, and my good deeds earn no thanks;
the people who eat my bread speak evil."
17 How often, and by how many, will he be laughed to scorn!
18 A slip on the pavement is better than one with the tongue;
so the fall of the wicked will come swiftly.
19 A graceless man is a tale told out of season;
it will be always in the mouth of the unschooled.
20 A proverb from a fool's mouth will be refused, for he will not say it in its season.
21 There is one who is kept from sinning by want,
and at his rest he will not be pricked.
22 There is one who ruins his soul through shame and ruins it before a senseless face.
23 There is one who from shame makes promises to a friend and has gained him as an enemy for nothing.
24 A lie is a foul blemish on a man;
it will be always in the mouth of the unschooled.
25 A thief is preferable to one who lies constantly, but both of them will inherit ruin.
26 The way of a liar is dishonor, and his shame is with him always.
27 One wise in sayings will advance himself, and a shrewd man will please the great.
28 One who works the ground will heap his threshing floor high,
and one who pleases the great will atone for injustice.
29 Presents and gifts blind the eyes of the wise, and like a muzzle on the mouth they turn reproofs aside.

30 Wisdom hidden and treasure out of sight — what profit is in either?
31 Better a man who hides his folly than a man who hides his wisdom.

Notes

- a (20:14) That is, he looks for much in return.

Chapter 21

1 Child, have you sinned? Do it no more, and make supplication about your former sins.
2 As from the face of a snake, flee from sin;
for if you go near, it will bite you;
its teeth are a lion's teeth, slaying the souls of people.
3 All lawlessness is like a two-edged sword;
its wound has no healing.
4 Panic and insolence will lay waste riches;
so the house of the proud will be laid waste.
5 A poor man's supplication goes from his mouth to his ears,[a] and his judgment comes in haste.
6 One who hates reproof walks in the sinner's track, but one who fears the Lord will turn back in his heart.
7 The mighty in tongue is known from far off, but the man of understanding knows when he slips.
8 One who builds his house with other people's money is like one gathering stones for his own grave mound.[b] 9 Tow heaped together is a gathering of the lawless, and their end is a flame of fire.
10 The road of sinners is smoothed with paving stones, and at its end is the pit of Hades.
11 One who keeps the law masters its intent, and the completion of the fear of the Lord is wisdom.
12 One who is not clever will not be schooled, but there is a cleverness that multiplies bitterness.

13 A wise man's knowledge will swell like a flood, and his counsel like a spring of life.
14 A fool's insides are like a broken jar;
he will hold no knowledge.
15 If a knowing man hears a wise word, he will praise it and add to it;
the self-indulgent man heard it, and it displeased him, and he cast it away behind his back.
16 A fool's narration is like a load on the road, but on the lips of the understanding grace will be found.
17 People will look to the shrewd for a word in the assembly, and will turn his words over in their minds.
18 Like a house laid waste, so is wisdom to a fool, and the knowledge of the witless is talk no one can test.
19 Fetters on the feet is discipline to the senseless, and like manacles on the right hand.
20 A fool lifts up his voice in laughter, but a clever man will scarcely smile, and quietly.
21 Like a golden ornament is discipline to the shrewd, and like a bracelet on the right arm.
22 A fool's foot is quick into a house,
but a man of experience is abashed before a face.
23 A senseless man peeps from the door into a house, but a well-schooled man will stand outside.
24 It is bad schooling for a man to listen at a door;
the shrewd man would be weighed down with the dishonor.
25 The lips of strangers will be heavy with these things,[c] but the words of the understanding are weighed on the scale.
26 In fools' mouths is their heart, but in the heart of the wise is their mouth.
27 When the ungodly man curses Satan, he curses his own soul.[d] 28 The whisperer stains his own soul and will be hated in his neighborhood.

Notes

- a (21:5) That is, to God's ears.
- b (21:8) So some witnesses (chōma); others read "for winter" (cheimōna).
- c (21:25) The Greek of the first line is uncertain; some witnesses read "the lips of the talkative."
- d (21:27) Greek satanas, "the adversary"; the sense may be that the wicked, in cursing his opponent, calls the curse down on himself.

Chapter 22

1 A filthy stone — that is what the idler is like,
and everyone will hiss at his disgrace.
2 A lump of dung — that is what the idler is like;
everyone who picks it up will shake off his hand.
3 Shame for a father is an unschooled son, and a daughter is born to his loss.
4 A shrewd daughter will inherit a husband of her own, but she who brings shame is a grief to the one who sired her.
5 A brazen daughter shames father and husband, and by both she will be held in dishonor.
6 Like music in mourning is a tale out of season, but whips and discipline are wisdom in every season.
7 [Children brought up to a good life cover the humble birth of their parents.][a] 8 [Children who swell with contempt and coarseness from lack of training stain the noble birth of their kin.] 9 One who teaches a fool is gluing a potsherd, rousing a sleeper out of deep sleep.
10 One who narrates to a fool narrates to a man who is nodding off, and at the end he will say, "What is it?" 11 Weep over a dead man, for light has failed him, and weep over a fool, for understanding has failed him;
weep more gently over a dead man, for he has gone to rest,
but the fool's life is worse than death.
12 For the dead, mourning lasts seven days;
for the fool and the ungodly, every day he lives.

13 Do not multiply talk with a senseless man, and do not go along with one who has no understanding;
guard yourself from him, so that you have no trouble and are not smeared when he shakes himself; turn aside from him, and you will find rest and will not be worn out by his madness.
14 What will be heavier than lead?
And what is its name but "Fool"?
15 Sand and salt and a lump of iron are easier to carry than a man without understanding.
16 Wooden binding fastened into a building will not be loosed by a quake;
just so, a heart fixed on considered counsel will not cower at the critical moment.
17 A heart set firm on thoughts of understanding is like plaster ornament on a smooth wall.
18 Stakes standing on a height[b] will not hold against the wind;
just so, a cowering heart, with a fool's thoughts, will not hold against any fear.
19 One who pricks an eye will bring down tears, and one who pricks a heart brings its feeling to light.
20 One who throws a stone at birds scares them off, and one who reviles a friend will dissolve the friendship.
21 Even if you have drawn a sword on a friend, do not despair, for there can be a way back.
22 If you have opened your mouth against a friend, do not be anxious, for there can be reconciliation — except for reproach and arrogance, the uncovering of a secret, and a treacherous blow;
at these any friend will run away.
23 Gain trust with your neighbor in his poverty, so that in his good things you may be filled together;
stay by him in the season of his affliction,
so that you may share in his inheritance together.

24 Ahead of fire comes the steam of a furnace and smoke;
just so, abuse comes ahead of bloodshed.
25 I will not be ashamed to shelter a friend, and from his face I will not hide.
26 And if evil happens to me through him, everyone who hears will be on guard against him.
27 Who will set a guard upon my mouth and a seal of shrewdness upon my lips, so that I do not fall by them and my tongue does not destroy me?

Notes

- a (22:7) Verses 7 and 8 are lacking in Swete's text; they belong to the longer Greek recension (GII).
- b (22:18) Greek charakes, "stakes"; some witnesses read "pebbles."

Chapter 23

1 O Lord, Father and Master of my life, do not leave me to their counsel;
do not let me fall by them.
2 Who will set whips over my thinking and wisdom's discipline over my heart, that they may not spare my failings and not let their sins pass by?
3 So that my failings do not multiply and my sins do not abound, and I fall before those who oppose me, and my enemy gloats over me.
4 O Lord, Father and God of my life, do not give me lofty eyes,
5 and turn desire away from me.
6 Do not let gluttony and lust lay hold of me, and do not hand me over to a shameless soul.
7 Hear, children, discipline of the mouth;
the one who keeps it will never be caught.

8 By his lips the sinner will be overtaken, and the reviler and the proud will stumble by them.
9 Do not train your mouth to oaths, and do not make a habit of naming the Holy One.
10 For as a household slave who is examined continually will not be free of welts, so too one who swears and names the Name at all times will never be cleansed of sin.
11 A man of many oaths will be filled with lawlessness, and the whip will not leave his house;
if he offends, his sin is on him,
and if he overlooks it, he has sinned twice;
and if he has sworn idly, he will not be declared righteous, for his house will be filled with calamities.
12 There is a kind of speech clothed with death;[a] let it not be found in the inheritance of Jacob!
For all these things will be kept far from the godly,
and they will not roll about in sins.
13 Do not train your mouth to coarse filthiness, for in it is a word of sin.
14 Call to mind your father and your mother, for you sit among great men,
so that you do not forget yourself in their sight and play the fool by your habit, and wish you had not been born,
and curse the day of your birth.
15 A man trained in words of reproach will not be schooled in all his days.
16 Two kinds multiply sins, and the third will bring on wrath:
a hot soul, like a blazing fire,
will not be quenched until it is swallowed up;
a man who fornicates with the body of his own flesh will not cease until the fire burns him up.

17 To a fornicating man all bread is sweet;
he will not let up until he comes to his end.
18 A man who strays from his own bed says in his soul, “Who sees me?
Darkness is around me, and the walls cover me, and no one sees me; what have I to be wary of?
The Most High will not remember my sins.” 19 What he fears is human eyes, and he has not grasped that the Lord’s eyes outshine the sun ten thousandfold, gazing on all the ways of human beings and peering into hidden corners.
20 Before all things were created, they were known to him, and so also after their completion.
21 This man will be punished in the streets of the city, and where he did not suspect, he will be caught.
22 So also a wife who leaves her husband and produces an heir by a stranger.
23 For first, she disobeyed the law of the Most High;
second, she offended against her husband;
third, she committed adultery in fornication and produced children by a strange man.
24 She will be led out into the assembly, and a visitation will come upon her children.
25 Her children will not spread into roots, and her branches will not bear fruit.
26 She will leave behind her memory for a curse, and her disgrace will not be wiped away.
27 Those who survive will realize that there is nothing better than reverence for the Lord, and nothing sweeter than keeping the Lord’s commandments.[b]

Notes

- a (23:12) Probably blasphemy, which carried the death penalty (Lev 24:16).
- b (23:27) GII adds a verse (23:28): “It is great glory to follow God, and to be received by him is length of days.”

Chapter 24

The Praise of Wisdom

1 Wisdom will sing her own soul's praise and will boast in the midst of her people.
2 Within the gathering of the Most High her mouth will open,
and facing his armies she will make her boast:
3 "From the mouth of the Most High I came forth, and like a mist I covered the earth.
4 In the heights I pitched my tent, and my throne was in a pillar of cloud.
5 The vault of heaven I circled alone, and in the depth of the abysses I walked about.
6 Over the sea's waves and over the whole earth, over every people and nation, I took possession.
7 Among all these I sought rest:
in whose inheritance would I lodge?
8 Then the Creator of all things gave me command, and the One who created me made my tent rest,
and he said, 'In Jacob pitch your tent,
and in Israel receive your inheritance.' 9 Before the age, from the beginning, he created me, and to the age I will never fail.
10 In the holy tent I ministered before him, and so in Zion I was set firm.
11 In the beloved city he likewise gave me rest, and in Jerusalem was my authority.
12 I struck root among a people given glory, in the Lord's portion, his inheritance.
13 Like a cedar in Lebanon I was raised high, and like a cypress on the mountains of Hermon.
14 Like a palm in En-gedi[a] I was raised high, and like rose bushes in Jericho,
like a comely olive in the plain,
and like a plane tree I was raised high.

15 Like cinnamon and camel's thorn I gave off the fragrance of spices, and like choice myrrh I spread a sweet scent, like galbanum and onycha and stacte, and like the vapor of frankincense in the tent.[b] 16 Like a terebinth I stretched out my branches, and my branches are branches of glory and grace.
17 Like a vine I put forth grace, and my blossoms became the fruit of glory and riches.
18 [I am mother of beautiful love and of fear, of knowledge and of holy hope;
everlasting, I am given to all my children, to those he has named.][c] 19 Come over to me, you who long for me, and be filled from my produce.
20 For to remember me is sweeter than honey, and to inherit me, sweeter than the comb of honey.
21 Those who eat me will still be hungry, and those who drink me will still be thirsty.
22 Whoever obeys me will never be ashamed, and whoever works with my help will not sin." 23 All these things are the book of the covenant of God Most High, a law that Moses commanded us, an inheritance for the gatherings of Jacob.[d] 24 [Do not grow faint in being strong in the Lord; hold fast to him, that he may give you strength;
the Lord Almighty is God alone, and there is no savior other than he.] 25 It is the law that brims with wisdom like the Pishon,[e] and like the Tigris in the days of first fruits; 26 that makes understanding run over like the Euphrates, and like the Jordan in the days of harvest; 27 that makes discipline shine out like light,[f] like the Gihon in the days of vintage.

28 The first man did not finish knowing her,
and so the last will not track her out.
29 For her thinking is fuller than the sea, and her counsel than the great abyss.
30 And I was like a channel out of a river, like a watercourse into a garden.
31 I said, "I will water my garden and soak my flower bed";
and look — my channel became a river,
and my river became a sea.
32 Still more I will make discipline shine like the dawn, and I will make it appear far off.
33 Still more I will pour out teaching like prophecy and leave it behind for generations of the ages.
34 See: I have not toiled for myself alone, but for all who seek her out.

Notes

- a (24:14) So some Greek witnesses (Engaddi); others read "on the beaches."
- b (24:15) These are the ingredients of the sacred anointing oil and incense (Exod 30:23–34).
- c (24:18) Verses 18 and 24 are lacking in Swete's text; they belong to the longer Greek recension (GII).
- d (24:23) Quoting Deut 33:4. Sirach is the first known writer to identify Wisdom with the Torah outright.
- e (24:25) Pishon, Tigris, Euphrates, and Gihon are the rivers of Eden (Gen 2:10–14).
- f (24:27) "Like light" is probably a misreading of a Hebrew word for "like the Nile" (ye'or read as 'or).

Chapter 25

1 In three things I was made beautiful, and I stood up in beauty before the Lord and people:[a] harmony of brothers, and friendship of neighbors, and wife and husband suited to each other.
2 Three kinds my soul hated, and I am deeply offended at their life:

a poor man who is proud, a rich man who lies,
an old adulterer who lacks understanding.
3 If you did not gather in your youth, how will you find in your old age?
4 How lovely is judgment in gray hair, and for elders to know counsel!
5 How lovely is wisdom in the old,
and understanding and counsel in those given glory!
6 The crown of the old is wide experience, and their boast is the fear of the Lord.
7 Nine notions I count blessed in my heart, and the tenth I will utter with my tongue:
a man gladdened by his children;
one who lives to see the fall of his enemies;
8 blessed is he who dwells with a wife of understanding, and he who has not slipped with his tongue,[b] and he who has not served someone unworthy of him; 9 blessed is he who has found good sense, and he who tells his story into listening ears.
10 How great is he who has found wisdom!
But none is above the one who fears the Lord.
11 The fear of the Lord rises above all things;
to whom will the one who holds it be likened?
12 [The fear of the Lord is where loving him begins, and faith is where clinging to him begins.][c] 13 Any wound, only not a wound of the heart!
Any wickedness, only not the wickedness of a wife!
14 Any assault, only not from those who hate!
Any vengeance, only not from enemies!
15 There is no head above a snake's head,[d]
and no wrath above an enemy's wrath.
16 I would sooner make my home with a lion and a dragon than make my home with an evil wife.

17 A wife's wickedness alters her look and darkens her face like a bear's.
18 Her husband takes his seat among his neighbors, and he cannot help sighing bitterly.
19 Small is any wickedness beside a wife's wickedness;
may a sinner's lot fall upon her!
20 A sandy climb for an old man's feet — so is a wife full of tongue to a quiet husband.
21 Do not fall headlong for a woman's beauty, and do not set your longing on a woman.
22 There is wrath and brazenness and great disgrace when a wife provides for her husband.
23 A heart brought low, a sullen face, a wounded heart — so is an evil wife;
slack hands and buckling knees —
so is she who does not make her husband blessed.
24 With a woman sin made its start,[e]
and on her account we all die.
25 Do not give water an outlet, or an evil wife freedom of speech.
26 If she does not walk at your hand, cut her away from your flesh.[f]

Notes

- a (25:1) The Greek of the first line is uncertain; some witnesses read "In three things my soul took delight."
- b (25:8) The Hebrew, as reported, adds here "and who does not plow with an ox and an ass together" (compare Deut 22:10).
- c (25:12) Verse 12 is lacking in Swete's text; it belongs to the longer Greek recension (GII).
- d (25:15) The Hebrew word rosh means both "head" and "venom"; the Greek has taken the first sense.
- e (25:24) Usually taken as a reference to Eve (Gen 3); some interpreters, as reported, take it of the evil wife of the context.
- f (25:26) That is, divorce her (compare Deut 24:1).

Chapter 26

1 A good wife — her husband is blessed;
the count of his days is doubled.
2 A brave wife gladdens her husband, and he will fill out his years in peace.
3 A good wife is a good portion;
she will be given as a portion to those who fear the Lord.
4 Be he rich or poor, his heart is good,
and his face is cheerful in every season.
5 Of three things my heart was in dread, and over the fourth I made supplication:[a] slander in a city, a mob's gathering, and false accusation — all are more grievous than death.
6 But pain of heart and mourning is a wife jealous of a wife, and a tongue's whip that shares itself with all.
7 A yoke of oxen jolted about is an evil wife;
one who takes hold of her is like one gripping a scorpion.
8 Great wrath is a drunken wife;
she will not cover her own disgrace.
9 A wife's fornication shows in the lifting of her eyes, and by her eyelids it will be known.
10 Over a headstrong daughter set a firm guard, so that, finding license, she does not make use of it.
11 Keep watch behind a brazen eye, and do not wonder if it offends against you.
12 Like a thirsty traveler she will open her mouth and drink from any water near at hand;
she will sit down facing every peg and open her quiver to every arrow.
13 A wife's grace delights her husband, and her knowing will put fat on his bones.
14 A silent wife is a gift of the Lord, and nothing can be traded for a well-schooled soul.

15 Grace upon grace is a modest wife, and nothing can weigh the worth of a self-controlled soul.
16 As the sun rising in the heights of the Lord, so is a good wife's beauty in the ordering of her house.
17 As a lamp shining on the holy lampstand,[b] so is the beauty of a face on a steady frame.
18 As golden pillars on a silver base, so are lovely legs on firm heels.
19 [Child, guard the bloom of your age in health, and do not give your strength to strangers.[c] 20 Seek out a fertile plot from all the plain, and sow your own seed there, trusting in your good birth.
21 So your offspring will survive you and grow great, confident in their good birth.
22 A hired woman is reckoned as spittle, but a married woman is a tower of death to those who use her.
23 A godless wife is given as the portion of a lawless man, but a devout wife is given to one who fears the Lord.
24 A shameless woman wears disgrace thin, but a modest daughter will be abashed even before her husband.
25 A wife without shame will be counted as a dog, but she who has modesty will stand in fear of the Lord.
26 A wife who honors her husband will appear wise to all, but one who dishonors him in her pride will be known to all as ungodly.
Blessed is the husband of a good wife,
for the count of his years will be doubled.
27 A wife who shouts and chatters is like a war trumpet sounding to rout the enemy, and every man in such a case spends his life amid the uproar of war.] 28 At two things my heart is grieved, and at the third, wrath has come over me:
a fighting man in want from poverty, and men of understanding counted as refuse, and one who turns back from righteousness to sin —

the Lord will make him ready for the sword.
29 Hardly will a trader keep himself from going wrong, and a shopkeeper will not be declared free of sin.

Notes

- a (26:5) So most witnesses; Swete's text has "my face was in dread."
- b (26:17) The lampstand of the sanctuary (Exod 25:31–40).
- c (26:19) Verses 19–27 are lacking in Swete's text and the oldest Greek witnesses; they belong to the longer Greek recension (GII) and are found also in the Syriac, as reported.

Chapter 27

1 Many have sinned for a thing of no account, and one who seeks to grow rich will turn his eye away.
2 Between the joints of stones a peg is driven fast, and between selling and buying sin is ground in.
3 If one does not hold on to the fear of the Lord with zeal, his house will be overturned in haste.
4 When a sieve is shaken, the refuse stays behind;
so a man's filth stays in his reasoning.
5 The furnace tests the potter's vessels, and a man's trial is in his reasoning.
6 Fruit lays bare the tending of a tree;
so the speech that expresses a thought lays bare a man's heart.
7 Before he reasons aloud, do not praise a man, for this is the trial of people.
8 If you pursue what is right, you will overtake it and put it on like a long robe of glory.
9 Birds will lodge with their like,
and truth will come back to those who work it.
10 A lion lies in ambush for prey;
so sin for those who work injustice.
11 The talk of a godly man is wisdom at all times, but the fool alters like the moon.

12 Among the witless, watch the season, but among the thoughtful, linger.
13 The talk of fools is a provocation, and their laughter is in the wantonness of sin.
14 The talk of a man of many oaths makes the hair stand up, and at their brawling one stops one's ears.
15 Bloodshed is the brawling of the proud, and their abuse is a grievous hearing.
16 One who uncovers secrets has destroyed trust and will never find a friend for his soul.
17 Hold a friend dear and keep faith with him;
but if you uncover his secrets, do not chase after him.
18 For as a man has destroyed his dead enemy, so you have destroyed your neighbor's friendship.
19 And as a bird you let loose from your hand, so you have let your neighbor go, and you will not hunt him down.
20 Do not chase him, for he is far off and has fled like a gazelle out of the snare.
21 For a wound there is binding up, and for abuse there is reconciliation,
but one who uncovers secrets has lost hope.
22 One who winks with the eye is crafting evil, and no one will turn him from it.
23 In your sight his mouth will be sweet, and at your words he will wonder;
but afterward he will twist his mouth and lay a stumbling block in your words.
24 Many things I have hated, but nothing to match him;
and the Lord will hate him.
25 One who throws a stone on high throws it on his own head, and a treacherous blow deals out wounds.
26 One who digs a pit will fall into it, and one who sets a trap will be caught in it.

27 One who works evil — it will roll back on him, and he will not know where it came from.
28 Mockery and abuse belong to the arrogant, and vengeance lies in ambush for him like a lion.
29 Those who gloat at the fall of the godly will be caught in a trap, and pain will eat them up before their death.
30 Wrath and anger, these too are abominations, and the sinful man will cling to them.

Chapter 28

1 One who takes vengeance will meet vengeance from the Lord, and he will keep strict count of his sins.
2 Release your neighbor from the wrong he did,
and then, when you pray, your sins will be released.
3 Does a man keep his wrath against a man and seek healing from the Lord?
4 On a man like himself he has no mercy, and he makes supplication about his own sins?
5 He, being flesh, keeps up his rage;
who will atone for his sins?
6 Remember the last things, and leave off enmity;
remember decay and death, and stand by the commandments.
7 Remember the commandments, and do not rage at your neighbor;
remember the covenant of the Most High, and overlook ignorance.
8 Keep away from strife, and you will make sins fewer;
for a hot-tempered man will kindle strife, 9 and a sinful man will throw friends into turmoil and cast accusation among those at peace.
10 As is the wood of the fire, so it will blaze;
and as is the stubbornness of strife, so it will blaze;
as a man's strength is, so will his wrath be,
and in proportion to his riches he will raise his anger.
11 A hurried quarrel kindles fire, and a hurried fight pours out blood.

12 If you blow on a spark, it will flare, and if you spit on it, it will go out;
and both come out of your mouth.
13 Curse the whisperer and the double-tongued, for they have destroyed many who were at peace.
14 The third tongue[a] has shaken many people and driven them from one nation to another;
it has pulled down strong cities and overturned the homes of the great.
15 A third tongue has driven brave wives from home and robbed them of their labors.
16 Whoever heeds it will find no rest and will not make his dwelling in quiet.
17 The stroke of a whip makes a welt,
but the stroke of a tongue will crush bones.
18 Many have fallen by the sword's mouth, yet not so many as those who have fallen by the tongue.
19 Blessed is he who is sheltered from it, who has not passed through its rage, who has not drawn its yoke and has not been bound in its fetters.
20 For its yoke is an iron yoke, and its fetters are bronze fetters.
21 Its death is an evil death, and Hades is to be preferred to it.
22 It will not get the mastery of the godly,
and in its flame they will not be burned.
23 Those who abandon the Lord will fall into it, and in them it will blaze and not be quenched;
it will be sent out on them like a lion,
and like a leopard it will maul them.
24 See, you hedge your property with thorns;
bind up your silver and your gold.

25 So make a balance and a weight for your words, and make a door and a bar for your mouth.
26 Take care not to slip by it, or you will fall before one lying in ambush.

Notes

- a (28:14) A Hebrew idiom for slander: the tongue of a third party that comes between two.

Chapter 29

1 One who acts mercifully will lend to his neighbor, and one who props him up with his hand keeps the commandments.
2 Lend to your neighbor in the season of his need,
and pay your neighbor back again at the proper season.
3 Make your word firm and keep faith with him, and at every season you will find what you need.
4 Many have counted a loan as a windfall and made trouble for those who stood by them.
5 Until he receives, he will kiss a man's hands, and he will lower his voice over his neighbor's money;
but at the time for repayment he will drag out the time and pay back words of indifference and lay the blame on the season.
6 If he can pay, the lender will scarcely get half and will count it a windfall;
if not, he has been robbed of his money and has gained an enemy for nothing; curses and abuse are the repayment he gets,
and instead of glory, dishonor.
7 Many, then, have refused to lend, not out of wickedness;
they were afraid of being robbed for nothing.
8 Yet with a man in low estate be patient, and do not make him wait on your alms.
9 For the commandment's sake take the part of a poor man, and in his need do not send him away empty.

10 Lose silver for a brother and a friend, and do not let it rust under a stone to be lost.
11 Store up your treasure according to the commandments of the Most High, and it will benefit you more than gold.
12 Shut almsgiving up in your storehouses, and it will rescue you from every evil; 13 more than a stout shield and a heavy spear, it will fight for you in the face of the enemy.
14 A good man will stand surety for his neighbor, but one who has lost his shame will abandon him.
15 Do not forget the favors of your guarantor, for he gave his soul for you.
16 A sinner will squander the good things of his guarantor, 17 and one ungrateful at heart will abandon his rescuer.
18 Pledging security for others has ruined many who prospered and tossed them about like a wave at sea;
it has driven powerful men out of their homes,
and they have wandered among foreign peoples.
19 A sinner who falls into suretyship and goes after business deals will fall into lawsuits.
20 Take your neighbor's part as far as your strength allows,
and look to yourself, so that you do not fall.
21 The basic necessities of life are water and bread, clothing, and a house to shelter one from shame.
22 Better a poor man's life under a shelter of beams than splendid fare in other people's houses.
23 With little or with much, be well content.
24 A wretched life it is to go from house to house, and where you are a sojourner you will not open your mouth.
25 You will play host and pour drink to no thanks, and on top of this you will hear bitter things: 26 "Come here, sojourner, set the table, and if you have anything at hand, feed me."

27 "Get out, sojourner, before one given glory;
my brother has come to lodge with me; I need the house." 28 These things are hard on a man of understanding:
reproach over lodging and the scorn of the creditor.

Chapter 30

1 One who loves his son will keep the whip on him, so that he may be glad over him at the last.
2 One who disciplines his son will have joy of him and will boast of him among his acquaintances.
3 One who teaches his son will rouse his enemy's jealousy and will exult over him before his friends.
4 His father has come to his end, and it is as though he had not died, for he has left behind one like himself.
5 In his life he saw and was glad,
and in his end he was not grieved.
6 He has left behind an avenger against his enemies and one to repay favors to his friends.
7 One who pampers his son will be binding up his wounds, and at every cry his insides will churn.
8 An unbroken horse turns out hard,
and a son let loose turns out headlong.
9 Coddle a child, and he will make you dread him;
play with him, and he will grieve you.
10 Do not laugh along with him, so that you do not ache along with him and grind your teeth at the last.
11 Do not give him authority in his youth.[a] 12 Bend his neck in youth and bruise his ribs while he is a child, so that he does not grow hard and disobey you.
13 Discipline your son and work at him, so that you do not stumble over his indecency.
14 Better a poor man, healthy and strong in constitution, than a rich man whipped in his body.

15 Health and sound condition are better than all gold, and a robust body than riches beyond count.
16 No riches are better than a healthy body, and no joy is greater than a joyful heart.
17 Better death than a bitter life, or rest to the age than lingering sickness.
18 Good things poured over a closed mouth are like portions of food laid on a grave.
19 What good is an offering to an idol?
For it will neither eat nor smell.
So is the one whom the Lord is pursuing:
20 with his eyes he looks on, and he moans, as a eunuch moans who holds a virgin in his arms.
21 Do not give your soul over to grief, and do not afflict yourself by your own counsel.
22 Gladness of heart is the life of a man, and a man's exultation is length of days.
23 Coax your soul and comfort your heart, and drive grief far away from you;
for grief has destroyed many,
and there is no profit in it.
24 Jealousy and rage shorten days,
and worry brings old age before its season.
25 A bright and good heart at table will take care over its food.[b]

Notes

- a (30:11) GII adds: "and do not overlook his follies." In verse 12 the first line also comes from GII.
- b (30:25) At this point the Greek manuscripts have suffered a transposition: in all of them, 30:25–33:13a (NRSV numbering) stands after 33:13b–36:16a. The Hebrew and the Latin preserve the original order, which is followed here, as in most modern versions. Swete prints the Greek in the transposed order; his chapter and verse numbers for this section therefore differ.

Chapter 31

1 Wakefulness over wealth melts the flesh away, and the worry it brings drives off sleep.
2 Wakeful worry will keep slumber away, and a heavy sickness will snatch sleep off.
3 A rich man toils at heaping up money, and when he rests he is filled with his delicacies.
4 A poor man toils at the lack of a livelihood, and when he rests he becomes needy.
5 One who loves gold will not be counted righteous, and one who pursues gain will be filled with it.[a] 6 Many have been handed over to ruin for the sake of gold, and their destruction stood in front of their face.
7 It is a timber to trip over for those who pour out offerings to it, and every witless man will be caught by it.
8 Blessed is the rich man who has been found blameless, who has not gone running after gold.
9 Who is he, that we may call him blessed?
For he has done wonders among his people.
10 Who has been put to the proof by it and found complete?
Let it be his boast.
Who could have transgressed, and did not transgress,
and could have done evil, and did not do it?
11 His good things will be made firm, and the assembly will tell over his almsgiving.
12 Are you seated at a great table?
Do not open your gullet over it, and do not say, "What plenty is on it!"
13 Remember that an evil eye is a wicked thing.[b]
What has been created more wicked than an eye?
That is why it sheds tears at every turn.
14 Wherever he looks, do not stretch out your hand, and do not jostle him in the dish.

15 Judge your neighbor's feelings from your own, and think over every matter.
16 Eat, as a human being should, what is set before you,
and do not gobble, or you will be detested.
17 For manners' sake be the first to leave off, and do not be greedy past filling, lest you cause offense.
18 And if you sit in the midst of many,
do not reach out your hand before they do.
19 How enough for a well-schooled man is a little!
And on his bed he does not gasp for breath.
20 Healthy sleep comes with a moderate stomach;
he rises early, and his soul is his own.
The pain of wakefulness and of vomiting and of griping in the bowels is with the insatiable man.
21 And if you have been pressed into eating too much, rise up, go out in the middle, and you will have rest.[c] 22 Hear me, child, and do not make light of me, and in the end you will find out my words;
in all your works be brisk,
and no sickness will come near you.
23 One who is lavish with bread, lips will bless,
and the testimony to his goodness is to be trusted.
24 One who is mean with bread, the city will grumble at,
and the testimony to his meanness is exact.
25 Do not play the hero over wine, for wine has destroyed many.
26 A furnace proves the tempering of steel by dipping;
so wine proves hearts in the quarreling of the arrogant.
27 Wine is like life to human beings if you drink it in its measure.
What life is there for one who goes without wine?
It has been created for gladness to human beings.
28 Gladness of heart and good cheer of soul is wine drunk in its season and to sufficiency.

29 Bitterness of soul is wine drunk to excess, with provocation and stumbling.
30 Drunkenness swells a fool's rage to his stumbling, cutting down strength and adding wounds.
31 At a banquet of wine do not reprove your neighbor, and do not treat him with contempt in his merriment;
speak no word of reproach to him,
and do not press him with demands.

Notes

- a (31:5) The Greek diaphora means both "gain, profit" and "ruin"; the wordplay continues in verse 6.
- b (31:13) An "evil eye" is a greedy or grudging eye.
- c (31:21) The Greek is uncertain; some witnesses read "vomit" (a sense attested in the Hebrew, as reported).

Chapter 32

1 Have they made you master of the feast? Do not be lifted up;
be among them as one of them;
take care of them, and then sit down.
2 And when you have done all your duty, recline, so that you may be glad on their account and receive a garland for your good order.
3 Speak, elder, for it is fitting for you,
but with exact knowledge,
and do not get in the way of the music.
4 Where there is listening, do not pour out chatter, and do not show yourself wise out of season.
5 A seal of carnelian in a setting of gold — such is a concert of music at a banquet of wine.
6 A seal of emerald in a mounting of gold — such is the melody of music over pleasant wine.
7 Speak, young man, if there is need of you, barely twice, if you are asked.
8 Sum up your speech, much in few words;
be like one who knows and yet holds his peace.

9 Among the great do not make yourself their equal, and where another is speaking, do not prattle much.
10 Lightning hurries ahead of thunder, and favor goes ahead of a modest man.
11 When the hour comes, get up and do not be the last;
run off home and do not dawdle.
12 There take your amusement and carry out your intentions, yet do not sin with a proud word.
13 And for these things bless the One who made you and who makes you drunk with his good things.
14 Whoever fears the Lord will accept correction, and those who seek him early will win his favor.
15 Whoever searches the law will be satisfied by it, but the hypocrite will trip over it.
16 Those who fear the Lord will find judgment, and they will kindle righteous acts like a light.
17 A sinful man turns reproof aside and finds an interpretation to suit his will.
18 A man of counsel will not overlook a thought;
an alien and proud man does not shrink in fear.[a] 19 Do nothing without counsel, and when you have acted, do not repent of it.
20 Do not go on a road of conflict, and do not trip yourself on stony ground.
21 Do not be confident on a road without obstacles, 22 and from your own children be on your guard.[b] 23 In every work keep faith with your own soul, for this too is the keeping of commandments.
24 One who keeps faith with the law pays heed to commandments, and one who trusts in the Lord will suffer no loss.

Notes

- a (32:18) GII and some witnesses add "even after he has acted without counsel." The Hebrew of this verse, as reported, differs considerably.
- b (32:22) The Hebrew, as reported, reads "and watch your paths."

Chapter 33

1 No evil will meet one who fears the Lord, but in trial he will rescue him again and again.
2 A wise man will not hate the law, but one who is a hypocrite about it is like a boat in a squall.
3 A person of understanding will trust in the law, and the law is trustworthy to him as an inquiry of the oracle.[a] 4 Get ready what you will say, and so you will be heard; bind up your learning, and then answer.
5 A fool's insides are a cartwheel, and his reasoning is like a spinning axle.
6 A stallion for breeding is like a friend who mocks:
he neighs under everyone who sits on him.
7 Why is one day set above another, when all the light of each day in the year comes from the sun?
8 By the Lord's knowledge they were set apart, and he varied the seasons and the feasts.
9 Some of them he lifted high and made holy,
and some of them he placed among the count of days.
10 And all human beings are from the ground, and Adam was created out of earth.
11 In the fullness of his knowledge the Lord set them apart and made their ways different.
12 Some he blessed and raised to high places, some he made holy and drew close to himself;
some he cursed and humbled,
and he drove them out of their positions.
13 As the potter's clay is in his hand — all its ways are as he pleases — so human beings are in the hand of the One who made them, to render to them as he judges.[b] 14 Opposite evil stands the good, and opposite death, life;
so opposite the godly stands the sinner.

15 So consider all the works of the Most High:
they come in pairs, the one set against the other.
16 And I, last of all, kept watch, like one who gleans behind the grape-gatherers; 17 by the blessing of the Lord I got ahead, and like a grape-gatherer I filled my winepress.
18 Take note that I have not toiled for myself alone, but for all who seek discipline.
19 Hear me, you great ones of the people, and you leaders of the assembly, give ear.
20 To son and wife, to brother and friend, do not give power over you while you live;
and do not give your goods to another, so that you do not change your mind and beg for them.
21 While you still live and there is breath in you, do not trade yourself away to any flesh.
22 For it is better that your children ask of you than that you look to your sons' hands.
23 In all your works keep the upper hand;
do not put a blemish on your glory.
24 On the day you finish the days of your life, and in the season of your death, hand out your inheritance.
25 For a donkey, fodder and a rod and burdens;
for a household slave, bread and correction and labor.
26 Put your servant to work, and you will find rest;
let his hands go slack, and he will look for freedom.
27 Yoke and strap will bend the neck, and for a wicked household slave, the rack and tortures.
28 Send him to work, so that he does not sit idle, 29 for idleness has taught much evil.
30 Set him to the works that befit him, and if he does not obey, make his fetters heavy.
But do not go beyond measure with any flesh, and do nothing without judgment.

31 If you have a household slave, let him be as yourself, for with blood you acquired him.[c]
If you have a household slave, treat him as a brother, for you will need him as you need your own soul.
32 If you do him harm and he gets up and runs away, 33 on what road will you look for him?

Notes

- a (33:3) Literally "as the asking of Delos," i.e., an oracle; some read "the Urim" (Exod 28:30).
- b (33:13) Here, in the order of the Greek manuscripts, the long section ending at 36:16a is followed by the section beginning at 30:25; see the note at 30:25. The Hebrew order is followed here.
- c (33:31) "With blood" probably means "at great cost"; some take it as "of your own flesh and blood."

Chapter 34

1 Empty and false are the hopes of a man without understanding, and dreams give wings to fools.
2 Like one grabbing at a shadow and chasing after wind is one who holds on to dreams.
3 This set against that is the sight of dreams, the likeness of a face facing a face.[a] 4 From something unclean, what will be cleansed?
And from something false, what will turn out true?
5 Divinings and omens and dreams are empty, and the heart fancies things as a woman in labor does.
6 If they are not dispatched from the Most High in a visitation, do not set your heart on them.
7 For dreams have led many astray, and those who hoped in them have fallen.
8 Without lying the law will be fulfilled, and wisdom in a faithful mouth is fulfillment.
9 A man who has wandered abroad knows many things, and one of wide experience will tell out understanding.
10 One who has not been tested knows few things, 11 but one who has wandered will increase his cleverness.

12 Many things I saw in my wanderings, and more than my words is my understanding.
13 Many times I was in danger even of death, and I was kept safe because of these things.
14 The spirit of those who fear the Lord will live, 15 because they place their hope in the one who saves them.
16 One who fears the Lord will not shrink in dread and will not play the coward, for he is his hope.
17 The soul of one who fears the Lord — how blessed it is!
18 To whom does he hold fast? And who is his prop?
19 The Lord's eyes are on those who love him;
he is a powerful protection and a firm support, a shelter from the burning wind and a shade at noon,
guarding against a stumble and helping when one falls.
20 He lifts up the soul and makes the eyes shine;
he gives healing, life, and blessing.
21 One who sacrifices from what was got by wrong — his offering is a mockery, 22 and the mockeries of the lawless are not welcome.
23 The Most High takes no pleasure in the offerings of the ungodly, nor does he atone for sins by a multitude of sacrifices.
24 One who brings a sacrifice out of the goods of the poor is like one who slaughters a son before his father's eyes.
25 Bread of the needy is the life of the poor;
one who robs them of it is a man of blood.
26 One who takes away his neighbor's living murders him, 27 and one who robs a hired man of his wage pours out blood.
28 One man raises a wall and another pulls it down:
what profit do the two have except their labor?
29 One prays and another curses:
whose voice will the Master hear?
30 Someone washes after touching a corpse, then touches it again — what good has his washing done him?[b]

31 Just so a man fasting over his sins who turns round and does them over again:
who will listen when he prays?
What did his self-abasement profit him?

Notes

- a (34:3) That is, a dream is a mere reflection, as in a mirror.
- b (34:30) On the purification after contact with a corpse, see Num 19:11–22.

Chapter 35

1 One who keeps the law multiplies offerings;
2 one who pays heed to the commandments sacrifices a peace offering.
3 One who repays a favor offers fine flour,
4 and one who does almsgiving sacrifices a praise offering.
5 What is pleasing to the Lord is to turn away from wickedness, and atonement is to turn away from injustice.
6 Do not appear in the Lord's presence empty-handed,[a] 7 for all these things are for the commandment's sake.
8 The offering of a righteous man makes the altar rich, and its sweet smell is before the Most High.
9 The sacrifice of a righteous man is acceptable, and the memorial portion of it will not be forgotten.
10 With a good eye give the Lord glory, and do not make small the first fruits of your hands.
11 In every gift let your face shine, and in gladness make your tithe holy.
12 Give to the Most High as he has given,
with a good eye, as your hand has found.
13 For the Lord is one who repays, and he will repay you sevenfold.
14 Do not try to bribe him, for he will not accept it, 15 and do not lean on an unrighteous sacrifice;
for the Lord is judge,
and with him there is no favor to persons.
16 He will not take a person's part against a poor man, and he will hear the prayer of one who has been wronged.

17 He will never overlook the orphan's supplication, or the widow when she pours out her story.
18 Do not a widow's tears run down her cheek, 19 and her outcry rise against the one who made them fall?
20 One who serves with good will will be accepted, and his petition will reach to the clouds.
21 The prayer of a humble man goes right through the clouds, and until it draws near he will not be comforted;
he will not leave off until the Most High looks upon him 22 and gives judgment for the righteous and carries out judgment.
And the Lord will not be slow, nor will he be patient with them, until he has crushed the loins of the merciless 23 and paid back vengeance to the nations, until he has taken away the crowd of the insolent and broken to pieces the scepters of the unrighteous; 24 until he has paid back a man according to his doings, and the works of human beings according to their designs; 25 until he has judged the cause of his people and gladdened them with his mercy.
26 Mercy in the season of affliction is a lovely thing, like clouds of rain in the season of drought.

Notes

- a (35:6) Exod 23:15; Deut 16:16.

Chapter 36

A Prayer for Israel

1 Have mercy on us, Master, God of all things, and look on us, 2 and cast the fear of you on all the nations.
3 Raise your hand against foreign nations, and let them witness your power.
4 As in their sight you were shown holy in us, so in our sight be shown great in them;
5 and let them know you, just as we too have known that there is no God but you, Lord.

6 Make signs new and wonders different;
7 glorify your hand and your right arm.
8 Rouse your fury and pour out your wrath;
9 take away the adversary and wipe out the enemy.
10 Hurry on the season and remember the oath, and let them tell out your mighty works.
11 Let the one who escapes be eaten up in the wrath of fire, and those who mistreat your people find destruction.
12 Crush the heads of the enemy's rulers, who declare, "No one is above us." 13 Gather all the tribes of Jacob,[a]
14 [Not used in this numbering; see the note at verse 13.]
15 [Not used in this numbering; see the note at verse 13.]
16 and give them their inheritance as from the beginning.
17 Have mercy, Lord, on a people called by your name, and on Israel, whom you made like a firstborn.[b] 18 Have compassion on the city of your holiness, Jerusalem, the place of your rest.
19 Fill Zion with the telling of your wonders,[c] and your people with your glory.
20 Give testimony to those you created at the beginning, and raise up the prophecies spoken in your name.
21 Pay their wages to those who wait on you, and let your prophets prove to be faithful.
22 Listen, Lord, to the prayer of those who plead with you, in keeping with Aaron's blessing for your people,[d] so that everyone on earth may know that you are the Lord, the eternal God.
23 The belly will eat any food, yet one food is better than another.
24 As the throat tries out kinds of venison, so a discerning heart tries out false words.
25 A twisted heart will bring grief, and a man of experience will pay him back.

26 A woman will receive any male, yet one daughter is better than another.
27 A wife's beauty brightens the face and outdoes every desire of a man.
28 If on her tongue there is mercy and gentleness, her husband is not like other sons of men.
29 One who acquires a wife makes a start on possessions, a help fitting for him and a pillar of rest.[e] 30 Where no hedge is, the property is pillaged, and a man without a wife roams about and groans.
31 For who will trust a nimble robber darting from city to city?
So too a man who has no nest and lodges wherever evening overtakes him.

Notes

- a (36:13) The numbering here follows NRSV, which has no verses 14–15 in this chapter (they are kept below as empty placeholders so that the following verse numbers match NRSV); KJV and other editions number this prayer 36:1–17. In the Greek manuscripts the transposed section (see the notes at 30:25 and 33:13) ends after verse 13, and the next words resume after the displaced block.
- b (36:17) Exod 4:22.
- c (36:19) The Greek is uncertain; some witnesses read "Fill Zion with your praise."
- d (36:22) Num 6:22–27.
- e (36:29) Gen 2:18, 20.

Chapter 37

1 Every friend will say, "I too am your friend"; but there is a friend who is a friend in name only.
2 Is it not a deadly grief
when a companion and friend becomes an enemy?
3 O wicked imagining, from where did you roll in to cover the dry land with treachery?
4 A companion takes pleasure in a friend's good cheer, but in a season of affliction he will be against him.
5 A companion toils alongside a friend for the belly's sake, and in the face of battle he will take up the shield.

6 Do not forget a friend in your soul,
and do not be unmindful of him among your riches.
7 Every counselor praises counsel, but there is one who counsels toward himself.
8 Keep your soul guarded from a counselor, and know beforehand what his need is — for he will counsel for himself — so that he does not cast a lot over you 9 and say to you, "Your road is good," and then stand at a distance to see what happens to you.
10 Do not take counsel with one who eyes you with suspicion, and hide your counsel from those who envy you.
11 Do not ask a woman for advice about her rival, or a coward for counsel on war, or a merchant about trade, or a buyer about a sale, or an envious man about thankfulness, or a cruel man about kindness, or a lazy man about any kind of work, or a seasonal worker about finishing the year's job, or an idle servant about a heavy workload — give no heed to any of these in a matter of counsel.
12 Instead, keep company at all times with a godly man who, you know, keeps the commandments, whose heart matches your own,
and who will feel your pain if you fall.
13 And make the counsel of your heart stand firm, for nothing is more trustworthy to you than it.
14 For a man's soul sometimes brings him word better than seven lookouts sitting on high on a watchtower.
15 And with all these, make your prayer to the Most High that he may make your way straight in truth.
16 The beginning of every work is reason, and before every action is counsel.
17 As the track of the heart's turning,

18 four portions spring up:
good and evil, life and death, and the tongue is master over them always.
19 There is a man who is clever, the teacher of many,
and yet to his own soul he is of no use.
20 There is a clever speaker who is hated;
he will end up stripped of every food, 21 for grace was not given him from the Lord, because he is stripped of all wisdom.
22 There is one who is wise for his own soul, and the fruits of his understanding are trustworthy on his lips.
23 A wise man will teach his own people, and the fruits of his understanding are trustworthy.
24 A wise man will be filled with blessing, and all who see him will call him blessed.
25 The life of a man is days that can be numbered, but the days of Israel are past numbering.
26 The wise man will inherit trust among his people, and his name will live to the age.
27 Child, in your life put your soul to the test, and see what is evil for it, and do not give it that.
28 For not everything is profitable for everyone, and not every soul takes pleasure in everything.
29 Do not be insatiable for every delicacy, and do not pour yourself out over foods; 30 for with much food there will be sickness, and excess will come near to colic.
31 Through excess many have died, but the one who takes heed will add to his life.

Chapter 38

1 Give the physician the honors owed him, against the times you need him, for the Lord created him too.

2 For healing comes from the Most High,
and from the king he will receive a gift.
3 The physician's knowledge will lift up his head, and in the sight of great men he will be admired.
4 The Lord created remedies out of the earth, and a man of good sense will not spurn them.
5 Was not water made sweet by a piece of wood,[a] so that his strength might be known?
6 And he gave human beings knowledge, so that he might be glorified in his marvels.
7 By them he heals and takes away pain;
8 the perfumer makes a compound out of them.
His works will never be brought to an end, and from him well-being is over the face of the earth.
9 Child, in your sickness do not be careless, but pray to the Lord, and he will heal you.
10 Put away going astray and set your hands straight, and cleanse your heart of every sin.
11 Give a sweet-smelling offering and a memorial portion of fine flour,[b] and make your offering rich, as one who will soon be no more.
12 After that make room for the healer — the Lord made him as well — and let him not go off from you, since you have need of him.
13 There is a season when success lies in their hands;
14 for they too will pray to the Lord that he may prosper them in giving relief and in healing, for the sake of preserving life.
15 One who sins in the sight of his Maker — let him fall into the physician's hands.[c] 16 Child, let your tears flow over the dead, and like one suffering terribly, start the lament;
shroud his body as is his due,
and do not neglect his burial.
17 Make the weeping bitter and the beating of the breast hot, and keep up the mourning as he deserves,

a day or two, to avoid talk,
and then take comfort on account of grief.
18 For from grief comes death, and grief of heart bends one's strength.
19 In misfortune grief also stays, and the life of the poor man is a curse to the heart.[d] 20 Do not hand your heart over to grief;
send it away, remembering the end.
21 Do not forget, for there is no coming back;
you will not benefit him, and you will harm yourself.
22 Remember my sentence, for yours will be the same:
"For me yesterday, and for you today." 23 When the dead man is at rest, let his memory rest, and take comfort over him when his spirit goes out.
24 The wisdom of a scribe comes in the opportunity of leisure, and one who has little business will become wise.
25 How will he become wise who grips the plow and whose boast is in the shaft of a goad, who drives oxen and is taken up with their tasks,
and whose talk is about the offspring of bulls?
26 He gives his heart to turning furrows, and his wakefulness to fodder for heifers.
27 So it is with every craftsman and master builder who passes the night as he does the day;
those who cut the engravings of seals, whose patience is in varying the pattern;
he will give his heart to making the likeness exact,
and his wakefulness to finishing the work.
28 So the smith, sitting beside the anvil and studying the iron he works;
the breath of the fire will melt his flesh,
and in the heat of the furnace he wrestles;
the noise of the hammer deafens his ear,[e]
and his eyes are on the pattern of the vessel;

he will give his heart to finishing his works,
and his wakefulness to adorning them to completion.
29 So the potter, sitting at his work and spinning the wheel with his feet, who is always set down in anxious care over his work,
and all his output is by count; 30 with his arm he will shape the clay, and before his feet he will bend its stiffness;
he will give his heart to completing the glaze,
and his wakefulness to cleaning out the kiln.
31 All these put their trust in their hands, and each one is wise in his own work.
32 Without them no city will be lived in,
and people will not sojourn or walk about there.
33 Yet they will not be sought out for the council of the people, and in the assembly they will not rise high;
they will not sit on the judge's seat,
and they will not understand the covenant of judgment; 34 they will not bring discipline and judgment to light, and among the parables they will not be found.
Yet they keep the fabric of the age firm, and their prayer is in the work of their craft.
How different the one who gives his soul and ponders the law of the Most High!

Notes

- a (38:5) Exod 15:23–25.
- b (38:11) Lev 2:1–2. The last phrase is obscure in the Greek.
- c (38:15) The Hebrew, as reported, reads "will behave proudly before the physician."
- d (38:19) The Greek of this verse is obscure.
- e (38:28) Literally "renews his ear"; the Greek is uncertain.

Chapter 39

1 He will seek out the wisdom of all the ancients and be taken up with prophecies; 2 he will keep the narratives of men of renown and will go into the twists of parables;

3 he will seek out the hidden things of proverbs and will busy himself with the riddles of parables.
4 He will serve in the midst of great men and appear before a ruler;
he will travel through the land of foreign nations, for he has put good and evil among human beings to the test.
5 He will give his heart to rising early to the Lord who made him, and before the Most High he will make his petition;
he will open his mouth in prayer and make supplication about his sins.
6 If the great Lord so wills, he will be filled with a spirit of understanding;
he will pour out sayings of his wisdom like rain and in prayer give thanks to the Lord.
7 He will set straight his counsel and knowledge and ponder the Lord's hidden things.
8 He will bring to light the discipline of his teaching and will boast in the law of the Lord's covenant.
9 Many will praise his understanding, and to the age it will not be wiped out;
his memory will not depart,
and his name will live from generation to generation.
10 His wisdom the nations will recount, and his praise the congregation will announce.
11 If he lives on, his name will be greater than a thousand, and if he rests in death, that is enough for him.
12 Still more I will tell, having thought it through, for I am filled up like the moon at the full.
13 Listen to me, holy children, and bud like a rose growing beside a stream in the field; 14 like frankincense give off a sweet smell, and blossom like a lily;
spread your fragrance and sing a song of praise;
bless the Lord for all his works.

15 Give his name majesty and acknowledge him with his praise, with songs of the lips and with harps, and say this in your acknowledgment: 16 "The works of the Lord are all very good,
and every command of his will happen in its season.
17 No one may say, 'What is this? Why is this?'
for all things will be sought out in their season.
At his word the water stood like a heap,[a] and at the utterance of his mouth, the reservoirs of waters.
18 At his command all his good pleasure is done, and there is no one who will lessen his saving work.
19 The works of all flesh are before him, and nothing can be hidden from his eyes.
20 From age to age he looks on,
and nothing is a marvel before him.
21 No one may say, 'What is this? Why is this?'
for all things have been created for their uses.
22 His blessing has covered the dry land like a river and soaked it like a flood.
23 Even so the nations will inherit his wrath, as he turned waters into salt.[b] 24 His ways are level for the holy;
even so they are stumbling blocks for the lawless.
25 Good things were created for the good from the beginning, even so evil things for sinners.
26 The most basic needs of human life are water, fire, iron, and salt, wheat flour of the finest quality, milk, and honey, the juice of the grape, oil, and clothing.
27 All these are for good to the godly;[c] even so for sinners they will be turned to evil.
28 Some winds were created for punishment;
in their anger they have strengthened their lashes.

At the end of time they will unleash their force and quiet the anger of the one who made them.
29 Fire and hail and famine and death,
all these have been created for vengeance; 30 the teeth of wild beasts, and scorpions and vipers, and a sword avenging the ungodly to their destruction.
31 They will be glad at his command, and they will be made ready on earth for their uses, and in their seasons they will not go beyond his word." 32 So from the beginning I was made firm, and I thought it over and left it in writing: 33 "Good, every one, are the Lord's doings, and each need in its hour he will furnish.
34 And no one may say, 'This is worse than that,'
for all things will prove worthy in their season." 35 And now with all your heart and mouth sing a song of praise and bless the name of the Lord.

Notes

- a (39:17) Exod 15:8; Ps 33:7.
- b (39:23) Perhaps an allusion to the Dead Sea and the overthrow of Sodom (Gen 19).
- c (39:27) The Masada Hebrew scroll (MasSir), copied in the first century BC, preserves portions of the text from 39:27 to 44:17, as reported. It agrees closely with Cairo Geniza manuscript B, showing that the medieval Hebrew manuscripts largely preserve the ancient Hebrew text.

Chapter 40

1 Great preoccupation has been created for every human being,
and a heavy yoke is on the sons of Adam, from the day of their coming out of their mother's womb until the day of their return to the mother of all.[a] 2 Their reasonings and the fear of their heart:
the thought of what they wait for, the day of their end.
3 From the one who sits upon a throne in glory to the one brought low in earth and ashes, 4 from the man who wears purple and a crown down to the one dressed in coarse linen —

5 there is rage and jealousy and turmoil and unsteadiness and fear of death and wrath and strife;
and in the season of rest upon the bed night's sleep alters his knowledge.
6 A little, as good as nothing, he spends in rest, and after that, in sleep, as by day on watch, he is thrown into turmoil by the vision of his heart,
like one who has escaped from the face of battle.
7 In the moment of his need he wakes and marvels that his fear was nothing.
8 With all flesh, from human being to beast, and upon sinners sevenfold more, 9 come death and blood and strife and sword, calamities, famine and crushing and the scourge.
10 For the lawless all these were created, and on their account the flood came.
11 Whatever is out of the ground goes back to the ground, and what is out of the waters goes back into the sea.
12 Every gift that bribes, every wrong, will be blotted out, while faithfulness stands through the age.
13 The goods of the unrighteous will dry up like a river and will die away like a great thunderclap in a rain.
14 When he opens his hands, he will be glad;[b] even so transgressors will come to utter failure.
15 The offspring of the ungodly will not multiply branches, and unclean roots are on the face of sheer rock.
16 The sedge on every water and riverbank will be pulled up before any grass.
17 Kindness is like a garden in blessings, and almsgiving stays to the age.
18 The life of one who is self-sufficient and of one who works will be made sweet, but above them both is one who finds a treasure.

19 Children and the building of a city make a name firm, but above them both a blameless wife is counted.
20 Wine and music gladden the heart, but above them both is the love of wisdom.
21 Flute and harp make melody sweet, but above them both is a pleasant tongue.
22 Grace and beauty the eye will long for,
but above them both, the green of a sown field.
23 Friend and companion meet in season, but above them both, a wife with her husband.
24 Brothers and help are for a time of affliction, but above them both, almsgiving will rescue.
25 Gold and silver will set the foot firm, but above them both counsel is prized.
26 Money and strength will lift up the heart, but above them both is the fear of the Lord.
In the fear of the Lord there is no lack,
and there is no need to seek help with it.
27 The fear of the Lord is like a blessed garden, and it shelters a person better than any glory.
28 Child, do not live as a beggar;
it is better to die than to beg.
29 A man who looks to someone else's table — his life is not to be counted as life;
he will defile his soul with someone else's foods, but a man of understanding and discipline will be on his guard.
30 In the mouth of the shameless, begging will be sweet, but in his belly a fire will burn.

Notes

- a (40:1) That is, the earth (compare Gen 3:19).
- b (40:14) The Greek of this line is obscure.

Chapter 41

1 O death, how bitter is the remembrance of you to a man living at peace among his possessions, to a man who has no distractions and prospers in everything and still has strength to take food!

2 O death, your sentence is good to a man in need and failing in strength, in extreme old age and distracted about everything, who is contrary and has lost patience!
3 Do not dread the sentence of death;
remember those who went before you and those who come after.
4 This is the sentence from the Lord for all flesh, and why do you refuse the good pleasure of the Most High?
Whether ten or a hundred or a thousand years,
there is no reproach about life in Hades.
5 Abominable children become the children of sinners, and they frequent the dwellings of the ungodly.
6 The inheritance of sinners' children will perish, and with their offspring reproach will continue.
7 Children will lay the blame on an ungodly father, for on his account they are reproached.
8 Woe to you, ungodly men, who have forsaken the law of God Most High!
9 If you are born, you will be born for a curse, and if you die, a curse will be your portion.[a] 10 All things that are from the earth will return to the earth;
so the ungodly go from curse to destruction.
11 People mourn over their bodies, but the name of sinners, which is not good, will be wiped out.
12 Take thought for your name, for it will stay with you longer than a thousand great treasures of gold.
13 A good life has a number of days,
but a good name stays to the age.
14 Keep discipline in peace, children.
Wisdom hidden away and treasure out of sight — what profit is there in either?

15 Better a man who hides his folly
than a man who hides his wisdom.
16 Therefore feel shame as my word directs, for it is not good to keep every kind of shame,
and not everything is approved by all in good faith.
17 Be ashamed before father and mother of fornication, and before a ruler and a mighty man of a lie; 18 before a judge and a ruler of an offense, before the assembly and the people of lawlessness; 19 before a partner and a friend of injustice, and before the place where you sojourn of theft,
and before the truth of God and the covenant;
and of leaning your elbow on the bread,[b] 20 of contempt in taking and giving;
before those who greet you, of silence;
of gazing at a prostitute;
21 of turning away the face of your kinsman, of taking away a portion and a gift;
of staring at a married woman; 22 of meddling with his servant girl — do not stand over her bed;
before friends, of words of reproach — after you have given, do not reproach.

Notes

- a (41:9) The Greek of this verse is uncertain; the Hebrew, as reported, differs.
- b (41:19) That is, bad manners at table; the Hebrew, as reported, differs.

Chapter 42

1 Be ashamed of repeating a word you have heard and of laying bare secret words; and you will be truly modest and find favor in the sight of every person.
Of these things do not be ashamed, and do not show partiality and so sin:

2 of the law of the Most High and the covenant, and of judgment that acquits the ungodly;[a] 3 of reckoning with a partner and with fellow travelers, and of giving a share of the inheritance of companions; 4 of strictness with balance and with weight stones, of getting much or getting little;
5 of profit from selling to merchants, of much discipline of children, and of making the side of a wicked household slave bleed.
6 Over a wicked wife a seal is good,
and where there are many hands, lock things up.
7 Whatever you hand over, let it be by count and weight, and put all giving and receiving in writing.
8 Do not be ashamed of disciplining the senseless and the fool, or the very old man contending with the young;
and you will be truly well schooled and approved in the sight of all the living.
9 A daughter is a hidden wakefulness for a father, and worry over her drives away sleep:
in her youth, lest she pass her prime,
and when she has married, lest she be hated; 10 in her virginity, lest she be defiled and become pregnant in her father's house;
when she has a husband, lest she transgress,
and when she is married, lest she be barren.
11 Over a headstrong daughter keep a firm guard, so that she does not make you a laughingstock to your enemies, a byword in the city and the talk of the people, and shame you before the crowd.[b] 12 Do not look at anyone for beauty, and do not sit in the midst of women; 13 for from clothing comes the moth, and from a woman a woman's wickedness.
14 Better a man's wickedness than a woman who does good;
and a woman brings shame to the point of reproach.[c]

The Works of God in Creation

15 Now I will recall the works of the Lord and tell what I have seen.
The Lord's words brought his works into being.[d] 16 The sun that gives light looks down on all things, and the Lord's work is full of his glory.
17 The Lord has not given his holy ones power to tell out all his marvels, which the Lord Almighty has made firm so that the whole might stand fast in his glory.
18 He tracked out the abyss and the heart, and he saw through their cunning devices;
for the Most High knows all knowledge and looks into the sign of the age, 19 declaring what has passed and what will be,
and uncovering the tracks of hidden things.
20 No thought slips past him;
not one word is hidden from him.
21 He has set in order the majestic works of his wisdom, he who is before the age and to the age;
nothing has been added and nothing taken away,
and he had no need of any counselor.
22 How desirable are all his works, down to a spark, to look upon!
23 All these live and stay to the age,
for all their uses, and all obey him.
24 All things are in pairs, one opposite the other,
and he has made nothing that falls short.
25 One thing confirms the good of another, and who will have enough of gazing on his glory?

Notes

- a (42:2) The sense is "of giving just judgment, even if it acquits an ungodly man."
- b (42:11) The Hebrew, as reported, adds lines about her room having no lattice window or view of the entrance.

- c (42:14) This harsh saying is variously rendered; the Hebrew text, as reported, is partly damaged here.
- d (42:15) The Hebrew, as reported, adds "and his favor carried out his decree."

Chapter 43

1 The pride of the heights is the firmament in its clearness, the look of heaven in a sight of glory.
2 The sun, when it appears, makes proclamation as it goes out:
a marvelous vessel, the work of the Most High.
3 At its noon it dries up the land, and before its burning heat who will stand?
4 A man blowing a furnace works in burning heat;
three times as much the sun scorches mountains;
breathing out fiery vapors and flashing out its rays, it dims the eyes.
5 Great is the Lord who made it, and at his words it speeds on its course.
6 And the moon too, in all things in its season, is a proclaiming of times and a sign of the age.
7 From the moon comes the sign of a feast day,
a light that wanes when it is complete.
8 The month is named after it,[a] growing marvelously in its changing, a vessel of the hosts on high,
shining out in the firmament of heaven.
9 The beauty of heaven is the glory of the stars, an ornament giving light in the heights of the Lord.
10 At the words of the Holy One they stand in their ordered place, and they will not grow slack in their watches.
11 Look at the rainbow and bless the One who made it;
it is very beautiful in its brightness.
12 It circles the heaven with a ring of glory;
the hands of the Most High have stretched it out.
13 By his command he makes the snow come swiftly and speeds the lightnings of his judgment.

14 Because of this the storehouses are opened, and clouds fly out like birds.
15 In his majesty he made clouds strong, and hailstones are broken off.[b] 16 At his appearing, mountains will be shaken;
by his will the south wind will blow.
17 The voice of his thunder rebukes the earth, and so does the storm from the north and the whirlwind.
Like birds settling, he sprinkles the snow, and its coming down is like locusts alighting.
18 The eye marvels at the beauty of its whiteness, and the heart is amazed at its falling.
19 Hoarfrost he scatters over the earth as if it were salt, and as it hardens it grows into thorn-tips.
20 A chill wind blows from the north, and crystal ice hardens over the water;
upon every pooling of water it comes to rest, and the water dons it as a breastplate.
21 It will eat up the mountains and burn the wilderness and quench green growth like fire.
22 A healing for all things is a mist coming swiftly;
dew, meeting the burning heat, will bring cheer.
23 By his reasoning he calmed the abyss and planted islands in it.
24 Those who sail the sea tell of its danger, and when we hear it with our ears we marvel.
25 In it are strange and marvelous works, variety of every living thing,
the creation of sea monsters.
26 Because of him his messenger has success,[c]
and by his word all things hold together.
27 Many things we might say and not reach the end, and the sum of our words is: "He is the All."[d]

28 Where shall we find strength to glorify him?
For he is the Great One above all his works.
29 The Lord is to be feared and is exceedingly great, and marvelous is his dominion.
30 When you glorify the Lord, lift him up as far as you can,
for he will surpass even that;
and when you lift him up, gather your strength;
do not grow weary, for you will never reach the end.
31 Who has seen him and will describe him?
And who will make him great as he is?
32 Many hidden things are greater than these,
for we have seen few of his works.
33 For the Lord made all things, and to the godly he gave wisdom.

Notes

- a (43:8) In Hebrew, "month" (chodesh) and "renew" (chiddesh) are related words; the Greek mēn (month) and mēnē (moon) keep a similar play.
- b (43:15) In verses 15–17 the order of lines differs between Hebrew and Greek, and modern versions rearrange them following the Hebrew; the Greek order is kept here.
- c (43:26) Or "his journey reaches its end"; the Greek is uncertain.
- d (43:27) Greek to pan. The Hebrew, as reported, reads "He is everything" (hu' hakkol).

Chapter 44

Hymn of the Fathers

1 Let us now praise men of glory,[a] our fathers in their generations.
2 Great glory the Lord created in them,
his majesty from the age.
3 There were those who held lordship in their kingdoms and men named for their might, giving counsel by their understanding, announcing things in prophecies;

4 leaders of the people by their counsels and by their understanding of the people's learning, wise in the words of their instruction;
5 those who sought out tunes of music and set out poems in writing; 6 rich men, furnished with strength, living in peace in their dwellings — 7 all these were glorified in their generations and were a boast in their days.
8 There are some of them who have left a name behind them, so that their praises are told.
9 Others there are of whom no memorial exists;
they are gone as if they never were,
they became like ones never born,
and so did their children after them.
10 But these were men of mercy, whose righteous deeds have not been forgotten; 11 with their offspring a good inheritance will remain, their descendants within the covenants.
12 Their offspring stand within the covenants, and their children likewise, for their sake.
13 To the age their offspring will remain, and their glory will not be wiped out.
14 Their bodies were buried in peace, and their name lives to generations.
15 Peoples will tell out their wisdom, and the assembly proclaims their praise.
16 Enoch pleased the Lord and was taken across,[b] an example of repentance to generations.
17 Noah was found perfect, righteous;
in the season of wrath he became a replacement;[c] on his account a remnant was left on the earth when the flood came.

18 Covenants of the age were set with him, that all flesh should not again be wiped out by a flood.
19 Great father of a throng of nations was Abraham;
none has turned up to equal him in glory; 20 The law of the Most High he kept, and he entered into a covenant with God;
he marked the covenant in his own flesh, and when he was put to the test, he proved faithful.[d] 21 For this he made it firm to him by oath that in his seed nations should be blessed, that he would make him many as earth's dust and raise his seed on high as the stars are,
and make them heirs from sea to sea,
from the River to the ends of the land.
22 With Isaac too he set it so,
for the sake of Abraham his father.
23 He made the blessing for all peoples and the covenant rest upon the head of Jacob;
he confirmed him with blessings and gave him the land as his inheritance;
he set out its portions and divided them among the twelve tribes.
From Jacob he brought forth a man of mercy, who won the favor of everyone,

Notes

- a (44:1) So the heading in the Greek manuscripts (Paterōn hymnos); in the Hebrew, as reported, "Praise of the Fathers of Old." The hymn runs through chapter 50.
- b (44:16) Gen 5:24. The Hebrew of Geniza MS B, as reported, reads "a sign of knowledge"; the Masada scroll, as reported, lacks this verse.
- c (44:17) Gen 6:9. The Masada scroll's text breaks off at about this point, as reported.
- d (44:20) Gen 17:10–14; 22:1–18.

Chapter 45

1 beloved by God and by human beings,
Moses, whose memorial is in blessings.

2 He made him like the holy ones in glory[a] and made him great in the terrors he brought on his enemies.
3 At his word he brought the signs to an end;[b] he made him glorious before kings;
he gave him commands for his people and showed him some of his glory.
4 In his faithfulness and meekness he made him holy;[c] he chose him out of all flesh.
5 He let him hear his voice, brought him into the thick darkness,
and face to face gave him the commandments,
the law of life and knowledge, so that he could teach the covenant to Jacob and his decrees to Israel.
6 He lifted up Aaron, a holy man like him, his brother, of the tribe of Levi.
7 He set up an everlasting covenant for him and gave him the priesthood of the people; he blessed him with comeliness and girded him with a robe of glory.
8 He clothed him in the perfection of boasting and strengthened him with the vestments of might:
the linen undergarments, the long robe, and the ephod.[d] 9 And he surrounded him with pomegranates, with very many golden bells all around,
to give out a sound as he walked,
to make a sound heard in the temple as a memorial for the sons of his people; 10 with a holy robe of gold and blue and purple, an embroiderer's handiwork;
with the oracle of judgment, the signs of truth,[e] 11 with twisted scarlet thread, a craftsman's work; with precious stones cut like seals, mounted in gold, a jeweler's work,

as a reminder, engraved in writing, according to the number of Israel's tribes; 12 with a crown of gold upon the turban, an engraving of a seal of holiness,[f] a boast of honor, a work of might,
the desires of the eyes, richly adorned.
13 Before him there were never such lovely things;
to the age no outsider has put them on,
but only his sons
and his descendants perpetually.
14 His sacrifices shall be wholly burned, twice every day continually.[g] 15 Moses filled his hands[h] and anointed him with holy oil;
it became for him an everlasting covenant,
and for his offspring in the days of heaven, to minister to the Lord and also to act as priest and to bless his people in his name.
16 He chose him out of all the living to bring an offering to the Lord, incense and a sweet smell as a memorial portion,
to make atonement for your people.
17 He gave him, in his commandments, authority in covenants of judgments, to teach Jacob the testimonies and to give light to Israel in his law.
18 Outsiders conspired against him and envied him in the wilderness, the men around Dathan and Abiram and the band of Korah, in fury and wrath.[i] 19 The Lord saw it and was not pleased, and they were brought to an end in the fury of his wrath;
he worked wonders against them,
to consume them in the flame of his fire.

20 And he added glory to Aaron and gave him an inheritance;
he apportioned to him the first fruits of the firstborn;
bread first of all he prepared in abundance; 21 for they eat the sacrifices of the Lord, which he gave to him and to his offspring.
22 Yet in the land of the people he will have no inheritance, and there is no portion for him among the people;
for he himself is your portion and inheritance.[j] 23 Phinehas son of Eleazar is the third in glory,[k] for his zeal in the fear of the Lord, and for standing firm when the people turned away, in the goodness of his soul's eagerness;
and he made atonement for Israel.
24 Therefore a covenant of peace was set up for him, to be leader of the sanctuary and of his people, that to him and to his offspring should belong the greatness of the priesthood to the ages.
25 A covenant was also made with David,
the son of Jesse, from the tribe of Judah:
the king's inheritance goes from son to son only;
so Aaron's inheritance belongs to his descendants.[l] 26 May he give you wisdom in your heart to judge his people in righteousness, so that their good things may not vanish,
and their glory for their generations.

Notes

- a (45:2) "The holy ones" are the angels; the Hebrew, as reported, reads "like God" (Exod 7:1).
- b (45:3) Exod 8:12–13, 31; 33:18–23.
- c (45:4) Num 12:3, 7.
- d (45:8) Exod 28:4–43.
- e (45:10) That is, the Urim and Thummim (Exod 28:30), which the Greek renders "manifestations and truth."
- f (45:12) The plate inscribed "Holy to the Lord" (Exod 28:36).
- g (45:14) Lev 6:19–23; Exod 29:38–42.

- h (45:15) A Hebrew idiom for ordaining a priest (Lev 8).
- i (45:18) Num 16.
- j (45:22) Num 18:20. The Greek shifts to address Aaron directly.
- k (45:23) Num 25:1–13.
- l (45:25) The Greek of this verse is obscure; the Hebrew, as reported, differs and adds a call to "bless the Lord, the Good, who crowned you with glory."

Chapter 46

1 Mighty in war was Joshua[a] son of Nun, the successor of Moses in prophecies, who became, as his name means,
great for the saving of God's chosen, to take vengeance on enemies who rose up,
so that he might give Israel its inheritance.
2 How glorified he was when he lifted his hands and stretched out the sword against cities![b] 3 Who stood so firm before him?
For he waged the wars of the Lord.
4 Was it not by his hand that the sun stood back, so that a single day was made two?[c] 5 He called on the Most High, the Mighty One, when enemies pressed on him from every side, and the great Lord heard him with hailstones of overwhelming power.
6 He dashed down upon the nation in war, and on the descent he destroyed those who stood against him, so that the nations might know his full armor, that his war was before the Lord;
for he followed after the Mighty One.
7 And in the days of Moses he did a deed of mercy, he and Caleb son of Jephunneh:
they stood against the assembly,
held the people back from sin,
and stopped the murmuring of wickedness.[d] 8 Only these two were saved out of six hundred thousand foot soldiers, to be brought into their inheritance,

into a land flowing with milk and honey.
9 And the Lord gave Caleb strength, and it stayed with him until old age, so that he went up onto the heights of the land, and his offspring held it as an inheritance,[e] 10 so that all the Israelites might see that following the Lord is good.
11 The judges, each one named, whose hearts never turned to prostitution and who never abandoned the Lord — may their memory be blessed!
12 May their bones sprout again from their place, and may their name be renewed in the sons of those who were glorified.
13 Beloved by his Lord, Samuel, the prophet of the Lord, established a kingdom and anointed rulers over his people.
14 He judged the assembly by the Lord's law, and the Lord kept watch over Jacob.
15 By his faithfulness he was proved an exact prophet, and by his words he was known to be a trustworthy seer.
16 He called on the Lord, the Mighty One, when enemies were pressing him on every side,
and he offered a nursing lamb.[f] 17 And the Lord thundered from heaven, and with a great roar he made his voice heard; 18 and he wiped out the leaders of the Tyrians[g]
and all the rulers of the Philistines.
19 And before the time of his sleep of the age he bore witness before the Lord and his anointed:
"Money, or even sandals, from any flesh I have not taken";
and no one accused him.[h] 20 And after his falling asleep he still prophesied;
he made known to the king his end and raised his voice out of the ground in prophecy, to blot out the people's lawlessness.[i]

Notes

- a (46:1) Greek Iēsous Nauē. The name Joshua (Yehoshua) means "the Lord saves."
- b (46:2) Josh 8:18–26.
- c (46:4) Josh 10:12–14.
- d (46:7) Num 14:6–10.
- e (46:9) Josh 14:6–15.
- f (46:16) 1 Sam 7:9–11.
- g (46:18) So the Greek; the Hebrew, as reported, reads "of the enemy" (the words for "Tyre" and "enemy" look alike in Hebrew).
- h (46:19) 1 Sam 12:3–5. "Sandals" follows the Greek and Hebrew (compare 1 Sam 12:3 in the Greek).
- i (46:20) 1 Sam 28:7–19.

Chapter 47

1 After him Nathan appeared to prophesy in David's time.
2 As the fat is set apart from the peace offering,[a] so David was set apart from the sons of Israel.
3 With lions he played as with young goats, and with bears as with lambs of the flock.[b] 4 As a young man, did he not kill a giant and remove the shame from his people, when he raised his hand with a stone in the sling and struck down Goliath's boasting?
5 For he called on the Lord Most High, and he gave strength to his right hand to remove a man mighty in war and to raise up the horn of his people.
6 So they glorified him for his ten thousands[c] and praised him in the blessings of the Lord, when the crown of glory was brought to him.
7 For he wiped out his enemies all around and brought to nothing the Philistines, his adversaries;
to this day he has crushed their horn.

8 In every work of his he gave thanks to the Holy One, the Most High, with a word of glory;
with all his heart he sang songs of praise,
and he loved the One who made him.
9 He set singers before the altar, to make sweet melodies by their voices.[d] 10 He gave the feasts their comeliness and set the seasons in order to completion, while they praised his holy name and the sanctuary rang out from early morning.
11 The Lord put away his sins[e] and exalted his horn to the age;
a covenant of kingship he granted him and a throne of glory in Israel.
12 After him a wise son rose up, who on his account lived in broad security.
13 Solomon reigned in days of peace, and God gave him rest all around, so that he might set up a house for his name and prepare a sanctuary to the age.
14 How wise you were in your youth, and you were filled with understanding like a river!
15 Your soul covered the earth, and you filled it with parables of riddles.
16 To islands far away your name went out, and for your peace you were beloved.
17 At your songs, your proverbs, your parables, and your interpretations the lands were amazed.[f] 18 You gathered gold like tin and heaped up silver like lead, by the name of the Lord God,
the one called the God of Israel.
19 Yet you set your loins down beside women and gave them dominion over your body.[g]

20 You put a blemish on your glory and profaned your offspring, bringing wrath upon your children;
and I was grieved over your folly,[h] 21 so that the sovereignty was split in two,
and out of Ephraim a disobedient kingdom ruled.
22 But the Lord will never abandon his mercy, nor allow any of his words to fail;
he will not wipe out the descendants of his chosen one,
or destroy the offspring of the man who loved him.
He gave Jacob a remnant,
and David a root from his own family.
23 And Solomon went to rest with his fathers and left behind him one of his offspring, broad in folly and lacking understanding, Rehoboam,[i] who turned the people away by his counsel.
And Jeroboam son of Nebat, who made Israel sin, and gave Ephraim a way of sin — 24 and their sins multiplied exceedingly, so as to remove them from their land.[j] 25 For they sought out every wickedness, until vengeance came upon them.

Notes

- a (47:2) Lev 3:3–5.
- b (47:3) 1 Sam 17:34–37.
- c (47:6) 1 Sam 18:7.
- d (47:9) 1 Chr 16:4–6; 25:1–7. GII adds "and daily they sing his praises in their songs."
- e (47:11) 2 Sam 12:13; 7:12–16.
- f (47:17) 1 Kgs 4:29–34; 10:1–9.
- g (47:19) 1 Kgs 11:1–8.
- h (47:20) So some Greek witnesses; others read "and they were grieved."
- i (47:23) A pun in the Hebrew, as reported: Rehoboam, "the people is broad," is called "broad in folly" (rechab ʻivvelet). See 1 Kgs 12.
- j (47:24) 2 Kgs 17:6–23.

Chapter 48

1 Then a prophet arose like fire, Elijah, whose word blazed like a lamp.[a] 2 He brought a famine upon them, and by his zeal he made them few.
3 By the word of the Lord he shut up the heaven;
so too he brought down fire three times.[b] 4 How glorified you were, Elijah, in your wonders!
And who has a boast like yours?
5 A corpse you roused out of death, out of Hades, at the word of the Most High;[c] 6 you brought kings down to destruction and men held in glory from their beds; 7 you heard rebuke at Sinai and judgments of vengeance at Horeb;[d] 8 you anointed kings for repayment and prophets as successors after you; 9 you were taken up in a whirlwind of fire, in a chariot with horses of fire;[e] 10 you are written down as ready for reproofs at the appointed times, to calm wrath before it breaks into fury, to turn the heart of the father to the son and to restore the tribes of Jacob.[f] 11 Happy are those who saw you, and those who were adorned with love,
for we also will surely live.[g] 12 Elijah was covered over by a whirlwind, and Elisha was filled with his spirit;
in his days he was not shaken by any ruler,
and no one brought him under subjection.
13 No word was too hard for him, and even when he had fallen asleep, his body prophesied.[h] 14 In his life he did wonders, and in his death his works were marvelous.

15 Despite all this the people did not repent or turn away from their sins, until they were taken from their land as plunder and scattered across the whole earth.
Very few people were left,
along with a ruler from David's house.
16 Some of them did what pleased God, while others piled up sins.
17 Hezekiah fortified his city and brought water into its midst;
he dug through sheer rock with iron and built pools for water.[i] 18 In his days Sennacherib came up and sent Rabshakeh, and set out;
he lifted up his hand against Zion and boasted in his arrogance.[j] 19 Then their hearts and their hands shook, and they writhed like women giving birth.
20 And they called on the Lord who is merciful, spreading out their hands to him;
and the Holy One heard them quickly from heaven and redeemed them by the hand of Isaiah.
21 He struck the camp of the Assyrians, and his angel wiped them out.[k] 22 For Hezekiah did what was pleasing to the Lord and held firmly to the ways of David his father, which Isaiah the prophet commanded,
who was great and trustworthy in his vision.
23 In his days the sun went backward, and he added life to the king.[l] 24 With a mighty spirit he looked on the last days and gave comfort to the mourners of Zion.[m] 25 To the age he showed the things that were to be,
and the hidden things before they came.

Notes

- a (48:1) 1 Kgs 17–19; 2 Kgs 1–2.
- b (48:3) 1 Kgs 18:38; 2 Kgs 1:10, 12.
- c (48:5) 1 Kgs 17:17–24.
- d (48:7) 1 Kgs 19:8–18.
- e (48:9) 2 Kgs 2:11.
- f (48:10) Mal 4:5–6 (3:23–24 in Hebrew); Isa 49:6.
- g (48:11) The Greek of this verse is uncertain, and the Hebrew, as reported, is damaged here.
- h (48:13) 2 Kgs 13:20–21.
- i (48:17) 2 Kgs 20:20; 2 Chr 32:30. Hezekiah's tunnel in Jerusalem, about 1,750 feet (533 m) long, survives with its Siloam inscription.
- j (48:18) 2 Kgs 18:13–37; Isa 36.
- k (48:21) 2 Kgs 19:35.
- l (48:23) 2 Kgs 20:1–11; Isa 38.
- m (48:24) Isa 40:1; 61:2–3.

Chapter 49

1 The memory of Josiah is like a blending of incense prepared by the work of a perfumer;
in every mouth it will be sweet as honey,
and like music at a banquet of wine.
2 He was set straight in the turning back of the people[a] and took away the abominations of lawlessness.
3 He set his heart straight toward the Lord;
in the days of the lawless he made godliness strong.
4 Except for David and Hezekiah and Josiah, all committed fault upon fault,
for they forsook the law of the Most High;
the kings of Judah came to an end.
5 For they gave their horn to others and their glory to a foreign nation, 6 who set on fire the chosen city of the sanctuary and made her streets desolate, 7 as foretold by the hand of Jeremiah; for they mistreated him, and yet he had been made holy in the womb as a prophet, to root up and to afflict and to destroy,
and likewise to build and to plant.[b]

8 Ezekiel saw the vision of glory, which he showed him above the chariot of the cherubim.[c] 9 For he remembered the enemies in a rainstorm,[d] and did good to those who made their ways straight.
10 And of the twelve prophets[e] may the bones sprout again from their place, for they comforted Jacob and redeemed them in the faithfulness of hope.
11 How shall we make Zerubbabel great?
He too was like a signet ring on the right hand,[f] 12 and so was Joshua son of Jozadak; in their days these built the house and lifted up a temple holy to the Lord, made ready for everlasting glory.[g] 13 Great too is the memory of Nehemiah, who raised up our fallen walls for us and set up gates and bars and raised up our ruined houses.[h] 14 No one has been created on the earth like Enoch, for he was taken up from the earth.[i] 15 Nor was a man born like Joseph, leader of his brothers, a prop of his people, and his bones were watched over.[j] 16 Shem and Seth were glorified among human beings, and above every living thing in creation is Adam.

Notes

- a (49:2) 2 Kgs 22–23.
- b (49:7) Jer 1:5, 10; 20:1–2; 37–38.
- c (49:8) Ezek 1; 10.
- d (49:9) The Greek is obscure (compare Ezek 13:11–13; 38:22). The Hebrew, as reported, reads "he also mentioned Job" (Ezek 14:14, 20); the Hebrew words for "enemy" (ʿoyeb) and "Job" (ʿiyyob) look alike.
- e (49:10) The Twelve (Minor) Prophets, Hosea to Malachi, already counted as one collection.
- f (49:11) Hag 2:23.
- g (49:12) Ezra 3:2, 8–13; Hag 1:12–15. Greek Iēsous.

- h (49:13) Neh 2–7. Ezra is not named in the hymn.
- i (49:14) Gen 5:24; see 44:16.
- j (49:15) Gen 50:24–25; Exod 13:19; Josh 24:32.

Chapter 50

1 Simon son of Onias,[a] the high priest, who in his life repaired the house and in his days made the temple strong; 2 by him the foundation was laid for the double height, the lofty retaining wall of the temple enclosure.
3 In his days a cistern for water was dug,
a reservoir like the sea in its circumference.
4 He took thought for his people against their fall and made the city strong against siege.
5 How glorified he was in the turning of the people[b] as he came out from the house of the veil!
6 Like the morning star in the midst of a cloud, like the moon at the full in its days, 7 like the sun shining on the temple of the Most High,
and like the rainbow giving light amid clouds of glory, 8 like a bloom of roses in the days of new fruits, like lilies at an outflow of water,
like a green shoot of Lebanon on summer days, 9 like fire and frankincense on the censer, like a vessel of hammered gold adorned with every precious stone, 10 like an olive putting out its fruit, and like a cypress raised high among the clouds.
11 When he took up his robe of boasting and put on the perfection of boasting, in going up to the holy altar
he made the precinct of the sanctuary glorious.
12 And when he received the portions from the priests' hands while he himself stood by the hearth of the altar, around him was a garland of brothers,

like a young growth of cedars in Lebanon;
and they surrounded him like the trunks of palms, 13 all the sons of Aaron in their glory, with the Lord's offering in their hands,
before the whole assembly of Israel.
14 Finishing the service at the altars and setting in order the offering to the Most High, the Almighty, 15 He reached out his hand for the cup and poured out a drink offering of grape juice;
at the base of the altar he emptied it out, an aroma pleasing to the Most High, the King of all.
16 Then the sons of Aaron shouted out;
they sounded with trumpets of hammered metal;
they made a great sound heard as a memorial before the Most High.
17 Then all the people together hurried and fell on their faces on the ground to worship their Lord,
the Almighty, God Most High.
18 And the singers gave praise with their voices;
in the great house they made sweet melody.[c] 19 And the people entreated the Lord Most High with prayer in the presence of the Merciful One, till the Lord's worship was fully ordered and his service was brought to completion.
20 Then, coming down, he raised his hands over all the assembly of Israel's sons, to pronounce the Lord's blessing with his lips and glory in his name;[d] 21 and again they bent low in worship, to take the blessing from the Most High.
22 And now bless the God of all, who does great things everywhere, who raises us up from our mothers' wombs and treats us with his mercy.

23 May he grant us joy of heart, and may Israel have peace in our time,
as in the days of old.
24 May he entrust his mercy to us, and in our days may he redeem us.[e] 25 With two nations my soul is vexed, and the third is not a nation:
26 those who dwell on the mountain of Samaria,[f] and the Philistines, and the foolish people that dwells in Shechem.
27 I have written in this book teaching in wisdom and knowledge, I, Jesus son of Sirach, Eleazar, of Jerusalem,[g] who let wisdom pour out of his heart like rain.
28 Blessed is the one who occupies himself with these things, and the one who lays them on his heart will become wise.
29 If he practices them, he will be strong in every situation, for the Lord's light is his path.[h]

Notes

- a (50:1) Simon II, high priest about 219–196 BC; Ben Sira probably knew him. The Hebrew, as reported, reads "Simon son of Johanan."
- b (50:5) Probably the Day of Atonement (Lev 16), when the high priest came out from the holy of holies; some take it of the daily offering.
- c (50:18) So the Greek, as best it can be read; the line is obscure.
- d (50:20) The priestly blessing of Num 6:24–26, in which, according to later Jewish tradition (as reported), the high priest pronounced the divine name in the temple.
- e (50:24) The Hebrew, as reported, reads instead: "May his steadfast love abide with Simon, and may he keep for him the covenant of Phinehas," a prayer for the high-priestly line that the Greek translator, writing after that line had lost the office, made general.
- f (50:26) The Hebrew, as reported, reads "Seir" (Edom). The "foolish people" in Shechem are the Samaritans.
- g (50:27) The Greek manuscripts vary on the name; the Hebrew, as reported, reads "Simeon son of Jeshua son of Eleazar son of Sira."
- h (50:29) GII adds "and to the godly he has given wisdom. Blessed be the Lord to the age. So be it, so be it."

Chapter 51

A Prayer of Jesus son of Sirach

1 I will thank you, Lord, my King, and praise you, God my Savior;
I will give thanks to your name,
2 for you became my shelter and my help, and you redeemed my body from destruction and from the snare of a slandering tongue, from lips that work out a lie;
and in the face of those who stood by you became my helper, 3 and you redeemed me, by the abundance of your mercy and of your name, from the bites of those ready to devour, from the hand of those seeking my life,
from the many afflictions I had,
4 from choking fire on every side, and from the midst of a fire I had not kindled, 5 from the depth of the belly of Hades, from an unclean tongue and a lying word — 6 slander from a dishonest tongue before the king.
My soul came close to death,
and my life drew near to Hades below.
7 They surrounded me on every side, and there was no one to help;
I looked for the help of human beings, and there was none.
8 Then I remembered your mercy, Lord, and the help you have given from ancient times, how you deliver those who wait for you and save them from their enemies' hands.
9 And I lifted up my supplication from the earth and prayed for rescue from death.
10 I cried out to the Lord, the Father of my lord,[a] not to abandon me in my days of distress, in the age of the proud, when no help was to be found.
11 I will praise your name continually and sing a song of praise in thanksgiving;
and my supplication was heard,

12 for you saved me from destruction and rescued me from an evil time.
Therefore I will give thanks and praise you and bless the name of the Lord.[b]

Ben Sira's Search for Wisdom

13 While I was still young, before I went wandering,
I sought wisdom openly in my prayer.[c] 14 Before the temple I asked for her, and to the very end I will seek her out.
15 From her blossom, as from a ripening grape, my heart was glad in her;
my foot walked on the level path;
from my youth I followed her track.
16 I bent my ear a little and received her,
and I found much discipline for myself.
17 I made progress in her;
to the One who gives me wisdom I will give glory.
18 For I resolved to put her into practice, and I was zealous for the good, and I will never be put to shame.
19 My soul wrestled with her,
and in my doing of the law I was exact;
I spread out my hands to the height and mourned over my ignorance of her.
20 I set my soul straight toward her,
and I found her through purity.
From the beginning I gained understanding together with her;
therefore I will never be abandoned.
21 My insides were stirred to seek her;
therefore I have gained a good possession.
22 The Lord gave me a tongue as my reward, and with it I will praise him.
23 Draw near to me, you who are unschooled, and lodge in my house of instruction.[d] 24 Why do you say you lack these things, and your souls are so very thirsty?

25 I opened my mouth and spoke:
Gain her for yourselves without money.
26 Put your neck under the yoke, and let your soul receive discipline;
she is near at hand to be found.
27 See with your eyes that I toiled little and found much rest for myself.
28 Get a share of discipline with a large sum of silver, and you will gain much gold by her.
29 May your soul be glad in his mercy, and may you never be put to shame in praising him.
30 Do your work before the appointed time, and in his time he will give you your wage.[e]

Notes

- a (51:10) So the Greek; the Hebrew, as reported, reads "I exalted the Lord: 'You are my Father.'"
- b (51:12) After this verse Cairo Geniza MS B, as reported, has a litany of sixteen lines modeled on Ps 136 ("Give thanks to the Lord, for he is good, for his steadfast love is to the age"), including thanks to the one "who makes a horn sprout for the house of David" and "who chose the sons of Zadok to be priests." It is absent from the Greek and the Syriac.
- c (51:13) Verses 13–30 form an alphabetic acrostic in the Hebrew. The Qumran Psalms Scroll (11QPs-a, first century AD) preserves 51:13–20 and the end of verse 30, as reported, as a separate poem among the Psalms of David, in a form with bolder bridal imagery than the Greek or Geniza MS B; many scholars hold that MS B's text of these verses is partly a retranslation or reworking. The other Qumran Sirach manuscript, 2Q18 (2QSir), preserves fragments of chapter 6, not of this poem.
- d (51:23) The first known use of the expression, in Hebrew, as reported, beth midrash, the later name for a house of study.
- e (51:30) Some Greek manuscripts end with the subscription "Wisdom of Jesus son of Sirach."

Baruch

Apocrypha

Chapter 1

1 And these are the words of the book written in Babylon by Baruch,[a] the son of Neraiah, Neraiah son of Mahseiah, Mahseiah son of Zedekiah, Zedekiah son of Hasadiah, Hasadiah son of Hilkiah, 2 in the fifth year, on the seventh day of the month,[b] when the Chaldeans captured Jerusalem and set it ablaze. 3 And Baruch read out the words of this book in the ears of Jeconiah son of Jehoiakim, king of Judah,[c] and in the ears of all the people who came to the book, 4 and in the ears of the men of power and of the king's sons, and in the ears of the elders, and in the ears of all the people from the least to the greatest, of all who lived in Babylon by the river Sud.[d] 5 And they wept and fasted and prayed before the Lord; 6 and they collected silver, each according to what his hand could give, 7 and this they dispatched to Jerusalem, to Jehoiakim the priest,[e] whose father was Hilkiah and whose grandfather was Shallum, and to the priests and every one of the people present with him at Jerusalem, 8 at the time when he received the vessels of the Lord's house, carried off out of the temple, to bring them back to Judah's land, on the tenth of Sivan[f] — vessels of silver made by Zedekiah son of Josiah, Judah's king, 9 after Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon had carried off Jeconiah and the rulers and the captives and the men of power and the people of the land from Jerusalem, and brought them to Babylon.
10 And they said: See, we send you silver; with it purchase whole burnt offerings, sin offerings, and incense; make ready a grain offering, and present them on the altar of the Lord our God; 11 and pray for the life of Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon and for the life of Belshazzar his son,[g] that their days may be like the days of heaven above the earth. 12 And the Lord will give us strength and will give light to our eyes, and we shall live under the shadow of Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon and under the shadow of Belshazzar his son, and we shall serve them many days and find favor before them. 13 And make prayer for us to the Lord our God, because against the Lord our God we have sinned, and to this day the Lord's fury and his anger have not turned from us. 14 And you shall read out this book that we have sent to you, to make confession in the house of the Lord on the day of the feast and on the days of the appointed season.

Confession of Sin 15 Then say: Righteousness belongs to the Lord our God,[h] while shame covers our faces, as it does today, every person of Judah and all who live in Jerusalem, 16 our kings as well, and our rulers, our priests, our prophets, and our fathers, 17 because we have sinned before the Lord 18 and disobeyed him, and we did not heed the voice of the Lord our God, to walk in the ordinances of the Lord that he set before our face. 19 From the day when the Lord brought our fathers out of the land of Egypt until this day we have been disobedient to the Lord our God, and we were careless in not heeding his voice. 20 And the evils have fastened on us, and the curse that the Lord ordained by Moses his servant on the day he led our fathers out of Egypt's land, to give us a land flowing with milk and honey, as it is this day.[i] 21 And we did not heed the voice of the Lord our God, in all the words of the prophets whom he sent to us; 22 but we went off each one in the intent of his own evil heart, to serve other gods and to do what is evil in the eyes of the Lord our God.

Notes

- a (1:1) Jeremiah's secretary (Jer 32:12; 36:4–32; 45:1). The Greek spells the names Nērias, Maasaias, Sedekias, Asadias and Chelkias.
- b (1:2) The month is not named. If counted from the fall of Jerusalem (587/586 BC), the fifth year is about 582 BC.
- c (1:3) Jeconiah (Jehoiachin) was taken to Babylon in 597 BC (2 Kgs 24:8–17; 25:27–30).
- d (1:4) The river Sud is otherwise unknown.
- e (1:7) Not the high priest of 2 Kgs 25:18 (Seraiah); this Jehoiakim is otherwise unknown.
- f (1:8) Sivan is the third month, May–June. Most take "he" as Baruch.
- g (1:11) Compare Jer 29:7. Belshazzar was in fact the son of Nabonidus (compare Dan 5:2).
- h (1:15) Verses 1:15–2:19 closely follow the prayer of Dan 9:4–19.

- i (1:20) Deut 28:15–68.

Chapter 2

1 So the Lord made good on the warning he had spoken against us, against the judges who ruled Israel, against our kings and our leaders, and against everyone in Israel and Judah, 2 to bring upon us great evils, such as had not been done under the whole of heaven as he did in Jerusalem, according to what is written in the law of Moses, 3 that a man among us would eat his son's flesh, and another his daughter's flesh.[a] 4 He put them under the power of all the kingdoms around us, to become an object of scorn and ruin among all the surrounding nations where the Lord had dispersed them. 5 And they were laid low and not lifted up, because against the Lord our God we sinned, not heeding his voice. 6 To the Lord our God belongs righteousness, but to us and to our fathers shame of face, as it is this day. 7 All that the Lord spoke against us, all these evils have come upon us. 8 Yet we have not entreated the face of the Lord, that each might turn back from the intents of his evil heart. 9 And the Lord kept watch over the evils, and the Lord brought them upon us; for the Lord is righteous in all his works that he commanded us. 10 And we did not heed his voice, to walk in the ordinances of the Lord that he set before our face.

Prayer for Deliverance 11 And now, Lord God of Israel, who brought your people out of the land of Egypt with a strong hand and with signs and with wonders and with great power and with a lifted-up arm, and made yourself a name, as it is this day: 12 we have sinned, we have done impiety, we have done wrong, Lord our God, against all your just decrees. 13 Let your fury turn away from us, for we are left few among the nations where you scattered us. 14 Hear, Lord, our prayer and our petition, and deliver us for your own sake, and grant us favor in the eyes of those who led us away captive, 15 so that the whole earth may know that you are the Lord our God, for Israel and his race are called by your name. 16 Lord, look down from your holy house and take thought for us; bend your ear, Lord, and hear; 17 open your eyes, Lord, and look; it is not the dead in Hades, whose life breath has left their bodies, who will give the Lord glory and vindication;[b] 18 but the soul that is grieved beyond measure, that goes about bowed and feeble, and the eyes that fail, and the soul that hungers, will give you glory and justice, Lord. 19 For it is not on the just deeds of our fathers and our kings that we lay down our plea for mercy before your face, Lord our God.[c] 20 For you have sent your fury and your wrath upon us, as you spoke by the hand of your servants the prophets, saying: 21 This is what the Lord says: Bow your shoulders to serve the king of Babylon, and you will stay on the soil I gave to your ancestors.[d] 22 But if you do not heed the voice of the Lord to serve the king of Babylon, 23 I will silence in the cities of Judah and in the outskirts of Jerusalem the sound of mirth and the sound of gladness, the bridegroom's sound and the bride's sound, and all the land will be a waste with no one dwelling in it.[e] 24 But we did not obey your voice by serving the king of Babylon; and you fulfilled the warnings you gave through your servants the prophets, that our kings' bones and our ancestors' bones would be dug up from where they lay.[f] 25 And see, they lie cast out to the day's heat and the night's frost; and in cruel pains they died, by famine and by sword and by pestilence.[g] 26 And the house that bears your name you have reduced to what it is now, because of the evil done by Israel's house and Judah's house. 27 Yet you have dealt with us, Lord our God, according to all your gentleness and according to all your great compassion, 28 just as you declared through your servant Moses on the day you ordered him to write your law in front of the Israelites: 29 If you will not heed my voice, this great and teeming throng will surely be turned into a little band among the nations where I will scatter them.[h] 30 For I know that they will not heed me, because it is a stiff-necked people. But in the land of their exile they will turn back to their heart,[i] 31 and they will know that I am the Lord their God. And I will give them a heart and ears that hear, 32 and in the land of their exile they shall praise me, and my name they shall remember, 33 and they will turn back from their stiff back and from their wicked deeds, for they will remember the way of their fathers, who sinned before the Lord. 34 I will return them to the land I promised with an oath to their forefathers, to Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, and they will be its masters; I will make them numerous, and they will not dwindle. 35 And I will set up for them a covenant of the age, that I may be their God and they may be my people; and I will no longer remove my people Israel from the land that I have given them.[j]

Notes

- a (2:3) Lev 26:29; Deut 28:53; Lam 4:10.
- b (2:17) Ps 6:5; 115:17; Isa 38:18.
- c (2:19) Dan 9:18.
- d (2:21) Jer 27:11–12.
- e (2:23) Jer 7:34; 16:9; 25:10.
- f (2:24) Jer 8:1–2.
- g (2:25) Greek apostolē, "a sending," probably for Hebrew deber, "pestilence" (compare Jer 32:36).
- h (2:29) Deut 28:62–64.
- i (2:30) Deut 30:1–10.
- j (2:35) Jer 31:31–33; 32:40.

Chapter 3

1 Lord Almighty, God of Israel, a soul in anguish and a wearied spirit cries out to you. 2 Hear, Lord, and have mercy, for we have sinned before you. 3 For you sit enthroned to the age, and we are perishing to the age. 4 Lord Almighty, God of Israel, hear now the prayer of Israel's dead[a] and of the sons of those who sinned before you, who would not listen to the Lord their God's voice; and so the evils have fastened on us. 5 Do not remember the wrongdoings of our fathers, but remember your hand and your name at this time. 6 For you are the Lord our God, and we will praise you, Lord. 7 For this reason you have set the fear of you in our hearts, that we might call upon your name; and in our exile we shall praise you, since we have put away from our heart all the wrongdoing of our fathers who sinned before you. 8 Look, today we are in exile where you dispersed us, an object of scorn, a curse, and a punishment for everything our ancestors did wrong in turning away from the Lord our God.

In Praise of Wisdom

9 Hear, Israel, the commandments of life;[b] give ear to know understanding.

10 Why, Israel, why is it that you are in your enemies' land, grown old in a country not your own, 11 that you have been defiled together with the dead, that you are counted among those in Hades?
12 You have forsaken the spring of wisdom.
13 If you had walked in the way of God,
you would be dwelling in peace to the age.
14 Find out where understanding is, where power is, where insight is,
and so learn at once
where long life and survival are,
where to find light for the eyes, and peace.
15 Who has discovered where she dwells?
Who has gone in to her treasure-houses?
16 Where now are the nations' rulers, and those who were lords over the earth's beasts, 17 those who made sport with the birds of heaven, and those who heaped up silver and gold,
in which human beings trust,
and of whose getting there is no end?
18 For those who worked silver with such anxious care — there is no finding out their works.[c] 19 They have disappeared and descended to Hades, and others have taken their places.
20 Younger ones have seen the light and have dwelt upon the earth;
but the way of knowledge they have not known, 21 nor grasped her paths, nor taken hold of her;
their sons have wandered far from her road.
22 No news of her reached Canaan, and she was never seen in Teman;[d] 23 nor the sons of Hagar, who seek understanding on the earth, the traders of Merran[e] and Teman, the tellers of tales and the seekers of understanding — the way of wisdom they have not known, nor have they remembered her paths.

24 O Israel, how great is the house of God, and how vast the place of his possession![f] 25 It is great and has no end;
it is lofty and without measure.
26 There the giants were born, the renowned of old,[g] great in stature, skilled in war.
27 Not these did God choose, nor to these did he grant the way of knowledge; 28 and they perished because they had no insight;
they perished through their folly.
29 Who has climbed into heaven and seized her and fetched her down from the clouds?[h] 30 Who has crossed over the sea and found her,
and will bring her back for choice gold?
31 There is no one who knows her way, nor anyone who ponders her path.
32 But the One who knows all things knows her;
he found her out by his understanding.
The One who prepared the earth for time of the age filled it with four-footed creatures; 33 the One who sends out the light, and it goes;
he called it, and it obeyed him with trembling.
34 The stars shone at their posts and rejoiced;
he summoned them, and they answered, “Here we are!”
They shone cheerfully for their Maker.
35 This is our God;
no other shall be reckoned beside him.
36 He found out the whole way of knowledge and gave her to Jacob his servant and to Israel, the one he loved.

37 After this she appeared on earth and lived her life among human beings.[i]

Notes

- a (3:4) Greek "dead." Probably the Hebrew methe, "men of," was read as methe, "dead of"; NRSV renders "people."
- b (3:9) The poem of 3:9–4:4 draws on Job 28 and Deut 30:11–20, and, like Sir 24:23, identifies Wisdom with the Law (4:1).
- c (3:18) The Greek of this verse is obscure.
- d (3:22) Teman in Edom was famed for wisdom (Jer 49:7; Obad 8–9).
- e (3:23) Merran is unknown; perhaps Midian (compare Gen 37:28).
- f (3:24) The whole creation is meant.
- g (3:26) Gen 6:4.
- h (3:29) Deut 30:12–13; compare Rom 10:6–7.
- i (3:37) Compare Prov 8:31; Sir 24:8–12. Many Christian writers from the 2nd century AD on read this verse of the incarnation; some scholars think it a later addition.

Chapter 4

1 She is the book of the commandments of God and the law that endures to the age.
All who hold her fast are bound for life,
but those who forsake her will die.
2 Turn back, Jacob, and take hold of her;
walk toward her shining, in the face of her light.
3 Do not give your glory to another, or the things that profit you to a foreign nation.
4 Blessed are we, Israel, for what is pleasing to God is known to us.

Encouragement for Israel

5 Take courage, my people, you who keep Israel's name in memory.
6 You were sold to the nations, not for destruction;
but because you provoked God to anger you were handed over to your adversaries.
7 You angered your Maker by offering sacrifices to demons rather than to God.[a]

8 You forgot the everlasting God, who nursed you, and you grieved Jerusalem, who reared you.
9 For she saw the wrath from God coming upon you,
and said:
Hear, you who dwell near Zion;
God has laid great mourning upon me, 10 for I have seen the captivity of my sons and daughters, which the Everlasting brought upon them.[b] 11 For with gladness I nursed them, but with weeping and mourning I sent them away.
12 Let no one rejoice over me, a widow forsaken by many;
I have been made desolate for the sins of my children, because they turned aside from the law of God 13 They did not recognize his decrees, nor follow the paths of his commandments,
nor walk the way of instruction in his righteousness.
14 Let the neighbors of Zion come and remember the captivity of my sons and daughters, which the Everlasting brought upon them.
15 For he summoned a nation against them from far away,
a ruthless nation with a foreign language, that showed no respect for the elderly and no compassion for the young.[c] 16 And they led away the widow's dear sons and left her who was alone bereft of her daughters.
17 But I — how can I help you?
18 For the One who brought these evils upon you will deliver you from the hand of your enemies.
19 Go, children, go on your way,
for I am left desolate.
20 I have removed my garment of peace and put on sackcloth as I plead;
all my days I will call out to the Eternal One.

21 Take courage, children, cry out to God, and he will deliver you from tyranny, from the hand of enemies.
22 My hope is fixed on the Eternal One that he will rescue you, and delight has come to me from the Holy One because of the compassion that will quickly reach you from your eternal Savior.
23 For with mourning and weeping I sent you away, but God will restore you to me with joy and gladness to the age.
24 For as the neighbors of Zion have now seen your captivity, so they will soon see your salvation from God, which will come upon you with great glory and with the splendor of the Everlasting.
25 Children, endure patiently the anger God has brought on you.
Your enemy has chased you down, but soon you will watch him be destroyed and tread on his neck.
26 My tender ones have walked rough roads;
they were taken off like a flock carried away by enemies.
27 Be brave, children, and call on God, for the one who sent this upon you will keep you in mind.
28 For as your mind was set on straying from God, so turn back now with ten times the zeal to seek him.
29 For the One who brought these evils upon you will bring you everlasting joy along with your salvation.

Jerusalem Comforted

30 Take heart, Jerusalem:
he who named you will give you comfort.
31 Wretched are those who did you harm and rejoiced at your fall.
32 Wretched are the cities that your children served as slaves;
wretched is she who received your sons.[d]

33 For as she rejoiced at your fall and was glad over your ruin, so she will be grieved at her own desolation.
34 And I will take away her delight in her crowds, and her proud boasting will be turned into mourning.
35 Fire will fall on her from the Eternal One for many days, and for a long while demons will make their home in her.[e] 36 Turn your eyes eastward, Jerusalem, and behold the joy that comes to you from God.
37 Look, your sons are on their way, whom you sent off;
they are coming home, assembled from east and west
by the command of the Holy One, celebrating God's glory.

Notes

- a (4:7) Deut 32:16–17.
- b (4:10) "The Everlasting" (ho aiōnios) is used as a title of God throughout 4:5–5:9.
- c (4:15) Deut 28:49–50.
- d (4:32) Babylon.
- e (4:35) Isa 13:19–22; Jer 50:39.

Chapter 5

1 Take off, Jerusalem, the robe of your mourning and your affliction, and put on to the age the comeliness of the glory from God.[a] 2 Wrap around yourself the double cloak of the righteousness that is from God; set on your head the diadem of the glory of the Everlasting.
3 For God will show your brightness to every place under heaven.
4 For your name will be called by God to the age:
"Peace of Righteousness" and "Glory of Godliness." 5 Rise up, Jerusalem, and stand on the summit; face east
and watch your children gather from sunset to sunrise
by the command of the Holy One, rejoicing that God has not forgotten them.

6 They left you on foot, driven off by their enemies;
but God is bringing them back to you, lifted up in glory like a royal throne.
7 For God has commanded that every lofty mountain and the hills of the age be brought low, and the ravines filled up to make the ground level, so that in God's glory Israel may go securely.[b] 8 The forests too, and every sweet-smelling tree, have given Israel shade by God's command.
9 For with joy God will lead Israel by the light of his glory, with his own mercy and righteousness.

Notes

- a (5:1) Verses 5:1–9 are close in wording to the Psalms of Solomon 11 (1st century BC); compare Isa 52:1; 60–62.
- b (5:7) Isa 40:4.

Letter of Jeremiah

Apocrypha

Chapter 1

1 A copy of a letter Jeremiah sent to the people about to be deported to Babylon by the king of the Babylonians, informing them of what God had commanded him.[a] 2 Because of the sins you have committed against God, Nebuchadnezzar, king of the Babylonians, will deport you to Babylon. 3 So when you come into Babylon, you will stay there many years and a long time, up to seven generations;[b] and after this I will bring you out from there in peace. 4 But now you will see in Babylon gods of silver and gold and wood carried on shoulders,[c] which put fear into the nations. 5 Be on your guard, then, that you yourselves do not become altogether like the foreigners, and that fear of them does not seize you 6 when you see the crowd before and behind them worshiping them. But say in your mind: "It is you, Master, whom we must worship." 7 For my angel is with you, and he himself is watching over your lives.[d] 8 Their tongues are polished smooth by a craftsman, and they themselves are covered with gold and silver; yet they are fakes and cannot talk. 9 And taking gold, as for a girl who loves finery, they make crowns for the heads of their gods. 10 And sometimes the priests even filch gold and silver from their gods and spend it on themselves, 11 and they will give some of it even to the prostitutes on the roof.[e] And they deck them out with clothing like human beings — the gods of silver and gold and wood. 12 Yet these cannot save themselves from tarnish and moths, though they are wrapped in purple clothing. 13 People wipe their faces because of the dust from the temple, which lies thick upon them. 14 And one holds a scepter like a man who judges a land, yet he cannot put to death the one who offends against him.
15 Another has a dagger in his right hand, and an ax, yet he cannot deliver himself from war and from robbers. 16 From this it is known that they are not gods; so do not fear them.

17 Just as a vessel someone uses is worthless once it is smashed, so are their gods once they are installed in their temples. Their eyes are full of dust kicked up by the feet of visitors. 18 And as the courtyards are shut up all around a man who has wronged a king and is being taken off to die, so their priests secure their temples with doors, with locks and with bars, lest they be plundered by robbers. 19 They light lamps for them, more than for themselves, though the gods cannot see a single one of them. 20 They are just like a beam of the temple, and men say their hearts are eaten out, while creatures that creep from the ground devour both them and their clothing, and they do not notice. 21 Their faces are blackened by the smoke from the temple.
22 Upon their bodies and upon their heads light bats, swallows, and birds, and cats as well.[f] 23 By this you may know that they are no gods;
so have no fear of them.
24 For as for the gold they wear for beauty, unless someone wipes off the tarnish, they will not shine; for not even when they were being cast did they feel it. 25 They are bought at any price, though there is no breath in them. 26 Having no feet, they are carried on shoulders, showing their own dishonor to human beings; and those who serve them are put to shame, 27 because if one of them falls to the ground, it is raised up by them; and if someone sets it upright, it will not move by itself; and if it is tilted, it cannot straighten itself; but offerings are set before them as before the dead. 28 And the sacrifices made to them their priests sell and make use of; and likewise their wives preserve some of it with salt, but to the poor and helpless they give nothing.
29 A woman in her monthly impurity or in childbed touches their sacrifices.[g] Knowing, then, from these things that they are not gods, do not fear them.
30 For how can they be called gods? For women serve meals to gods of silver and gold and wood. 31 And the priests sit in their houses of worship with garments rent, heads and beards shorn, bareheaded; 32 they bellow and cry aloud before their gods, like mourners at the meal for one who has died. 33 The priests take some of their clothing and dress their own wives and children with it. 34 Whether they suffer evil from anyone or good, they cannot repay it. They can neither set up a king nor remove one. 35 Likewise they can give neither wealth nor a copper coin;[h] if someone makes a vow to them and does not pay it, they will not call him to account. 36 From death they can save no one, nor snatch the feeble from the mighty. 37 They cannot bring a blind man back to sight; they cannot rescue a man who is in distress. 38 They will not take pity on a widow or do good to an orphan. 39 Like quarried stones from the hillside are these wooden things, plated over with gold and silver, and all who serve them will be shamed. 40 How, then, can anyone imagine them gods or call them so? Even the Chaldeans themselves show them no respect; 41 for when they meet someone who is mute and cannot talk, they bring him to Bel[i] and ask that he speak, as if Bel could grasp it. 42 Yet they themselves cannot perceive this and forsake them, for they have no sense. 43 And the women, with cords around them, sit along the roads, burning bran for incense; and when one of them is drawn aside by some passerby and lies with him, she taunts the woman beside her, because she was not thought as worthy as herself and her cord was not broken.[j] 44 All that is done for them is false. How then can anyone think or call them gods?

45 They are made by carpenters and goldsmiths; they can be nothing other than what the craftsmen wish them to be. 46 And those who make them will not themselves last long; how then can the things made by them be gods? 47 For they have left lies and a reproach to those who come after. 48 For when war or evils come upon them, the priests consult together where they may hide themselves with them.
49 How then can one not perceive that they are not gods, who cannot save themselves from war or from evils? 50 For since they are of wood and overlaid with gold and silver, it will be known afterward that they are false. 51 It will be plain to all the nations and the kings that they are not gods but works of human hands, and that there is no work of God in them. 52 Who then does not know that they are not gods?
53 For they cannot set up a king over a land, or give rain to human beings. 54 They are powerless to settle their own case or to rescue a person who has been wronged; they are like crows flying between sky and earth.[k] 55 For when fire falls upon a house of gods of wood or overlaid with gold or silver, their priests will flee and be saved, but they themselves will be burned up like beams in the middle. 56

And they cannot withstand a king or enemies. How then can anyone suppose or admit that they are gods? 57 Gods of wood and overlaid with silver and gold cannot save themselves from thieves and robbers; 58 the strong will strip off their gold and silver and the clothing that wraps them and go off with it, and they cannot help themselves. 59 So it is better to be a king who displays his own courage, or a household jar that serves its owner's needs, than these false gods; or a door in a house that protects what lies inside, than these false gods; or a wooden column in a palace, than these false gods.
60 For sun and moon and stars, being bright and sent out for some use, are obedient. 61 So also the lightning, when it flashes, is fair to see; and in the same way the wind blows in every land. 62 And when the clouds are ordered by God to pass over the whole inhabited world, they carry out the order. 63 And when fire is sent from above to burn up mountains and forests, it carries out its orders. These idols cannot compare to them in appearance or in power. 64 Therefore one must neither think nor call them gods, since they are not able either to judge a cause or to do good to human beings. 65 Knowing, then, that they are not gods, do not fear them. 66 For they can neither curse nor bless kings; 67 They cannot give signs in the sky for the nations, or shine like the sun, or light up the night like the moon. 68 Better than they are the beasts of the field, for these can run into a covert and help themselves. 69 So in no way is it plain to us that they are gods; therefore do not fear them.
70 For as a scarecrow in a patch of cucumbers[l] keeps no watch over anything, so are their wooden gods with their gold and silver plating.
71 In the same way their wooden gods, overlaid with gold and silver, resemble a thornbush in a garden where birds of every kind settle, or a corpse tossed out in the dark. 72 By the purple and the fine linen[m] rotting on them you can tell that they are not gods; and they themselves will finally be devoured and become a disgrace across the land. [73] Far better is an upright person who owns no idols, for he will be free of disgrace.

Notes

- a (1:1) In the Latin Vulgate and the King James Version this letter is Baruch 6, and its verses are numbered Baruch 6:1–73. Compare the letter of Jer 29:1–23.
- b (1:3) Jer 25:11–12 and 29:10 speak of seventy years; "seven generations" lengthens the exile, perhaps to suit a later author's own time.
- c (1:4) The processions of the Babylonian gods, as at the New Year festival; compare Isa 46:1–7.
- d (1:7) "He himself" is God's angel or God; the Greek is abrupt.
- e (1:11) Literally "on the housetop"; the Greek is obscure, and some render "in the brothel."
- f (1:22) This is the only mention of cats in the Bible.
- g (1:29) Lev 12:2–4; 15:19–24.
- h (1:35) Greek chalkos, a small bronze coin.
- i (1:41) Bel ("lord") is a title of Marduk, the chief god of Babylon; compare Bel and the Dragon. In the Greek, verse 40 runs on into verse 41 without a break.
- j (1:43) Compare the custom described by Herodotus (1.199). The Qumran papyrus 7QpapEpJer gr (7Q2), about 100 BC, preserves parts of verses 43–44 in Greek, as reported.
- k (1:54) The image is obscure: perhaps crows that flit about to no purpose.
- l (1:70) Jer 10:5.
- m (1:72) The Greek reads "marble" (marmaros), probably a corruption; "fine linen" (or "sheen") follows a widely accepted correction, as reported.

Additions to Daniel: Prayer of Azariah and Song of the Three

Apocrypha

Chapter 1

The Prayer of Azariah

1 And they walked about in the midst of the flame, singing hymns to God and blessing the Lord.[a] 2 And Azariah stood up and prayed thus, and opening his mouth in the midst of the fire he said:
3 Blessed are you, Lord, God of our fathers, and praiseworthy, and your name is glorified to the ages.
4 For you are righteous in all that you have done to us, and all your works are true, and your ways are straight,
and all your judgments are truth.
5 You have carried out true judgments in everything you have brought down upon us and upon our ancestors' holy city, Jerusalem; for with truth and justice you brought all this upon us because of our sins.
6 For we sinned and did lawlessly in departing from you, and we sinned in everything, and to the commandments of your law we did not listen; 7 nor did we keep them or do as you commanded us, so that it might go well with us.
8 And all that you brought upon us, and everything that you did to us,
you did in true judgment.
9 And you handed us over into the hands of lawless enemies, most hateful apostates, and to a king unjust and the most wicked in all the earth.[b]

10 And now it is not for us to open our mouth; shame and reproach have come to your slaves and to those who worship you.
11 Do not hand us over to the end, for your name's sake, and do not annul your covenant, 12 and do not take your mercy away from us, for the sake of Abraham, the one beloved by you, and for the sake of Isaac your servant
and Israel your holy one, 13 to whom you spoke, saying that you would multiply their seed as the stars of heaven and as the sand that is on the shore of the sea.[c] 14 For, Master, we have been made fewer than every nation and are brought low today in all the earth because of our sins.
15 And there is not at this time ruler and prophet and leader, nor whole burnt offering nor sacrifice nor offering nor incense, nor a place to bring first fruits before you and find mercy.[d] 16 But with a crushed soul and a humbled spirit may we be received,[e] 17 as with whole burnt offerings of rams and bulls and as with ten thousands of fat lambs;
so let our sacrifice be before you today and be fully accomplished behind you,[f] for there is no shame for those who trust in you.
18 And now we follow you with all our heart, we revere you and look for your face.
Do not let us be disgraced, 19 but treat us with your kindness and with your overflowing compassion.
20 And rescue us according to your wonders, and give glory to your name, Lord.
21 And let all who show evil to your slaves be turned back, and let them be put to shame, stripped of all power,
and let their strength be crushed; 22 and let them know that you alone are Lord God, and glorious over the whole inhabited world.

The Furnace 23 And the king's servants who had thrown them in did not stop heating the furnace with naphtha and pitch and tow and brushwood. 24 And the flame poured out above the furnace to about seventy-three feet;[g] 25 and it spread out and burned up those of the Chaldeans whom it found around the furnace. 26 But the angel of the Lord came down together with those around Azariah into the furnace and shook the flame of the fire out of the furnace, 27 and made the middle of the furnace as if a wind of dew were whistling through it; and the fire did not touch them at all, nor give them pain, nor trouble them.

The Song of the Three

28 Then the three, as from one mouth, sang a hymn and glorified and blessed God in the furnace, saying:

29 Blessed are you, Lord, God of our fathers,
and praiseworthy and exalted above all to the ages;
30 and blessed is the holy name of your glory, and greatly praised and exalted above all to all the ages.
31 Blessed are you in the temple of your holy glory, and hymned above all and glorified above all to the ages.[h] 32 Blessed are you who look upon the abysses, seated on the cherubim,
and praiseworthy and exalted above all to the ages.
33 Blessed are you on the throne of your kingship, and hymned above all and exalted above all to the ages.
34 Blessed are you in the firmament of heaven, and hymned and glorified to the ages.
35 Bless the Lord, all you works of the Lord;[i]
hymn him and exalt him above all to the ages.
36 Bless the Lord, you heavens;
hymn him and exalt him above all to the ages.
37 Bless the Lord, you angels of the Lord;
hymn him and exalt him above all to the ages.
38 Bless the Lord, all you waters above the heaven;
hymn him and exalt him above all to the ages.

39 Bless the Lord, all you powers;[j]
hymn him and exalt him above all to the ages.
40 Bless the Lord, sun and moon;
hymn him and exalt him above all to the ages.
41 Bless the Lord, you stars of heaven;
hymn him and exalt him above all to the ages.
42 Bless the Lord, every shower and dew;
hymn him and exalt him above all to the ages.
43 Bless the Lord, all you winds;
hymn him and exalt him above all to the ages.
44 Bless the Lord, fire and burning heat;
hymn him and exalt him above all to the ages.
45 Bless the Lord, chill and scorching;[k]
hymn him and exalt him above all to the ages.
46 Bless the Lord, dews and snowfalls;
hymn him and exalt him above all to the ages.
47 Bless the Lord, nights and days;
hymn him and exalt him above all to the ages.
48 Bless the Lord, light and darkness;
hymn him and exalt him above all to the ages.
49 Bless the Lord, frost and cold;
hymn him and exalt him above all to the ages.
50 Bless the Lord, hoarfrosts and snows;
hymn him and exalt him above all to the ages.
51 Bless the Lord, lightnings and clouds;
hymn him and exalt him above all to the ages.
52 Let the earth bless the Lord;
let it hymn him and exalt him above all to the ages.
53 Bless the Lord, mountains and hills;
hymn him and exalt him above all to the ages.
54 Bless the Lord, all things that spring up on the earth;
hymn him and exalt him above all to the ages.
55 Bless the Lord, you springs;
hymn him and exalt him above all to the ages.

56 Bless the Lord, seas and rivers;
hymn him and exalt him above all to the ages.
57 Bless the Lord, you sea monsters[l] and all things that move in the waters;
hymn him and exalt him above all to the ages.
58 Bless the Lord, all you birds of heaven;
hymn him and exalt him above all to the ages.
59 Bless the Lord, you wild beasts and all you cattle;
hymn him and exalt him above all to the ages.
60 Bless the Lord, you sons of human beings;
hymn him and exalt him above all to the ages.
61 Bless the Lord, Israel;
hymn him and exalt him above all to the ages.
62 Bless the Lord, you priests of the Lord;
hymn him and exalt him above all to the ages.
63 Bless the Lord, you slaves of the Lord;
hymn him and exalt him above all to the ages.
64 Bless the Lord, you spirits and souls of the righteous;
hymn him and exalt him above all to the ages.
65 Bless the Lord, you who are holy and lowly in heart;
hymn him and exalt him above all to the ages.
66 Bless the Lord, Hananiah, Azariah, Mishael;[m]
hymn him and exalt him above all to the ages;
for he has drawn us out of Hades and saved us from the hand of death and rescued us from the midst of the burning flame and from the midst of the fire he rescued us.
67 Give thanks to the Lord, for he is kind, for his mercy is to the ages.[n] 68 Bless, all you who revere the Lord, the God of gods;
hymn him and give thanks,
for his mercy is to the ages.[o]

Notes

- a (1:1) Inserted after Dan 3:23. The Old Greek opens instead: "So Hananiah and Azariah and Mishael prayed and sang hymns to the Lord when the king commanded that they be thrown into the furnace."
- b (1:9) Nebuchadnezzar, or, in the author's own day, perhaps Antiochus IV Epiphanes (175–164 BC).
- c (1:13) Gen 15:5; 22:17.
- d (1:15) Compare Hos 3:4. The line fits the time when the temple worship was halted (167–164 BC; 1 Macc 1:41–64), as many hold.
- e (1:16) Ps 51:17.
- f (1:17) The Greek line "and be fully accomplished behind you" (ekteleisai opisthen sou) is obscure; the Old Greek, as reported, reads differently here, and some correct the text to "and may we wholly follow you."
- g (1:24) Greek "forty-nine cubits," about 22 m; a cubit is about 18 inches (45 cm).
- h (1:31) The order of verses 31–34 differs somewhat between Theodotion and the Old Greek, as reported.
- i (1:35) Verses 35–68 are the canticle known from its Latin opening as the Benedicite. The refrain renders hymneite kai hyperypsoute auton eis tous aiōnas.
- j (1:39) The heavenly hosts.
- k (1:45) The sequence of the elements named in verses 42–51 differs between Theodotion and the Old Greek, as reported.
- l (1:57) Greek kētē, the great creatures of the sea, including whales.
- m (1:66) Dan 1:6–7: Shadrach, Abednego and Meshach.
- n (1:67) Ps 136:1.
- o (1:68) The Greek and Latin text of Daniel continues at 3:24 of the Hebrew-Aramaic ("Then King Nebuchadnezzar was astonished…"), numbered Dan 3:91 in the Vulgate.

Additions to Daniel: Susanna

Apocrypha

Chapter 1

1 There was a man living in Babylon, and his name was Joakim.[a] 2 And he took a wife whose name was Susanna,[b] daughter of Hilkiah, very beautiful and one who feared the Lord. 3 Her parents, too, were just people, and they had instructed their daughter in keeping with Moses' law. 4 Joakim was extremely wealthy, and next to his house he had a garden; the Jews regularly visited him, since he was the most respected of all of them.

5 And two elders from the people were appointed judges in that year, about whom the Master had spoken: "Lawlessness came out of Babylon, from elders who were judges, who seemed to guide the people."[c] 6 These men spent much time in Joakim's house, and all who had cases to be judged would come to them there. 7 And when the people went away at midday, Susanna would go in and walk about in her husband's garden. 8 And the two elders watched her every day going in and walking about, and they came to be in lust for her. 9 And they twisted their own minds and turned their eyes away so as not to look to heaven or remember just judgments. 10 And both were pierced with desire for her, yet they did not disclose their pain to each other, 11 for they were ashamed to disclose their lust, that they wished to lie with her. 12 And they watched eagerly every day to see her. 13 They said to each other, "Let's go home; it is time for lunch." So they left and separated. 14 And turning back they came to the same place, and when they questioned each other about the reason, they owned up to their lust. And then together they fixed a time when they would be able to find her alone.

15 And it happened, while they were watching for a fit day, that she went in as on the day before and the day before that, with only two maidservants, and she wished to bathe in the garden, for it was hot.[d]

16 And there was no one there except the two elders, who had hidden and were watching her. 17 And she said to the maids, “Bring me olive oil and soap, and shut the doors of the garden, so that I may bathe.” 18 And they did just as she told them: they closed the garden doors, then slipped out through the side doors to fetch what she had asked for; and the elders they never saw, since these were in hiding. 19 And it happened, when the maids had gone out, that the two elders got up and ran to her and said, 20 “Look, the doors of the garden are shut, and no one sees us, and we are in desire for you; so agree with us and be with us. 21 But if not, we will testify against you that a young man was with you and that this is why you sent the maids away from you.” 22 Susanna groaned and said, “I am trapped on all sides. If I do this, it means my death; if I refuse, I will not get away from you. 23 Better that I refrain and fall into your hands than that I sin in the Lord’s sight.” 24 Then Susanna shouted aloud, and the pair of elders shouted out against her as well. 25 And one of them ran and opened the doors of the garden. 26 And when those in the house heard the outcry in the garden, they rushed in by the side door to see what had happened to her. 27 And when the elders told their tale, the slaves were deeply ashamed, for never had such a word been spoken about Susanna.
28 And it happened on the next day, when the people gathered to her husband Joakim, that the two elders came, full of their lawless intent against Susanna, to have her put to death. 29 And they said before the people, “Send for Susanna, daughter of Hilkiah, who is Joakim’s wife.”
And they sent. 30 And she came, and her parents and her children and all her relatives. 31 Now Susanna was exceedingly delicate and beautiful in appearance. 32 And the lawless men ordered her to be unveiled, for she was veiled, so that they might take their fill of her beauty. 33
And those with her and all who saw her were weeping. 34 Then the pair of elders rose in the middle of the people and placed their hands on her head.[e] 35 But she, in tears, gazed up heavenward, because her heart had put its trust in the Lord. 36 And the elders said, “While we were walking about in the garden by ourselves, this woman came in with two maids, and she shut the doors of the garden and sent the maids away. 37 Then a youth, who was lying hidden there, approached her and lay with her. 38 And we were in a corner of the garden, and seeing the lawlessness we ran to them; 39 and though we saw the two of them together, we could not hold him, since he was stronger than we were; he opened the doors and sprang out. 40 But we seized this woman and questioned her as to who the young man was, 41 and she refused to tell us. This is our testimony." Because they were elders and judges of the people, the assembly believed them and sentenced her to death.

42 And Susanna cried out with a loud voice and said, "God of the age, who knows hidden things, who knows all things before they come to be, 43 you know that they have testified falsely against me. And see, I am dying, though I have done none of the things that these men have wickedly made up against me." 44 And the Lord heard her voice. 45 And as she was being led away to be destroyed, God stirred up the holy spirit of a young boy whose name was Daniel,[f] 46 and he shouted with a loud voice, "I am clean of the blood of this woman!" 47 Then the whole people swung round toward him and said, "What is this you have just said?" 48 And he, standing in their midst, said, "Are you such fools, sons of Israel? Without examining and without learning the plain truth, have you condemned a daughter of Israel? 49 Go back to the place of judgment, for these men have testified falsely against her."
50 So the whole people hurried back. And the elders said to him, "Come, take your seat in our midst and make it known to us, since God has granted you the rank of an elder." 51 Daniel said to them, "Set the two a good distance apart, one from the other, and I will put them to the question." 52 And when they had been separated one from the other, he called one of them and said to him, "You who have grown old in days of evil, now your sins have come home, which you committed before, 53 judging unjust judgments, condemning the innocent and letting the guilty go free, though the Lord says, 'The innocent and the righteous you shall not kill.'[g] 54 Now then, if you really saw her, tell me: under what tree did you see them having intercourse with each other?" And he said, "Under a mastic tree."[h] 55 And Daniel said, "Well have you lied against your own head; for already the angel of God has received the sentence from God and will split you in two." 56 And putting him aside, he ordered them to bring the other, and said to him, "Offspring of Canaan and not of Judah, beauty has deceived you, and desire has twisted your heart. 57 This is how you were dealing with the daughters of Israel, and they were having intercourse with you out of fear; but a daughter of Judah would not endure your lawlessness. 58 Now tell me: beneath which tree did you see them having sex?" He answered, "Under an evergreen oak."[i] 59 And Daniel said to him, "Well have you too lied against your own head; for the angel of God is waiting with the sword to saw you in two, so as to destroy you both." 60 And the whole assembly cried out with a loud voice and blessed God, who saves those who hope in him. 61 And they rose up against the two elders, because Daniel had convicted them out of their own mouth of having testified falsely, and they did to them just as they had wickedly planned to do to their neighbor; 62 acting according to the law of Moses,[j] they killed them. And innocent blood was saved on that day. 63 And Hilkiah and his wife gave praise for their daughter, with Joakim her husband and all her relatives, because nothing shameful was found in her. 64 And Daniel became great before the people from that day onward.[k]

Notes

- a (1:1) In the Latin Vulgate and Catholic Bibles this book is Daniel 13. Verses 1–5a are lacking in the Old Greek, which begins abruptly with the elders.
- b (1:2) Hebrew shoshannah, "lily."
- c (1:5) The saying is not found in the Old Testament; some compare Jer 29:20–23, where two false prophets in Babylon, Ahab and Zedekiah, are condemned for adultery.
- d (1:15) Verses 15–18 have no counterpart in the Old Greek, which tells the story without the bath.
- e (1:34) Lev 24:14.
- f (1:45) The Old Greek, as reported, reads instead that "an angel of the Lord gave a spirit of understanding to a young man," Daniel.
- g (1:53) Exod 23:7.
- h (1:54) Greek schinos, the mastic or lentisk, a small evergreen shrub. Daniel answers with a pun: schinos / schisei, "will split." An English imitation would be "under a clove tree … the angel will cleave you."

- i (1:58) Greek prinos, the holm oak (Quercus ilex). The pun is prinos / prisai, “to saw.” An English imitation would be “under a yew … to hew you.”
- j (1:62) Deut 19:16–21. The Old Greek, as reported, says that they gagged them, led them out, and threw them into a ravine, and that the angel of the Lord cast fire between them.
- k (1:64) The Old Greek ends instead with praise of the young: “For this reason the young are beloved of Jacob for their simplicity…,” as reported.

Additions to Daniel: Bel and the Dragon

Apocrypha

Chapter 1

Bel 1 King Astyages was gathered to his fathers, and Cyrus the Persian received his kingdom.[a] 2 And Daniel lived as a companion of the king and was honored above all his Friends.[b] 3 And the Babylonians had an idol whose name was Bel,[c] and there were spent on it each day twelve artabas of fine flour and forty sheep and six measures of wine. 4 And the king revered it and would go each day to bow down to it, but Daniel bowed down to his own God. 5 And the king said to him, "Why do you not bow down to Bel?" And he said, "Because I do not revere idols made by hand, but the living God, who created the heaven and the earth and has lordship over all flesh." 6 The king asked him, "Don't you agree that Bel is a living god? Can't you see how much he consumes every day?" 7 Daniel laughed and said, "Let no one mislead you, O king: this thing is clay within and bronze without, and never has it eaten or drunk a thing." 8 The king was furious and summoned his priests. He told them, "Unless you tell me who is consuming these supplies, you will die. 9 But if you can prove that Bel consumes them, Daniel will die, because he has insulted Bel." Daniel told the king, "Let it be as you say."

10 Now the priests of Bel were seventy, besides their wives and children. And the king went with Daniel into the house of Bel. 11 And the priests of Bel said, "See, we are going outside; and you, O king, set out the food and mix the wine and put it out, and shut the door and seal it with your signet ring. 12 Come in at dawn tomorrow, and if you do not find that Bel has eaten everything, we will die—otherwise Daniel, who is lying about us, will." 13 But they were unconcerned, for they had made a hidden entrance under the table, and through it they would go in continually and consume the things. 14 And it happened, when they had gone out, that the king set out the food for Bel. And Daniel ordered his servants, and they brought ashes and sifted them through the whole temple in the presence of the king alone. And they went out and shut the door and sealed it with the king's signet ring and departed. 15 And the priests came in the night, as was their habit, with their wives and children, and they ate and drank everything up.

16 And the king rose early in the morning, and Daniel with him. 17 And he said, "Are the seals unbroken, Daniel?" And he said, "They are unbroken, O king." 18 And it happened, as soon as the doors were opened, that the king looked at the table and cried out with a loud voice, "Great are you, Bel, and with you there is no deceit, not even one!" 19 And Daniel laughed and held back the king from going in, and said, "Look now at the floor and take note whose footprints these are."
20 The king said, "I see the tracks of men, of women, and of children." 21 The king was furious; he arrested the priests along with their wives and children, and they pointed out the secret doors by which they entered to eat what was set on the table. 22 And the king killed them and handed Bel over to Daniel, and he overturned it and its temple.[d]
The Dragon 23 And there was a great dragon,[e] and the Babylonians revered it. 24 And the king said to Daniel, "You will not say that this one too is bronze! See, it lives and eats and drinks; you cannot say that this is not a living god. So bow down to it." 25 And Daniel said, "I will bow down to the Lord my God, for he is a living God. 26 But you, O king, give me authority, and I will kill the dragon without sword or rod." And the king said, "I give it to you." 27 And Daniel took pitch and fat and hair, and boiled them together and made cakes and put them into the dragon's mouth; and the dragon ate and burst open. And he said, "See the things you revere!" 28 And it happened, when the Babylonians heard it, that they were greatly indignant and gathered against the king and said, "The king has become a Jew! He has torn down Bel and killed the dragon and slaughtered the priests." 29 And they came to the king and said, "Hand Daniel over to us; otherwise we will kill you and your household." 30 And the king saw that they pressed him hard, and being forced, he handed Daniel over to them. 31 And they threw him into the lions' pit, and he was there six days.[f] 32 And in the pit there were seven lions, and they had been given every day two bodies and two sheep; but at that time they were not given them, so that they would devour Daniel.

33 Now the prophet Habakkuk was in Judea;[g] he had cooked a stew, crumbled bread into a bowl, and was heading to the field to bring it to the harvesters. 34 And the angel of the Lord said to Habakkuk, "Take the meal that you have to Babylon, to Daniel, into the lions' pit." 35 Habakkuk said, "Lord, Babylon I have never laid eyes on, and the pit I do not know." 36 And the angel of the Lord took hold of the crown of his head, and carrying him by the hair of his head, set him down in Babylon above the pit, in the rush of his spirit.[h] 37 And Habakkuk shouted, saying, "Daniel, Daniel, take the meal that God has sent you!" 38 And Daniel said, "For you have remembered me, O God, and you have not forsaken those who love you." 39 And Daniel got up and ate; and the angel of God at once returned Habakkuk to his own place.
40 And on the seventh day the king came to mourn Daniel, and he came to the pit and looked in, and there sat Daniel. 41 Then the king shouted, "You are great, Lord, God of Daniel, and there is no god but you!" 42 And he drew him out, and the ones who had been the cause of his ruin he threw into the pit, and they were devoured instantly before his face.[i]

Notes

- a (1:1) In the Latin Vulgate and Catholic Bibles this book is Daniel 14. Astyages, the last king of the Medes, was overthrown by Cyrus about 550 BC; Cyrus took Babylon in 539 BC. The Old Greek has no such opening. After its title, it begins by introducing a priest named Daniel, son of Abal, who was a companion of the king of Babylon.
- b (1:2) "Friends" was a court title.
- c (1:3) Bel ("lord") is Marduk, the god of Babylon. Twelve artabas are about 19 bushels (about 670 liters); six metrētai are about 60 gallons (about 230 liters), as these measures are usually reckoned.
- d (1:22) The Old Greek, as reported, says that the king handed Bel over to Daniel and that Daniel destroyed it.

- e (1:23) Greek drakōn, a great serpent. The cult of a living serpent is otherwise unattested at Babylon; compare the mušḫuššu dragon of Marduk on the Ishtar Gate.
- f (1:31) Compare Dan 6:16–24, where Daniel spends one night with the lions under Darius.
- g (1:33) The prophet of the book of Habakkuk, of the late 7th century BC.
- h (1:36) Compare Ezek 8:3. "His spirit" may be the angel's or God's.
- i (1:42) Compare Dan 6:24. The Old Greek, as reported, ends with the king's praise of "the Lord God" and adds no further notice.

1 Maccabees

Apocrypha

Chapter 1

1 After Alexander son of Philip, the Macedonian,[a] who had come out of the land of the Kittim,[b] had defeated Darius, king of the Persians and the Medes, he became king in his place, having first ruled over Greece.[c] 2 He fought many wars, seized fortresses, and put kings to death. 3 He pushed on to the far ends of the earth and plundered a host of nations. When the earth fell silent before him, he grew proud, and his heart swelled with arrogance. 4 He built up a very powerful army and ruled over lands, nations and princes, who paid him tribute.
5 After this he took to his bed and knew that he was dying. 6 So he called in his officers, the nobles who had grown up with him from boyhood, and while he was still alive he split his kingdom among them. 7 Alexander had reigned twelve years when he died.[d] 8 Then his officers took control, each in his own territory. 9 When he died, they all put on royal crowns, as did their sons for many years after them, and they brought great suffering to the earth.
10 From them sprang a sinful shoot: Antiochus Epiphanes,[e] King Antiochus's son, who had once been held hostage at Rome. He took the throne in the year 137 of the kingdom of the Greeks (175 BC).[f] 11 In those days some renegades came out of Israel and persuaded many, saying, "Come, let us make a treaty with the nations around us, for ever since we kept ourselves apart from them, many troubles have overtaken us." 12 The proposal pleased them, 13 and a number of the people were quick to go to the king, who gave them permission to adopt the customs of the Gentiles. 14 So they built a gymnasium[g] in Jerusalem in keeping with Gentile custom, 15 disguised their circumcision,[h] and abandoned the holy covenant. They joined themselves to the Gentiles and sold themselves to do evil.

16 When Antiochus saw that his rule was secure, he set his mind on becoming king of the land of Egypt as well, so that he might rule over both kingdoms. 17 He invaded Egypt with a massive force, with chariots, elephants, cavalry, and a large fleet. 18 He waged war against Ptolemy king of Egypt,[i] and Ptolemy turned back before him and fled, and many fell wounded. 19 They captured the fortified cities in the land of Egypt, and he carried off the plunder of the land.
20 After his conquest of Egypt, Antiochus turned back in the year 143 (169 BC).[j] He marched against Israel, coming up to Jerusalem with a massive force. 21 In his pride he entered the sanctuary and carried off the golden altar,[k] the lampstand that gave light, and all its equipment, 22 the table for the bread of the Presence,[l] the libation cups and bowls, the gold censers, the curtain, and the crowns; and he peeled away all the gilded decoration from the temple's facade. 23 He took the silver and the gold and the precious vessels, and he took whatever hidden treasures he found. 24 Gathering everything up, he went back to his own land. He had committed murder and had spoken with great arrogance. 25 Deep grief came over Israel in every place where they lived. 26 Leaders and elders groaned; girls and youths lost their strength; the women's beauty faded. 27 Every bridegroom took up a lament, and the bride sitting in her chamber went into mourning. 28
The land quaked for those who lived in it, and the whole house of Jacob was clothed in shame.
29 Two years later the king sent a chief tax collector[m] to the cities of Judah, and he came to Jerusalem with a massive force. 30 He spoke to them with peaceful words, but deceitfully, and they believed him.
Then he fell on the city without warning, dealt it a heavy blow, and killed many people of Israel. 31 He looted the city and burned it, and he demolished its houses and the walls that surrounded it. 32 Women and children they carried away as captives, and the cattle they took for themselves. 33 Next they walled the City of David with a strong, high wall and powerful towers, and they used it as their fortress.[n] 34 They stationed a sinful people there, lawless men, and these entrenched themselves in it. 35 They stocked it with weapons and provisions, and they collected the spoils of Jerusalem and stored them there. It became a dangerous snare, [36] an ambush against the sanctuary, an evil adversary[o] to Israel at all times. [37] Around the sanctuary they shed innocent blood, and they defiled the sanctuary. [38] Because of them the people of Jerusalem fled. The city became a home for foreigners; it became foreign to its own offspring, and its children abandoned it. [39] Her sanctuary lay as barren as a desert; her festivals were turned to mourning, her sabbaths to disgrace, and her honor to scorn. [40] Her disgrace became as great as her glory had been, and her exaltation was turned into mourning.

[41] Then the king wrote to his whole kingdom that all should be one people [42] and that each should give up their own customs. All the nations accepted the king's command. [43] Many Israelites, too, were content with his cult: they offered sacrifices to idols and desecrated the sabbath. [44] The king also sent letters by messengers to Jerusalem and the cities of Judah, ordering them to follow customs foreign to the land: [45] to end the whole burnt offerings, sacrifices and drink offerings in the sanctuary, and to defile the sabbaths and festivals, [46] to defile the sanctuary and those who were holy, [47] to build altars, sacred precincts, and idol shrines, to sacrifice pigs and other unclean animals, [48] and to leave their sons uncircumcised. They were to make themselves abhorrent with every kind of impurity and profanation, [49] so that they would forget the law and change all its ordinances. [50] Whoever did not obey the king's command was to die.

[51] In words like these he wrote to his whole kingdom. He appointed inspectors over all the people and ordered the cities of Judah to offer sacrifice, city by city. [52] Many of the people flocked to them, all who were deserting the law, and they wrought evil in the land. [53] They drove Israel into hiding in every place where they could take refuge. [54] On the fifteenth day of Kislev (in November–December), in the year 145 (167 BC),[p] they set up a desolating abomination[q] on the altar of burnt offering, and they built altars in the towns all around Judah. [55] They burned incense at the doors of houses and in the streets. [56] Any books of the law they found, they tore up and burned. [57] Anyone found possessing a book of the covenant, and anyone who kept to the law, was put to death by the king's decree. [58] Month after month they used their power against the Israelites who were found in the towns.

59 On the twenty-fifth day of each month they offered sacrifices on the pagan altar that had been placed on top of the altar of burnt offering.[r] 60 As the decree required, they executed women who had circumcised their children, 61 and they hung the infants from their mothers' necks; they also killed their families and those who had circumcised them. 62 Yet many in Israel held firm and made up their minds that they would not eat anything unclean. 63 They chose to die rather than be defiled by food or profane the holy covenant, and they died. 64 Very great wrath came upon Israel.[s]

Notes

- a (1:1) Alexander the Great (356–323 BC), son of Philip II of Macedon. The name Alexander means "defender of men."
- b (1:1) Greek Chettiim. The Kittim were originally the people of Kition in Cyprus; the name came to be used for the peoples of the west across the sea, here the Macedonians and Greeks.
- c (1:1) Or "he became king in his place, the first to rule over Greece." The sense of the Greek is uncertain; Alexander ruled Greece before defeating Darius III of Persia (331 BC).
- d (1:7) Alexander reigned 336–323 BC.
- e (1:10) Antiochus IV (reigned 175–164 BC). Epiphanes means "manifest," a title claiming that a god was made visible in him.
- f (1:10) Greek: in the 137th year of the kingdom of the Greeks, that is, the Seleucid era, which began with Seleucus I. 1 Maccabees generally counts its years from the spring of 311 BC, so year 137 ran from spring 175 to spring 174 BC. Some of its dates appear to use the reckoning from autumn 312 BC, and dates converted here may be a year off.
- g (1:14) A Greek athletic and educational center, where men exercised naked.
- h (1:15) Literally "made foreskins for themselves," that is, they underwent a procedure to hide their circumcision.
- i (1:18) Ptolemy VI Philometor (reigned 180–145 BC).
- j (1:20) Greek: in the 143rd year (Seleucid era; see note on 1:10).
- k (1:21) The altar of incense, overlaid with gold (Exodus 30:1–10).
- l (1:22) Literally "the table of the setting out," the table for the sacred loaves (Exodus 25:23–30).
- m (1:29) Literally "a ruler of tribute." 2 Maccabees 5:24 names him Apollonius, the commander of the Mysians.
- n (1:33) Greek akra. The Akra was a fortress near the temple held by Seleucid troops until Simon captured it in 141 BC (13:49–51). Its exact location is debated.
- o (1:36) Greek diabolos, "slanderer" or "adversary."

- p (1:54) Greek: the fifteenth day of Chaseleu (the Hebrew month Kislev, the ninth month), in the 145th year of the Seleucid era (see note on 1:10). The year ran from spring 167 to spring 166 BC, so this was December 167 BC.
- q (1:54) Greek bdelygma erēmōseōs, the "abomination of desolation" of Daniel 9:27; 11:31; 12:11 (compare Matthew 24:15; Mark 13:14). It was probably a pagan altar or sacred object set on top of the altar of burnt offering (see 1:59; 6:7). 2 Maccabees 6:2 says the temple was rededicated to Olympian Zeus. The Hebrew phrase in Daniel (shiqquts shomem) may be a mocking wordplay on Baal Shamem, "lord of heaven."
- r (1:59) That is, on the twenty-fifth of Kislev, December 167 BC. Exactly three years later the temple was rededicated on the same day (4:52–54).
- s (1:64) Or "Very great wrath was upon Israel." The wrath may be God's or the persecutor's.

Chapter 2

1 At that time Mattathias[a] son of John, son of Simeon, a priest descended from Joarib,[b] left Jerusalem and made his home at Modein.[c]
2 He had five sons: John, called Gaddi; 3 Simon, called Thassi; 4 Judas, called Maccabeus;[d] 5 Eleazar, called Avaran; and Jonathan, called Apphus.[e]
6 He saw the blasphemous things being done in Judah and in Jerusalem, 7 and he said, "What a tragedy! Why was I born to see my people and the holy city ruined, and to sit by while the city is delivered to its enemies and the sanctuary to outsiders? 8 Her temple has become like a man disgraced;[f] 9 the vessels that were her glory have been carried off as captives. Her infants have been killed in her streets, her young men by the enemy's sword. 10 What nation has not taken a share of her royal possessions[g] and not seized her plunder? 11 All her ornaments have been stripped away; she was free, and now she is a slave. 12 Look at it! Our holy place, our beauty and our glory lie in ruins, and the Gentiles have defiled them. 13 Why should we go on living?" 14 Mattathias and his sons then tore their garments, wrapped themselves in sackcloth, and wept bitterly.
15 The king's officers who were forcing the people to abandon their religion came to the town of Modein to make them offer sacrifice. 16 Many from Israel went over to them, but Mattathias and his sons gathered together. 17 Then the king's officers spoke to Mattathias and said, "You are a leader in this town, honored and great, and supported by sons and brothers. 18 So come forward now and carry out the king's order, as all the nations have, along with the leading men of Judah and those still left in Jerusalem. You and your household will then be counted as Friends of the King,[h] and silver, gold and many gifts will be your reward, yours and your sons'." 19 But Mattathias answered in a loud voice, "Even if all the nations within the king's realm obey him, each of them forsaking the worship of their ancestors and choosing to follow his commands, 20 still I, my sons, and my brothers will walk in our ancestors' covenant. 21 Heaven forbid that we should abandon the law and its ordinances! 22 The king's words we will not heed, nor will we swerve from our worship to the right or to the left." 23 As soon as he had said this, a Jew stepped forward in full view of everyone to offer a sacrifice on the altar at Modein, as the king had ordered. 24 Mattathias saw it and was fired with zeal; he trembled to his depths[i] and let his rightful anger rise. Running forward, he cut the man down on the altar. 25 He also killed the royal officer who was forcing people to sacrifice, then and there, and he pulled the altar down. 26 So he showed his zeal for the law, as Phinehas had done to Zimri son of Salu.[j]

27 Then Mattathias cried out in the town with a loud voice, "Everyone who is zealous for the law and upholds the covenant, come out and follow me!" 28 He and his sons fled to the hills, leaving behind everything they owned in the town.
29 Then many who sought righteousness and justice went down into the desert to make their homes there, 30 they and their sons, their wives, and their livestock, because hardships pressed hard on them. 31 Word came to the king's officers and to the soldiers in Jerusalem, the City of David, that men who had disobeyed the king's command had gone to hide in the wilderness. 32 Many hurried after them, overtook them, and camped opposite them. They prepared to attack them on the sabbath day. 33 "Enough!" they told them. "Come out, obey the king's word, and live." 34 "We will not come out," they replied, "and we will not obey the king's word and desecrate the sabbath day." 35 Then the enemy quickly attacked them. 36 But they did not answer them; they did not hurl a stone at them or block up their hiding places. 37

They said, “Let us all die with clean hands. Heaven and earth are our witnesses that you are killing us unjustly.” 38 So the enemy attacked them on the sabbath, and about a thousand of them died, along with their wives, children and livestock.

39 When Mattathias and his friends learned of it, they grieved deeply for them. 40 They said to each other, “If we all follow the example of our brothers and will not fight the Gentiles for our lives and our laws, they will quickly erase us from the earth.” 41 So that day they resolved, “If anyone comes to attack us on the sabbath day, let us fight against him, so that we do not all die as our brothers died in their hiding places.”

42 Then a band of Hasideans[k] joined them, strong fighters from Israel, every one of them devoted to the law of his own free will. 43 Everyone who had fled from the troubles joined them and strengthened them. 44 They raised an army and, in their anger, cut down sinners and, in their fury, those who broke the law; the survivors escaped to the Gentiles to be safe. 45 Mattathias and his sons went around and tore down the altars, 46 and every uncircumcised boy they came upon inside Israel’s territory they circumcised by force. 47 They pursued the proud, and the work went well under their hands. 48 They rescued the law from the power of the Gentiles and of kings, and they did not let the sinner triumph.[l]

49 As the days of Mattathias’s death drew near, he told his sons, “Now arrogance and rebuke have taken firm hold; it is a season of overthrow and blazing wrath. 50 Now, my children, be zealous for the law, and give your lives for the covenant of our ancestors. 51 Remember the deeds our ancestors did in their generations, and you will win great honor and an everlasting name. 52 Was not Abraham found faithful when he was tested, and it was credited to him as righteousness?[m] 53 Joseph kept the commandment in his time of distress and became lord of Egypt. 54 Phinehas our forefather, for his burning zeal, was granted the covenant of an everlasting priesthood.[n] 55 Joshua,[o] because he carried out the command, became a judge in Israel. 56 Caleb, for testifying before the congregation, was given land as his heritage. 57 David, for his mercy, inherited a royal throne forever. 58 Elijah, because of his great zeal for the law, was taken up into heaven. [59] Hananiah, Azariah, and Mishael believed and were saved from the flame.[p] [60] Daniel, because of his innocence, was rescued from the mouth of the lions. [61] So consider this, generation after generation: none who hope in him will lack strength. [62] Do not fear the words of a sinner, for his glory will end in dung and worms. [63] He is honored today, but tomorrow he will be nowhere to be found; he has gone back to dust, and his plans have come to nothing. [64] My children, be strong and courageous for the law, for by it you will gain glory.

[65] "Here is your brother Simeon.[q] I know he is a man of good counsel; always listen to him. He will be a father to you. [66] Judas Maccabeus, strong and mighty since boyhood, shall lead your army and wage the war against the peoples.[r] [67] Gather around you all who observe the law, and avenge the wrongs done to your people. [68] Pay back the Gentiles in full, and hold fast to the commands of the law."

[69] Then he blessed them and was gathered to his ancestors. [70] He died in the year 146 (166 BC),[s] and his sons buried him in his ancestors' tomb at Modein. All Israel mourned him deeply.

Notes

- a (2:1) Mattathias (Hebrew Mattithyahu) means "gift of Yahweh." His family is known as the Hasmoneans, after an ancestor named Hasmon (Josephus, Antiquities 12.265).
- b (2:1) Joarib is the priestly family of Jehoiarib (1 Chronicles 24:7), the first of the twenty-four priestly divisions. Joarib means "Yahweh contends."
- c (2:1) Modein was a village about 17 miles (27 km) northwest of Jerusalem.
- d (2:4) Maccabeus is usually explained as "the hammer" (from Hebrew or Aramaic maqqabah), but the meaning is uncertain; other proposals include "designated by Yahweh." The meanings of the other sons' nicknames (Gaddi, Thassi, Avaran, Apphus) are unknown. The sons' names: John means "Yahweh is gracious," Simon "he has heard," Judas (Judah) "praised," Eleazar "God has helped," Jonathan "Yahweh has given."
- e (2:5) Avaran may mean "the piercer," and Apphus "the wary one," but these meanings are uncertain.
- f (2:8) The Greek text reads "like a man of honor," which does not fit the context; many editors read "like a man without honor" (adoxos for endoxos), followed here.
- g (2:10) Or "her palaces"; the Greek basileia can mean either.
- h (2:18) A formal rank at the Seleucid court, bestowing honors and privileges.

- i (2:24) Literally "his kidneys trembled," the kidneys being thought the seat of deep emotion.
- j (2:26) Numbers 25:6–15. Salu (Greek Salom) was Zimri's father.
- k (2:42) Greek Asidaioi, from Hebrew hasidim, "the devout" or "the loyal ones," a group devoted to strict observance of the law.
- l (2:48) Literally "did not give a horn to the sinner." The horn is a symbol of strength.
- m (2:52) Genesis 15:6; 22:1–18.
- n (2:54) Numbers 25:13.
- o (2:55) Greek Iēsous, the Greek form of Joshua. Joshua means "Yahweh saves."
- p (2:59) Daniel 3, where they are known by their Babylonian names Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego.
- q (2:65) That is, Simon (2:3); Simeon is the fuller form of the name.
- r (2:66) Or "fight the people's battle." The Greek is ambiguous.
- s (2:70) Greek: in the 146th year (Seleucid era; see note on 1:10), from spring 166 to spring 165 BC.

Chapter 3

1 Then his son Judas, who was called Maccabeus, rose up to take his place. 2 All his brothers stood by him, as did all who had attached themselves to his father, and they fought Israel's battle gladly. 3 He spread his people's glory far and wide. Like a giant he put on his breastplate; he strapped on his weapons of war and fought battle after battle, guarding the camp with his sword. 4 In his exploits he was like a lion, like a lion's whelp roaring over its prey. 5 He tracked down the lawless and hunted them out, and he gave to the flames those who troubled his people. 6 The lawless shrank back in fear of him, all who practiced lawlessness were thrown into confusion, and deliverance prospered by his hand. 7 He made many kings bitter, but he made Jacob glad by his deeds, and his memory will be a blessing forever. 8
He went through the towns of Judah and wiped out the ungodly from the land,[a] and so he turned wrath away from Israel. 9 His reputation spread to the ends of the earth, and he gathered in those who were dying.

10 Apollonius[b] then mustered Gentiles, along with a large force from Samaria, to make war on Israel. 11 When Judas learned of it, he went out to meet him, defeated him, and killed him. Many fell slain, and the remainder ran away. 12 Then they stripped the dead. Judas kept Apollonius's sword for himself, and he fought with it all his days.

13 Seron, commander of the Syrian army, heard that Judas had gathered a large band around him, an assembly of faithful men who were ready for war. 14 He said, "I will make myself a name and gain glory in the kingdom by fighting Judas and those with him, who treat the king's command with contempt." 15 A strong army of the ungodly once more marched up with him to help him take vengeance on the Israelites. 16 As he neared the pass that climbs to Beth-horon,[c] Judas came out against him with a handful of men. 17 But when they saw the army coming against them, they asked Judas, "How can so few of us fight against so great a horde? We are worn out, having had nothing to eat all day." 18 Judas answered, "It is easy for many to be delivered into the hands of a few. In the sight of Heaven[d] it makes no difference whether it saves by many or by few. 19 Victory in battle does not depend on the size of an army; strength comes from Heaven.
20 These men are coming at us full of insolence and lawlessness, to wipe out us, our wives, and our children, and to plunder us. 21 But we are fighting for our lives and our laws. 22 He himself will crush them before our eyes. As for you, have no fear of them." 23 When he stopped speaking, he charged at them suddenly, and Seron and his army were crushed before him. 24 They pursued them down the slope of Beth-horon to the plain. Some eight hundred of the enemy fell, while the rest escaped into Philistine country. 25 Then Judas and his brothers began to be dreaded, and alarm fell on the nations around them. 26 His fame reached the king, and every nation talked of the battles Judas fought.
27 When King Antiochus heard these reports, he was enraged. He sent orders and assembled all the forces of his kingdom, a very powerful army. 28 He opened his treasury and paid his troops for a year, ordering them to be prepared for any need. 29 Then he found that the money in his treasury had run short and that the revenues from the province were small, because of the strife and disaster he had brought on the land by abolishing the laws that had been in force from ancient times. 30 He was afraid that he would not have enough, as had happened more than once, for the expenses and the gifts that he used to hand out lavishly, more freely than the kings before him.[e] 31

Greatly perplexed, he determined to go to Persia, collect the revenues of those regions, and raise a large sum of money.
32 Lysias, a nobleman of the royal family, he left behind to manage the realm's affairs from the Euphrates River all the way to Egypt's frontier, 33 and to bring up his son Antiochus[f] until he returned. 34 To him he entrusted half the army and the elephants and gave instructions on all his plans, including what to do about the people living in Judea and Jerusalem: 35 Lysias was to send an army against them to break and destroy the strength of Israel and the remnant of Jerusalem, and blot out all memory of them from the place, 36 and settle foreigners throughout their territory and parcel out their land. 37 Then the king took the remaining half of his troops and set out from Antioch, his royal capital, in the year 147 (165 BC).[g] He crossed the river Euphrates and marched through the upper provinces.[h]
38 Lysias chose Ptolemy son of Dorymenes, together with Nicanor and Gorgias, powerful men among the Friends of the King, 39 and sent with them forty thousand foot soldiers and seven thousand horsemen to go into the land of Judah and ravage it, as the king had commanded.
40 So they set out with their whole army, and when they arrived they pitched camp near Emmaus[i] in the lowland. 41 When the traders of the region heard the report of them, they took a great deal of silver and gold, and chains,[j] and came to the camp to buy the Israelites as slaves. Forces from Syria and from the land of the Philistines joined them.
42 Judas and his brothers saw that their troubles had multiplied and that the armies were camped within their borders. They also learned what the king had ordered to be done to the people: total destruction.
43 So they said to one another, "Let us raise up our people and the holy place from their ruin."[k] 44 So the congregation assembled to make ready for war, and to pray and plead for mercy and pity.
45 Jerusalem stood empty, like a desert;
no child of hers went in or out.
The sanctuary was trampled underfoot, foreigners held the fortress,
and it became a lodging for Gentiles.

Jacob lost its joy;
the flute and the harp went quiet.
46 They gathered and came to Mizpah,[l] opposite Jerusalem, because Israel had formerly had a place of prayer at Mizpah. 47 That day they fasted, put on sackcloth, sprinkled ashes on their heads, and tore their clothes. 48 They unrolled the book of the law to inquire into matters about which the Gentiles consulted the images of their idols.[m] 49 They brought the priests' vestments, the firstfruits, and the tithes, and they presented the Nazirites whose days were fulfilled.[n] 50 With loud voices they cried to Heaven: "What are we to do with these people? Where can we take them? 51 Your holy place has been trampled and profaned, and your priests mourn in humiliation. 52 See, the Gentiles have gathered against us to destroy us. You know what they are plotting against us. 53 How can we stand before them unless you help us?" 54
Then the trumpets were blown, and a mighty cry went up.
55 After this Judas appointed officers over the people, commanders of thousands, of hundreds, of fifties, and of tens. 56 Those who were building houses, or were engaged to be married, or were planting vineyards, or were afraid, he told to go back home, each of them, as the law directs.[o] 57 Then the army moved out and camped south of Emmaus. 58 Judas said, "Put on your armor and show courage. Be ready at dawn to fight these Gentiles, who have gathered against us to wipe out us and our holy place. 59 It is better for us to die in battle than to look on while evils befall our nation and the holy place. 60 But whatever Heaven wills, so it will do."

Notes

- a (3:8) Literally "from it," probably meaning the land of Judah.
- b (3:10) Probably the Apollonius of 1:29 (see the note there), governor of Samaria. Apollonius means "belonging to Apollo."
- c (3:16) The road from the coastal plain climbed into the hills through Lower and Upper Beth-horon, about 12 miles (19 km) northwest of Jerusalem. Beth-horon means "house of Horon," a Canaanite god.
- d (3:18) Here and often in 1 Maccabees, "Heaven" is a reverent way of referring to God.

- e (3:30) The Greek of this verse is difficult; literally "as once and twice, for the expenses and gifts which he used to give before with a generous hand, and he surpassed the kings before him."
- f (3:33) Antiochus V Eupator, then a boy of about nine.
- g (3:37) Greek: in the 147th year (Seleucid era; see note on 1:10), spring 165 to spring 164 BC.
- h (3:37) That is, the regions east of the Euphrates.
- i (3:40) Emmaus (later Nicopolis) lay at the edge of the hill country about 19 miles (31 km) west of Jerusalem.
- j (3:41) Swete's Greek text has "servants" (paidas); many editors read "fetters" (pedas), a change of one vowel that suits the context.
- k (3:43) Literally "Let us raise up the overthrow of our people and of the holy things," that is, reverse their ruin.
- l (3:46) Mizpah (Greek Massēpha), about 8 miles (13 km) north of Jerusalem, was an ancient place of assembly and prayer (Judges 20:1; 1 Samuel 7:5–6). Its name means "watchtower."
- m (3:48) The meaning is uncertain. The sense may be that they searched the law for the guidance that pagans sought from their idols, or that the Gentiles had painted images of their idols on the scrolls.
- n (3:49) Nazirites who had completed their vow had to offer sacrifices at the temple (Numbers 6:13–21), which was now impossible.
- o (3:56) Deuteronomy 20:5–8.

Chapter 4

1 Gorgias took a force of five thousand foot soldiers and a thousand choice horsemen, and the detachment set off by night 2 to fall on the Jewish camp and strike them unexpectedly. Men from the citadel served as his guides. 3 Judas got word of it, and with his fighting men he set out to attack the royal army at Emmaus 4 while its forces were still dispersed away from the camp. 5 When Gorgias reached Judas's camp by night, he found no one there. So he went looking for them in the hills, telling himself, "These men are running away from us." 6 At daybreak Judas appeared in the plain with three thousand men, though they lacked the armor and swords they would have wished for. 7 They saw the Gentile camp, strong and fortified, with cavalry ringing it, and these were men trained for war. 8 But Judas told the men with him, "Do not fear their numbers, and do not be shaken by their attack. 9 Think how our forefathers were rescued at the Red Sea when Pharaoh chased after them with his army. 10 And now let us cry out to Heaven to see whether he will favor us, remember the covenant with our ancestors, and shatter this army before us today. 11 Then every nation will know that there is someone who rescues and saves Israel."

12 The foreigners raised their eyes, saw them marching toward them, 13 they came out of their camp to fight. Judas's men sounded the trumpets 14 and the armies clashed. The Gentiles broke and ran into the plain, 15 and all the rear guard died by the sword. The Jews chased them as far as Gazara,[a] the plains of Idumea,[b] Azotus and Jamnia,[c] and around three thousand of the enemy were killed.
16 Returning from the chase, Judas and his troops came back, 17 and he said to the people, "Do not covet the spoils, because more fighting lies before us. 18 Gorgias and his army are in the hills near us. Stand firm now against our enemies and fight them; after that you may boldly take the plunder." 19 Judas had hardly finished speaking when a detachment appeared, peering down from the hills. 20 They saw that their army had been routed and that the camp was being burned, for the smoke they could see made plain what had happened. 21 Grasping this, they were terrified, and when they also saw Judas's army in the plain ready for battle, 22 they all fled into the land of the foreigners. 23 Then Judas went back to plunder the camp, and they seized a great deal of gold and silver, cloth dyed blue and sea purple,[d] and great riches. 24 On their return they sang hymns and praised Heaven: "For he is good; his mercy endures forever."[e] 25 So Israel had a great deliverance that day.
26 The foreigners who got away came to Lysias with a report of everything that had taken place. 27 When he heard it, he was confounded and disheartened, because things had not turned out for Israel as he intended, nor as the king had commanded him. 28 So in the following year he gathered sixty thousand chosen foot soldiers and five thousand horsemen to crush them. 29 They entered Idumea and encamped at Beth-zur,[f] and Judas confronted them with ten thousand men. 30 When he saw the strength of the army, he prayed, "Blessed are you, Savior of Israel, who broke the charge of the mighty warrior through your servant David, and who delivered the Philistine camp into the hands of Jonathan, Saul's son, and his armor-bearer.[g] 31 Shut this army in by the hands of Israel your people, and put them to shame for all their soldiers and horsemen. 32 Make cowards of them; dissolve their bold strength; make them reel in their downfall. 33 Cut them down with the sword of those who love you, and may everyone who knows your name sing your praise." 34 Then both sides engaged, and about five thousand of Lysias's army fell; they fell before them in close combat. 35 Lysias saw that his ranks were broken, and he saw how bold Judas's men were and how ready to live or to die bravely, so he went back to Antioch. There he hired mercenaries, planning to invade Judea again with a still bigger army.

36 Judas and his brothers then said, "Our enemies are defeated. Let us go up now to purify the sanctuary and rededicate it." 37 Then all the army gathered and climbed up to Mount Zion. 38 There they saw the sanctuary desolate, the altar profaned, the gates burned, bushes sprung up in the courts as in a thicket or on a mountainside, and the priests' chambers torn down. 39 They tore their clothes and mourned with loud lament; they sprinkled ashes on their heads 40 and fell face down on the ground. They sounded the signal trumpets and cried out to Heaven.
41 Judas then assigned men to attack those in the fortress while he purified the sanctuary. 42 He chose blameless priests devoted to the law, 43 and they cleansed the sanctuary and carried the stones that had defiled it to an unclean place. 44 They deliberated about what to do with the altar of burnt offering, which had been profaned. 45 A good counsel came to them: they would pull it down, so that it should not stand as a reproach to them, because the Gentiles had polluted it. So they demolished the altar 46 and stored its stones on the temple mount in a suitable place until a prophet should arise to decide what to do with them. 47 Then they took uncut stones, as the law requires,[h] and built a new altar on the model of the former one. 48 They built anew the holy place and the inside of the house, and they sanctified the courts.
49 They made new holy vessels, and they brought the lampstand, the altar of incense, and the table into the temple.[i] 50 They burned incense upon the altar and kindled the lamps of the lampstand, and the temple was filled with light. 51 They placed bread on the table and spread out the curtains; and so all the work they had begun was complete.

52 Early on the twenty-fifth day of the ninth month, the month of Kislev (in November–December), in the year 148 (164 BC),[j] 53 they arose and made the sacrifice the law requires on the altar for burnt offerings that they had newly made. 54 In the same season and on the same day on which the Gentiles had defiled it, the altar was dedicated anew, with songs, harps, lyres, and cymbals.[k] 55 All the people fell on their faces and worshiped and praised Heaven, who had given them success. 56 For eight days they celebrated the dedication of the altar.
They joyfully offered burnt offerings and sacrificed offerings of deliverance and of praise.[l] 57 They adorned the temple's facade with crowns of gold and little shields, renewed the gates and the chambers of the priests, and hung doors on them. 58 The people's joy was immense, and the shame the Gentiles had heaped on them was taken away. 59 Then Judas and his brothers and the whole assembly of Israel decreed that the days of the altar's dedication should be observed with joy and gladness at their season every year for eight days, beginning on the twenty-fifth day of the month of Kislev.[m] 60 At that time they surrounded Mount Zion with high walls and strong towers, so that the Gentiles could not come and trample it as they had done before. 61 He posted troops there to keep it, and he fortified Beth-zur as well,[n] giving the people a stronghold that faced Idumea.

Notes

- a (4:15) Gazara is Gezer, about 20 miles (32 km) west-northwest of Jerusalem.
- b (4:15) So Swete's Greek text, though Idumea lies to the south; many editors read "Judea."
- c (4:15) Azotus is the old Philistine city of Ashdod, and Jamnia is Jabneh (Yavneh), both near the coast.
- d (4:23) Greek hyakinthos and porphyra thalassia, costly cloth colored with dyes made from sea snails.
- e (4:24) Psalm 118:1; 136:1.
- f (4:29) Beth-zur, about 18 miles (29 km) south of Jerusalem, on the border with Idumea. The name means "house of the rock."
- g (4:30) 1 Samuel 17 (David and Goliath) and 1 Samuel 14:1–23 (Jonathan and his armor-bearer).

- h (4:47) Exodus 20:25; Deuteronomy 27:5–6.
- i (4:49) Literally "the altar of burnt offerings and of incense"; the context indicates the incense altar. The table is the table for the sacred loaves.
- j (4:52) Greek: on the twenty-fifth of the ninth month, that is, the month of Chaseleu (Hebrew Kislev), in the 148th year of the Seleucid era (see note on 1:10), December 164 BC.
- k (4:54) The rededication took place three years to the day after the profanation (1:54, 59). 2 Maccabees 10:3 gives two years.
- l (4:56) Or "offerings of well-being"; Greek "sacrifice of salvation and of praise."
- m (4:59) This is the origin of Hanukkah (Hebrew "dedication"), the Feast of Dedication (compare John 10:22), still observed for eight days from the twenty-fifth of Kislev. 2 Maccabees 1:9, 18; 10:6–8 link the eight days to the Festival of Booths. The later custom of lighting lamps is not mentioned in 1 Maccabees; Josephus calls the feast "Lights" (Antiquities 12.325).
- n (4:61) Swete's Greek text has "to guard it" twice; the repetition may be a copying error.

Chapter 5

1 The surrounding nations learned that the altar had been rebuilt and the sanctuary dedicated as before, and they grew furious. 2 They resolved to wipe out the descendants of Jacob living among them, and they began killing and destroying among the people. 3 Judas fought the descendants of Esau in Idumea, at Akrabattene,[a] because they were besieging Israel. He struck them a heavy blow, brought them low, and seized their plunder. 4 He also remembered the wickedness of the sons of Baean,[b] who had been a trap and a stumbling block to the people by lying in ambush for them along the roads. 5 He shut them up in their towers, laid siege to them, and devoted them to destruction.[c] Then he set fire to her towers[d] and burned them with everyone inside. 6 Next he crossed over against the Ammonites, where he found a powerful band and many people, led by Timothy.[e] 7 He fought battle after battle with them; they were shattered before him, and he struck them down. 8 He also took Jazer[f] and its villages and then returned to Judea.

9 Now the Gentiles in Gilead banded together against the Israelites who lived in their territory, to destroy them. These fled to the stronghold of Dathema[g] 10 and sent a letter to Judas and his brothers that said: "The Gentiles around us have joined forces against us to wipe us out. 11 They are preparing to come and seize the stronghold where we have taken refuge, and Timothy is at the head of their army. 12 So come now and rescue us from their grasp, for many of us have already fallen. 13 All our kinsmen in the land of Tob[h] have been killed; their wives, their children, and their goods have been carried off, and about a thousand men have perished there." 14 The letter was still being read when other messengers arrived from Galilee with their clothes torn and gave this report: 15 "From Ptolemais,[i] Tyre, and Sidon, and from all Galilee of the Gentiles,[j] they have mustered against us to annihilate us." 16 When Judas and the people heard this news, a great assembly met to decide what to do for their kinsmen who were in distress and under attack.[k] 17 Judas said to his brother Simon, "Pick your men and go rescue your kinsmen in Galilee. My brother Jonathan and I will go to Gilead." 18 He put Joseph son of Zechariah and Azariah, leaders of the people, in charge of the rest of the army in Judea, to protect it, 19 and gave them this order:

"Take charge of these people, but join no battle with the Gentiles before our return." 20 Three thousand men were allotted to Simon for the march into Galilee, and eight thousand to Judas for Gilead.
21 So Simon marched to Galilee and fought the Gentiles in many battles, and they were defeated by him. 22 He pursued them to the gate of Ptolemais. About three thousand Gentiles were killed, and he took their plunder. 23 He then gathered the Jews of Galilee and Arbatta,[l] along with their wives, children and everything they owned, and brought them to Judea amid great celebration.
24 Judas Maccabeus, with Jonathan his brother, went over the Jordan and marched three days into the desert. 25 There they came upon the Nabateans,[m] who met them peaceably and told them everything that had befallen their kinsmen in Gilead: 26 "Many of them are held captive in Bozrah and Bosor, in Alema, Chaspho, Maked, and Carnaim,[n] all large, fortified towns. 27 Others are shut up in the rest of the towns of Gilead. The enemy plans to attack the strongholds tomorrow, take them, and destroy all of them in a single day." 28 Judas and his army swiftly turned back by the desert road to Bosor.
He took the town, put every male to the sword, seized all its spoil, and burned it to the ground. 29 From there he set off by night and marched to the stronghold.[o] 30 At dawn they looked up, and there was a countless host carrying ladders and siege engines to capture the stronghold, and the attack was under way. 31 Judas saw that the fighting had started, and that the outcry from the town, along with trumpet blasts and loud shouts, was rising to heaven. 32 He told the men of his army, "Fight today for our kinsmen!" 33 He came up behind the enemy in three columns; they sounded the trumpets and cried out in prayer. 34 When Timothy's army realized that it was Maccabeus, they fled from him, and he dealt them a heavy defeat. That day about eight thousand of them fell.

35 Then he turned aside to Alema,[p] attacked and captured it, killed all its males, plundered it, and burned it. 36 Moving on from there, he captured Chaspho, Maked, and Bosor, and the remaining towns of Gilead.
37 After these events Timothy gathered another army and camped opposite Raphon, on the far side of the stream.[q] 38 Judas sent scouts to look over the camp, and they brought him word: "Every Gentile nation round about has rallied to him, a very large force. 39 They have also hired Arabs to help them, and they are camped across the stream, ready to come and attack you." So Judas went to meet them.
40 As Judas and his army came near the stream, Timothy said to his army's officers, "If he crosses to our side first, we will not be able to hold him back, because he will surely beat us. 41 But if he loses his nerve and camps on the other side of the river, we will cross over to him and beat him." 42 When Judas reached the stream, he posted the officers[r] of the people beside it and commanded them, "Let no one pitch camp! Everyone must go into battle." 43 Then he crossed over against them first, with the whole army following, and all the Gentiles were crushed before him. They threw away their weapons and fled to the sacred precinct at Carnaim. 44 But the Jews took the town and burned the precinct with all who were in it. So Carnaim was overthrown, and the enemy could no longer stand against Judas.
45 Then Judas gathered all the Israelites in Gilead, small and great, with their wives, their children, and their goods, a huge throng, to lead them home to Judah's land. 46 They came as far as Ephron,[s] a large and strongly fortified town on the road. There was no way around it to the right or the left; they had to go straight through it. 47 But the townspeople shut them out and blocked the gates with stones. 48 Judas sent them a friendly message: "Let us pass through your land to reach our own. Nobody will be harmed; on foot we will merely pass along." But they refused to open to him. 49 So Judas had it proclaimed throughout the army that each man should take up position where he was. 50 The soldiers took up their positions, and he attacked the town all that day and all night, until the town fell into his hands. 51 Every male he put to the sword; the town he leveled; he stripped it, and he passed through it over the bodies of the slain. 52 Then they crossed the Jordan into the great plain facing Beth-shan.[t] 53 All along the way Judas kept gathering the stragglers and encouraging the people until he reached the land of Judah. 54 With joy and gladness they climbed Mount Zion and offered burnt offerings, because they had returned safely without losing a single man.

55 In the days when Judas and Jonathan were away in Gilead, and Simon their brother in Galilee facing Ptolemais, 56 Joseph son of Zechariah and Azariah, the army commanders, heard about their brave deeds and the battles they had fought. 57 "Let us also make a name for ourselves," they said. "Let us go and fight the Gentiles around us." 58 So they gave orders to the troops under them and marched against Jamnia. 59 Gorgias and his men marched out of the town to give them battle. 60 Joseph and Azariah were routed and chased as far as the borders of Judea; about two thousand of the people of Israel fell that day. 61 The people suffered a great defeat because they did not listen to Judas and his brothers but thought they would do some brave deed. 62 These men were not of the line of those by whose hand deliverance came to Israel.

63 But the warrior Judas and his brothers were greatly honored in the sight of all Israel and of all the Gentiles wherever their name was heard, 64 and people crowded around them to acclaim them.

65 Then Judas went out with his brothers and made war on Esau's descendants in the southern country. He struck Hebron and its villages, tore down its fortifications, and burned its towers all around. 66 Then he set out for the land of the Philistines and passed through Samaria.[u] 67 On that day some priests who wanted to prove their courage fell in battle, for they had gone out to fight without thinking it through. 68 Judas turned toward Azotus in the Philistine land. He demolished their altars, burned the carved images of their gods, looted the towns, and went back to Judea.

Notes

- a (5:3) Akrabattene was probably a district near the Scorpion Pass (Akrabbim, "scorpions") on Judea's southern border; Swete's text has "in Judea," which editors often correct to "in Idumea." The descendants of Esau are the Edomites, here the Idumeans.
- b (5:4) The sons of Baean are otherwise unknown; perhaps a tribe in Transjordan (compare Numbers 32:3, Beon).
- c (5:5) Greek anathematizō, the "devoting" of a defeated enemy to God by total destruction (Hebrew herem).
- d (5:5) The Greek has "her towers," perhaps referring to a town not named.
- e (5:6) Timothy means "honoring God." This Timothy is probably not the same as the one in 2 Maccabees 8:30–33; 10:24–37.
- f (5:8) Jazer was a town in Ammonite territory east of the Jordan.
- g (5:9) The site of Dathema is unknown.
- h (5:13) Greek "the region of Toubias," probably Tob in Transjordan (Judges 11:3–5), or possibly the land of the Tobiad family.
- i (5:15) Ptolemais is the coastal city of Acco.
- j (5:15) Isaiah 9:1.
- k (5:16) Swete's Greek has "attacked by him," perhaps meaning Timothy.
- l (5:23) Arbatta was probably a district in western Galilee or near the coastal plain; its location is uncertain.
- m (5:25) The Nabateans were an Arab people whose kingdom lay southeast of the Dead Sea, with its capital at Petra.
- n (5:26) These towns lay east of the Jordan in the region of the Hauran. Carnaim (Karnaim) is the old Ashteroth-karnaim, "Astarte of the two horns."
- o (5:29) Probably Dathema (5:9).
- p (5:35) Swete's Greek reads "Maapha," probably a copyist's slip for Alema (5:26).
- q (5:37) Greek cheimarrous, a stream that flows in the rainy season (a wadi). Raphon was in the Hauran.
- r (5:42) Or "the scribes"; the Greek grammateis can denote officers who kept the muster rolls (Deuteronomy 20:5).
- s (5:46) Ephron was east of the Jordan, perhaps about 9 miles (14 km) east of Beth-shan.

- t (5:52) Beth-shan (Scythopolis), in the Jordan valley south of the Sea of Galilee.
- u (5:66) So Swete's Greek text, though Samaria lies far to the north; many editors read "Marisa" (Mareshah), which lay between Hebron and the Philistine coast (compare 2 Maccabees 12:35).

Chapter 6

1 King Antiochus, meanwhile, was marching through the upper provinces. He heard that in Persia there was a city, Elymais,[a] renowned for its wealth in silver and gold, 2 and that its temple was very wealthy, containing gold armor,[b] breastplates and weapons left there by Alexander son of Philip, the Macedonian king who had been the first to rule the Greeks. 3 So he went and tried to capture the city and loot it, but he could not, because the citizens had learned of his plan. 4 They rose up to fight him, and he fled and left there in deep dismay to return to Babylon.

5 Then someone came to him in Persia with news that the armies sent into Judah's land had been put to flight; 6 that Lysias had gone at the head of a strong force but had been driven back before the Jews; that they had grown strong from the weapons, supplies, and abundant spoils they had taken from the armies they had cut down; 7 that they had demolished the abomination[c] he had built on the altar in Jerusalem; and that they had walled in the sanctuary with high walls, as it had been before, and had done the same to his town of Beth-zur. 8 When the king heard this news, he was stunned and deeply shaken. He took to his bed and fell ill from grief, because his plans had not worked out. 9 He lay there for many days, for his deep grief kept breaking out afresh, and he concluded that he was dying. 10 So he called all his Friends and told them, "Sleep has left my eyes, and my heart sinks under my cares. 11 I said to myself, 'To what distress I have come, and what a great flood of trouble I am in now! Yet I was kind and well loved while I held power.' 12 But now I remember the wrongs I did in Jerusalem. I seized all her silver and gold vessels, and I sent forces to wipe out the inhabitants of Judah without cause. 13 Now I know: for this cause these evils have found me out. Here I am, dying of bitter grief in a foreign land."

14 Then he summoned Philip, one of his Friends, and set him over all his kingdom. 15 He gave him his crown, his robe, and his signet ring, so that he might bring up his son Antiochus and train him to be king.
16 There King Antiochus died, in the year 149 (164 BC).[d] 17 When Lysias learned that the king was dead, he set up as king the son, Antiochus, whom he had brought up from boyhood, and named him Eupator.[e] 18 Meanwhile the men in the fortress were keeping Israel penned in around the sanctuary. They constantly tried to do them harm and to build up the Gentiles. 19 So Judas resolved to destroy them, and he called all the people together to besiege them. 20 They gathered and laid siege to the citadel in the year 150 (163/162 BC),[f] and he built siege platforms and engines. 21 But some of the besieged escaped, and some ungodly Israelites joined them. 22 They went to the king and said,
"How long will you put off judgment and avenging our kinsmen? 23
We were glad to serve your father, to walk by his word, and to keep to his decrees. 24 For this reason our own people have turned against us. They have killed as many of us as they could catch and plundered our inheritances. 25 And they have not only struck at us; they have attacked all the lands on their borders. 26 Look, today they have laid siege to the citadel in Jerusalem to take it, and they have fortified the sanctuary and Beth-zur. 27 Unless you move quickly to stop them, they will go on to greater things, and you will have no power to hold them back."
28 At this news the king flew into a rage. He called together all his Friends, his army's commanders, and those in charge of the cavalry.[g] 29 Hired troops came to him from other kingdoms and from the islands in the seas. 30 His army had a hundred thousand infantry, twenty thousand cavalry, and thirty-two war elephants. 31 By way of Idumea they came and pitched camp against Beth-zur. For many days they attacked it and built siege engines, but the defenders sallied out, burned the engines, and fought bravely.
32 Then Judas moved away from the citadel and camped at Bethzechariah,[h] opposite the king's camp. 33 Early in the morning the king rose and drove his army at full speed along the road to Bethzechariah. His troops formed up for battle and sounded the trumpets.

34 They showed the elephants the juice[i] of grapes and mulberries to rouse them for battle. 35 They distributed the elephants among the battle lines. Beside each one they placed a thousand men wearing chain mail and bronze helmets, and each animal was given five hundred select cavalry. 36 These men were positioned ahead of time wherever the elephant was; they moved wherever it moved, and never left its side. 37 On each beast was a strong wooden tower, covered over and fastened to it with special harness, and on each were four[j] fighting men who fought from there, as well as its Indian driver. 38 The rest of the cavalry he stationed on either flank of the army, to harass the enemy and to shield the phalanxes. 39 When the sun shone on the gold and bronze shields,[k] the hills gleamed with their light and blazed like flaming torches. 40 Part of the king's army spread out over the high hills and part over the low ground, and they advanced steadily and in good order. 41 All who heard the noise of their multitude, the tramp of the marching host, and the clash of arms trembled, for the army was very large and strong.
42 Judas and his army advanced to battle, and six hundred men of the king's army fell. 43 Eleazar, called Avaran,[l] saw that one of the beasts was armored with royal armor and stood above all the rest, and he judged that the king must be riding it. 44 So he gave himself up to save his people and to gain an everlasting name. 45 Boldly he ran at it into the middle of the phalanx, killing right and left, and they parted before him on both sides. 46 He crept under the elephant and stabbed it from below, killing it. It collapsed on top of him, and he died there.
47 When the Jews saw the strength of the royal army and the fury of its troops, they withdrew from them.
48 The king's army went up to Jerusalem to meet them, and the king encamped against Judea and Mount Zion. 49 He made peace with the men of Beth-zur, and they left the town because they had no food there to withstand a siege, since it was a sabbath year for the land.[m] 50 So the king captured Beth-zur and left a garrison there to keep it. 51 Then he besieged the sanctuary for many days. He set up siege platforms and engines there, fire-throwers and stone-throwers, and scorpions[n] for shooting arrows and slings. 52 The Jews also built engines to counter theirs, and they fought for many days. 53 But there was no food in the storerooms, because it was the seventh year, and those who had taken refuge in Judea from the Gentiles had eaten up the last of the stores. 54 Only a few men were left in the sanctuary, because the famine had overwhelmed them; the rest scattered, each to his own home.

55 Then Lysias heard that Philip, whom King Antiochus while still alive had appointed to bring up his son Antiochus to be king, 56 had come back from Persia and Media, along with the soldiers who had gone with the king, and was trying to take over the government. 57 So he hastily gave orders to withdraw. He said to the king, to the commanders of the army, and to the troops, "We grow weaker every day, our food is running low, the place we are besieging is strong, and the affairs of the kingdom press upon us. 58 So let us now offer these men terms[o] and make peace with them and with their whole nation. 59 Let us agree that they may live by their own laws as they did before. It was over those laws, which we did away with, that they grew angry and did all this."

60 The proposal pleased the king and the commanders. He sent to the Jews to offer peace, and they accepted. 61 The king and the commanders swore an oath to them on these terms, and on that basis the Jews came out of the stronghold. 62 But when the king entered Mount Zion and saw how strong the place was, he went back on the oath he had sworn and ordered the surrounding wall pulled down. 63 Then he hurried off and went back to Antioch, where he found Philip master of the city. He fought against him and took the city by force.

Notes

- a (6:1) So Swete's Greek text, "in Elymais in Persia, a city"; Elymais was properly a region (Elam) at the head of the Persian Gulf. 2 Maccabees 9:2 names the city Persepolis.
- b (6:2) Or "golden shields"; Greek kalymmata, "coverings."
- c (6:7) Greek bdelygma; see note on 1:54.
- d (6:16) Greek: in the 149th year (Seleucid era; see note on 1:10). Antiochus IV died late in 164 BC, which fits a year counted from autumn 312 BC. For other accounts of his death see 2 Maccabees 1:13–17; 9:1–29.
- e (6:17) Eupator means "of a noble father." Antiochus V was about nine years old.

- f (6:20) Greek: in the 150th year (Seleucid era; see note on 1:10).
- g (6:28) Literally "those over the reins."
- h (6:32) Beth-zechariah lay about 6 miles (10 km) north of Beth-zur, on the road to Jerusalem.
- i (6:34) Literally "blood," a poetic term for red juice.
- j (6:37) Swete's Greek has "thirty-two," which cannot be right for a tower on an elephant; many editors read "four" (perhaps from a misread numeral or from v. 30), followed here.
- k (6:39) So some ancient witnesses; Swete's Greek text has only "golden shields."
- l (6:43) Swete's Greek reads "Eleazar Savaran"; see 2:5.
- m (6:49) The seventh year, when the land lay fallow (Leviticus 25:1–7).
- n (6:51) Scorpions were small catapults for arrows.
- o (6:58) Literally "give the right hand to these men."

Chapter 7

1 In the year 151 (162 BC)[a] Demetrius son of Seleucus[b] slipped away from Rome, sailed with a few men to a town on the coast, and there made himself king. 2 Just as he was going into his forefathers' royal residence, the troops arrested Antiochus and Lysias to hand them over to him. 3 When he was told of it, he said, "Do not let me look upon their faces." 4 So the soldiers put them to death, and Demetrius took his seat upon the throne of his kingdom.
5 Then all the lawless and ungodly men of Israel came to him, with Alcimus[c] at their head, who wanted to be high priest. 6 They brought charges against the people before the king: "Judas and his brothers have destroyed all your Friends and driven us out of our land. 7 So now send someone you trust. Let him go and see all the damage Judas has done to us and to the king's land, and let him punish Judas and everyone who helps him."
8 The king chose Bacchides,[d] one of the king's Friends, who governed the province Beyond the River[e] and was a powerful man in the kingdom, loyal to the king.
9 He sent him, along with the ungodly Alcimus, whom he confirmed in the priesthood, and he charged him to take vengeance on the Israelites.

10 They set out and entered Judah's land with a large force. Bacchides sent envoys to Judas and his brothers with peaceful words, but treachery was behind them.
11 They paid no attention to what these men said, because they saw that they had arrived with a large force.
12 But a group of scribes did gather before Alcimus and Bacchides, seeking fair terms.
13 Among the Israelites the Hasideans[f] were first to ask them for peace, 14 for they reasoned, "A priest of Aaron's line has come with the army;
he will do us no wrong." 15 Alcimus spoke peaceably to them and gave them his oath: "We will seek no harm against you or your friends." 16 They believed him. But he seized sixty of them and killed them in one day, as the word that he[g] wrote says: 17 "The flesh of your devoted ones they scattered, and around Jerusalem they spilled their blood, and none was there to bury them."[h] 18 Then fear and terror of them seized all the people, who said, "There is no honesty or justice in them; they have broken the agreement and the oath they swore." 19 Bacchides left Jerusalem and camped at Beth-zaith.[i] He had many of the deserters who had come over to him arrested, along with certain of the people, and he slaughtered them and threw them into the great cistern. 20 He put the province in Alcimus's charge and left troops with him to support him; then Bacchides went back to the king. 21 Alcimus struggled hard to hold the high priesthood, 22 and all who were troubling their own people rallied to him. They gained control of Judah's land and did great harm in Israel. 23 Judas saw all the evil that Alcimus and his followers had done among the Israelites, worse than the Gentiles had done. 24 So he went out through all the territory of Judea round about and took vengeance on the men who had deserted, and they were kept from going out into the countryside. 25 When Alcimus saw that Judas and his men had grown strong, and knew that he could not withstand them, he went back to the king and accused them of wicked crimes.

26 Then the king sent Nicanor,[j] one of his distinguished commanders, a man who hated Israel and was its enemy, with orders to destroy the people. 27 Nicanor arrived in Jerusalem with a large force and sent a friendly but deceitful message to Judas and his brothers: 28 "There should be no fighting between you and me. I will come to meet you in peace, face to face, with a small escort." 29 So he came to Judas, and the two men greeted each other in a friendly way; but the enemy was waiting to seize Judas. 30 Word reached Judas that Nicanor had come to him with treachery, so he grew wary of him and would not meet him again. 31 When Nicanor saw that his plot was discovered, he marched out to meet Judas in battle near Caphar-salama.[k] 32 About five thousand of Nicanor's men fell, and the rest fled into the City of David.
33 After this, Nicanor went up to Mount Zion. A few of the priests came out of the sanctuary, together with some of the people's elders, to greet him in a friendly way and to show him the burnt offering being made on the king's behalf.
34 But he mocked them and laughed them to scorn; he defiled them[l] and spoke arrogantly.
35 Furious, he swore, "If Judas and his army are not turned over to me immediately, I will burn this house down on my safe return!" And he left in a great fury.
36 The priests went in and stood before the altar and the temple, weeping, and they said, 37 "You chose this house to be called by your name, to be a house of prayer and supplication for your people.
38 Take vengeance on this man and his army, and let them be killed by the sword.
Remember their blasphemies, and do not let them survive." 39 Nicanor left Jerusalem and camped at Beth-horon, where an army from Syria joined him. 40 Judas camped at Adasa[m] with three thousand men. And Judas prayed: 41 "When the king's messengers blasphemed,[n] your angel went forth and struck down a hundred eighty-five thousand of them. 42 Crush this army before us in the same way today, so that the rest may learn that he has spoken wickedly against your sanctuary. Judge him according to his wickedness." 43 The armies met in battle on the thirteenth day of the month Adar (in February–March),[o] and Nicanor's army was crushed; he himself was the first to fall in the battle. 44 When his troops saw that Nicanor had fallen, they flung down their weapons and fled. 45 The Jews pursued them a day's journey, from Adasa as far as Gazara,[p] sounding the signal trumpets behind them. 46 People came out of all the villages of Judea round about and outflanked them, turning them back on their pursuers, and all of them fell by the sword; not even one was left. 47 They took the spoil and the plunder. Nicanor's head they cut off, along with the right hand he had so proudly stretched out, and they brought them and displayed them just outside Jerusalem. 48 The people rejoiced greatly and kept that day as a day of great gladness. 49 They decreed that this day should be celebrated every year on the thirteenth of Adar.[q] 50 So the land of Judah had rest for a short time.

Notes

- a (7:1) Greek: in the 151st year (Seleucid era; see note on 1:10). Demetrius I reached Syria in the autumn of 162 BC.
- b (7:1) Demetrius I Soter, son of Seleucus IV, had been held as a hostage in Rome since his youth.
- c (7:5) Alcimus is a Greek name, "valiant"; his Hebrew name was Yakim (Eliakim, "God raises up"), according to Josephus.
- d (7:8) Bacchides (perhaps "son of Bacchus") was a senior Seleucid official.
- e (7:8) That is, west of the Euphrates (Syria and Palestine).
- f (7:13) The Hasideans (Hebrew hasidim, "the pious"); see 2:42.
- g (7:16) Or "the word that was written"; the Greek "he wrote" may refer to the psalmist.
- h (7:17) Psalm 79:2–3 (Septuagint 78:2–3).
- i (7:19) Beth-zaith, a village about 4 miles (6 km) north of Beth-zur; Swete's Greek spells it "Bezeth."
- j (7:26) Nicanor, "victorious."
- k (7:31) Caphar-salama ("village of peace"), of uncertain location, perhaps north-west of Jerusalem. Swete's Greek spells it "Charpharsarama."
- l (7:34) Perhaps by spitting on them or touching them, making them ritually unclean.
- m (7:40) Adasa was a village near Beth-horon, about 7 miles (11 km) north of Jerusalem.

- n (7:41) 2 Kings 18:17–19:35.
- o (7:43) Greek Adar, the twelfth month (Hebrew Adar). The battle took place in 161 BC. See also 2 Maccabees 15:36, which calls the date "the day before Mordecai's day."
- p (7:45) Gazara is Gezer, about 20 miles (32 km) west of Jerusalem.
- q (7:49) This was Nicanor's Day, a festival later observed by Jews for several centuries.

Chapter 8

1 Now Judas heard of the fame of the Romans: that they were very mighty, that they looked with favor on all who sided with them, that they established friendship with any who came to them, 2 and that their strength was great. He was told of their wars and the brave deeds they performed among the Gauls,[a] how they had conquered them and made them pay tribute, 3 and what they had done in the land of Spain to win control of the silver and gold mines there, 4 and how, through their planning and patience, they had conquered the whole region, though it was very far from them. He also heard of the kings who had marched against them from the ends of the earth, and how they had crushed them and dealt them a heavy blow, so that the others paid them tribute every year. 5 Philip, and Perseus king of the Kittim,[b] and others who rose up against them, they crushed in battle and subdued. 6 Antiochus the Great,[c] king of Asia, who marched to war against them with a hundred twenty elephants, cavalry, chariots, and a vast army, was defeated by them. 7 They took him alive[d] and required him and those who would reign after him to pay a heavy tribute, to give hostages, and to surrender 8 the lands of India,[e] Media, and Lydia, some of their finest provinces, which they took from him and gave to King Eumenes.[f] 9 When the Greeks[g] planned to come and destroy them, 10 the Romans heard of it and sent a single general against them. They fought them, and many of the Greeks were wounded and fell. The Romans took their wives and children captive, looted them, seized their land, demolished their strongholds, and enslaved them, as they are to this day. 11 The other kingdoms and the islands, whoever at any time opposed them, they destroyed and enslaved. 12 But with their friends and those who relied on them they kept faith. They have subdued kings near and far, and all who hear their name fear them. 13 Those whom they choose to help to a throne do reign, and those whom they choose they depose; so they have been raised very high. 14 For all that, none of them has ever worn a crown or wrapped himself in purple to make a show of greatness.

15 They have built themselves a council chamber, and every day three hundred twenty councilors[h] deliberate, constantly taking counsel for the people, so that they may be well governed. 16 Each year they entrust their government and the rule of all their land to one man,[i] and all obey that one, and there is no envy or jealousy among them.
17 So Judas selected two men: Eupolemus, the son of John and grandson of Accos,[j] and Jason, the son of Eleazar. He sent them to Rome to secure friendship and an alliance with the Romans, 18 and to lift the yoke from the Jews, for they saw that the kingdom of the Greeks was reducing Israel to slavery. 19 After a very long journey they reached Rome, went into the council chamber, and spoke these words: 20 "Judas, who is called Maccabeus, together with his brothers and the people of the Jews, has dispatched us to you to make a pact of alliance and peace, and to be enrolled as your allies and friends." 21
The proposal pleased the Romans.
22 Here is a copy of the letter they engraved on tablets of bronze and dispatched to Jerusalem, to be kept there by the Jews as a memorial of the peace and the alliance: 23 "Good fortune to the Romans and to the Jewish nation on sea and land forever, and may sword and enemy be far from them. 24 But if war comes first on Rome or on any of its allies throughout its dominion, 25 the Jewish nation shall fight as their ally wholeheartedly, as the occasion may require of them. 26 To those who make war on them the Jews shall not give or supply grain, weapons, silver, or ships, as Rome has resolved; and they shall honor these commitments without receiving anything. 27 In the same way, if war comes first on the Jewish nation, the Romans shall gladly fight as their allies, as the occasion may require of them. 28 To those who fight alongside the enemy there shall be given no grain, weapons, silver, or ships, as Rome has resolved; and they shall honor these commitments without deceit. 29 Such are the terms by which the Romans have bound themselves in treaty to the Jewish people. 30 If after this either party wishes to add or delete anything, they may do so by mutual agreement,[k] and whatever they add or delete shall be binding.

31 "As for the wrongs King Demetrius is doing to them, we have written to him this way: 'Why have you laid so heavy a yoke on the Jews, our friends and allies? 32 If they appeal to us again against you, we will uphold their cause and make war on you by sea and on land.'"

Notes

- a (8:2) The Greek Galatai may mean the Celts of northern Italy and Gaul, or the Galatians of Asia Minor.
- b (8:5) Philip V of Macedon was defeated by Rome in 197 BC, and his son Perseus in 168 BC. "Kittim" here means Macedonia (see 1:1).
- c (8:6) Antiochus III (reigned 223–187 BC), defeated by Rome at Magnesia in 190 BC.
- d (8:7) Antiochus III was not in fact taken captive; this is the writer's report of what Judas heard.
- e (8:8) "India" is hard to explain here; some suggest Ionia was meant. Media also seems out of place, since the treaty of Apamea concerned lands in Asia Minor.
- f (8:8) Eumenes II, king of Pergamum (197–159 BC).
- g (8:9) Probably the Achaean League, defeated by Rome in 146 BC; if so, the report reflects later events.
- h (8:15) The Roman Senate actually numbered about three hundred.
- i (8:16) In fact Rome elected two consuls each year.
- j (8:17) Eupolemus, "good at war," was perhaps the Jewish historian of that name. Accos (Hakkoz) was a priestly family (1 Chronicles 24:10; Ezra 2:61).
- k (8:30) Literally "by their choice."

Chapter 9

1 When Demetrius heard that Nicanor and his army had been killed in battle, he sent Bacchides and Alcimus into the land of Judah a second time, together with the right wing of his army.[a] 2 They took the road to Gilgal[b] and laid siege to Mesaloth in Arbela;[c] they captured it and took many lives. 3 In the first month of the year 152 (in March–April, 160 BC)[d] they pitched camp against Jerusalem. 4 Then they moved off and marched to Berea[e] with twenty thousand foot soldiers and two thousand horsemen.
5 Judas lay encamped at Elasa,[f] with three thousand picked men beside him. 6 When they saw how huge the enemy force was, they were terrified. Many slipped away from the camp, until no more than eight hundred of them remained. 7 Judas saw his army melting away while the battle bore down on him. His heart sank, for he had no time to gather them again. 8 Faint as he was, he said to those who were left, "Up! Let us advance on our adversaries; perhaps we can still fight them." 9 But they tried to turn him from it: "We cannot. Let us save our own lives for now, and come back later with our kinsmen to fight them. We are too few." 10 Judas answered, "Far be it from me to do such a thing as run from them! If our hour has come, let us die bravely for our kinsmen and leave no stain on our honor."

11 Then the enemy army marched out of camp and took its stand to meet them. The cavalry was split into two divisions; slingers and archers went ahead of the army, and the front ranks were all men of valor. 12 Bacchides was on the right wing. The phalanx came on from both sides with trumpets sounding, and Judas's men too blew their trumpets. 13 The earth shook with the din of the armies, and the battle raged from morning until evening. 14 Judas saw that Bacchides and the strength of his army were on the right. All the stouthearted rallied to him, 15 and they broke the right wing and chased it as far as Mount Azotus.[g] 16 When those on the left wing saw that the right wing was broken, they wheeled around and came after Judas and his men from behind. 17 The fighting grew fierce, and many fell wounded on both sides. 18 Judas also fell, and the rest fled.

19 Jonathan and Simon took their brother Judas and buried him in their ancestors' tomb at Modein.

20 They wept for him, and all Israel made great lamentation for him. For many days they mourned, saying, 21 "How the mighty one is fallen, the savior of Israel!"[h]

22 The rest of Judas's deeds, his wars, the brave exploits he performed, and his greatness have not been written down, for they were very many.

23 After Judas's death the lawless reappeared throughout Israel's territory, and all the doers of wrong sprang up. 24 In those days a very severe famine broke out, and the country went over to their side.[i] 25

Bacchides picked the ungodly and made them masters of the country.
26 They hunted down and tracked out Judas's friends and brought them before Bacchides, who punished them and made sport of them.
27 Such affliction came on Israel as had not been seen since the day when prophets were last seen among them.
28 Then all Judas's friends assembled and said to Jonathan, 29 "Since the death of Judas your brother, no man like him has been left to march out against our foes, against Bacchides, and against those of our own nation who hate us. 30 So this day we have chosen you as ruler and leader in his stead, to fight our battles." 31 At that time Jonathan accepted the leadership and took the place of his brother Judas.
32 When Bacchides learned of it, he tried to kill him. 33 Jonathan, his brother Simon, and all their followers learned of it and escaped into the wilderness of Tekoa,[j] where they camped beside the pool of Asphar. 34 Bacchides learned of this on the sabbath day, and he with his whole army crossed the Jordan.[k] 35 Jonathan sent his brother John,[l] a leader of the company, to ask their friends the Nabateans to keep their large store of baggage for them.
36 But the sons of Jambri[m] from Medeba came out, seized John and all he had, and made off with it.
37 After these events Jonathan and Simon his brother were told: "A great wedding is being held by the sons of Jambri. They are escorting the bride, daughter of one of the great nobles of Canaan, from Nad-abath with a grand procession." 38 Mindful of the blood of John their brother,[n] they went up and lay hidden in the shelter of the mountain.
39 They looked out and saw a noisy crowd with much baggage. Out came the bridegroom, with his friends and kinsmen, to greet the party with drums and players and a great show of arms.
40 Then the Jews rose from their ambush and fell on them, killing them.
Many fell wounded; the survivors fled to the mountain, and the Jews took all their goods.
41 So the wedding was turned to mourning, and the sound of their music to a dirge.

42 Having fully avenged their brother's blood, they returned to the marshes[o] of the Jordan.
43 When Bacchides heard of it, he came on the sabbath day with a large force to the banks of the Jordan. 44 Jonathan said to his men, "Up now, let us fight for our lives! Today is not like yesterday or the day before.
45 See, the fight faces us both before and behind; Jordan's water hems us in on either hand, with marsh and thicket; there is nowhere to turn aside. 46 Cry out to Heaven now, so that you may be rescued from our enemies' hands." 47 When the battle was joined, Jonathan stretched out his hand to strike Bacchides, but Bacchides drew back away from him. 48 Then Jonathan and his men leaped into the Jordan and swam over to the far bank, and the enemy made no crossing after them. 49
About a thousand of Bacchides's men fell that day.
50 Bacchides returned to Jerusalem and built fortified towns in Judea:
the stronghold at Jericho, and Emmaus, Beth-horon, Bethel, Timnath, Pharathon,[p] and Tephon, with high walls, gates, and bars. 51 In them he placed garrisons to harass Israel. 52 Beth-zur too he made strong, and Gazara and the citadel, and stationed troops in them with stores of food. 53 He took the sons of the country's leading men as hostages and kept them under guard in the citadel at Jerusalem.
54 In the year 153, in the second month (in April–May, 159 BC),[q] Alcimus ordered that the wall of the inner court of the sanctuary be torn down. He was tearing down the work of the prophets,[r] and he had begun the demolition, 55 It was then that Alcimus was struck down, and his project came to a stop. He was paralyzed and his mouth was shut, so that he could no longer speak a word or give instructions about his household. 56 And Alcimus died at that time in great torment.
57 When Bacchides saw that Alcimus was dead, he went back to the king, and the land of Judah was quiet for two years.
58 Then all the lawless plotted together: "Look, Jonathan and his men are living in peace and confidence. Let us bring back Bacchides now, and he will seize them all in a single night." 59 So they went and consulted with him. 60 He set out to come with a large force and wrote in secret to every ally he had in Judea, bidding them lay hands on Jonathan and his men. This proved impossible, because their plan became known. 61 Jonathan's men[s] seized about fifty of the men of the country who were ringleaders in this wickedness, and killed them.

62 Then Jonathan, with Simon and their men, withdrew to Beth-basi[t] in the wilderness. Its ruined parts he built up again and made it strong.
63 When Bacchides learned of it, he gathered his whole force and sent orders to those in Judea. 64 He came and camped against Beth-basi; for many days he fought against it and built siege engines. 65 But Jonathan left his brother Simon in the town and went out into the countryside, taking a few men with him.[u] 66 He struck down Odomera and his kinsmen and the sons of Phasiron in their encampment, and they[v] began to attack and to go up with their forces. 67 Then Simon and his men sallied out of the town and set fire to the siege engines.
68 They fought against Bacchides, and he was beaten by them. They pressed him hard, because his plan and his expedition had come to nothing. 69 He was enraged at the lawless men who had urged him to enter the country; many of them he put to death. Then he made up his mind to return to his own land.
70 When Jonathan learned of this, he sent envoys to him to make peace with him and to obtain the return of the captives. 71 Bacchides agreed and did as he asked. He swore to Jonathan that he would not seek to harm him as long as he lived. 72 He returned to him the captives he had taken earlier from Judah's land; then he turned and went back to his own land and never again entered their territory. 73 So the sword ceased from Israel. Jonathan settled at Michmash[w] and began to judge the people, and he wiped out the ungodly from Israel.

Notes

- a (9:1) Literally "the right horn," the elite wing of the army.
- b (9:2) Probably not the Gilgal near Jericho but a place in Galilee; some suggest "Galilee" was meant.
- c (9:2) Arbela in Galilee, west of the Sea of Galilee. Mesaloth may mean "steps" or "ascents."
- d (9:3) Greek: in the first month of the 152nd year (Seleucid era; see note on 1:10). The first month is Nisan (March–April).
- e (9:4) Berea is probably Beeroth (modern al-Bireh), north of Jerusalem.
- f (9:5) Swete's Greek spells it "Alasa." Elasa lay near Beth-horon.

- g (9:15) Swete's Greek has "Mount Azotus"; the location is uncertain, as Azotus (Ashdod) lies on the coastal plain. Some suggest the slopes near Beth-horon.
- h (9:21) Compare 2 Samuel 1:19, 25, 27.
- i (9:24) Or "the land deserted with them."
- j (9:33) Tekoa, about 6 miles (10 km) south of Bethlehem.
- k (9:34) Verses 34 and 43 appear to be doublets in the Greek.
- l (9:35) John Gaddi (2:2). The Greek has simply "his brother"; the name appears in v. 36.
- m (9:36) Jambri, an Arab clan; the name is uncertain.
- n (9:38) Verse 36 reports only his capture; this verse assumes his death (see v. 42).
- o (9:42) Or "the mountain"; the Greek has "the mountain of the Jordan," perhaps a mistranslation of a Hebrew word for "jungle" or "thickets."
- p (9:50) So Swete's Greek "Thamnatha Pharathon," which may be one place or two; many translations print Timnath-pharathon.
- q (9:54) Greek: in the second month of the 153rd year (Seleucid era; see note on 1:10). The second month is Iyyar (April–May).
- r (9:54) Probably Haggai and Zechariah, under whom the second temple was built (Ezra 5:1–2).
- s (9:61) The Greek has only "they seized."
- t (9:62) Beth-basi, near Tekoa.
- u (9:65) Swete's Greek has "and he went with a number," probably meaning a small band.
- v (9:66) Or "he." The Greek is unclear; it may mean that Jonathan's men began to strike the enemy.
- w (9:73) Michmash, about 7 miles (11 km) north of Jerusalem (1 Samuel 13–14).

Chapter 10

1 In the year 160 (152 BC)[a] Alexander Epiphanes, son of Antiochus,[b] came up and took Ptolemais. The people welcomed him, and he began to reign there. 2 Hearing of it, King Demetrius mustered a very large army and marched out to give him battle. 3 Demetrius also sent Jonathan a letter couched in peaceable terms, meant to raise him in honor. 4 "Let us move first," he reasoned, "and make peace with them before Jonathan makes peace with Alexander against us. 5 For he will remember every wrong we did to him, to his brothers, and to his nation." 6 So he gave Jonathan authority to raise troops and to equip them with arms as his ally, and he gave word that the hostages held in the citadel were to be released into his hands.

7 Jonathan went to Jerusalem and read the letter aloud to all the people and to the men in the fortress. 8 These were struck with great fear when they heard that the king had given him authority to raise troops. 9 The men in the fortress handed over the hostages to Jonathan, and he returned them to their parents. 10 Jonathan took up residence in Jerusalem and set about building and restoring the city. 11 He told those doing the work to rebuild the walls and to ring Mount Zion with squared stones for defense, and so they did. 12 Then the foreigners in the strongholds Bacchides had built took flight; 13 each of them abandoned his post and went back to his own country.
14 Only in Beth-zur did some remain of those who had forsaken the law and the commandments, for it served them as a refuge.
15 King Alexander heard about all the promises Demetrius had sent to Jonathan, and was told about the battles and bold deeds of Jonathan and his brothers, and of the hardships they had suffered. 16 "Shall we ever find another man like this?" he said. "Let us make him our friend and ally at once." 17 So he wrote a letter and sent it to him in these words: 18 "King Alexander to his brother Jonathan, greetings. 19 Word has reached us about you, that you are a man of might and valor, well fitted to be our friend. 20 So we appoint you this day high priest of your nation; you are to bear the title Friend of the King, to take our side, and to keep friendship with us." He also sent him a purple robe and a golden crown.
21 So Jonathan put on the sacred vestments in the seventh month (in September–October) of the year 160 (152 BC),[c] at the Festival of Booths,[d] and he raised troops and laid in a great supply of arms.
22 When Demetrius heard of these things, he was vexed and said, 23 "What have we done, that Alexander has outrun us in winning the friendship of the Jews to strengthen himself?
24 I too will write them words of encouragement, with offers of honors and gifts, so that they may stand by me as helpers." 25 So he sent them this message:
"King Demetrius to the nation of the Jews, greetings.

[26] You have kept your covenant with us and remained in our friendship, and have not gone over to our enemies. We have heard of this and are glad.
[27] Now go on keeping faith with us, and we will repay you with good things for what you do for us.
[28] Many exemptions will we grant you, and gifts besides.
[29] "I now release you and free all the Jews from tribute, from the salt tax, and from the crown levies.[e] [30] Instead of a third of the grain and half the fruit of the trees that is due to me, I release them from this day on, so that they will no longer be collected from Judah's land, nor from the three districts joined to it out of Samaria and Galilee,[f] from now until the end of time. [31] Let Jerusalem and her territory be holy and free from tax, both tithes and tolls. [32] I give up also my authority over the citadel in Jerusalem, and I grant it to the high priest, to post there whatever men he himself may choose as its guard. [33] Every Jew carried captive out of Judah's land into any region of my realm I release as free, without ransom; and let all officials cancel the taxes on their livestock as well. [34] All festivals, sabbaths, new moons and appointed days, together with the three days before and the three days after each festival, will be days of exemption and release for every Jew in my kingdom. [35] No one shall have authority to exact payment from any of them or to trouble them in any matter.
[36] "Let Jews be enrolled in the king's forces, to the number of thirty thousand men, and let them receive pay as is due to all the king's forces. [37] Some of them shall be stationed in the king's great strongholds, and some appointed to positions of trust in the kingdom. Their officers and leaders shall be of their own number, and they shall live by their own laws, as the king has commanded in the land of Judah.
[38] The three districts added to Judea from the region of Samaria are to be annexed to Judea and reckoned under one ruler, obeying no other authority than the high priest. [39] Ptolemais and the land belonging to it I give as a gift to the holy place in Jerusalem, to defray what the sanctuary must spend. [40] I also grant each year about 375 pounds of silver[g] from the royal revenues out of the places that belong to me.
[41] And all the surplus that the officials did not pay over as in former years they shall from now on give for the work on the temple. 42 Moreover, the 125 pounds of silver[h] that they used to take each year from the sanctuary's income are also released, because they belong to the priests who minister there. 43 Whoever takes refuge at the temple in Jerusalem or anywhere within its precincts, because he owes money to the king or for any other debt, shall be released, together with all his property in my kingdom. 44 For the rebuilding and restoring of the structures of the sanctuary, the cost shall be paid from the king's revenues. 45 And for rebuilding the walls of Jerusalem and fortifying it all around, the cost shall be paid from the king's revenues, as also for rebuilding the walls in Judea."

46 When Jonathan and the people heard these words, they put no faith in them and would not accept them, for they remembered the great evil Demetrius had done in Israel and how sorely he had oppressed them. 47 Alexander had their goodwill, for he was the one who had first opened talk of peace with them, and they remained his allies all his days.

48 King Alexander gathered large forces and encamped opposite Demetrius. 49 The two kings joined battle, and Demetrius's army fled. Alexander pursued him and overpowered them.[i] 50 He pressed the battle hard until the sun went down, and Demetrius fell that day.

51 Then Alexander sent envoys to Ptolemy king of Egypt[j] with this message: 52 "I have come back to my kingdom and taken the throne of my ancestors. I have secured my rule; I defeated Demetrius and gained control of our country. 53 I met him in battle; he was beaten by us, he and his host, and the throne of his realm is now ours. 54 Now let us establish friendship with each other. Give me your daughter in marriage; I will be joined to you by marriage and give you and her gifts worthy of you."

55 King Ptolemy answered, "It was a happy day when you came back to the land of your ancestors and sat on the throne of their kingdom! 56 What you have written I will now do. Come to Ptolemais, though, where we can meet face to face, and there I will give you my daughter, just as you ask."

57 So Ptolemy set out from Egypt with his daughter Cleopatra[k] and came to Ptolemais in the year 162 (150 BC).[l] 58 King Alexander met him there; Ptolemy gave him his daughter Cleopatra and held her wedding at Ptolemais with great ceremony, as kings do.
59 Then a letter came from King Alexander inviting Jonathan to a meeting. 60 Jonathan went to Ptolemais in splendor, where he met the two kings. He gave silver, gold and many gifts to them and to their Friends, and won their approval. 61 A band of scoundrels from Israel, lawless men, gathered against him to bring charges against him, but the king paid them no heed. 62 Instead the king gave orders that Jonathan be stripped of his garments and clothed in purple, and so it was done. 63 The king seated him at his side and said to his officers, "Go with him into the heart of the city and make it known that none may accuse him about anything or harass him for any reason." 64 When his accusers saw the honor paid him, as was proclaimed, and saw him clothed in purple, they all fled. 65 So the king honored him: he entered his name among the First Friends and appointed him general and governor of a province.[m] 66 And Jonathan went home to Jerusalem in peace and with joy.
67 In the year 165 (147 BC)[n] Demetrius son of Demetrius[o] came from Crete to the land of his ancestors. 68 When King Alexander heard of it, he was greatly troubled and went back to Antioch. 69 Demetrius appointed Apollonius, governor of Coelesyria,[p] who gathered a large force and camped at Jamnia. He sent this message to Jonathan the high priest:
70 "You alone are standing up against us, and I have become a laughingstock and a reproach because of you. Why do you lord it over us in the hills? 71 If you trust in your forces, come down to us in the plain, and let us test each other there, for I have with me the strength of the cities. 72 Ask around and learn who I am and who our allies are. They will tell you that you cannot hold your ground against us, because your ancestors were routed twice in their own land.[q] 73 You will not be able to resist such a force of cavalry as this on the plain, where there is no stone or pebble and nowhere to run."

74 When Jonathan heard Apollonius's words, he was stirred to anger.
He chose out ten thousand men and marched from Jerusalem, and Simon his brother came to join him with help. 75 He camped before Joppa, but its people shut him out, because Apollonius had a garrison in Joppa. So they attacked it, 76 and the people of the city, afraid, opened the gates, and Jonathan took possession of Joppa.
77 When Apollonius heard this, he lined up three thousand cavalry and a large army and marched toward Azotus as if only passing through, while moving out onto the plain, because he had a great deal of cavalry and trusted in it. 78 Jonathan pursued him to Azotus, and the armies joined battle. 79 Now Apollonius had left a thousand cavalry hidden behind them. 80 Jonathan learned that there was an ambush behind him. The enemy encircled his army and from dawn till late in the day rained arrows on his men. 81 But his men stood firm, as Jonathan had ordered, and the enemy's horses grew tired. 82 Then Simon brought up his force and engaged the phalanx, for the cavalry was exhausted. The enemy were crushed by him and fled. 83
The cavalry scattered over the plain; they fled to Azotus and went into Beth-dagon, the temple of their idol,[r] to save themselves. 84 But Jonathan burned Azotus and the towns around it and plundered them. The temple of Dagon he burned with fire, and its sacred precinct too.[s] 85 Those who fell by the sword, together with those burned, numbered about eight thousand men. 86 From there Jonathan set out and camped against Askalon, and its people came out to meet him with great honor. 87 Then Jonathan returned to Jerusalem with his men, laden with much spoil.
88 These reports moved King Alexander to heap further honors on Jonathan. 89 He sent him a golden buckle, such as is customarily given to the King's Kinsmen,[t] and he gave him Ekron and all its territory as his possession.

Notes

- a (10:1) Greek: in the 160th year (Seleucid era; see note on 1:10).
- b (10:1) Alexander Balas, who claimed to be a son of Antiochus IV Epiphanes.
- c (10:21) Greek: in the seventh month of the 160th year (Seleucid era; see note on 1:10). The seventh month is Tishri (September–October).

- d (10:21) Greek skēnopēgia, "tent-pitching," the Festival of Booths (Tabernacles; Leviticus 23:33–43).
- e (10:29) Gifts of gold crowns, originally voluntary, had become a regular tax.
- f (10:30) The three districts were Aphairema, Lydda, and Rathamin (11:34). Swete's Greek here has "from Samaria and Galilee"; compare v. 38, which mentions only Samaria.
- g (10:40) Greek: fifteen thousand shekels of silver, about 6,000 oz (172 kg); weight standards varied.
- h (10:42) Greek: five thousand shekels of silver, about 2,000 oz (57 kg).
- i (10:49) Swete's Greek has "Alexander pursued him"; some editors, following the context and Josephus, read that Demetrius pursued Alexander's army. The translation follows Swete.
- j (10:51) Ptolemy VI Philometor (reigned 180–145 BC).
- k (10:57) Cleopatra Thea, later married in turn to Demetrius II and Antiochus VII.
- l (10:57) Greek: in the 162nd year (Seleucid era; see note on 1:10).
- m (10:65) Greek meridarchēs, "ruler of a part"; that is, governor of a district.
- n (10:67) Greek: in the 165th year (Seleucid era; see note on 1:10).
- o (10:67) Demetrius II Nicator, son of Demetrius I.
- p (10:69) Coelesyria, "hollow Syria," properly the Beqaa valley, but here used of the whole Seleucid province west of the Euphrates. Swete's Greek reads "Demetrius appointed Apollonius who was over Coelesyria"; some think Apollonius was Alexander's governor who went over to Demetrius.
- q (10:72) Perhaps a reference to the defeats of 1 Samuel 4 and 31.
- r (10:83) Beth-dagon, "house of Dagon," the Philistine god (1 Samuel 5:1–5).
- s (10:84) So Swete's Greek text, literally "and its temple"; some ancient witnesses read "and those who had fled into it."
- t (10:89) "Kinsmen" was the highest rank of honor at the Seleucid court.

Chapter 11

1 Then the king of Egypt massed forces as countless as the sand along the seashore, along with many ships, and he schemed to seize Alexander's kingdom by trickery and annex it to his own. 2 He set out for Syria, claiming to come in peace, and the people of the towns opened their gates and went out to meet him, since King Alexander had ordered them to do so, because Ptolemy was his father-in-law.
3 But whenever Ptolemy entered a town, he left troops behind as a garrison in it. 4 When he drew near Azotus, they showed him the burned temple of Dagon, Azotus and its suburbs in ruins, the corpses lying about, and the charred remains of those Jonathan had burned in the battle, for they had piled them in heaps along his route. 5 They told the king what Jonathan had done, hoping to bring blame on him, but the king kept silent. 6 Jonathan came with ceremony to meet the king at Joppa; they exchanged greetings, and both lodged there that night. 7 Jonathan accompanied the king as far as the river called Eleutherus[a] and then went back to Jerusalem.

8 So King Ptolemy made himself master of the coastal towns as far as Seleucia by the sea,[b] all the while plotting evil against Alexander. 9 He sent envoys to King Demetrius, saying, "Come, let us make a pact. I will give you my daughter, who is now Alexander's wife, and you shall reign over your father's kingdom. 10 It grieves me that I ever gave him my daughter, for he has sought my life." 11 He made these charges against him because he coveted his kingdom. 12 So he took his daughter away and gave her to Demetrius. He broke with Alexander, and their enmity came into the open.

13 Ptolemy then entered Antioch and put on the crown of Asia, so that he had two crowns on his head, that of Egypt and that of Asia. 14 At that time King Alexander was in Cilicia, because the people of that region were in revolt. 15 When Alexander heard of these events, he came to make war on him. Ptolemy marched out and met him with a strong force and routed him. 16 Alexander fled into Arabia to find shelter there, and King Ptolemy was exalted. 17 Zabdiel the Arab[c] cut off Alexander's head and sent it to Ptolemy. 18 Yet within three days King Ptolemy himself was dead, and the men he had posted in the strongholds were slain by those who lived there. 19 So Demetrius became king in the year 167 (145 BC).[d]

20 At that time Jonathan called together the men of Judea to storm the citadel in Jerusalem, and many engines of siege were set up against it. 21 But certain lawless men who hated their own nation went to the king and reported that Jonathan was besieging the citadel. 22 Angered by the news, he broke camp at once and came to Ptolemais. He wrote to Jonathan to lift the siege and to come with all speed to Ptolemais to confer with him. 23 When Jonathan heard this, he gave orders for the siege to go on. Choosing some of Israel's elders and some of the priests, he put his own life at risk. 24 With silver and gold, garments, and a wealth of other presents he came before the king at Ptolemais and won his goodwill. 25 Some lawless men of his nation kept bringing complaints against him, 26 but the king dealt with him as the kings before him had done and raised him high in the sight of all his Friends.

27 He confirmed him in the high priesthood and in all the other honors he had held before, and he made him one of his First Friends. 28 Then Jonathan requested of the king that Judea, together with the three districts and Samaria,[e] be made exempt from tribute, and he promised him about eleven tons of silver.[f] 29 The king consented and wrote Jonathan a letter about all these matters, as follows:
30 "King Demetrius to his brother Jonathan and to the nation of the Jews, greetings. 31 We are sending you also a copy of the letter we wrote about you to Lasthenes, our Kinsman, so that you may know its contents: 32 'King Demetrius to Lasthenes his father,[g] greetings. 33 Toward the nation of the Jews, our friends, who keep faith in what they owe us, we are resolved to act generously in return for their goodwill toward us. 34 We confirm for them the land of Judea and the three districts of Aphairema, Lydda and Rathamin;[h] these were annexed to Judea from Samaria, together with all their lands. For everyone who offers sacrifice in Jerusalem, this is given in place of the royal payments the king used to collect from them each year from the crops of the soil and the fruit of the trees. 35 As for our other revenues from now on, from the tithes and tolls due to us, the salt pans, and the crown levies due to us, all these we remit to them. 36 None of these grants shall be revoked from now on for all time. 37 See to it, then, that a copy of these terms is made and given to Jonathan, and set up on the holy mountain in a fitting and conspicuous place.'" 38 King Demetrius saw that the land was peaceful before him and that no one resisted him, so he sent all his troops home, each to his own place, except for the foreign troops he had recruited from the islands of the nations. As a result, all the troops who had served his predecessors turned against him. 39 Now Trypho,[i] who had formerly been one of Alexander's supporters, noticed how the whole army was muttering against Demetrius. He went to Simalkue[j] the Arab, who was bringing up Antiochus, Alexander's young son, 40 and kept pressing him to hand the boy over, so that he might reign in his father's place. He told him all that Demetrius had done and how his troops hated him, and he stayed there many days.

41 Meanwhile Jonathan sent a request to King Demetrius, asking him to withdraw the troops from the fortress in Jerusalem and from the strongholds, since they continued to attack Israel. 42 Demetrius sent this reply to Jonathan: "These things I will do for you and your people, and more: I will load you and your nation with honor once the moment is right. 43 So you will act rightly if you send me men to fight at my side, for all my troops have revolted." 44 So Jonathan sent three thousand strong soldiers to him at Antioch. When they reached the king, he was delighted by their coming.
45 Then the people of the city massed in the middle of the city, about a hundred twenty thousand of them, intending to kill the king. 46 The king took refuge in the palace, while the citizens seized the city's streets and began the fight. 47 So the king appealed to the Jews for help. They rallied to him at once, spread through the city, and killed about a hundred thousand people there that day. 48 They set fire to the city, seized much plunder that day, and rescued the king. 49 When the citizens saw that the Jews had mastered the city as they pleased, they lost heart and cried out to the king with supplication: 50 "Give us your right hand in peace, and let the Jews cease their war on us and on the city." 51 They threw down their weapons and made peace. The Jews gained great honor before the king and in the eyes of all in his kingdom, and they returned to Jerusalem with much plunder.
52 So King Demetrius sat on the throne of his kingdom, and the land was quiet before him. 53 But he broke every promise he had made. He turned against Jonathan, did not repay the kindnesses Jonathan had shown him, and treated him very harshly.
54 Some time later Trypho came back, bringing the little boy Antiochus,[k] who took the throne and was crowned. 55 All the troops whom Demetrius had cast off rallied to him, and they fought against Demetrius, who fled in defeat. 56 Trypho captured the elephants and took control of Antioch. 57 Young Antiochus then wrote to Jonathan: "I confirm you as high priest and appoint you over the four districts,[l] and you will be counted among the King's Friends." 58 He sent him gold plate and table service, and gave him leave to drink from golden vessels, to be clothed in purple, and to wear a golden buckle. 59 His brother Simon he made governor from the Ladder of Tyre[m] to the borders of Egypt.

60 Then Jonathan set out and traveled through the province Beyond the River and its towns, and the whole Syrian army flocked to him in alliance. At Askalon the townspeople came out and received him with honor. 61 From there he went on to Gaza, but the people of Gaza barred him from entering. So he laid siege to it, set its suburbs on fire, and looted them. 62 The people of Gaza then begged Jonathan for mercy, and he made peace with them. He took their rulers' sons as hostages and sent them to Jerusalem. He then traveled through the region as far as Damascus.

63 News reached Jonathan that the generals of Demetrius were at Kedesh[n] in Galilee with a great force, aiming to oust him from his post. 64 So he marched against them, but Simon his brother he left behind in the land. 65 Simon camped against Beth-zur, attacked it for many days, and hemmed it in. 66 They asked him for terms, and he agreed. He drove them out of the town, took it over, and placed a garrison in it. 67 Jonathan and his army camped by the waters of Gennesaret,[o] and early in the morning they marched to the plain of Hazor.[p] 68 There, in the plain, the foreign army came against him. They had hidden men in the hills to fall on him, while their main body came straight at him. 69 Then the men in ambush rose from their places and joined battle, and all Jonathan's men fled. 70 Not a man was left, apart from Mattathias son of Absalom and Judas son of Chalphi, the army commanders. 71 Jonathan ripped his garments, threw earth on his head, and prayed. 72 Then he turned back to battle against the enemy, routed them, and they fled. 73 Seeing this, the men who had fled from him came back and chased the enemy along with him as far as Kedesh, to the enemy's camp, and there they encamped. 74 Of the foreigners about three thousand fell that day. Then Jonathan went back to Jerusalem.

Notes

- a (11:7) The Eleutherus (modern Nahr el-Kebir) formed the northern border of Coelesyria.
- b (11:8) Seleucia Pieria, the port of Antioch.
- c (11:17) Josephus calls him Zabeilos. The Greek Zabdiel means "my gift is God" (Hebrew).
- d (11:19) Greek: in the 167th year (Seleucid era; see note on 1:10). Demetrius II became king in 145 BC.
- e (11:28) So Swete's Greek text; compare v. 34 and 10:30, 38, where the three districts are themselves taken from Samaria.
- f (11:28) Greek: three hundred talents, about 22,500 lb (10,200 kg). Weight standards varied.
- g (11:32) "Father" was a court title of honor.
- h (11:34) Aphairema (Ephraim, John 11:54), Lydda (Lod, Acts 9:32), and Rathamin (perhaps Ramathaim, 1 Samuel 1:1).
- i (11:39) Trypho, "luxury," was the nickname of Diodotus, a general.
- j (11:39) So Swete's Greek text; some ancient witnesses read "Imalkue."
- k (11:54) Antiochus VI Epiphanes Dionysus, about four years old.
- l (11:57) The three districts of v. 34 and perhaps the region around Akrabattene or Perea; uncertain.
- m (11:59) The Ladder of Tyre, a headland on the coast north of Ptolemais.
- n (11:63) Kedesh in Galilee, northwest of Lake Huleh (Joshua 20:7).
- o (11:67) The Sea of Galilee.
- p (11:67) Swete's Greek reads "Nasor," probably for Hazor, north of the Sea of Galilee.

Chapter 12

1 Seeing that the time was working in his favor, Jonathan chose men and sent them to Rome to confirm and renew the friendship with the Romans. 2 To the Spartans[a] and to other places too he sent letters to the same effect. 3 So they journeyed to Rome, entered the Senate chamber, and said, "Jonathan the high priest and the Jewish nation have sent us to renew for them the friendship and alliance as it stood before." 4 The Romans gave them letters to the authorities in each place, asking them to send the envoys on their way to the land of Judah in peace.

5 Here is a copy of what Jonathan wrote to the Spartans: 6 "Jonathan the high priest, the council of elders of the nation, the priests, and all the remaining Jewish people send greetings to the Spartans, their brothers. 7 A letter was sent long ago to the high priest Onias by

Arius,[b] who was king among you at the time, saying that you are our brothers, as the attached copy shows. 8 Onias received the envoy with honor and accepted the letter, in which alliance and friendship were plainly declared. 9 Now we, though we stand in no need of these, since we take encouragement from the holy books in our hands, 10 have ventured to send envoys to renew our brotherhood and friendship, lest we grow strangers to you; for many years have passed since your message came to us. 11 For our part, we always remember you without fail, at our festivals and on the other proper days, in the sacrifices we offer and in our prayers, as is right and fitting when remembering brothers. 12 And we rejoice in your renown. 13 But as for us, many troubles and many wars have hemmed us in, and the kings around us have fought against us. 14 We did not wish to trouble you, nor our other friends and allies, over these wars, 15 for we have the help that comes from heaven to aid us, and we have been rescued from our enemies, and our enemies have been brought low. 16 So we have chosen Numenius son of Antiochus and Antipater son of Jason, and have sent them to the Romans to renew our former friendship and alliance with them. 17 We have instructed them to go to you also, to greet you, and to deliver to you this letter of ours concerning the renewal of our brotherhood. 18 And now you will do well to send us a reply to this."
19 This is a copy of the letter that was sent to Onias: 20 "Arius king of the Spartans to Onias the high priest, greetings. 21 A writing has come to light about the Spartans and the Jews, showing that the two are brothers, of Abraham's stock.[c] 22 Now that this is known to us, you will do well to write us of how you fare. 23 We on our side write to you that your livestock and your property are ours, and ours are yours.
We therefore command that our envoys report to you accordingly." 24 Now Jonathan heard that the commanders of Demetrius had come back with a larger army than before to make war on him. 25 He marched out of Jerusalem and confronted them in the region of Hamath,[d] giving them no opportunity to set foot in his own country.
26 He sent spies into their camp, who came back and reported that the enemy were drawn up to fall upon the Jews by night. 27 So when the sun had set, Jonathan ordered his men to stay awake and under arms, ready for battle all night long, and he posted sentries around the camp. 28 When the enemy heard that Jonathan and his men were ready for battle, they became afraid, their courage failed, and they lit fires in their camp.[e] 29 Jonathan and his men, seeing the fires still alight, knew nothing of it till dawn. 30 Then Jonathan gave chase, but could not catch them, since they were already across the river Eleutherus. 31 So Jonathan turned aside against the Arabs called Zabadeans,[f] struck them down, and took their spoil. 32 Then he broke camp, came to Damascus, and marched through all that region. 33 Simon too set out and marched as far as Askalon and the nearby strongholds. He turned to Joppa and seized it before the enemy could, 34 for he had heard that its people were about to hand the stronghold over to the supporters of Demetrius. He stationed a garrison there to guard it.

35 When Jonathan came back, he called the elders of the people together and made plans with them to build strongholds in Judea, 36 to build the walls of Jerusalem higher, and to raise a tall wall between citadel and city, cutting the citadel off so that it would stand alone and its garrison could neither buy nor sell. 37 So they came together to build. A section of the wall along the eastern ravine had collapsed, and he repaired the part known as Chaphenatha.[g] 38 And Simon built Adida[h] in the Shephelah,[i] fortifying it and fitting it with gates and bars.

39 Then Trypho sought to become king of Asia, to put on the crown, and to lay hands on King Antiochus. 40 But he was afraid that Jonathan would not allow him and would make war on him. So he sought a way to seize and kill him, and he set out and came to Beth-shan.[j] 41 Jonathan went out to meet him with forty thousand picked men in battle array, and he too came to Beth-shan. 42 When Trypho saw that Jonathan had come with a large army, he was afraid to raise a hand against him. 43 Instead he welcomed him with honor, commended him to all his Friends, and gave him gifts. He ordered his Friends and his troops to obey Jonathan as they would himself. 44 Then he said to Jonathan, "Why have you put all these people to so much trouble, when there is no war between us? 45 Send them home now, and pick a few men to stay with you. Come with me to Ptolemais, and I will turn it over to you, together with the other strongholds, the remaining troops and all the officials. Then I will turn around and go home; that is the reason I came." 46 Jonathan believed him and did what he said. He sent his troops away, and they returned to the land of Judah. 47 He kept with him three thousand men, of whom he left two thousand in Galilee, while a thousand went with him.

48 But as soon as Jonathan entered Ptolemais, the townspeople barred the gates and took him prisoner, and every man who had come in with him they put to the sword. 49 Trypho then sent troops and cavalry into Galilee and the Great Plain[k] to destroy all Jonathan's men. 50 These, believing that Jonathan had been seized and had perished along with his companions, encouraged one another and marched in close order, ready for battle. 51 Their pursuers, seeing that these men would sell their lives dearly, gave up the chase. 52 So all of them reached the land of Judah safely. They mourned for Jonathan and those with him, and they were in great fear; all Israel mourned deeply. 53 And all the surrounding nations tried to destroy them, saying, "They have no leader or helper. Let us attack them now and erase their memory from among human beings."

Notes

- a (12:2) The Spartans, citizens of Sparta (Lacedaemon) in southern Greece.
- b (12:7) Arius (Areus) I, king of Sparta 309–265 BC; Onias I was high priest about 320–290 BC.
- c (12:21) The tradition of kinship between Spartans and Jews is also found in 2 Maccabees 5:9 and Josephus (Antiquities 12.226).
- d (12:25) The region around Hamath on the Orontes, in Syria.
- e (12:28) The fires were meant to make it look as if the camp was still occupied while the enemy withdrew (vv. 29–30); some ancient witnesses add "and withdrew."
- f (12:31) An Arab tribe, perhaps near Zabdani northwest of Damascus.
- g (12:37) The meaning of Chaphenatha is uncertain; perhaps Aramaic for "the double one."
- h (12:38) Adida, Hebrew Hadid (Ezra 2:33), near Lydda.
- i (12:38) The Shephelah, "lowland," the foothills between the Judean hills and the coastal plain.

- j (12:40) Greek: Bethsan, Hebrew Beth-shan, “house of quiet” (Greek name Scythopolis).
- k (12:49) The Great Plain, the plain of Jezreel (Esdraelon).

Chapter 13

1 Simon heard that Trypho had raised a large army to invade the land of Judah and lay it waste. 2 He saw how terrified the people were, so he went up to Jerusalem and called them together. 3 He encouraged them, saying, “You yourselves know what great things I and my brothers and my father’s house have done for the laws and the sanctuary, and what wars and hardships we have seen. 4 For this cause all my brothers have perished for Israel’s sake, and I alone am left. 5 And now, I would never spare my own life in any time of trouble, for I am no better than my brothers. 6 Rather I will avenge my nation and the sanctuary and our wives and children, for all the nations have gathered out of hatred to crush us.” 7 Hearing these words, the people took fresh heart, 8 and they answered with a loud shout, “You are our leader in place of Judas and Jonathan your brother. 9 Fight our battles, and whatever you tell us, we will do.” 10 So he assembled all the fighting men and hurried to finish the walls of Jerusalem, and he fortified it on every side. 11 He sent Jonathan son of Absalom to Joppa with a sizable force; he drove out its inhabitants and remained there.
12 Then Trypho marched out of Ptolemais at the head of a great force to enter Judah’s land, and Jonathan was with him as a prisoner. 13 Simon encamped at Adida, facing the plain. 14 When Trypho learned that Simon had taken his brother Jonathan’s place and intended to fight him, he sent messengers to Simon with this message: 15 “We are holding your brother Jonathan because of silver he owed to the king’s treasury for the posts he had. 16 Send now about four tons of silver[a] and two of his sons as hostages, so that when he is released he will not revolt against us, and we will release him.” 17 Simon knew that they were speaking to him deceitfully, but he sent for the money and the boys, lest he bring great hostility on himself from the people, 18 lest they say, “Jonathan died because Simon would not send the silver and the boys.” 19 So he sent the boys and the silver, but Trypho broke his word and did not release Jonathan.

20 After this, Trypho came to invade the land and ruin it. He took the road around by Adora,[b] but wherever he went, Simon and his army kept pace alongside him. 21 The citadel garrison, for their part, sent messenger after messenger to Trypho, pressing him to reach them through the wilderness and get food to them. 22 So Trypho made ready all his cavalry to go, but that night there was a very heavy snowfall, and because of the snow he did not go. He set out and went into Gilead. 23 When he drew near Baskama,[c] he killed Jonathan, and he was buried there. 24 Then Trypho turned back and went to his own land.
25 Simon sent for the bones of his brother Jonathan and buried him at Modein, the town of their ancestors. 26 All Israel lamented him with great lamentation and mourned for him many days. 27 Over the tomb of his father and his brothers Simon built a monument, high enough to be seen, with polished stone at back and front. 28 He erected seven pyramids, one opposite another, for his father and mother and four brothers. 29 For the pyramids he designed an elaborate arrangement:
he put up tall columns around them, and on the columns he set suits of armor as an eternal memorial, and next to the armor he carved ships, so that everyone sailing the sea could see them. 30 This tomb that he built at Modein remains to this day.
31 Trypho dealt treacherously with the young King Antiochus; he killed him 32 and reigned in his place. He put on the crown of Asia and brought great disaster on the land. 33 But Simon built up the strongholds of Judea, girding them with high towers and great walls, with gates and bars, and he stored food in the strongholds. 34 Simon also chose men and sent them to King Demetrius, asking him to grant the land relief, for all that Trypho did was plunder. 35 King Demetrius answered him in line with this request, writing him the following letter:
36 "King Demetrius to Simon, high priest and Friend of kings, and to the elders and nation of the Jews, greetings. 37 We have received the golden crown, and also the palm branch[d] that you sent. We are prepared to establish a lasting peace with you, and to instruct our officials to give you tax exemptions. 38 All the agreements we have made with you stand, and the strongholds that you have built shall be yours. 39 We pardon any errors and offenses committed up to this day, and we cancel the crown tax that you owed; and whatever other tax was collected in Jerusalem shall be collected no longer. 40 Any of you who are qualified to join our bodyguard, let them be enrolled, and let there be peace between us."

41 In the year 170 (142 BC)[e] the yoke of the Gentiles was lifted from Israel, 42 and the people started writing in their documents and contracts, "In the first year of Simon, great high priest, commander, and leader of the Jews."

43 In those days Simon[f] camped against Gaza[g] and surrounded it with troops. He built a siege tower, brought it up to the city, battered one of the towers, and captured it. 44 The men in the siege tower leaped out into the city, and a great uproar arose in the city. 45 The townspeople, wives and children with them, climbed onto the wall, rending their garments, and shouted aloud, begging Simon to make peace with them. 46 "Do not treat us as our wicked deeds deserve," they said, "but as your mercy allows." 47 So Simon made terms with them and did not attack them. He drove them out of the city and purified the houses that held idols, and then he entered it singing hymns of praise. 48 He cast out all uncleanness from it and settled in it men who observe the law. He strengthened its fortifications and built a residence there for himself.

49 The garrison of the citadel in Jerusalem, cut off from going out to the countryside to buy and sell, suffered severe hunger, and many of them died of starvation. 50 They begged Simon for peace, and he agreed. He drove them out from there and cleansed the fortress of its defilement. 51 On the twenty-third day of the second month (in April–May) in the year 171 (141 BC),[h] the Jews went into it with praise and palm branches, with harps, cymbals and lyres, with hymns and songs, because a great enemy had been defeated and removed from Israel. 52 He made it a law that this day be kept with gladness year by year. The temple mount beside the citadel he made still stronger, and there he made his home, he and his men. 53 When Simon saw that his son

John[i] had grown to manhood, he appointed him commander of all the forces, and John lived at Gazara.

Notes

- a (13:16) Greek: one hundred talents, about 7,500 lb (3,400 kg). Weight standards varied.
- b (13:20) Adora (Adoraim, 2 Chronicles 11:9), southwest of Hebron.
- c (13:23) Location unknown; probably northeast of the Sea of Galilee.
- d (13:37) Greek baïn, a palm branch, perhaps of gold, given as a token of homage.
- e (13:41) Greek: in the 170th year (Seleucid era; see note on 1:10).
- f (13:43) Greek: he; Simon is meant.
- g (13:43) So Swete's Greek text; many editors read Gazara (Gezer), following v. 53, 14:7, and Josephus, since Gaza lay outside Simon's territory.
- h (13:51) Greek: the twenty-third of the second month of the 171st year (Seleucid era; see note on 1:10). The second month is Iyyar (April–May).
- i (13:53) John Hyrcanus, ruler of Judea 134–104 BC.

Chapter 14

1 In the year 172 (140 BC)[a] King Demetrius assembled his forces and marched into Media to gain reinforcements for his war against Trypho. 2 Arsaces,[b] king of Persia and Media, learned that Demetrius had entered his territory, and he dispatched one of his commanders to take Demetrius alive. 3 The commander went out, defeated Demetrius's army, took him prisoner, and brought him to Arsaces, who had him placed under guard.

4 The land was at peace throughout Simon's days.
He worked for his nation's good;
his rule and his glory delighted them all his life.
5 As the crown of all his honors, he captured Joppa as a harbor and made a gateway to the islands of the sea.
6 He enlarged the frontiers of his people and held the land firmly in his grip.
7 He gathered in a host of captives;
he became master of Gazara, Beth-zur, and the citadel, and removed its uncleanness from it, and there was none to withstand him.

8 In peace they worked their fields;
the soil yielded its harvest,
and the orchards of the plain bore fruit.
9 Old men sat in the streets, all talking together of good things, and the young men put on splendid garments and the dress of war.
10 He supplied the towns with food and furnished them with means of defense, until the fame of his glory was spoken of to the ends of the earth.
11 He established peace in the land, and Israel rejoiced with great joy.
12 Each sat under his own vine and his own fig tree,[c]
and there was none to make them afraid.
13 None remained in the land to wage war on them;
in those days kings were broken.
14 He gave strength to all the lowly of his people;
he searched out the law and did away with every lawless and wicked person.
15 He brought splendor to the holy place and increased its sacred furnishings.

16 News of Jonathan's death reached Rome and even Sparta, and there was deep sorrow. 17 But once they learned that Simon his brother had taken his place as high priest and was ruling over the country and the towns in it, 18 they wrote to him on bronze tablets, to renew the friendship and alliance that they had made with his brothers Judas and Jonathan. 19 And these were read before the assembly in Jerusalem.

20 This is a copy of the letter sent by the Spartans:

"From the rulers and the city of the Spartans, greetings to Simon the high priest, to the elders and priests, and to the rest of the Jewish people, our brothers.

21 The envoys sent to our people have told us of your glory and honor, and we were glad at their coming.

22 Their report we have entered among the people's resolutions, in these words: 'Numenius son of Antiochus and Antipater son of Jason, Jewish envoys, have come before us to renew their friendship with us.
23 Our people resolved to welcome these men with honor and to lay up a copy of their words in the public records, as a memorial for the Spartan people.' And they have written a copy of this to Simon the high priest."
24 After this Simon sent Numenius to Rome with a great golden shield weighing about 1,250 pounds,[d] to confirm the alliance with the Romans.
25 Hearing of these events, the people asked, "What thanks can we give to Simon and his sons? 26 For he and his brothers and his father's house have stood firm; they have fought and driven off Israel's enemies and secured its freedom." So they inscribed this on bronze tablets and set them on a pillar on Mount Zion.
27 What follows is a copy of the inscription:

"In the year 172 (140 BC),[e] on the eighteenth day of Elul (in August–September), the third year of Simon the great high priest, 28 at Asaramel,[f] in the great assembly of the priests and the people, the nation's rulers, and the elders of the land, this was made known to us:
29 'Since wars have often arisen in the country, Simon son of Mat-tathias, a priest of the line of Joarib,[g] together with his brothers, put themselves in peril and stood against their nation's foes, to keep their sanctuary and the law standing; and they won high renown for their people.
30 Jonathan rallied the nation and became their high priest, and then he was gathered to his people.
31 When their enemies resolved to invade their country and lay it waste, and to lay hands on their sanctuary, 32 then Simon rose up and fought for his nation. He spent much of his own wealth; he armed the soldiers of his nation and paid their wages.
33 Judea's towns he fortified, and Beth-zur too, on Judea's frontier, which had once been the enemy's arsenal, and there he posted Jews as a garrison.

34 He fortified Joppa by the sea, and Gazara on the borders of Azotus, where the enemy had formerly lived. There he planted Jewish settlers and furnished the towns with all they required for their rebuilding.
35 The people saw how faithful Simon was and what glory he meant to bring his nation, and they chose him as their leader and high priest for all that he had done, and for the uprightness and good faith he had kept toward his people. He sought in every way to exalt his people.
36 In his days things prospered in his hands, so that the Gentiles were driven out of the country, and likewise the men in the City of David at Jerusalem, who had made a citadel for themselves and would go out from it to pollute the area around the sanctuary, doing great damage to its purity.
37 He settled Jews in it and fortified it to protect the country and the city, and he made the walls of Jerusalem higher.
38 For these reasons King Demetrius confirmed his high priesthood, 39 made him one of his Friends, and paid him high honors.
40 For he had heard that the Romans called the Jews friends, allies and brothers, and that they had given Simon's envoys an honorable welcome.
41 The Jews and the priests have been pleased to have Simon as their leader and high priest for all time, till a prophet worthy of trust should appear,[h]
42 and that he should be commander over them and take charge of the sanctuary, appointing officials over its tasks and over the country, the weapons, and the strongholds; 43 that he should take charge of the sanctuary, and be obeyed by all; that all contracts in the country should be written in his name; and that he should be clothed in purple and wear gold.
44 No one among the people or the priests will be allowed to overturn any of these decisions, to contradict what he says, to call a gathering in the country without him, or to dress in purple or wear a gold clasp.
45 Anyone who goes against these terms or sets any of them aside shall be held guilty.'
46 The whole people consented to let Simon act on these terms.

47 So Simon accepted, and agreed to serve as high priest and as general and ethnarch[i] of the Jews and the priests, and to stand at the head of all."

48 They gave orders that this inscription be placed on bronze tablets and set up in the precincts of the sanctuary in a prominent place, 49 and that copies of it be deposited in the treasury, so that Simon and his sons might have them.

Notes

- a (14:1) Greek: in the 172nd year (Seleucid era; see note on 1:10).
- b (14:2) Arsaces, the royal title of the Parthian kings; here Mithradates I (about 171–138 BC).
- c (14:12) Compare Micah 4:4 and 1 Kings 4:25.
- d (14:24) Greek: a thousand minas, about 1,250 lb (570 kg); the mina was one sixtieth of a talent, and standards varied.
- e (14:27) Greek: the eighteenth of Elul, of the 172nd year (Seleucid era; see note on 1:10). Elul is the sixth month (August–September).
- f (14:28) So Swete's Greek text (Saramel in some ancient witnesses). The meaning is uncertain; perhaps Hebrew for "court of the people of God," or a title, "prince of the people of God."
- g (14:29) Joarib (Jehoiarib), the first of the priestly divisions (1 Chronicles 24:7).
- h (14:41) Compare 4:46.
- i (14:47) Ethnarch, "ruler of the nation."

Chapter 15

1 A letter from Antiochus, the son of King Demetrius,[a] was sent from the islands of the sea to Simon, who was priest and ethnarch of the Jews, and to the whole nation.

2 Its contents were as follows:

"King Antiochus to Simon the great priest and ethnarch, and to the nation of the Jews, greetings.

3 Whereas certain pestilent men have made themselves masters of my fathers' kingdom, and it is my purpose to reclaim that kingdom and set it back as it once stood, I have recruited a host of troops and fitted out warships.

4 I mean to land in the country so that I may go after those who have ruined our country and laid waste many towns in my kingdom.

5 So now I confirm for you all the tax cancellations granted by the kings before me, and any other exemptions they gave you.
6 You may strike coins of your own, to be the currency of your land.[b] 7 Jerusalem and the sanctuary shall be free. All the weapons you have made and the strongholds you have built and now hold shall remain yours.
8 Every debt you owe to the royal treasury, and any royal dues that may arise hereafter, are canceled for you from now on and for all time.
9 And when we have regained our kingdom, we will bestow great honor on you, your nation, and the temple, so that your glory will be made plain in all the earth." 10 In the year 174 (138 BC)[c] Antiochus marched into the land of his ancestors. The troops came over to him in a body, until only a few remained on Trypho's side. 11 With King Antiochus in pursuit, Trypho fled and reached Dor[d] on the seacoast; 12 for he knew that troubles had piled up against him and that his troops had deserted him. 13 Antiochus pitched camp against Dor with a hundred twenty thousand fighting men and eight thousand horsemen. 14 He encircled the town, and the ships closed in from the sea. So he pressed the town hard by land and sea and let no one go out or come in.
15 Then Numenius and his companions arrived from Rome, bringing letters to the kings and countries, in which was written the following: 16 "Lucius,[e] consul of the Romans, to King Ptolemy,[f] greetings. 17 The Jewish envoys have come to us as our friends and allies to renew the old friendship and alliance. Simon the high priest and the Jewish people sent them, 18 and they have brought a gold shield weighing about 6,250 pounds.[g] 19 We have therefore decided to write to the kings and countries, so that they will not try to harm the Jews, attack them or their towns or their land, or aid anyone who fights against them.
20 It is our decision to receive the shield at their hands. 21 So if any troublemakers have fled from their land and found shelter with you, hand them over to Simon the high priest, so that he can punish them under their own law."
22 Letters to the same effect went to King Demetrius,[h] to Attalus,[i] Ariarathes,[j] and Arsaces, 23 and to all the countries: to Sampsames,[k] to the Spartans, and to Delos, Myndos, Sicyon, Caria, Samos, Pamphylia, Lycia, Halicarnassus, Cos, Side, Arados, Rhodes, Phaselis, Gortyn, Cnidus, Cyprus, and Cyrene.[l] 24 And a copy of the whole was written out for Simon the high priest.

25 King Antiochus besieged Dor in its outskirts,[m] continually throwing his forces against it and building siege engines; and he shut Trypho in, so that no one could go out or in. 26 Simon sent him two thousand picked men to fight on his side, along with silver and gold and a good deal of equipment. 27 But Antiochus would not accept them. He broke every agreement he had made with Simon before and turned against him. 28 He sent Athenobius, one of his Friends, to confer with him, saying, "You hold Joppa and Gazara and the citadel in Jerusalem, which are towns of my kingdom. 29 You have laid waste their territory, done great harm to the land, and made yourselves masters of many places in my kingdom. 30 Now then, hand over the towns you have seized, and the tribute of the places you have taken outside the borders of Judea; 31 or else give me in their place about nineteen tons of silver,[n] and for the destruction you have caused and for the tribute of the towns, another nineteen tons. Otherwise we will come and make war on you."

32 So Athenobius, the king's Friend, came to Jerusalem. When he saw the splendor of Simon, his sideboard laden with gold and silver vessels, and his great retinue, he was astounded. He gave him the king's message. 33 Simon answered him, "We have neither taken foreign land nor seized anything that belongs to others, but only the inheritance of our ancestors, which our enemies at one time unjustly took. 34 Now that we have the opportunity, we are holding firmly to the inheritance of our ancestors. 35 As for Joppa and Gazara, which you demand, those towns were doing great harm among our people and in our land; for them we will give about four tons of silver."[o] Athenobius did not answer him a word, 36 but returned in a rage to the king and reported to him these words, the splendor of Simon, and all he had seen. And the king was furious.

37 Meanwhile Trypho boarded a ship and fled to Orthosia.[p] 38 Then the king made Cendebeus commander-in-chief of the coastal region and gave him troops of infantry and cavalry. 39 He ordered him to encamp facing Judea, to rebuild Kedron[q] and strengthen the towns,[r] and to wage war on the people, while the king pursued Trypho. 40 So Cendebeus came to Jamnia and began to provoke the people, invading Judea, taking the people captive, and killing them. 41 At Kedron, which he rebuilt, he stationed cavalry and soldiers to go out and patrol the roads of Judea, as the king had commanded him.

Notes

- a (15:1) Antiochus VII Sidetes (reigned 138–129 BC), younger brother of Demetrius II.
- b (15:6) No coins of Simon are known; the first Hasmonean coins were struck later, perhaps under John Hyrcanus.
- c (15:10) Greek: in the 174th year (Seleucid era; see note on 1:10).
- d (15:11) Dor, a coastal town south of Mount Carmel.
- e (15:16) Perhaps Lucius Caecilius Metellus, consul in 142 BC, or Lucius Calpurnius Piso, consul in 139 BC; uncertain.
- f (15:16) Ptolemy VIII Euergetes II of Egypt.
- g (15:18) Greek: five thousand minas, about 6,250 lb (2,850 kg); compare 14:24, which gives a thousand minas.
- h (15:22) Demetrius II, then a captive in Parthia (14:3).
- i (15:22) Attalus II of Pergamum.
- j (15:22) Ariarathes V of Cappadocia.
- k (15:23) Sampsames, perhaps Samsun on the Black Sea; uncertain.
- l (15:23) Cities and regions of Greece, Asia Minor, the islands, and North Africa.
- m (15:25) Greek: in the second; the meaning is uncertain. It may mean "on the second day" or "a second time."
- n (15:31) Greek: five hundred talents of silver, about 37,500 lb (17,000 kg); likewise in the next clause. Weight standards varied.
- o (15:35) Greek: one hundred talents, about 7,500 lb (3,400 kg).
- p (15:37) Orthosia, a port on the Phoenician coast north of Tripolis.
- q (15:39) Kedron, probably modern Qatra, near Jamnia.
- r (15:39) So Swete's Greek text; some ancient witnesses read "its gates."

Chapter 16

1 Coming up from Gazara, John reported to Simon his father all that Cendebeus was about. 2 Simon summoned his two eldest sons, Judas and John, and said to them, "From our youth until this day, I and my brothers and my father's house have fought Israel's wars, and time and again we have succeeded in rescuing Israel. 3 But now I have grown old, while you, by Heaven's mercy, are of full age. Stand in my place and my brother's; march out and do battle on behalf of our people, and may aid from heaven go with you." 4 So John chose from the country twenty thousand fighting men and horsemen, and they marched against Cendebeus and spent the night at Modein. 5 Rising early, they advanced into the plain, where a great host of foot and horse came marching against them, with a stream between the two armies. 6 John and his men took up position facing the enemy. Seeing that his men were afraid to cross the stream, he crossed over first; and when the men saw him, they crossed after him. 7 He divided his army, placing the horsemen in the midst of the foot soldiers, for the enemy's cavalry was very numerous. 8 They blew the trumpets, and Cendebeus and his army fled. Many of them fell wounded, and the rest ran to the fortress. 9 It was then that John's brother Judas was wounded; but John pursued the enemy until he came to Kedron, which Cendebeus had built. 10 They fled to the towers in the fields of Azotus, and John burned it[a] with fire. About a thousand of them fell, and he returned to Judea in safety.

11 Now Ptolemy son of Abubus had been made governor of the plain of Jericho, and he possessed a great deal of silver and gold, 12 for he was the high priest's son-in-law. 13 His heart grew proud, and he resolved to make himself master of the country; so he plotted treachery against Simon and his sons, to do away with them. 14 Simon was traveling through the towns of the country, seeing to their needs. In the year 177 (134 BC), in the eleventh month (in January–February), the month of Shebat,[b] he went down to Jericho with his sons Mattathias and Judas. 15 The son of Abubus received them with guile in the small fort he had built, named Dok.[c] There he held a great drinking feast for them, having hidden men in the place. 16 When Simon and his sons were drunk, Ptolemy and his men sprang up, grabbed their weapons, and burst in on Simon in the banquet hall; they murdered him, along with his two sons and some of his servants. 17 So he committed a great act of treachery and repaid good with evil.
18 Then Ptolemy put these things in writing and dispatched it to the king, urging him to send forces to his support and to hand over to him their country and towns. 19 He sent other men to Gazara to do away with John, and he sent letters to the officers of the thousands, inviting them to come to him so that he might give them silver, gold, and gifts. 20 Still others he sent to take possession of Jerusalem and the temple hill. 21 But a messenger outran them and told John at Gazara that his father and brothers were dead, and said, "He has sent men to kill you too." 22 When John heard this, he was deeply shaken. He seized the men who had been sent to kill him and executed them, because he had learned that they were trying to kill him.

23 The rest of John's story, his wars and the brave deeds he performed, the walls he built, and his other accomplishments, 24 are recorded in the annals of his high priesthood, from the time he succeeded his father as high priest.[d]

Notes

- a (16:10) "It" probably refers to Azotus; some take it to mean the town of Kedron. Swete's Greek reads "about a thousand" of the enemy fell; some ancient witnesses read "two thousand."
- b (16:14) Greek: in the 177th year, in the eleventh month, which is the month of Shebat (Seleucid era; see note on 1:10). Shebat (Shevat) is January–February.
- c (16:15) Dok, a small fortress on a hill above Jericho.
- d (16:24) John Hyrcanus ruled 134–104 BC. No such annals are known to survive.

2 Maccabees

Apocrypha

Chapter 1

1 To their kindred, the Jews throughout Egypt, greetings from their kindred, the Jews in Jerusalem and in the land of Judea: true peace.
2 May God do you good, and may he remember his covenant with Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, his faithful servants. 3 May he give all of you a heart to worship him and to carry out his will with a great heart and a willing spirit. 4 May he open your hearts to his law and commandments, and may he give you peace. 5 May he listen to your prayers and be reconciled with you, and never abandon you in a time of trouble. 6 Here and now we are praying for you.
7 In the reign of Demetrius, in the year 143 BC,[a] we Jews wrote to you:
"During the suffering and crisis that fell on us in those years, after Jason and his supporters betrayed the holy land and the kingdom,[b] 8 they set fire to the gateway and shed innocent blood. Then we pleaded with the Lord and were heard; we offered sacrifice and fine flour, we lit the lamps, and we set out the loaves." 9 And now see that you keep the days of Booths in the month of Chislev (in November– December).[c] 10 Written in the year 124 BC.[d] From those in Jerusalem and Judea, the senate, and Judas, to Aristobulus, who is of the stock of the anointed priests and tutor to King Ptolemy, and to the Jews of Egypt: greeting, and health.[e] 11 Having been rescued by God from grave dangers, we give him great thanks, as men who stood in battle array against a king. 12 For it was he who hurled out those who drew up for battle against the holy city. 13 When the leader reached Persia with an army that seemed irresistible, they were cut to pieces in the temple of Nanea through a trick employed by Nanea's priests.[f] 14 On the pretext of marrying the goddess, Antiochus came to the place with his Friends, meaning to take its great riches as a dowry. 15 The priests of Nanea had laid out the treasures, and Antiochus went inside the walls of the sacred area with a small escort; as soon as he was in, they locked the temple. 16 Opening a secret door in the paneled ceiling, they hurled stones and struck down the leader as if with thunderbolts; then they cut the bodies in pieces and threw the heads to those outside. 17 Our God be praised in all things, he who gave up the impious to judgment!

18 We are about to keep the cleansing of the sanctuary on the twenty-fifth of Chislev (in November–December), and so we judged it needful to make this known to you, that you also may observe a feast of Booths and of the fire which appeared when Nehemiah, the builder of the sanctuary and altar, brought up sacrifices.[g] 19 For when our ancestors were being led away to Persia, devout priests of that time secretly took some of the fire from the altar and hid it in the hollow of a dry cistern, where they made it secure, so that the place was unknown to anyone. 20 After many years had passed, when it pleased God, Nehemiah, sent by the king of Persia, dispatched the descendants of the priests who had hidden the fire to recover it. 21 They told us they had found no fire, only a thick liquid. He ordered them to scoop some up and bring it. After the materials for the sacrifices had been laid on the altar, Nehemiah commanded the priests to splash the liquid over the wood and everything on it. 22 When this was done and some time had passed, and the sun, which had been behind clouds, shone out, a great blaze flared up, so that everyone marveled. 23 And as the offering burned, the priests made prayer, both priests and all the rest, Jonathan beginning and the others answering, as Nehemiah did. 24 The prayer went like this: "O Lord, Lord God, Creator of all things, awe-inspiring and strong, just and merciful, you alone are King and kind, 25 you alone are bountiful, you alone are just, almighty, and eternal. You rescue Israel from every evil; you made our ancestors your chosen ones and consecrated them. 26 Receive the offering for the whole of Israel your people; keep safe your inheritance and sanctify it. 27 Bring our dispersion together again; free those in bondage among the Gentiles; regard the scorned and abhorred; and so let the Gentiles learn that you are our God. 28 Punish those who oppress us and insolently abuse us in their arrogance. 29 Plant your people in your holy place, as Moses said." 30 Then the priests sang the hymns.

31 Once the sacrifice was burned up, Nehemiah gave orders to pour what remained of the liquid upon some large stones. 32 When this was done, a flame blazed up, but it was consumed by the light that shone back from the altar.[h] 33 Once the affair came to light, the Persian king was told that where the priests carried into exile had concealed the fire, liquid had been found, and that Nehemiah's company had used it to purify the offerings. 34 The king fenced off the place and made it sacred, after investigating the matter. 35 And to those on whom the king bestowed favor, he gave a share of the many gifts he received.[i] 36 Nehemiah's company gave this the name nephthar, interpreted as "cleansing"; but among most it goes by the name naphtha.[j]

Notes

- a (1:7) Greek: in the 169th year (Seleucid era). The Seleucid era is the reckoning used in the books of Maccabees, counted from the founding of the Seleucid kingdom in autumn 312 BC or spring 311 BC; converted years may be off by one. Demetrius is Demetrius II.
- b (1:7) Jason the high priest; see 4:7–26 and 5:5–10.
- c (1:9) Literally "the days of Booths of the month of Chislev," that is, the festival of the temple's rededication (Hanukkah), kept for eight days in the manner of Booths; see 10:6. Chislev is the ninth month, November–December.
- d (1:10) Greek: in the 188th year (Seleucid era; see note on 1:7). Many interpreters attach this date to the first letter; others take it as the opening of the second letter.
- e (1:10) Aristobulus was a Jewish philosopher of Alexandria; the king is probably Ptolemy VI Philometor. The second letter (1:10–2:18) claims to come from Judas Maccabeus and so would date from about 164 BC.
- f (1:13) Nanea (Nanaia) was a goddess worshiped in Persia and Mesopotamia. This account of the death of Antiochus differs from 1 Macc 6:1–16 and 2 Macc 9; it may reflect the death of Antiochus III in 187 BC, who died plundering a temple in Elymais.
- g (1:18) Chislev is the ninth month, November–December. The traditional reconstruction of the temple was by Zerubbabel and Joshua (Ezra 3–6); this tradition credits Nehemiah.
- h (1:32) The sense of this verse is uncertain.
- i (1:35) Or "the king took many gifts and gave a share to them"; the Greek is obscure.
- j (1:36) Nephthar is of uncertain origin and meaning; the explanation "purification" is the author's. Naphtha is a flammable petroleum liquid.

Chapter 2

1 The records show that the prophet Jeremiah instructed those being taken into exile to take some of the fire with them, as already described, 2 and that the prophet, having handed them the law, charged the deportees not to forget the Lord's ordinances, nor to be led astray in their thoughts on seeing images of gold and silver and their finery. 3 With other such words he exhorted them never to let the law depart from their hearts. 4 The writing also told how the prophet, warned by an oracle, ordered the tent and the ark to go along with him, and how he went out to the mountain that Moses had climbed to view God's inheritance.[a] 5 Arriving there, Jeremiah found a cave-like dwelling, and into it he carried the tent, the ark, and the altar of incense; then he blocked up the entrance. 6 Some of his companions came up afterward meaning to mark the way, but they could not find it. 7 When Jeremiah learned of this, he rebuked them: "Unknown that place will be, until God brings his people together in one assembly and mercy comes. 8 Then the Lord will reveal where they are, and the Lord's glory and the cloud will appear, just as they were displayed in the days of Moses, and when Solomon prayed that the place would be wonderfully consecrated." 9 It was also made clear how Solomon, being endowed with wisdom, offered a sacrifice for the dedication and completion of the sanctuary. 10 Just as Moses prayed to the Lord and fire came down from heaven and devoured the sacrifices, so too Solomon prayed, and the fire descended and consumed the whole burnt offerings. 11 And Moses said, "Because the sin offering had not been eaten, it was consumed."[b] 12 Likewise Solomon too kept the eight days.[c]

13 The same things are also recorded in the archives and in Nehemiah's memoirs, which add that he founded a library and gathered the books about the kings and the prophets, the writings of David, and the kings' letters about gifts dedicated to God.[d] 14 In the same way Judas also gathered up all the books that had been scattered because of the war that befell us, and we have them in our possession. 15 So if you need any of them, send people to fetch them for you.

16 Since, then, we are about to celebrate the purification, we write to you. You will do well, therefore, to keep these days. 17 It is God who has saved all his people and has given back to all the inheritance, the kingship, the priesthood, and the consecration, 18 as he pledged in the law. Our hope rests on God, that he will be quick to pity us and to gather us from everywhere under heaven into the holy place; for out of great evils he delivered us, and he cleansed the place.
19 The story of Judas Maccabeus and his brothers,[e] the purification of the great temple, and the dedication of the altar, 20 and further the wars against Antiochus Epiphanes and his son Eupator,[f] 21 and the manifestations from heaven granted to those who strove valiantly, with honor, on behalf of Judaism,[g] so that, few as they were, they overran the whole land and chased off the barbarian multitudes, 22 and won back the temple renowned throughout the inhabited world, and set the city free, and reestablished the laws then on the verge of being overthrown, the Lord in all his gentleness being merciful toward them, 23 all this, made known by Jason the Cyrenian in five books, we will try to shorten into one composition. 24 For we saw the flood of figures, and the difficulty that the sheer mass of material poses for anyone wishing to plunge into the narratives of the history, 25 and we have aimed to bring delight to those who wish to read, ease to those inclined to commit things to memory, and benefit to all who come upon the work. 26 For us who have taken on the toil of abridging, the task is no easy one; it is a matter of sweat and sleepless nights, 27 just as it is no light thing for one preparing a banquet who seeks the enjoyment of others. Even so, for the sake of the gratitude of many, we shall gladly endure the toil, 28 leaving to the original author the precise treatment of every detail, while we exert ourselves to follow the outlines of an abridgment. 29 For as the master builder of a new house must concern himself with the entire structure, while the one who undertakes to paint and decorate it must look into what is suitable for adornment, so I judge it to be in our case. 30 To enter into the subject, to range over it in discussion, and to busy oneself with particulars is the task of the first compiler of the history; 31 but the one who recasts it must be allowed to aim at brevity of expression and to forgo exhaustive treatment. 32 So at this point let us begin the narrative, adding only this much to what has been said; it would be foolish to go on at length in the preface and then shorten the history itself.

Notes

- a (2:4) Mount Nebo; see Deut 32:49; 34:1–4.
- b (2:11) See Lev 10:16–20.
- c (2:12) See 1 Kings 8:65–66; 2 Chr 7:8–10.
- d (2:13) "Votive offerings": gifts dedicated to the temple.
- e (2:19) Maccabeus, the surname of Judas, perhaps means "hammer" (Aramaic maqqaba), but the meaning is uncertain.
- f (2:20) Antiochus IV Epiphanes ("God manifest") and his son Antiochus V Eupator ("of a noble father").
- g (2:21) This is the earliest known use of the Greek word "Judaism," the name for the Jewish way of life; compare 8:1; 14:38.

Chapter 3

1 The holy city lived in complete peace and the laws were observed with great faithfulness, thanks to the devotion of Onias the high priest and his loathing of evil,[a] 2 and so the kings themselves honored the place and enhanced the temple with magnificent gifts, 3 so that even Seleucus, king of Asia, met from his own revenues all the costs connected with the service of the sacrifices.[b]

4 But a certain Simon, of the tribe of Benjamin,[c] who had been appointed captain of the temple, fell into a dispute with the high priest about the regulation of the city market. 5 Unable to prevail over Onias, he went to Apollonius son of Thraseas, who at that time was governor of Coelesyria and Phoenicia,[d] 6 and informed him that the treasury in Jerusalem was overflowing with immense amounts of money, too much to count, and that it had nothing to do with the sacrificial accounts but could come under the king's control. 7 When Apollonius met the king, he told him of the money that had been disclosed to him. The king chose Heliodorus, his chief minister, and sent him with orders to carry off the reported wealth.[e] 8 Heliodorus at once took the road, in appearance to visit the towns of Coelesyria and Phoenicia, but in reality to accomplish what the king intended. 9 On arriving at Jerusalem and being kindly welcomed by the high priest of the city, he laid before him the information that had been given and made plain why he had come, and he asked whether these things were really so. 10 The high priest explained that there were deposits belonging to widows and orphans, 11 and that some belonged to Hyrcanus son of Tobias, a man holding a very eminent place. So far was it from what Simon, that ungodly man, alleged. The whole came to fifteen tons of silver and seven and a half tons of gold.[f] 12 It was completely unthinkable to wrong people who had trusted in the holiness of the place and in the sacredness and inviolability of a temple honored all over the world. 13 But Heliodorus insisted, because of the king's orders, that the money had to be seized for the royal treasury in any case.

14 Fixing a day, he went in to manage the examination of these funds, and anguish of no small degree gripped the entire city. 15 The priests flung themselves down before the altar in their priestly robes and cried out to Heaven, to the one who had laid down the law concerning deposits, asking him to preserve these intact for those who had placed them there. 16 Whoever looked on the high priest's countenance was pierced in mind, for his appearance and his altered complexion revealed the agony within his soul. 17 Fear and a shuddering of the body had spread over him, and by these the grief settled in his heart was made evident to the onlookers. 18 Crowds of people also ran out of their houses to join in a public plea, because the holy place was about to be disgraced. 19 The women, with sackcloth bound beneath their breasts, filled the roadways in great numbers; and of the virgins kept in seclusion, some ran to the gateways, some to the walls, and some leaned out to look through the windows. 20 And all of them, stretching out their hands toward heaven, made their entreaty. 21 It was pitiable to see the multitude prostrate in a mixed throng, and the anxious expectation of the high priest in his great anguish.

22 While they were calling upon the almighty Lord to keep the things entrusted safe and secure for those who had entrusted them, 23 Heliodorus went on with what had been decided. 24 But when he was already present at the treasury with his guards, the Ruler over spirits and every power made a great appearing, so that all who had dared to come along were struck with dismay at God's might and gave way to weakness and fear. [25] For a horse appeared to them, carrying a terrifying rider and decked with the most beautiful harness; charging violently, it lashed at Heliodorus with its forefeet, and the one mounted on it seemed to wear a full suit of golden armor. [26] Two other young men also appeared to him, remarkably strong, splendid in beauty, and gorgeously dressed; they stood on either side of him and flogged him without pause, inflicting many blows on him. [27] When he had suddenly fallen to the ground and was enveloped in deep darkness, they picked him up, put him on a stretcher, [28] and carried away the man who had just entered that treasury with a great retinue and all his bodyguard, now helpless; and they plainly recognized the sovereign power of God. [29] So he, by God's working, lay cast down, voiceless and bereft of every hope of rescue, [30] while they blessed the Lord who had wondrously glorified his own place; and the sanctuary, so lately brimming with dread and confusion, was now full of joy and rejoicing, since the almighty Lord had shown himself.

[31] Soon certain of Heliodorus's intimates asked Onias to call on the Most High and grant life to the man who lay at his very last gasp. [32] The high priest, fearing that the king might suspect that some foul play had been done to Heliodorus by the Jews, offered a sacrifice for the man's recovery. [33] As the high priest was offering the sacrifice of atonement, those same youths, clad in the same garments, once more appeared to Heliodorus. Standing there, they said, "Owe Onias the high priest much thanks; on his account the Lord has granted you life. [34] As for you, scourged from heaven, proclaim to everyone God's mighty strength." When they had said this, they were seen no more. [35] Heliodorus then offered a sacrifice to the Lord and made extravagant vows to the one who had spared his life; he said goodbye to Onias and marched his troops back to the king. [36] He bore testimony to everyone of the deeds of the supreme God that he had seen with his own eyes. [37] The king asked Heliodorus who might be a fit man to dispatch once again to Jerusalem, and he answered: [38] "Should you have some foe or someone scheming against the state, dispatch him there, and you will receive him back well scourged, if indeed he comes through alive; for truly a power of God surrounds that place. 39 The one whose abode is in heaven is himself its overseer and helper, and those who arrive there to do it harm he smites and destroys." 40 This was the outcome of the affair of Heliodorus and the protection of the treasury.

Notes

- a (3:1) Onias III, high priest about 196–175 BC.
- b (3:3) Seleucus IV Philopator, king 187–175 BC.
- c (3:4) Some ancient witnesses read "of Bilgah," a priestly family (Neh 12:5, 18).
- d (3:5) Coelesyria ("Hollow Syria") was the region between the Lebanon ranges, extending in official usage to Palestine.
- e (3:7) Literally "the one in charge of affairs."
- f (3:11) Greek: four hundred talents of silver and two hundred talents of gold. A talent was about 75 pounds (34 kg).

Chapter 4

1 But the aforesaid Simon, who had turned informer against the funds and against his own homeland, went about slandering Onias, as if it were Onias who had stirred Heliodorus up and had been the author of these evils. 2 He dared to call the city's benefactor, the protector of his fellow countrymen and zealous upholder of the laws, a conspirator against the state. 3 When the enmity advanced so far that even murders were carried out by one of Simon's trusted agents, 4 Onias saw how dangerous the rivalry was, and that Apollonius son of Menestheus, governor of Coelesyria and Phoenicia, was fanning Simon's malice.[a] 5 So he betook himself to the king, not as an accuser of his fellow citizens but with an eye to the welfare, both public and private, of all the people. 6 For he saw that without the king's attention it was impossible for public affairs to find peace, and that Simon would not cease from his folly.

7 When Seleucus died and Antiochus, known as Epiphanes, took the throne, Jason, the brother of Onias, got the high priesthood through bribery,[b] 8 promising the king in a petition about thirteen and a half tons of silver, and from some other revenue about three tons more.[c] 9 Besides this he engaged to pay in writing about five and a half tons further, if leave were given him by the king's authority to found a gymnasium and a training corps of youths, and to register the people of Jerusalem as citizens of Antioch.[d] 10 The king agreed; and as soon as Jason held the office, he immediately moved his countrymen over to the Greek way of life. 11 He set aside the royal privileges granted to the Jews, obtained through John the father of Eupolemus, who had gone on the embassy to the Romans for friendship and alliance;[e] and abolishing the lawful ways of life, he brought in new customs contrary to the law. 12 With relish he founded a gymnasium right below the citadel, and he made the noblest of the young men submit to wearing the broad-brimmed hat.[f] 13 Thus Hellenism reached its height and the adoption of alien customs advanced, through the boundless profanity of Jason, an impious man and in no way a high priest, 14 that the priests were no longer eager for the services of the altar. Despising the sanctuary and neglecting the sacrifices, they hastened, once the gong summoned for the discus, to take part in the unlawful exercises provided in the wrestling school.[g] 15 Counting their ancestral honors as nothing, they prized Greek distinctions above all. 16 For this reason a grievous calamity overtook them, and the very people whose ways they envied and wished to resemble in every respect became their enemies and punishers. 17 For to act impiously against the divine laws is no light matter, as the period that follows will show.

18 When the games held every fifth year were being celebrated at Tyre, and the king was present,[h] 19 the polluted Jason sent official delegates, purporting to be Antiochenes from Jerusalem, conveying nearly three pounds of silver for the sacrifice to Heracles.[i] But the bearers themselves thought it unfitting to spend it on a sacrifice, 20 and so, on account of those bringing it, it went to the construction of warships.[j]

21 Apollonius son of Menestheus was dispatched to Egypt for the enthronement of King Philometor,[k] and Antiochus, discovering that Philometor had turned unfriendly toward his interests, looked to his own safety. So he went to Joppa and from there came down to Jerusalem. 22 He was received in grand style by Jason and the city and was ushered in with torchlight and shouting. After that he marched his army into Phoenicia.

23 After three years, Jason sent Menelaus, brother of the Simon mentioned above, to deliver the money to the king and to finish the records on urgent business.[l] 24 But Menelaus, once presented to the king, flattered him with the bearing of a man of power and so drew the high priesthood to himself, outbidding Jason by about eleven tons of silver.[m] 25 After receiving the king's commission he returned, bringing nothing worthy of the high priesthood but having the passions of a cruel tyrant and the rage of a savage beast. 26 So Jason, who had undermined his own brother, was undermined in turn by another and was driven as a fugitive into the land of Ammon. 27 Menelaus kept firm hold of the office, but of the money promised to the king he paid nothing in due order. 28 Sostratus, the citadel's commandant, pressed for payment, for the collecting of the dues belonged to him; and on this account both men were called before the king. 29 Menelaus left his own brother Lysimachus as his deputy in the high priesthood, and Sostratus left Crates, the commander of the Cypriots, in his place.[n] 30 Matters standing thus, the citizens of Tarsus and Mallus rose in revolt, since their towns had been handed over as a gift to Antiochis, a concubine of the king. 31 So the king went off in haste to settle matters, leaving as his deputy Andronicus, a man of high rank. 32 Menelaus, supposing a favorable moment had come, purloined certain golden vessels belonging to the sanctuary and made a present of them to Andronicus; others he had already sold off in Tyre and the neighboring towns. 33 When Onias had clear knowledge of this, he exposed him publicly, having withdrawn to a place of sanctuary at Daphne near Antioch.[o] 34 Therefore Menelaus, taking Andronicus aside, urged him to kill Onias. Andronicus went to Onias, and resorting to treachery, gave him his right hand with oaths. Though still suspected, he persuaded Onias to come out from the sanctuary, and at once he shut him away and killed him, with no regard for justice.[p] 35 For this reason not only Jews but many people of other nations too were indignant and displeased at the unjust murder of the man. 36 On the king's return from the districts of Cilicia, the city's Jews appealed to him, joined by Greeks who shared their loathing of wrongdoing, concerning the senseless slaying of Onias. 37 Antiochus was grieved at heart and moved to pity, and he wept because of the moderation and great good conduct of the deceased. [38] Blazing with anger, he immediately took off Andronicus's purple robe and ripped his clothes off, then led him through the whole city to the very spot where he had committed the crime against Onias; there he killed the murderer, as the Lord paid him back with the punishment he deserved.

[39] When many sacrileges had been committed in the city by Lysimachus with the connivance of Menelaus, and the report had spread abroad, the populace gathered against Lysimachus, for many of the gold vessels had already been carried off. [40] As the crowds were rising and becoming filled with rage, Lysimachus armed about three thousand men and began unjust violence, with a certain Auranus leading, a man advanced in years and no less in folly. [41] When the people saw the attack of Lysimachus, some seized stones, some thick pieces of wood, and others grabbed handfuls of the ashes lying near, and they hurled them in wild confusion at Lysimachus and his men. [42] As a result they wounded many of them, struck down some, and put all of them to flight; and the temple robber himself they killed beside the treasury.

[43] A charge was brought against Menelaus over these matters. [44] When the king came to Tyre, the three men sent by the council of elders presented the case before him. [45] But Menelaus, already losing, offered Ptolemy son of Dorymenes a substantial sum if he would bring the king round. [46] So Ptolemy, taking the king aside into a colonnade as if for fresh air, induced him to change his mind. [47] Menelaus, the cause of all the evil, he acquitted of the charges, while the unfortunate men, who would have been freed as innocent even if they had pleaded before Scythians, he sentenced to death.ᑫ [48] So those who had pleaded on behalf of the city, the country districts, and the sacred vessels swiftly underwent that undeserved punishment. [49] For this cause Tyrians too, out of abhorrence of the wickedness, bore the cost of their funeral with great generosity. [50] Yet Menelaus kept his office through the covetousness of the powerful, ever thriving in wickedness, set up as the great traitor to his fellow citizens.

Notes

- a (4:4) In 3:5 the governor is called Apollonius son of Thraseas; the relation of the two names is uncertain.
- b (4:7) Antiochus IV Epiphanes became king in 175 BC.
- c (4:8) Greek: three hundred sixty talents of silver, and eighty talents. A talent was about 75 pounds (34 kg).
- d (4:9) Greek: one hundred fifty talents (see note on 4:8). Or "to register the Antiochenes in Jerusalem"; the Greek may refer to a citizen body of Antioch formed within Jerusalem.
- e (4:11) See 1 Macc 8:17.
- f (4:12) The petasos, a broad-brimmed hat associated with Hermes, patron of athletics, was worn by youths in the gymnasium.
- g (4:14) Or "after the signal for the discus"; the Greek is uncertain.
- h (4:18) Games in honor of Heracles (Melqart) held at Tyre every four years (counted inclusively as the fifth).
- i (4:19) Greek: three hundred drachmas. The drachma, a silver coin, weighed about 0.15 ounce (4.3 g). Heracles was identified with Melqart, god of Tyre. Some ancient witnesses read "three thousand three hundred."
- j (4:20) Literally "on account of those present"; the sense is uncertain.
- k (4:21) Greek protoklisia, apparently the enthronement of Ptolemy VI Philometor, about 172 BC.
- l (4:23) About 172 BC.
- m (4:24) Greek: three hundred talents (see note on 4:8).
- n (4:29) Mercenaries from Cyprus.
- o (4:33) Daphne, a suburb of Antioch, had a famous sanctuary of Apollo and Artemis with right of asylum.
- p (4:34) Onias III was killed about 170 BC.
- q (4:47) The Scythians, from north of the Black Sea, were proverbial for barbarity.

Chapter 5

1 About this time Antiochus made his second expedition into Egypt.[a]
2 And it came about that over the whole city, for nearly forty days, there appeared horsemen racing through the air, clad in garments woven with gold, armed with lances in companies, 3 swords drawn, troops of cavalry drawn up in order, charges and countercharges on either side, shields brandished, a forest of spears, missiles flying, the flash of golden ornaments, and armor of every kind. 4 So everyone prayed that the apparition might prove a good omen.
5 When a false rumor arose that Antiochus had departed this life, Jason took no fewer than a thousand men and made a sudden assault on the city. The defenders on the wall were driven back, and when at last the city was being taken, Menelaus fled for refuge into the citadel.

6 But Jason went on slaughtering his own fellow citizens without mercy, not perceiving that success against one's own kindred is the greatest failure, but imagining that he was setting up trophies over enemies and not over his own nation. 7 He did not win the office; in the end he gained only shame from his plot and passed again as a fugitive into the land of Ammon. 8 In the end he came to a miserable death. Imprisoned by Aretas, the ruler of the Arabs,[b] he ran from city to city, hunted by everyone, hated as a lawbreaker, and despised as the butcher of his own country and people, and he was cast up on the shore in Egypt. 9 He who had driven many from their own land into exile died in exile, having sailed off to the Lacedaemonians in hope of finding shelter there on account of kinship.[c] 10 He who had thrown out multitudes to lie unburied went unmourned himself, and had no funeral of any kind, nor any place in an ancestral tomb.
11 When news of what had happened reached the king, he concluded that Judea was in revolt. So, setting out from Egypt raging like a wild beast, he took the city by storm. 12 He commanded his soldiers to cut down without mercy those they met, and to slay those who went up onto the housetops. 13 Young and old were killed; boys, women and children were destroyed; unmarried girls and infants were slaughtered. 14 Within the space of three days eighty thousand were lost, forty thousand in hand-to-hand fighting, and as many again were sold as slaves as were slain.
15 Not satisfied with this, he made bold to go into the sanctuary holiest on all the earth, with Menelaus as his guide, that betrayer of the laws and of his native land. 16 With polluted hands he seized the holy vessels, and with profane hands he swept away the offerings that other kings had set up to enhance the glory and honor of the place.
17 Antiochus grew haughty in mind, failing to see that the Master's anger had been roused briefly over the sins of the city's inhabitants, and that this accounted for his neglect of the place. 18 But had they not happened to be entangled in many sins, this man too, like Heliodorus whom King Seleucus sent to inspect the treasury, would have been flogged as soon as he came forward and turned back from his rash act. [19] Yet it was not for the place's sake that the Lord chose the people; rather, he chose the place for the people's sake. [20] So the place itself, having partaken in the calamities that came upon the people, later had its part in their blessings; abandoned when the Almighty was angry, it was set up again with all splendor once the great Master was reconciled.

[21] So Antiochus took away about sixty-eight tons from the sanctuary[d] and hastened off to Antioch, supposing in his pride that he could sail upon dry land and march across the open sea, such was the loftiness of his heart. [22] He left governors to afflict the people: at Jerusalem, Philip, by race a Phrygian and in character more barbarous than the man who appointed him; [23] and Andronicus at Gerizim; and in addition Menelaus, who ruled over his fellow citizens more harshly than the others did, and who held a hateful attitude toward the Jewish citizens.[e] [24] He sent Apollonius, the Mysian commander,[f] at the head of an army of twenty-two thousand, ordering him to kill every adult man and to sell the women and the young. [25] When Apollonius reached Jerusalem, he pretended to come in peace and waited until the holy sabbath day; then, finding the Jews resting, he ordered his troops to march in formation under arms. [26] All who came out to watch he put to the sword, and rushing into the city with his armed men he killed great numbers.
[27] But Judas Maccabeus, with about nine others, withdrew into the wilderness and lived like wild animals in the mountains with his companions; they continued to eat what grew wild, so as not to share in the defilement.[g]

Notes

- a (5:1) About 168 BC. Some historians count this as the king's second campaign, others as his third.
- b (5:8) Aretas I, king of the Nabateans. Greek tyrannos here means "ruler," not necessarily "tyrant."
- c (5:9) The Spartans claimed kinship with the Jews; see 1 Macc 12:6–23.
- d (5:21) A talent was about 75 pounds (34 kg).
- e (5:23) Or "having a hostile disposition toward the citizens, being Jews"; the Greek is uncertain.

- f (5:24) Greek mysarchēs, perhaps "commander of the Mysians" (mercenaries from Asia Minor), or a pun meaning "chief of the abominable"; compare 1 Macc 1:29.
- g (5:27) Literally "being himself about the tenth." See 1 Macc 2:28.

Chapter 6

1 Not long afterward the king sent out an old Athenian[a] to force the Jews to abandon their ancestral laws and to cease living by the laws of God, 2 and also to defile the sanctuary in Jerusalem and name it after Olympian Zeus, and the one at Gerizim after Zeus the Protector of Strangers, in keeping with the character of those who dwelt in that place.[b] 3 Harsh and hard for everyone to bear was the onset of this evil. 4 For the sanctuary was filled with debauchery and reveling by Gentiles who idled with prostitutes and had intercourse with women within the sacred courts, and who moreover carried in things that were forbidden. 5 The altar was heaped with abominable offerings, prohibited by the laws. 6 One could neither keep the sabbath nor observe the ancestral feasts, nor so much as confess oneself to be a Jew. 7 On the king's birthday each month they were led, under bitter compulsion, to partake of the sacrificial entrails;[c] and when the festival of Dionysus came round, they were compelled to walk in the procession for Dionysus wearing wreaths of ivy. 8 By a motion of Ptolemy,[d] an edict was published to the Greek towns round about, directing them to treat the Jews in the same fashion and make them eat of the sacrifices, 9 and should put to death those who did not choose to go over to Greek ways. So one could see the misery that had come. 10 For instance, two women were brought in for having circumcised their children. They hung the babies at their mothers' breasts, paraded the women publicly about the city, and flung them headlong from the wall. 11 Others, who had gathered nearby in caves in order to keep the seventh day in secret, were betrayed to Philip and were all burned together, because their reverence for that most holy day kept them from defending themselves.

12 Now I urge those who come upon this book not to lose heart because of these calamities, but to consider that these punishments were meant not for the destruction of our race but for its discipline. 13 Indeed, not to let the ungodly alone for long, but to bring retribution on them swiftly, is a sign of great kindness. 14 With other nations, the Lord patiently waits to punish them until their sins have reached their full measure; but he chose not to treat us in that way, 15 lest he should take vengeance on us afterward, when our sins have come to their full height. 16 Therefore he never withdraws his mercy from us.

Though he disciplines with calamity, he does not abandon his own people. 17 But let this much be said by way of reminder; after these few words we must come back to the narrative.
18 Eleazar, one of the foremost scribes, a man already advanced in age and of most noble bearing, was being forced to open his mouth to eat swine's flesh. 19 But he, preferring death with honor to life with defilement, spat it out[e] and went of his own accord to the rack, 20 as men ought to come forward who have the courage to refuse what it is not lawful to taste, even out of love of life. 21 The overseers of that lawless feast of sacrifice, since they had known the man from long ago, drew him aside in private and pressed him to have meat brought that he himself had prepared and that he was allowed to eat, and to make a show of eating the portions of sacrificial flesh commanded by the king, 22 so that by doing this he might be released from death and, for the sake of his old friendship with them, be treated kindly. 23 But he formed a lofty judgment, one that befitted his age, the eminence of his advanced years, the gray hair he had won to his honor, his blameless manner of life from boyhood, and still more the holy legislation established by God; and he made answer accordingly, bidding them dispatch him to Hades without delay.[f] 24 "It does not befit our time of life to pretend," he said, "lest many of the young suppose that Eleazar at ninety years has gone over to an alien religion, 25 and through my pretense, for the sake of a brief moment of life, they be led astray because of me, while I bring defilement and disgrace upon my old age.
26 Even if I escape human punishment for now, I will not escape the hands of the Almighty, whether I live or die. 27 So by giving up my life bravely now, I will prove myself worthy of my old age, 28 bequeathing to the young a noble pattern, so that they may meet a good death eagerly and gallantly on behalf of the sacred and holy laws." When he had said so much, he went straightway to the rack. 29 Those who led him, who a little before had been kindly disposed toward him, now turned hostile, because the words he had just spoken were in their opinion sheer madness. 30 As he was about to die from the blows, he groaned and said, "The Lord, whose knowledge is holy, can see that I could have escaped death, yet I am suffering terrible pain in my body from this beating; but in my soul I gladly endure it, because I fear him." 31 Such was the manner of his death; and to the young, and to most of his people as well, he left behind his dying as a pattern of high courage and a remembrance of virtue.

Notes

- a (6:1) Or "Geron the Athenian"; Greek gerōn means "old man" and may also be a proper name. Some ancient witnesses read "an Antiochian."
- b (6:2) Zeus Xenios, protector of strangers. The phrase "in keeping with the character of those who dwelt in that place" may refer to the Samaritans' hospitality or, ironically, to their being of foreign origin; the Greek is uncertain.
- c (6:7) Or "to the monthly sacrifice" on the king's birthday.
- d (6:8) Probably Ptolemy son of Dorymenes (4:45); compare 8:8.
- e (6:19) Or "led himself to it"; the Greek of vv. 19–20 is compressed.
- f (6:23) Hades, the abode of the dead.

Chapter 7

1 It happened also that seven brothers were arrested along with their mother, and the king tried to compel them, by torturing them with whips and thongs, to touch the forbidden pig's flesh. 2 One of them, acting as spokesman, said, "What do you intend to ask us and learn from us? We stand ready to die sooner than transgress the laws of our fathers." 3 In a fury the king commanded pans and caldrons to be heated red-hot. 4 As soon as they were heated, he ordered the tongue of their spokesman to be cut out, the skin of his head to be torn away in the Scythian manner, and his hands and feet to be lopped off, while his remaining brothers and his mother looked on. 5 After he was left totally helpless, the king ordered him brought to the fire while still breathing and fried in a pan. As the smoke from the pan drifted far and wide, the brothers and their mother kept encouraging each other to die bravely, saying: 6 "The Lord God is watching over us and truly feels compassion for us, as Moses made clear in the song that testifies against the people to their faces, when he said, 'He will have compassion on his servants.'"[a] 7 When the first had died in this way, they brought forward the second to be made sport of. They tore off the skin of his head along with the hair and asked him, "Will you eat, before your body is punished limb by limb?" 8 He answered in the language of his ancestors[b] and told them, "No." So he too underwent the tortures in turn, as the first had done. 9 And at his final gasp he said, "Fiend that you are, you set us free from life here and now; but since we die on behalf of his laws, the King of the world will raise us to an eternal return to life."

10 After him the third was made a mockery. When they demanded his tongue, he quickly thrust it out, and he courageously stretched forth his hands, 11 and nobly said, "From Heaven I received these, and for the sake of his laws I count them as nothing, and from him I hope to receive them back again." 12 so that the king and his company were amazed at the youth's courage, since he treated the pains as of no account.
13 When this one too had died, they mistreated and tortured the fourth in the same way. 14 Close to death, he spoke these words: "Better it is for those who pass away at human hands to look for the hopes that come from God, that they will be raised by him once more. For you, though, there will be no rising again to life."
15 Next they led forward the fifth and abused him. 16 Looking at the king, he said, "You hold authority among mortals, though you yourself are perishable, and you do what you please. But do not imagine that God has forsaken our race. 17 Only wait, and you will behold his mighty power, how he will torment you and your descendants."
18 After him they brought the sixth. On the point of dying, he said, "Do not be led astray to no purpose. We suffer these things on our own account, for we sinned against our own God; that is why such marvels have come about. 19 But you, do not think you will go unpunished, now that you have undertaken to fight against God." 20 The mother was the most remarkable of all, and deserves to be remembered with honor. She watched her seven sons die in a single day, yet she bore it bravely because of her hope in the Lord. 21 In the language of her ancestors she encouraged each of them, filled with a noble spirit; rousing her woman's reasoning with a man's courage, she said to them, 22 "How you appeared within my womb I cannot tell. Not I bestowed on you spirit and life; not I arranged in order the elements that compose each one of you. 23 It is the world's Creator, then, who formed humanity at its birth and found out how all things come to be, who will give spirit and life back to you again in mercy, since now you hold yourselves of no account on behalf of his laws." 24 Antiochus felt he was being mocked, and suspected that her words were an insult. The youngest son was still alive, and the king not only appealed to him with words but also gave him his sworn word that he would make him rich and fortunate if he would abandon his ancestors' ways, and that he would make him his Friend and give him a high position. 25 Because the young man paid no attention at all, the king summoned the mother and urged her to advise the boy to save himself. 26 After he had urged her at length, she undertook to persuade her son. 27 But she leaned close to him, scorned the cruel tyrant, and said in her ancestral language: "My son, take pity on me. For nine months I carried you in my womb, and for three years I nursed you;

I raised you and brought you up to this age, and I have cared for you.
28 Child, I ask you to lift your eyes to the sky and the earth, to look at all that is in them, and to understand that God made them from what did not exist.[c] So it is too that the human race comes to be. 29 Do not fear this butcher, but prove worthy of your brothers and accept death, so that in God's mercy I may receive you back along with your brothers."
30 She was still speaking when the young man said, "For whom are you waiting? To the king's decree I do not listen; I heed the decree of the law given through Moses to our fathers. 31 But you, who have devised every kind of evil against the Hebrews, will not escape God's hands.
32 For we are suffering because of our own sins. 33 And if, for the sake of rebuke and discipline, our living Lord is angry with us for a little while, he will be reconciled again with his own servants. 34 But you, impious man, foulest of all mortals, do not soar up idly, swelling with hopes that have no ground, as you lift your hand against Heaven's children. 35 You have not yet escaped the judgment of the all-seeing, almighty God. 36 For our brothers, after enduring brief pain, have now fallen under God's covenant of ever-flowing life;[d] but you, by the judgment of God, will bear the just penalty for your arrogance. 37 Like my brothers, I surrender body and soul for our ancestral laws, and I call upon God to be quickly gracious to the nation, and through afflictions and scourges to bring you to acknowledge that he and he alone is God, 38 and that in me and my brothers the Almighty's anger, rightly kindled against all our race, may be stayed."

39 Enraged, the king treated this one more savagely than the rest, taking the mockery bitterly. 40 So he too died in purity, putting his whole trust in the Lord. 41 Last of all, after her sons, the mother died.

42 Concerning the sacrificial meals and the surpassing cruelties, then, so much has been shown.

Notes

- a (7:6) Deut 32:36; the "song" is the Song of Moses, Deut 32:1–43 (see Deut 31:19–21).
- b (7:8) That is, probably Aramaic, or Hebrew.
- c (7:28) Or "out of things that were not"; this is often cited as an early statement of creation from nothing.
- d (7:36) Or "have fallen, under God's covenant, into everlasting life." In Swete's edition verses 35 and 36 are printed together, and the following verses are numbered one lower; the standard numbering is followed here.

Chapter 8

1 Meanwhile Judas, also called Maccabeus, and those with him slipped secretly into the villages and summoned their kinsfolk; and enlisting those who had held fast to Judaism, they gathered about six thousand. 2 They called on the Lord to look upon the people oppressed by all, and to take pity on the sanctuary profaned by the godless, 3 to have mercy too on the city being ruined and about to be leveled to the ground, and to give ear to the blood that cried out to him, 4 to remember also the lawless slaughter of the innocent babes and the blasphemies uttered against his name, and to show his hatred of evil.

5 As soon as Maccabeus had his men organized, the Gentiles could no longer stand against him, because the Lord's anger had turned to mercy. 6 Arriving unlooked for, he would burn towns and villages; he took the favorable positions and put to flight no small number of the enemy, 7 choosing the nights especially as his allies for such raids.

And talk of his valor resounded everywhere.
8 Philip, perceiving that the man was making headway by degrees and advancing more and more often in success, wrote to Ptolemy, governor of Coelesyria and Phoenicia, to come and reinforce the king's cause.[a] 9 Ptolemy quickly appointed Nicanor son of Patroclus, who was among the King's First Friends,[b] and dispatched him with no fewer than twenty thousand troops from various nations to wipe out the entire Judean people. Gorgias, a general with experience in war, was joined with him. 10 Nicanor resolved to make up, by the sale of Jewish captives, the tribute of about seventy-five tons of silver that the king owed the Romans.[c] 11 He sent at once to the towns along the seacoast, calling buyers to come for Jewish slaves and undertaking to hand over ninety head for each seventy-five pounds of silver, never anticipating the justice of the Almighty which was soon to dog his steps.
12 Word reached Judas of Nicanor's advance; and when he told his companions that the army was near, 13 those who were cowardly and had no faith in God's justice ran off and took themselves elsewhere.
14 The rest sold all they had left, while at the same time they begged the Lord to rescue those whom the impious Nicanor had sold before he had even met them in battle, 15 and this, though not for their own merits, at least because of the covenants made with their fathers, and since his revered and glorious name was invoked over them.
16 Maccabeus gathered his men, about six thousand in all, and urged them not to be terrified of the enemy or afraid of the huge crowd of Gentiles marching unjustly against them, but to fight with courage, 17 keeping before their eyes the outrage those men had lawlessly committed against the holy place, the torment inflicted on the humiliated city, and moreover the overthrow of their ancestral way of life.
18 "They trust in weapons and boldness," he said, "but we trust in almighty God, who can strike down both those who attack us and the whole world with a single nod." 19 Moreover he recounted to them the times when help had come to their forefathers: how in the days of Sennacherib a hundred eighty-five thousand perished,[d] 20 and the clash in Babylonia against the Galatians, when the whole force that went into action was eight thousand together with four thousand Macedonians; the Macedonians being at a loss, the six thousand destroyed a hundred and twenty thousand through help sent them from heaven, and took much booty.[e] 21 Having made them bold by these words and willing to die on behalf of the laws and the homeland, he formed the army into four companies. 22 He set his brothers, Simon, Joseph, and Jonathan, each at the head of a division, putting fifteen hundred men under each. 23 Besides these, he appointed Eleazar to read aloud from the holy book;[f] and giving the watchword "The help of God," he himself led the first division and joined battle with Nicanor. 24 The Almighty fighting on their side, they cut down upward of nine thousand of the foe, wounded and crippled most of Nicanor's host, and drove the whole of it to flight. 25 The money of those who had come to purchase them fell into their hands. When they had chased the enemy a good way, they turned back, being hemmed in by the time. 26 It was the day before the sabbath, and so they did not continue the chase. 27 When they had collected the enemy's arms and stripped them of their spoils, they turned to keeping the sabbath, giving abundant praise and thanks to the Lord, who had preserved them for that day and had allotted it to them as the beginning of mercy. 28 After the sabbath they gave a portion of the booty to the victims of torture, the widows, and the orphans, and shared out what remained among themselves and their little ones. 29 When they had done this, they made a common supplication and implored the merciful Lord to be wholly reconciled with his servants.

30 In clashes with the forces of Timothy and Bacchides, they killed over twenty thousand and captured some very high strongholds. They divided a large amount of plunder, giving equal shares to those who had been tortured, to orphans and widows, and also to the elderly.[g] 31 They collected the enemy's weapons and carefully stored them all in key locations; the rest of the spoils they brought to Jerusalem. 32 They killed the commander of Timothy's forces,[h] a most unholy man who had caused the Jews much grief. [33] While celebrating the victory in their homeland, they burned those who had set fire to the sacred gates, including Callisthenes, who had fled into a little house; so he received the reward his impiety deserved.

[34] The thrice-accursed Nicanor, [i] who had brought along three thousand merchants to buy the Jews, [35] was humbled, with the Lord's help, by those whom he had regarded as the least of all. He threw off his splendid uniform and made his way alone across the country like a runaway slave until he reached Antioch, having been eminently successful in the destruction of his own army. [36] And he who had taken it upon himself to pay the Romans their tribute out of the captives of Jerusalem announced that the Jews had a Champion fighting for them, and for that reason were invulnerable, since they kept the laws he had ordained.

Notes

- a (8:8) See 1 Macc 3:38–4:25 for another account of this campaign. Philip was the governor left in Jerusalem (5:22).
- b (8:9) "First Friends" was an honorary rank at the Seleucid court.
- c (8:10) Greek: two thousand talents. A talent was about 75 pounds (34 kg). The tribute was imposed on Antiochus III by the Peace of Apamea (188 BC).
- d (8:19) See 2 Kings 19:35; Isa 37:36.
- e (8:20) This battle is otherwise unknown. The figures are as given in the Greek; how the six thousand relate to the eight thousand is unclear.
- f (8:23) Swete's text reads "and Eleazar" without a verb; the sense of the clause is uncertain.
- g (8:30) Some interpreters place this verse after 10:38, since the campaigns against Timothy and Bacchides are described later.
- h (8:32) Greek phylarchēs, "commander of a tribe" or "cavalry commander."
- i (8:34) Literally "thrice-sinful" or "thrice-wicked"; compare 15:3.

Chapter 9

[1] About that season it happened that Antiochus had withdrawn in disorder from the regions around Persia. [2] He had gone into the city called Persepolis[a] and tried to rob the temples and take over the city. At that, the people rushed to defend it with weapons, and Antiochus, routed by the inhabitants, retreated in disgrace. [3] While he was at Ecbatana,[b] news reached him of what had befallen Nicanor and the forces of Timothy. 4 Swollen with rage, he planned to make the Jews pay for the injury inflicted by those who had chased him away; so he told his charioteer to drive without stopping until the trip was over.

Yet heaven's judgment was riding with him! For in his pride he had said, "When I arrive there, I will turn Jerusalem into one mass grave for the Jews."
5 But the all-seeing Lord, the God of Israel, struck him with a blow incurable and unseen. No sooner had he finished the words than an unrelenting pain of the bowels seized him, with bitter torments of the inward parts, 6 most justly, since he had tormented the bowels of others with many strange miseries. 7 Yet in no way did he cease from his insolence; still brimming with arrogance, breathing fire in his fury against the Jews, he gave orders to speed the journey. And it came about that he fell from the chariot as it rushed along, and the fall was so violent that every limb of his body was racked. 8 He who but now, in pride beyond what is human, fancied he could give orders to the billows of the sea and set the mountain heights upon the scales, came down to the ground and was borne along on a stretcher, showing openly to all the power of God. 9 So it was that worms swarmed out of the body of the impious man, and while he still lived, in anguish and pains, his flesh rotted away, and the whole army was burdened by the stench of his decay. 10 The man who shortly before had seemed to touch the stars of heaven, no one could bear to carry, because of the intolerable weight of the stench.
11 Then at last, broken in spirit, he began to lay aside the greater part of his arrogance and to come to knowledge under the scourge of God, his pains increasing moment by moment. 12 And when he could no longer bear even his own stench, he said this: "It is just to submit to God, and that one who is mortal should not have arrogant thoughts." 13 And the defiled wretch made a vow to the Master, who would no longer have mercy on him, speaking thus: 14 that the holy city, which he had been hurrying to level to the ground and turn into a common graveyard, he would declare free; 15 that the Jews, whom he had judged unworthy even of burial and fit only to be thrown out with their infants as prey for birds and beasts, he would make,

all of them, equal to citizens of Athens; 16 the holy sanctuary that he had earlier stripped he would deck with the most beautiful offerings, and he would restore all the sacred vessels many times multiplied, and from his own revenues he would furnish the allowances due for the sacrifices; 17 and besides all this, that he would become a Jew and travel through every inhabited place proclaiming the might of God.
18 But when his sufferings did not ease at all, because God's just judgment had fallen on him, he gave up all hope for himself and wrote the letter given below to the Jews, in the form of a plea. It said: 19 "To the worthy Jews, the citizens: King Antiochus, the general, wishes much joy, health, and well-being. 20 If you fare well, and your children, and your private affairs go according to your mind, [I give great thanks to God,][c] having my hope in heaven. 21 [For my part, I have been sick,] and I remembered fondly your honor and good will. Returning from the districts of Persia I met with a sickness hard to bear, and I thought it needful to provide for the common safety of you all. 22 I do not despair of my condition; on the contrary, I have good hope of recovering from the illness. 23 But I observed that my father too, on the occasions when he marched into the upper countries, appointed his successor, 24 so that, if anything unexpected should occur or any unwelcome news be reported, the people throughout the realm would not be troubled, knowing to whom the government had been left. 25 Furthermore, I am aware that the princes along our borders and the neighbors of the kingdom are watching for their chance and waiting to see what happens. So I have appointed my son Antiochus as king. I often entrusted him to most of you and recommended him when I hurried off to the upper provinces. I have written to him as follows. 26 I appeal to you, then, and ask, mindful of the kindnesses done you both in common and individually, that each one preserve the good will he now holds toward me and my son. 27 For I am persuaded that he, following my policy, will treat you with moderation and kindness."
28 And so the slayer and blasphemer, having suffered the worst, even as he had dealt with others, ended his days on foreign soil in the mountains by a most wretched doom. 29 Philip, one of his courtiers,[d] carried his body home; then, fearing Antiochus's son, he went over to Ptolemy Philometor in Egypt.

Notes

- a (9:2) Persepolis, the old capital of Persia. 1 Macc 6:1 names Elymais.
- b (9:3) Ecbatana, in Media (modern Hamadan, Iran).
- c (9:20) The Greek of vv. 20–21 appears defective; the bracketed words are supplied from the sense.
- d (9:29) Greek syntrophos, literally "one brought up with him," a court title, "foster brother" or "intimate companion."

Chapter 10

1 Now Maccabeus and those with him, the Lord leading them on, recovered the sanctuary and the city. 2 The altars erected in the marketplace by the foreigners they tore down, and the sacred precincts as well. 3 Having cleansed the shrine, they made another altar of sacrifice; and striking fire from flints and taking fire from them, they offered sacrifices after a lapse of two years, and incense and lamps, and they set out the loaves of the Presence.[a] 4 When they had done these things they fell prostrate and entreated the Lord that they might fall no more into such calamities; rather, if ever they did sin, that they be chastened by him gently and not given up to Gentiles who blaspheme and are savage. 5 It so fell out that on the very day the shrine had been profaned by foreigners, on that same day the purification of the sanctuary took place, the twenty-fifth of that same month, which is Chislev (in November–December).[b] 6 They celebrated for eight days with gladness, as at the festival of Booths, recalling that a short time earlier, at the festival of Booths, they had been living like wild animals in the mountains and caves.[c] 7 Therefore, holding ivy-wreathed wands and fair branches and palm fronds too, they offered hymns of thanks to him who had brought to good success the cleansing of his own place. 8 And by public ordinance and vote they decreed for the whole nation of the Jews that they should keep these days every year.[d]

9 Such then was the end of Antiochus, the one called Epiphanes. 10 Now we will describe what happened under Antiochus Eupator, the son of that godless man, summarizing the main evils of the wars. 11

For this man, when he came to the throne, put one Lysias in charge of the government, and made him chief governor of Coelesyria and Phoenicia. 12 For Ptolemy, who was called Macron,[e] had taken the lead in dealing justly with the Jews because of the wrong that had been done them, and tried to manage affairs with them peaceably. 13 So he was denounced to Eupator by the Friends and heard himself named a traitor on every hand, since he had deserted Cyprus, put in his trust by Philometor, and withdrawn to Antiochus Epiphanes; and holding his authority without honor,[f] he poisoned himself and departed this life.

14 When Gorgias became governor of the region, he kept a force of hired soldiers and took every chance to wage war against the Jews. 15 Together with him the Idumeans also, who held strongholds well placed, harassed the Jews; and receiving those who had been banished from Jerusalem, they set about keeping the war alive. 16 Maccabeus and those about him, having held a litany and asked God to be their ally, charged against the fortresses of the Idumeans. 17 Attacking them vigorously, they took possession of the places, beat off all who fought upon the wall, and slaughtered those who fell into their hands, killing no fewer than twenty thousand. 18 When at least nine thousand had fled together into two very strong towers, well furnished with everything for withstanding a siege, 19 Maccabeus left Simon and Joseph, and Zacchaeus also and his men, enough to besiege them, and went off himself to places where he was more urgently needed. 20 But those around Simon, out of love of silver, were won over with money by some of those in the towers; they took about six hundred sixty pounds of silver[g] and allowed some to escape. 21 When Maccabeus was told what had happened, he assembled the leaders of the people and charged these men with selling their own people for money by setting their enemies free to fight them. 22 Then he put these men to death as traitors, and forthwith captured the two towers. 23 Prospering in every undertaking of arms that he took in hand, he destroyed more than twenty thousand in the two strongholds.

24 Now Timothy, who had been defeated by the Jews before, gathered foreign forces in vast numbers and collected not a few of the cavalry from Asia, and came on, intending to take Judea by the spear. 25 As he drew near, Maccabeus and his men turned to supplication of God, sprinkling earth on their heads and girding their loins with sackcloth.

26 Prostrating themselves on the platform facing the altar, they asked that he become merciful to them and be hostile to those hostile to them and oppose those who opposed them, as the law makes plain.[h] 27 Having finished the petition, they took up their weapons and went forth farther from the city, and when they had come close to the foe, they kept to themselves. 28 At first light the two sides joined battle; one side had as its guarantee of success and victory not only its courage but also its refuge in the Lord, while the other let its own rage lead the fight.
29 As the fighting grew hard, five splendid men appeared from the sky to the adversaries, mounted on gold-bridled horses, two of whom were at the head of the Jews; 30 surrounded Maccabeus and, shielding him with their armor, kept him from being wounded. Shooting arrows and lightning bolts at the enemy, they left them bewildered and blinded, and the enemy was cut to pieces in total confusion. 31 There fell slain twenty thousand and five hundred, and six hundred of the cavalry.
32 Timothy for his part took refuge in Gazara,[i] as the stronghold is called, a fortress exceedingly strong, under the command of Chaereas. 33 Then Maccabeus and his men, in high spirits, besieged the fortress for forty days. 34 The men within, trusting in the steepness of the site, poured out blasphemy beyond measure and spoke lawless words. 35 But as the twenty-fifth day was dawning,[j] young men among the followers of Maccabeus, set aflame in their hearts by the blasphemies, assaulted the wall manfully, and with the fury of wild beasts hewed down whoever came in their way. 36 Others likewise climbed up by a diversion against those within; they set the towers on fire, and kindling fires burned the blasphemers alive. Others broke open the gates, let in the rest of the force, and occupied the city. 37
They slew Timothy, who was hidden in a cistern, and his brother Chaereas, and Apollophanes. 38 Having carried these things through, they blessed the Lord with hymns and confession of praise, for he does great good to Israel and grants them the triumph.

Notes

- a (10:3) See Exod 25:30; Lev 24:5–9. 1 Macc 4:52–54 gives three years since the profanation; on Hanukkah see also 1:9, 18 and 1 Macc 4:52–59.
- b (10:5) Chislev, the ninth month (in November–December). This was the twenty-fifth of Chislev, 148 of the Seleucid era (see note on 1:7), that is, December 164 BC; compare 1 Macc 4:52. This is the origin of Hanukkah ("Dedication"); compare John 10:22.
- c (10:6) Booths (Tabernacles) was celebrated for eight days in the seventh month (Lev 23:33–43). Hence the feast of Dedication is called "Booths of Chislev" in 1:9.
- d (10:8) Swete's Greek reads "the tenth days," probably a scribal error for "these days."
- e (10:12) Ptolemy Macron; compare 1 Macc 3:38, where a Ptolemy son of Dorymenes is named.
- f (10:13) Literally "not ennobling his noble office." The Greek is obscure.
- g (10:20) Greek: seventy thousand drachmas. A drachma was about 0.15 ounce (4.3 g) of silver.
- h (10:26) See Exod 23:22.
- i (10:32) Gazara (Gezer), west of Jerusalem. Some identify the place in this story with Jazer east of the Jordan (1 Macc 5:8).
- j (10:35) Greek "the fifth and twentieth day," apparently counted from the start of the forty-day siege (v. 33).

Chapter 11

1 After a very short interval of time, Lysias, the king's steward and kinsman and head of affairs, bearing it very heavily over what had come to pass, 2 mustered about eighty thousand men and all his cavalry and marched against the Jews, expecting to turn the city into a home for Greeks, 3 levy silver from the sanctuary as from the other sacred precincts of the nations, and put up the high priesthood for sale every year. 4 He took no account whatever of the might of God, but was puffed up by his tens of thousands of foot soldiers, his thousands of horsemen, and his eighty elephants.

5 Entering Judea, he drew near to Beth-zur, a fortified place about twenty miles from Jerusalem,[a] and pressed it hard. 6 When Maccabeus and his men learned that he was besieging the strongholds, they and the crowds with them begged the Lord, with sobbing and tears, to send a good angel to rescue Israel. 7 Maccabeus was first of all to seize his weapons, and he called on the rest to share the danger with him in coming to the help of their brothers; and together, with ready hearts, they sallied forth. 8 Right there, close by Jerusalem, a rider on horseback was seen going before them in a white garment, shaking a panoply of gold. 9 Together they all blessed the merciful God and were strengthened in their souls, ready to pierce not only men but the fiercest beasts and walls of iron. 10 They advanced in battle array, having their Ally from heaven, for the Lord had shown them mercy. 11 Charging at the enemy like lions, they struck down eleven thousand foot soldiers and sixteen hundred horsemen, and made all the rest run. 12 Most of them got away wounded and stripped of their arms, and Lysias himself escaped only by shameful flight.

13 He was no fool, and thought over the defeat he had suffered, and realized that the Hebrews could not be beaten, because the mighty God fought for them. So he sent a message to them 14 and persuaded them to come to a settlement on all just terms, promising that he would persuade the king also, constraining him to become their friend. 15 Maccabeus, mindful of what was advantageous, nodded assent to everything for which Lysias appealed; for all that Maccabeus handed to Lysias in writing on behalf of the Jews, the king conceded.
16 The letters written to the Jews were as follows. That from Lysias ran thus:

"Lysias to the people of the Jews, greeting.
17 John and Absalom, who were sent by you, delivered the communication written below and asked about the matters it set forth.
18 Whatever needed to be referred to the king as well, I have made known to him, and what was possible he has granted.
19 If, then, you maintain your good will toward the government, I will try in the future also to be a cause of good things for you.
20 On the details I have ordered these men and my own representatives to confer with you.
21 Farewell. In the year one hundred forty-eight, on the twenty-fourth of Dioscorinthius."[b]

22 The letter of the king contained the following: "King Antiochus to Lysias his brother, greeting. 23 Since our father has been translated to the gods, it is our will that those of the realm be left untroubled to care for what is theirs. 24 We have heard that the Jews will not agree to our father's transfer of them to Hellenic ways, but, choosing their own manner of life, request that their lawful customs be conceded to them. 25 Choosing, therefore, that this nation too should be free from disturbance, we decide that their sanctuary be restored to them and that they live according to the customs of their ancestors. 26 Therefore you will do well to send word to them and give them right hands,[c] so that, knowing our purpose, they may be in good heart and pass their days gladly in caring for their own concerns." 27 The king's letter to the nation read as follows:
"King Antiochus greets the council of elders of the Jews and the rest of the Jews.
28 If you are well, it would be as we wish; we too are in good health.
29 Menelaus has made it plain to us that you desire to come down and be about your private business.
30 To those, then, who come down before the thirtieth day of Xanthicus there shall be a right hand of peace, with freedom from fear,[d] 31 that the Jews may enjoy their own provisions and laws, as also before; and no one of them in any manner shall be troubled over the things done unwittingly.
32 I have also sent Menelaus to encourage you.
33 Farewell. In the year one hundred forty-eight, on the fifteenth of Xanthicus" (in March–April).[e] 34 There was also sent to them a letter from the Romans, worded thus: "Quintus Memmius, Titus Manius, legates of the Romans, to the populace of the Jews, greeting.[f] 35 Concerning the things that Lysias, kinsman of the king, conceded to you, we also are in accord. 36 Yet regarding what he judged must be laid before the king, examine them and send someone at once, that we may present the matter in a fitting way for you; for we are going on toward Antioch. 37 Therefore make haste and send some men, so that we too may know what your mind is. 38 Fare well. In the year one hundred forty-eight, on the fifteenth of Xanthicus."

Notes

- a (11:5) Greek "about five schoinoi." The schoinos was a measure of distance of varying length. Beth-zur lay about 18 miles (29 km) south of Jerusalem.
- b (11:21) The month Dioscorinthius is otherwise unknown. The year is 148 of the Seleucid era (see note on 1:7), that is, 165/164 BC.
- c (11:26) Literally "right hands."
- d (11:30) Swete's Greek prints vv. 29 and 30 as one verse; standard English numbering is followed here.
- e (11:33) Xanthicus, a Macedonian month (in March–April). The year is 148 of the Seleucid era (see note on 1:7), that is, spring 164 BC. Since Antiochus IV was apparently still alive at this date, the letter may belong to his reign rather than to that of his son.
- f (11:34) These Roman envoys are otherwise unknown.

Chapter 12

1 These agreements having been made, Lysias went off to the king, and the Jews went about their farming. 2 But among the commanders in those parts, Timothy and Apollonius the son of Gennaeus, Hieronymus also and Demophon, and with these Nicanor the Cypriarch,[a] would not allow them to be settled and enjoy quiet.

3 And the people of Joppa carried out an impiety of this magnitude: they invited the Jews dwelling among them to go aboard boats which they had set ready, with wives and children, as though no ill will existed toward them. 4 This being by public vote of the city, and the Jews accepting, as men wishing to live peaceably and suspecting nothing, the Joppans took them out to sea and sank them, no fewer than two hundred. 5 When Judas got word of the savagery done to his countrymen, he gave orders to the men with him, 6 and calling on God, the righteous Judge, he came against the murderers of his brothers. By night he set the harbor ablaze, burned up the boats, and put to the sword those who had fled there. 7 Then, because the place was shut tight, he withdrew, intending to come again and root out the whole commonwealth of Joppa. 8 Learning that the people in Jamnia[b] too wished to deal in the same manner with the Jews who lived among them, 9 he fell upon the Jamnites by night and set fire to the harbor with the fleet, so that the glow of the light was visible in Jerusalem, twenty-seven miles distant.[c] 10 When they had drawn off from there about a mile,[d] on their march against Timothy, Arabs attacked him, no fewer than five thousand, and five hundred horsemen. 11 A hard battle followed, and those with Judas, through help from God, won the day; and the nomads, getting the worst of it, asked Judas to give them his right hand, promising to give him livestock and to be of service to his men in other ways. 12 Judas, supposing that they would indeed be useful in many things, consented to keep peace with them; and receiving pledges, they went off to their tents.

13 He also attacked a certain city, strong, fortified with bridges[e] and surrounded by walls, inhabited by Gentiles of every kind; its name was Caspin. 14 Those within, trusting in the strength of the walls and their store of provisions, behaved with insolence toward Judas and his men, railing at them, and blaspheming besides, and speaking what is not lawful. 15 But Judas and his men called on the great Ruler of the world, who in the days of Joshua brought down Jericho without battering rams or siege machines, and they charged fiercely at the wall. 16 They took the city by the will of God and made slaughter past telling, so that the adjoining lake, a quarter of a mile broad,[f] appeared to be filled with the blood that ran into it.
17 Withdrawing from there about eighty-six miles,[g] they came through to Charax, to the Jews called Tubiani.[h] 18 Timothy they did not find in those places, for he had by then left the district without achieving anything, though in one place he had left a garrison, a very strong one. 19 Dositheus and Sosipater, two of Maccabeus's captains, marched out and destroyed those Timothy had left in the stronghold, more than ten thousand men. 20 Maccabeus, arranging the army about him in cohorts, set these men over the cohorts and hastened against Timothy, who had with him a hundred twenty thousand foot soldiers and nine thousand[i] horsemen. 21 When Timothy learned of the approach of Judas, he sent the women and the children and the rest of the baggage ahead to the place called Carnaim,[j] for the site was hard to besiege and hard to approach because of the narrowness of all the passes. 22 But when Judas's first cohort appeared, terror came upon the enemy, and fear, at the manifestation of him who looks upon all things; and they rushed headlong in flight, swept this way and that, so that often they were hurt by their own men and run through by the points of their swords. 23 Judas pressed the pursuit with greater vigor, stabbing the sinners, and destroyed as many as thirty thousand men.

24 Timothy himself fell into the hands of Dositheus's and Sosipater's men. With much deceit he begged them to let him go safe, since he held the parents of many of them and the brothers of some, who would otherwise be shown no regard. 25 After he had given his word many times over, binding himself to send those people back unhurt, they released him, for their brothers' safety.
26 Then Judas went out to Carnaim and the Atergateion,[k] and slaughtered twenty-five thousand persons. 27 Following the rout and ruin of these, he took the field against Ephron as well, a strong city in which multitudes from all peoples lived; vigorous youths, posted before the ramparts, fought stoutly in its defense, and supplies of engines and darts in plenty were laid up there. 28 But calling upon the Sovereign who with might shatters the strength of enemies, they got the town into their hands and laid low about twenty-five thousand of those within. 29 Setting out from there, they hastened to Scythopolis,[l] which is about sixty-nine miles[m] from Jerusalem. 30 The Jews settled there, however, testified to the kindness the Scythopolitans had held toward them and to their gentle dealing in seasons of ill fortune; 31 so they gave thanks and further urged them to be kindly to the race in days to come, and arrived at Jerusalem with the feast of Weeks drawing near.
32 After the festival called Pentecost[n] they hastened against Gorgias, the governor of Idumea, 33 He marched forth with three thousand infantry and four hundred cavalry. 34 When they had joined battle, it happened that a few of the Jews fell. 35 One Dositheus, of Bacenor's company, a strong man on horseback, laid hold of Gorgias; seizing his military cloak he was hauling him off forcibly, eager to capture the cursed man living, but a horseman of the Thracians rushed upon him and severed his shoulder, and Gorgias fled away to Marisa.[o] 36 As Esdris and his men had been fighting a long while and were worn out, Judas called upon the Lord to show himself their ally and leader in the battle. 37 Raising in the ancestral language the battle cry with hymns, he charged unexpectedly upon Gorgias's troops and put them to flight.

38 Then Judas assembled his army and went to the town of Adullam. As the seventh day was coming on, they purified themselves according to the custom and kept the sabbath there. 39 On the next day, since it had become necessary, Judas and his men went to collect the bodies of the fallen and bring them back to be buried with their relatives in their ancestors' graves. 40 Beneath the tunics of each of the slain they discovered consecrated amulets of the Jamnian idols, from which the law keeps the Jews away; and it was evident to everyone that this was why these had fallen. 41 All of them therefore blessed the ways of the Lord, the righteous Judge, who makes hidden things manifest, 42 and they turned to prayer, asking that the sin that had been committed be completely erased. The noble Judas urged the people to keep themselves free from sin, because they had seen with their own eyes what had happened as a result of the sin of the fallen. 43 Then he made a collection, man by man, amounting to about nineteen pounds of silver,[p] and dispatched it to Jerusalem to bring forward a sin offering, doing a most fine and seemly thing in having the resurrection in view. 44 For had he not looked for those who had fallen to stand up again, praying on behalf of the dead would be needless and silly. 45 If instead he had his eye on the most beautiful gift of grace stored up for those who lie down to sleep with piety, the thought was holy and godly. Hence he made the propitiation for the dead, that they might be loosed from the sin.

Notes

- a (12:2) "Cypriarch," governor of Cyprus.
- b (12:8) Jamnia (Hebrew Jabneh, modern Yavne), near the coast south of Joppa.
- c (12:9) Greek: two hundred forty stadia. A stadion was about 607 feet (185 m).
- d (12:10) Greek: nine stadia.
- e (12:13) Greek gephyroun, perhaps "to bridge" or "with earthworks"; the meaning is uncertain.
- f (12:16) Greek: two stadia.
- g (12:17) Greek: seven hundred fifty stadia.

- h (12:17) Charax, "palisade" or "stockade," an unidentified place. The Tubiani are the Jews of Tob or Tobias (compare 1 Macc 5:13).
- i (12:20) Greek "two thousand and in addition seven thousand."
- j (12:21) Carnaim (Karnaim), in Gilead; compare 1 Macc 5:43–44.
- k (12:26) The Atergateion, a temple of the Syrian goddess Atargatis at Carnaim.
- l (12:29) Scythopolis, "city of the Scythians," the Greek name of Beth-shan.
- m (12:29) Greek: six hundred stadia.
- n (12:32) Weeks, called Pentecost ("fiftieth") because it fell fifty days after Passover (Lev 23:15–21; Deut 16:9–10).
- o (12:35) Marisa (Mareshah), in Idumea.
- p (12:43) Greek: two thousand drachmas.

Chapter 13

1 In the hundred and forty-ninth year[a] news fell upon Judas's company that Antiochus Eupator was coming with hosts upon Judea, 2 and with him Lysias, his guardian and head of the government, each having a Greek force of a hundred ten thousand foot, five thousand three hundred horse, twenty-two elephants, and three hundred chariots fitted with scythes.

3 Menelaus too joined himself to them, and with much dissembling urged Antiochus on, not for the deliverance of his homeland, but supposing that he would be set up in office. 4 But the King of kings stirred up the wrath of Antiochus against the wicked man; and when Lysias pointed out to him that this man was to blame for all the evils, he gave orders to bring him to Beroea[b] and put him to death there in the manner of that place. 5 For there is a tower in that place, seventy-five feet high,[c] full of ashes, and it has a device that turns round, falling sheer on every side into the ashes. 6 There anyone guilty of sacrilege, or who has gone to extremes in any other evil deeds, is pushed by everyone to his destruction. 7 By such a doom it fell to the lawbreaker Menelaus to die, without even receiving burial in the earth, 8 and most justly; for since he had committed many sins against the altar, whose fire and ashes were holy, in ashes he received his death.

9 The king came on, his mind fiercely set on showing the Jews worse things than any done in his father's time. 10 When Judas learned of this, he ordered the people to call on the Lord day and night, asking that now, if ever, he would come to their aid [11] of those about to be robbed of the law, their homeland, and the holy sanctuary, and not allow the people who had just begun to revive a little to fall into the hands of the blasphemous Gentiles. [12] When they had all done this together, begging the merciful Lord with weeping and fasting and lying face down for three days without a break, Judas encouraged them and told them to be ready. [13] After a private meeting with the elders, he resolved that before the king's army could invade Judea and become masters of the city, they would go out and decide the matter by the help of God. [14] So, handing over the outcome to the world's Lord and calling on those with him to strive nobly even to death on behalf of laws, sanctuary, city, homeland, and polity, he encamped by Modein. [15] He gave his men the password "God's victory." Taking a select group of the bravest young men, he attacked the king's tent in the night and killed up to two thousand men in the camp. He also stabbed the lead elephant along with its driver.[d] [16] At last they had filled the encampment with dread and tumult, and they got away with success. [17] Day was already breaking when this was done, owing to the shelter of the Lord that aided him.

[18] The king had now experienced the boldness of the Jews, and he tried to capture their positions by cunning. [19] He advanced against Beth-zur, a strong fortress of the Jews; he was turned back; he attacked again; he was beaten. [20] Judas sent in to those within what they needed. [21] But Rhodocus, a man from the Jewish ranks, disclosed the secrets to the enemy; he was sought out, caught, and put in prison. [22] The king parleyed a second time with the people in Beth-zur; he gave pledges, received theirs, withdrew, [23] he fell upon Judas's forces, was overcome; he learned that Philip, left behind at Antioch over affairs, had gone mad;[e] he was confounded; he called on the Jews, gave way, and swore to all just terms; he was reconciled and brought a sacrifice, honored the shrine and the place, and acted kindly. [24] He received Maccabeus, and left Hegemonides as governor from Ptolemais to the territory of the Gerrenians.[f] [25] He went to Ptolemais. The people of Ptolemais were displeased with the treaty, for they were exceedingly indignant; they wanted to annul its provisions. [26] Lysias took the public platform, made the best defense that was possible, persuaded them, calmed them, won them over, and set out for Antioch. Such was the course of the king's attack and withdrawal.

Notes

- a (13:1) That is, 149 of the Seleucid era (see note on 1:7), 164/163 BC.
- b (13:4) Beroea, the Greek name of Aleppo in Syria.
- c (13:5) Greek: fifty cubits. A cubit was about 18 inches (45 cm).
- d (13:15) Literally "the one in the house," apparently the driver in the howdah.
- e (13:23) Greek apenenoēsthai, "had lost his senses" or "had grown desperate," that is, had rebelled.
- f (13:24) Swete's Greek has "Gennerans." The place is uncertain; it may be Gerar, south of Gaza.

Chapter 14

1 Three years' time having passed, it came to the knowledge of those around Judas that Demetrius the son of Seleucus[a] had put in by way of the port at Tripolis with a powerful host and ships, 2 and had taken possession of the country, having made away with Antiochus and his guardian Lysias.

3 A certain Alcimus, high priest before, who had of his own will polluted himself in the days of the non-mingling,[b] understanding that in no way at all was there deliverance for him, nor any longer approach to the holy altar, 4 came to King Demetrius in about the year 151.[c] They presented him with a gold crown and a palm branch, along with some of the olive branches that were customarily taken from the sanctuary; and that day he said nothing more. 5 But finding an occasion to further his own folly, when he was called into council by Demetrius and asked in what disposition and purpose the Jews stood, he answered: 6 "The ones among the Jews named Hasideans,[d] at whose head goes Judas the Maccabee, nourish war and make faction, not permitting the realm to enjoy settled order. 7 Therefore I, deprived of my ancestral glory, I mean the high priesthood, have now come here, 8 in the first place out of true-hearted care for what belongs to the king, and in the second with an eye also to my own citizens; for by the folly of the men just mentioned our entire race suffers no small ill fortune. 9 Since you are acquainted with each of these matters, O king, take thought for our country and our hard-pressed race, in keeping with the gracious kindness you show to all. [10] For as long as Judas lives, it is impossible for the state to find peace." [11] Upon his speaking thus, the other Friends, being ill-disposed toward Judas, all the faster fanned Demetrius into a blaze. [12] Promptly selecting Nicanor, once elephant-master, and proclaiming him commander over Judea, he dispatched him, [13] with orders to kill Judas himself, scatter his men, and install Alcimus as high priest of the greatest sanctuary. [14] And the Gentiles of Judea, those who had been put to flight by Judas, came mingling with Nicanor in herds, supposing that the ill fortunes and disasters of the Jews would turn out to be their own good fortune.

[15] When the Jews heard of Nicanor's coming and the onset of the Gentiles, they sprinkled earth upon themselves and prayed to him who established his own people forever and who always upholds his own portion by manifesting himself. [16] At the command of their leader, they set out at once from there and engaged them at a village called Lessau.[e] [17] Simon, the brother of Judas, had encountered Nicanor, but had been checked for a while because of the sudden consternation caused by the enemy.[f] [18] Even so, Nicanor, hearing of the manly prowess of Judas's company and the high heart they had in contests for the homeland, was somewhat wary of making the decision through blood. [19] Therefore he sent Posidonius, Theodotus, and Mattathias to give and receive pledges of friendship. [20] When the terms had been fully considered, and the leader had laid them before the people, and it was apparent that they were of one mind, they agreed to the covenant. [21] They appointed a day on which they would come together privately; and from either side a chariot went forward, and seats were placed. [22] Judas posted armed men in readiness at strategic points, lest the enemy should suddenly commit some treachery; they held the proper conference.
[23] Nicanor stayed on in Jerusalem and did nothing out of place, but dismissed the flocks of people that had gathered. [24] Judas he had before his face continually; in his soul he had grown fond of the man. [25] He exhorted him to wed and beget children; he wed, lived settled, partook of life.

26 Alcimus, however, observing the good will they bore each other, took the articles of agreement and arrived at Demetrius's court, saying that Nicanor held views foreign to the state's interest, for he had designated Judas, the plotter against the kingdom, as his deputy.
27 The king, flying into a passion and goaded by the slanders of the all-wicked man, wrote to Nicanor declaring that he took the agreement hard, and ordering that the Maccabee be dispatched in bonds to Antioch with speed. 28 When this message came to Nicanor, he was troubled and grieved at the thought of annulling their agreement when the man had done no wrong. 29 But because there was no acting against the king, he kept watch for a favorable time to carry it out through some ruse. 30 The Maccabee, seeing Nicanor managing matters with him more harshly and having turned boorish in his wonted manner of meeting, perceived that the harshness came not from the best intent; and drawing together no small number of those around him, he kept himself hidden from Nicanor.
31 Recognizing that the other had nobly outgeneraled him, the man arrived at the greatest and holy temple as the priests were bringing forward the fitting sacrifices, and ordered them to surrender the man.
32 And when with oaths they protested that they had no knowledge of where the one sought might be, 33 he held out his right hand toward the shrine and swore thus: "Unless you deliver Judas to me bound, I will make this enclosure of God a plain, dig up the altar, and set up on this spot a conspicuous temple to Dionysus." 34 With so much said he departed. And the priests, holding out their hands to the sky, invoked the One who at all times fights in defense of our nation, saying this: 35 "You, O Lord, who have need of nothing, were pleased that there should be a sanctuary for your dwelling among us. 36 Now, holy Lord of all that is hallowed, guard undefiled for ever this house, just lately cleansed."
37 One Razis, of the elders from Jerusalem, was informed against before Nicanor, a lover of his fellow citizens and one of excellent report, named for his kindliness father of the Jews. 38 For in former times, when there was no mingling with the Gentiles, he had been accused of Judaism, and he had with all zeal risked body and life for

Judaism. [39] Nicanor, wishing to make plain the ill will he had toward the Jews, sent more than five hundred soldiers to arrest him; [40] He reckoned that by seizing that man he would work disaster upon them. [41] As the throngs were on the verge of taking the tower and were forcing the courtyard gate and calling to bring fire and kindle the doors, he, being hemmed in on all sides, set the sword beneath himself, [42] nobly choosing to die sooner than come under the hands of the sinful and be insulted in a way unworthy of his own high birth. [43] But missing the true stroke, through the haste of the struggle, and with the throngs bursting inside the doorways, he ran up bravely onto the wall and flung himself down like a man upon the throngs. [44] They hastily stepping back and a gap being made, he came down in the middle of the open place. [45] Breath was yet in him, and burning in his spirit he got up, his blood pouring out in streams and his wounds grievous, ran through the throngs, and took his stand on a sheer rock; [46] already all but bloodless, he flung out his bowels, and seizing them in both hands he hurled them upon the throngs; and appealing to the Ruler of life and breath to give these same back to him once more, in this way he passed from life.

Notes

- a (14:1) Demetrius I Soter (reigned 162–150 BC), son of Seleucus IV; compare 1 Macc 7:1–4.
- b (14:3) Greek amixia, "non-mixing," that is, the time when Jews refused to mingle with Gentiles; also in v. 38.
- c (14:4) That is, 151 of the Seleucid era (see note on 1:7), 162/161 BC.
- d (14:6) Hasideans, from Hebrew ḥasidim, "faithful ones" or "pious ones"; compare 1 Macc 2:42; 7:13.
- e (14:16) Lessau: so Swete's Greek; many editions and translations read "Dessau." The place is otherwise unknown.
- f (14:17) The Greek of this verse is obscure; "consternation" renders aphasia, literally "speechlessness."

Chapter 15

[1] Nicanor, getting word that Judas's company were in the districts around Samaria, made up his mind to fall upon them, with complete safety, on the day of rest. [2] And when the Jews who were following him under compulsion said, "By no means destroy them so fiercely and barbarously, but give glory to the day honored in holiness above others by him who watches over all things," [3] the thrice-wicked man asked whether there was a Sovereign in heaven who had ordered the keeping of the sabbath day. [4] When they declared, "It is the living Lord himself, Sovereign in heaven, who bade us observe the seventh day," [5] the other replied, "And I rule on earth, and I order you to pick up weapons and carry out the king's business." Even so, he did not succeed in carrying out his cruel plan.

[6] So Nicanor, holding his neck high in all his boastfulness, had resolved to set up a public monument of victory over Judas's company. [7] But Maccabeus did not cease to trust, with all hope, that he would obtain help from the Lord. [8] He exhorted those with him not to dread the onset of the Gentiles, but to keep in mind the aids that had come to them before from heaven, and now to look for the victory that would be theirs from the Almighty. [9] He encouraged them from the Law and the Prophets and reminded them of the battles they had already won, making them more eager. [10] And having roused their spirits, he gave his orders, at the same time pointing out the faithlessness of the Gentiles and their violation of oaths. [11] He equipped each of them not so much with the protection of shields and spears as with the encouragement of good words; and he cheered them all by telling a reliable dream, a kind of vision seen while awake.[a]

[12] What he saw was this: Onias, the former high priest, a good and noble man, modest in manner and gentle in character, fitting in his speech and trained from childhood in everything that belongs to virtue, with his hands stretched out, was praying for the entire Jewish community. [13] After this in the same way there appeared a man surpassing in white hair and glory, and the eminence surrounding him was a thing of wonder and utmost majesty. [14] And Onias spoke, saying, "This is a lover of the brothers, who prays much for the people and the holy city, Jeremiah the prophet of God." [15] Jeremiah stretched out his right hand and gave to Judas a sword of gold, and as he gave it he addressed him thus: [16] "Take this holy sword, a gift from God, with which you will shatter the adversaries."

17 Encouraged by the words of Judas, so noble and able to rouse to valor and to make the souls of the young manly, they resolved not to stay in camp[b] but to charge gallantly and, closing with the enemy with all courage, to decide the matter, because the city and the holy things and the sanctuary were in danger. 18 Their fear for wives and children, and also for brothers and kindred, lay with them in the lesser place; greatest and first was the fear for the consecrated shrine. 19 And those left behind in the city felt no slight anguish, troubled over the encounter in the open country.
20 When all were now awaiting the coming decision, and the enemy had already drawn near, with the army drawn up for battle, the beasts stationed at a convenient post, and the horsemen ranged on the wings, 21 Maccabeus, seeing the presence of the multitudes, the varied equipment of arms, and the savagery of the beasts, stretched up his hands toward heaven and called upon the Lord who works wonders, knowing that it is not through arms but, as he decides, that he wins the victory for those who are worthy. 22 And calling upon him he spoke in this manner: "You, O Master, sent your angel in the time of Hezekiah king of Judea, and he slew of Sennacherib's camp as many as a hundred eighty-five thousand.[c] 23 So now, O Sovereign of the heavens, send a good angel before us to bring dread and trembling. 24
By the greatness of your arm may those who come against your holy people with blasphemy be struck down." With these words he ended.
25 Nicanor's men advanced with trumpets and war songs, 26 but Judas's men met the enemy with invocation and prayers. 27 So, fighting with their hands and praying to God with their hearts, they laid low no fewer than thirty-five thousand, and were greatly gladdened by God's manifestation.
28 When the fighting was over and they were returning joyfully, they saw Nicanor lying dead in his full armor. 29 Then there was shouting and tumult, and they blessed the Sovereign in their ancestral language. 30 And he who was ever in body and soul the foremost champion of his fellow citizens, he who kept the goodwill of his youth toward his countrymen, ordered them to cut off Nicanor's head and his arm with the shoulder and carry them to Jerusalem. 31 When he got there and had summoned his countrymen and placed the priests in front of the altar, he sent for the men in the fortress. 32 He showed them the head of the vile Nicanor and the hand of the blasphemer, which he had stretched out boastfully against the holy house of the Almighty. 33 And cutting out the tongue of the ungodly Nicanor, he said he would give it piecemeal to the birds, and hang up the wages of his folly opposite the sanctuary. 34 And they all, looking to heaven, blessed the Lord who had manifested himself, saying, "Blessed be he who has kept his own place undefiled!" 35 He hung Nicanor's head from the fortress, a clear and unmistakable sign to everyone of the Lord's help. 36 With one common vote they all ordained that this day must on no account be let pass without distinction, but be held as a notable day, the thirteenth of the twelfth month, which in the Syrian tongue is called Adar (in February–March), one day before the day of Mordecai.[d]

37 This, then, is how matters turned out with Nicanor; and from those times the city has been held by the Hebrews. So I too will here end my account. 38 If it is well and aptly composed, that is what I myself desired; if it is poor and mediocre, that was the best I could do. 39 It is hurtful to drink wine by itself, and again water likewise; but as wine blended with water makes a pleasing and charming delight, so also the fashioning of the narrative gladdens the hearing of those who come upon the composition. And here shall be the close.

Notes

- a (15:11) Greek hypar, a waking vision as opposed to a dream; the phrase is obscure.
- b (15:17) Or "not to wage a campaign," that is, not to wait in a fortified camp.
- c (15:22) See 2 Kings 19:35; compare 8:19.
- d (15:36) Adar, the twelfth month (in February–March). "The Syrian tongue" is Aramaic. The victory over Nicanor fell in 161 BC; compare 1 Macc 7:43–49. "Mordecai's day" is Purim (Esth 9:17–22). Swete prints this verse as v. 36 with the bracketed number (37); standard English numbering is followed here.

3 Maccabees

Apocrypha

Chapter 1

1 Philopator,[a] learning from those who had come back of the taking away by Antiochus[b] of the places held under him, sent word to all his forces, infantry and cavalry, and taking along his sister Arsinoe[c] he marched out as far as the districts near Raphia, where Antiochus's side had pitched camp.[d] 2 But a certain Theodotus, intending to carry out a plot, took with him the best of the Ptolemaic weapons that had earlier been put under his command and crossed over by night to Ptolemy's tent, as if alone to kill him and in this way to dissolve the war. 3 But Dositheus, called the son of Drimylus, a Jew by race who later changed his customs and became estranged from the ancestral teachings, had led the king away and laid some insignificant man down in the tent; and it fell to this man to receive the punishment meant for the other. 4 A fierce battle took place, and matters were going more strongly for Antiochus; then Arsinoe went up and down the forces many times, and with lament and tears, her locks let loose, she called on them to help themselves and their children and wives boldly, promising to give each of them, if they won, two and a half pounds of gold.[e] 5 And so it happened that the opponents were destroyed in hand-to-hand combat, and many also were taken captive by the spear.

6 Having prevailed over the plot, he decided to go to the neighboring cities and encourage them. 7 By doing this, and by allotting gifts to the sacred precincts, he made those under him of good courage.

8 When the Jews sent to him some from the council of elders[f] and from the elders to greet him, to bring guest-gifts, and to rejoice with him over what had happened, it came about that he was the more eager to visit them as soon as possible. 9 Having crossed over to Jerusalem, he sacrificed to the faithful God and rendered thanks, and did something of what was fitting for the place. And indeed on coming into the place, he was struck by its earnestness and decorum, [10] and marveling also at the good order of the temple, he took it into his mind to plan to enter the shrine. [11] When they said that this was not fitting, because not even the members of the nation were permitted to enter, nor even all the priests, but only the high priest, who presides over all, and he only once a year,[g] he was in no way persuaded. [12] Even after the law was read aloud to him, he did not stop pushing himself forward, insisting that he had to enter: "Even if those men are denied this honor, I am not to be." [13] And he inquired for what reason, when he entered every sacred precinct, no one of those present had stopped him. [14] And someone thoughtlessly said that he was wrong to make a marvel of this very thing.[h] [15] "But since this has happened," he said, "why should I not enter in any case, whether they wish it or not?" [16] Then the priests in all their vestments prostrated themselves and begged the greatest God to help in the present plight and to turn aside the onset of the one who was wickedly attacking; and they filled the temple with cries and tears. [17] Those who had remained behind in the city were alarmed and rushed out, taking it that something mysterious was happening. [18] And the maidens shut away in their rooms burst out along with those who bore them; they strewed their tresses with dust and crammed the broad ways with wailing and moans. [19] Those who had lately been dressed for marriage[i] left the bridal chambers arranged for meeting and the modesty that becomes them, and ran about in disorder through the city. [20] Mothers and nurses who had charge of the infants left them, one this way and one that, some in the houses and some along the lanes, and without turning back they thronged to the all-highest temple. [21] Many-sided was the supplication of those who had gathered there because of what was being unholily attempted by him. [22] With them the bolder of the citizens would not endure his pressing on and intending to fulfill his purpose; [23] calling out to make a rush for arms and to die boldly for the ancestral law, they caused much roughness in the place; and being turned back with difficulty by the aged and the elders, they joined in the same stance of supplication. [24] Meanwhile the throng, as before, kept on in prayer. 25 The elders around the king tried in many ways to divert his arrogant mind from the plot he had conceived. 26 But he grew bold and dismissed them all, and was already making his approach, thinking he would bring the aforesaid deed to completion. 27 Those around him, seeing these things, turned as well, joining with our people in calling on the One holding all might to defend them in what was at hand, not overlooking the lawless and arrogant deed. 28 From the dense and laboring cry of the crowds as they gathered rose an indescribable shout; 29 It seemed as if not only the human beings but even the walls and the entire ground were resounding, since everyone then was ready to exchange life for death rather than see the place made profane.

Notes

- a (1:1) Ptolemy IV Philopator, king of Egypt 221–204 BC. "Philopator" means "father-loving."
- b (1:1) Antiochus III the Great, king of the Seleucid empire 223–187 BC.
- c (1:1) Arsinoe III, sister and wife of Ptolemy IV.
- d (1:1) Raphia, on the coast southwest of Gaza; the battle was fought in 217 BC, and Ptolemy won.
- e (1:4) Greek "two minas of gold"; a mina was about 1.25 lb (570 g).
- f (1:8) Greek gerousia, the senate or council of elders.
- g (1:11) See Lev 16:2, 29–34.
- h (1:14) Or "that it was wrong to boast of this very thing"; the Greek is obscure.
- i (1:19) The Greek of this verse is obscure; the translation is approximate.

Chapter 2

1 Then the high priest Simon, facing the shrine, bent his knees, stretched out his hands in seemly order, and made a supplication of this kind:[a]

2 "Lord, Lord, King of the skies and Ruler of everything created, holy among the holy, only sovereign, all-powerful, pay attention to us, who are crushed by a godless and defiling man, bloated with arrogance and might. 3 For you are the one who created all things, and you hold sway over the universe; you are a righteous potentate, and you judge those who do anything in outrage and haughtiness. 4 You destroyed those who did wrong before, among whom were giants trusting in might and boldness, bringing upon them water beyond measure.[b] 5 You burned up with fire and sulfur the Sodomites, workers of arrogance, who had become notorious for their vices, and you set them as a pattern for those coming after.[c] 6 You put the bold Pharaoh to the proof, he who had enslaved your holy people Israel, with many and varied punishments, and made your power known, by which you made known your great might. 7 Him, as he gave chase with chariots and a horde of soldiery, you flooded over with the sea's deep; yet those who had put their trust in you, the ruler of the whole creation, you carried across unharmed. 8 These, beholding what your hand had wrought, sang the praise of you, the All-powerful. 9 You, O King, when you created the boundless and immeasurable earth, chose this city and hallowed this place for your name, though you have need of nothing; and you glorified it with a magnificent manifestation, establishing it for the glory of your great and honored name. 10 And loving the house of Israel, you promised that if we should fall away and distress should overtake us, and we should come to this place and pray, you would hear our prayer.[d] 11 And indeed you are faithful and true. 12 For many a time, when our forefathers were hard pressed, you came to their aid in their low estate and delivered them out of grievous ills. 13 see now, holy King, because of our many and great sins we are worn down, made subject to our enemies, and slack in our weakness. 14 And in our downfall this bold and profane man is bent on outraging the holy place set apart on earth for the name of your glory. 15 For your dwelling, the heaven of heaven, is unreachable by human beings. 16 But since you were pleased to place your glory among your people Israel, you hallowed this place. 17 Do not take vengeance on us for the uncleanness of these men, nor call us to account for their profanation, lest the lawless boast in their rage and exult in the arrogance of their tongue, saying, 18 'The sanctified house we have trodden underfoot, just as the shrines of the loathsome idols are trodden.' 19 Wipe away our sins, scatter our errors, and make your mercy shine forth at this hour. 20 Let your compassions overtake us quickly, and put praises in the mouths of those who are fallen and crushed in soul, making peace for us."

21 Thereupon God, who oversees all, the first Father, holy among the holy ones, having heard the lawful entreaty, scourged him who was greatly lifted up in insolence and boldness; 22 he shook him this way and that like a reed by the wind, so that he lay on the ground powerless, paralyzed in his limbs, unable even to speak, struck by a just judgment. 23 Then both Friends and bodyguards, seeing the swift punishment that had overtaken him, and fearing that he might even lose his life, quickly dragged him out, stricken with overwhelming fear. 24 Some time later, when he had recovered himself, he in no way came to repentance for having been rebuked, but departed uttering bitter threats.
25 When he had crossed over to Egypt, he increased his wickedness through the drinking companions and comrades already mentioned, men estranged from all justice.[e] 26 He was not content with countless licentious deeds, but even went on to such a pitch of boldness that he framed slanders in those places, and many of his Friends, fixing their gaze on the king's purpose, themselves followed his will. 27 He proposed to inflict public disgrace upon the nation: on the tower beside the court he set up a pillar and carved an inscription: 28 "None who do not sacrifice shall enter their sanctuaries; and all the Jews shall be brought to a registration and the condition of slaves; those who speak against it shall be taken by force and removed from life. 29 Those who are registered shall be branded by fire on their bodies with the ivy leaf, the emblem of Dionysus, and shall be enrolled according to their former restricted status."[f] 30 But in order not to appear hateful to all, he wrote beneath: "But if any of them choose to live among those initiated into the mysteries, these shall have equal citizenship with the Alexandrians." 31 Now some, superficially loathing the steps to be climbed toward the city's piety,[g] readily gave themselves up, as if they would share in some great fame from the association to come with the king. 32 But the greater part held firm with a noble soul and did not depart from their piety; offering their goods in exchange for life, they fearlessly attempted to save themselves from the registrations. 33 They were in good hope of obtaining help, and they abhorred those who parted from them, judged them enemies of the nation, and deprived them of common fellowship and mutual service.

Notes

- a (2:1) This verse is missing from the electronic edition of Swete's text used for this translation, though it belongs to the transmitted text; it is translated here from the Greek reflected in Brenton's version. Simon II, high priest around 219–196 BC (compare Sir 50:1–21).
- b (2:4) See Gen 6:1–7.
- c (2:5) See Gen 19:24–25.
- d (2:10) See 1 Kgs 8:33–34; 2 Chr 6:24–25.
- e (2:25) The Greek of vv. 25–26 is loosely constructed.
- f (2:29) Or "enrolled in their former restricted status"; the Greek is obscure. The registration (laographia) apparently reduced the Jews to the status of tax-paying natives.
- g (2:31) The phrase is obscure; it may mean that they were glad to abandon the hard steps of their own faith for the city's religion.

Chapter 3

1 When the impious man learned of this, he grew so furious that he was not only enraged at those in Alexandria but set himself even more harshly against those in the countryside, and ordered that all should be quickly gathered into one place and removed from life by a most cruel fate.

2 While this was being arranged, a hostile report was spread abroad against the race by men who agreed together to do harm, a pretext being given for the slander that the Jews were keeping others from their customs.[a] 3 The Jews, however, were maintaining goodwill and unswerving loyalty toward the kings; 4 but revering God and living by his law, they kept themselves separate in the matter of foods, and for this reason they appeared hateful to some. 5 Yet adorning their way of life with the good practice of righteous deeds, they had come to be well regarded by all people. 6 This good practice of the race, talked of everywhere, the foreigners took no account of at all; 7 but they kept talking of the difference in worship and foods, claiming that these people were allies neither of the king nor of his forces, but were hostile and greatly opposed to the state's affairs; and they fastened no ordinary reproach upon them.[b]

8 The Greeks in the city, who had in no way been wronged, seeing an unexpected tumult around these people and gatherings taking place without warning, were not strong enough to help, for the regime was tyrannical; but they gave encouragement and were distressed, and supposed that these things would change; 9 for so great a community, guilty of nothing, would not be thus overlooked. 10 And already some neighbors, friends, and business partners, drawing certain of them aside in secret, gave pledges to protect them and to put forth every effort for their help.
11 That man, then, puffed up by his present good fortune and not perceiving the might of the supreme God, but supposing that he would continue always in the same purpose, wrote this letter against them: 12 "King Ptolemy Philopator, to his commanders and troops throughout Egypt and in each locality: rejoice and be well. 13 I myself am in good health, and so are our affairs. 14 Since our campaign into Asia, of which you yourselves know, was brought to its end as planned through the unfailing alliance of the gods, 15 we thought it right to nurture the nations inhabiting Coele-Syria and Phoenicia[c] not by force of the spear but by forbearance and much humanity, gladly doing them good. 16 And after assigning revenues in great abundance to the shrines city by city, we were led on also to go up to Jerusalem, to honor the temple of those accursed men who never cease from their folly. 17 They welcomed our presence in word but falsely in deed; for when we were eager to enter their shrine and honor it with splendid and most beautiful offerings, 18 carried away by their ancient arrogance, they barred us from entering, though they fell short of our might, owing to the humanity we hold toward all people. 19 Making their ill will toward us evident, as the only one of the nations holding their necks high against kings and their own benefactors, they are not willing to bear anything genuine.
20 "But we, bearing with their folly, and having come back with victory, and on arriving in Egypt meeting all the nations with humanity, have done as was fitting. 21 Amid these things we made known to all our forgetfulness of wrongs toward their kinsmen, both because of the alliance and because of the countless affairs entrusted to them in sincerity from the beginning; and we wished to venture a change, to count them worthy of Alexandrian citizenship and to make them partakers in our perpetual rites.[d] 22 But they, taking it in the opposite sense and thrusting away the good with their inborn malice, constantly inclining toward the base, 23 not only rejected the priceless citizenship, but also abhor, by word and by silence, the few among them who are genuinely disposed toward us; at every turn they suspect that, with their most infamous way of life, they may swiftly overthrow our affairs. 24 Therefore, fully persuaded by proofs that these people bear us ill will in every way, and taking forethought lest, if some sudden disturbance should afterward arise against us, we should have these impious people as traitors at our back and barbarous enemies, 25 we have ordered that as soon as this letter arrives you are at once to send to us those who dwell among you, together with their wives and children, with insults and abuse, confined on all sides in iron bonds, for a death without remedy and infamous, fitting for enemies. 26 For when these have been punished together, we have concluded that for the remaining time our affairs will be fully established in firm order and the best condition. 27 Whoever shelters any of the Jews, from the aged down to the infant, even to those at the breast, shall with his whole house be racked to death under the most odious tortures. 28 Anyone who wishes may inform, on the terms that he shall receive the property of the one who falls under punishment, together with about nineteen pounds of silver[e] from the royal treasury, and shall be crowned with his freedom. 29 Every place where a sheltered Jew is detected at all shall be made untrodden and burned with fire, and shall be shown wholly useless to every mortal creature for all time."

30 Such was the form in which the letter was written.

Notes

- a (3:2) Or "a pretext being given by the rumor that they hindered others from keeping the laws"; the Greek is obscure.
- b (3:7) Or "they attached no small blame to them."
- c (3:15) Coele-Syria ("hollow Syria") is the region between the Lebanon ranges, and more broadly the southern Levant.

- d (3:21) Greek “of the priests always,” perhaps of the state cults; the sense is uncertain.
- e (3:28) Greek “two thousand drachmas”; a drachma was about 0.15 oz (4.3 g), so the total is about 19 lb (8.6 kg).

Chapter 4

1 Everywhere this decree arrived, a public feast was set up for the Gentiles with shouting and joy, as the hostility long since hardened in their minds was now being shown forth with boldness. 2 But among the Jews there was unspeakable mourning and an all-lamenting cry with tears, their hearts set on fire on every side with groans, as they bewailed the destruction unexpectedly and suddenly decreed against them. 3 What district or city, or what inhabited place at all, or what streets were not filled with wailing and lamentation for them? 4 For with such bitterness and pitiless soul were they sent off together by the generals in each city that, at the extraordinary punishments, even some of their enemies, setting before their eyes the common pity and reckoning the uncertain overturning of life, wept at their most miserable sending away. 5 For an old man was led along, crowned with full gray hair, whose feet, bent over from the sluggishness of age, were forced by the impetus of a violent driving to make a swift march, without any respect. 6 And young women who had just entered the bridal chamber for the partnership of life, receiving laments instead of delight, their myrrh-drenched hair fouled with dust, were led unveiled and together raised a dirge instead of wedding songs, as if torn by the claws of foreign whelps.[a] 7 Bound, in public view, they were dragged by force as far as the putting on board the ship. 8 Their husbands, nooses instead of garlands wound about their necks, in the prime of youthful age, spent the remaining days of their marriage festivities in dirges instead of feasting and youthful ease, seeing Hades already lying at their feet. 9 They were brought down, led like wild beasts under constraint of iron bonds; some were nailed by the neck to the benches of the ships, and some had their feet made fast in unbreakable fetters; 10 moreover, with the close-set planking laid over above them, so that with their eyes darkened on every side they might receive the treatment of traitors throughout the whole voyage.

11 When they had been brought to the place called Schedia[b] and the voyage along the coast was completed, as had been decreed by the king, he ordered them to be encamped in the hippodrome before the city, which was of immense circuit and very well suited for making them an example to all who went down into the city and to those from it who set out into the country for travel abroad, so that they might not mingle with his forces nor be counted worthy of any enclosure at all. 12 When this had been done, he heard that their countrymen from the city were going out in secret and frequently lamenting the inglorious misery of their brothers. 13 Enraged, he ordered that they too be dealt with carefully in the same way as the others, falling short in no way of their punishment; 14 and that the whole race be registered by name, not for the hard labor of works briefly indicated before,[c] but that, after being racked with the outrages commanded, they should in the end be blotted out within the time of a single day. 15 So the registration of these people was carried out with bitter urgency and tireless zeal, from sunrise until sunset, and it was still unfinished after forty days.
16 The king, greatly and continually filled with joy, held banquets before all the idols with a mind far astray from the truth and a profane mouth, praising things dumb and unable to speak to them or help them, while uttering improper words against God. 17 After the aforesaid interval of time, the scribes reported to the king that they were no longer able to carry out the registration of the Jews because of their immeasurable multitude, 18 though most were still in the countryside, some still assembled in their houses and some in the place itself, since it was impossible for all the generals in Egypt.[d] 19 When he threatened them more harshly, as having been bribed to devise their escape, it came about that he was clearly assured on this point, 20 when they declared with proof that both the papyrus and the writing reeds they used had already given out. 21 This was the working of the invincible providence of him who was helping the Jews from heaven.

Notes

- a (4:6) Or “foreign cubs”; the image is of animals tearing their prey. The Greek is obscure.
- b (4:11) Schedia was a river port on the canal linking Alexandria with the Nile, a short distance southeast of the city.
- c (4:14) The Greek of this phrase is obscure; it may refer to the forced labor mentioned in 2:28.
- d (4:18) The Greek of this verse is obscure.

Chapter 5

1 Then, calling Hermon, who was in charge of the care of the elephants, filled with heavy wrath and bile and wholly unbending, 2 he commanded him on the coming day to give all the elephants to drink with lavish handfuls of frankincense and much unmixed wine, they being five hundred in number, and, when they had been made savage by the unstinted supply of drink, to lead them in to meet the doom of the Jews. 3 Giving these orders, he turned to his feasting, gathering those of his Friends and of the army who were most hostile toward the Jews. 4 And Hermon, the master of the elephants, carried out the order punctiliously. 5 The attendants assigned to these matters went out toward evening and bound the hands of the wretched people, and contrived the other means of securing them through the night, thinking that the race would meet the end of its destruction all at once. 6 But the Jews, who seemed to the Gentiles to be bereft of all protection because of the constraint of bonds surrounding them on every side, 7 all called with tears, with a cry hard to quiet, upon the Lord Almighty, who rules over every power, their merciful God and Father, praying 8 that he would turn back the unholy design against them and rescue them, with a magnificent manifestation, from the doom lying ready at their feet. 9 So their entreaty went up fervently to heaven.

10 Hermon, having watered the merciless elephants until they were filled with the great supply of wine and sated with the frankincense, was at the court at dawn to report about these things to the king. 11 But the good creation of time, from of old cast upon night and day by him who grants it to all whom he wills, sleep, he sent a portion of to the king;[a] 12 and by the working of the Master he was held fast in a most sweet and deep sleep, greatly thwarted in his lawless purpose and much deceived in his unbending reckoning. 13 The Jews, having slipped past the hour that had been signaled beforehand, gave praise to their holy God, and once more they besought the One quick to be reconciled to display before the haughty nations the strength of his mighty hand.

14 When it was now nearly the middle of the tenth hour,[b] the officer assigned to the invitations, seeing the guests assembled, went and nudged the king. 15 Rousing him with difficulty, he pointed out that the time of the banquet was already slipping past, giving him an account of these matters. 16 The king, considering this, turned to his drinking and ordered those who had come to the banquet to recline opposite him. 17 When this was done, he urged them to give themselves to feasting and, being highly honored, to devote the present part of the banquet to merriment. 18 As the conversation went on at length, the king called Hermon and asked with bitter threats for what reason the Jews had been allowed to survive the past day. 19 When Hermon pointed out that he had carried out the order by night, and his Friends bore witness with him, 20 the king, having a cruelty worse than that of Phalaris,[c] said that they could thank his sleep for this day; "but without delay, for the coming day, get the elephants ready in the same way for the annihilation of the lawless Jews." 21 When the king had spoken, all who were present gladly agreed together with joy, and each departed to his own house. 22 And they spent the time of night not so much in sleep as in devising every kind of mockery for those who seemed wretched.

23 The cock had just crowed at dawn when Hermon, having armed the beasts, was setting them in motion in the great colonnade. 24 The crowds throughout the city had gathered for the most pitiable spectacle, eagerly waiting for morning. 25 And the Jews, their breath being drawn out of them for the briefest time,[d] stretching their hands toward heaven in a tearful supplication with mournful strains, begged the greatest God to help them again speedily. 26 The sun's rays were not yet spreading, and while the king was receiving his Friends, Hermon stood by and summoned him to go out, pointing out that the king's desire lay ready. 27 Receiving the report and struck with amazement at the lawless going out, being wholly overcome by lack of understanding, he asked what the matter was for which this had been completed for him with such haste.[e] 28 This was the working of God, who rules over all, who had put into his mind a forgetfulness of what he had previously devised. 29 Hermon and all the Friends pointed to the beasts and the forces: "They have been made ready, O king, in accordance with your earnest purpose." 30 But he was filled with heavy bile at these words, because by the providence of God his every thought about these matters had been scattered; and gazing intently at him he said with threats, 31 "If your parents were present, or your children's offspring, I would have prepared them as this abundant feast for the wild beasts, instead of the Jews, who are blameless toward me and have shown complete and firm loyalty to my ancestors in an outstanding way. 32 Indeed, were it not for the affection of our upbringing together and your service, you would have been deprived of life instead of them."[f] 33 Thus Hermon had to endure a threat he never looked for, full of peril; he shrank in his look and countenance. 34 And the Friends, one by one sullenly slipping away, dismissed those who had gathered, each to his own occupation. 35 And the Jews, hearing what had come from the king, praised the Lord, the God who manifests himself, the King of kings, since they had obtained this help also from him.

36 But the king, according to the same customs, set up the whole banquet again and urged the guests to turn to merriment. 37 And calling Hermon, he said with threats, "How many times must I give you orders about these very things, you most wretched man? 38 Arm the elephants now once more for tomorrow, for the annihilation of the Jews." 39 But the kinsmen reclining with him, marveling at his unstable mind, put forward the following: 40 "O king, how long will you put us to the test in this way, ordering now for the third time that they be destroyed, and again undoing by a change of mind, when it comes to the deed, what you have decided? 41 Because of this the city is in turmoil through the suspense; and being thronged with mobs it is already in danger of being plundered many times over."

42 Thereupon the king, a Phalaris in every way, filled with senselessness and counting as nothing the changes of mind that had taken place in him for the protection of the Jews, swore a most futile oath, firmly determining to send them without delay to Hades, mangled by the knees and feet of the beasts, 43 and that he would march against Judea, swiftly make it level with the ground by fire and spear, and, burning to the ground with fire their temple which was not to be trodden by us, would quickly make it empty forever of those who offer sacrifice there. 44 Then the Friends and kinsmen departed, overjoyed and confident, and posted the forces at the most suitable places of the city for keeping guard. 45 And the master of the elephants, having driven the beasts into an almost maddened state, as one may say, with most fragrant drinks of wine mixed with frankincense, and frightfully decked out with gear, 46 about dawn, when the city was already filled with countless crowds all around the hippodrome, went into the court and urged the king on to the matter at hand. 47 And he, his impious mind filled with heavy wrath, rushed out with the whole mass of the beasts, wishing with unwounded heart and with the pupils of his eyes to watch the painful and miserable destruction of those already marked out. 48 When the Jews saw the dust of the elephants going out at the gate and of the armed force following and of the crowd's march, and heard the deep-sounding din, 49 thinking that this was the last turning point of life for them, the end of their most miserable suspense, they turned to pity and laments and kissed one another, embracing their relatives and falling on their necks, parents on children and mothers on young daughters, while other women held newborn babes at their breasts, drawing their last milk. 50 Nevertheless, recalling the help that had come to them before from heaven, they flung themselves face down with one accord, and taking the infants from the breasts 51 they cried out with an exceedingly loud voice, beseeching the Sovereign of all power to have pity on them with a manifestation, now that they stood at the gates of Hades.

Notes

- a (5:11) The Greek of this verse is obscure; the sense is that God sent the king sleep.
- b (5:14) About 3:30 in the afternoon, the hours being counted from sunrise.

- c (5:20) Phalaris, tyrant of Acragas in Sicily in the sixth century BC, was proverbial for cruelty; he was said to roast his victims in a bronze bull.
- d (5:25) Or "through the moment that drew out their souls"; the Greek is obscure.
- e (5:27) The Greek of this verse is obscure.
- f (5:32) The Greek of vv. 31–32 is obscure, and the sense given is approximate.

Chapter 6

1 Then a certain Eleazar, a man of note among the Jews from the countryside, who had already reached old age and was adorned with every virtue throughout his life, restrained the elders around him from calling upon the holy God,[a] and prayed as follows:
2 "King of great power, Most High, God Almighty, who govern all creation with compassion, 3 look upon the offspring of Abraham, upon the children of sanctified Jacob, the people of your sanctified portion, perishing unjustly as strangers in a strange land. 4 Father, you destroyed Pharaoh, once the ruler of this Egypt, who abounded in chariots and was lifted up in lawless boldness and a boastful tongue, drowning him in the sea with his arrogant army, and you made the light of mercy shine on the race of Israel. 5 Sennacherib, the oppressive king of the Assyrians, exulting in his countless forces, who had already taken the whole earth under his hand by the spear and was raised up against your holy city, speaking oppressive things with pomp and boldness, you, O Master, broke, showing your might plainly to many nations. 6 The three companions in Babylonia, who willingly gave their lives to the fire so as not to serve empty things, you rescued unharmed to a hair, bedewing the fiery furnace and sending the flame on all their adversaries.[b] 7 Daniel, hurled down into the ground by the slanders of envy to be food for lions, you led up to the light unharmed.[c] 8 And Jonah, wasting away in the belly of the deep-bred sea monster, you looked upon, Father, and showed him unharmed to all his household.[d] 9 And now, you who hate insolence, abounding in mercy, judge of all, appear quickly to those of the race of Israel who are being outraged by abominable, lawless Gentiles. 10 And if our life has been entangled in ungodliness in our exile, rescue us from the hand of the enemies, and destroy us, O Master, by whatever doom you choose. 11 Let not the vain-minded bless their vain idols for the destruction of your beloved, saying, ‘Not even their God rescued them.’ 12 But you, Eternal One, who have all strength and all dominion, look now; have mercy on us, who by the senseless insolence of lawless men are being removed from life in the manner of traitors. 13 Let the Gentiles cower today before your invincible power, O honored One, who have power to save the race of Jacob. 14 The whole multitude of infants and their parents beseech you with tears. 15 Make it known to all the nations that you stand with us, O Lord, and have not turned your countenance away from us; rather, as you declared, ‘Even while they were in their enemies’ land, I did not disregard them,’[e] so accomplish it, Lord.”

16 Just as Eleazar was ending his prayer, the king came along by the hippodrome with the beasts and all the haughtiness of his force. 17 When the Jews saw this, they cried out loudly to heaven, so that the neighboring valleys echoed with them and caused an irrepressible panic in the whole army. 18 Then the most glorious, almighty, and true God, making his holy face shine forth, opened the gates of heaven, and out of them came down two angels in glory, dreadful to look upon, plain to the sight of everyone except the Jews. 19 They stood against the force of the adversaries and filled it with confusion and cowardice, and bound them with immovable fetters. 20 Even the king’s body began to shudder, and forgetfulness seized his heavy-tempered boldness. 21 And the beasts wheeled about against the armed troops coming behind them, trampling and wiping them out.

22 Then the king’s wrath was turned to pity and tears on account of what he had devised before. 23 For when he heard the outcry and saw them all fallen face down to their destruction, he wept and angrily threatened his Friends, saying, 24 “You are usurping royal power, and have surpassed tyrants in cruelty; and even me, your benefactor, you are attempting to remove now from rule and from life, secretly devising things not to the advantage of the kingdom. 25 Who took from their homes those who faithfully held the fortresses of the country for us, and senselessly gathered each of them here? 26 Who so lawlessly surrounded with outrages those who from the beginning have excelled all nations in goodwill toward us in every way, and who have often accepted the worst of human dangers? [27] Loose, untie their unjust bonds! Send them away in peace to their homes, asking pardon for what has been done. [28] Release the sons of the almighty, heavenly, living God, who from our ancestors' time until now has granted unhindered stability with glory to our affairs." [29] These were the things he said; and they, released in an instant, blessed their holy God and Savior, having just escaped death.

[30] Then the king, having summoned to the city the overseer of revenues, bade him furnish the Jews with wines and the rest of what was suitable for feasting for seven days, deciding that in the very place where they had expected to meet destruction they should celebrate their deliverance with all merriment. [31] Then those who were formerly reviled and near to Hades, or rather had already set foot in it, instead of a bitter and most lamentable doom held a drinking party of deliverance, and, full of joy, divided up for couches the place prepared for their fall and burial. [32] Ceasing their all-lamenting strain of dirges, they took up the song of their ancestors, praising God, the Savior of Israel and worker of wonders; and casting away all wailing and shrieking they formed dances as a sign of peaceful merriment. [33] Likewise the king also, holding a great banquet on account of these things, gave thanks unceasingly and magnificently to heaven for the unexpected deliverance that had come to them. [34] And those who had earlier assumed that they would be destroyed and become food for birds, and had registered them with joy, groaned as they clothed themselves in shame, their fire-breathing boldness utterly quenched. [35] And the Jews, as we have said before, having formed the dance just mentioned, spent the time in feasting with joyful thanksgivings and psalms. [36] And establishing a common ordinance about these things for their whole community of sojourners, for generations, they set the aforementioned days to be kept as days of merriment, not for tippling and greed, but for the salvation brought about for them by God. [37] They petitioned the king, asking for their release to their homes.

[38] Now they had been registered from the twenty-fifth of Pachon to the fourth of Epiphi (in July–August),[f] for forty days; and their destruction was set from the fifth of Epiphi to the seventh, for three days, [39]

during which the Ruler of all, magnificently manifesting his mercy, rescued them all together unscathed. 40 They feasted, being supplied with everything by the king, until the fourteenth, the day on which they made their petition for their release. 41 The king, consenting to them, wrote for them the following letter to the generals in every city, magnanimously expressing his earnest concern:

Notes

- a (6:1) Or "having bidden the elders around him to call upon the holy God"; the Greek can be taken either way.
- b (6:6) See Dan 3; Song of the Three 23–27 (Greek Dan 3:46–50).
- c (6:7) See Dan 6.
- d (6:8) See Jonah 1:17–2:10.
- e (6:15) Compare Lev 26:44.
- f (6:38) Pachon and Epiphi are the ninth and eleventh months of the Egyptian calendar. In the Ptolemaic civil calendar of about 217 BC the dates given here would fall roughly from early July to mid-August; by the later fixed Alexandrian calendar the dates would fall in May–June. The exact equivalents are uncertain.

Chapter 7

1 "King Ptolemy Philopator, to the generals in Egypt and to all who are appointed over affairs: greetings and good health. 2 We ourselves are in good health, and so are our children, the great God directing our affairs as we choose. 3 Certain of our Friends, out of malice frequently urging us, won us over to assembling the Jews under our rule into companies and chastising them, as deserters, with outlandish penalties, 4 alleging that our affairs would never be in good order, because of the ill will these people have toward the other nations, until this was accomplished. 5 They brought them down in bonds with abuse like slaves, or rather like traitors, and without any inquiry or examination tried to do away with them, having armed themselves with a cruelty more savage than the custom of the Scythians.[a] 6 But we, threatening them severely for these things, in keeping with the clemency we have toward all people, barely granted them their lives; and having come to know that the God of heaven surely shields the Jews, fighting on their side always as a father for his sons, 7 and taking into account the firm goodwill of friendship they have toward us and our ancestors, we have justly acquitted them of every charge of whatever kind. 8

We have also commanded that all return, every man, to his own property, with nobody whatever doing them any hurt or casting up to them what has unreasonably taken place. 9 Understand that should we contrive some wicked scheme against these people, or vex them in the least, it is no mortal but God Most High, master of every power, whom we shall find set against us, beyond escape, forever, to avenge these deeds. Farewell."

10 On receiving this letter, they did not hurry at once about their departure, but they requested of the king that those of the race of the Jews who had of their own accord transgressed against the holy God and the law of God should receive through them the punishment they deserved,[b] 11 alleging that men who for their stomach's sake had broken the commands of God would never be loyal to the commands of the king either. 12 He, accepting that they spoke the truth and commending them, gave them full license to destroy freely, without any royal authorization or supervision, those who had transgressed the law of God in every place under his kingdom. 13 Then, applauding him as was fitting, their priests and the whole multitude, shouting "Hallelujah,"[c] departed with joy. 14 And on the way they put to death any of their countrymen they came upon who had become defiled, and killed them as a public example. 15 On that day they killed over three hundred men, and they celebrated the day as a festival of joy, having defeated the godless. 16 But they themselves, who had held fast to God to the death and had obtained complete deliverance and release, set out from the city with shouting,[d] giving thanks with praises and melodious hymns to the God of their ancestors, the holy Savior of Israel.

17 When they had arrived at Ptolemais, called "rose-bearing" because of the character of the place,[e] where the fleet waited for them seven days in accordance with their common resolve, 18 there they held a drinking feast of deliverance, the king generously supplying them with everything needed for the journey, each one, as far as his own house. 19 And having landed in peace with fitting thanksgivings, there likewise they resolved to keep these days also as days of merriment for the time of their sojourning. 20 These they consecrated on a pillar, and having founded a house of prayer where the drinking feast had been held, they went away unhurt, at liberty, exceedingly glad, brought safely through by land and sea and river at the king's command, each to his own home.[f] 21 And they had greater authority among their enemies than before, with honor and awe, and were not shaken at all by anyone with respect to their possessions. 22 And all of them recovered all their belongings according to the registry, so that those who held anything gave it back to them with the greatest fear, the great God having done great deeds perfectly for their deliverance. 23 Blessed be the Deliverer of Israel for all time! Amen.

Notes

- a (7:5) The Scythians, nomads north of the Black Sea, were proverbial among Greeks for savagery.
- b (7:10) The Greek of this verse is awkwardly constructed.
- c (7:13) Hebrew for "Praise the LORD."
- d (7:16) Or "set out from the city of the shouting"; the Greek is obscure.
- e (7:17) Ptolemais here is probably a town on the Nile in the Arsinoite district (the Fayum), not the coastal city in Palestine.
- f (7:20) The Greek text followed here breaks off after "each to his"; the words "own home" are supplied from the sense, and the opening of v. 21 is likewise incomplete.

4 Maccabees

Apocrypha

Chapter 1

1 Since I am about to set forth a most philosophical argument, namely whether devout reason[a] is sole master of the passions, I would rightly advise you to pay earnest attention to the philosophy. 2 For the argument is necessary to everyone for knowledge, and besides it includes the praise of the greatest virtue, I mean practical wisdom.[b] 3 If, then, reason is seen to prevail over the passions that hinder self-control, namely gluttony and desire, 4 it is shown also to rule over the passions that obstruct justice, such as malice, and over those that obstruct courage, namely anger, pain, and fear. 5 How then, some might perhaps say, if reason masters the passions, does it not rule over forgetfulness and ignorance? They are attempting a ridiculous argument. 6 For reason does not master its own passions, but those that are opposed to justice, courage, self-control, and practical wisdom; and it masters these not so as to destroy them, but so as not to give way to them.

7 I could demonstrate to you from many and various sources that devout reason is absolute ruler over the passions, 8 but I can prove it far more from the manly virtue of those who perished on virtue's behalf, Eleazar and the seven brothers and the mother of these. 9 For all of these, by despising sufferings even to death, demonstrated that reason has the mastery over the passions. 10 For their virtues, then, it falls to me to praise those men who at this season died, together with their mother, for the sake of nobility and goodness; and for their honors I would count them blessed. 11 For they were admired not only by all people for their courage and endurance, but even by those who tortured them; and they became the cause of the tyranny over the nation being brought down, conquering the tyrant by their endurance, so that through them their homeland was purified. 12 But I may speak of this shortly, after beginning with the general thesis, as I am accustomed to do; then I will turn to the account of them, giving glory to the all-wise God.

13 Our inquiry, then, is whether reason is absolute ruler over the passions. 14 Let us determine just what reason is, and what passion is, and how many kinds of passions there are, and whether reason prevails over all of them. 15 Reason, then, is the mind that, together with right living, prefers the word of wisdom.[c] 16 And wisdom is knowledge of divine and human matters and of their causes. 17 This wisdom, in turn, is the training of the law, by which we learn divine things reverently and human things to our advantage.[d] 18 The forms of wisdom are practical wisdom, justice, courage, and self-control. 19 Practical wisdom is the most authoritative of all of these, for through it reason prevails over the passions. 20 Of the passions, the two most comprehensive kinds are pleasure and pain; and each of these by nature has its seat also in the soul. 21 There are many trains of passions that follow pleasure and pain. 22 Before pleasure comes desire, and after pleasure, joy. 23 Before pain comes fear, and after pain, sorrow. 24 Anger is a passion common to pleasure and pain, if one reflects on when it has come upon him. 25 In pleasure there is also the malicious disposition, which is the most varied of all the passions. 26 In the soul it shows itself as boastfulness, love of money, love of glory, contentiousness, and envy; 27 in the body as eating everything, gluttony, and eating alone.[e] 28 So then, since pleasure and pain are as it were two plants of body and soul, these passions have many side shoots, 29 Each of these reason, the master gardener, cleanses all around, prunes, binds up, waters, and transplants in every way, and so tames the jungle of habits and passions.

30 For reason is the guide of the virtues but the absolute ruler of the passions. Observe, then, first of all through the deeds that hinder self-control, that reason is sole master of the passions. 31 Self-control, then, is mastery over the desires. 32 Of the desires, some are of the soul and some of the body, and reason evidently prevails over both. 33 Otherwise, how is it that when forbidden foods tempt us, we reject the pleasure they would give? Is it not because reason can overpower the appetites? I believe so. 34 Accordingly, when we desire creatures of the water, birds, and four-footed animals, and every sort of food forbidden to us under the law, we abstain because of the mastery of reason. 35 For the passions of the appetites are restrained, checked by the self-controlled mind, and every motion of the body is reined in by reason.[f]

Notes

- a (1:1) Or "pious reason"; Greek eusebēs logismos, the theme of the whole book.
- b (1:2) Greek phronēsis, the virtue of sound practical judgment.
- c (1:15) Or "that prefers, with right living, the reasoning of wisdom." The definitions in vv. 15–18 draw on Stoic philosophy.
- d (1:17) Swete prints vv. 16–17 as one verse.
- e (1:27) Greek monophagia, apparently selfish eating apart from others; the meaning is uncertain.
- f (1:35) Greek "are made to strive for honor," apparently meaning "are reined in"; the sense is uncertain.

Chapter 2

1 And what wonder is it if the desires of the soul for union with beauty are rendered powerless? 2 It is for this, at any rate, that the self-controlled Joseph[a] is praised, because by reason, with his mind, he gained the mastery over sensual pleasure. 3 For though he was young and at the peak of desire for intercourse, by reason he nullified the frenzy of his passions. 4 And reason is shown to prevail not only over the frenzied goading of sensual pleasure, but over every desire. 5 Thus the law says, "You shall not desire your neighbor's wife, nor anything that belongs to your neighbor."[b] 6 And indeed, since the law has told us not to desire, I could much more readily persuade you that reason is able to master the desires, just as it masters the passions that hinder justice. 7 Otherwise, how is someone who is by habit a solitary eater, a glutton, and a drunkard re-educated, unless it is clear that reason is lord of the passions? 8 So, as soon as a person orders his life by the law, even if he is a lover of money, he forces his own character, lending without interest to those in need and canceling the debt when the seventh years arrive.[c] 9 And if someone is stingy, he is overruled by the law because of reason, so that he neither gleans his harvest fields

nor gathers the last grapes from his vineyards.[d] And in the other cases too one can recognize that it is reason that masters the passions. [10] For the law prevails even over affection toward parents, so that virtue is not betrayed for their sake; [11] it gains the upper hand over affection for a wife, convicting her when she breaks the law; [12] it rules over love for children, so that one punishes them for wrongdoing; and it masters intimacy with friends, so that one reproves them for wickedness. [13] And do not consider it paradoxical when reason, through the law, is able to prevail even over enmity, [14] so that one does not cut down the cultivated trees of the enemy, but rescues the property of foes for those who lost it, and helps raise up what has fallen.[e]

[15] Reason is shown to master the more violent passions as well: love of power, vainglory, boastfulness, arrogance, and envy. [16] For the self-controlled mind thrusts away all these malicious passions, as it does anger also; for it is master even over this. [17] Moses, indeed, when he was angered against Dathan and Abiram, did nothing against them in anger, but settled his anger by reason.[f] [18] For the self-controlled mind is able, as I said, to win the prize of valor over the passions, altering some of them and rendering others powerless. [19] Why else does our all-wise father Jacob[g] blame the households of Simeon and Levi for slaughtering the Shechemites as a whole tribe without reason, saying, "Cursed be their anger"?[h] [20] For if reason were not able to master anger, he would not have spoken so. [21] For when God fashioned the human being, he planted around him his passions and his inclinations; [22] and at that time he enthroned the mind, the sacred guide, over all, by means of the senses; [23] and to the mind he gave the law, by living according to which it will reign over a kingdom that is self-controlled, just, good, and courageous.

[24] How then, someone might say, if reason masters the passions, does it not master forgetfulness and ignorance?[i]

Notes

- a (2:2) "Joseph" means "may he add" (Gen 30:24). See Gen 39:7–12.
- b (2:5) Exod 20:17; Deut 5:21.
- c (2:8) See Exod 22:25; Lev 25:35–37; Deut 15:1–2.
- d (2:9) See Lev 19:9–10; 23:22; Deut 24:19–21.

- e (2:14) See Deut 20:19–20; Exod 23:4–5. The Greek of this verse is compressed and its construction uncertain.
- f (2:17) Num 16. “Dathan” may mean “belonging to a fountain” and “Abiram” “my father is exalted”; both meanings are uncertain.
- g (2:19) “Jacob” is popularly explained as “he grasps the heel” or “he supplants” (Gen 25:26; 27:36).
- h (2:19) Gen 34; 49:7. “Simeon” is associated with “hearing” and “Levi” with “joined” (Gen 29:33–34).
- i (2:24) This repeats the question of 1:5; the argument resumes in 3:1.

Chapter 3

1 But this argument is entirely ridiculous;[a] for reason is shown to prevail not over its own passions, but over those of the body. 2 For example, none of you is able to cut out desire, but reason is able to provide that you are not enslaved to desire. 3 None of you is able to cut anger out of the soul, but it is possible to bring aid against anger.
4 None of you is able to cut out malice, but reason can fight on your side so that you are not bent by malice. 5 For reason is not the uprooter of the passions, but their antagonist.
6 This can be reckoned more clearly through the thirst of King David.[b] 7 For when David had been battling the Philistines[c] all day long and, with his nation’s soldiers, had killed many of them, 8 then, when evening came, sweating and greatly exhausted, he came to the royal tent, around which the whole army of our forefathers had encamped.
9 All the rest, then, were at supper. 10 But the king, being extremely thirsty, although he had abundant springs, could not satisfy his thirst by them. 11 Rather, an irrational desire for the water that was in the enemy’s territory, growing ever stronger, parched him, and undoing him, burned him up. 12 Then, when his bodyguards were complaining over the king’s desire, two young soldiers, strong men, out of respect for the king’s desire, armed themselves in full armor and, taking a pitcher, climbed over the enemy’s ramparts. 13 And escaping the notice of the guards at the gates, they went right through the whole of the enemy camp searching. 14 And having boldly found the spring, they filled from it the drink for the king. 15 But he, though burning with thirst, reasoned that a drink reckoned as equal in value to blood was a most terrible danger to his soul. 16 Therefore, setting reason against desire, he poured out the drink as an offering to God. 17 For the self-controlled mind is able to conquer the compulsions of the passions, to quench the fires of frenzy, 18 to overcome in wrestling the pains of the body even when they are extreme, and by the nobility of reason to spurn every domination by the passions.

19 And now the occasion calls us to the demonstration from history of self-controlled reason. 20 For when our fathers enjoyed deep peace because of their observance of the law, and fared well, so that even the king of Asia, Seleucus Nicanor,[d] set apart money for them for the temple service and accepted their way of life, 21 then certain persons, rebelling against the common concord, made use of misfortunes of many kinds.

Notes

- a (3:1) Greek logismos, elsewhere "reason," here means "argument" or "line of reasoning."
- b (3:6) See 2 Sam 23:13–17; 1 Chr 11:15–19. "David" probably means "beloved."
- c (3:7) Greek "the foreigners," the usual Septuagint term for the Philistines.
- d (3:20) The king meant is probably Seleucus IV Philopator (reigned 187–175 BC; see 2 Macc 3:3); "Nicanor" ("conqueror") was properly the title of Seleucus I. The confusion is in the text.

Chapter 4

1 For a certain Simon,[a] who was a political opponent of Onias,[b] the man who at that time held the high priesthood for life, a noble and good man, after he had failed in every way to do him harm by slandering him to the nation, went off as an exile, intending to betray his homeland. 2 So he went to Apollonius, the governor of Syria, Phoenicia, and Cilicia, and told him, 3 "Since I am loyal to the king's interests, I have come to inform you that many tens of thousands in private funds are stored up in the treasuries of Jerusalem, which have no share in the temple and which properly belong to King Seleucus." 4 When Apollonius learned all the details of this, he praised Simon for his concern for the king, and going up to Seleucus he disclosed the treasure of money to him. 5 And having received authority over the matter, he came quickly into our homeland with the accursed Simon and a very heavy army 6 and said that he had come by the king's commands to take the private funds of the treasury. [7] And when the nation protested at his word and spoke against it, thinking it utterly outrageous that those who had entrusted deposits to the temple treasury should be robbed of them, they hindered him as far as they could. [8] But Apollonius went off with threats to the temple. [9] And while the priests, with women and children, were in the temple beseeching God to shield the holy place that was being treated with contempt, [10] and while Apollonius was going up with an armed host to seize the money, there appeared from heaven angels on horseback, flashing lightning from their weapons, and casting great fear and trembling upon them. [11] Apollonius collapsed half dead in the temple's outer court, which was open to all peoples,[c] raised his hands toward heaven, and tearfully begged the Hebrews to pray for him and to placate the heavenly host. [12] For he said that he had sinned, so that he even deserved to die, and that if he were saved he would sing to all people of the blessedness of the holy place. [13] Moved by these words, Onias the high priest prayed for him, though he was also on his guard lest King Seleucus should think that Apollonius had been overthrown by human treachery and not by divine justice. [14] And he, saved beyond expectation, went off to report to the king what had happened to him.[d]

[15] When King Seleucus died, his son Antiochus Epiphanes[e] succeeded to the rule, an arrogant and terrible man, [16] who removed Onias from the high priesthood and appointed his brother Jason[f] high priest, [17] Jason having agreed that, if Antiochus would entrust the office to him, he would pay each year about 137 tons of silver.[g] [18] And he entrusted to him the high priesthood and the leadership of the nation. [19] And Jason turned the nation aside and changed its citizenship over to every kind of lawlessness, [20] so that he not only built a gymnasium on the very citadel[h] of our homeland but also abolished the care of the temple. [21] Divine justice, angered at these things, made Antiochus himself its enemy. [22] For when he was at war with Ptolemy in Egypt, and heard that a rumor had spread that he had died and that the people of Jerusalem were rejoicing exceedingly, he quickly marched back against them. [23] And when he had plundered them, he issued a decree that if any of them were seen living by the ancestral law, they should die. 24 And when he was not able in any way to break down by his decrees the nation's devotion, but saw all his threats and punishments being set at nought, 25 so that even women, because they had circumcised their children, were thrown down from heights together with their babies, though they knew beforehand that they would suffer this,[i] 26 when, then, his decrees were despised by the people, he himself tried through tortures to compel each member of the nation to taste defiling foods and to renounce Judaism.[j]

Notes

- a (4:1) "Simon" (Hebrew Shimon) is associated with "hearing." Compare the parallel account in 2 Macc 3–4, where Simon is called captain of the temple and the governor is Apollonius, but the officer sent is Heliodorus.
- b (4:1) Onias III, high priest about 190–175 BC. The meaning of "Onias" (perhaps Hebrew Honiyah, "the LORD is gracious") is uncertain.
- c (4:11) Greek pamphylos, "of all tribes," the court open to all peoples; the exact sense is uncertain.
- d (4:14) Compare 2 Macc 3:22–40.
- e (4:15) Antiochus IV (reigned 175–164 BC). "Epiphanes" means "(god) manifest."
- f (4:16) Jason is the Greek name taken by Jeshua (Joshua), brother of Onias III; "Jason" in Greek suggests "healer." See 2 Macc 4:7–10.
- g (4:17) Greek "3,660 talents"; a talent was 75 lb (34 kg), so the sum is about 137 tons (124,000 kg). Compare 2 Macc 4:8–9.
- h (4:20) Greek akra, "height" or "citadel"; compare 2 Macc 4:12, where the gymnasium is built "under the citadel."
- i (4:25) Compare 2 Macc 6:10.
- j (4:26) Greek Ioudaismos; compare 2 Macc 2:21.

Chapter 5

1 The tyrant Antiochus, then, seated in state with his counselors on a certain high place, with his armed troops standing around him, 2 ordered the guards to drag forward each and every one of the Hebrews and to compel them to taste pork and food sacrificed to idols. 3 And should any refuse to eat what defiles, these were to be racked upon wheels and put to death. 4 When many had been seized, one, the first from the flock, a Hebrew named Eleazar,[a] a priest by descent, by learning an expert in the law, far along in years, and well known for his age to many around the tyrant, was led forward near

him. [5] And when Antiochus saw him he said, [6] "Before I begin the tortures against you, old man, I would advise you to taste the pork and save yourself; for I respect your age and your gray hairs, though having had them so long you do not seem to me to be a philosopher, since you observe the religion of the Jews. [7] For why, when nature has granted it, do you loathe eating the very fine meat of this animal? [8] It is senseless not to enjoy pleasant things that carry no disgrace, and wrong to spurn the gifts of nature. [9] And it seems to me that you will act more senselessly still if, holding vain opinions about the truth, [10] you also despise me, to your own punishment. Will you not awaken from your foolish philosophy, [11] and scatter the nonsense of your reasoning, and, taking up a mind worthy of your age, pursue the philosophy of what is truly advantageous, [12] and, bowing before my humane exhortation, have pity on your own old age? [13] Consider this: even if some power does watch over this religion of yours, it would pardon you for any offense committed under compulsion."

[14] When the tyrant was urging him in this way to the unlawful eating of meat, Eleazar asked leave to speak. [15] And receiving permission to speak, he began to address the assembly as follows: [16] "We, Antiochus, who have been persuaded to live by the divine law, consider that no compulsion is more powerful than our obedience to the law. [17] Therefore we do not consider it right to transgress the law in any way. [18] And yet, even if our law were not truly divine, as you suppose, but we only thought it divine, even so it would not be permitted us to make void our reputation for piety. [19] So do not regard it as a small sin if we should eat defiling food; [20] for to transgress the law in small things and in great is of equal weight, [21] since in either case the law is equally despised. [22] You scoff at our philosophy, as though we did not live by it with sound reason. [23] For it instructs us in self-mastery, that we may rule over every pleasure and every desire; and it drills us in courage, that we may bear every hardship of our own free will; [24] and it instructs us in justice, so that in all our conduct we act with equity; and it teaches piety, so that we worship with due reverence the only God who exists. [25] For this reason we refuse defiling food; because we trust that God established the law, we understand that the Creator of the cosmos, in giving the law, treats us kindly in keeping with our nature. [26] What will be suited to our souls he has permitted us to eat; what will be contrary to them he has forbidden us to eat as meat. [27] It is tyrannical of you not only to compel us to transgress the law, but also to eat, so that you may deride us for this defiling food that is most hateful to us. [28] But you shall not have this laugh at my expense, [29] nor will I neglect the sacred oaths of my ancestors to keep the law, [30] no, not though you cut my eyes out and waste my inward parts away. [31] I am not so old and unmanly that my reason is not made young again by piety. [32] Against this, make ready your wheels and fan the fire more fiercely. [33] I will not so pity my own old age that I myself should break down the ancestral law. [34] I will not play you false, O law my teacher, nor will I desert you, beloved self-mastery. [35] I will not put you to shame, philosophic reason, nor will I deny you, honored priesthood and knowledge of the lawgiving. [36] You will not defile the reverend mouth of my old age, nor my lifetime lived lawfully. [37] Pure will my fathers receive me, unafraid of your compulsions even to death. [38] Over the impious you may play the tyrant; but over my reasonings on piety you will be master neither by words nor by deeds."

Notes

- a (5:4) "Eleazar" means "God has helped." Compare 2 Macc 6:18–31, where he is called a scribe.

Chapter 6

[1] When he had answered the tyrant's exhortations in this way, the guards standing by dragged Eleazar roughly to the instruments of torture. [2] And first they stripped the old man, who was adorned with the dignity of his piety. [3] Then, tying his arms behind him on each side, they flogged him with whips, [4] while a herald on the other side shouted, "Obey the king's commands!" [5] But the great-souled Eleazar, truly noble, as though being tortured in a dream, was in no way turned aside. [6] Instead, with his eyes lifted high to heaven, the old man had his flesh torn by the whips, and he streamed with blood, and his sides were wounded through. [7] And dropping to the earth, since his body could no longer bear the agonies, he still held his reason erect and unbowed. [8] Then one of the cruel guards leaped upon him and kicked him in the flank to make him get up when he fell. [9] But he endured the pains, scorned the compulsion, and held out under the abuses; [10] and like a noble athlete taking blows, the old man was victorious over his torturers. [11] Indeed, with his face sweating and gasping heavily, he was admired even by the torturers themselves for his good fortune.[a] [12] So, partly out of pity for his old age, [13] partly from sympathy, because they knew him, and partly from admiration at his endurance, some of the king's men approached him and said, [14] "Why do you destroy yourself so unreasonably by these evils, Eleazar? [15] We will set before you some of the cooked dishes; you pretend to taste the pork, and save yourself."

[16] And Eleazar, as though tortured more bitterly by the advice, cried out, [17] "May we, the children of Abraham,[b] never think so basely that through weakness of soul we would act out a play unbecoming to us! [18] For it would be irrational, if after living our life in accordance with truth up to old age, and lawfully guarding our reputation for it, we should now change course, [19] and should ourselves become a pattern of impiety to the young, so as to become an example of eating defiling food. [20] It would be shameful if we should live on for a little while, and during that time be ridiculed by all for cowardice, [21] and be despised by the tyrant as unmanly, and not defend our divine law to the death. [22] Therefore, children of Abraham, die nobly for piety's sake! [23] And you, guards of the tyrant, why do you delay?"

[24] Seeing him so high-minded in the face of the compulsions, and not changed even by their own pity, they led him to the fire. [25] There they burned him with cruelly contrived instruments, threw him down, and poured foul-smelling liquids into his nostrils. [26] And when he was already burned to the bones and about to faint, he lifted up his eyes to God and said, [27] "You know, God, that I could be saved, yet I am dying in fiery torment for the sake of the law. [28] Be gracious to your nation, being content with the penalty we pay on their behalf. [29] Let my blood be a cleansing for them, and receive my soul as a ransom-life for theirs."[c] [30] And having said this, the holy man died nobly in his tortures, and even in the tortures of death he resisted by reason for the sake of the law.

31 Admittedly, then, devout reason is master of the passions. 32 For if the passions had prevailed over reason, I would have rendered to them the testimony of their mastery. 33 But now, since reason has conquered the passions, we fittingly assign to it the authority of leadership. 34 And it is right for us to acknowledge that the power belongs to reason, since it masters even external pains,[d] 35 for it would be ridiculous to deny it. And I prove that reason has not only mastered pains, but also masters pleasures and does not yield to them.

Notes

- a (6:11) Greek eutychia, "good fortune" or "success"; the sense here is obscure.
- b (6:17) "Abraham" is explained as "father of a multitude" (Gen 17:5).
- c (6:29) Greek antipsychon, "a ransom" or "a substitute life"; compare 17:21–22.
- d (6:34) Swete numbers v. 35 separately with a mark; the division of vv. 34–35 follows the standard English verses.

Chapter 7

1 For like a most excellent helmsman, the reason of our father Eleazar steered the ship of piety on the sea of the passions, 2 and though buffeted by the tyrant's threats and swamped by the towering waves of the tortures, 3 in no way did it turn aside the rudders of piety until it sailed into the harbor of victory over death. 4 No city besieged with many and varied engines ever held out as did that all-holy man. Though his sacred soul was set ablaze with tortures and racks, he moved his besiegers to defeat[a] through the reason that shields piety. 5 For father Eleazar, stretching out his mind like a sheer cliff, broke the raging waves of the passions.

6 O priest worthy of the priesthood, you did not defile your sacred teeth, nor did you let your stomach, which had room only for godliness and purity, share in defiling food. 7 O you who are in accord with the law, lover of wisdom in a godly life! 8 Such ought to be those who practice the law with their own blood,[b] and who defend it with noble sweat through sufferings even to death. 9 You, father, by your endurance confirmed our loyalty to the law so that it was glorified; you did not set aside the holiness you had spoken of with reverence; and by your deeds you made the words of philosophy trustworthy. [10] O aged man more powerful than tortures, elder more vigorous than fire, greatest king over the passions, Eleazar!

[11] For as father Aaron,[c] fully equipped with the censer, hastened through the multitude of the nation and overcame the angel who brought burning,[d] [12] so Eleazar, the descendant of Aaron, though melted down by the fire, was not turned aside in his reason. [13] And yet, most wonderful of all, though he was an old man, with the strength of his body already spent, his flesh slackened all around, and his sinews worn out, he became young again [14] in spirit through reason, and with an Isaac-like[e] reasoning he made the many-headed rack of no effect. [15] O blessed old age, reverend gray head, and lawful life, which the faithful seal of death brought to perfection!

[16] If, then, an old man despised tortures even to death for piety's sake, admittedly devout reason is the leader of the passions. [17] But perhaps some might say, "Not all prevail over the passions, because not all have prudent reason."[f] [18] But those who give thought to piety with their whole heart, they alone are able to master the passions of the flesh, [19] since they believe that to God they do not die, as our patriarchs Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob did not, but they live to God. [20] There is no contradiction, then, in the fact that some appear to be ruled by passions because of weak reason. [21] For who, living as a philosopher devoutly by the whole rule of philosophy, and having trusted in God, [22] and knowing that it is blessed to endure every pain for the sake of virtue, would not prevail over the passions through piety? [23] For only the wise and self-controlled man is courageous and lord of the passions.[g]

Notes

- a (7:4) Greek "he moved the besiegers"; the sense of the verb here is uncertain.
- b (7:8) Or "who make the law their craft with their own blood"; the Greek is unusual.
- c (7:11) The meaning of "Aaron" is uncertain.
- d (7:11) See Num 16:46–48 (Hebrew 17:11–13). Wisdom 18:21–25 also describes Aaron's victory over "the destroyer."
- e (7:14) "Isaac" means "he laughs" (Gen 21:6). The allusion is to Isaac's willingness to be sacrificed (Gen 22).

- f (7:17) Swete prints vv. 16–17 as one verse.
- g (7:23) Or "For only the wise and self-controlled man is courageous and master of the passions." Swete numbers the next sentence as 7:24; here it is 8:1, following the standard English verses.

Chapter 8

1 For this reason, at any rate, even mere youths, living as philosophers by the reason of piety, prevailed over still harsher instruments of torture.[a]

2 For when the tyrant had been conspicuously defeated in his first attempt, being unable to compel an old man to eat defiling food, then, in a violent passion, he ordered others from among the young men of the Hebrews to be brought; and if they would eat defiling food, they were to be released once they had eaten, but if they refused, they were to be tortured more cruelly.[b] 3 When the tyrant had given these orders, seven brothers were brought in together with their aged mother, handsome, modest, noble, and accomplished in every way. 4 When the tyrant saw them encircling their mother in the middle as though in a choral dance, he was pleased with them; and struck by their comeliness and their noble bearing, he smiled at them, called them near, and said, 5 "Young men, I admire with goodwill the beauty of each one of you; and since I hold in very high honor so large a number of brothers, I not only advise you not to be seized by the same madness as the old man who was tortured before you, 6 but I also urge you to yield to me and enjoy my friendship. For as I have power to chastise any who disregard my commands, so I have power to do good to any who heed me. 7 Believe me, then, and you will be given posts of authority in my service, if you will abandon the traditional rule of your way of life; 8 and sharing in the Greek way of life and changing your manner of living, take delight in your youth. 9 For if you provoke me by disobeying, you will force me to destroy every one of you with dreadful punishments and tortures. 10 So take pity on yourselves, for even I, your enemy, feel compassion for your youth and good looks. 11 Will you not consider this, that nothing awaits you if you disobey except to die on the rack?"

12 As he said these things, he ordered the instruments of torture to be set out in front of them, so that through fear too he might persuade them to eat defiling food. 13 When the guards had set out wheels and joint-dislocators, racks and hooks[c] and catapults[d] and cauldrons, frying pans and thumbscrews, iron claws and wedges, and coals for the fire, the tyrant resumed and said, 14 "Boys, be afraid; and the justice you revere will be merciful to you for transgressions done under compulsion."
15 But they, hearing these enticements and seeing the dreadful devices, not only were not afraid but even answered the tyrant with philosophy, and by their sound reasoning destroyed his tyranny. 16 And yet let us reckon: if there had been some among them who were faint-hearted and unmanly, what words would they have used? Would they not have been these? 17 "O wretched us, and utterly senseless!
When the king is summoning us and calling us to benefits, should we not obey him? 18 Why do we cheer ourselves with empty wishes and venture on a disobedience that brings death? 19 Shall we not fear, brothers, the instruments of torture, and weigh the threats of the tortures, and flee this vainglory and ruinous boastfulness? 20 Let us have pity on our own youth, and have compassion on our mother's old age; 21 and let us consider that if we disobey we shall die. 22 Even divine justice will pardon us if we fear the king under compulsion. 23 Why do we take ourselves out of this most pleasant life and rob ourselves of this sweet world? 24 Let us not struggle against compulsion, nor be vainglorious over our own racking. 25 Not even the law itself would of its own will slay us for being frightened at the racks. 26 Why has such contentiousness become fixed in us, and why does a death-bringing endurance please us, when we might live in tranquility by obeying the king?" 27 But the young men, though about to be tortured, said none of these things, nor did they even consider them. 28 For they were contemptuous of the passions and absolute rulers over pains. 29 Accordingly, the moment the tyrant stopped urging them to eat what defiles, all of them at once with a single voice, as if from one soul, declared:

Notes

- a (8:1) Swete numbers this verse 7:24.
- b (8:2) Swete divides this verse into two (8:1–2).
- c (8:13) Greek trochantēres; the exact nature of this device is uncertain.
- d (8:13) Greek katapeltai, probably some machine for stretching or crushing; the meaning is uncertain.

Chapter 9

1 "Tyrant, what are you waiting for? We stand prepared to perish sooner than break the commands handed down by our fathers. 2 For we would rightly be ashamed before our forebears if we did not make use of obedience to the law and of knowledge as our counselor. 3 Tyrant, counselor of lawlessness, do not, while hating us, pity us more than they do.[a] 4 For we consider your mercy, which offers us safety at the price of breaking the law, to be harder than death itself. 5 You try to frighten us by threatening us with death through tortures, as though you had not learned from Eleazar a short while ago. 6 And if the old men of the Hebrews died for piety's sake after enduring tortures too, we the young would more fittingly die, scorning the tortures of your compulsions, which our aged teacher also conquered. 7 Make the attempt, then, tyrant; and if you put us to death for piety's sake, do not suppose that you harm us by torturing us. 8 For we, through this ill-treatment and endurance, shall win the prizes of virtue;[b] 9 but you, for the abominable murder of us, will undergo at the hands of divine justice the eternal torment by fire that you deserve." 10 When they had said these things, the tyrant was not only angry with them as with the disobedient, but enraged as with the ungrateful. 11 So, at his command, the scourgers brought forward the eldest of them, and tearing off his tunic, they bound his hands and arms on each side with thongs. 12 When they had worn themselves out beating him with the whips, accomplishing nothing, they threw him up onto the wheel. 13 Stretched out on it, the noble youth had his limbs dislocated. 14 And as he was broken in every limb, he denounced the tyrant, saying, 15 "Most abominable tyrant, enemy of heavenly justice, savage-minded, you are mistreating me in this way not because I have murdered anyone or acted impiously, but because I defend the divine law." 16 And when the guards urged, "Consent to eat, and be set free from the torments," [17] he said, "Your method is not so strong, you abominable servants, as to take my reason captive. Cut off my limbs, burn my flesh, and twist my joints; [18] through all the tortures I will convince you that the children of the Hebrews alone are unconquerable for the sake of virtue." [19] As he spoke thus, they heaped fire beneath him, and fanning it into flame,[c] drew the wheel still tauter. [20] The wheel was stained with blood on every side, and the heap of coals was quenched by the dripping fluids of his body, and pieces of flesh were whirling around the axles of the machine. [21] And though the framework of his bones was already melting away, the great-souled youth, a true son of Abraham, did not groan. [22] But, as though he were being transformed by fire into incorruption, he endured the racking nobly. [23] "Imitate me, brothers," he said. "Do not desert your post in my contest,[d] and do not forswear our brotherhood in courage. Fight a sacred and noble campaign for piety, [24] through which our fathers' righteous providence may show mercy to the nation and punish the accursed tyrant." [25] Having spoken so, the youth who was fit for holiness let his soul break away.[e]

[26] While all were marveling at his steadfastness of soul, the guards brought forward the one second in age to the first, and fitting on iron hands with sharp claws, they bound him to the instruments and the catapult. [27] And when, inquiring whether he would be willing to eat before being tortured, they heard his noble resolve, [28] those leopard-like beasts tore at him from the sinews with the iron hands and ripped off all the flesh as far as the chin, and the skin of his head. But he, steadfastly bearing this agony, said, [29] "How sweet is every form of death for the sake of our ancestral piety!" And he said to the tyrant, [30] "Most savage of all tyrants, does it not seem to you that you suffer worse torment than I, beholding the haughty calculation of your tyranny overcome by our endurance on behalf of piety? [31] For I lighten my pain by the pleasures that come through virtue, [32] but you are tortured by the threats that come with impiety. And you will not escape, most abominable tyrant, the judgments of divine wrath."

Notes

- a (9:3) Greek “do not, hating us, pity us beyond them”; the sense is obscure. “They” may be the forebears of v. 2.
- b (9:8) Or “shall carry off the prizes of virtue,” an athletic image.
- c (9:19) Or “goading”; the Greek is uncertain.
- d (9:23) Greek “do not desert my lifetime” or “my eternity”; the sense is uncertain.
- e (9:25) Literally “broke off his soul.”

Chapter 10

1 When he too had endured his celebrated death, the third was led forward, being earnestly urged by many to taste the food and save himself. 2 But he shouted out, “Are you ignorant that one and the same father sired both me and the dead, that one mother gave us birth, and that I was reared in the same doctrines? 3 I do not forswear the noble kinship of my brotherhood. 4 Therefore, if you have any instrument of punishment, apply it to my body; for my soul you cannot touch, not even if you wish to.” 5 But they, taking the man’s boldness of speech bitterly, dislocated his hands and feet with joint-dislocating instruments, and prying his limbs out of their sockets with levers, they dismembered him; 6 and they wrenched his fingers, his arms, his legs, and his elbows. 7 And when they were in no way able to strangle his spirit,[a] they tore off his skin, together with the very tips of his fingers, scalping him in the Scythian fashion,[b] and at once led him to the wheel. 8 Upon it, with his backbone wrenched apart joint from joint, he beheld his flesh shredded all about, and drops of blood streaming down out of his bowels. 9 And as he was about to die, he said, 10 “We, most abominable tyrant, are suffering these things for the sake of our godly training and virtue;[c] 11 whereas you, on account of your ungodliness and your thirst for blood, shall bear torments that never come to an end.”

12 And once this one too had died as befitted a brother, they hauled up the fourth, telling him, 13 “Do not you also be seized by the same madness as your brothers, but obey the king and save yourself.” 14 But he answered them, “The fire you hold against me is not so scorching that I should play the coward. 15 I swear by my brothers’ blessed death, by the tyrant’s everlasting ruin, and by the famous life of the godly: I will not disown our noble brotherhood. 16 Devise tortures, tyrant, so that through them also you may learn that I am a brother of those who were tortured before me." [17] Hearing this, Antiochus, that devourer of blood, that killer, that most loathsome of men, commanded that his tongue be cut out. [18] But he said, "Even if you take away the organ of speech, God hears also those who are silent. [19] See, my tongue is stretched out; cut it, for you will not by this cut out the tongue of our reason. [20] Gladly, for God's sake, we let the limbs of our body be mutilated. [21] But God will swiftly pursue you, for you are cutting out a tongue that sang melodies of divine hymns."

Notes

- a (10:7) Greek "to strangle him"; the object is probably his resolve, but the sense is uncertain.
- b (10:7) Greek apeskythizon, "they scalped," a practice associated with the Scythians.
- c (10:10) Or "for the sake of the training and virtue of God."

Chapter 11

[1] When this one also, savagely abused by the tortures, had died in them, the fifth leaped forward, saying, [2] "Tyrant, I have no intention of begging off from torture on virtue's behalf. [3] I have come forward of my own accord, so that by killing me too you may owe to heavenly justice a penalty for a still greater number of wrongs. [4] You hater of virtue and hater of humankind, for what deed of ours are you ravaging us like this? [5] Does it seem evil to you that we revere the Creator of all things and live according to his virtuous law? [6] But these things deserve honors, not tortures, [7] if only you had perception of human longing and had hope of salvation from God.[a] [8] But as it is, being estranged from God, you make war on those who are devout toward God."

[9] As he spoke such words, the guards bound him and hauled him to the catapult. [10] Tying him to it at the knees and fastening them with iron fetters, they bent his loins back over the wheel's wedge; and around it he was entirely curled back like a scorpion upon the wheel, and torn limb from limb. [11] In this manner, cramped in his breathing and choked in his body, [12] he said, "Fine favors, tyrant, fine favors you grant us against your will, giving us the chance, through still nobler sufferings, to display our endurance for the law."

13 When this one too had died, the sixth, a mere boy, was brought. When the tyrant inquired whether he would like to eat and be set free, he said, 14 "In years I am younger than my brothers, but in understanding I am their equal in age. 15 For since we were born and raised for the same ends, we are bound to die for the same causes likewise. 16 So if you have decided to torture those who refuse defiling food, then torture!" 17 Once he had spoken so, they brought him over to the wheel. 18 Stretched out on it carefully, limb by limb, and with his spine pulled apart, he was roasted from beneath. 19 And heating sharp spits red-hot, they applied them to his back; and piercing his sides, they burned his entrails through. 20 And while being tortured he said, "O contest fit for holy men, to which so many of us brothers have been summoned for piety's sake to a training ground of pains, and we have not been conquered! 21 For devout knowledge, tyrant, cannot be conquered. 22 Armed with nobility, I too shall die with my brothers, 23 and I myself shall bring down a mighty avenging spirit on you, you deviser of novel torments, foe of all who are genuinely godly. 24 We six boys have brought your tyranny to nothing. 25 For is not your failure to change our reasoning, or to force us to eat defiling food, your overthrow? 26 Your fire is cold to us, your catapults cause us no pain, and your violence is powerless. 27 For it is not a tyrant's but the divine law's guards that stand over us;[b] therefore our reason is unconquered."

Notes

- a (11:7) The Greek of v. 7 is obscure, and the rendering is uncertain.
- b (11:27) Or "the guards who stand before us are not the tyrant's but those of the divine law"; the sense is uncertain.

Chapter 12

1 When this one too had died a blessed death, thrown into a cauldron, the seventh came forward, the youngest of all.[a] 2 The tyrant felt pity for him, although he had been terribly reviled by his brothers; 3 and seeing him already wrapped in chains, he had him brought nearer and tried to win him over, saying, [4] "You see the end of your brothers' folly; for because of disobedience they have been racked to death. As for you, if you are not persuaded, you will be tortured miserably and will die before your time. [5] But if you are persuaded, you will be my Friend and will be a leader in the affairs of the kingdom." [6] And while urging these things, he sent for the boy's mother, so that, pitying her bereaved of so many sons, she might spur the survivor to become obedient and be saved. [7] But his mother urged him on in the Hebrew tongue,[b] as we will relate shortly afterward; and [8] he said, "Unbind me; let me speak to the king and to all his Friends with him." [9] And overjoyed at the boy's announcement, they quickly loosed him. [10] And running to the nearest of the frying pans, [11] he said, "Unholy tyrant, most ungodly of all the wicked, were you not ashamed, after receiving good things and the kingdom from God, to kill his servants and to rack those who practice piety? [12] For this, divine justice is storing you up for a more relentless and eternal fire and tortures, which throughout all eternity will not let you go. [13] Were you not ashamed, you most brutish creature, being a man yourself, to cut out the tongues of those who share your feelings and are made of the same elements, and to abuse and torture them in this way? [14] But they, dying nobly, fulfilled their piety toward God, whereas you will lament wretchedly for having killed without cause the contenders for virtue."[c] [15] Then, being himself about to die, he said, [16] "I do not desert the testimony[d] of my brothers. [17] I call upon the God of our fathers to become merciful to my race; [18] but on you he will bring retribution in the life you now live and after your death as well." [19] And having uttered this prayer, he flung himself down into the frying pans, and so gave up his life.[e]

Notes

- a (12:1) Swete prints "thrown into a cauldron" with a misplaced verse mark. The account of the seventh brother differs from 2 Macc 7:24–40.
- b (12:7) Greek "the Hebrew voice," probably meaning Aramaic or Hebrew; compare 16:15.
- c (12:14) Swete divides v. 14 into two verses (12:14–15), so that the verses after it are numbered one higher than here.
- d (12:16) Greek martyria, "witness" or "testimony."

• e (12:19) Literally “and so he gave it back.” Swete numbers this verse 12:20.

Chapter 13

1 If, then, the seven brothers despised sufferings even to death, it is agreed on every side that devout reason is sole master of the passions.
2 For if they had been slaves to the passions and had eaten defiling food, we would say that these had defeated them. 3 But in fact it was not so; rather, by the reason that is praised before God they prevailed over the passions. 4 And the supremacy of the mind cannot be overlooked, for they mastered both passion and pains. 5 How then can one fail to acknowledge the mastery of right reasoning over passion in these men, who did not turn back before the agonies of fire?[a] 6 For just as towers jutting out at harbors break the threatening waves and provide a calm anchorage for those sailing in, 7 so the seven-towered right reasoning of the young men, fortifying the harbor of piety, conquered the intemperance of the passions. 8 For having formed a sacred chorus of piety, they encouraged one another, saying, 9 “Brothers, let us die like brothers for the law; let us imitate the three young men in Syria[b] who despised the furnace that was a match for them.[c] 10 Let us not play the coward in the demonstration of piety.” 11 And one said, “Courage, brother!” and another, “Bear up nobly!” 12 And another said, “Remember where you came from, and by the hand of what father Isaac endured to be slain as a sacrifice for piety’s sake.” 13 Every one of them, and the whole band at once, gazing upon each other with bright faces and great boldness, declared, “With all our heart let us devote ourselves to the God who bestowed our souls, and let us lend our bodies to the guarding of the law. 14 Let us not fear him who thinks he kills; 15 for great is the struggle of the soul and the danger lying in eternal torment for those who transgress the commandment of God.
16 Let us arm ourselves, then, with the mastery over the passions that divine reason gives. 17 If we suffer like this, Abraham and Isaac and Jacob will receive us, and all the fathers will praise us.” 18 And to each one of their brothers as he was dragged away, those who remained said, “Do not put us to shame, brother, nor prove false to those who have died before us.”

19 You are not unaware of the bonds of affection of brotherhood, which the divine and all-wise providence has apportioned through the fathers to those begotten by them, and implanted through the mother's womb. 20 In it the brothers dwell for the same length of time, are formed over the same period, are nourished from the same blood, and are brought to completion through the same life; 21 they are delivered after equal periods of time, and drink milk from the same springs, from which their brother-loving souls are nourished together in their mother's embrace; 22 and they grow stronger still through being reared together, through daily companionship, through the rest of their education, and through our training in the law of God. 23 When the sympathy of brotherly love is so firmly established, the seven brothers held their harmony with one another with still deeper sympathy. 24 For being educated in the same law, practicing the same virtues, and brought up together in the just life, they loved one another all the more.[d] 25 For their common zeal for nobility strengthened their goodwill and harmony toward one another; 26 for together with piety it made their brotherly love more ardent. 27 But nevertheless, although nature, companionship, and virtuous habits were increasing the bonds of brotherhood for them, those who were left endured for piety's sake, seeing their brothers being abused and tortured to death.

Notes

- a (13:5) The Greek sentence is grammatically incomplete; the rendering gives the probable sense.
- b (13:9) That is, the three companions of Daniel (Dan 3), who were in Babylon; "Syria" is used loosely here for the eastern empire.
- c (13:9) Or "the furnace equal in strength to them"; the sense of the Greek is uncertain.
- d (13:24) Greek "they drew more to themselves"; the sense is uncertain.

Chapter 14

1 Beyond this, they even spurred each other on to the abuse, so as not merely to look down on their agonies but to rule over the passions that brotherly affection stirs. 2 O reasonings more kingly than a king and freer than the free! 3 O holy and well-tuned symphony of seven brothers on behalf of piety! 4 None of the seven youths turned coward or shrank back before death, [5] but all of them, as though running the road to immortality, hastened on to death through tortures. [6] For just as hands and feet move in concert with the soul's guidance, so those holy youths, as though moved by the immortal soul of piety, were of one accord in going to death for its sake. [7] O all-holy sevenfold company of harmonious brothers! For just as the seven days of the world's creation are arranged around piety,[a] [8] so the youths, dancing in chorus around the number seven, encircled it, bringing to nothing the fear of tortures. [9] We now shudder as we hear of the affliction of those young men; but they, not only seeing it, and not only hearing the immediate word of threat, but actually suffering it, endured, and that in agonies by fire. [10] And what could be more painful than this? For the power of fire, being sharp and swift, quickly dissolved their bodies.

[11] And do not consider it a wonder that reason prevailed over those men in their tortures, since even a woman's mind despised still more varied agonies. [12] For she who mothered the seven youths sustained the racking inflicted on every one of her children. [13] Consider how complex is the affection of love for children, drawing everything toward the sympathy felt in the inward parts.[b] [14] Even irrational animals have a sympathy and affection for their offspring like that of human beings. [15] For among birds, the tame ones that nest on the roofs of houses defend their nestlings, [16] and those that make their nests and hatch their young on mountain peaks, in clefts of ravines, and in holes and tops of trees also ward off anyone who approaches; [17] and if they cannot keep him away, they fly in circles around their young, anguished with love, calling out in their own voice, and help their children in whatever way they can. [18] Yet what need is there to show from beasts without reason how tenderly creatures feel for their young, [19] when even bees, at the season of making honeycomb, ward off those who approach, and strike those who come near their hive with their sting as with a sword,[c] and defend it even to death? [20] But sympathy for her children did not move the mother of the young men, whose soul was like that of Abraham.[d]

Notes

- a (14:7) Or "move in a circle about piety"; the image of vv. 7–8 is obscure, apparently relating the seven brothers to the seven days of creation and the Sabbath.
- b (14:13) Greek splanchna, the inner organs regarded as the seat of feeling; here, the womb.
- c (14:19) Greek "as with iron."
- d (14:20) Compare Abraham's willingness to sacrifice Isaac (Gen 22), recalled in 16:20.

Chapter 15

1 O reasoning of sons, ruler absolute of passions! O godliness, dearer to a mother than her own offspring![a] 2 Two things lay before the mother: piety, and the temporary safety of her seven sons according to the tyrant's promise. 3 She loved piety more, which saves to eternal life in accordance with God. 4 O how can I describe in words the child-loving passions of parents, which stamp a wonderful likeness of soul and of form onto the small character of the child, especially since mothers are more sympathetic toward their offspring than fathers? 5 For the weaker in soul mothers are, and the more children they bear, the more they love their children. 6 Of all mothers, the mother of the seven loved her children most, she who through seven pregnancies had love for them planted in her, 7 and who, through her many birth pangs for each of them, was compelled to feel sympathy for them; 8 yet because of the fear of God she disregarded the temporary safety of her children. 9 More than this, the noble goodness of her sons and their readiness to obey the law made her tenderness for them all the greater. 10 For they were just, self-controlled, courageous, greatsouled, loving toward their brothers, and so loving toward their mother that they obeyed her even to death in keeping the ordinances.
11 Nevertheless, though so many considerations connected with love of children were drawing the mother toward sympathy, in the case of none of them were the varied tortures able to turn her reason aside. 12 Rather, the mother urged them, each child singly and all of them together, on to death for the sake of piety. 13 O sacred nature and affection of parents, love toward offspring, nurture, and unconquerable passions of mothers! 14 Seeing them racked and burned one by one, the mother did not change her mind, because of piety. 15 She saw her children's flesh melting in the fire, and the toes and fingers of their feet and hands quivering on the ground, and the flesh of their heads down to the chin laid out like masks. [16] O mother, tried now by bitterer pains than the birth pangs you suffered for them! [17] O woman, alone among women, who brought piety to birth whole and entire! [18] Your firstborn breathing his last did not turn you aside, nor the second looking piteously at you in his torments, nor the third expiring; [19] nor did you weep when you beheld the eyes of each one staring like a bull's[b] at the same abuse in the torments, and their nostrils signaling their death. [20] When you saw the flesh of children severed upon the flesh of children, hands cut off upon hands, heads flayed upon heads, and corpses falling upon corpses, and saw the place crowded with your children's bodies because of the tortures, you did not shed tears. [21] Not so do the melodies of the Sirens or the songs of swans[c] draw those who hear them to listen, as the voices of children calling to their mother in the midst of tortures. [22] How great and how many were the torments with which the mother was then tormented, while her sons were being tortured with wheels and with branding irons! [23] Yet reason grounded in piety, steeling her inmost being with manly courage amid the very passions, braced her to look past her love for her children, which was only for a time. [24] Although she saw the destruction of seven children and the intricate variety of the rackings, the noble mother, embracing them, let them go,[d] because of her faith toward God. [25] For as though seeing in her own soul, as in a council chamber, formidable counselors, nature and family and love of children and the racking of her children, [26] the mother, holding two votes, one bringing death and one bringing safety for her children, [27] did not choose the safety that would preserve seven sons for a short time, [28] rather, being a daughter of Abraham who revered God, she called to mind his steadfastness.

[29] O mother of the nation, champion of the law, defender of piety, and winner of the prize in the contest of the heart![e] [30] O more noble than males in fortitude, and more courageous than men in endurance! [31] For just as Noah's ark, bearing the world in the world-engulfing flood, withstood the mighty waves,[f] [32] so you, guardian of the law, surrounded on every side by the flood of the passions and battered by the violent winds of your sons' tortures, nobly withstood the storms that came because of piety.

Notes

- a (15:1) Swete prints vv. 1–2 as one verse.
- b (15:19) Greek taurēdon, "with a bull-like glare."
- c (15:21) The Sirens of Greek legend lured sailors with their song; swans were said to sing beautifully before death.
- d (15:24) Greek "having embraced, she released"; the sense is uncertain.
- e (15:29) Greek splanchnon, "inward parts," the seat of feeling.
- f (15:31) Gen 6–8. "Noah" is associated with "rest" and "comfort" (Gen 5:29).

Chapter 16

1 If, then, a woman, an aged one at that, and the mother of seven children, endured seeing her children's tortures even to death, admittedly devout reason is absolute ruler over the passions. 2 I have demonstrated, then, that not only have men prevailed over the passions, but a woman too has despised the greatest tortures. 3 And the lions around Daniel[a] were not so fierce, nor was the furnace of Mishael,[b] blazing with most violent fire, so burning, as was her nature of love for children set aflame as she saw her seven sons being tortured. 4 But by the reason of piety the mother quenched passions so many and so great.

5 For consider this also: if the woman had been faint of soul, mother though she was, she would have lamented over them, and perhaps she would have spoken thus: 6 "Ah, wretched me, and thrice unhappy many times over! I have borne seven children and have become the mother of none. 7 O seven pregnancies all in vain, seven ten-month carryings to no profit,[c] nursings without fruit, and sufferings in suckling! 8 In vain, my sons, did I endure many birth pangs for you, and the more grievous anxieties of rearing you. 9 Alas for my children, some of you unmarried, and those who married without profit! I shall not see your children, nor shall I be called blessed as a grandmother. 10 Alas, I who had many and beautiful children am a widow, alone and full of lamenting! 11 Nor, when I die, will I have any of my sons to bury me."[d] But with no such lament did the holy and God-fearing mother mourn any of them, [12] nor did she try to turn any of them away from dying, nor did she grieve as though they were perishing. [13] But as though she had a mind of adamant, and were bringing the number of her sons to birth again into immortality, she rather urged them on with supplication to death for the sake of piety. [14] O mother, soldier of God for the sake of piety, aged and a woman! By your endurance you conquered even a tyrant, and in deeds and words you proved more powerful than a man. [15] For when you were arrested along with your children, you stood watching Eleazar being tortured, and you said to your children in the Hebrew language,[e] [16] "My children, a noble contest it is into which you have been summoned to testify on the nation's behalf; strive in it with zeal for the law of our fathers. [17] For it would be shameful if this old man endured agonies for the sake of piety, while you, who are young, were terrified at the tortures. [18] Call to mind that it was by God's doing that you received your portion of the world and had the enjoyment of life, [19] and therefore you ought to endure every pain for God's sake. [20] For his sake also our father Abraham hastened to slaughter his son Isaac, the father of our nation; and Isaac, seeing his father's hand bearing a sword descending upon him, did not cower.[f] [21] Daniel too, the just one, was cast among lions, and Hananiah, Azariah, and Mishael were flung as from a sling into a fiery furnace,[g] and for God's sake they held out. [22] You, then, who have the same faith toward God, must not be dismayed. [23] For it would be unreasonable for those who know piety not to stand firm against pains." [24] With these words the mother of seven, exhorting each one of her sons, persuaded them to die rather than transgress the commandment of God. [25] And they knew this also, that those who die for God's sake live to God, as do Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, and all the patriarchs.

Notes

- a (16:3) Dan 6. "Daniel" means "God is my judge."
- b (16:3) Dan 3. "Mishael" probably means "who is what God is?"
- c (16:7) Pregnancy was commonly reckoned in antiquity as ten (lunar) months.
- d (16:11) Greek "I will have none of my sons burying me"; where the lament ends is a matter of punctuation.
- e (16:15) Compare 12:7. The language meant is probably Hebrew or Aramaic.

- f (16:20) Gen 22. The Greek is ambiguous as to whether it is Abraham or Isaac who "did not cower."
- g (16:21) Dan 3; 6. "Hananiah" means "the LORD has been gracious" and "Azariah" "the LORD has helped."

Chapter 17

1 Some of the guards also said that when she too was about to be arrested and executed, she hurled herself into the fire so that no one could touch her body.

2 O mother, who together with your seven sons broke down the violence of the tyrant, made void his evil designs, and displayed the nobility of faith! 3 For like a roof nobly set upon the pillars of your children, you bore without swaying the earthquake of the tortures. 4 Take courage, therefore, O mother of holy soul, holding firm the hope of your endurance toward God. 5 Not so majestic does the moon stand in heaven with the stars as you stand, honored before God, having lit the way to piety for your seven star-like sons; and you are fixed firmly in heaven with them. 6 For your childbearing was from Abraham the father.[a]

7 If it were permitted to us to paint, as an artist might, the piety of your story, would not those who looked on it shudder to see the mother of seven children enduring for piety's sake various tortures even to death? 8 Indeed it would be fitting to inscribe on their very tomb these words also, as a memorial to those of our nation: 9 "In this place are laid to rest an old priest, a woman far on in years, and seven sons, through the brute force of a tyrant bent on overthrowing the Hebrews' way of citizenship. 10 They also vindicated their nation, looking to God and enduring tortures even to death." 11 For truly the contest in which they engaged was divine. 12 For on that day virtue presided over the games, testing them by endurance. The prize was incorruption in long-lasting life. 13 Eleazar led off the contest; the mother of the seven sons competed alongside; and the brothers fought on. 14 The tyrant contended against them; the world and all human life looked on. 15 Reverence for God was victor and crowned her own athletes. 16 Who did not marvel at the athletes of the true legislation? Who were not astonished?

17 The tyrant himself and his whole council marveled at their endurance, 18 because of which they now stand beside the divine throne and live the blessed age. 19 For Moses declares, "And all the holy ones are beneath your hands."[b] 20 So these, made holy on God's account, have been honored, and not with this honor alone, but also in this, that through them the foes gained no mastery over our nation, 21 and the tyrant was punished, and the homeland purified, 22 for they became as though a life paid in exchange for the nation's sin.[c] And through the blood of those devout ones and their atoning death,[d] divine providence preserved Israel, which had previously been afflicted.
23 For Antiochus the tyrant, beholding the manliness of their virtue and how they held out amid the torments, held up their endurance before his troops as a model, 24 and he had them noble and courageous for infantry battle and for siege, and he ravaged and conquered all his enemies.[e]

Notes

- a (17:6) Greek "from Abraham the child," probably meaning "from Abraham" with reference to the line descended from him; the phrase is obscure.
- b (17:19) Deut 33:3 (Greek).
- c (17:22) Greek antipsychon, "a life given in exchange."
- d (17:22) Greek hilastērion, "propitiatory" or "atoning"; the same word is used for the cover of the ark (the "mercy seat") in Exod 25:17.
- e (17:24) The Greek is abrupt; "them" apparently refers to his soldiers, who took the martyrs as their example.

Chapter 18

1 O Israelite children, offspring of the seed of Abraham,[a] obey this law and be devout in every way, 2 knowing that devout reason is master of the passions, and not only of pains from within but also of those from without.
3 Therefore those who gave over their bodies to pains for the sake of piety were not only admired by human beings but were also deemed worthy of a divine portion.

4 And because of them the nation obtained peace, and, renewing the observance of the law in the homeland, it took the enemies' strongholds by siege.
5 And the tyrant Antiochus has been punished on earth and is being chastised now that he is dead. For since he was in no way able to compel the people of Jerusalem to live like foreigners and to abandon the way of life of their ancestral nations,[b]
6 he then departed from Jerusalem and marched against the Persians.

¶The righteous mother of the seven sons also spoke these words to her children:

7 "I was a pure virgin, and I never left my father's house, but I kept watch over the rib that was built.[c]
8 No destroyer in the desert or seducer in the field corrupted me,[d] nor did the destroyer, the serpent of deceit, defile the purity of my virginity.[e] I remained with my husband through the time of my prime.
9 When these sons had grown to maturity, their father died. Happy was he! For having lived a life blessed with good children, he did not suffer the grief of the time of childlessness.
10 He, while yet among us, instructed you in the law and the prophets.
11 He read to us of Abel, slain by Cain,[f] of Isaac, offered as a burnt offering,[g] and of Joseph in prison.[h]
12 He spoke to us of Phinehas the zealot,[i] and to you he gave instruction concerning Hananiah, Azariah, and Mishael amid the fire.
13 He glorified Daniel in the den of lions and called him blessed.
14 He reminded you of the scripture of Isaiah[j] that says, 'Even if you pass through fire, the flame shall not burn you.'[k]
15 He sang to us David the hymn writer,[l] who says, 'Many are the afflictions of the righteous.'[m] 16 He recited to us the proverbs of Solomon,[n] who says, 'He is a tree of life to all who do his will.'[o]
17 He confirmed Ezekiel,[p] who says, 'Shall these dry bones live?'[q]
18 For he did not forget the song that Moses taught, which teaches, 'I will kill, and I will make alive.'[r] 19 This is your life and the length of your days."[s]

20 O bitter was that day, and yet not bitter, when the bitter tyrant of the Greeks lit a fire under his savage cauldrons,[t] and in his seething fury hauled the seven sons of Abraham's daughter to the catapult and then back again to his tortures, 21 pierced the pupils of their eyes, cut out their tongues, and put them to death with various tortures. 22
For these things divine justice pursued and will pursue the accursed wretch. 23 But the sons of Abraham, with their mother who won the prize, are gathered together into the place of their fathers, having received pure and immortal souls from God, 24 to whom be the glory forever and ever. Amen.

Notes

- a (18:1) "Abraham" is explained in Gen 17:5 as "father of a multitude."
- b (18:5) Greek "ancestral nations"; the sense is probably "ancestral customs."
- c (18:7) Gen 2:22, where the woman is "built" from the man's rib; that is, she guarded her own body.
- d (18:8) Compare Deut 22:25–27.
- e (18:8) Gen 3:1–13.
- f (18:11) Gen 4:8. "Abel" means "breath" or "vapor"; "Cain" is linked by sound with "I have acquired" (Gen 4:1).
- g (18:11) Gen 22.
- h (18:11) Gen 39:20–23.
- i (18:12) Num 25:7–13. "Phinehas" is probably of Egyptian origin, perhaps meaning "the Nubian"; uncertain.
- j (18:14) "Isaiah" means "the LORD is salvation."
- k (18:14) Isa 43:2.
- l (18:15) "David" is often explained as "beloved"; uncertain.
- m (18:15) Ps 34:19 (Ps 33:20 in the Greek).
- n (18:16) "Solomon" is related to the Hebrew word for "peace."
- o (18:16) Prov 3:18. The Greek "his will" is unclear; Proverbs speaks of wisdom.
- p (18:17) "Ezekiel" means "God strengthens."
- q (18:17) Ezek 37:3.
- r (18:18) Deut 32:39. "Moses" is explained in Exod 2:10 as "drawn out."
- s (18:19) Deut 30:20.
- t (18:20) The Greek here is obscure; literally "having kindled fire with cruel cauldrons."

1 Esdras

Apocrypha

Chapter 1

1 And Josiah[a] kept the Passover in Jerusalem to his Lord,[b] and they sacrificed the Passover on the fourteenth day of the first month (in March–April),[c] 2 having set the priests according to their daily courses, arrayed in their vestments, in the temple of the Lord. 3 And he told the Levites, the temple servants of Israel, to sanctify themselves to the Lord for the placing of the holy ark of the Lord in the house that King Solomon the son of David had built: 4 "You shall not carry it upon your shoulders any longer. Now therefore serve the Lord your God, and minister to his nation Israel, and prepare yourselves by your families and your tribes, according to the writing of David king of Israel and according to the magnificence of Solomon his son; 5 and standing in the holy place according to the divisions of the families of you Levites, who serve before your brothers the sons of Israel, 6 in order, sacrifice the Passover, and make ready the sacrifices for your brothers, and keep the Passover according to the commandment of the Lord which was given to Moses." 7 And Josiah gave to the people who were present thirty thousand lambs and kids, and three thousand calves; these were given out of the king's possessions, as he had promised, to the people and to the priests and Levites. 8 Hilkiah, Zechariah and Esyelus,[d] the overseers of the temple, gave the priests two thousand six hundred sheep and three hundred calves for the Passover. 9 And Jeconiah and Shemaiah and Nathanael his brother, and Hashabiah and Ochielus and Joram, captains over thousands, gave to the Levites for the Passover a thousand sheep[e] and seven hundred calves.
10 And when these things had been done, the priests and the Levites stood in fair order, having the unleavened bread, according to the tribes and according to the divisions of the fathers' houses, before the people, to make offering to the Lord as it is written in the book of Moses; and so they did in the morning. 11 And they roasted the Passover with fire as was fitting, and boiled the sacrifices in the brass pots and caldrons with a sweet savor, and carried them to all the people. 12 And after this they made ready for themselves and for the priests their brothers, the sons of Aaron; 13 for the priests were offering the fat until late at night; and the Levites made ready for themselves and for the priests their brothers, the sons of Aaron. 14 And the holy singers, the sons of Asaph, were in their order according to what had been ordained by David, and Asaph and Zechariah and Eddinus,[f] who were of the king's appointing; 15 and the gatekeepers were at every gate; none needed to depart from his own course, for their brothers the Levites made ready for them.

16 So the things belonging to the sacrifice of the Lord were accomplished on that day: the Passover was kept, and the sacrifices were offered upon the altar of the Lord, according to the command of King Josiah. 17 The Israelites who were there at that time observed the Passover and the festival of unleavened bread for seven days. 18 And there had not been kept such a Passover in Israel from the time of the prophet Samuel; 19 and none of the kings of Israel kept such a Passover as Josiah kept, with the priests and the Levites and the Jews and all Israel who were found dwelling in Jerusalem. 20 This Passover was held in the eighteenth year that Josiah reigned. 21 And the works of Josiah were upright before his Lord, with a heart full of godliness. 22 The events of his time have been recorded in former times, concerning those who sinned and acted ungodly toward the Lord beyond every nation and kingdom, and how they grieved him;[g] and the words of the Lord rose up against Israel.

23 And after all these acts of Josiah, it came to pass that Pharaoh king of Egypt came to make war at Carchemish[h] on the Euphrates, and Josiah went out against him. 24 And the king of Egypt sent to him, saying, "What have I to do with you, O king of Judea? 25 I have not been sent against you by the Lord God, for my war is upon the Euphrates. And now the Lord is with me; yes, the Lord is with me, urging me on. Withdraw, and do not oppose the Lord." 26 But Josiah did not turn his chariot back from him, but undertook to fight him, not heeding the words of Jeremiah[i] the prophet from the mouth of the Lord. 27 Necho met him in battle on the plain of Megiddo,[j] and his commanders marched down against King Josiah. 28 And the king said to his servants, "Carry me out of the fight, for I am grievously weak." And at once his servants bore him away out of the battle line. 29 And he got up into his second chariot, and when he had been brought back to Jerusalem he departed this life, and was buried in the tomb of his fathers. 30 All Judea mourned for Josiah. The prophet Jeremiah sang a lament for him, and the leading men, together with the women, have mourned him to this day; it was made a permanent custom throughout the nation of Israel. 31 These things are written in the book of the histories of the kings of Judea, and every one of the deeds that Josiah did, and his glory, and his understanding in the law of the Lord; and the things that he had done before, and the things now told, are recorded in the book of the kings of Israel and Judah.

32 And the men of the nation took Jeconiah[k] the son of Josiah and made him king in the place of Josiah his father, when he was twenty-three years old. 33 And he reigned in Israel[l] and Jerusalem three months. And the king of Egypt deposed him from reigning in Jerusalem, 34 and laid a fine upon the nation of about 7,500 pounds of silver and about 75 pounds of gold.[m] 35 And the king of Egypt made Jehoiakim[n] his brother king of Judea and Jerusalem. 36 And Jehoiakim bound the nobles; but Zarius[o] his brother he seized and brought up out of Egypt.
37 Jehoiakim was twenty-five years old when he began to reign over Judea and Jerusalem, and he did what was evil before the Lord. 38 And against him came up Nebuchadnezzar[p] king of Babylon, and bound him with a chain of bronze and carried him away to Babylon. 39 And Nebuchadnezzar took some of the holy vessels of the Lord and carried them away and set them up in his own temple in Babylon. 40 But the things that are reported about him, and about his uncleanness and impiety, are written in the book of the chronicles of the kings.
41 And Jehoiakim[q] his son reigned in his place; for when he was made king he was eight years old.[r] 42 And he reigned three months and ten days in Jerusalem, and did what was evil before the Lord. 43

And after a year Nebuchadnezzar sent and removed him to Babylon, together with the holy vessels of the Lord, 44 and made Zedekiah[s] king of Judea and Jerusalem, when Zedekiah was twenty-one years old; and he reigned eleven years. 45 And he wrought evil before the Lord, and gave no regard to the words spoken by the prophet Jeremiah out of the Lord's mouth. 46 And though he had been made to swear by the name of the Lord to King Nebuchadnezzar, he broke his oath and rebelled; and he hardened his neck and his heart and transgressed the ordinances of the Lord, the God of Israel. 47 And the leaders of the people and of the priests also did many ungodly and lawless deeds, more than all the uncleannesses of all the nations, and defiled the temple of the Lord which was sanctified in Jerusalem. 48 And the God of their fathers sent by his messenger to call them back, because he was sparing them and his dwelling place. 49 But they mocked his messengers, and on the day the Lord spoke, they were scoffing at his prophets, until he, being angry with his nation because of their ungodly deeds, commanded the kings of the Chaldeans[t] to come up against them. 50 These put their youths to the sword round about the holy temple, and spared neither youth nor maiden, neither aged man nor child,[u] but he gave them all over into their hands. 51 And they took all the holy vessels of the Lord, great and small, and the chests[v] of the Lord and the king's treasuries, and carried them away to Babylon. 52 And they set fire to the house of the Lord, and broke down the walls of Jerusalem, and burned its towers with fire, 53 and utterly made all its glorious things useless. And those who were left he carried away with the sword to Babylon; 54 and they were servants to him and to his sons until the Persians reigned, to fulfill the word of the Lord by the mouth of Jeremiah: 55 "Until the land has enjoyed its sabbaths, all the time of its desolation it shall keep sabbath, to fulfill seventy years."[w]

Notes

- a (1:1) Josiah means "Yahweh supports" or "Yahweh heals" (uncertain). He reigned over Judah about 640–609 BC. 1 Esdras 1:1–55 parallels 2 Chronicles 35:1–36:21 (compare 2 Kings 23:21–25:21).
- b (1:1) Greek Kyrios, "Lord," the word the Septuagint uses for the divine name YHWH; in 2 Chronicles 35:1 the Hebrew has "Yahweh." "Lord" in this book renders Kyrios throughout.

- c (1:1) Greek "on the fourteenth day of the first month," that is, Nisan, on the spring-start calendar (Exodus 12:6).
- d (1:8) Hebrew Jehiel in 2 Chronicles 35:8. Hilkiah means "Yahweh is my portion"; he is the high priest of 2 Kings 22.
- e (1:9) Swete's text reads "a thousand"; 2 Chronicles 35:9 and other Greek copies (followed by the King James Version) read "five thousand."
- f (1:14) In 2 Chronicles 35:15 the singers are Asaph, Heman, and Jeduthun; the Greek names here (Zechariah and Eddinus) may be corruptions of these. Asaph means "he gathers."
- g (1:22) Greek "and the things which grieved him"; the Greek of this verse, which has no parallel in Chronicles, is difficult.
- h (1:23) Carchemish, a fortress city on the upper Euphrates, where Pharaoh Neco fought in 609 and 605 BC (Jeremiah 46:2). The Greek has Karkamys. Pharaoh is Neco II (2 Chronicles 35:20).
- i (1:26) Jeremiah means "Yahweh exalts" or "Yahweh establishes" (uncertain). In 2 Chronicles 35:22 the words come "from the mouth of God" through Neco himself; 1 Esdras attributes them to Jeremiah.
- j (1:27) Greek Metaaddous, a corrupted form of Megiddo (2 Chronicles 35:22), the city guarding the pass into the plain of Jezreel.
- k (1:32) In 2 Chronicles 36:1 and 2 Kings 23:30 this son is Jehoahaz (also called Shallum, Jeremiah 22:11); the Greek here has Iechonias.
- l (1:33) Greek "in Israel," where 2 Chronicles 36:2 has "in Jerusalem" only.
- m (1:34) Greek "a hundred talents of silver and one talent of gold." A talent was about 75 pounds (34 kilograms), so about 3,400 kilograms of silver and 34 kilograms of gold; standards varied.
- n (1:35) Greek Iōakeim. Jehoiakim means "Yahweh raises up"; he reigned about 609–598 BC (2 Chronicles 36:4–8).
- o (1:36) Greek Zarion (some copies Zarakēs). In 2 Chronicles 36:4 it is Jehoahaz whom Neco takes to Egypt; the Greek here has garbled the account.
- p (1:38) Nebuchadnezzar (Greek Nabouchodonosor) means "O Nabu, protect the heir" (Akkadian Nabû-kudurri-uṣur). He reigned in Babylon 605–562 BC.
- q (1:41) Greek Iōakeim again, here for the son of Jehoiakim, Jehoiachin (also called Jeconiah), who reigned in 598–597 BC (2 Chronicles 36:9).
- r (1:41) So also 2 Chronicles 36:9 (Hebrew); 2 Kings 24:8 has "eighteen years old."
- s (1:44) Zedekiah means "Yahweh is righteousness"; he reigned 597–586 BC.
- t (1:49) The Chaldeans were the dominant people of the Neo-Babylonian kingdom.
- u (1:50) Greek neōteros, "younger one"; 2 Chronicles 36:17 has "the aged and the infirm," and the Greek copies vary.
- v (1:51) Greek kibōtous, "chests, arks," probably the treasure chests of the temple (2 Chronicles 36:18 has "the treasures of the house of Yahweh").

- w (1:55) Compare Leviticus 26:34–35 and Jeremiah 25:11–12; 29:10. Here 1 Esdras ends its parallel to Chronicles; 2:1–15 follows Ezra 1 (compare 2 Chronicles 36:22–23).

Chapter 2

1 In the first year that Cyrus[a] was king of the Persians, so that the word of the Lord spoken through Jeremiah would be fulfilled, 2 the Lord moved the heart of Cyrus, king of the Persians, and he sent out a proclamation, spoken and written, across his whole kingdom: 3 "This is what Cyrus, king of the Persians, says: The Lord Most High, the Lord of Israel, has appointed me king over the whole world, 4 and has charged me to build him a house at Jerusalem in Judea. 5 So if any of you belong to his people, may his Lord be with him, and let him go to Jerusalem in Judea and rebuild the house of the Lord of Israel, the Lord who lives in Jerusalem. 6 As many, then, as dwell in the various places, let those who are in his place help him with gold and with silver, with gifts, with horses and cattle, besides the other things added as freewill offerings[b] for the temple of the Lord which is in Jerusalem."
7 Then the heads of the families of the tribes of Judah and Benjamin got ready,[c] along with the priests, the Levites, and everyone whose spirit the Lord had moved to go and build a house for the Lord in Jerusalem; 8 and their neighbors supported them in every way, giving silver and gold, horses and livestock, and a very large number of freewill offerings from many whose hearts had been moved. 9 King Cyrus also brought out the holy vessels of the Lord, which Nebuchadnezzar had carried away from Jerusalem and set up in his idol temple. 10 And when Cyrus king of the Persians had brought them out, he delivered them to Mithridates[d] his treasurer, 11 and by him they were delivered to Sanabassar,[e] the governor of Judea. 12 Their number was: thirty gold bowls, two thousand four hundred ten silver bowls,[f] twenty-nine silver censers, a thousand gold cups for drink offerings, a thousand silver cups for drink offerings, and a thousand other vessels. 13 All the vessels, gold and silver, that were brought were five thousand four hundred and sixty-nine; 14 and they were brought up by Sanabassar together with the returning exiles from Babylon to Jerusalem.

15 But in the time of Artaxerxes[g] king of the Persians, Belemus and Mithridates and Tabellius and Rathumus and Beeltethmus,[h] and Samellius the scribe, and the rest who were associated with them, dwelling in Samaria and the other places, wrote to him against those who were dwelling in Judea and Jerusalem the following letter: 16 "To King Artaxerxes, our lord, from your servants Rathumus the recorder and Samellius the scribe, and the rest of their council, and those in Coele-Syria and Phoenicia.[i] 17 May our lord the king know that the Jews who traveled from you to us have settled in Jerusalem and are now rebuilding that rebellious and wicked city, restoring its markets and walls and laying the foundations of a temple. 18 If this city is rebuilt and its walls completed, they will not only refuse to pay tribute but will even rise up against kings. Since the work on the temple is under way, we think it right not to ignore such a matter, but to bring it to our lord the king, so that, if you approve, a search can be made in the records of your ancestors. 19 And you will find in the records what is written about these things, and you will learn that that city was rebellious, troubling both kings and cities, and that the Jews were rebels and had been raising sieges in it from of old; for which cause also this city was laid waste. 20 Now therefore we make known to you, our lord the king, that if this city is built and its walls are set up again, you will no longer have any access to Coele-Syria and Phoenicia."

21 Then the king wrote back to Rathumus the recorder, and Beeltethmus, and Samellius the scribe, and the rest who were associated with them and dwelling in Samaria and Syria and Phoenicia, as follows: 22 "I have read the letter which you have sent to me. Therefore I commanded that search be made, and it was found that that city from of old has set itself against kings, 23 and that the men in it were given to rebellions and wars, and that mighty and stern kings ruled in Jerusalem and exacted tribute from Coele-Syria and Phoenicia. 24 Now therefore I have commanded that those men be hindered from building the city, and that heed be taken that nothing more be done contrary to this, and that such wickedness proceed no further to the annoyance of kings." 25 Then, when the things written by King Artaxerxes had been read, Rathumus and Samellius the scribe and those associated with them went in haste to Jerusalem with cavalry and a crowd in battle array, and began to hinder the builders. And the building of the temple in Jerusalem ceased until the second year of the reign of Darius[j] king of the Persians.

Notes

- a (2:1) Cyrus (Greek Kyros; Persian Kūruš, meaning uncertain) founded the Persian empire and took Babylon in 539 BC. 2:1–14 parallels Ezra 1:1–11 and 2 Chronicles 36:22–23.
- b (2:6) Greek kat' euchas, "according to vows," that is, offerings made in fulfillment of vows; compare Ezra 1:4.
- c (2:7) Greek "having been established," a difficult reading; compare Ezra 1:5, "rose up." Judah means "praised"; Benjamin means "son of the right hand."
- d (2:10) Hebrew Mithredath (Ezra 1:8), a Persian name meaning "given by Mithra."
- e (2:11) Hebrew Sheshbazzar (Ezra 1:8), a Babylonian name of uncertain meaning; the Greek copies spell it in several ways (Sanabassaros, Samanassaros).
- f (2:12) Greek "silver bowls, 2,410" (written with Greek numerals); Ezra 1:10 has "410 silver bowls of a second sort." The total in verse 13 (5,469) agrees with neither list exactly; Ezra 1:11 gives 5,400.
- g (2:15) Artaxerxes I, king of Persia 465–424 BC. 2:15–25 parallels Ezra 4:7–24, but 1 Esdras places this correspondence before the reign of Darius (chs. 3–7), out of chronological order.
- h (2:15) In Ezra 4:7–9 the writers are Bishlam, Mithredath, Tabeel, Rehum the commander (Aramaic be'el-te'em, "master of decree"), and Shimshai the scribe. The Greek has turned Rehum's title into a further name, Beeltethmus.
- i (2:16) Coele-Syria, "Hollow Syria," the Greek name for the region between the Lebanon and Anti-Lebanon ranges, here used, as often in Hellenistic Greek, for the Persian province "Beyond the River" west of the Euphrates. Phoenicia is the coastland of Tyre and Sidon.
- j (2:25) Darius I, king of Persia 522–486 BC; his second year is 520 BC (Ezra 4:24; Haggai 1:1). Darius means "holding firm the good."

Chapter 3

1 Now King Darius made a great feast for all who were under him, and for all who were born in his house, and for all the nobles of Media and of Persia, 2 and for all the satraps and generals and governors[a] who were under him, from India to Ethiopia,[b] in the hundred and twenty-seven satrapies. 3 They ate and drank until they were full, and then left; King Darius went to his bedroom and slept, and later woke up.[c] 4 Then the three young men of the bodyguard, who kept watch over the king's person, said one to another, 5 "Let each of us name one thing that is strongest; and he whose saying seems wiser than the others', to him shall Darius the king give great gifts and great honors of victory: 6 to be clothed in purple, and to drink from gold cups, and to sleep on a gold bed, and a chariot with a gold bridle, and a turban of fine linen, and a chain about his neck; 7 and he shall sit next to Darius because of his wisdom, and shall be called Darius's kinsman."[d] 8 And then they each wrote his own saying, and sealed it, and put it under the pillow of Darius the king, and said, 9 "When the king wakes up, they will hand him the document; and whichever of us the king and the three nobles of Persia judge to have given the wisest statement will be awarded the victory, as it is written." 10 The first wrote, "Wine is strongest." 11 The second wrote, "The king is strongest." 12 The third wrote, "Women are strongest, but above all things truth is victor."[e] 13 And when the king awoke, they took the writing and gave it to him, and he read it. 14 And he sent and called all the nobles of Persia and of Media, and the satraps and generals and governors and chief officers, and sat down in the council chamber, and the writing was read before them. 15 And he said, "Call the young men, and they shall explain their own sayings." So they were called, and came in. 16 And they said to them, "Declare to us your meaning concerning the things written." Then the first, who had spoken of the strength of wine, began, and said thus: 17 "Sirs, how strong wine is! It leads astray the mind of all men who drink it. 18 It makes the mind of the king and of the orphan to be all one, of the slave and of the free, of the poor and of the rich.

19 It turns every thought to feasting and merriment, so that a man remembers no sorrow nor any debt. 20 It makes every heart rich, so that a man remembers neither king nor satrap, and it makes all men talk in large sums.[f] 21 And when they drink they forget to show love to friends and brothers, and before long they draw their swords; 22 and when they wake from their wine, they do not remember what they have done. 23 Sirs, is not wine the strongest, since it compels men to do these things?" And when he had said this, he was silent.

Notes

- a (3:2) Greek toparchais, "district rulers." 3:1–5:6, the contest of Darius's three bodyguards (the "Story of the Three Youths" or "Three Guardsmen"), has no parallel in Ezra, Nehemiah, or any other book of the Hebrew Bible; it is the one large section of 1 Esdras found nowhere else in Scripture. Many scholars think it was an originally independent tale, perhaps first told of an anonymous youth, which was then attached to Zerubbabel (4:13) and used to explain how the rebuilding of the temple was renewed under Darius.
- b (3:2) Greek Aithiopia, the land south of Egypt (Hebrew Cush). Compare Esther 1:1, which also gives 127 provinces.
- c (3:3) Greek "and became wakeful." Some interpreters take it to mean that he slept only a little.
- d (3:7) Greek syngenēs, "kinsman," an honorary title in the Persian and Hellenistic courts for the king's highest favorites.
- e (3:12) Some Greek copies, as reported, lack "but above all things truth is victor," which anticipates 4:33–41.
- f (3:20) Greek dia talantōn, "by talents," that is, it makes people talk as though they had talents of money (a talent was about 75 pounds of silver).

Chapter 4

1 Then the second, who had spoken of the strength of the king, began to speak: 2 "Sirs, do not men excel in strength, who bear rule over sea and land and all things in them? 3 Yet the king is mightier, for he is lord over them and has dominion over them, and whatever he bids them they do. 4 If he bids them make war one against another, they do it; if he sends them forth against the enemies, they march, and break down mountains and walls and towers. 5 They kill and are killed, yet never disobey the king's order; if they win, they bring everything to the king: all the plunder they take, and all else besides. 6 And those who are not soldiers and do not go to war, but till the ground, when they have sown, they reap again and bring it to the king; and they compel one another to bring the tribute to the king. 7 And yet he is only one man: if he says to kill, they kill; if he says to spare, they spare; 8 if he says to strike, they strike; if he says to lay waste, they lay waste; if he says to build, they build; 9 if he says to cut down, they cut down; if he says to plant, they plant. 10 And all his people and his armies obey him. Moreover he reclines at table, eats and drinks, and sleeps; 11 but they keep watch round about him, and none of them may go away and do his own work, nor do they disobey him. 12 Sirs, how can the king not be strongest, when he is obeyed in this way?"

And he was silent.
13 Then the third, who had spoken of women and of truth (this was Zerubbabel[a]), began to speak: 14 "Sirs, is the king not great, and are men not many, and is wine not mighty? Who then has dominion over them, or who rules them? Is it not women? 15 It was women who bore the king and all the people who rule over sea and land. 16 Of them men were born; and women nourished up those who planted the vineyards from which the wine comes. 17 Women make men's garments; they bring men glory;[b] and men cannot exist without women. 18 If men gather gold and silver and every lovely thing, and then see one woman who is fair in looks and beauty, 19 they let all those things go and gape at her, and with mouths open they stare at her, and all choose her rather than gold or silver or any lovely thing. 20 A man leaves behind the father who brought him up, and his homeland, and is joined to his wife. 21 With his wife he ends his days,[c] and remembers neither father nor mother nor country. 22 And by this you must know that women have dominion over you: do you not labor and travail, and give and bring all to women? 23 A man takes his sword and goes out to make raids and to rob and steal, and to sail upon the sea and upon rivers; 24 he faces the lion and walks in darkness; and when he has stolen and plundered and robbed, he brings it to his beloved. 25 A man loves his own wife more than father or mother. 26 Yes, many have run mad for women's sake, and many have been made bondmen for them. 27 Many have perished, and stumbled, and sinned because of women. 28 And now do you not believe me? Is not the king great in his power? Do not all lands fear to touch him? 29 Yet I have seen him with Apame,[d] the king's concubine and daughter of the famous Bartacus, seated at the king's right hand, 30 taking the crown from the king's head and putting it on her own, and slapping the king with her left hand. 31 And at this the king would gaze at her with his mouth open. If she smiles at him, he laughs; and if she is cross with him, he coaxes her, that she may be reconciled to him. 32 Sirs, how can women not be strong, since they do such things?" 33 Then the king and the great men looked one upon another; so he began to speak of truth: 34 "Sirs, are women not strong? Great is the earth, high is the heaven, swift is the sun in his course, for he wheels around the compass of the heaven and runs again to his own place in one day. 35 Is not he great who does these things? But truth is great, and stronger than all things. 36 All the earth calls upon truth, and the heaven blesses her; all works shake and tremble at her,[e] and with her is no unrighteous thing. 37 Wine is unrighteous, the king is unrighteous, women are unrighteous, all the sons of men are unrighteous, and all their works are unrighteous, all such things as these; there is no truth in them, and in their unrighteousness they shall perish. 38 But truth endures and is strong for ever; she lives and conquers for evermore. 39 With her there is no respect of persons or favoritism, but she does what is just rather than anything unjust or wicked; and all approve her works. 40 In her judgment there is nothing unrighteous.

To her belong the strength and the kingship and the authority and the majesty of all ages. Blessed be the God of truth!" 41 And he ceased speaking; and all the people then shouted, and said, "Great is truth, and strongest of all!"[f] 42 Then the king said to him, "Ask what you wish, even more than is written, and we will give it to you, inasmuch as you have been found the wisest; and you shall sit next to me and be called my kinsman." 43 Then he said to the king, "Remember the vow which you vowed, to build Jerusalem, on the day you received your kingdom, 44 and to send back all the vessels that were taken out of Jerusalem, which Cyrus set apart when he vowed to destroy Babylon, and vowed to send them back there.[g] 45 You also vowed to build the temple that the Edomites[h] burned when the Chaldeans devastated Judea. 46 And now, my lord the king, this is what I ask of you, and it is a worthy act for someone of your greatness: I urge you to keep the vow that you made with your own mouth to the King of heaven." 47 Then Darius the king rose and kissed him, and wrote letters for him to all the stewards and governors and generals and satraps, that they should escort him and all who were going up with him to build Jerusalem. 48 He also wrote letters to all the governors in Coele-Syria and Phoenicia and Lebanon, telling them to bring cedar wood from Lebanon to Jerusalem and to help him rebuild the city. 49 Also he wrote on behalf of all the Jews that went up out of his realm into Judea, concerning their freedom, that no officer or satrap or governor or steward should forcibly enter their doors,[i] 50 and that all the country which they would hold should be theirs free of tribute, and that the Chaldeans[j] should give up the villages of the Jews which they held; 51 and that about 1,500 pounds of silver[k] should be given yearly toward the building of the temple until it was built, 52 and another 750 pounds or so yearly for burnt offerings to be offered on the altar every day, as they had a commandment to offer seventeen;[l] 53 And to all that went up from Babylonia to build the city he granted freedom, both to them and to their children, and to all the priests that went up. 54 He wrote also concerning their support, and the priestly vestments in which they minister.[m] 55 And for the Levites he wrote that their support should be given them until the day when the house should be finished and Jerusalem built. 56 And for all who guarded the city he wrote that allotments of land and wages should be given them. 57 And he sent back all the vessels which Cyrus had set apart from Babylon; and all that Cyrus had said should be done, he also commanded to be done and sent to Jerusalem.

58 When the young man left, he looked up toward heaven in the direction of Jerusalem and blessed the King of heaven, saying, 59 "From you comes victory, and from you comes wisdom, and yours is the glory, and I am your servant. 60 Blessed are you, who have given me wisdom; and to you I give thanks, O Master of our fathers." 61 And he took the letters, and went out to Babylon, and told it to all his brothers. 62 And they blessed the God of their fathers, because he had given them release and liberty 63 to go up and build Jerusalem and the temple which is called by his name; and they feasted with music and gladness seven days.

Notes

- a (4:13) Zerubbabel (Greek Zorobabel) means "seed of Babylon." He was the grandson of King Jehoiachin (1 Chronicles 3:17–19) and governor of Judah under Darius (Haggai 1:1). The identification here of the third guardsman with Zerubbabel links the story to the return in 5:1–6.
- b (4:17) Some Greek copies, as reported, read "they make men's garments and bring men glory," referring the clauses to women; others connect the glory with the garments.
- c (4:21) Greek aphiēsi tēn psychēn, "lets go his life," perhaps meaning "he gives up his life" or "he spends his life."
- d (4:29) Apame, daughter of Bartacus, is otherwise unknown as a concubine of Darius. The names are Persian; an Apame was the wife of Seleucus I, and the name was common at Hellenistic courts.
- e (4:36) Greek "all the works," that is, all created things; the Greek is literally "all works quake and tremble."
- f (4:41) Greek Megalē hē alētheia kai hyperischyei, "Great is truth, and it prevails over all." In the Latin Vulgate (3 Esdras 4:41) the saying became the proverb Magna est veritas et praevalet, "Truth is great and prevails."
- g (4:44) The Greek of verses 43–44 is awkward; the sense is that Cyrus, when he vowed to destroy Babylon, set apart the vessels and vowed to send them back (compare 2:9–11).
- h (4:45) Swete's text reads "the Jews," evidently a corruption; other Greek witnesses, as reported, read "the Idumeans," that is, the Edomites, who were remembered as joining in the destruction of Jerusalem in 586 BC (Psalm 137:7; Obadiah 11–14).
- i (4:49) Literally "not come upon their doors," that is, not intrude into their homes to requisition or tax them.
- j (4:50) Swete's text has "Chaldeans" here; other Greek witnesses, as reported, read "Idumeans" (Edomites), as in verse 45.
- k (4:51) Greek "twenty talents." A talent was about 75 pounds (34 kilograms); the metal is not stated, but silver is probably meant, so about 680 kilograms. Verse 52 likewise has "ten other talents" (about 750 pounds or 340 kilograms).
- l (4:52) Swete's text reads "to offer seventeen"; the meaning is obscure, and the number may refer to a daily quota of sacrifices.
- m (4:54) Some Greek copies, as reported, read "and the priestly vestments, in which they shall minister," that is, Darius also provided the vestments.

Chapter 5

1 After this the chiefs of the fathers' houses were chosen to go up according to their tribes, with their wives and sons and daughters, and their menservants and maidservants, and their cattle. 2 And Darius sent with them a thousand horsemen to bring them back to Jerusalem in safety, with music, drums, and flutes; [3] and all their brothers were making merry. And he made them go up together with them.

[4] These are the names of the men who went up, listed by their ancestral families in their tribes and by their divisions. [5] The priests, the sons of Phinehas,[a] the sons of Aaron: Jeshua the son of Jozadak, son of Saraeus; and Joakim the son of Zerubbabel,[b] son of Salathiel, of the house of David, of the lineage of Phares, of the tribe of Judah, [6] who spoke wise words before Darius king of the Persians in the second year of his reign, in the month Nisan, the first month (March–April).[c] [7] And these are they of Judea who came up from the captivity of their sojourning, whom Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon had carried away to Babylon, [8] and who returned to Jerusalem and to the rest of Judea, each to his own city, who came with Zerubbabel and Jeshua, Nehemiah, Zaraeus, Resaeus, Enenius, Mardochaeus, Beelsarus, Aspharasus, Borolius, Roimus, and Baana, their leaders.[d] [9] The number of those of the nation, and their leaders: the sons of Phoros, two thousand one hundred and seventy-two;[e] [10] the sons of Ares, seven hundred and fifty-six; [11] the sons of Phaathmoab, of the sons of Jeshua and Joab, two thousand eight hundred and two;[f] [12] the sons of Olamus, two;[g] the sons of Zatton, nine hundred and seventy; the sons of Chorbe, seven hundred and five; the sons of Bani, six hundred and forty-eight; [13] the sons of Bebai, six hundred and thirty-three; the sons of Argai,[h] one thousand three hundred and twenty-two; [14] the sons of Adonikam, thirty-seven;[i] the sons of Bosai, two thousand six hundred and six; the sons of Adilius, four hundred and fifty-four; [15] the sons of Azer of Hezekiah,[j] the sons of Kilan and Azetas, sixty-seven; the sons of Azarus, four hundred and thirty-two; [16] the sons of Annis, a hundred and one; the sons of Arom; the sons of Bassai, three hundred and twenty-three; the sons of Arsiphurith,[k] [17] the sons of Baeterus, three thousand and five; the sons of Rhagethlomon,[l] a hundred and twenty-three; [18] those from Netebas, fifty-five; those from Enatus, a hundred and fifty-eight; those from Baetasmon, Zammoth;[m] [19] those from Kartathiarius,[n] twenty-five; those from Piras and Beroth, seven hundred; [20] the Kadiasans and Ammidians, four hundred and twenty-two; those from Kirama and Gabbes, six hundred and twenty-one; [21]

those from Macalon, a hundred and twenty-two; those from Betolio, fifty-two; the sons of Niphis, a hundred and fifty-six; 22 the sons of Kalamokalus and Onus, seven hundred and twenty-five; the sons of Jericho, two hundred and forty-five; 23 the sons of Sama,[o] three thousand three hundred and one.

24 The priests: the sons of Jeddu the son of Jeshua, of the sons of Sanabis, eight hundred and seventy-two; the sons of Emmerus,[p] two hundred and fifty-two; 25 the sons of Phassurus, one thousand two hundred and forty-seven; the sons of Charme, two hundred and seventeen. 26 The Levites: the sons of Jessue, of Kadmiel and Bannus and Sudius,[q] seventy-four. 27 The holy singers: the sons of Asaph, a hundred and twenty-eight. 28 The gatekeepers, four hundred;[r] the sons of Ishmael, the sons of Lacubatus, a thousand;[s] the sons of Tobis, in all a hundred and thirty-nine.

29 The temple servants:[t] the sons of Esau, the sons of Gasipha, the sons of Gabaoth, the sons of Keras, the sons of Sua, the sons of Phalaeus, the sons of Labana, 30 the sons of Akud, the sons of Uta, the sons of Ketab, the sons of Akkaba, the sons of Subai, the sons of Anan, the sons of Kua, the sons of Keddur, 31 the sons of Jairus, the sons of Daesan, the sons of Noeba, the sons of Chaseba, the sons of Kazera, the sons of Ozius, the sons of Phinoe, the sons of Asara, the sons of Basthai, the sons of Assana, the sons of Mani, the sons of Naphisi, the sons of Akuph, the sons of Achiba, the sons of Asur, the sons of Pharakem, the sons of Basalem, 32 the sons of Dedda, the sons of Bachus, the sons of Serar, the sons of Thomthi, the sons of Nasi, the sons of Atepha. 33 The sons of Solomon's servants: the sons of Assaphioth, the sons of Pharida, the sons of Jeieli, the sons of Lozon, the sons of Isdael, the sons of Saphuthi, 34 the sons of Agia, the sons of Phakareth Sabie, the sons of Sarothi, the sons of Misaias, the sons of Gas, the sons of Addus, the sons of Subas, the sons of Apherra, the sons of Barodis, the sons of Saphag, the sons of Allon. 35 The temple servants together with the sons of Solomon's servants numbered in all three hundred seventy and two.

36 These came up from Thermeleth and Thelersas, their leaders being Charaathalan and Allar;[u] 37 and they could not show their fathers' houses and lineage, that they were of Israel: the sons of Asan the son of Baenan, the sons of Nekodan, six hundred and fifty-two. 38

And of the priests, those who claimed the priesthood and were not found: the sons of Obbia, the sons of Akbos, the sons of Jaddus, who took Augia, one of the daughters of Phaezeldaeus,[v] as wife, and was called by his name. 39 And when the record of their genealogy was sought in the register and was not found, they were excluded from serving as priests. 40 And Nehemiah and Attharias[w] charged them not to partake of the holy things till there should rise up a priest clothed with Manifestation and Truth.[x] 41 All those of Israel from twelve years old and upward, besides menservants and maidservants, were forty-two thousand three hundred and sixty;[y] their menservants and maidservants, seven thousand three hundred and thirty-seven; male and female singers, two hundred and forty-five; 42 camels, four hundred and thirty-five; and horses, seven thousand and thirty-six;[z] mules, two hundred and forty-five; beasts of burden, five thousand five hundred and twenty-five.
43 And some of the leaders of the fathers' houses, when they came to the temple of God in Jerusalem, vowed to raise up the house again on its own site according to their ability, 44 and to give to the holy treasury for the works about 1,250 pounds of gold and about 6,250 pounds of silver,[aa] and a hundred priestly garments. 45 And the priests and the Levites and some of the people settled in Jerusalem and the country round, and the holy singers and the gatekeepers and all Israel in their villages.
46 When the seventh month (September–October)[ab] was at hand, and the sons of Israel were each in his own place, they gathered together with one accord in the open square before the first gate toward the east. 47 And Jeshua the son of Jozadak and his brothers the priests, and Zerubbabel the son of Salathiel and his brothers, stood up and made ready the altar of the God of Israel, 48 to offer burnt offerings upon it, in accordance with what is laid down in the book of Moses the man of God. 49 Some of the other peoples of the land gathered against them,[ac] but they set up the altar in its original place, since all the peoples of the land were hostile to them and stronger than they were; and they offered sacrifices at the appointed times, and burnt offerings to the Lord each morning and evening. 50 And they kept the feast of booths, as it is commanded in the law, and offered sacrifices daily, as was fitting; 51 and after that the continual offerings, and the sacrifices of sabbaths and of new moons and of all the consecrated feasts. 52 And all who had made any vow to God began to offer sacrifices to God from the new moon of the first month (March–April),[ad] though the temple of God was not yet built. 53 They paid money to the masons and carpenters, and gave food, drink and oil to the Sidonians and Tyrians so that they would bring cedar logs from Lebanon and float them as rafts to the harbor at Joppa, as the decree of Cyrus, king of the Persians, had ordered.

54 And in the second year after his coming to the temple of God in Jerusalem, in the second month (April–May), Zerubbabel the son of Salathiel and Jeshua the son of Jozadak began, with their brothers and the Levitical priests and all who had come to Jerusalem from the captivity; 55 and they laid the foundation of the temple of God on the new moon of the second month in the second year after they had come to Judea and Jerusalem.[ae] 56 And they appointed the Levites from twenty years old and upward over the works of the Lord. And Jeshua stood up, with his sons and brothers, and Damadiel his brother,[af] and the sons of Jeshua Emadabun, and the sons of Judah the son of Iliadun, with their sons and brothers, all the Levites, with one accord as taskmasters, working at the tasks in the house of the Lord. And the builders built the temple of the Lord.

57 And the priests stood arrayed in their vestments, with musical instruments and trumpets, and the Levites, the sons of Asaph, with cymbals, singing hymns to the Lord and blessing him, after the manner of David king of Israel. 58 And they lifted up their voice with hymns, praising the Lord, "For his goodness and his glory endure for ever over all Israel."[ag] 59 And all the people sounded trumpets and shouted with a loud voice, singing hymns to the Lord for the raising up of the house of the Lord. 60 And some of the Levitical priests and of the heads of their fathers' houses, the old men who had seen the former house, came to the building of this one with crying out and loud weeping, [61] and many with trumpets and great joy, with a loud voice, [62] so that the people could not distinguish the trumpets for the weeping of the people; for the multitude blew loud blasts, so that the noise was heard a great way off.

[63] And when the enemies of the tribe of Judah and Benjamin heard it, they came to learn what the sound of the trumpets meant. [64] And they learned that those who had come from the captivity were building the temple for the Lord God of Israel. [65] And they came to Zerubbabel and Jeshua and the leaders of the fathers' houses, and said to them, "We will build together with you. [66] For we too obey your Lord as you do, and have sacrificed to him from the days of Asbakaphath[ah] king of the Assyrians, who brought us over hither." [67] And Zerubbabel and Jeshua and the leaders of the fathers' houses of Israel said to them, "It is not for you to build the house for the Lord our God; [68] for we ourselves alone will build for the Lord of Israel, in accordance with what Cyrus the king of the Persians commanded us." [69] But the nations of the land pressed hard upon those in Judea, and by besieging them hindered them from building; [70] and by scheming, stirring up the people, and causing riots, they stopped the building for as long as King Cyrus lived; and the work was halted for two years, until the reign of Darius.[ai]

Notes

- a (5:5) Phinehas means "the Nubian" (an Egyptian name). 5:7–70 parallels Ezra 2:1–4:5 (compare Nehemiah 7:6–73), with many differences in the names and numbers; the names here follow Swete's Greek, and only some of the differences are noted.
- b (5:5) Greek "and Joakim the son of Zerubbabel," evidently a corrupt text; the sense required is "Jeshua … with Zerubbabel the son of Salathiel" (Ezra 3:2). Jeshua (Greek Iēsous) is the high priest Joshua of Haggai 1:1 and Zechariah 3:1; the name means "Yahweh saves." Salathiel is Shealtiel, "I have asked God." Phares is Perez (Genesis 38:29).
- c (5:6) Greek "in the month Nisan of the first month"; Nisan is the Babylonian name of the first month of the spring-start calendar.
- d (5:8) The list of leaders parallels Ezra 2:2 (Zerubbabel, Jeshua, Nehemiah, Seraiah, Reelaiah, Mordecai, Bilshan, Mispar, Bigvai, Rehum, Baanah). Nehemiah means "Yahweh comforts"; Mardochaeus is Mordecai, a name derived from the Babylonian god Marduk.

- e (5:9) Swete's text reads "seventy-two thousand," apparently by the loss of part of the number; Ezra 2:3 has 2,172, which is followed here. Phoros is Parosh ("flea") in Ezra.
- f (5:11) So Swete; Ezra 2:6 has 2,812. Phaathmoab is Pahath-moab, "governor of Moab."
- g (5:12) Swete's text reads only "two," and part of the number has evidently been lost; Ezra 2:7 has "the sons of Elam, 1,254."
- h (5:13) Ezra 2:10–12 has "the sons of Bani (Bebai?), 623 ... the sons of Azgad, 1,222." Several Greek names and numbers in verses 12–23 differ from Ezra and Nehemiah.
- i (5:14) So Swete (37); Ezra 2:13 has 666, Nehemiah 7:18 has 667. Adonikam means "my Lord has risen."
- j (5:15) That is, Ater of Hezekiah (Ezra 2:16). Hezekiah means "Yahweh strengthens."
- k (5:16) No number is given in Swete's text for Arom or for Arsiphurith; some numbers have evidently been lost.
- l (5:17) Probably Ramah and Geba (Ezra 2:26), run together in the Greek, as also Kirama and Gabbes in verse 20 (compare Ezra 2:26–27). The Greek place-names in verses 17–23 are often corrupt.
- m (5:18) Swete's text gives no number here, and "Zammoth" may be a corruption of a number or a name (compare Azmaveth, Ezra 2:24).
- n (5:19) Kiriath-jearim ("city of forests") in Ezra 2:25. Beroth is Beeroth ("wells").
- o (5:23) Senaah in Ezra 2:35 (3,630). Jericho means "moon city" or "fragrant" (uncertain).
- p (5:24) Immer in Ezra 2:37. Phassurus is Pashhur.
- q (5:26) Ezra 2:40 has "Jeshua and Kadmiel, of the sons of Hodaviah."
- r (5:28) So Swete. Ezra 2:42 gives the gatekeepers as 139 in all (the sons of Shallum, Ater, Talmon, Akkub, Hatita, and Shobai); the Greek of this verse is confused.
- s (5:28) Swete's text reads "a thousand"; the clause is lacking in the parallel lists.
- t (5:29) Greek hierodouloi, "temple servants," the Nethinim ("given ones") of Ezra 2:43–58. Many of the following names differ in spelling from Ezra.
- u (5:36) In Ezra 2:59 Tel-melah, Tel-harsha, Cherub, Addan, and Immer are place-names; the Greek has turned some of them into names of leaders.
- v (5:38) Barzillai the Gileadite (Ezra 2:61; 2 Samuel 19:31). The name means "man of iron."
- w (5:40) Hebrew hattirshata', "the governor" (Ezra 2:63), a Persian title which the Greek takes as a personal name; Nehemiah is not named in the parallel in Ezra 2:63.
- x (5:40) Greek tēn dēlōsin kai tēn alētheian, the Septuagint's rendering of the Urim and Thummim, the priestly lots worn in the breastpiece (Exodus 28:30).
- y (5:41) Ezra 2:64 and Nehemiah 7:66 give the whole assembly as 42,360; the figures listed do not add up to this total in any of the lists.
- z (5:42) So Swete; Ezra 2:66 has 736 horses.

- aa (5:44) Greek "a thousand minas of gold and five thousand minas of silver." A mina was 50 shekels, about 1¼ pounds (575 grams), so about 575 kilograms of gold and 2,875 kilograms of silver. Ezra 2:69 has 61,000 darics of gold and 5,000 minas of silver; Nehemiah 7:70–72 gives other figures.
- ab (5:46) Tishri, on the spring-start calendar (Ezra 3:1).
- ac (5:49) Greek "And there were gathered to them some of the other nations of the land." The Greek of this verse is hard to interpret; compare Ezra 3:3, which gives a reason of fear of the surrounding peoples.
- ad (5:52) So Swete, "of the first month"; Ezra 3:6 has "from the first day of the seventh month," which suits the context better.
- ae (5:55) The second month is Iyyar or Ziv (April–May), on the spring-start calendar (Ezra 3:8).
- af (5:56) Kadmiel in Ezra 3:9. The names in this verse are confused in the Greek; "Emadabun" and "Iliadun" correspond to Henadad in Ezra 3:9.
- ag (5:58) Compare Ezra 3:11 and Psalm 136:1.
- ah (5:66) Esarhaddon king of Assyria (681–669 BC) in Ezra 4:2; the Greek form Asbakaphath is a corruption. Compare Ezra 4:10, Osnappar (Ashurbanipal).
- ai (5:70) Ezra 4:5 says "until the reign of Darius king of Persia." The narrative now resumes from 2:25.

Chapter 6

1 Now in the second year of the reign of Darius, Haggai and Zechariah the son of Eddin,[a] the prophets, prophesied to the Jews in Judea and Jerusalem in the name of the Lord God of Israel, which was upon them.[b] 2 Then Zerubbabel the son of Salathiel and Jeshua the son of Jozadak stood up and began to build the house of the Lord which is in Jerusalem, the prophets of the Lord being with them and helping them.
3 At the same time Sisinnes[c] the governor of Syria and Phoenicia came to them, with Sathrabuzanes and their companions, and said to them, 4 "By whose appointment do you build this house and this roof, and finish all the other things? And who are the builders that carry out these things?" 5 Yet the elders of the Jews found favor, because the Lord had visited the captivity;[d] 6 and they were not hindered from building until word should be sent to Darius concerning them and an answer returned.
7 A copy of the letter which Sisinnes the governor of Syria and Phoenicia, and Sathrabuzanes, and their companions the rulers in Syria and Phoenicia, wrote and sent to Darius:

"To King Darius, greeting.

8 May our lord the king be informed of everything: when we entered the land of Judea and came to the city of Jerusalem, we found that the Jewish elders, who had been in exile, were constructing a large new house for the Lord, built of costly cut stone, with timber set into the walls.[e]

9 And those works are being done with speed, and the work prospers in their hands, and it is being finished with all glory and diligence.

10 So we questioned those elders: 'On whose authority are you building this house and laying the foundations of this work?'

11 We questioned them therefore in order to make known to you and write to you the men who are the leaders, and we required of them a written list of the names of their chief men.

12 And they gave us this answer: 'We are servants of the Lord, the maker of heaven and earth.

13 And the house was built many years ago by a great and strong king of Israel, and was finished.

14 But when our fathers provoked the heavenly Lord of Israel and sinned against him, he gave them over into the hands of Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon, king of the Chaldeans;

15 and they pulled down the house and burned it, and carried the people captive to Babylon.

16 But in the first year that Cyrus ruled over Babylonia, King Cyrus ordered this house to be built.

17 And the holy vessels of gold and of silver, which Nebuchadnezzar had carried out of the house in Jerusalem and set up in his own temple, King Cyrus brought out again from the temple in Babylonia, and they were delivered to Zerubbabel and to Sanabassar the governor, 18 with the command that he should carry away all these vessels and put them in the temple at Jerusalem, and that the temple of the Lord should be built on its site.

19 Sanabassar then came and laid the foundations of the Lord's house in Jerusalem. Building has gone on from that time until now, and it is still not finished.'

20 Now therefore, O king, if it be judged good, let search be made in the royal archives of our lord the king in Babylon; 21 and if it is found that the building of the house of the Lord in Jerusalem was undertaken with the consent of King Cyrus, and if our lord the king so decides, let him send us word concerning these things."
22 Then King Darius commanded search to be made in the archives that were laid up in Babylon; and there was found at Ecbatana,[f] the fortress in the country of Media, a scroll in which this was recorded: 23 "In the first year of the reign of Cyrus, King Cyrus commanded that the house of the Lord in Jerusalem be built, where they offer sacrifice with perpetual fire, 24 its height to be about ninety feet and its breadth about ninety feet,[g] built with three rows of polished stone and a row of new timber of the country; and the cost to be paid out of the house of King Cyrus; 25 and that the holy vessels of the house of the Lord, both gold and silver, which Nebuchadnezzar carried out of the house in Jerusalem and brought to Babylon, should be restored to the house in Jerusalem where they had been placed, that they might be set there." 26 And he commanded that Sisinnes the governor of Syria and Phoenicia, and Sathrabuzanes, and their companions, and the rulers appointed in Syria and Phoenicia, should take care to keep away from the place, and leave Zerubbabel, the servant of the Lord and governor of Judea, and the elders of the Jews, to build that house of the Lord on its site. 27 "And I also command that it be built completely, and that they look diligently to help those of the captivity of Judea until the house of the Lord is finished; 28 and that out of the tribute of Coele-Syria and Phoenicia a portion be carefully given to these men for sacrifices to the Lord, to Zerubbabel the governor, for bulls and rams and lambs; 29 and in like manner wheat, salt, wine, and oil, continually year by year without question, as the priests in Jerusalem may direct to be spent daily, 30 that drink offerings may be made to the Most High God for the king and his children, and that they may pray for their lives." 31 And he commanded that whoever should transgress or make void any of the things written, a beam should be taken out of his own house and he should be hanged upon it, and his goods should be forfeited to the king. 32 "Therefore may the Lord, whose name is called upon there, destroy every king and nation that shall stretch out his hand to hinder or to do harm to that house of the Lord in Jerusalem. 33 I, Darius the king, have ordained that these things be done with care."

Notes

- a (6:1) Hebrew Iddo (Ezra 5:1; Zechariah 1:1, where Zechariah is the son of Berechiah, son of Iddo). Haggai means "festal"; Zechariah means "Yahweh remembers." 6:1–7:15 parallels Ezra 5:1–6:22.
- b (6:1) Greek "in the name of the Lord God of Israel upon them"; compare Ezra 5:1, "in the name of the God of Israel, who was over them."
- c (6:3) Hebrew Tattenai (Ezra 5:3), governor of the province Beyond the River, with Shethar-bozenai (Greek Sathrabuzanes).
- d (6:5) Greek "And the elders of the Jews had favor, a visitation having come upon the captivity from the Lord." Compare Ezra 5:5, "But the eye of their God was upon the elders of the Jews."
- e (6:8) Greek en tois oikois, "in the houses," probably meaning the walls or chambers.
- f (6:22) Ecbatana (Hebrew Achmetha, Ezra 6:2), the old capital of Media and a summer residence of the Persian kings; modern Hamadan in Iran.
- g (6:24) Greek "sixty cubits" in each case, about 27 meters. Ezra 6:3 also gives the height and breadth as sixty cubits; the dimensions are much larger than Solomon's temple (1 Kings 6:2) and may be an idealized or corrupted figure.

Chapter 7

1 Then Sisinnes the governor of Coele-Syria and Phoenicia, and Sathrabuzanes, and their companions, following the orders of King Darius, 2 took great care in overseeing the holy work, cooperating with the elders of the Jews and the chief officials of the temple. 3 And the holy works prospered, while Haggai and Zechariah the prophets prophesied. 4 And they finished these things by the command of the Lord God of Israel, and with the consent of Cyrus and Darius and Artaxerxes, kings of the Persians.[a] 5 And the house was finished by the twenty-third day of the month Adar (February–March),[b] in the sixth year of King Darius. 6 And the sons of Israel and the priests and the Levites and the rest of those from the captivity who had joined them did according to what is written in the book of Moses. 7 And for the dedication of the temple of the Lord they offered a hundred bulls, two hundred rams, four hundred lambs, 8 and twelve he-goats for the sin of all Israel, according to the number of the twelve chiefs of the tribes of Israel. 9 And the priests and the Levites stood arrayed in their vestments by tribes, over the works of the Lord God of Israel, according to the book of Moses; and the gatekeepers were at every gate.

10 And the sons of Israel who were of the captivity kept the Passover on the fourteenth day of the first month (March–April),[c] when the priests and the Levites were purified together. 11 with all the sons of the captivity, for they were purified; for the Levites were all purified together.[d] 12 And they sacrificed the Passover for all the sons of the captivity, and for their brothers the priests, and for themselves. 13 The Israelites who had returned from exile ate it, together with everyone who had separated from the abominations of the peoples of the land and who sought the Lord. 14 And they kept the feast of unleavened bread seven days, making merry before the Lord, 15 because he had turned the counsel of the king of the Assyrians toward them, to strengthen their hands for the works of the Lord God of Israel.[e]

Notes

- a (7:4) Artaxerxes is named also in Ezra 6:14, although he reigned after the temple was finished; the reference anticipates the work of Ezra in his reign (chs. 8–9).
- b (7:5) Adar is the twelfth month of the spring-start calendar. Ezra 6:15 has "the third day of the month Adar." The sixth year of Darius was 516–515 BC.
- c (7:10) Nisan, on the spring-start calendar (Ezra 6:19).
- d (7:11) The Greek is repetitive and somewhat confused; Ezra 6:20 says that the priests and the Levites had purified themselves together and were all clean.
- e (7:15) Compare Ezra 6:22, where "the king of Assyria" refers to the Persian ruler as successor to the Assyrian kings. From here 1 Esdras moves directly to the coming of Ezra (Ezra 7).

Chapter 8

1 After these things, when Artaxerxes[a] king of the Persians was reigning, there came Ezra[b] the son of Azariah, son of Zechrias,[c] son of Helkias, son of Salem, 2 son of Sadduk, son of Ahitub, son of Amarias, son of Ozias, son of Bokkas, son of Abisue, son of Phinehas, son of Eleazar, son of Aaron the chief priest. 3 This Ezra came up from Babylon as a scribe, an expert in the law of Moses given by the God of Israel. 4 And the king did him honor, for he found favor before him in all his requests. 5 With him some of the Israelites went up to Jerusalem: priests, Levites, gatekeepers, temple singers and temple servants, 6 in the seventh year of the reign of Artaxerxes, in the fifth month (July–August)[d] (the king's seventh year);[e] they had left Babylon on the new moon of the first month (March–April) and reached Jerusalem because of the successful journey the Lord granted them for Ezra's sake. 7 For Ezra[f] possessed great knowledge, so that he left out nothing of the things in the law of the Lord and in the commandments, but taught all Israel the statutes and the judgments.

8 Now the commission which King Artaxerxes sent to Ezra the priest and reader of the law of the Lord came to him, and this following is a copy of it: 9 "King Artaxerxes to Ezra the priest and reader of the law of the Lord, greeting. 10 Having resolved to show kindness, I have ordered that any of the Jewish nation, and of the priests and Levites and the rest within our kingdom, who are willing and choose it, shall journey with you to Jerusalem. 11 Let as many therefore as are so minded set out with you, as it has seemed good to me and to my seven friends the counselors, 12 that they may look into the affairs of Judea and Jerusalem, in keeping with what is in the law of the Lord, 13 and take to Jerusalem the gifts for the Lord that I and my friends have promised, along with all the gold and silver for the Lord that may be found in the land of Babylonia, and whatever the people have given for the temple of their Lord in Jerusalem, 14 collect all of it, gold and silver, for buying bulls, rams, lambs and the offerings that go with them, 15 so that sacrifices may be offered upon the altar of their Lord in Jerusalem. 16 And whatever you and your brothers wish to do with the gold and silver, perform it according to the will of your God. 17 And deliver the holy vessels of the Lord which are given to you for the use of the temple of your God in Jerusalem.[g] And whatever else occurs to you as needed for the temple of your God, 18 you shall pay for it out of the king's treasury. 19 And I, King Artaxerxes, hereby order the treasurers of Syria and Phoenicia to give Ezra the priest, the reader of the law of the Most High God, whatever he asks for,
with diligence, up to about seventy-five hundred pounds of silver,[h] 20 and likewise up to about six hundred fifty bushels of wheat and a thousand gallons of wine,[i] 21 Let everything be fulfilled for the Most High God as the law of God directs, lest wrath fall on the realm of the king and his sons. 22 It is also announced to you that no tribute or other burden may be imposed on any priest, Levite, temple singer, gatekeeper, temple servant, or anyone working in this temple, and that no one has the authority to levy any tax on them. 23 And you, Ezra, according to the wisdom of God, appoint judges and magistrates to judge throughout all Syria and Phoenicia all those who know the law of your God; and those who do not know it you shall teach. 24 And all who transgress the law of your God and of the king shall be duly punished, whether by death or by other penalty, whether by fine of money or by imprisonment."[j] 25 Blessed be the Lord alone, who put these things into the heart of the king, to glorify his house which is in Jerusalem, 26 and who honored me in the sight of the king and his counselors and all his friends and nobles. 27 So I was encouraged by the help of the Lord my God, and gathered men from Israel to go up with me.

28 And these are the leaders according to their fathers' houses and their divisions, who went up with me from Babylon in the reign of King Artaxerxes:[k] 29 Of the sons of Phinehas, Gershom; of the sons of Ithamar, Gamael;[l] of the sons of David, Hattush[m] the son of Shecaniah; 30 of the sons of Parosh, Zechariah, and with him by register a hundred fifty men; 31 of the sons of Pahath-moab, Eliehoenai the son of Zerahiah, and with him two hundred men; 32 of the sons of Zathoes, Jeconiah the son of Jethelus, and with him two hundred men; of the sons of Adin, Obed the son of Jonathan, and with him two hundred fifty men; 33 of the sons of Elam, Jeshaiah the son of Athaliah,[n] and with him seventy men; 34 of the sons of Shephatiah, Zeraiah the son of Michael, and with him seventy men; 35 of the sons of Joab, Obadiah the son of Jehiel, and with him two hundred twelve men; 36 from the descendants of Bani, Shelomith son of Josiphiah, and with him one hundred sixty men; 37 of the sons of Bebai, Zechariah the son of Bebai, and with him twenty-eight men; 38 of the sons of Azgad, Johanan the son of Hakkatan, and with him a hundred ten men; 39 of the sons of Adonikam, the last ones, and these are their names: Eliphelet, Jeuel, and Shemaiah, and with them seventy men; 40 of the sons of Bigvai, Uthai the son of Istacalcus, and with him seventy men.

41 And I assembled them by the river named Theras,[o] and there we lay in camp three days, and I reviewed them. 42 And when I found there none of the priests or of the Levites, 43 I sent for these leaders and men of learning: Eleazar, Iduel, Maasmas, Elnathan, Shemaiah, Jarib, Nathan, Elnathan, Zechariah, Meshullam; 44 and I bade them go to Iddo,[p] the chief man in the place of the treasury, 45 charging them to speak with Iddo and his kinsmen and the treasurers there, that they should send us such as might minister as priests in our Lord's house.
46 And they brought us a man of understanding, Sherebiah, from the sons of Mahli,[q] the descendant of Levi the son of Israel, with his sons and kinsmen, ten; 47 and of the sons of Chanuneus[r] and their sons, twenty men; 48 and from the temple servants whom David and the leaders had assigned to assist the Levites, two hundred twenty temple servants; a record of all their names was submitted.
49 And there I vowed a fast for the young men before our Lord, 50 to seek from him a prosperous journey for us and for our children and our cattle that were with us. 51 For I was ashamed to ask the king for horsemen and foot soldiers as an escort, to keep us safe against our adversaries; 52 for we had told the king, "The might of our Lord shall be with them that seek him, to set all things right."[s] 53 And again we besought our Lord concerning all these things, and found him very merciful.
54 Then I set apart twelve men of the chiefs of the priests, Sherebiah and Hashabiah, and with them ten men of their brothers; 55 and I weighed out to them the silver and the gold and the holy vessels of the house of our Lord, which the king and his counselors and the nobles and all Israel had given. 56 And when I had weighed it, I delivered to them about forty-nine thousand pounds of silver, and silver vessels weighing about seventy-five hundred pounds, and about seventy-five hundred pounds of gold,[t] and twenty gold vessels, and ten[u] bronze vessels of fine bronze that glittered like gold. 57 And I said to them, "You yourselves are holy to the Lord, and the vessels are holy, and the silver and the gold are a vow to the Lord, the Lord of our fathers.

58 Watch and keep them until you hand them over in Jerusalem to the chiefs of the priests and Levites and the heads of Israel's families, in the chambers of our Lord's house." 59 So the priests and the Levites who received the silver and the gold and the vessels which had been in Jerusalem[v] brought them into the temple of the Lord.
60 And we set out from the river Theras on the twelfth day of the first month (March–April),[w] and came to Jerusalem by the mighty hand of our Lord, which was upon us; and from the beginning of our journey the Lord delivered us from every enemy, and so we came to Jerusalem. 61 When we had been there three days, the silver and gold were weighed and handed over in the house of our Lord to the priest Meremoth, the son of Uriah;[x] 62 and with him was Eleazar the son of Phinehas, and with them were Jozabad the son of Jeshua and Moeth the son of Binnui, the Levites. All was delivered by number and weight, and the whole weight was recorded at that very hour. 63
And those who had come out of the captivity offered sacrifices to the Lord, the God of Israel: twelve bulls for all Israel,[y] ninety-six rams, seventy-six[z] lambs, and twelve goats for a peace offering, all as a sacrifice to the Lord. 64 And they handed over the king's commands to the king's stewards and the governors of Coele-Syria and Phoenicia; and these honored the nation and the temple of the Lord.
65 Now when this was finished, the chief men approached me, saying, 66 "Neither the nation of Israel nor the princes nor the priests nor the Levites have separated from them the foreign peoples of the land with their uncleanness, the Canaanites, Hittites, Perizzites, Jebusites, Moabites, Egyptians, and Edomites. 67 For they and their sons have married the daughters of these peoples, and the holy seed has been mixed with the foreign peoples of the land; and from the start the leaders and nobles have taken part in this lawlessness." 68 As soon as I heard this, I tore my clothes and my holy robe, pulled hair from my head and beard, and sat down, disturbed and full of grief. 69 Everyone who had ever been stirred by the word of the Lord of Israel gathered around me while I mourned this lawlessness, and I sat grieving until the evening sacrifice.[aa] 70 Then I rose from my fasting, with my garments and my holy robe torn, and bowing my knees and stretching out my hands to the Lord, I said, 71 "O Lord, I am ashamed and confounded before your face. 72 For our sins have multiplied above our heads, and our errors have risen up to heaven 73 ever since our fathers' days; and to this day we are deep in sin. 74 And for our sins and our fathers' sins, we together with our brothers, our kings, and our priests were handed over to the earth's kings, for the sword, for exile, and for plunder with disgrace, until this very day. 75 And now, how great is the mercy that has come to us from you, O Lord,[ab] that there should be left to us a root and a name in your holy place, 76 and that you would reveal a light to us in the house of the Lord our God, and give us food in this time of slavery! 77 Even while we were slaves our Lord did not forsake us, but gave us grace before the Persian kings, so that they gave us food 78 and glorified the temple of our Lord, and raised up desolate Zion, to give us a sure dwelling in Judea and Jerusalem. 79 And now, O Lord, what shall we say, having these things? For we have transgressed your commandments, which you gave by your servants the prophets, saying, 80 'The land which you are entering to possess is a land defiled with the pollution of the aliens of the land, and they have filled it with their uncleanness. 81 Therefore you shall not give your daughters to their sons, nor take their daughters for your sons; 82 and you must never seek peace with them, so that you may be strong, enjoy the good things of the land, and leave it as an inheritance to your children forever.' 83 And everything that has happened to us has come because of our evil deeds and great sins. For you, Lord, have eased the weight of our sins 84 and gave us such a root as this; yet we have turned back again to transgress your law by mingling with the uncleanness of the nations of the land. 85 Were you not angry enough with us to destroy us, until you left us neither root nor seed nor name?[ac] 86 O Lord of Israel, you are true; for we are left a root this day. 87 Behold, we are now before you in our lawlessness; for we can no longer stand before you because of these things."

88 And while Ezra was praying and making his confession, weeping and lying upon the ground before the temple, there gathered to him from Jerusalem a very great crowd, men and women and youths; for there was great weeping among the multitude. [89] Then Jeconiah son of Jeelus, one of the Israelites, spoke up and said to Ezra, "We have sinned against the Lord by marrying foreign women from the peoples of the land; yet there is still hope for all Israel.[ad] [90] Let us swear an oath to the Lord about this, that we will send away all our foreign wives and their children, as you have decided, along with everyone who obeys the law of the Lord. [91] Rise up and carry it out; for the matter rests with you, and we are with you to act with strength." [92] Then Ezra rose and put the leaders of the priests and Levites of all Israel under oath to do these things; and they swore to it.

Notes

- a (8:1) Artaxerxes (Persian Artakhshassa, perhaps "whose rule is through truth"), most likely Artaxerxes I (465–424 BC), although some date Ezra's mission under Artaxerxes II (404–358 BC). 8:1–9:36 parallels Ezra 7:1–10:44.
- b (8:1) Ezra means "help." The Greek form Esdras, used in the title of the book, renders the same name.
- c (8:1) The genealogy parallels Ezra 7:1–5 (Seraiah, Azariah, Hilkiah, Shallum, Zadok, Ahitub, Amariah, Azariah, Meraioth, and then Zerahiah, Uzzi, Bukki, Abishua, Phinehas, Eleazar, Aaron); the Greek forms are kept here. Aaron perhaps means "enlightened" or "mountaineer" (uncertain).
- d (8:6) Greek "in the fifth month," that is, Av, on the spring-start calendar (Ezra 7:8). The seventh year of Artaxerxes I is 458 BC.
- e (8:6) Greek "this was the second year for the king," evidently a corruption; Ezra 7:8 has "the seventh year of the king."
- f (8:7) Swete's Greek reads Apsaros here, a corruption of the name Ezra.
- g (8:17) Greek "and according to your holy vessels given…"; Ezra 7:19 reads "the vessels that are given to you … deliver before the God of Jerusalem."
- h (8:19) Greek "up to a hundred talents of silver." A talent was about 75 pounds (34 kg), so a hundred talents is about 7,500 pounds (3,400 kg).
- i (8:20) Greek "up to a hundred kors of wheat and a hundred measures (metrētai) of wine." A kor was about 6½ bushels (about 220 liters); a metrētēs was about 10 gallons (39 liters). Ezra 7:22 adds a hundred baths of oil and salt without limit.
- j (8:24) Greek "not by fine of money or imprisonment," apparently a corruption; Ezra 7:26 lists "death, banishment, confiscation of goods, or imprisonment."
- k (8:28) Here the narrative changes to the first person (Ezra's own memoir), as in Ezra 7:27–9:15. The names in verses 29–48 are given in the forms of Ezra 8:1–20 where Swete's Greek is plainly the same name (Swete has, for example, Phoros for Phinehas, Gamelos, Phares for Parosh, and Elialonias Zaraiou); the remaining Greek forms are kept.

- l (8:29) Gershom means "a stranger there" (Exodus 2:22); Ithamar perhaps means "land of palms"; Gamael corresponds to Daniel in Ezra 8:2.
- m (8:29) Swete's Greek lacks the name and reads "of the sons of David, Phares, Zacharias"; Hattush the son of Shecaniah is supplied from Ezra 8:2–3 (other Greek copies reportedly have it as well). Hattush was a descendant of Zerubbabel (1 Chronicles 3:22).
- n (8:33) Greek "Esias son of Gotholias," the Jeshaiah son of Athaliah of Ezra 8:7.
- o (8:41) Greek Thera (Ezra 8:15, 21, 31, Ahava), an unidentified river or canal near Babylon.
- p (8:44) Greek Laadaios and Lodaios (the same man), Iddo in Ezra 8:17, the leader at Casiphia; the Greek has "the place of the treasury."
- q (8:46) Mahli means "sickly" or perhaps "shrewd." Swete has the single name Asebebias for Sherebiah (Ezra 8:18).
- r (8:47) Greek Chanunaios. Ezra 8:19 has "Hashabiah, and with him Jeshaiah of the sons of Merari, with his brothers and their sons, twenty"; other Greek copies reportedly have a longer text naming Hashabiah, Annunus, and Jeshaiah.
- s (8:52) Greek "for all restoration" (eis pasan epanorthōsin); compare Ezra 8:22, where God's hand is on everyone who seeks him for good.
- t (8:56) Greek "six hundred fifty talents of silver, and silver vessels of a hundred talents, and a hundred talents of gold." At about 75 pounds (34 kg) to the talent, these are about 48,750 pounds (22,100 kg) of silver, about 7,500 pounds (3,400 kg) of silver vessels, and about 7,500 pounds of gold (compare Ezra 8:26).
- u (8:56) So Swete; other Greek copies reportedly read "twelve." Ezra 8:27 has "two vessels of fine bright bronze, precious as gold."
- v (8:59) Greek "the vessels in Jerusalem"; the sense is that they received them to carry to Jerusalem.
- w (8:60) Greek "on the twelfth day of the first month," that is, Nisan, on the spring-start calendar (Ezra 8:31).
- x (8:61) Uriah means "Yahweh is my light." Swete has "Marmoth Ouria" (Ezra 8:33, Meremoth the son of Uriah).
- y (8:63) Swete's text as transcribed lacks "twelve bulls for all Israel … rams," reading only "ninety-six"; the words are supplied from Ezra 8:35.
- z (8:63) So Swete; Ezra 8:35 has seventy-seven.
- aa (8:69) The evening offering, about 3 p.m. (the ninth hour from 6 a.m.), when Ezra 9:5 also says he rose from his fasting.
- ab (8:75) Greek "from the Lord Lord" (kyriou Kyriou), perhaps a scribal doubling; Ezra 9:8 has "from Yahweh our God."
- ac (8:85) Greek "You were not angry with us so as to destroy us…," a statement; compare Ezra 9:14, which is a question. The question form is followed here.

- ad (8:89) Greek "and now all Israel is above," a corrupt phrase; Ezra 10:2 has "yet now there is hope for Israel concerning this thing."

Chapter 9

1 Then Ezra rose from the court of the temple and went to the chamber of Jehohanan the son of Eliashib,[a] 2 and he lodged there, and ate no bread and drank no water, mourning over the great lawlessness of the multitude. 3 And a proclamation was made throughout all Judea and Jerusalem to all who were of the captivity, that they should assemble at Jerusalem; 4 and that whoever did not meet them within two or three days, according to the decision of the elders who presided, should have his cattle devoted to the temple,[b] and he himself should be cut off from the multitude of the captivity.
5 So within three days the men of Judah and Benjamin came together at Jerusalem; it was the twentieth of the ninth month (November– December).[c] 6 And all the multitude sat together in the open square of the temple, shivering because of the winter that had set in.[d] 7 Ezra stood up and said to them, "You have broken the law by marrying foreign wives, and so you have added to Israel's sin. 8 And now make confession and give glory to the Lord God of our fathers, 9 and do his will, and separate yourselves from the nations of the land and from the foreign women." 10 The whole crowd then shouted with a loud voice, "We will do as you say. 11 But the crowd is large, it is winter, and we cannot stand outside; we have found no shelter;[e] and this is not a job for one day or two, because we have committed a great sin in this matter. 12 So let the leaders of the assembly stay, and let everyone from our towns who has a foreign wife come at set times, 13 with the elders and judges of each place, until we turn away the wrath of the Lord from us over this matter." 14 Jonathan the son of Asahel and Jahzeiah the son of Tikvah[f] undertook the business accordingly, with Meshullam, Levi, and Shabbethai sitting as umpires alongside them.
15 And those of the captivity did according to all these things.
16 And Ezra the priest chose for himself men who were heads of their fathers' houses, all of them by name; and they sat down together on the new moon of the tenth month (December–January)[g] to examine the matter. 17 The cases of the men who had foreign wives were finished by the new moon of the first month (March–April).[h]

18 And of the priests who had come together and were found to have foreign wives there were: 19 of the sons of Jeshua the son of Jozadak and his brothers, Maaseiah, Eleazar, Jarib, and Jodan.[i] 20 And they gave their hands[j] to put away their wives, and to offer rams in atonement for their error. 21 And of the sons of Immer: Hanani, Zabdaeus, Manes, Samaeus, Hiereel, and Azariah. 22 And of the sons of Pashhur: Elionai, Massias, Ishmael, Nathanael, Ocidelus, and Salthas.[k] 23 And of the Levites: Jozabad, Shimei, Kelaiah (that is, Kelita), Pethahiah, Judah, and Jonas. 24 Of the temple singers: Eliashib and Bacchurus.[l] 25 Of the gatekeepers: Shallum and Tolbanes. 26 Of Israel, of the sons of Parosh: Hiermas, Jeddias, Malchijah, Mijamin, Eleazar, Hashabiah, and Benaiah.[m] 27 Of the sons of Elam: Mattaniah, Zechariah, Jezrielus, Obadiah, Jeremoth, and Elijah. 28 And of the sons of Zamoth: Eliadas, Eliashib, Othoniah, Jerimoth, Sabathus, and Zeralias. 29 And of the sons of Bebai: Johanan, Hananiah, Zabdus, and Emathis. 30 And of the sons of Mani: Olamus, Mamuchus, Jedaeus, Jashub, Asaelus, and Jeremoth. 31 And of the sons of Addi: Naathus, Moossias, Laccunus, Naidus, Bescaspasmys, Sesthel, Balnuus, and Manasseas.[n] 32 And of the sons of Annan: Elionas, Asaeas, Malchijah, Sabbaeas, and Simon Chosamaeus. 33 And of the sons of Hashum: Maltannaeus, Mattathias, Sabannaeus, Eliphalat, Manasseh, Semei. 34 And of the sons of Bani: Jeremai, Momdis, Maerus, Joel, Mamdai, Bedeiah, Vaniah, Carabasion, Enasibus, Mamnitanaemus, Eliasis, Binnui, Elialis, Shimei, Shelemiah, and Nethaniah. And of the sons of Ezora: Shashai, Azarel, Azael, Shemaiah, Amariah, and Joseph.[o] 35 Of the sons of Nooma: Mazitias, Zabadaeas, Iddo, Joel, and Benaiah. 36 Every one of these had taken foreign wives, and they sent them away with the children.[p] 37 And the priests and the Levites and those of Israel settled in Jerusalem and in the country. On the new moon of the seventh month (September–October),[q] when the sons of Israel were in their settlements, 38 the whole multitude came together as one man into the broad place before the temple gate toward the east;[r] 39 and they bade Ezra, priest and reader, fetch the law of Moses that the God of Israel had handed down. 40 So Ezra the chief priest[s] brought the law to all the multitude, both men and women, and to all the priests, that they might hear the law, on the new moon of the seventh month.

41 And from early morning until noon he read in the broad place in front of the temple gate, before men and women alike; and they gave all their attention to the law. 42 And Ezra the priest and reader of the law stood upon the wooden platform which had been made for the purpose; 43 and there stood beside him on his right Mattathias, Sammus, Hananiah, Azariah, Uriah, Hezekiah, and Baalsamus; 44 and on his left Phaldaeus, Mishael, Malchijah, Lothasubus, Nabariah, and Zechariah. 45 Then Ezra took up the book in the sight of the multitude, for he sat in the place of honor in the sight of all; 46 and when he opened the law, they all stood upright. And Azariah[t] blessed the Lord, the Most High God, the God of hosts, the Almighty;[u] 47 and all the multitude answered, "Amen, amen!" And lifting up their hands they fell to the ground and worshiped the Lord. 48 Jeshua, Anniuth, Sara-bias, Jadinus, Jarsubus, Abtaeus, Autaeas, Maiannas, Calitas, Azarias, Jozabdus, Annias, Phalias, the Levites, taught the law of the Lord, and read the law of the Lord to the multitude, at the same time giving the sense of what was read.[v]

49 And Attharates[w] spoke to Ezra, high priest and reader, and to the Levites who instructed the people, and to everyone: 50 "This day is holy to the Lord"; for they were all weeping as they heard the law.[x] 51 "Go then, and eat the fat and drink the sweet, and send portions to those who have none; 52 for this day is holy to the Lord; do not be sad, for the Lord will glorify you." 53 The Levites likewise gave charge to the whole people: "This day is holy; be not grieved." 54 Then they all went their way to eat and drink and make merry, and to give portions to those who had none, and to rejoice greatly; 55 for the words they had been taught had filled them with fervor. And they came together.[y]

Notes

- a (9:1) Greek "the chamber of Jonas the son of Naseibos" (Swete); Ezra 10:6 has Jehohanan the son of Eliashib, whose names are followed here. Jehohanan means "Yahweh is gracious"; Eliashib means "God restores."

- b (9:4) Greek "devoted" or "consecrated" (aniĕrōthēsontai), that is, forfeited to the sanctuary; compare Ezra 10:8, "all his property should be forfeited."
- c (9:5) Greek "this was the ninth month, on the twentieth of the month," that is, Kislev, on the spring-start calendar (Ezra 10:9).
- d (9:6) Greek "trembling because of the present winter"; Ezra 10:9 adds "because of this matter and because of the heavy rain." Kislev falls in the rainy season.
- e (9:11) Greek "and we have not found (it)," an obscure phrase; the sense may be that they have not been able to complete the task, or that there is no shelter.
- f (9:14) Greek "Jonathas son of Azaelus and Ezekias son of Thokanos"; the names follow Ezra 10:15. Jonathan means "Yahweh has given"; Tikvah means "hope." In Ezra 10:15 these men oppose the plan; here they carry it out.
- g (9:16) Greek "on the new moon of the tenth month," that is, Tevet, on the spring-start calendar (Ezra 10:16).
- h (9:17) Greek "until the new moon of the first month," that is, Nisan, on the spring-start calendar (Ezra 10:17). The examination thus took about three months.
- i (9:19) Greek Maeēlas, Eleazaros, Ioribos, Iōdanos; the forms of Ezra 10:18 (Maaseiah, Eliezer, Jarib, Gedaliah) are partly followed. 9:18–36 parallels the list of Ezra 10:18–44; many names differ, and the Greek forms are generally kept in this list.
- j (9:20) That is, they pledged themselves (Ezra 10:19).
- k (9:22) Swete's forms are Phaisur, Elionais, Asseias, Ismaelos, Nathanaelos, Okaildos, Salthas; compare Ezra 10:22 (Pashhur, Elioenai, Maaseiah, Ishmael, Nethanel, Jozabad, Elasah).
- l (9:24) Swete has Eliasebos and Bakchouros; Ezra 10:24 names only Eliashib among the singers.
- m (9:26) Swete has Phoros (Parosh), Ierma, Iezeias, Melcheias, Milelos, Eleazaros, Asebeias, Bannaias; compare Ezra 10:25.
- n (9:31) Swete has Addein; Ezra 10:30 has Pahath-moab. The Greek list in this verse differs considerably from Ezra.
- o (9:34) In Swete the list runs to the end of verse 35, and the sons of Ezora are part of verse 34. Swete's forms here include Ierēmias, Momdeios, Maēros, Iouna, Mamdai, Pedias, Anōs, Karabaseion, Enaseibos, Mamtanaimos, Eliaseis, Bannous, Edialeis, Someeis, Selemias, Nathanias; and for the sons of Ezora, Seseis, Ezreil, Azaēlos, Samatos, Zambrei, Phosēpos. Some forms are adapted toward Ezra 10:34–42.
- p (9:36) Greek "and they sent them away with children." Ezra 10:44 ends with an obscure Hebrew clause, often rendered "and some of the wives had borne children."
- q (9:37) Greek "on the new moon of the seventh month," that is, Tishri, on the spring-start calendar. 9:37–55 parallels Nehemiah 7:73–8:12. In 1 Esdras, Nehemiah does not appear in this scene; see the note on verse 49.
- r (9:38) Nehemiah 8:1 has "the square before the Water Gate."
- s (9:40) Greek archiereus, "high priest"; in Nehemiah 8:2 Ezra is called "the priest."
- t (9:46) Azariah is not in Nehemiah 8:6, where Ezra himself blesses the Lord; Azariah has been named among those standing beside him (verse 43).

- u (9:46) Greek Pantokratōr, “ruler of all,” the Septuagint word for the Hebrew Sabaoth (“of hosts”) and Shaddai; “Almighty” renders it in this translation. Swete reads simply “the Most High God, the Almighty”; “the Lord … the God of hosts” follows Nehemiah 8:6 and other Greek copies, as reported.
- v (9:48) Greek emphysiountes, literally “breathing into” the reading, that is, making it come alive and giving its meaning (compare Nehemiah 8:8, “they gave the sense, so that the people understood the reading”).
- w (9:49) Greek Attharatēs, a corrupt form of the Persian title tirshatha, “governor,” given to Nehemiah in Nehemiah 8:9 (compare 1 Esdras 5:40, Attharias). 1 Esdras treats it as a personal name.
- x (9:50) Nehemiah 8:9 has “Do not mourn or weep,” and explains, “for all the people wept when they heard the words of the law.”
- y (9:55) The book ends abruptly in the middle of the Nehemiah narrative (Nehemiah 8:12–13). The last words, “And they assembled together,” correspond to the start of Nehemiah 8:13 and suggest that the end of the book has been lost; the work may originally have continued with the Feast of Booths. Josephus, who used 1 Esdras for his account of this period (Antiquities 11), reportedly continues the story to Ezra’s death.

2 Esdras

Apocrypha

Chapter 1

The Second Book of Ezra the Prophet

1 The second book of the prophet Ezra,[b] the son of Sareus, the son of Azareus, the son of Helcias, the son of Sadanias, the son of Sadoc, the son of Achitob, 2 the son of Achias, the son of Phinees, the son of Heli, the son of Amerias, the son of Asiel, the son of Marimoth, the son of Arna, the son of Ozias, the son of Borith, the son of Abiseus, the son of Phinees, the son of Eleazar, 3 a descendant of Aaron from the tribe of Levi, who was held captive in the land of the Medes when Artaxerxes was king of Persia.[c] 4 And this word from the Lord[d] came to me: 5 "Go and tell my people about their crimes, and tell their children about the wrongs they have done to me, so that they can pass it on to their grandchildren; 6 for the sins of their parents have grown great in them; they have forgotten me and offered sacrifice to foreign gods. 7 Was it not I who brought them out of the land of Egypt, out of the house of slavery? Yet they have provoked me to anger and scorned my counsels. 8 But you, pull the hair from your head[e] and heap every evil on them, for they have not obeyed my law; they are a people who will not take correction.
9 How long shall I bear with them, on whom I have bestowed such great benefits? 10 On their account I overturned many kings; Pharaoh, together with his servants and his whole host, I struck down. 11
I destroyed all the nations before them; and in the east I scattered the peoples of two provinces, Tyre and Sidon,[f] and I killed all their enemies.
12 "But you, speak to them and say, 'Thus says the Lord: 13 It was I who brought you through the sea and made you walled roads where there were none.[g] I gave you Moses as your leader and Aaron as your priest; 14 I gave you light with a pillar of fire and did great wonders among you. And still you have forgotten me, says the Lord.

15 "'Thus says the Lord Almighty: The quail was a sign to you; I gave you a camp for your protection, and there you grumbled. 16 You did not exult in my name at the destruction of your enemies, but even to this day you still grumble. 17 What has become of the kindnesses I showed you? In the desert, when hunger came on you, did you not cry aloud to me 18 saying, "Why did you bring us into this wilderness to kill us? We would have been better off serving the Egyptians than dying in this wilderness." 19 I felt pity at your groaning and gave you manna to eat; you ate the bread of angels. 20 When thirst came on you, was it not I who cut open the rock, and waters ran out until you had your fill? Against the burning heat I sheltered you with leaves from the trees.[h] 21 I divided fertile lands among you; I drove out the Canaanites and the Perizzites and the Philistines before you. What more shall I do for you? says the Lord.
22 "'Thus says the Lord Almighty: When you were in the wilderness at the river of the Amorites,[i] thirsty and blaspheming my name, 23 I sent no fire on you in return for your blasphemies, but cast a piece of wood into the water and turned the river sweet. 24 What shall I do to you, Jacob? You would not obey, Judah. I will turn to other nations and give them my name, so that they may keep my statutes. 25 Because you have forsaken me, I also will forsake you. When you ask me for mercy, I will show you none. 26 When you cry out to me, I will not listen; your hands are stained with blood, and your feet are quick to commit murder. 27 Yet it is not I that you have abandoned, but your own selves, says the Lord.
28 "'Thus says the Lord Almighty: Have I not pleaded with you as a father pleads with his sons, or a mother with her daughters, or a nurse with her little ones, 29 that you should be my people and I your God, that you should be my children and I your father? 30 I gathered you as a hen gathers her chicks under her wings.[j] But now, what shall I do to you? I will cast you out from my presence. 31 When you bring me offerings, I will turn my face from you; for I have rejected your feast days and new moons and circumcisions. 32 I sent you my servants

the prophets, and you took them and killed them and mutilated their bodies; I will require their blood, says the Lord.
33 "'This is what the Lord Almighty says: Your house is left a desert. I will toss you away as the wind tosses stubble; 34 and your children will have no offspring, because they have neglected my commandment and done what is evil in my sight. 35 I will hand over your houses to a people that is coming, who will believe though they have not heard me; to whom I have shown no signs, yet they will do what I have commanded. 36 They have not seen the prophets, yet they will call to mind the wrongs of those before them.[k] 37 I call to witness the gratitude of the people that is coming, whose little ones leap for joy; they do not see me with bodily eyes, yet in spirit they believe what I have said.
38 "'And now, brother,[l] behold the glory, and look upon the people that comes from the sunrise; 39 I will grant them for guides Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, Hosea, Amos, Micah, Joel, Obadiah, Jonah, 40 Nahum, Habakkuk, Zephaniah, Haggai, Zechariah, and Malachi, whom men also call the angel of the Lord.' "[m]

Notes

- a (1:0) Chapters 1–2 are a later Christian addition to the book, often called 5 Ezra (Fifth Ezra); they are written as a prophecy of Ezra rejecting Israel in favor of a people "coming from the east" and are generally dated to the 2nd or 3rd century AD. They are preserved only in Latin, in two forms (a "French" and a "Spanish" family of manuscripts, as reported); this translation follows the Clementine Vulgate text, with significant differences noted. See the introduction to the book.
- b (1:1) Ezra means "help." The genealogy follows Ezra 7:1–5 with additions (Ahijah, Eli, Aziel, Arna, Borith; compare 1 Chronicles 6:4–14). Seraiah means "Yahweh contends"; Hilkiah, "Yahweh is my portion"; Zadok, "righteous"; Phinehas is an Egyptian name, "the Nubian"; Eleazar means "God has helped." The names are given here in their Latin forms: Sareus is Seraiah, Azareus Azariah, Helcias Hilkiah, Sadanias perhaps Shallum, Sadoc Zadok, Achitob Ahitub, Achias Ahijah, Phinees Phinehas, Heli Eli, Amerias Amariah, Marimoth Meraioth, Ozias Uzzi, and Abiseus Abishua.
- c (1:3) Artaxerxes (Persian Artakhshassa) was the king under whom Ezra came to Jerusalem (Ezra 7:1). The statement that Ezra was a captive in Media is found only here.

- d (1:4) Latin Dominus, "Lord." In this book, which survives from the Latin, "Lord" renders Dominus throughout, and "the Lord Almighty" renders Dominus omnipotens.
- e (1:8) A sign of grief and anger; compare Ezra 9:3.
- f (1:11) Latin "the peoples of two provinces, Tyre and Sidon"; the text is uncertain, and some manuscripts reportedly lack the names.
- g (1:13) Latin "I showed you streets (or broad ways) fortified from the beginning"; compare Exodus 14:22, where the waters were a wall on either side.
- h (1:20) An addition to the Exodus story, not found in the Hebrew Bible; compare Wisdom 19:7 and the shade of Psalm 105:39 (Septuagint 104:39).
- i (1:22) Latin "in the river of the Amorites"; the story is that of Marah (Exodus 15:22–25), and the location is uncertain.
- j (1:30) Compare Matthew 23:37 and Luke 13:34; chapters 1–2 contain many echoes of the New Testament.
- k (1:36) Latin "and they will remember their iniquities," that is, perhaps, the new people will recall the sins of Israel; the sense is debated, and other manuscripts reportedly read differently.
- l (1:38) Latin frater, "brother," in the Clementine text; other manuscripts reportedly have pater, "father," which fits 2:5. The Lord addresses Ezra. Latin "see what glory," perhaps "see with pride."
- m (1:40) Malachi means "my messenger" (Malachi 3:1); the Latin adds that he "is also called the angel of the Lord," reflecting a tradition, found also in the Targum, that the prophet was an angel or identifying him with Ezra himself. The twelve Minor Prophets are listed in the order of the Septuagint for the first six.

Chapter 2

1 This is what the Lord says: "I led this people out of bondage, and gave them commands by my servants the prophets; they refused to hear them and set my counsels at nothing. 2 The mother who bore them[a] says to them, 'Go, my children, for I am a widow and forsaken. 3 I brought you up with gladness, and I have lost you with mourning and sorrow, because you have sinned before the Lord your God and done what is evil in his sight. 4 But now what can I do for you? I am a widow and forsaken. Go, my children, and ask the Lord for mercy.' 5 But you, father,[b] I summon to bear witness, along with the children's mother, that they refused to keep my covenant, 6 that you may bring confusion upon them, and give their mother up to plunder, so that they may have no offspring. 7 Scatter their names among the nations;

wipe them out from the earth, for they have treated my sacred pledge with contempt.[c]
8 "Woe to you, Assyria,[d] who hide the unrighteous in your midst! Wicked nation, remember what I did to Sodom and Gomorrah, 9 whose land lies in lumps of pitch and heaps of ashes. So I will make those who have not listened to me, says the Lord Almighty."
10 This is what the Lord says to Ezra: "Announce to my people that the kingdom of Jerusalem, which I meant for Israel, I will give to them. 11 Their glory I will take for myself, and to these I will give the everlasting tents I had made ready for the others. 12 They will have the tree of life for fragrant perfume, and they will neither toil nor grow weary. 13 Go, and you will receive; pray that the days may be few for you, that they may be shortened.[e] The kingdom is already prepared for you; watch! 14 Call heaven and earth to witness; for I have broken evil in pieces and created good, for I live, says the Lord.
15 "Mother, embrace your children; bring them up with gladness. Make their feet firm like a dove's, for I have chosen you, says the Lord. 16 And I will raise the dead from their places, and bring them out of their tombs, for I have recognized my name in them.[f] 17 Do not be afraid, mother of the children, for I have chosen you, says the Lord. 18 To help you I will send my servants Isaiah and Jeremiah. By their counsel I have hallowed and made ready for you twelve trees heavy with fruits of many kinds, 19 as well as many springs flowing with milk and honey, and seven mighty mountains covered with roses and lilies;[g] with these I will fill your children with joy. 20 Do justice for the widow, secure justice for the ward, give to the needy, protect the orphan, clothe the naked, 21 care for the broken and the weak, do not mock the lame, protect the maimed, and let the blind come into the sight of my splendor. 22 Guard the old and the young within your walls. 23 Wherever you find the dead, sign them and commit them to the tomb,[h] and I will give you the first seat in my resurrection. 24 Stop, my people, and take your rest, for your rest is on its way. 25 Good nurse, nourish your children; make their feet firm. 26 As for the servants whom I have given you, not one of them shall perish, for I will require them from among your number. 27 Do not be weary; for when the day of distress and anguish comes, others will weep and be sorrowful, but you will be cheerful and have plenty. 28 The nations will envy you, but they will be able to do nothing against you, says the Lord. 29 My hands will cover you, so that your children may not see Gehenna.[i] 30 Rejoice, mother, with your children, for I will deliver you, says the Lord. 31 Remember your children who are asleep, because I will lead them out of the hidden places of the earth[j] and show them mercy; for I am merciful, says the Lord Almighty. 32 Embrace your children until I come, and proclaim mercy to them;[k] for my springs overflow, and my grace will not fail."

33 I, Ezra, was given a command by the Lord on Mount Horeb[l] to go to Israel; but when I reached them, they turned me away and rejected the Lord's commandment. 34 So I tell you, nations that listen and understand: "Wait for your shepherd; he will give you eternal rest, because the one who will come at the end of the age is near. 35 Be ready for the rewards of the kingdom, for everlasting light will shine upon you for evermore. 36 Escape from the shadow of this world, and take hold of the delight of your glory. I openly bear witness to my Savior.[m] 37 Receive what has been entrusted to you and be glad, giving thanks to him who has called you to the heavenly kingdoms. 38 Get up and stand, and look at the number of those who have received the seal[n] at the Lord's feast. 39 They who have passed over out of the world's shadow have been given shining robes by the Lord. 40 Take back your full number, Zion, and close the roll of those who belong to you and are dressed in white,[o] who have kept the law of the Lord. 41 The number of your children whom you desired is full; implore the authority of the Lord that your people, who have been called from the beginning, may be made holy."

42 I, Ezra, saw upon Mount Zion a vast throng, more than I could count, and with songs they were all praising the Lord. 43 Among them stood a youth of lofty stature, higher than all the rest, who set crowns upon the head of each one, and he was lifted up all the more. And I was held fast in wonder. 44 Then I asked the angel, "Who are these, my lord?" 45 He replied, "These have laid aside the garment of mortality and taken on the garment of immortality, and they have confessed God's name.

Now they receive their crowns and their palms." [46] And I asked the angel, "And that youth who sets the crowns on them and gives the palms into their hands, who is he?" [47] He replied, "It is the Son of God, whom they confessed in this world." Then I began to extol those who had stood firm and brave for the Lord's name. [48] Then the angel said to me, "Go, tell my people what kind of wonders of the Lord God you have seen, and how great they are."

Notes

- a (2:2) The mother is Jerusalem or Zion (compare Baruch 4:9–23; Isaiah 54:1); later in the chapter (2:15–17) the mother is the church of the new people.
- b (2:5) Latin pater, "father," that is, Ezra, or perhaps God; the text is uncertain.
- c (2:7) Latin sacramentum, "sacred pledge," a word used of covenant and oath.
- d (2:8) The Latin has Assur, the old name of Assyria, here probably a symbol for Rome or for a hostile power; compare 15:28–33.
- e (2:13) Latin "ask for yourselves few days, that they may linger," an obscure phrase; the sense may be that the days before the end should be shortened (compare Matthew 24:22).
- f (2:16) Latin "for I have known my name in Israel"; the Clementine text, followed here, reads "in Israel," which seems contrary to the context; other manuscripts reportedly read differently.
- g (2:19) The twelve trees, springs of milk and honey, and seven mountains recall Revelation 22:2 and the paradise traditions of 1 Enoch 24–25; compare also 2 Esdras 2:12.
- h (2:23) Latin signans, "marking with a sign," perhaps the sign of the cross in burial; compare Tobit 1:17–18 on burying the dead.
- i (2:29) Gehenna, the Valley of Hinnom south of Jerusalem (Jeremiah 7:31–32), became a name for the place of fiery punishment of the wicked; compare 7:36.
- j (2:31) Latin "from the sides (or hidden recesses) of the earth."
- k (2:32) Latin "and that I may show them mercy."
- l (2:33) Horeb, another name for Mount Sinai (Exodus 3:1; Deuteronomy 5:2). The writer presents Ezra as a second Moses (compare 14:3–4).
- m (2:36) Latin "I testify openly to my Savior," a plainly Christian phrase; Ezra speaks as a herald of Christ.
- n (2:38) Compare Revelation 7:3–4, the sealing of the servants of God.
- o (2:40) Latin candidatos, "those clothed in white"; compare Revelation 3:4–5; 7:9, 13–14.

Chapter 3

[1] In the thirtieth year[a] after the ruin of the city[b] I was in Babylon. I lay troubled upon my bed, and my thoughts rose up over my heart,

2 for I had seen Zion forsaken, and the plenty of those who dwelt in Babylon. 3 My spirit was sorely shaken, and I began to address the Most High[c] with fearful words. 4 I said, "Lord and Master, at the beginning, when you planted the earth, you spoke, you alone, and gave command to the dust,[d] 5 and it yielded you Adam, a body without life. Yet he too was something your hands had shaped; you blew into him a spirit of life, and he came alive before you. 6 You brought him into the garden your right hand had planted before ever the earth came forth.[e] 7 To him you gave charge to love your way, but he went beyond it; and at once you laid death upon him and upon his generations. From him sprang nations and tribes, peoples and kindreds beyond count. 8 Each nation went its own willful road; they did outrageous things before you and scorned your precepts. 9 Again, in due season, you sent a deluge over those who peopled the world, and wiped them out. 10 And the same lot fell on each: as death fell to Adam, so the deluge to these. 11 Yet one among them you spared, Noah[f] and his house, and from him came all the just. 12 Then, when earth's inhabitants began to increase and had multiplied sons and peoples and many nations, they set about wickedness again, worse than the first. 13 And while they were doing evil before you, you picked out one man among them for yourself; Abraham[g] was his name. 14 Him you loved, and to him only you disclosed your will. 15 You set up an eternal covenant with him and told him you would never abandon his seed. You granted him Isaac, and to Isaac you granted Jacob and Esau. 16 Jacob you kept apart for yourself; Esau you put away. And Jacob grew into a vast throng. 17 When you brought his seed up out of Egypt, you led them to Mount Sinai. 18 You bowed the heavens and shook[h] the earth; you moved the globe and set the abysses trembling and threw the world into confusion. 19 Through four gates your glory went, fire and earthquake, wind and frost,[i] that you might give a law to Jacob's seed, and diligent teaching to the line of Israel. 20 Still you did not remove the wicked heart from them, so that your law could yield its fruit in them. 21 For the first Adam, carrying a wicked heart, broke your command and was overpowered, and so too all born from him. 22 So the weakness stayed on; the law was in the people's heart, but with the root's malice in it,[j] and the good went away while the wicked remained. 23 Times went by, the years ran out, and you raised up a servant for yourself called David. 24 You bade him build a city to your name and offer you frankincense and offerings in it. 25 For many years this was so. Then the city's people fell into sin, 26 in all things acting just as Adam and all his generations acted, for they too bore the wicked heart. 27 So you handed your city over into your enemies' hands.

28 "Then I said in my heart, 'Do Babylon's people act any better? Is that why she lords it over Zion?'[k] 29 For when I arrived here I beheld ungodliness past counting; these thirty years my soul has looked on a multitude of wrongdoers, and my heart sank within me. 30 I saw how you put up with their sinning, how you spare the godless, while your own people you have destroyed and your foes you have kept safe; and you have not made known[l] 31 to anyone how your way is to be grasped.[m] Is Babylon's conduct better than Zion's? 32 Has some other nation known you, apart from Israel? Or which tribes have trusted your covenants as Jacob has? 33 Yet no wage of theirs has come to light, and their toil has yielded nothing. I have traveled widely among the nations and seen them thriving, and they give no thought to your commands. 34 So now put our wrongs and the wrongs of the world's dwellers on the scales, and it will become plain which side the balance tips toward.[n] 35 When did the dwellers on earth ever fail to sin before you? What nation has observed your commands like this? 36 Men you may find, one by one and named, who have kept your commands; nations you will not find."

Notes

- a (3:1) Chapters 3–14 are the original Jewish apocalypse called 4 Ezra, written about AD 100 after the Roman destruction of Jerusalem (AD 70), in Hebrew or Aramaic; the original and the Greek translation are lost, and the book survives in Latin, Syriac, Ethiopic, and other versions. It consists of seven visions or episodes (3:1–5:20; 5:21–6:34; 6:35–9:25; 9:26–10:59; 11:1–12:51; 13:1–58; 14:1–48).
- b (3:1) The thirtieth year after the destruction of Jerusalem in 587/586 BC would be about 557 BC, a symbolic date that also points to about AD 100, thirty years after the Romans destroyed the city. The Clementine Latin begins here; other Latin manuscripts and the oriental versions reportedly begin, "I, Salathiel, who am also called Ezra," identifying the seer with Shealtiel, the father of Zerubbabel (1 Chronicles 3:17; Ezra 3:2).

- c (3:3) Latin Altissimus, "the Most High," the commonest name for God in this book.
- d (3:4) Latin "you commanded the people," evidently a corruption; the sense required is "the dust," from which Adam was made, as the Syriac reportedly reads.
- e (3:6) Latin "before the earth came forward"; the garden was believed to have been created before the world (compare 6:2–6; Genesis 2:8, where the Hebrew miqqedem can mean "from of old").
- f (3:11) Noah means "rest."
- g (3:13) Abraham means "father of a multitude" (Genesis 17:5).
- h (3:18) Latin statuisti, "you set (the earth) fast"; the Syriac reportedly reads "shook," which suits the context.
- i (3:19) Compare Exodus 19:16–18 and Psalm 68:8. The "four gates" are perhaps four heavenly regions through which the glory of God passed to Sinai.
- j (3:22) Latin "with the malignity of the root"; the "evil heart" (Latin cor malignum) corresponds to the rabbinic notion of the evil inclination (yetzer ha-ra).
- k (3:28) Babylon is a cipher for Rome, as in Revelation 14:8 and 1 Peter 5:13.
- l (3:30) The Latin of verses 30–31 is broken; it reads literally "and you did not indicate. I do not remember at all how this way should be forsaken." The rendering follows the general sense.
- m (3:31) See the previous note.
- n (3:34) Latin "and your name will not be found except in Israel," which does not fit the sense; the rendering follows the reading reported in the oriental versions ("which way the scale inclines").

Chapter 4

1 The angel sent to me, named Uriel,[a] replied to me 2 and said, "In this world your heart has quite overreached itself. Do you mean to grasp the Most High's way?" 3 "Yes, my lord," I said. He replied, "Three ways I have been sent to show you, and three likenesses to put before you. 4 Explain one of these to me, and I in turn will point out the way you yearn to see and teach you the origin of the wicked heart." 5 "Speak on, my lord," I said. He said to me, "Go and weigh out for me the heaviness of fire; or take the measure for me of a gust of wind; or summon back for me a day already gone." 6 I replied, "What human born could do such things, that you put such questions to me?" 7 He said to me, "Suppose I had questioned you thus: 'How many dwellings lie in the sea's heart? How many springs at the head of the abyss? How many channels above the firmament? Where are the ways out of paradise?' [8] You might perhaps have told me, 'Into the abyss I have not gone down, nor yet into the underworld,[b] and up to heaven I never climbed.' [9] But I have questioned you only on fire and wind and day, which you have lived through and cannot be parted from, and you have given me no reply concerning them." [10] Then he told me, "What is yours and has grown up along with you, you cannot know; [11] so how should your vessel[c] have room for the Most High's way? How can a man worn away by a decaying world understand what does not decay?"[d] Hearing this, I fell face down[e] [12] and told him, "Better for us never to have been than to come and live amid godlessness and suffer without knowing the reason."

[13] He replied, "Once I went out to a wood of trees on the plain, and they took counsel together. [14] 'Come,' they said, 'let us march and wage war on the sea, to drive it back before us and gain more woodland for ourselves.' [15] The sea's billows took counsel the same way: 'Come,' they said, 'let us go up and defeat the plain's woodland, and so there too win fresh country for ourselves.' [16] The wood's scheme was in vain; fire came and devoured it. [17] So too the billows' scheme; the sand rose against them and barred their way. [18] Had you been set to judge them, which would you have begun to acquit, and which to convict?" [19] I replied, "Both of them schemed foolishly. The dry ground has been allotted to the wood, and to the sea a place for carrying its billows." [20] He replied, "Your verdict is a good one. Then why not give the same verdict upon yourself? [21] As dry ground belongs to the wood and the sea to its billows, so earth's dwellers can grasp only what pertains to earth, and he who dwells above the heavens what lies at the heights of heaven."[f]

[22] I replied, "I beg you, lord, why[g] was the faculty of understanding granted me? [23] It was not about things on high that I meant to ask, but about what passes by us daily: why Israel has been made a laughingstock to the nations; why the people you loved has been surrendered to godless tribes; why our fathers' law has been wiped out, and the written covenants are nowhere to be found. [24] We go out of the world as locusts do; our life is bewilderment and dread,[h] and we do not deserve to receive mercy. [25] Then what will he do for the sake of his name, called over us? Those are my questions." 26 He replied, "If you live, you will see; and if you search far, many times you will wonder;[i] for the world is rushing quickly toward its passing. 27 It cannot contain what is pledged to the just for the times to come, since this world is crammed with wrong and weakness. 28 As to what you ask: evil has indeed been sown, yet its overthrow is still to come. 29 Unless, then, the sown crop is cut down, and the ground where evil was planted vanishes, the place planted with good cannot arrive. 30 A seed of wicked grain was planted in Adam's heart at the start; what a crop of godlessness it has raised to this day, and will raise until the threshing floor arrives! 31 Reckon up for yourself what a yield of godlessness one seed of wicked grain has brought forth. 32

When ears beyond counting are reaped, what a vast threshing floor will they make!"
33 I replied, "How, and when, will this happen? Why are our years short and wretched?" 34 He replied, "Do not outrun the Most High.
Your eagerness is on your own account,[j] but the One on high hastens for the sake of multitudes. 35 Did not the souls of the just, in their storehouses, raise these very questions: 'For how long shall we wait in this way?[k] When comes the fruit of the threshing floor, our wage?' 36 To them Jeremiel[l] the archangel made answer: 'When the full count of ones such as you is reached;[m] for he has weighed the world on scales, 37 the seasons he has measured with a measure and counted with a count, and he will neither stir nor rouse them until the measure foretold is filled.' " 38 I replied, "Lord and Master, yet all of us too are brimming with godlessness. 39 Perhaps it is our doing that the just are kept from their threshing floor, because of the sins of earth's dwellers." 40 He replied, "Go, inquire of a woman with child, when she has finished her ninth month, whether her womb is still able to hold the infant back inside her." 41 "It is not able, lord," I said. He told me, "In the underworld the souls' storehouses resemble a womb. 42 Just as one giving birth presses on to be free of the pains of labor, so these press on to give up what was committed to them. 43 Then what you long to see will be disclosed to you from the start." 44 I replied, "If I have found grace in your eyes, if it can be, and if I am worthy, 45 disclose this to me: is more yet to come than what is over, or have greater things gone by than what lies ahead? [46] The past I know; what lies ahead I cannot tell." [47] He told me, "Take your stand on the right, and I will give you the interpretation of a likeness." [48] I stood and watched, and there before me a burning oven went past; when the blaze had gone, I watched, and look, smoke was left over. [49] Next a cloud brimming with water went past me and let loose a great downpour with force; and once the force of the rain was spent, raindrops were left in it. [50] He told me, "Think it over: as the rain exceeded the drops and the fire the smoke, so the measure already gone by far exceeded the rest. Yet the drops and the smoke were left." [51] Then I prayed: "Will I be alive, do you think, until that time? Or what will happen in that time?" [52] He replied, "About the signs you inquire of, I can tell you a portion. But about your own life I was not sent to speak to you; indeed I do not know.

Notes

- a (4:1) Uriel means "God is my light." In 1 Enoch 20:2 he is one of the archangels, set over the world and over Tartarus.
- b (4:8) Latin infernum, the world of the dead (Hebrew Sheol).
- c (4:11) That is, the mind, as the container of understanding (compare 2 Corinthians 4:7).
- d (4:11) Latin "understand the corruption evident in my face," an obscure phrase; the rendering follows the sense of the oriental versions as reported ("the incorruptible").
- e (4:11) The words "When I heard this, I fell on my face" are not in the Clementine Latin; they are reportedly found in the Syriac and Ethiopic and are supplied here for the sense.
- f (4:21) Compare John 3:12, 31.
- g (4:22) Latin "that I may be given the sense of understanding," here with a question as in the oriental versions, as reported.
- h (4:24) Latin stupor et pavor, "astonishment and fear"; other witnesses reportedly read "a vapor," in line with James 4:14. The text is uncertain.
- i (4:26) Latin "If you search much, you will often marvel"; the rendering combines the Latin with the fuller reading reported in the oriental versions.
- j (4:34) Latin "For you hasten vainly to be above him, for your excess is great." The rendering follows the clearer sense reported in the oriental versions.
- k (4:35) Latin "How long do I hope thus?"

- l (4:36) Jeremiel (Hebrew perhaps Jerahmeel, "God has mercy," or Ramiel, "God is exalted") is named as an archangel set over the risen souls in 1 Enoch 20:8 (Remiel, in the Greek).
- m (4:36) Latin "When the number of seeds in you is completed." Compare Revelation 6:9–11, where the souls under the altar are told to wait until the number of their fellow servants is complete.

Chapter 5

1 "But as to the signs: look, days are coming when earth's dwellers will be seized with great dismay,[a] and the way of truth will be hidden away, and the land will be barren of faith. 2 Wrong will increase beyond what you now see yourself, and beyond what you heard of long ago. 3 And the country you now see ruling will be trackless, and men will see it laid waste.[b] 4 Should the Most High grant you life, you will see it after the third trumpet;[c] then all at once the sun will shine out again by night, and the moon three times by day. 5 Blood will drip out of wood, and stone will give forth its voice; peoples will be in an uproar, 6 and one will reign whom earth's dwellers do not expect,[d] and the birds will migrate away. 7 The Sea of Sodom[e] will cast up fish, and at night will utter a voice which many have not known, but all will hear its voice. 8 There will be chaos in many places, fire will break out again and again, the wild beasts will roam beyond their haunts, and women in their impurity will bring forth monsters. 9 Salt water will be found in the sweet, and friends one and all will attack one another. Then reason will hide itself, and understanding will withdraw into its storehouse, 10 and it will be sought by many and not be found; and wrong and lack of restraint will increase on earth. 11 One country will ask its neighbor, 'Has righteousness, the kind that makes men just, passed through you?' And it will say no. 12 In that season people will hope and not obtain; they will toil, and their ways will not prosper. 13 Such are the signs I am permitted to tell you. Should you pray again, and weep as now, and keep a fast of seven days, you will hear yet greater things than these."

14 At that I woke; a violent shudder ran through my body, and my soul labored until it nearly gave way. 15 But the angel who had come and spoken with me took hold of me, strengthened me, and stood me on my feet. 16 On the second night Salathiel,[f] the leader of the people, came and asked me, "Where have you been all this time? And why is your face so sad? 17 Are you not aware that Israel has been put in your charge in the country where they were carried away? 18 So get up and eat a little bread, and do not desert us, like a shepherd who leaves his flock to savage wolves." 19 I told him, "Leave me, and stay away from me for seven days; after that you may come to me."[g] He heard my words and went away. 20 So I fasted seven days, wailing and weeping, as Uriel the angel had instructed me.

21 After seven days[h] the thoughts of my heart were again very grievous to me, 22 and my soul took up once more the spirit of understanding, and I began again to speak words before the Most High. 23 I said, "Lord and Master, out of all the forest of the earth and all its trees you have picked one vine; 24 out of all the lands of the world you have picked for yourself one pit;[i] out of all the flowers of the world you have picked for yourself one lily; 25 out of all the depths of the sea you have filled for yourself one stream; out of all the cities ever built you have set apart Zion for yourself; 26 out of all the birds that were created you have named for yourself one dove; out of all the cattle that were fashioned you have chosen[j] for yourself one sheep; 27 and out of all the peoples that have multiplied you have gained for yourself one people; and to this people whom you desired you have granted a law approved above all. 28 And now, Lord, why have you handed over the one to the many, and set others above the single root,[k] and scattered your only one among many? 29 Those who opposed your promises have trampled on them, those who put no faith in your covenants.
30 If you truly hate your people, they ought to be punished by your own hands."
31 After I had said these things, the angel who had visited me the night before was sent to me again, 32 and he said to me, "Listen to me, and I will teach you; pay attention to me, and I will tell you more." 33 "Speak, my lord," I said. And he said to me, "You are deeply distressed in mind for Israel's sake. Do you love him more than the One who made him?" 34 I answered, "No, my lord, I spoke out of sorrow. Every hour my heart[l] torments me as I try to understand the way of the Most High and to investigate some part of his judgment." 35 He told me, "You cannot." And I said, "Why not, lord? Why then was I born? Or why did my mother's womb not become my grave, so that I would not have seen the travail of Jacob and the exhaustion of Israel's race?" 36 He told me, "Count up for me those who have not yet come; gather for me the scattered raindrops; make the withered flowers green again for me; 37 open for me the chambers that are shut, and bring out for me the winds locked up in them; or show me the picture of a voice. Then I will show you the travail you ask to see." 38 I said, "Lord and Master, who can know these things except one whose dwelling is not among mortals? 39 But I am without wisdom, so how can I speak about the things you have asked me?" 40 He told me, "Just as you cannot do one of the things I have named, so you will not be able to discover my judgment, or the love I have pledged to my people at the end."

41 I said, "But look, lord, you are near to those who are there at the end; what then will they do who were before me, or we ourselves, or those who come after us?" 42 He told me, "I will liken my judgment to a ring:[m] as there is no lagging for the last, so there is no hurrying for the first." 43 I replied, "Could you not have made those already made, and those now living, and those to come, all at once, so as to show your judgment the sooner?" 44 He replied, "The creature cannot go faster than the Creator, nor can the world hold all at once those who are to be created in it." 45 I said, "How then have you told your servant that you will surely give life all at once to the creation you have made?[n] If they are indeed to live all at once, and creation will hold them, then it could hold those now present all at once." 46 He told me, "Put a question to a woman's womb: 'If you give birth, why is it only in due time?' Ask it, then, to deliver ten at once." 47 I said, "Surely it cannot, but only each at its own time." 48 He told me, "I too have made the earth a womb for those sown upon it in their own times. 49 For just as an infant does not bring forth, nor she who has grown old any longer,[o] so I have ordered the world I created." 50 I questioned him further: "Since you have now opened the way to me, I will speak before you. Is our mother, of whom you told me, still young, or is she already nearing old age?"[p] 51 He replied, "Ask a woman who bears children, and she will tell you. [52] Say to her, 'Why are those whom you bear now not like those you bore before, but smaller in stature?' [53] And she herself will answer you, 'Children born in the strength of youth are different from those born when old age has come and the womb is wearing out.' [54] So consider for yourself as well: you people are smaller in stature than those before you, [55] and those who come after you will be smaller than you, since they are born from a creation that is already growing old and has passed the strength of youth." [56] I said, "Lord, if I have won your favor, please show your servant who it is that you will send to visit your creation."[q]

Notes

- a (5:1) Latin in censu multo, "with a great census" (or "with great wealth"), apparently a corruption; the oriental versions reportedly read "with great terror."
- b (5:3) Latin "and the region you now see ruling will be on a set-down footprint," an obscure phrase; the rendering follows the sense reported in the oriental versions ("a trackless waste"). The ruling country is Rome.
- c (5:4) Latin tubam, "trumpet"; the Clementine text supplies the noun, which some manuscripts reportedly lack. The oriental versions reportedly read "after the third period" or "after the third day," and some add that the land will be thrown into confusion.
- d (5:6) Perhaps a reference to an unexpected ruler, or to the antichrist; the identification is uncertain.
- e (5:7) The Dead Sea.
- f (5:16) Latin Salathiel; other witnesses reportedly read Phaltiel (Hebrew Paltiel, "God is my deliverance"). Here the name belongs to a leader of the people, not to Ezra himself (compare 3:1 note).
- g (5:19) The words "for seven days, and then you may come to me" are supplied from the oriental versions, as reported; the Latin ends with "do not come near me."
- h (5:21) The second vision runs from 5:21 to 6:34.
- i (5:24) Latin foveam, "pit" or "hollow"; the oriental versions reportedly read "region" or "land."
- j (5:26) Latin providisti, "foreseen" or "provided."
- k (5:28) Latin "and prepared others upon the one root."
- l (5:34) Latin renes, "kidneys," regarded as the seat of the emotions.
- m (5:42) Latin coronae, "to a crown" or "wreath," that is, a circle in which there is neither first nor last.
- n (5:45) That is, at the resurrection. The Latin of the verse is obscure; the rendering follows the general sense.
- o (5:49) Latin "as an infant does not bear what belongs to the old"; the rendering follows the fuller sense reported in the oriental versions.

- p (5:50) “Our mother” is the earth (compare 10:9 and Sirach 40:1).
- q (5:56) In the Clementine Latin, verses 55 and 56 form a single verse (5:55), so that the chapter has 55 verses; the numbering of most English versions is followed here.

Chapter 6

1 He told me, “At the start of the earthly globe, before the world’s gateways stood in place, before the gathered winds blew, 2 before the peals of thunder sounded, before the lightning flashes shone, before the foundations of paradise were laid, 3 before its lovely flowers were seen, before the powers that move were made firm,[a] before the countless hosts of angels were assembled, 4 before the heights of the air were lifted up, before the measures of the firmaments were named, before the furnaces in Zion were glowing hot,[b] 5 before the present years were searched out, before the schemes of those who now sin were estranged,[c] and before those who have stored up faith as treasure were sealed: 6 then I thought these things out, and they came into being through me alone and through no other; and the end shall come through me, and through no other.”

7 I replied, “What will divide the ages? Or when will the end of the first be, and the beginning of the one that follows?” 8 He told me, “From Abraham to Isaac:[d] when Jacob and Esau were born to him, Jacob’s hand gripped Esau’s heel from the start. 9 For Esau is the end of this world, and Jacob the beginning of the world that follows. 10 The hand of a man lies between heel and hand.[e] Seek nothing further, Ezra.”

11 I replied, “Lord and Master, if I have found grace in your eyes, 12 I pray you, show your servant the end of your signs, part of which you showed me on the night before.” 13 He replied, “Rise and stand on your feet, and you will hear a voice of the fullest sound. 14 There will be something like a shaking, yet the place on which you stand will not be shaken. 15 So when it speaks, do not take fright; for the word concerns the end, and the foundation of the earth understands. 16 It trembles and quakes at that speech, since it knows that at their end these things must be transformed.”

17 When I had heard this, I rose to my feet and listened, and there was a voice speaking, whose sound was like the roar of many waters. 18 It said, “Look, days are coming, and the time will be when I begin to draw near to visit the dwellers on the earth, 19 and when I begin to call to account those who have done harm unjustly by their wrongdoing, and when the humiliation of Zion is complete, 20 and when the seal is set upon the world that is about to pass away, then I will perform these signs: books will be opened before the face of the firmament, and all will see together. 21 Babies a year old will speak with their voices; women with child will give birth to infants before their time, at three and four months, and these will live and leap about.[f] 22 Sown fields will suddenly be found unsown, and full storehouses will suddenly be found empty. 23 A trumpet will sound aloud, and when all hear it, they will suddenly be terrified. 24 At that season friends will make war on friends as though they were enemies, the earth and its dwellers will be terrified, and the springs of the fountains will stand still and not run for three hours.[g] 25 And whoever is left of all those of whom I have told you will be saved and will see my salvation and the end of your world. 26 They will see those who were taken up,[h] people who have not tasted death since their birth. And the heart of earth's dwellers will be changed and turned to another mind. 27 For evil will be blotted out and deceit put out like a flame; 28 faith will flower, corruption will be overcome, and truth will be made plain, which for so many days has been without fruit." 29 While he was speaking to me, I gradually[i] gazed upon the one before whom I stood, 30 and he said these things to me: "I have come to show you the time of the night that is coming.[j] 31 If you pray once more, and fast again for seven days, I will once more tell you things greater than these, by day.[k] 32 For your voice has been heard before the Most High; the Mighty One has seen your upright conduct, and has taken note of the purity you have kept since your youth. 33 That is why he sent me to show you all this, and to tell you: Take heart, and do not fear, 34 and do not be quick to ponder vain things about the former times, so that you may not be hasty in the last times." 35 After this I wept once more and fasted seven days in the same way, to complete the three weeks[l] I had been told of. 36 On the eighth night[m] my heart was disturbed again, and I began to speak in front of the Most High. 37 For my spirit was all aflame, and my soul was in anguish.

38 I said, "Lord, you spoke at the beginning of creation, on the first day, saying, 'Let heaven and earth be made,' and your word was a finished work. 39 And then spirit was there, and darkness and silence hovered round about; the sound of the human voice was not yet from you.[n] 40 Then you commanded a shining light to be brought out of your storehouses, so that your work might be seen. 41 On the second day you made the spirit of the firmament and told it to separate the waters, so that one part would move upward and the other stay below. 42 On day three you bade the waters gather into one-seventh of the earth; the other six parts you made dry and preserved, so that out of them there might be things sown by God and tilled, to serve before you.[o] 43 Your word went out, and straightway the deed was accomplished. 44 Suddenly there came forth fruit in boundless abundance, pleasures of taste of every kind, flowers of unfading color, and scents of fragrance past finding out. These were made on the third day. 45 On day four you bade the sun's splendor, the moon's light, and the array of stars come to be, 46 and you commanded them to serve humankind, which was about to be formed. 47 On the fifth day you told the seventh part, where the water had been gathered, to bring forth living creatures, birds and fish; and so it came to be. 48 The dumb and lifeless water produced living creatures at God's bidding, so that from this the nations might tell of your wonders. 49 Then you kept two living creatures; the name of one you called Enoch,[p] and the name of the other Leviathan.[q] 50 You separated them from one another, for the seventh part, where the water had been gathered, could not contain them both. 51 To Enoch you allotted one portion, dried out on day three, as his dwelling, where a thousand mountains stand;[r] 52 but to Leviathan you gave the seventh part, the watery one. You have kept them to be food[s] for whom you will, and when you will. 53 On day six you bade the earth produce before you beasts of burden and of the field, and things that creep; 54 and over these Adam, whom you made ruler over all the works you had made; and from him we all come, the people you have chosen.
55 "All this I have told before you, Lord, because you have said that it was for our sake that you created the world.[t] 56 As for the other nations which have come from Adam, you have said that they are nothing, that they are like spittle, and you have likened their abundance to a drip from a jar.[u] 57 And now, Lord, look: these nations, which are reckoned as nothing, have begun to lord it over us and to devour us. 58 But we your people, whom you have called your firstborn, only begotten, your zealous one[v] and dearly loved, have been handed over into their hands. 59 If the world was made on our account, why is our world not ours to inherit? How much longer must this go on?"

Notes

- a (6:3) Latin motae virtutes, "the moving powers," perhaps the heavenly bodies or the forces of nature.
- b (6:4) That is, before the altar fires of the temple were kindled, or perhaps the fires of judgment (compare Isaiah 31:9).
- c (6:5) Latin abalienarentur, "were alienated," that is, set apart or banished; the oriental versions reportedly read "were rejected."
- d (6:8) Latin "From Abraham to Isaac"; the oriental versions reportedly read "From Abraham to Abraham," that is, the dividing line runs through Abraham's own descendants. Compare Genesis 25:26.
- e (6:10) The Latin is obscure, reading literally "The hand of a man between the heel and the hand." The meaning is apparently that no interval separates this age from the next, as Jacob's hand held Esau's heel. Other witnesses reportedly read, "For the heel of a man and the hand: between them seek nothing else."
- f (6:21) Latin et suscitabuntur, "and they will be raised up." The rendering "leap about" follows the oriental versions, as reported.
- g (6:24) Ancient clocks reckoned hours from sunrise; three hours here is simply a short span of time, not a fixed clock time.
- h (6:26) Those taken up to heaven alive, such as Enoch (Genesis 5:24) and Elijah (2 Kings 2:11); compare 14:9.
- i (6:29) Latin paulatim, "little by little." The oriental versions reportedly read "he looked at me," and the Latin may be corrupt.
- j (6:30) The meaning of this verse is uncertain; the Latin reads literally, "I have come to show you the time of the coming night."
- k (6:31) Latin "greater things than these by day than I have heard," apparently corrupt.
- l (6:35) The three weeks are the three periods of seven days' fasting (5:13, 20; 6:31, 35).
- m (6:36) The third vision begins here and runs to 9:25.
- n (6:39) The meaning is that at the beginning there was as yet no voice of any human being.

- o (6:42) Latin culta, “cultivated”; the Latin is obscure, and the rendering follows the general sense.
- p (6:49) Latin Henoch; elsewhere, as reported, the oriental versions read Behemoth, as in Job 40:15 (Hebrew behemoth, “beasts,” a great land monster). Enoch is apparently a corruption in the Latin tradition.
- q (6:49) Leviathan (Hebrew, perhaps “twisting one”) is the great sea monster of Job 41:1 and Isaiah 27:1. Compare 1 Enoch 60:7–9 and 2 Baruch 29:4.
- r (6:51) Compare Psalm 50:10, where the Hebrew of “cattle on a thousand hills” uses behemoth.
- s (6:52) Latin devorationem, “devouring”; in Jewish tradition Behemoth and Leviathan were to be food for the righteous in the messianic age (2 Baruch 29:4).
- t (6:55) Compare 7:11; 8:44; 9:13; and 2 Baruch 14:18–19; 15:7.
- u (6:56) Compare Isaiah 40:15, where the nations are like a drop from a bucket.
- v (6:58) Latin aemulatorem tuum, literally “your rival” or “one zealous for you”; the rendering “zealous one” follows the general sense. The words “and dearly loved” are supplied from the oriental versions, as reported.

Chapter 7

1 After I had ended this speech, there was sent to me the angel who had been sent on the earlier nights. 2 He told me, “Get up, Ezra, and listen to what I have come to say to you.” 3 “Speak, my God,”[a] I said.
And he told me, “There is a sea set in a broad expanse, so that it is deep and vast; 4 but the way into it lies in a narrow place, so that it is like a river. 5 If someone has a mind to enter the sea, to look upon it or to be master of it, how can he reach its breadth unless he first passes through the narrows? 6 Here is another: a city stands built on level ground, and it is filled with every good thing. 7 But the way into it is narrow and set on a steep slope, with fire on the right hand and deep water on the left. 8 There is just one path set between them, that is, between the fire and the water, and the path has room for no more than a single footstep. 9 Suppose the city is granted to a man to inherit; if he never gets past the peril placed before him, how will his inheritance come to him?” 10 “That is so, lord,” I said. He told me, “So also is Israel’s portion. 11 It was for their sake that I made the world; and when Adam broke my statutes, what had been made was judged. 12 And so the ways into this world became narrow, grievous, and toilsome; few and evil, full of perils, and burdened with great hardship. 13 But the ways into the greater world are broad and safe, and they yield the fruit of immortality. 14 If, then, the living do not enter by these narrow and empty things, they cannot receive what has been laid up for them. 15 So now, why are you disturbed, since you are perishable? And why are you moved, since you are mortal? 16 And why have you not taken to heart what is to come, rather than what is present?"

17 I answered, "Lord and Master, your law establishes that the righteous will inherit these things and the ungodly will perish. 18 The righteous, then, will endure the narrow things in hope of the broad; but those who have lived ungodly lives will have suffered the narrow things and yet will not see the broad." 19 He told me, "There is no judge above God, and none who understands above the Most High. 20 For many now living are perishing, because the law of God that was set before them is disregarded. 21 For God gave strict orders to those who entered the world, telling them as they came what to do to live and what to keep in order to avoid punishment. 22 But they were not persuaded; they spoke against him and devised for themselves empty thoughts; 23 they set before themselves the snares of sin, and declared to the Most High that he does not exist, and they did not acknowledge his ways. 24 His law they scorned and his promises they denied; in his statutes they put no faith, and his works they did not perform. 25 Therefore, Ezra, the empty receive emptiness, and the full receive fullness.

26 "For see, the time will come when the signs I have foretold to you will come to pass; the bride[b] will appear, the city appearing,[c] and the land now hidden will be shown. 27 And everyone who has been set free from the evils I have foretold will see my wonders. 28 For my son Jesus[d] will be revealed with those who are with him, and those who are left will rejoice four hundred years.[e] 29 After those years my son the Christ[f] will die, and all who have human breath. 30 And the world will be turned back into the ancient silence for seven days, as at the earliest judgments,[g] so that none is left. 31 After seven days the age that is not yet awake will be roused, and what is perishable will die. 32 The earth will return those who are asleep in it, and the dust will release those who rest there in silence; and the storehouses will give back the souls that were placed in their care. 33 The Most High will be revealed upon the judgment seat, and miseries will pass away, and long-suffering will be withdrawn.[h] 34 Only judgment will remain; truth will stand, and faithfulness will grow strong. 35 Deeds will follow, and the reward will be shown; righteous acts will awake, and unrighteous acts will no longer rule.[i] 36 Then the pit[j] of torment will appear, and opposite it the place of rest; the furnace of Gehenna[k] will be displayed, and opposite it the paradise of delight. 37 Then the Most High will address the nations that have been raised: 'Look and understand whom you have denied, whom you have refused to serve, and whose commandments you have despised. 38 Look to one side, then the other: on this side are joy and rest, on that side fire and torment.' That is what he will tell them on the day of judgment.[l] 39

This is the kind of day that has no sun, no moon, no stars, 40 no cloud, no thunder, no lightning, no wind, no water, no air, no darkness, no evening, no morning, 41 no summer, no spring, no heat, no winter, no ice, no cold, no hail, no rain, no dew, 42 no noon, no night, no time before dawn, no gleam, no brightness, no light, but only the splendor of the glory of the Most High, by which all will begin to see what has been set before them. 43 For it will last as long as a week of years.[m] 44
This is my judgment and its ordinance; but to you alone have I shown these things."
45 Then I replied, "Lord, I said it then and I say it now: Happy are those now living who keep what you have ordained! 46 But what of those for whom I was praying? Which of those now alive has never sinned? Or which of those ever born has not transgressed your covenant? 47 And now I see that the world to come will bring joy to a few, but torment to many. 48 For an evil heart has grown up in us, which has estranged us from these things and brought us into corruption and the paths of death; it has shown us the ways of destruction and set us far off from life; and this not just a few, but nearly all who have been created." 49 He replied, "Listen to me, and I will instruct you, and I will correct you once more.[n] 50 For this cause the Most High made two worlds, and not one. 51 For since you have said that the righteous are not many but few, and the ungodly abound, hear the answer to this. 52 If you have a very few choice stones, will you set them alongside lead and clay according to their number?[o] 53 I said, "Lord, how could that be?" 54 He went on, "More than that, ask the earth, and she will tell you; coax her, and she will explain it to you. 55 Say to her, 'You produce gold and silver and copper, and also iron and lead and clay; 56 but silver is more plentiful than gold, and copper than silver, and iron than copper, lead than iron, and clay than lead.' 57 So judge for yourself which things are precious and to be desired: what is plentiful, or what is produced rarely?" 58 I said, "Lord and Master, what is plentiful is of less worth, for what is rarer is more precious." 59 He replied, "Weigh within yourself what you have thought: whoever has what is hard to get rejoices more than one who has plenty. 60 The same holds for the creation I have promised;[p] I will take joy in the few who will be saved, since they are the ones who have made my glory prevail now, and through them my name has now been named. 61 I will not grieve over the multitude of those who perish; for they are the ones likened to vapor, made equal to flame and smoke: they caught fire, blazed up, and were quenched."

62 I replied, "Earth, what is it you have given birth to, if understanding is fashioned from dust as are all other creatures? 63 Better had the dust itself never been born, so that the mind might not have come from it. 64 But as it is, the mind grows up with us, and that is why we are tormented: because we perish knowingly. 65 Let the human race mourn, and the wild beasts of the field be glad; let all who are born lament, but let the four-footed creatures and the cattle rejoice. 66 For it is far better with them than with us; they do not look for judgment, nor do they know of torments or of a salvation promised them after death. 67 What good is it to us that we shall be kept alive, if we are to be tormented with torment? 68 For all who are born are entangled in iniquities, full of sins and weighed down with offenses. 69 If after death we were not to come into judgment, it might perhaps have gone better with us."

70 He replied, "When the Most High was making the world, and Adam and all who came after him, he first prepared the judgment and what belongs to the judgment. 71 Now learn from your own words, for you said that the mind grows up with us. [72] Those who abide on the earth will be tormented for this reason: that having understanding they did wickedness, and receiving the commandments they did not keep them, and having obtained the law they dealt falsely with what they received. [73] What then will they have to say at the judgment, or how will they answer in the last times? [74] For how long a time has the Most High shown patience toward those who inhabit the world, and not for their sake, but for the sake of the times he has foreordained!" [75] I replied, "If I have found grace before you, lord, show your servant this as well: after death, when each of us yields up his soul, shall we be kept at rest until those times come when you will begin to make the creation new, or are we tormented at once?" [76] He replied, "This too I will show you. But do not mix yourself with those who have shown scorn, and do not count yourself among those who are tormented. [77] A treasury of deeds is laid up for you in the Most High's keeping, yet it will be hidden from your sight until the final times. [78] Now concerning death, the teaching is this: when the final sentence has gone forth from the Most High that a man shall die, as the spirit departs from the body to return again to him who gave it, it first worships the glory of the Most High. [79] And if the spirit belongs to the scornful, who did not walk in the Most High's way, who held his law in contempt and loathed the God-fearing, [80] such spirits will not enter into dwellings, but will wander about from then on in torments, always grieving and sorrowful, in seven ways.[q] [81] First way: they held the Most High's law in contempt. [82] The second way: because they can no longer make a good return, so as to live. [83] The third way is that they see the reward kept for those who have trusted the covenants of the Most High. [84] The fourth way: they consider the torment stored up for themselves in the last days. [85] The fifth way: they see the dwelling places of the others guarded by angels in deep silence. [86] The sixth way: they see how some of them[r] will presently pass over into torment. [87] The seventh way, which is greater than all those already listed, is that they will waste away in shame, be consumed with disgrace,[s] and wither with fear as they see the glory of the Most High, whom they sinned against in life and before whom they will be judged at the end of time.

88 “As for those who have kept the ways of the Most High, this is their order, when they are about to be parted from the perishable vessel. 89
During the time they lived in it, they served the Most High with toil and endured danger every hour, so as to keep the law of the Lawgiver perfectly. 90 Therefore this is the teaching concerning them: 91 First of all, they see with great exultation the glory of him who receives them; for they will rest in seven orders. 92 The first order: because they have striven with great toil to overcome the evil thought that was formed along with them, so that it should not lead them astray from life into death. 93 The second order: because they see the confusion in which the souls of the ungodly wander, and the punishment that awaits them. 94 The third order: they see the witness borne to them by him who formed them, that while they lived they kept the law entrusted to them in faith.[t] 95 The fourth order: they understand the rest which they now enjoy, gathered in their storehouses in deep silence, guarded by angels, and the glory that awaits them in the last days. 96 The fifth order: they exult because they have fled now from the perishable, and the world to come is theirs to inherit; beyond that, they behold the cramped and toilsome place from which they were freed, and the spacious one, which they are about to take up with enjoyment, deathless. 97 The sixth order: they are shown that their faces will shine like the sun and that they will become like the stars, no longer subject to decay from then on. 98 The seventh order, which surpasses all already named: they will exult boldly, be confident and not ashamed, and be glad and unafraid; for they hurry to look upon the face of the One they served while alive, from whose hand they are to take their wages in glory. 99 This is the order of the souls of the righteous, as is now announced; and the ways of torment already described are what those who have been heedless will suffer from now on.”

100 I replied, “Is time to be allowed, then, for the souls, once parted from their bodies, to look upon the things you have told me of?” 101 He said, “Their freedom will last seven days, so that they may see the things you have been told; after that they will be gathered into their dwellings.”

102 I answered, “If I have won your favor, show your servant this as well: on the day of judgment, will the righteous be able to plead for the ungodly or to intercede for them before the Most High, 103 fathers for sons, or sons for parents, brothers for brothers, kin for their nearest, or friends for those most dear to them.” 104 He answered, “Since you have won my favor, I will show you this too. The day of judgment is a day of decision,[u] and it will show everyone the seal of truth. Just as today a father cannot send his son, or a son his father, or a master his slave, or a friend his closest friend, to be sick, to sleep, to eat, or to be healed in his place, 105 so no one will ever ask for mercy for another on that day; for then each will bear his own unrighteousness or righteousness.”[v] 106 I replied,[w] “How is it, then, that we find Abraham first praying for the people of Sodom, and Moses for our ancestors who sinned in the wilderness, 107 and he who came after Moses[x] for Israel in the days of Achan,[y] 108 and Samuel[z] in the days of Saul, and David for the destruction,[aa] and Solomon for those who would come to the sanctuary, 109 and Elijah for those who received rain, and for one who was dead, that he might live, 110 and Hezekiah for the people in the days of Sennacherib, and many for many? 111 If, then, now that the perishable has grown great and wrong has multiplied, the just made petition for the godless, why should that not happen then too?” 112 He replied, “This present world is not the end, and glory does not abide in it permanently;[ab] therefore those who were strong prayed for the weak. 113 But the day of judgment will bring this age to an end and begin the coming age of immortality, when decay will be gone, 114 excess has been abolished, unbelief has been cut off, while righteousness has grown and truth has sprung up. 115 Then no one will be able to save one who has perished, nor to overwhelm one who has conquered.”
116 I replied, “This is my first word and my last: it would have been better not to give Adam the earth, or else, once it had been given, to restrain him from sinning. 117 For what good is it to people to live in sorrow now and to look for punishment after death? 118 Adam, what is this you have done? The sin was yours, yet the downfall came not on you only but on us as well, your offspring. 119 What good is it to us that an immortal age has been promised to us, if we have done deeds that bring death? 120 Or that an everlasting hope has been foretold to us, if we have become utterly worthless and vain? 121 Or that dwellings of health and safety are stored up for us, if we have lived wickedly? 122 Or that the glory of the Most High is stored up to shelter those who have lived chaste lives,[ac] if we have walked in the worst of ways? 123 Or that a paradise will be shown, whose fruit remains unspoiled, in which are security and healing, 124 if we are not to go in, since the places where we have lived were unlovely?[ad] 125 Or that the faces of those who practiced self-restraint will shine brighter than the stars, if our faces will be blacker than darkness? 126 For while we lived and did wrong, we did not consider that we would begin to suffer after death." 127 He replied, "This is the meaning of the contest which every person born on the earth must wage: 128 if he loses, he must undergo what you have described; but if he wins, what I describe will be his. 129 For this is the way of which Moses spoke to the people while he was alive, saying, 'Choose life for yourself, that you may live.'[ae] 130 But they did not believe him, nor the prophets after him, nor even me, who have spoken to them. 131 And so there will be no grief over their perdition so great as the joy over those to whom salvation is assured."[af] 132 I answered, "I know, Lord, that the Most High is called merciful, because he is merciful to those who have not yet entered the world; 133 and compassionate, because he shows compassion to those who turn back to his law; 134 and long-suffering, because he shows forbearance to those who have sinned, since they are his own works; 135 and bountiful, because he is willing to give rather than to exact;[ag] 136 and abounding in mercy, because he multiplies his mercies more and more to those now living, to those who are gone, and to those yet to come; 137 for if he did not multiply his mercies, the world would not continue with those who inhabit it; 138 and he grants pardon, for if he did not grant it out of his goodness, so that those who have done wickedness might be relieved of their wickedness, not one ten-thousandth of humankind could be kept alive; 139 and he is judge, for if he did not forgive those who were created by his word, and blot out the multitude of their offenses,[ah] [140] perhaps very few would be left of a countless multitude."

Notes

- a (7:3) Latin Deus meus, "my God"; the oriental versions reportedly read "my lord," as elsewhere in the book.
- b (7:26) The bride is the heavenly Jerusalem (compare 10:25–27; Revelation 21:2). The words "the bride will appear" follow the Clementine Latin, which here is apparently corrupt; the oriental versions reportedly read "the city that is now not seen will appear."
- c (7:26) See the previous note.
- d (7:28) The Latin reads "my son Jesus," evidently a Christian alteration; the Syriac reportedly reads "my son the Messiah," and other versions reportedly differ or omit the title. The original Jewish text spoke of the Messiah (Anointed One).
- e (7:28) The figure of four hundred years for the messianic kingdom is found only here; the Syriac reportedly reads thirty years, and other versions reportedly differ. Compare the thousand years of Revelation 20:4–6.
- f (7:29) Latin Christus, Greek for "Anointed One," that is, the Messiah. The death of the Messiah before the general resurrection is a distinctive feature of this book.
- g (7:30) Latin sicut in prioribus judiciis, "as in the former judgments"; the oriental versions reportedly read "as at the first beginnings," that is, as before creation (compare 6:39).
- h (7:33) Latin congregabitur, "will be gathered up," that is, brought to an end.
- i (7:35) Here the Clementine Latin, like the King James Version, passes directly from verse 35 to the verse numbered 106 in this translation (KJV 7:36). Verses 36–105 are the "missing fragment," preserved in the oriental versions but lost from nearly all Latin manuscripts, because a leaf had been cut out of the ninth-century Codex Sangermanensis, from which most later Latin copies descend. Robert L. Bensly recovered the Latin text from a ninth-century manuscript at Amiens (Codex Ambianensis) and published it in 1875 as The Missing Fragment of the Latin Translation of the Fourth Book of Ezra. The removal is often thought to have been deliberate, because verse 105 denies that anyone may pray for the ungodly on the day of judgment. The translation of verses 36–105 follows Bensly's Latin text.
- j (7:36) Latin lacus, "pit" or "lake"; compare Revelation 20:10, 14–15.
- k (7:36) Gehenna is the valley of Hinnom south of Jerusalem (Hebrew Ge Hinnom, "valley of Hinnom"), where children were once sacrificed (Jeremiah 7:31); the name came to mean the place of final punishment.
- l (7:38) Bensly's Latin reads "these things you will speak, saying to them on the day of judgment"; the rendering follows the sense of the oriental versions as reported.
- m (7:43) That is, seven years (compare Daniel 9:24–27). The oriental versions reportedly also read this.
- n (7:49) Latin de sequenti corripiam te, "I will correct you in what follows."

- o (7:52) Bensly's Latin reads "you will arrange them for yourself according to their number," apparently a corruption; the rendering follows the sense of the oriental versions as reported. The meaning is that a few precious stones are not made worth less because they are few.
- p (7:60) Latin repromissa creatura, "the promised creation"; the oriental versions reportedly read "the judgment that I have promised."
- q (7:80) The words "in seven ways" are supplied from the oriental versions, as reported; the Latin lacks them here.
- r (7:86) Latin de eis, "of them," that is, of the ungodly spirits.
- s (7:87) Latin in honoribus, apparently a corruption (Bensly marks it as uncertain); the rendering follows the sense of the oriental versions as reported.
- t (7:94) Latin per fidem, "through faith"; the phrase can also mean "in trust." Bensly discussed both senses.
- u (7:104) Latin dies decretorius, "the decisive day."
- v (7:105) Here the missing fragment ends; the next verse resumes the Clementine Latin at its 7:36.
- w (7:106) In the Clementine Latin and the King James Version this is 7:36, and the rest of the chapter is numbered 7:36–70 there (the KJV divides it into 35 verses, as here; the Clementine into 34). In this translation it is 7:106–140, following Bensly and most modern editions. Many readers will therefore find KJV 7:36 cited as 7:106.
- x (7:107) That is, Joshua (Joshua 7:6–9).
- y (7:107) Latin Achaz (Ahaz), apparently a corruption of Achan (Joshua 7:1–26); the oriental versions reportedly have Achan.
- z (7:108) The Clementine Latin reads "and Samuel," without "in the days of Saul," which is supplied from Bensly's text and the oriental versions as reported. Compare 1 Samuel 7:5–9; 12:19–23.
- aa (7:108) Latin confractione, "the breaking," that is, the plague (2 Samuel 24:15–25).
- ab (7:112) Latin "glory abides in it frequently," apparently corrupt; the rendering follows the sense of the oriental versions as reported.
- ac (7:122) Latin qui tarde conversati sunt, "those who lived slowly," apparently corrupt for "purely" or "chastely," as the oriental versions reportedly read.
- ad (7:124) Latin in ingratis locis, literally "in unpleasant places."
- ae (7:129) Deuteronomy 30:19.
- af (7:131) Latin "to whom salvation has been persuaded," that is, those who have been convinced of salvation.
- ag (7:135) Latin pro exigentiis, "according to demands"; the rendering follows the sense of the oriental versions as reported.
- ah (7:139) Latin "if he did not pardon those healed by his word and blot out the multitude of contentions."

Chapter 8

1 He replied, "For the many the Most High fashioned this world; for the few, the one to come. 2 Let me set a likeness before you, Ezra. Put your question to the earth, and she will tell you that she supplies a great deal of soil from which clay pots are made, but only a little dust from which gold comes. So it is with the course of this present world:
3 numerous are those created, but those saved are few." 4 I replied, "Then drink in understanding, my soul, and swallow down wisdom![a] 5 For you have agreed to listen, and are eager to prophesy;[b] yet no span has been granted you except only to live. 6 Lord, if you do not allow your servant to pray before you, and give us seed for the heart and tilling for the understanding, so that fruit may come of it by which every mortal who bears the likeness of a human being may live, 7 —for you alone exist, and we are the single handiwork of your hands, as you have declared— 8 and just as the body is now fashioned in the womb, and you furnish its members, your creature is preserved in fire and water,[c] and for nine months the womb you fashioned bears your creature that has been created within it. 9 But both that which keeps and that which is kept will be kept,[d] and when the time comes the womb gives back what has grown in it. 10 For you have commanded that from the very members, that is, from the breasts, milk be supplied to the fruit of the breasts, 11 so that what was fashioned may be nourished for a time; and afterward you will guide it in your mercy. 12 You reared it in your righteousness, instructed it in your law, and corrected it by your understanding. 13 You will put it to death as your creature, and bring it to life as your work. 14 If, then, you destroy with a light command one who was fashioned with such great labor, to what purpose was he made?[e] 15 And now I will speak: about humankind as a whole you know best; but I will speak about your people, for whose sake I am grieved, 16 and about your inheritance, for whom I mourn, and about Israel, for whom I am sad, and about Jacob, for whom I am in pain. 17 So I will begin by praying to you for myself and for them, because I see the failings of those of us who live on the earth; 18 but I have heard how swiftly the judgment will come.[f] 19 So hear my voice and understand my speech, and I will speak before you."

20 This is how Ezra's prayer begins, before he was taken up.[g] He said:
"Lord, you who live forever,[h] whose eyes look to the heights and the sky, 21 whose throne is beyond estimating and whose glory is beyond grasping, before whom the host of angels stands trembling, 22 whose service takes the form of wind and fire,[i] whose word is true and whose sayings endure, 23 whose command is mighty and whose ordinance is terrible, whose look dries up the deeps and whose anger makes the mountains melt away, and whose truth bears witness:[j] 24 give ear to the prayer of your servant, and attend to the petition of your creature.
25 While I live I will speak, and while I have understanding I will answer. 26 Do not regard the sins of your people, but those who serve you faithfully. 27 Pay no heed to the godless pursuits of the nations, but to those who have kept your testimonies through sufferings. 28 Do not think of those who have lived deceitfully before you, but call to mind those who have known your fear according to your will. 29 Do not resolve to destroy those who have behaved like cattle, but look upon those who have taught your law with splendor. 30 Do not be indignant with those judged worse than beasts, but love those who have always trusted in your righteousness and glory. 31 For we and our fathers languish in such maladies; but because of us sinners you will be called merciful. 32 For if you are pleased to show mercy to us, who have no righteous deeds, then you will be called merciful. 33 For the righteous, who have many works stored up with you, will receive their reward from their own deeds. 34 But what is man, that you should be angry with him? Or what is a perishable race, that you should be so bitter toward it? 35 Truly, of all ever born there is none who has not behaved godlessly, and of those who confess you[k] there is none who has not gone astray. 36 For in this, Lord, your righteousness and your goodness will be made known, when you show mercy to those who have no store of good works." 37 He answered, "You have been right about some things, and it will happen as you say. 38 For truly I will not concern myself with the fashioning of those who have sinned, or with their death, their judgment, or their destruction; 39 but I will rejoice over the creation of the righteous, and remember also their pilgrimage, their salvation, and the reward they will receive. 40 As I have spoken, therefore, so it is. 41 For as the farmer sows many seeds on the ground and sets out a multitude of plants, and yet not everything sown comes up safely in due season, nor does everything planted take root, so too not all those who have been sown in the world will be saved." 42 I replied, "If I have found grace, let me speak. 43 If the farmer's seed does not sprout, or does not receive your rain in due season, or if it is ruined by too much rain, it perishes.[l] 44 But man, who was formed by your hands and is called your image because he is made like you, and for whose sake you have formed all things, have you made him like the farmer's seed?[m] 45 Do not be angry with us, but spare your people and show mercy to your inheritance; for you are merciful to your own creation." 46 He replied, "Things present are for those now present, and things to come for those to come. 47 You are very far from being able to love my creation as much as I do. But I have often drawn near to you yourself, though never to the unrighteous.[n] 48 And in this also you are admirable before the Most High, 49 in that you have humbled yourself, as befits you, and have not counted yourself among the righteous so as to be greatly glorified. 50 For many severe miseries will come upon those who live in the world in the last times, because they have lived in great pride. 51 But as for you, understand for yourself, and seek out glory for those like you. 52 For it is for you that paradise has been opened, the tree of life planted, the age to come made ready, plenty provided, a city built, rest appointed,[o] goodness perfected, and wisdom brought to completion. 53 The root of evil has been sealed up from you; weakness and the moth[p] have been hidden from you, and corruption has fled into the underworld to be forgotten. 54 Sorrows have passed away, and at the end the treasure of immortality has been made manifest. 55 So ask no more questions about the multitude of those who perish. 56 For they too received freedom, but they scorned the Most High, held his law in contempt, and forsook his ways. 57 Moreover, they have trampled on his righteous ones, 58 and have told themselves in their hearts, ‘God does not exist,’ though they knew well they must die. [59] For just as the things foretold will welcome you, so thirst and torment, which have been prepared, will await them. For he did not wish anyone to be destroyed; [60] but those who were created have defiled the name of the one who made them, and have been ungrateful to the one who prepared life for them. [61] That is why my judgment is now drawing near. [62] These things I have not shown to all, but only to you and a few like you.”

[63] Then I replied,[q] “Look, lord, you have now shown me a host of signs which you will begin to perform in the last times, but you have not shown me at what time.”

Notes

- a (8:4) Latin “Swallow down, then, O soul, understanding, and devour what is wise.” Ezra addresses his own soul.
- b (8:5) Latin “For you have come together to obey, and wishing to prophesy”; the meaning is uncertain.
- c (8:8) The meaning of “fire and water” is uncertain; perhaps the warmth and fluid of the womb.
- d (8:9) The Latin of this verse is obscure.
- e (8:14) Latin “it is easy by your command to arrange that what was made be preserved”; the rendering follows the sense reported in the oriental versions.
- f (8:18) Latin “the swiftness of the judge who is to come.”
- g (8:20) The words are a heading within the text; many Latin manuscripts and the oriental versions reportedly have them. Ezra’s being “taken up” is described in 14:9, 49–50 (in the oriental versions; see 14:48 note).
- h (8:20) Latin “who inhabit the world (or the age)”; the oriental versions reportedly read “who abide for ever,” and the Latin may reflect a confusion of the two senses of Hebrew olam, “age, eternity, world.”
- i (8:22) Compare Psalm 104:4. The oriental versions reportedly read, “at whose command they are changed to wind and fire.”
- j (8:23) Latin “and truth bears witness”; the oriental versions reportedly read, “whose truth endures for ever.”
- k (8:35) That is, the faithful who confess God.
- l (8:43) The Latin of verse 43 lacks a main verb; the words “it perishes” are taken from the first word of verse 44 (sic periit, “so it perishes”).
- m (8:44) The Latin is confused; the rendering follows the sense reported in the oriental versions. Compare Genesis 1:26–27.

- n (8:47) Latin "I have often drawn near to you and to yourself, but never to the unrighteous"; the oriental versions reportedly read, "you have often compared yourself to the unrighteous. Never do so!"
- o (8:52) Latin probata, "approved," perhaps "appointed."
- p (8:53) Latin tinea, "moth" or "worm," an image of decay; the oriental versions reportedly read "death."
- q (8:63) In the Clementine Latin the words "Then I replied" stand at the end of verse 62; they are placed here at the start of verse 63.

Chapter 9

1 He replied, "Measure the time carefully within yourself; and when you see that a certain part of the signs foretold has gone by, 2 you will know that this is the hour at which the Most High will begin to visit the world of his making. 3 And when there appear in the world quakings of places, tumult of peoples,[a] 4 then you will understand that it was of these things the Most High spoke, from the days that were before you, from the beginning. 5 For just as everything made in the world has a beginning and likewise a completion, and the completion is plain to see, 6 so too the times of the Most High have beginnings plain to see in portents and mighty acts, and completions in deeds and in signs. 7 And it shall be that everyone who is saved, and who is able to escape by his works, or by the faith with which you have believed,[b] 8 will be left alive out of the perils foretold, and will see my salvation in my land and within my borders, which I have consecrated for myself from eternity. 9 Then those who have now misused my ways will be in anguish,[c] and those who have cast them aside with contempt will abide in torments. 10 For those who did not acknowledge me while they lived, though they received my benefits, 11 and those who loathed my law while they still had freedom, 12 and who, while room for repentance was still open to them, did not understand but scorned it, these must come to know it after death, in torment. 13 So do not go on being curious as to how the ungodly will be tormented; rather inquire how the righteous will be saved, whose the world is, for whom the world exists, and when."

14 I replied, 15 "I said it before, I say it now, and I will say it again: those who perish are more than those who will be saved, 16 as a wave is greater than a drop."
17 He replied,[d] "As the field is, so are the seeds; as the flowers are, so are their colors; as the worker is, so is the product; and as the farmer is, so is his tillage. For it was the time of the world.[e] 18 When I was preparing the world for those who now exist, before it was made for them to dwell in, no one opposed me;[f] 19 for no one then existed. But now those who have been created in this world that was prepared, with its unfailing harvest and its unsearchable law, have become corrupt in their ways. 20 Then I looked upon my world, and there it lay ruined; my earth was in danger through the schemes of those who had come into it.[g] 21 I looked and spared some, though with great difficulty, and kept for myself one grape from a cluster and one plant from a great forest.[h] 22 So let the multitude perish which was born in vain, and let my grape be saved, and my plant; for with much labor I have brought them to perfection.
23 "Now, if you will let yet another seven days pass—but do not fast in them; 24 instead, find a field of flowers where there is no house, and eat nothing there but what grows wild in the field; eat no meat and drink no wine, only flowers— 25 and pray to the Most High without ceasing; and I will come and speak with you." 26 So I went, as he had told me, into the field called Ardath,[i] and sat there among the flowers and ate the plants of the field, and the food they gave me was enough for me. 27 After seven days, as I lay on the grass, my heart was troubled again as before. 28 My mouth was opened, and I began to speak before the Most High: 29 "Lord, you showed yourself to our ancestors in the wilderness, in a place untrodden and unfruitful, when they were coming out of Egypt; and you declared, 30 'Hear me, Israel; and you, offspring of Jacob, attend to my words. 31 For see, I am sowing my law in you, and it shall bring forth fruit in you, and you shall be glorified in it for ever.' 32 But our ancestors received the law and did not keep it, nor observe the statutes; yet the fruit of the law did not perish, nor could it, for it was yours.[j] 33 Those who received it perished, because they did not guard what had been sown in them. 34 Now this is the usual course: when the ground receives seed, or the sea a ship, or any vessel food or drink, and that into which the seed was sown or the thing put is destroyed, 35 then what was sown or put in, or what was received, is destroyed along with it; the things received no longer remain with us. But with us it has not been so. 36 For we who received the law have sinned and perished, and our heart also which received it; 37 but the law has not perished; it remains in its glory."[k]

38 While these things were in my heart, I glanced about, and there to my right was a woman, lamenting and crying aloud, grieving deeply in her soul; her garments were rent, and ashes lay on her head. 39 So I put aside the thoughts with which I was occupied, turned to her, 40 and said, "Why are you weeping? Why are you grieved in soul?" 41 She said to me, "Let me be, my lord, so that I may bewail myself and add to my grief, for I am deeply embittered in spirit and brought very low." 42 I said to her, "What has befallen you? Tell me." 43 She said to me, "I, your servant, was barren and had no child, though I had a husband thirty years. 44 Hour after hour, day after day, all through those thirty years, I entreated the Most High by night and by day. 45 After thirty years God heard your servant, saw how low I was, took notice of my distress, and gave me a son. My husband, my neighbors and I were overjoyed with him, and we gave great honor to the Mighty One. 46 I brought him up with much toil. 47 And when he had grown and the time came for him to take a wife, I prepared a feast day.

Notes

- a (9:3) The oriental versions reportedly add, "confusion of nations, and disquiet of rulers."
- b (9:7) Compare 13:23. The Latin here reads "the faith in which you have believed," addressing the readers directly.
- c (9:9) Latin miserebuntur, "will be pitiable" or "will be wretched."
- d (9:17) In the Clementine Latin the words "He replied" stand at the end of verse 16; they are placed at the head of the answer.
- e (9:17) The meaning of the last sentence is uncertain.
- f (9:18) Latin "When I was preparing for them, for those who now are, before the world was made in which they would dwell, no one contradicted me." The rendering combines the end of verse 18 with the start of verse 19, following the sense of the oriental versions as reported.

- g (9:20) The words “and saw that it was lost; I saw my earth” are supplied from the oriental versions, as reported, where the Latin reads only “and behold, it was in peril.”
- h (9:21) Compare Isaiah 65:8. Latin de tribu multa, “from a great tribe”; the rendering “forest” follows the oriental versions as reported.
- i (9:26) The name Ardath is of unknown meaning and location; the oriental versions reportedly read Arpad, Araat, or similar forms.
- j (9:32) Latin “and the fruit of the law did not appear (or obey); nor could it, for it was yours.” The rendering follows the sense of the oriental versions as reported.
- k (9:37) Latin in suo labore, “in its labor,” apparently a corruption; the oriental versions reportedly read “in its glory.”

Chapter 10

1 “But when my son went into his bridal chamber, he fell down and died. 2 Then we all overturned the lamps,[a] and all my townspeople rose up to console me; and I kept still until the evening of the next day. 3 When they had all left off consoling me, so that I might be quiet, I got up by night and fled, and came, as you see, to this field. 4 And I mean never to go back into the city, but to stay here, neither eating nor drinking, but mourning and fasting without a break until I die.” 5 Then I left the reflections in which I had been engaged, and answered her in anger: 6 “You most foolish of women, do you not see our grief, and what has happened to us? 7 For Zion, the mother of us all, is in deep sorrow and great humiliation, and mourns most bitterly. 8 And now, when we all mourn and are sad because we are all in sorrow, are you grieving over one son? 9 Ask the earth, and she will tell you:
she is the one who should mourn so many that have grown up on her. 10 From her all have been born from the beginning, and others will come; and look, nearly all go to perdition, and their multitude is brought to destruction. 11 Who, then, has more reason to mourn:
she who has lost so great a multitude, or you, who grieve for one?
12 But if you say to me, ‘My lament is not like the earth’s, for I have lost the fruit of my womb, which I bore in grief and brought forth in pain; 13 but with the earth it is the way of the earth: the multitude now in her has gone as it came’—then I say to you: 14 just as you gave birth with travail, so the earth from the beginning has given her fruit, humankind, to him who made her. 15 Now therefore keep your grief to yourself, and bear bravely the misfortunes that have befallen you.

16 For if you own God's decree as just, in due season you will have your son back,[b] and among women you will win praise. 17 So go into the city to your husband." 18 She said to me,[c] "I will not do it. I will not go into the city; I will die here." 19 So I spoke to her once more, and said: 20 "Do not say such a thing, but let yourself be persuaded; for how many are the misfortunes of Zion! Take comfort because of the sorrow of Jerusalem. 21 For you see that our holy place has been laid waste, our altar thrown down, our temple destroyed; 22 our harp is brought low, our hymn silenced, our rejoicing ended; the light of our lampstand is put out, the ark of our covenant plundered, our holy things defiled, and the name by which we are called all but profaned; our children have suffered insult, our priests have been burned, our Levites have gone into captivity, our virgins have been defiled and our wives ravished, our righteous men carried off, our little ones lost, our young men enslaved, and our strong men made weak. 23 And worst of all, the seal of Zion: she has been unsealed[d] from her glory and handed over to those who hate us. 24 So throw off your deep sadness and set aside your crowd of sorrows, so that the Mighty One may be reconciled with you again, and the Most High may give you rest, relief from your troubles."
25 While I was speaking to her, all at once her face shone exceedingly, and her countenance flashed like lightning, so that I was greatly afraid to go near her, and wondered what this might be. 26 Suddenly she let out a loud cry, full of fear, so that the earth shook at the sound. I looked, 27 and the woman was no longer visible to me, but there was a city being built,[e] and a place showed itself with massive foundations. I was afraid and cried aloud: 28 "Where is Uriel the angel, who came to me at the first? It is he who has made me fall into this great bewilderment; my end has become corruption, and my prayer a reproach." 29 While I was saying this, he came to me and looked at me.
30 There I lay like a dead man, bereft of understanding. He took hold of my right hand, gave me strength, set me on my feet, and said to me, 31 "What is wrong with you? Why are your understanding and the thoughts of your heart troubled? Why are you disturbed?" 32 I said, "Because you forsook me! I did as you told me, and went out into the field, and look, I have seen, and still see, what I cannot describe." 33 He told me, "Stand up like a man, and I will counsel you." 34 I said, "Speak to me, my lord; do not forsake me, lest I die before my time.[f] 35 Things unknown to me I have beheld, and things beyond my knowing I am hearing. 36 Can it be that my senses are cheated, and my soul is in a dream? 37 Now, then, I entreat you to explain to your servant this bewildering vision." 38 He answered, "Listen to me, and I will teach you and explain the things you fear; the Most High has revealed many secrets to you. 39

He has seen your upright way: that you have grieved without ceasing for your people, and mourned greatly over Zion. 40 This, then, is the meaning of the vision that appeared to you a little while ago. 41 You saw a woman mourning, and you began to console her; 42 but now you no longer see the form of a woman; instead a city being built has appeared to you. 43 And as for her telling you of the misfortune of her son, this is the explanation: 44 This woman whom you saw is Zion, whom you now see as a city built.[g] 45 And as for her telling you that she was barren thirty years, it is because for three thousand years[h] no offering had yet been offered in her. 46 Then, after three thousand years, Solomon built the city and offered offerings; that was when the barren woman bore a son. 47 Her words that she reared him with toil signify the time of dwelling in Jerusalem. 48 And as for her telling you, 'My son died when he entered his bridal chamber, and misfortune befell him,' that was the ruin which came upon Jerusalem. 49 And look, you have seen her likeness, how she mourned her son, and you began to console her for what had befallen her. These were the things to be disclosed to you. 50 For now the Most High, seeing that you were grieved to the depths of your soul and suffered with all your heart on her account, has shown you the brightness of her glory and the loveliness of her beauty. 51 That is why I told you to stay in the field where no house had been built; 52 I was aware that the Most High meant to begin revealing these things to you. 53 That was why I bade you come to open ground, where no building had a foundation. 54 for no work of human building could endure in the place where the city of the Most High was to be shown. 55 Do not fear, then, and let no terror seize your heart; enter, and behold how splendid and how vast the edifice is, so far as your eyes have power to see it; 56 and afterward you will hear as much as your ears can take in. 57 For you are blessed beyond many, and are called before the Most High as only a few are. 58 But tomorrow night you are to remain here, 59 and the Most High will show you in dreams[i] those visions of what he will do to the inhabitants of the earth in the last days." I slept that night and the following one, just as he had told me.[j]

Notes

- a (10:2) Latin evertimus omnes lumina, "we all overturned the lamps," a sign of mourning; the oriental versions reportedly read "put out the lamps."
- b (10:16) Latin "you will receive his counsel in time"; the rendering follows the sense of the oriental versions as reported.
- c (10:18) In the Clementine Latin the words "She said to me" stand at the end of verse 17; they are placed at the head of her reply.
- d (10:23) Latin resignata, "unsealed," that is, her seal is broken and her glory taken away.
- e (10:27) The heavenly Jerusalem (compare 7:26; 8:52; 13:36).
- f (10:34) Latin ut non frustra moriar, "lest I die in vain."
- g (10:44) The Latin of this verse is broken; the rendering follows the sense.
- h (10:45) Latin triginta, "thirty"; the oriental versions reportedly read "three thousand years," referring to the years from creation to Solomon's temple, and the rendering follows that reading in verses 45–46 in place of the Latin "thirty."
- i (10:59) Latin visiones supremorum, "visions of the highest (or last) things"; the words "in dreams" follow the oriental versions as reported.
- j (10:59) In the Clementine Latin the last sentence is a separate verse (10:60), so that the chapter has 60 verses; the numbering of most English versions is followed here.

Chapter 11

1 On the second night[a] I had a dream: there was an eagle rising up from the sea, with twelve feathered wings and three heads.[b] 2 I looked: over all the land it stretched out its wings, every wind of the sky breathed on it, and the clouds[c] massed together around it. 3 I watched, and from its wings there grew opposing wings,[d] and these became little, puny wings. 4 Its heads lay quiet; the one in the middle was bigger than its fellows, yet it also lay quiet along with them. 5 I watched, and the eagle flew with its wings and reigned over the earth and over those who dwell in it. 6 I saw that everything under heaven was subject to it, and no one spoke against it, not one creature on the earth. 7 I watched, and the eagle rose up on its talons and gave a cry to its wings, saying, 8 "Do not all keep watch at once; let each sleep in its own place, and keep watch in turn; 9 but let the heads be kept for the last." 10 I looked, and the cry came not out of its heads, but out of the midst of its body.

11 Then I numbered its opposing wings: eight in all. 12 I watched, and on the right side one wing arose and reigned over all the earth. 13 And while it was reigning, its end came, and it disappeared, so that its place was not seen. The next arose and reigned, and it held sway a long time. 14 And while it was reigning, its end came too, so that it vanished like the first. 15 Then a voice sounded, saying to it, 16 "Listen, you who have ruled the earth for so long; before you begin to vanish, this is my announcement to you: 17 after you, no one will hold sway as long as you, or even half as long."[e] 18 Then the third raised itself up and held the rule like those before, and it also disappeared. 19 And so it befell all the wings one after another, to bear rule and then to vanish from sight. 20 I watched, and in due course the wings that followed were raised up on the right side,[f] that they also might hold the rule; and some of them held it, but at once disappeared; 21 and some of them were raised up, but did not hold the rule. 22 After this I looked: gone were the twelve wings, gone two of the small wings, 23 and nothing was left on the eagle's body except the two heads that were at rest and six little wings. 24 I watched, and two of the six little wings broke away and stayed under the head on the right side; but four stayed where they were. 25 I watched, and these underwings planned to raise themselves up and hold the rule. 26 I watched, and one was raised up, but at once vanished; 27 and the second vanished even more swiftly than the first. 28 I watched, and the two that remained were plotting between themselves to reign as well. 29 And while they were plotting, one of the heads that were at rest, the one in the middle, woke up; for it was greater than the other two heads. 30 And I perceived that it joined the pair of heads to itself, 31 and that head, together with its companions, swung round and swallowed up the two underwings that were scheming for the kingdom. 32 This head struck terror into the whole earth, and lorded it over earth's dwellers with great oppression, and held power over the world more than all the wings that had been. 33 After this I looked, and suddenly the middle head too disappeared, just as the wings had. 34 But two heads remained, and they also reigned in like manner over the earth and those who dwell in it. 35 I looked, and the head on the right side swallowed up the head on the left.

36 Then I heard a voice telling me, "Look in front of you, and consider what you see." 37 I looked, and there came a lion-like creature, stirred up out of the woods and roaring; and I heard it speak with a man's voice to the eagle, addressing it thus: 38 "Hear, for I have words for you. Thus says the Most High: 39 Are you not the survivor of the four beasts[g] whom I set to rule in my world, that through them the close of their times might arrive? 40 You, the fourth, coming last, overcame every beast that was before you, and ruled the world with great terror, and the whole globe with cruel oppression; for long ages you have inhabited the earth by fraud. 41 You have judged the earth, but not with truth; 42 for you have afflicted the meek and injured the peaceable; you have loved liars, destroyed the dwellings of the fruitful, and torn down the walls of those who did you no harm. 43 Your insolence has gone up to the Most High, and your pride to the Mighty One. 44 The Most High has looked upon his[h] times, and see, they are ended, and his ages are complete. 45 Therefore vanish, eagle—you, your dreadful wings, your wicked small wings, your spiteful heads, your evil claws, and all your empty body— 46 so that the whole earth may be refreshed and relieved, set free from your violence, and may hope for the judgment and mercy of him who made it."

Notes

- a (11:1) The fifth vision (11:1–12:51) is the vision of the eagle. The words "On the second night" are not in the Clementine Latin, which begins "And I saw a dream"; they are reportedly found in other witnesses.
- b (11:1) The eagle stands for the Roman Empire (12:11), identified with the fourth kingdom of Daniel 7:7, 23. The wings and heads are generally understood as Roman emperors; the three heads are often taken to be Vespasian, Titus, and Domitian (AD 69–96), but the identifications are disputed.

- c (11:2) Latin “and they were gathered together”; the words “the clouds … about it” are supplied from the oriental versions, as reported.
- d (11:3) Latin contrariae pennae, “opposing wings,” perhaps rival claimants or lesser rulers.
- e (11:17) Often taken to refer to Augustus, who ruled the empire for over forty years (27 BC–AD 14).
- f (11:20) Latin “from the right side”; the text of verses 20–21 is uncertain.
- g (11:39) The four beasts of Daniel 7:3–7.
- h (11:44) Latin superba tempora, “the proud times”; the rendering follows the sense of the oriental versions as reported, “his (that is, God’s) times.” The Latin scelera ejus, “its crimes,” is likewise rendered from the oriental versions, as reported.

Chapter 12

1 While the lion was speaking these words to the eagle, I looked, 2 and there was the head that had remained; and the four wings[a] that had gone over to it had disappeared, though they had been raised up to reign; and their reign was feeble and full of tumult. 3 I looked, and they too had vanished, and the whole body of the eagle was set on fire, and the earth was struck with great dread. Then out of the tumult and the frenzy of my mind, and out of my great fear, I woke, and said to my spirit, 4 “Look, you have brought this on me, because you investigate the ways of the Most High. 5 Look, my mind is worn out still, my spirit is utterly weak, and hardly any strength remains in me, so greatly was I terrified this night. 6 So now I will pray to the Most High to strengthen me to the end.”

7 I said, “Lord and Master, if I have found favor in your sight, and if I am counted righteous before you above many, and if my supplication has truly come up before your face, 8 strengthen me, and show your servant the interpretation and the clear meaning of this fearful vision, so that you may fully console my soul. 9 For you have judged me worthy to be shown the last of the times.”

10 He told me,[b] “This is the interpretation of this vision of yours: 11 The eagle that you saw rising from the sea is the kingdom which appeared in a vision to your brother Daniel.[c] 12 But it was not interpreted to him as I now interpret it to you. 13 Look, the days are coming when a kingdom will rise on the earth, and it will be more dreadful than all the kingdoms that were before it. 14 Twelve kings will reign in it, one after another. 15 But the second to begin reigning will hold sway for a longer time than any of the twelve. 16 This is the meaning of the twelve wings you saw. 17 As for the voice you heard speaking, not issuing from its heads but from the midst of its body, 18 this is the meaning: after the time of that kingdom[d] no small strife will arise, and it will be in danger of falling; yet it will not fall then, but will be restored to its former state. 19 As for your seeing eight underwings clinging to its wings, 20 this is the meaning: eight kings will arise in it, whose times will be brief and their years swift; two of them will perish. 21 As the middle of its time draws near, four will be kept until the time when its end begins to approach; but two will be kept for the end. 22 As for your seeing three heads at rest, 23 this is the meaning: in its final days the Most High will raise up three kings,[e] and they will renew many things in it and rule over the earth 24 and its dwellers with more oppression than all who were before them. That is why they are called the heads of the eagle; 25 for it is they who will sum up its godlessness, and who will bring its last days to completion. 26 As for your seeing the greater head disappear, this is its meaning: one of them will die on his bed, yet in torments.[f] 27 As for the two who remain, the sword will devour them. 28 For the sword of the one will devour his companion; but he too will fall by the sword in the last days.[g] 29 As for your seeing two underwings passing over to the head on the right side, 30 this is the meaning: these are the ones whom the Most High has kept for its end; this is the feeble reign, full of turmoil, as you saw. 31 As for the lion that you saw roused out of the forest, roaring and speaking to the eagle and reproving it for its wrongdoing in all the words you heard, 32 this is the Anointed One,[h] reserved by the Most High for the close of the days, sprung from David's line, who will come and address them.

He will rebuke them for their godlessness and their wicked deeds, and will lay before them their acts of contempt.[i] 33 For first he will set them alive in judgment, and when he has reproved them, then he will destroy them. 34 Yet my people who are left, the ones saved within my borders, he will set free with compassion, and gladden them until the end arrives, the day of judgment, of which I told you at the outset. 35
This is the dream that you saw, and this is its interpretation. 36 And you alone have been worthy to learn this secret of the Most High.

37 So write all these things that you have seen in a book, and put it in a hidden place; 38 and teach them to the wise among your people; you know that their hearts are able to understand and preserve these secrets. 39 But as for you, wait here seven more days, so that whatever it pleases the Most High to show you may be shown to you." Then he left me.[j]
40 When all the people heard that seven days had passed and I had not gone back to the city, they all gathered, from the least to the greatest, and came to me and said to me, 41 "How have we sinned against you, and what wrong have we done to you, that you have abandoned us and sit in this place? 42 For of all the peoples you alone are left to us, like a cluster from the vintage, like a lamp in a dark place, like a haven and a ship saved from the storm. 43 Are not the evils that have befallen us enough? 44 If you abandon us, how much better it would have been if we too had been consumed when Zion burned! 45 We are not better than the ones who perished there." Then they wailed aloud.
46 "Take courage, Israel; and do not be sad, house of Jacob. 47 For you are remembered before the Most High, and the Mighty One has not forgotten you in your trial.[k] 48 I have not forsaken you, nor gone away from you; but I came to this place to pray over the desolation of Zion, and to seek mercy for the low estate of your sanctuary. 49 Now go, each of you, to your house, and I will come to you after these days." 50
So the people went into the city, as I told them. 51 But I sat in the field seven days, as he had commanded me; and in those days I ate only the flowers of the field, and my food was of plants.

Notes

- a (12:2) Latin "the four wings"; perhaps the four little wings of 11:24.
- b (12:10) In the Latin, "And he said to me" stands at the end of verse 9; it is placed at the head of the reply.
- c (12:11) Daniel 7:7–8, 23–27. Here the fourth kingdom of Daniel, originally the Greek empire, is reinterpreted as Rome.
- d (12:18) Usually taken as the civil wars of AD 68–69 after the death of Nero, when the empire nearly fell and was restored under Vespasian.
- e (12:23) Latin regna, "kingdoms"; the rendering follows the sense of the oriental versions, as reported.

- f (12:26) Often taken as Vespasian, who died a natural death in AD 79.
- g (12:28) The Latin of verse 28 is confused. It is commonly taken to refer to Domitian, who was popularly (and probably wrongly) believed to have killed his brother Titus, and who was himself assassinated in AD 96.
- h (12:32) "Anointed One" is Messiah (Hebrew) or Christ (Greek). The Latin reads ventus, "wind," evidently a corruption; the rendering follows the oriental versions as reported, which also supply the words "until the end of days ... and speak to them."
- i (12:32) Latin discerptiones, "acts of contempt" or "insults"; the meaning is uncertain.
- j (12:39) In the Latin, "Then he left me" stands at the beginning of verse 40.
- k (12:47) Latin in tentatione, "in temptation" or "in trial."

Chapter 13

1 After seven days I dreamed a dream by night.[a] 2 There was a wind rising out of the sea, which stirred up all its waves. 3 As I watched, that wind brought something up from the depths of the sea that looked like a man;[b] and this man flew with the clouds of heaven.[c] Wherever he turned his face, everything under his gaze trembled; 4 and wherever the voice went forth from his mouth, all who heard his voice melted away, as wax melts[d] when it feels the fire. 5 After this I looked, and a multitude of people past numbering was being gathered from the four winds of heaven to make war on the man who had come up out of the sea. 6 I watched, and he carved a great mountain out for himself and flew up onto it. 7 I sought to see the region or place from which the mountain had been carved, and could not. 8 After this I looked, and all who had gathered against him to fight him were seized with great fear, yet they dared to fight. 9 And when he saw the onrush of the multitude as it came, he did not lift his hand, nor hold a spear[e] or any weapon of war; but I saw only 10 but only how he poured out of his mouth what looked like a torrent of fire, and out of his lips a fiery blast, and out of his tongue he hurled sparks and tempests; and all of these mingled together, the torrent of fire, the fiery blast, and the mighty tempest, 11 and fell upon the onrushing multitude prepared for battle, and burned them all up, so that suddenly nothing was to be seen of that countless multitude but only dust of ashes and the smell of smoke. I saw it and was astounded.

12 After this I saw that man coming down from the mountain and calling to himself another multitude, a peaceable one. 13 Then the forms of many people came to him, some of them glad and some sorrowful; some were in bonds, and some were bringing others as offerings.[f]
Then I fell sick from the greatness of my fear; I woke, and said, 14
"From the beginning you have shown your servant these wonders, and you have considered me worthy to have my plea received; 15 now show me also the interpretation of this dream. 16 For as I reckon in my understanding, woe to those who are left in those days, and much more woe to those who are not left! 17 For those who are not left will be in sorrow, 18 since they understand what is laid up for the last days, but will not attain it.[g] But woe also to those who are left, 19 for this very reason, that they will see great perils and much distress, as these dreams show. 20 Yet it is better to come into these things, though in peril, than to pass away like a cloud from the world and not see what will happen at the last." 21 He answered,[h] "I will tell you what the vision means, and I will also explain to you the things you spoke of. 22 Concerning your words about the ones who are left, here is the meaning: 23 the one who causes the danger in that season will keep safe the ones who meet with danger, if they have works and faith toward the Almighty.[i] 24 Know this, then: those who remain are more blessed than those who have died. 25 Here is what the vision signifies: you beheld a man ascending out of the sea's heart; 26 this is he whom the Most High is keeping for many ages, who will himself set free his creation; and he will order the lot of those who are left. 27 As for your seeing wind and fire and storm come out of his mouth, 28 and that he held no spear or weapon of war, yet his onrush destroyed the multitude that came to make war on him, this is the meaning: 29 the days are coming when the Most High will begin to deliver those who are on the earth. 30 And bewilderment of mind[j] will come upon the dwellers on earth. 31 They will plan to make war on one another: a city on a city, a region on a region, a nation on a nation, and one kingdom on another. 32 When these things happen, and the signs occur that I showed you earlier, then my son[k] will be revealed, the one you saw rising from the sea as a man. 33 And when all the nations hear his voice, each of them will leave behind, in its own land, the warfare that they wage against one another; 34 and a countless multitude will be gathered together, as you saw, wishing to come and make war on him. 35 But he will stand on the summit of Mount Zion. 36 And Zion will come into view, prepared and built, for all to see, just like the mountain you saw cut out without hands.[l] 37 And he, my son, will reprove the nations that have come for their godlessness—this was signified by the storm[m]— 38 and will set before them their evil thoughts and the torments with which they will be tormented, which were signified by the flame; and he will destroy them without labor by the law, which was signified by the fire. 39 You beheld him summon another throng to himself, a peaceable one: 40 these are the ten tribes which were led away captive from their own land in the days of King Hoshea,[n] whom Shalmaneser[o] the king of the Assyrians led captive; he carried them across the River, and they were taken into another land. 41 But they made a plan among themselves to leave the crowd of nations and go to a more distant region, where human beings had never lived, 42 that there at least they might keep their statutes, which they had not kept in their own land.

43 And they went in by the narrow passages of the Euphrates River. 44 For then the Most High performed signs for them and held back the channels of the river until they had crossed. 45 The road through that country was long, a march of eighteen months; and the region bears the name Arzareth.[p] 46 There they have dwelt until the last time; and now, when they are about to come again, 47 the Most High will once more hold back the river's channels to let them pass over. This is why the throng you beheld was at peace. 48 But those of your people who are left are those who are found within my holy border.[q] 49 So when he destroys the multitude of the nations that are gathered together, he will protect the people who remain. 50 And then he will show them very many wonders."
51 I said, "Lord and Master, explain this to me: why did I see the man rising from the heart of the sea?" He told me, 52 "Just as no one can search out or know what is deep within the sea, so nobody on earth is able to see my son or his companions, except in his own time.[r] 53 This is the interpretation of the dream that you saw; and on account of it you alone have been enlightened here. 54 For you have forsaken your own ways, and have given yourself to mine, and have searched out my law. 55 You have ordered your life in wisdom, and have called understanding your mother. 56 That is why I have shown you this; for there is a reward with the Most High. After three more days I will tell you other things, and set before you weighty and wonderful matters."

57 So I went out to the field, glorifying and praising the Most High greatly for the marvels he works at their appointed times, 58 and because he rules the seasons and all that is brought about in them.
Three days I remained there.

Notes

- a (13:1) The sixth vision (13:1–58), the man from the sea.
- b (13:3) The Latin lacks the words "that wind … the figure of a man"; they are supplied from the oriental versions, as reported, since a line has evidently dropped out of the Latin.
- c (13:3) Latin convalescebat cum millibus caeli, "grew strong with the thousands of heaven," evidently a corruption; the rendering follows the oriental versions as reported. Compare Daniel 7:13, "one like a son of man, coming with the clouds of heaven."
- d (13:4) Latin "as the earth is at rest when it feels fire," evidently corrupt; the rendering follows the oriental versions as reported. Compare Psalm 97:5; Micah 1:4.
- e (13:9) Latin framea, a Germanic spear; here simply "spear."
- f (13:13) The Latin of this verse is obscure; compare Isaiah 66:20, where the nations bring the scattered Israelites as an offering.
- g (13:18) The Latin of verses 17–18 is confused; the rendering follows the sense of the oriental versions, as reported.
- h (13:21) In the Latin, "And he answered me and said" stands at the end of verse 20.
- i (13:23) Latin Fortissimum, "the Mightiest One." The Latin of this verse is obscure.
- j (13:30) Latin excessus mentis, "frenzy" or "ecstasy" of mind.
- k (13:32) The Latin filius meus, "my son," here and in verses 37 and 52 and in 14:9, reportedly corresponds to "my servant" in some oriental versions, and may render Greek pais, which can mean either "son" or "servant." Compare 7:28–29.
- l (13:36) Compare Daniel 2:34, 45, the stone cut out without hands.
- m (13:37) Latin of verses 37–38 is confused; the rendering follows the sense of the oriental versions, as reported, which explain the storm, the flame, and the fire of verses 10–11.

- n (13:40) Hoshea ("salvation"), last king of the northern kingdom of Israel (2 Kings 17:1–6), about 732–722 BC.
- o (13:40) Shalmaneser V, king of Assyria, 727–722 BC; the name means "(the god) Shulmanu is foremost."
- p (13:45) Arzareth (Latin Arsareth) is probably a corruption of Hebrew erets aheret, "another land," from Deuteronomy 29:28, the verse that later rabbinic tradition applied to the lost ten tribes.
- q (13:48) Latin "within my border"; the word "holy" is supplied from the oriental versions, as reported.
- r (13:52) Latin nisi in tempore diei, "except in the time of the day"; the oriental versions reportedly read "of his day."

Chapter 14

1 On the third day, as I was sitting under an oak,[a] 2 when out of a bush facing me a voice spoke: "Ezra, Ezra!" I answered, "Here I am, Lord," and stood up on my feet. He told me, 3 "I revealed myself openly in the bush and spoke to Moses, when my people were slaves in Egypt; 4 and I sent him and led my people out of Egypt, and brought him up on Mount Sinai, and kept him with me many days. 5 I told him many wondrous things, and showed him the secrets of the times and the end;[b] and I commanded him, saying, 6 'These words you shall make public, and these you shall keep hidden.' 7 And now I say to you: 8 store in your heart the signs I have shown you, the dreams you have seen, and the interpretations you have heard; 9 for you will be taken from human beings, and from then on you will dwell with my son[c] and with others like you, until the times are over. 10 For the world has lost its youth, and the times are drawing near to old age. 11 For the world[d] is split into twelve portions; nine portions are gone already, and half of the tenth; 12 and there remain of it two parts, besides half of the tenth part.[e] 13 Now therefore set your house in order, warn your people, comfort the lowly among them, and renounce now the life of corruption. 14 Put away from you mortal thoughts, cast off from you the burdens of humankind, strip off now your feeble nature, set aside the thoughts that trouble you most, and hasten to depart from these times. 15 For evils worse than those you have now seen happen will be done hereafter. 16 For the feebler the world grows with age, so much the more will evils abound upon its dwellers. 17 Truth will withdraw farther off, and falsehood draw near; for the eagle[f] you saw in the vision is already hastening to come."

18 Then I replied, "Let me speak before you, Lord. 19 Look, I will go, as you have ordered me, and I will warn the people living now; but who will warn those who are born later? 20 For the world lies in darkness, and its dwellers are without light. 21 For your law has been burned,[g] and so no one knows the things that have been done by you, or the works that are to begin. 22 But if I have found favor before you, send the Holy Spirit into me, and I will set down everything done in the world since its beginning, all that stood written in your law, that people may find the path, and that any who desire life in the last days may live."
23 He answered, "Go, gather the people, and tell them not to look for you for forty days. 24 But get ready many writing tablets,[h] and take with you Sarea, Dabria, Selemia, Ethanus and Asiel,[i] these five, since they are trained to write quickly; 25 Then come back here; I will light a lamp of understanding in your heart, and it will burn until you finish the writing you start. 26 When the work is done, part of it you are to publish, and part you are to hand on secretly to the wise. At this hour tomorrow the writing will begin."
27 So I went, as he had commanded me, and gathered all the people, and said, 28 "Hear these words, Israel. 29 At the first our ancestors dwelt as strangers in Egypt, and they were set free from there, 30 and received the law of life, which they did not keep, and which you also have transgressed after them. 31 Afterward a land was granted to you as an inheritance in the land of Zion; yet you and your forebears committed iniquity and failed to walk in the ways the Most High laid down for you. 32 And because he is a righteous judge, in due time he took back what he had given you. 33 And now you are here, and your kindred are farther inland than you.[j] 34 So if you master your understanding and discipline your heart, you will stay alive, and after death you will receive mercy. 35 For after death the judgment will come, when we live once more; and then the names of the righteous will become manifest, and the deeds of the godless will be disclosed. 36 But let no one come to me now, nor seek me for forty days."

37 So I took the five men, as he commanded me, and we went out into the field and stayed there. 38 Next day a voice summoned me: "Ezra, open your mouth, and drink the draught I offer you." 39 So I opened my mouth, and a full cup was handed to me; it was filled with something that looked like water, but its color was like fire. 40 I received it and drank; and as soon as I had drunk, understanding welled up from my heart, wisdom grew within my breast, and my spirit held fast its memory;[k] 41 and my mouth was opened, and was not closed again. 42
The Most High gave understanding to the five men, and they wrote what was spoken, in turn, in characters which they did not know.[l]
They sat forty days; 43 they ate their bread by night;[m] but as for me, I spoke by day, and by night I was not silent. 44 So in forty days ninety-four[n] books were written. 45 At the end of the forty days the Most High said to me, "The twenty-four books[o] you wrote first, publish openly, for the worthy and unworthy alike to read; 46 the seventy written afterward, however, you are to keep and hand on to the wise of your people. 47 For in them is the spring of understanding, the fountain of wisdom, and the river of knowledge." 48 And I did so.[p]

Notes

- a (14:1) The seventh vision (14:1–48), Ezra and the restoration of the scriptures. The oak recalls Abraham at Mamre (Genesis 18:1).
- b (14:5) Compare 2 Baruch 59:4–11, where Moses is likewise shown the secrets of the end on Sinai.
- c (14:9) See the note on 13:32.
- d (14:11) Latin saeculum. The division of world history into twelve parts is reportedly lacking or different in some oriental versions.
- e (14:12) The Latin of verses 11–12 is reportedly confused in the manuscripts ("ten and a half parts have passed"); the rendering follows the sense of the oriental versions as reported, which agree that the greater part of the world's time is past.
- f (14:17) Latin "the vision which you saw"; the word "eagle" follows the oriental versions, as reported, referring to the eagle vision of chapters 11–12.
- g (14:21) Referring to the destruction of the temple and its scrolls by the Babylonians in 587 BC (compare 4:23). The story that Ezra restored the scriptures by inspiration is reflected in some early Christian writers.
- h (14:24) Latin buxos, "boxwood tablets," wooden tablets coated with wax for writing.
- i (14:24) The five scribes' names are reportedly uncertain and appear differently in the versions; the Latin reads Saream, Dabriam, Selemiam, Echanum, and Asiel.

Selemia is probably Shelemiah, “Yahweh has repaid”; Asiel probably means “God has made”; the others are of uncertain meaning.

- j (14:33) Latin introrsum vestrum, “within you” or “farther in,” probably referring to the ten tribes beyond the Euphrates (13:40–45).
- k (14:40) Latin “my spirit was kept in memory.”
- l (14:42) Latin excessiones noctis, “the outpourings of the night,” evidently a corruption; the rendering follows the oriental versions as reported. The “characters they did not know” are commonly taken to be the square Aramaic script, which in Jewish tradition Ezra introduced in place of the older Hebrew script.
- m (14:43) The Latin has “they ate bread at night” at the beginning of the verse; the words “They sat forty days” at the end of verse 42 are supplied from the oriental versions, as reported.
- n (14:44) Latin ducenti quattuor, “two hundred and four”; other Latin witnesses and the oriental versions reportedly read “ninety-four.” The seventy hidden books are esoteric writings such as this one.
- o (14:45) The twenty-four books are the Hebrew scriptures as counted in Jewish tradition (the Torah, the Prophets, and the Writings, with the Twelve counted as one book, and Ezra–Nehemiah and Chronicles each as one). The number “twenty-four” is supplied from the oriental versions, as reported; the Latin reads “the first books.”
- p (14:48) In the Clementine Latin these words end verse 47, and the book of 4 Ezra ends there. The eastern versions are said to go on with a closing statement dated to the seventh year of the sixth week, 5,000 years, three months and twelve days after the creation. It says that Ezra was then caught up and carried to the company of those like him once all these things were written, and that he received the title “Scribe of the knowledge of the Most High” for all time. This is the “taking up” referred to in 8:20 and 14:9. Most English versions number the words “And I did so” as verse 48.

Chapter 15

1 “See, speak in the hearing of my people the words of prophecy which I will put in your mouth,[a] says the Lord; 2 and have them written on paper,[b] for they are trustworthy and true. 3 Do not fear the plots against you, and do not let the unbelief of those who speak against you trouble you. 4 For every unbeliever will die in his unbelief.” 5 “Look, I am bringing evils upon the whole world, says the Lord: sword and famine, death and ruin; 6 because iniquity has utterly defiled the whole earth, and their harmful deeds have reached their full measure. 7 Therefore, says the Lord, 8 I will not stay silent any longer about their godlessness, which they practice so irreverently, and I will not put up with their wicked ways. See, the blood of the innocent and righteous cries out to me, and the souls of the righteous call out without stopping. 9 I will surely avenge them, says the Lord, and will require from them all the innocent blood shed among them. 10 See, my people are led like a flock to the slaughter. I will no longer let them live in the land of Egypt, 11 but I will bring them out with a mighty hand and an uplifted arm, and will strike Egypt with plagues as before, and will destroy all its land. 12 Egypt will mourn, and its foundations will be struck with the blow and the chastisement that God will bring upon it. 13 Those who till the soil will mourn, because their seed will fail through blight and hail and a fearful star.[c] 14 Woe to the world and its dwellers! 15 For the sword and their ruin are drawing near; nation will rise up against nation in battle, with swords in their hands. 16 For there will be unrest among people; growing strong against one another, they will pay no heed to their king, and their princes will reckon their deeds by their own might.[d] 17 A person will long to go into a city, and will not be able to. 18 For because of their pride the cities will be in turmoil, the houses will be destroyed, and people will be afraid. 19 No one will pity a neighbor; they will attack one another's houses with the sword and plunder their goods, driven by hunger for bread and by great distress.

20 "See, says God, I am summoning all the kings of the earth to fear me, from the rising sun, from the south, from the east and from Lebanon,[e] to turn on one another and repay what has been done to them. 21 As they are doing to my chosen ones to this day, so I will do, and will repay into their laps. This is what the Lord God says: 22 My right hand will show no mercy to sinners, nor will my sword rest from any who pour out guiltless blood upon the earth." 23 And fire went out from his anger and consumed the foundations of the earth, and the sinners, like burning straw. 24 "Woe to those who sin and do not keep my commandments, says the Lord; 25 I will not spare them. Depart, you rebellious children,[f] and do not defile my sanctuary." 26 The Lord is aware of everyone who offends against him; that is why he has given them up to death and to slaughter. 27 For evils have already come upon the whole earth, and you will remain in them; for God will not deliver you, because you have sinned against him.

28 See, a fearful sight, and its appearance from the east! 29 The nations of the dragons of Arabia[g] will come out with many chariots, and their vast numbers will sweep across the earth like the wind, so that everyone who hears them will fear and tremble. 30 The Carmonians,[h] raging in wrath, will go forth like wild boars of the forest, and come with great power, and join battle with them, and lay waste a portion of the land of the Assyrians with their teeth.[i] 31 And after this the dragons, remembering their origin, will gain the upper hand; and they will turn, conspiring together in great power, to pursue them. 32 And these will be thrown into confusion and fall silent before their power, and will turn their feet in flight. 33 And from the land of the Assyrians one lying in ambush will besiege them and destroy one of them; and there will be fear and trembling in their army, and strife among their kings.
34 See, clouds from the east, and from the north to the south! Their appearance is very dreadful, full of wrath and storm. 35 They will dash against one another, and will pour out a heavy storm[j] upon the earth, their own storm; and there will be blood from the sword as high as a horse's belly,[k] 36 and as high as a man's thigh and a camel's hock.[l] Fear and much trembling will be upon the earth; 37 those who see that wrath will shudder, and trembling will seize them. After this, great storm clouds will be stirred up 38 from the south and the north, and another part from the west. 39 But the winds from the east will prevail, and will shut in the cloud which he raised up in wrath; and the storm that was to bring destruction by the east wind and the west will be driven back.[m] 40 Then great and mighty clouds, full of wrath, will be lifted up, and the storm, to make the whole earth and its dwellers afraid; and they will pour out a terrible storm over every high and lofty place, 41 fire and hail, swords on the wing, and torrents of water, until every field and every stream is brimming with an abundance of waters. 42 They will tear down cities and walls, mountains and hills, the trees of the forests and the grass of the meadows, and their grain. 43 They will go on steadily as far as Babylon,[n] and will destroy it. 44

They will come to it and surround it, and pour out the storm and all their wrath upon it; then dust and smoke will go up to heaven, and all who are around it will mourn for it. 45 And those who survive under it will serve those who have struck it with terror.

46 "And you, Asia,[o] who share in the hope of Babylon and in her glorious repute, 47 woe to you, miserable one, because you have made yourself like her; you have dressed your daughters up for prostitution, to please and boast to your lovers, who have always lusted to commit prostitution with you. 48 You have copied the hated city in all that she does and in all her schemes. Therefore, says God, 49 I will send evils upon you: widowhood, poverty, famine, sword, and pestilence, to lay waste your houses with violence and death, and the glory of your strength.[p] 50 Like a flower you will wither, when the burning heat rises that is sent upon you. 51 You will be weakened like a poor woman, beaten and wounded,[q] so that your mighty ones and your lovers cannot receive you. 52 Would I have been so jealous against you, says the Lord, 53 if you had not always killed my chosen ones, exulting and clapping your hands and talking over their death when you were drunk? 54 Beautify your face! 55 The wages of your harlotry are in your lap; therefore you will receive your recompense. 56 What you do to my chosen, says the Lord, God will do in turn to you, giving you over to evil. 57 Your children will die of hunger, and you will be killed by the sword; your cities will be destroyed, and all your people in the open country will be killed by the sword.[r] 58 Those in the mountains will perish of hunger, and they will eat their own flesh and drink their own blood, for hunger of bread and thirst for water. 59 You will come, unhappy one, across the seas, and again you will meet with evils. 60 And as they pass by, they will dash against the city that was slain,[s] and will destroy some portion of your land, and wipe out part of your glory, as they return once more from Babylon laid waste. 61 You will be torn down by them like stubble, and they will be fire to you. 62 They will devour you and your cities, your land and your mountains; they will burn up with fire all your forests and your fruitful trees. 63 They will carry your children away captive, take your wealth as plunder, and wipe out the glory of your face."

Notes

- a (15:1) Chapters 15–16, known as 6 Ezra, are a Christian addition, reportedly from the 3rd century AD, perhaps written in the eastern Roman Empire during a time of persecution. A Greek fragment of 15:57–59 has reportedly been found in an Oxyrhynchus papyrus (P. Oxy. 1010), showing that this section was first written in Greek. These chapters are not in the oriental versions.
- b (15:2) Latin charta, "papyrus" or "paper."
- c (15:13) Latin sidus, "star" or "constellation"; in these chapters the word seems to stand for a destructive storm, and from verse 35 on it is rendered "storm."
- d (15:16) The Latin of this verse is obscure.
- e (15:20) "From the rising sun ... the east": Latin ab Oriente ... ab Euro, the latter properly the southeast wind. Lebanon ("white," from its snowy peaks) perhaps stands here for the north or west. The text may be corrupt.
- f (15:25) Latin discedite filii a potestate, "depart, children, from the power," obscure; perhaps "depart, you apostate children."
- g (15:29) Latin dracones Arabum, "dragons of the Arabians." Some interpreters see an allusion to the armies of Odenathus and Zenobia of Palmyra in the AD 260s, who fought the Persians; the identification is uncertain.
- h (15:30) Latin carmonii, probably the people of Carmania, a province of Persia on the north shore of the Persian Gulf; here perhaps the Persians under Shapur I (AD 240–270).
- i (15:30) The words "with their teeth" are not in the Clementine Latin; they are reportedly found in another Latin manuscript tradition. Assyria here may stand for Syria, which was overrun by the Persians in the AD 250s.
- j (15:35) See the note on verse 13.
- k (15:35) Compare 1 Enoch 100:3 and Revelation 14:20.
- l (15:36) Latin fimus hominis usque ad substramen cameli, "human dung up to the camel's litter," evidently corrupt; the rendering follows a common emendation, femur ("thigh") for fimus ("dung") and suffraginem ("hock") for substramen.
- m (15:39) The Latin of this verse is very obscure.
- n (15:43) Babylon, as in Revelation 17–18, stands for Rome.
- o (15:46) Asia here is the Roman province of Asia, in western Asia Minor (modern western Turkey); its chief cities included Ephesus, Smyrna, and Pergamum.
- p (15:49) Latin "with violence and death, and the glory of your strength"; the text is obscure.
- q (15:51) Latin castigata a mulieribus, "chastised by women," probably a corruption for "wounded."
- r (15:57) A Greek fragment of verses 57–59 has reportedly been found among the Oxyrhynchus papyri (see the note on 15:1).
- s (15:60) Latin civitatem occisam, "the slain city," obscure; perhaps meaning Rome laid waste, or a corruption.

Chapter 16

1 Woe to you, Babylon and Asia! Woe to you, Egypt and Syria![a] 2 Wrap yourselves in sackcloth and haircloth, beat your breasts for your children, and grieve; for your ruin is close at hand. 3 A sword has been sent against you; who is there to turn it back? 4 A fire has been sent among you; who is there to quench it? 5 Evils have been sent upon you; who is there to drive them away? 6 Can anyone drive away a hungry lion in the forest, or put out a fire in dry stubble once it has started to blaze? 7 Can anyone turn back an arrow shot by a strong archer? 8 The Lord God sends the evils; who is there to drive them away? 9 Fire has gone out from his anger; who is there to quench it?
10 He will flash lightning, and who will not fear? He will thunder, and who will not shudder? 11 The Lord will threaten, and who will not be crushed to pieces before his face? 12 The earth and its foundations quake; the sea heaves up from the deep, and its waves and its fish are thrown into turmoil before the face of the Lord and the glory of his might. 13 For strong is his right hand that bends the bow; sharp are the arrows that he shoots, and once they begin to be sent to the ends of the earth, they will not miss. 14 See, the evils are sent forth, and will not turn back until they come upon the earth. 15 The fire has been lit, and it will not go out until it has consumed the foundations of the earth. 16 As an arrow shot by a mighty archer does not come back, so the evils that are sent upon the earth will not turn back. 17 Woe is me, woe is me! Who will rescue me in those days?
18 The beginning of sorrows, and much groaning; the beginning of famine, and many deaths; the beginning of wars, and the powers will be afraid; the beginning of evils, and all will tremble! 19 What shall I do in these things, when the evils come? 20 Look: hunger and pestilence, affliction and distress have been dispatched as whips to bring correction; 21 yet for all these things they will not turn from their iniquities, nor ever keep the scourges in mind. 22 See, food will be so cheap on the earth that people will suppose peace is assured; and then evils will spring up on the earth: sword, famine, and great confusion. 23 For most of earth's dwellers will perish by famine; and the sword will destroy the rest, who survive the famine. 24 The dead will be dumped like manure, and no one will comfort them; the earth will be left desolate, and its cities torn down. 25 There will be no one left to till the earth or sow it. 26 The trees will bear fruit, but who will gather it? 27 The grapes will ripen, but who will tread them? For in all places there will be great desolation. 28 Each will yearn just to catch sight of a fellow human, or to hear the sound of someone's voice. 29 For ten will be left out of a city, and two out of the countryside, those who have hidden in the dense thickets and the clefts of the rocks. 30 Just as a few olives, three or four, remain on every tree of an olive grove, 31 or as in a vineyard that has been gathered some clusters are left by those who search the vineyard with care, 32 so in those days a remnant of three or four will escape the ones who comb through their houses sword in hand. 33 The earth will be left desolate, and its fields will grow old;[b] its roads and all its paths will sprout thorns, because no one will travel through it. 34 Virgins will mourn because they have no bridegrooms; women will mourn because they have no husbands; their daughters will mourn because they have no helpers. 35 Their bridegrooms will be destroyed in war, and their husbands will perish of famine.

36 But hear these things and understand them, you servants of the Lord. 37 See, here is the word of the Lord; receive it. Do not put your trust in the gods of whom the Lord speaks.[c] 38 See, the evils are drawing near and do not delay. 39 Just as a woman with child in her ninth month, when her time of delivery approaches, is seized two or three hours before by pangs that encircle her womb, and once the infant comes out there is not an instant's pause, 40 so the evils will not linger in coming forth upon the earth; the world will groan, and pangs will grip it on every side.

41 "Listen to the word, my people: make ready for the fight, and amid the evils live as aliens in the land. 42 Let the seller be like one who flees, and the buyer like one who is about to lose; 43 let the merchant be like one who will get no profit, and the builder like one who will not live in the house; 44 let the sower be like one who will not reap, and the one who prunes the vine like one who will not gather the grapes; 45 let the ones who wed be as though they will beget no offspring, and the unwed as though bereaved.[d] 46 For this reason those who labor, labor in vain; 47 for strangers will reap their fruit, seize their goods, overturn their houses, and take their children captive; for in captivity and famine they bring forth their children. 48 And those who trade by robbery, the more they adorn their cities and houses, their property and their persons, 49 the more I will be angry with them for their sins, says the Lord. 50 Just as a harlot is jealous of a decent and very good woman, 51 so righteousness hates iniquity when she adorns herself, and accuses her to her face, when he comes who will defend the one who searches out every sin on earth.[e] 52 Therefore do not be like her or her works; 53 for in a very little while iniquity will be taken away from the earth, and righteousness will reign over you. 54 Let no sinner say that he has not sinned; for God will burn coals of fire[f] on the head of anyone who says, 'I have not sinned before God and his glory.' 55 See, the Lord knows all the works of human beings, their devices, their thoughts, and their hearts. 56 For he said, 'Let the earth be made,' and it was made; 'Let heaven be made,' and it was made. 57 At his word the stars were fixed, and he knows the number of the stars. 58 He explores the abyss and its treasures; he has measured the sea and everything in it. 59 He has enclosed the sea within the waters, and by his word he has hung the earth above the waters. 60 He spread out the heaven like a vault, and founded it upon the waters. 61 He put springs of water in the desert and pools on mountaintops, to send rivers down from the high rock to water the earth. 62 He formed the human being, and put a heart in the midst of the body, and gave him breath, life, and understanding, 63 and the breath of God Almighty,[g] who made all things and searches out all hidden things in hidden places of the earth. 64 He knows your devices and what you plan in your hearts, when you sin and wish to hide your sins. 65 Therefore the Lord has thoroughly searched out all your works, and he will put you all to shame. 66 You will be confounded when your sins come forth before people, and your iniquities will be the accusers standing against you on that day. 67 What will you do? Or how will you hide your sins before God and his angels? 68 See, God is the judge; fear him. Leave off your sins, and forget your iniquities, never to commit them again; and God will lead you out and deliver you from every tribulation.

69 For see, the burning wrath of a great multitude is kindled against you; they will carry off some of you and feed you what has been sacrificed to idols.[h] 70 And those who consent to them will be held by them in derision and reproach, and trampled underfoot. 71 For in place after place, and in the neighboring cities, there will be a great uprising against those who fear the Lord. 72 They will be like madmen, sparing no one, plundering and laying waste those who still fear the Lord; 73 for they will lay waste and plunder their goods, and drive them out of their houses. 74 Then the testing of my chosen ones will be made plain, like gold tested by fire.
75 "Hear, my beloved ones, says the Lord: see, the days of tribulation are at hand, and I will deliver you from them. 76 Do not fear or doubt, for God is your guide. 77 You who keep my commandments and precepts, says the Lord God, do not let your sins weigh you down, or your iniquities lift themselves up over you.[i] 78 Woe to any held fast in the grip of their sins and smothered under their iniquities, like a field overgrown with brush whose path lies hidden under thorns, so that no one passes along it; it is closed off and handed over for the fire to devour."

Notes

- a (16:1) Syria, the Greek and Latin name of the land north of Israel (Hebrew Aram); the name is probably shortened from "Assyria."
- b (16:33) Latin inveterabunt, "will grow old," that is, lie fallow and go wild.
- c (16:37) Latin ne diis credatis, "do not believe the gods," perhaps a corruption; the sense may be "do not disbelieve what the Lord says."
- d (16:45) Compare 1 Corinthians 7:29–31.
- e (16:51) The Latin of this verse is obscure.
- f (16:54) Compare Psalm 140:10; Proverbs 25:22.
- g (16:63) Latin spiramen, "breath," recalling Genesis 2:7.
- h (16:69) The persecution described in verses 69–74 seems to be of Christians compelled to eat food sacrificed to idols, as under the emperor Decius (AD 249–251), though the date is uncertain. Compare Acts 15:29; Revelation 2:14, 20.
- i (16:77) The Latin of this verse is broken; the rendering follows the sense.

Prayer of Manasseh

Apocrypha

Chapter 1

The Prayer of Manasseh

1 O Lord Almighty, who are in heaven,[b] God of our fathers, of Abraham and Isaac and Jacob and of their righteous seed, 2 you who made the heaven and the earth with all their array,[c] 3 who fettered the sea by the word of your command, who shut up the abyss and sealed it with your fearful and glorious name, 4 before whom all things shudder and tremble at the presence of your power; 5 for the magnificence of your glory cannot be endured, and the anger of your threatening against sinners cannot be withstood; 6 but beyond measure and beyond tracing out is the mercy of your promise,[d] 7 for you are the Lord Most High, tender in compassion, slow to anger and abounding in mercy, and you relent over the evils of mankind.[e] 8 But you, Lord, God of the upright, did not set repentance for the upright—for Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, who never offended you; you have set repentance aside for me, a sinner. 9 For my sins outnumber the grains of sand along the sea; my lawless acts have piled up,[f] and I am unfit to look up and see the heights of heaven, so great is the mass of my wrongs. 10 I am bent down by many a chain of iron, so that I cannot lift up my head because of my sins,[g] and there is no relief for me; because I stirred up your fury and did the thing that is evil before you, setting up abominations and heaping up offenses.[h] 11 And now I bend the knee of my heart, begging for the kindness that comes from you. 12 I have sinned, O Lord, I have sinned, and I myself know my lawless deeds. 13 I ask and beg of you: release me, O Lord, release me! Do not destroy me together with my lawless deeds, nor be angry with me forever and store up evils for me, nor condemn me to the lowest parts of the earth. For you, O Lord, are the God of those who repent, 14 and in me you will display your goodness; for though

I am unworthy, you will save me after the greatness of your mercy, [15] and I will sing your praise without ceasing through every day of my life. For the whole army of heaven praises you, and the glory belongs to you through all ages. Amen.

Notes

- a (1:0) Greek Proseuchē Manassē, "Prayer of Manasseh." In Codex Alexandrinus the title is "Prayer of Manasseh," and the Latin Vulgate appendix has "Prayer of Manasseh, king of Judah, when he was held captive in Babylon." The prayer is set at the moment described in 2 Chronicles 33:11–13, when the Assyrians took King Manasseh in chains to Babylon and he humbled himself and prayed; 2 Chronicles 33:18–19 says his prayer was recorded in the annals of the kings of Israel and of the seers. Manasseh means "causing to forget" (Genesis 41:51). He reigned about 697–642 BC.
- b (1:1) Greek Kyrie pantokratōr epourānie. Greek Kyrios, "Lord," is the word the Septuagint uses for the divine name YHWH; pantokratōr, "Almighty," is its usual rendering of YHWH Tseva'ot, "Yahweh of Armies."
- c (1:2) Greek kosmos, "order, ornament," here the array of heaven and earth (compare Genesis 2:1, where the Septuagint uses the same word).
- d (1:6) The Latin and the Apostolic Constitutions (2.22) are reported to add a sentence at this point that is not in Codex Alexandrinus. In it the speaker tells the Lord that, in the greatness of his goodness, he has promised repentance and forgiveness to people who have sinned against him, and that in his abundant compassion he has set repentance as the way for sinners to be saved. Some later Greek copies reportedly have it as well.
- e (1:7) Compare Joel 2:13 and Jonah 4:2. "Relent over the evils" means to turn from bringing the punishment that human wickedness deserves.
- f (1:9) The Latin and other witnesses reportedly repeat the phrase, with "O Lord": "my lawless deeds have multiplied, O Lord, my lawless deeds have multiplied."
- g (1:10) Greek eis to ananeusai me, literally "so as to throw back my head," an obscure phrase; it is usually understood as "so that I cannot lift up my head," and the Latin is reported to read "so that I cannot lift up my head."
- h (1:10) The Latin reportedly adds "I did not do your will, and I did not keep your commandments." "Abominations" are idols (2 Chronicles 33:3–7).

Psalm 151

Apocrypha

Chapter 1

This psalm was written by David's own hand, and it is outside the number, when he fought Goliath in single combat.

1 I was the least among my brothers, the youngest in my father's house; I tended my father's flock.[d] 2 My hands made an instrument, my fingers fitted together a harp.[e] 3 And who will tell my lord?[f] The Lord himself, he himself gives ear. 4 He himself sent his messenger[g] and took me from my father's sheep, and anointed me with the oil of his anointing. 5 My brothers were handsome and great, yet the Lord took no delight in them.[h] 6 I went forth to encounter the foreigner,[i] and he called down curses on me by his idols. 7 But I drew the sword from his side and cut off his head, and I took away disgrace from the sons of Israel.[j]

Notes

- a (1:0) Greek idiographos eis Dauid, "written with his own hand, belonging to David"; the phrase may also mean "of David's own, unique," that is, a psalm peculiar to David. David means "beloved."
- b (1:0) That is, outside the numbered collection of 150 psalms. In Swete's edition the superscription is printed with the psalm after Psalm 150. In some Greek manuscripts (and in the Syriac, as reported) the title differs.
- c (1:0) Goliath of Gath, the Philistine champion of 1 Samuel 17. The name's meaning is uncertain.
- d (1:1) Compare 1 Samuel 16:11 and 17:14–15. Jesse's youngest son was keeping the sheep when Samuel came to anoint a king.
- e (1:2) Greek organon, "instrument," perhaps a pipe or flute; psaltērion, a stringed instrument. The Hebrew Psalm 151A from Cave 11 (see the source note) reportedly names a flute (ʿugav) and a lyre (kinnor). Compare 1 Samuel 16:16–23, where David plays the lyre for Saul.
- f (1:3) Greek tō kyriō mou, "to my lord," probably meaning God (some take it as Samuel or Saul). The Greek of this verse is abrupt; the Hebrew 11QPs-a text is reported to read here a fuller passage in which David says the mountains and hills do not bear witness for him, but that God sees and hears everything. The Septuagint uses Kyrios, "Lord," for the divine name YHWH.

- g (1:4) Greek angelos, "messenger, angel." In 1 Samuel 16:1–13 it is the prophet Samuel who comes and anoints David; the Hebrew Psalm 151A is reported to name Samuel here.
- h (1:5) Compare 1 Samuel 16:6–10: "Yahweh does not see as a man sees."
- i (1:6) Greek allophylos, "one of another race," the Septuagint's usual word for a Philistine (1 Samuel 17:10, 23, etc.).
- j (1:7) Compare 1 Samuel 17:43–51. The Hebrew Psalm 151B, preserved only in its opening lines in 11QPs-a, is reported to begin "At the beginning of David's power, after the prophet of God had anointed him," and then to break off as it speaks of the Philistine; the Greek verses 6–7 correspond to this second psalm.

Matthew

New Testament

Chapter 1

1 The record of the origins[a] of Jesus the Messiah,[b] the son of David, the son of Abraham.
2 Abraham was father to Isaac, Isaac father to Jacob, and Jacob father to Judah and his brothers.[c] 3 Judah was father to Perez and Zerah by Tamar, Perez father to Hezron, and Hezron father to Ram.[d] 4 Ram was father to Amminadab, Amminadab father to Nahshon, and Nahshon father to Salmon. 5 Salmon was father to Boaz by Rahab, Boaz father to Obed by Ruth, and Obed father to Jesse. 6 Jesse was father to David the king. David was father to Solomon by the woman who had been Uriah's wife. 7 Solomon was father to Rehoboam, Rehoboam father to Abijah, and Abijah father to Asa.[e] 8 Asa was father to Jehoshaphat, Jehoshaphat father to Joram, and Joram father to Uzziah.[f] 9 Uzziah was father to Jotham, Jotham father to Ahaz, and Ahaz father to Hezekiah. 10 Hezekiah was father to Manasseh, Manasseh father to Amon,[g] and Amon father to Josiah. 11 Josiah was father to Jechoniah[h] and his brothers in the time of the exile to Babylon.
12 After the exile to Babylon, Jechoniah was father to Shealtiel, and Shealtiel father to Zerubbabel. 13 Zerubbabel was father to Abiud, Abiud father to Eliakim, and Eliakim father to Azor. 14 Azor was father to Zadok, Zadok father to Achim, and Achim father to Eliud. 15 Eliud was father to Eleazar, Eleazar father to Matthan, and Matthan father to Jacob. 16 Jacob was father to Joseph the husband of Mary,[i] and from her was born Jesus, who is called Messiah. 17 So the generations from Abraham to David were fourteen in all; from David to the exile to Babylon, fourteen generations; and from the exile to Babylon to the Messiah, fourteen generations.[j] 18 The birth of Jesus the Messiah happened like this. His mother Mary had been promised in marriage to Joseph, and before they came together it became evident that she was carrying a child from the Holy Spirit. 19 Joseph her husband was a just man, and because he did not wish to make a public example of her, he made up his mind to release her from the marriage in secret.[k] 20 But while he was weighing these things, an angel of the Lord[l] appeared to him in a dream and said, "Joseph, son of David, have no fear about taking Mary to be your wife, because what has been conceived in her comes from the Holy Spirit. 21 She will bear a son. You are to name him Jesus, since he is the one who will rescue his people from their sins."[m] 22 All of this took place so that the word spoken by the Lord through the prophet would be fulfilled: 23 "Look, the virgin will become pregnant and will give birth to a son, and they will call his name Emmanuel,"[n] a name that means, when translated, "God with us." 24 When Joseph awoke from his sleep, he did what the angel of the Lord had directed him to do, and took his wife into his home. 25 Yet he did not have relations with her[o] until she had given birth to a son; and he gave him the name Jesus.

Notes

- a (1:1) The record of the origins: Greek biblos geneseōs, "book of the genesis," the phrase used in the Greek Old Testament at Gen 2:4 and 5:1. It may introduce the genealogy alone (1:1–17) or the whole account of Jesus' beginnings.
- b (1:1) Jesus the Messiah: Jesus is the Greek form of the Hebrew Yeshua (Yehoshua, Joshua), "Yahweh saves" (see 1:21). Messiah translates Greek Christos, "Anointed One," the equivalent of Hebrew mashiach. In this translation Christos is rendered "Messiah" where it functions as a title, as it usually does in the Gospels, and "Christ" where it has become part of Jesus' name.
- c (1:2) The meanings of the Old Testament names in this genealogy are given in the notes at their first appearance in the Old Testament. Compare the genealogies in Ruth 4:18–22 and 1 Chr 1–3.
- d (1:3) Ram: Greek Aram, the Greek Old Testament's spelling of Hebrew Ram (Ruth 4:19; 1 Chr 2:9–10). Likewise Nahshon (Greek Naassōn), Hezron (Esrōm), Uzziah (Ozias) and others are given in their Old Testament forms.
- e (1:7) Asa: the Westcott–Hort text, with the earliest manuscripts (Sinaiticus, Vaticanus), reads Asaph, the name of the psalmist; later manuscripts read Asa, the name of the king (1 Kgs 15:8). Asaph may be the evangelist's own spelling or an early slip; the king is clearly meant. Scholarly review recommended.

- f (1:8) Joram ... Uzziah: three kings, Ahaziah, Joash and Amaziah, stand between Joram and Uzziah in 1 Chr 3:11–12; the genealogy omits them, probably to arrive at three sets of fourteen (1:17). Uzziah is also called Azariah (2 Kgs 15:1).
- g (1:10) Amon: the Westcott–Hort text, with Sinaiticus and Vaticanus, reads Amos; later manuscripts read Amon, the name of the king (2 Kgs 21:18). As in verse 7, the king is meant.
- h (1:11) Jechoniah: also called Jehoiachin (2 Kgs 24:6–15). His father Jehoiakim is not named; Jechoniah was Josiah's grandson (1 Chr 3:15–16).
- i (1:16) Joseph ... Mary: Joseph means "may he add" (Gen 30:24). Mary (Greek Maria or Mariam) is the Hebrew name Miriam (Exod 15:20); its meaning is uncertain.
- j (1:17) Fourteen generations: the three groups are arranged deliberately. It has been suggested that fourteen is the numerical value of the name David in Hebrew (D = 4, W = 6, D = 4); this is reported, not certain.
- k (1:19) Release her from the marriage in secret: Jewish betrothal was a binding legal commitment, already called marriage (Joseph is her "husband"), and could be ended only by divorce. Joseph planned a private divorce rather than a public accusation.
- l (1:20) An angel of the Lord: in the Old Testament, "the angel of Yahweh." The Greek kyrios ("Lord") here stands for the divine name, as also in 1:22, 24 and 2:13, 15, 19.
- m (1:21) Jesus ... save: the name Jesus (Yeshua) means "Yahweh saves"; the angel's words play on its meaning.
- n (1:23) Isa 7:14, quoted in the wording of the Greek Old Testament, which has parthenos, "virgin"; the Hebrew has ʿalmah, "young woman." Emmanuel (Hebrew ʿImmanu ʾEl) means "God is with us" (Isa 8:8, 10).
- o (1:25) Did not have relations with her: literally "did not know her," the biblical idiom for sexual union.

Chapter 2

1 Now after Jesus was born in Bethlehem[a] of Judea in the days of Herod the king,[b] there came to Jerusalem magi[c] from the regions of the east, 2 They kept asking, "Where is the one born to be king of the Jews? We watched his star rise[d] and have come here to bow down to him." 3 When King Herod heard this he was deeply troubled, and all Jerusalem with him. 4 He called together all the chief priests and scribes[e] of the people and pressed them to tell him where the Messiah was to be born. 5 They told him, "In Bethlehem of Judea, for this is what the prophet wrote: 6 'And you, Bethlehem, in Judah's land, are in no way the least among Judah's leading towns; out of you will come forth a ruler, one who will be shepherd of my people Israel.' "[f] 7 Then Herod summoned the magi in secret and learned from them exactly when the star had appeared. 8 He sent them to Bethlehem with these words: "Search carefully for the child. When you find him, bring me word, so that I too can go and bow down to him." 9 They heard what the king said and went on their way. The star they had seen rising went before them and finally stopped above the place where the child was. 10 When they saw the star, their joy knew no bounds. 11 Going into the house, they saw the child with Mary his mother, and they fell down and paid him homage. Then they opened their treasure chests and presented him with gifts: gold, frankincense, and myrrh.[g] 12 Then, warned in a dream not to return to Herod, they went back to their own land by another route.

13 After they had left, an angel of the Lord appeared to Joseph in a dream. "Get up!" he said. "Take the child and his mother and flee to Egypt, and stay put until I give you word. Herod is about to search for the child so that he can kill him." 14 So Joseph got up, took the child and his mother by night, and withdrew to Egypt. 15 He remained there until Herod died. This was to fulfill what the Lord had spoken through the prophet: "Out of Egypt I called my son."[h] 16 Herod, realizing that the magi had made a fool of him, was furious.
He gave orders to put to death every boy in Bethlehem and all its surrounding district who was two years of age or younger, reckoning from the time he had carefully learned from the magi. 17 Then what had been spoken through Jeremiah the prophet was fulfilled: 18 "A voice was heard in Ramah, weeping and loud lament: Rachel weeping for her children; and she would not be comforted, because they are no more."[i] 19 But when Herod had died, an angel of the Lord appeared in a dream to Joseph in Egypt 20 and said, "Get up, take the child and his mother, and go to the land of Israel, because those who sought the child's life are dead." 21 So he rose, took the child and his mother with him, and returned to the land of Israel. 22 Yet when he learned that Archelaus[j] had succeeded his father Herod as ruler of Judea, he was afraid to go back there. A dream warned him, and he went off to the district of Galilee[k] 23 and went and settled in a town called Nazareth.[l] This was to fulfill what had been spoken through the prophets: "He will be called a Nazarene."

Notes

- a (2:1) Bethlehem: "house of bread," the town of David, about 6 miles (10 km) south of Jerusalem.
- b (2:1) Herod the king: Herod the Great, appointed king of Judea by the Roman Senate, who reigned 37–4 BC. Jesus was therefore born before 4 BC. The name Herod probably means "heroic."
- c (2:1) Magi: Greek magoi, originally a Persian priestly class; by this period the word was used for experts in astrology and the interpretation of dreams. The text does not call them kings or give their number.
- d (2:2) When it rose: or "in the east." The Greek en tē anatolē can mean either; here and in 2:9 it probably refers to the star's rising.
- e (2:4) Scribes: experts in the Law of Moses who taught and interpreted it.
- f (2:6) Mic 5:2 (5:1 in Hebrew), freely combined with 2 Sam 5:2. Where Micah has "who are small among the clans of Judah," the quotation reads "by no means least."
- g (2:11) Gold, frankincense, and myrrh: costly gifts. Frankincense is a fragrant resin burned as incense; myrrh is an aromatic resin used in perfume and in burial (John 19:39). Compare Isa 60:6; Ps 72:10–11.
- h (2:15) Hos 11:1, translated from the Hebrew; the Greek Old Testament reads "his children." In Hosea the "son" is Israel, brought out of Egypt in the exodus.
- i (2:18) Jer 31:15 (38:15 in the Greek Old Testament). Ramah lay about 5 miles (8 km) north of Jerusalem, near the traditional tomb of Rachel; Jeremiah pictures Rachel, the mother of Joseph and Benjamin, mourning the exiles.
- j (2:22) Archelaus: son of Herod the Great, who ruled Judea, Samaria and Idumea from 4 BC until Rome deposed him for brutality in AD 6.
- k (2:22) Galilee: from Hebrew galil, "circle" or "district," the northern region of the land west of the Sea of Galilee, then ruled by Herod Antipas.
- l (2:23) Nazareth … Nazarene: Nazareth, a small village in the hills of lower Galilee, is not mentioned in the Old Testament, and no prophetic text contains the words quoted. Matthew may be playing on Hebrew netser, "branch," the messianic shoot of Isa 11:1, or on the Nazirite of Judg 13:5, 7; he cites "the prophets" in general. Scholarly review recommended.

Chapter 3

1 In those days John the Baptist[a] came and began to preach in the Judean wilderness, 2 "Turn your lives around,[b] for the kingdom of heaven[c] has come near." 3 He is the one of whom Isaiah the prophet spoke when he said, “A voice of one calling out in the wilderness: ‘Make ready the way of the Lord, make his paths straight.’ ”[d] 4 John himself wore clothing made of camel’s hair with a leather belt around his waist, and his food was locusts and wild honey.[e] 5 Then Jerusalem and all Judea and the whole region around the Jordan went out to him, 6 and confessing their sins, they were baptized by him in the Jordan River.[f]

7 But seeing many Pharisees and Sadducees[g] coming out for his baptism, he said to them, “Offspring of vipers! Who warned you to run from the wrath that is on its way? 8 Then produce fruit that fits with repentance. 9 And do not suppose you can say among yourselves, ‘Abraham is our father,’ for I tell you that God can raise up children for Abraham out of these stones. 10 Already the ax is lying at the root of the trees; every tree, then, that fails to bear good fruit is chopped down and tossed into the fire.
11 “I baptize you with water, calling you to repentance. But the one who follows me is more powerful than I am, and I am not worthy to carry his sandals. He will baptize you with the Holy Spirit and with fire. 12 His winnowing fork is in his hand, and he will clear his threshing floor completely; his wheat he will gather into the barn, but the chaff he will burn up in a fire that cannot be put out.” 13 Then Jesus arrived from Galilee at the Jordan to be baptized by John.
14 John tried to prevent him. “I am the one who needs baptism from you,” he said, “and yet you are coming to me?” 15 Jesus answered him, “Let it be so for now. It is right for us in this way to carry out all that God requires.”[h] Then John consented. 16 And as soon as Jesus had been baptized, he came up out of the water, and at that moment the heavens were opened,[i] and he saw the Spirit of God descending like a dove and coming upon him. 17 And a voice out of the heavens said, “This is my Son, the one I love; with him I am well pleased.”[j]

Notes

- a (3:1) John the Baptist: John is the Greek form of Hebrew Yohanan, “Yahweh has been gracious.” The Baptist (literally “the one who immerses”) is a title describing his ministry.

- b (3:2) Turn your lives around: Greek metanoeite, traditionally “repent,” a call to a complete change of mind and direction. The noun metanoia in 3:8, 11 is rendered “repentance.”
- c (3:2) The kingdom of heaven: Matthew’s usual phrase for “the kingdom of God” (the expression found in Mark and Luke), following the Jewish custom of speaking reverently of God by referring to heaven. It means God’s rule as king.
- d (3:3) Isa 40:3, in the wording of the Greek Old Testament. In the Hebrew text, “the Lord” is Yahweh, and “make his paths straight” reads “make straight in the desert a highway for our God.” The Hebrew can also be punctuated, “A voice is calling: In the wilderness prepare …”
- e (3:4) Clothing of camel’s hair … leather belt: the dress of Elijah (2 Kgs 1:8; compare Mal 4:5). Locusts were permitted food under the Law (Lev 11:22).
- f (3:6) Jordan River: from Hebrew Yarden, probably “the one that goes down.”
- g (3:7) Pharisees and Sadducees: the Pharisees (probably “separated ones”) were a lay movement devoted to strict observance of the Law and its traditions; the Sadducees (probably named after Zadok, the high priest under David and Solomon) were a priestly aristocracy who accepted only the written Law and denied the resurrection (22:23).
- h (3:15) To carry out all that God requires: literally “to fulfill all righteousness.”
- i (3:16) The heavens were opened: the Westcott–Hort text, with Sinaiticus and Vaticanus, lacks “to him” after “opened,” which most later manuscripts include.
- j (3:17) This is my Son … well pleased: compare Ps 2:7; Isa 42:1; Gen 22:2. The one I love: or “my beloved,” “my only Son.”

Chapter 4

1 Then Jesus was led up by the Spirit into the wilderness to be tested[a] by the devil.[b] 2 After going without food for forty days and forty nights, he was famished. 3 The tempter came to him and said, “Since you are the Son of God, order these stones to turn into loaves of bread.” 4 But he answered, “Scripture says, ‘Not by bread alone will a person live, but by every word that goes out from the mouth of God.’ ”[c]

5 Then the devil brought him to the holy city and set him on the topmost point[d] of the temple. 6 “If you are the Son of God,” he said, “throw yourself down. For it is written: ‘He will give his angels orders about you,’ and ‘They will hold you up in their hands, so that your foot will not hit a stone.’ ”[e] 7 Jesus told him, “It is also written, ‘You must not test the Lord your God.’ ”[f]

8 Once more the devil took him up to an exceedingly high mountain and showed him all the kingdoms of the world and their splendor, 9 "I will give you all of this," he said, "if you fall down and worship me." 10 Then Jesus answered him, "Away with you, Satan![g] For it is written, 'The Lord your God you shall worship, and him alone you shall serve.' "[h] 11 Then the devil let him alone, and angels came and attended to him.
12 When Jesus heard that John had been handed over,[i] he withdrew into Galilee. 13 He left Nazareth and settled in Capernaum,[j] the lakeside town in the districts of Zebulun and Naphtali, 14 This happened to fulfill what the prophet Isaiah had said: 15 "Land of Zebulun, land of Naphtali, the way of the sea, beyond the Jordan, Galilee of the Gentiles:[k] 16 the people sitting in darkness have seen a great light, and on those sitting in the region and shadow of death a light has dawned."[l] 17 From then on Jesus began to preach and to say, "Turn your lives around, for the kingdom of heaven has come near." 18 As he was walking along beside the Sea of Galilee, he saw two brothers, Simon, who is called Peter, and Andrew his brother,[m] casting a net into the lake, for they were fishermen. 19 He said to them, "Come, follow me, and I will make you fishers of people." 20 At once they left their nets behind and followed him. 21 Going on from there, he saw two other brothers, James the son of Zebedee and John his brother,[n] in the boat with their father Zebedee, mending their nets; and he called them. 22 At once they left the boat and their father and followed him.
23 Jesus went about all over Galilee, teaching in their synagogues,[o] proclaiming the good news[p] of the kingdom, and healing every disease and every ailment among the people. 24 Word about him spread through all Syria, and people brought to him all who were ill, those in the grip of various diseases and pains, those under the power of demons, epileptics,[q] and the paralyzed; and he healed them. 25 Large crowds followed him from Galilee, the Ten Towns,[r] Jerusalem, Judea, and the region across the Jordan.

Notes

- a (4:1) Tested: Greek peirazō can mean "test" or "tempt."

- b (4:1) The devil: Greek diabolos, “slanderer,” the Greek Old Testament’s word for Hebrew satan.
- c (4:4) Deut 8:3. The forty days recall Israel’s forty years in the wilderness and Moses’ forty days on the mountain (Exod 34:28; Deut 9:9).
- d (4:5) Highest point: Greek pterygion, “little wing,” perhaps a corner of the temple’s outer wall high above the Kidron Valley. The exact location is uncertain.
- e (4:6) Ps 91:11–12 (90:11–12 in the Greek Old Testament).
- f (4:7) Deut 6:16. In the Hebrew text, “the Lord your God” is “Yahweh your God,” as also in 4:10.
- g (4:10) Satan: Hebrew for “adversary” or “accuser.” Some later manuscripts add “Get behind me” (as in 16:23); the Westcott–Hort text lacks it.
- h (4:10) Deut 6:13. The Hebrew has “You shall fear Yahweh your God and serve him”; Jesus’ wording follows the Greek Old Testament with “worship” and “alone.”
- i (4:12) Handed over: that is, arrested and put in prison (see 14:3–4).
- j (4:13) Capernaum: Greek form of Hebrew Kefar Nahum, “village of Nahum,” a town on the northwest shore of the Sea of Galilee.
- k (4:15) Galilee of the nations: or “of the Gentiles”; the Greek ethnē means non-Jewish peoples.
- l (4:16) Isa 9:1–2 (8:23–9:1 in Hebrew), quoted freely.
- m (4:18) Simon … Peter … Andrew: Simon is the Greek form of Hebrew Shimʿon (Simeon), “one who hears” (Gen 29:33). Peter, Greek Petros, means “rock” (see 16:18). Andrew is a Greek name meaning “manly.”
- n (4:21) James … John: James is the English form of the Greek Iakōbos, that is, Jacob (“heel-grabber” or “he supplants,” Gen 25:26). Zebedee is from Hebrew Zavdi, “my gift” or “gift of Yahweh.”
- o (4:23) Synagogues: Greek synagōgē, “gathering,” the local Jewish assembly for prayer and the reading and teaching of Scripture, and the building where it met.
- p (4:23) Good news: Greek euangelion, traditionally “gospel.”
- q (4:24) Epileptics: literally “moonstruck,” a term that reflected an ancient belief that seizures were caused by the moon.
- r (4:25) The Ten Towns: Greek Dekapolis, a league of largely Gentile cities, most of them east of the Jordan.

Chapter 5

1 Seeing the crowds, Jesus climbed the mountain. He sat down, and his disciples gathered around him. 2 and he began to teach them. He said: 3 “Blessed[a] are those who are poor in spirit, since theirs is the kingdom of heaven. 4 Blessed are those who grieve, for they will be comforted. 5 Blessed are the gentle, for the earth will be their inheritance.[b] 6 Blessed are those who hunger and thirst for righteousness, for they will be filled to the full. 7 Blessed are those who show mercy, for mercy will be shown to them. 8 Blessed are the pure in heart, since it is they who will see God. 9 Blessed are the peacemakers, for they will be named children of God. 10 Blessed are those who are persecuted for doing what is right, because the kingdom of heaven belongs to them.

11 "You are blessed when people insult you, harass you, and tell all kinds of lies about you because of me. 12 Rejoice and be glad, for great is your reward in heaven; that is how they hounded the prophets who came before you.
13 "You are the salt of the earth. But if salt goes flat,[c] how will its saltiness be restored? It is then good for nothing except to be thrown out and walked on by people. 14 You are the light of the world. A town that sits on a hilltop cannot stay hidden. 15 Nor does anyone light a lamp and set it under a basket;[d] they put it on the lampstand, and it gives light to everyone in the house. 16 In the same way, your light must shine in front of others, so that they see the good you do and praise your Father in heaven.
17 "Do not think that I have come to abolish the Law or the Prophets. I have come not to abolish them but to fulfill them. 18 Amen,[e] I tell you, until heaven and earth pass away, not one iota, not one tiny stroke,[f] will pass away from the Law until everything has taken place. 19 So anyone who loosens even one of the least of these commandments, and teaches people to do likewise, will be named least in the kingdom of heaven; but anyone who obeys them and teaches them will be named great in the kingdom of heaven. 20 For I tell you that unless your righteousness goes far beyond that of the scribes and Pharisees, you will never enter the kingdom of heaven.
21 "You have heard that it was said to the people of long ago, 'You shall not murder,'[g] and 'Whoever murders will be liable to judgment.' 22 But I say to you that everyone who is angry with his brother[h] will be liable to judgment; whoever says to his brother, 'Raca,'[i] will be liable to the high council;[j] and whoever says, 'You fool,' will be liable to the fire of Gehenna.[k] 23 So if you are offering your gift at the altar and there you recall that your brother has something against you, 24 leave your gift right there in front of the altar and go. First be reconciled with your brother, and then come back and offer your gift. 25 Come to terms quickly with your opponent at law while you are still on the way with him, or your opponent may hand you over to the judge, and the judge to the officer, and you will be put in prison. 26 Amen,

I tell you, you will not get out of there until you have paid back the last cent.[l]
27 "You have heard that it was said, 'You shall not commit adultery.'[m] 28 But I say to you that anyone who looks at a woman with desire for her has already committed adultery with her in his heart. 29 If your right eye trips you up,[n] gouge it out and fling it away. Better for you that one of your members be lost than that your entire body be cast into Gehenna. 30 And if your right hand trips you up, cut it off and fling it away. Better for you that one of your members be lost than that your entire body go off into Gehenna.
31 "It has been said too, 'Anyone who sends away his wife is to hand her a written notice of divorce.'[o] 32 But I tell you, anyone who sends away his wife, other than for sexual immorality,[p] causes her to become an adulteress, and anyone who marries a woman so sent away commits adultery.
33 "Again, you have heard that it was said to the people of long ago, 'You shall not break your oath, but you shall carry out the oaths you have sworn to the Lord.'[q] 34 But I say to you, take no oath at all, whether by heaven, because it is God's throne, 35 or by the earth, because it is the footstool for his feet, or by Jerusalem, because it is the city of the great King.[r] 36 Nor should you swear by your head, for you cannot make one single hair white or black. 37 Let your speech be
'Yes, yes' or 'No, no'; anything beyond that comes from the evil one.[s] 38 "You have heard that it was said, 'An eye for an eye and a tooth for a tooth.'[t] 39 But I tell you: do not resist someone who is evil. If anyone slaps you on the right cheek, offer the other cheek too. 40 And if someone wants to sue you and take your shirt,[u] let him have your cloak as well. 41 If anyone forces you to carry a load for one mile,[v] carry it for two. 42 Give to the one who asks you, and do not turn your back on the one who would borrow from you.

43 “You have heard that it was said, ‘You shall love your neighbor and hate your enemy.’[w] 44 But I say to you, love your enemies and pray for those who persecute you,[x] 45 so that you may become sons of your Father in heaven; for he makes his sun rise on the evil and the good, and sends rain on those who do right and those who do wrong. 46 For if you love those who love you, what reward will you have? Do not even the tax collectors[y] do the same? 47 And if you greet only your brothers, what are you doing that is out of the ordinary? Do not even the Gentiles do the same? 48 You, then, are to be perfect,[z] just as your heavenly Father is perfect.

Notes

- a (5:3) Blessed: Greek makarios, “happy,” “fortunate,” in the sense of being favored by God; also in verses 4–11.
- b (5:5) Ps 37:11. Earth may also be translated “land.”
- c (5:13) Goes flat: literally “becomes foolish,” that is, loses its taste. Ancient salt from the Dead Sea region was mixed with other minerals and could lose its savor.
- d (5:15) Basket: Greek modios, a container holding about 9 quarts (8.75 liters) of dry goods, used as a measuring bucket.
- e (5:18) Amen: a Hebrew word meaning “surely,” “so be it.” Jesus uses it uniquely to introduce his own solemn statements, rather than to confirm someone else’s words. Traditionally translated “Truly” or “Verily.”
- f (5:18) Iota … stroke: the iota is the smallest Greek letter (corresponding to Hebrew yod); the “stroke” (Greek keraia, “little horn”) is a small mark that distinguishes one Hebrew letter from another.
- g (5:21) Exod 20:13; Deut 5:17.
- h (5:22) Angry with his brother: many later manuscripts add “without cause”; the earliest witnesses, including P64/67 (reported), Sinaiticus and Vaticanus, lack it, and the Westcott–Hort text omits it. Brother here means a fellow member of the community, man or woman.
- i (5:22) Raca: an Aramaic term of contempt, probably “empty-head.”
- j (5:22) High council: Greek synedrion, the Sanhedrin, the supreme Jewish council in Jerusalem.
- k (5:22) Gehenna: the Greek form of Hebrew Ge Hinnom, “Valley of Hinnom,” south of Jerusalem, once a site of child sacrifice (Jer 7:31) and later a symbol of final judgment. Traditionally translated “hell.”
- l (5:26) Last cent: Greek kodrantēs (Latin quadrans), the smallest Roman copper coin, worth one sixty-fourth of a denarius (a day’s wage).
- m (5:27) Exod 20:14; Deut 5:18.
- n (5:29) Causes you to fall: Greek skandalizō, to cause someone to stumble into sin; also in verse 30.

- o (5:31) Deut 24:1–4.
- p (5:32) Sexual immorality: Greek porneia, a broad term for illicit sexual conduct.
- q (5:33) Lev 19:12; Num 30:2; Deut 23:21. In the Old Testament the oath is sworn to Yahweh.
- r (5:35) Isa 66:1; Ps 48:2.
- s (5:37) The evil one: or "evil." The Greek can be masculine ("the evil one," the devil) or neuter ("evil"); also in 5:39 and 6:13.
- t (5:38) Exod 21:24; Lev 24:20; Deut 19:21.
- u (5:40) Shirt ... cloak: the chitōn was the long tunic worn next to the skin; the himation was the outer garment, which a poor person also used as a blanket at night (Exod 22:26–27).
- v (5:41) One mile: Greek milion, the Roman mile of a thousand paces, about 1,620 yards (1.48 km). Roman soldiers could compel civilians to carry their baggage for this distance.
- w (5:43) Lev 19:18. "Hate your enemy" is not found in the Old Testament; it may reflect popular understanding of the command.
- x (5:44) Pray for those who persecute you: later manuscripts expand the verse to read "bless those who curse you, do good to those who hate you, and pray for those who mistreat you and persecute you" (compare Luke 6:27–28). The Westcott–Hort text, with Sinaiticus and Vaticanus, has the shorter reading.
- y (5:46) Tax collectors: local Jews who collected tolls and taxes for Rome or for Herod Antipas, widely despised as collaborators and for their dishonesty.
- z (5:48) Perfect: Greek teleios, "complete," "whole," "mature"; compare Lev 19:2; Deut 18:13.

Chapter 6

1 "Be careful not to practice your righteousness in front of others in order to be seen by them; otherwise you have no reward from your Father in heaven.
2 "So whenever you give to the poor, do not blow a trumpet before you, as the hypocrites[a] do in the synagogues and in the streets, so as to win people's praise. Amen, I tell you, they have their reward in full.
3 Rather, when you give alms, keep your left hand unaware of what your right hand does, 4 so that your almsgiving may stay hidden; and your Father, who sees in secret, will repay you.[b] 5 "And whenever you pray, do not be like the hypocrites; they love to stand and pray in the synagogues and on the street corners, so that people will see them. Amen, I tell you, they have their reward in full.

6 But you, when you pray, enter your private room, shut your door, and pray to your Father who is unseen; and your Father, who sees in secret, will repay you.
7 "When you pray, do not babble on and on as the Gentiles do, for they think that by using a great many words they will get a hearing.
8 So do not be like them, for your Father knows what you need before you ask him.
9 Pray, then, in this way:
'Our Father, you who are in heaven, let your name be treated as holy.
10 May your kingdom come,
your will be done,
on earth as it is done in heaven.
11 Give us today the bread we need for the day ahead;[c] 12 and forgive us our debts, as we too have forgiven those who are in debt to us;[d] 13 and do not lead us into a time of testing, but rescue us from the evil one.'[e] 14 For if you forgive others their wrongdoings, your heavenly Father will forgive you as well; 15 but if you do not forgive people, neither will your Father pardon your wrongdoings.
16 "And whenever you fast, do not look gloomy like the hypocrites, for they make their faces unsightly[f] so that people will notice they are fasting. Amen, I tell you, they have their reward in full. 17 But you, when you fast, anoint your head and wash your face, 18 so that it will not be people who notice that you are fasting, but your Father, who is in secret; and your Father, who sees in secret, will repay you.
19 "Do not pile up for yourselves treasures on earth, where the moth and rust[g] eat them away and where burglars break in and steal. 20 Instead, pile up treasures for yourselves in heaven, where neither moth nor rust eats them away, and where burglars do not break in or steal. 21 For where your treasure is, that is where your heart will be too.

22 “The lamp of the body is the eye. If your eye is sound,[h] then, your whole body will be full of light; 23 but if your eye is diseased, your entire body will be filled with darkness. If, then, the light within you is darkness, how deep that darkness is!
24 “No one can be a slave to two masters; either he will hate the one and love the other, or he will be loyal to one and despise the other.
You cannot be a slave both to God and to wealth.[i] 25 “For this reason I tell you: stop worrying about your life, what you will eat or drink, or about your body, what you will wear. Is life not worth more than food, and the body more than clothes? 26 Consider the birds in the sky. They do not plant or harvest or store grain in barns, yet your heavenly Father feeds them. Do you not count for far more than they do? 27 And which of you by worrying can add even eighteen inches[j] to the span of his life? 28 And why are you anxious about clothing? Study how the wildflowers[k] of the field grow; they do not toil or spin thread, 29 yet I tell you, not even Solomon in all his splendor was clothed like one of these. 30 Now if God puts such clothing on the grass of the field, which blooms today and is thrown into the oven tomorrow, will he not provide much more for you, people of weak faith? 31 Do not fret, then, asking, ‘What will there be to eat?’ or ‘What will there be to drink?’ or ‘What are we going to wear?’ 32 For the Gentiles are eagerly seeking all these things; and your heavenly Father knows that you need them all. 33 But seek first his kingdom[l] and his righteousness, and all these things will be given to you as well. 34 So do not be anxious about tomorrow, for tomorrow will have its own anxieties. Each day has trouble enough of its own.

Notes

- a (6:2) Hypocrites: Greek hypokritai, “actors,” people who play a part on a stage.
- b (6:4) Will reward you: later manuscripts add “openly,” here and in verses 6 and 18; the Westcott–Hort text, with the earliest manuscripts, lacks it.
- c (6:11) The bread we need for the day ahead: the rare Greek word epiousios may mean “for the coming day,” “for today,” or “necessary for existence.” Its meaning is uncertain.
- d (6:12) Debts … in debt to us: sins are pictured as debts owed to God; compare Luke 11:4, “forgive us our sins.”

- e (6:13) The evil one: or “evil.” Later manuscripts add a closing doxology: “For yours is the kingdom and the power and the glory forever. Amen.” It is absent from the earliest manuscripts (Sinaiticus, Vaticanus, Bezae) and from the earliest commentators on the prayer, and it is not part of the Westcott–Hort text. It is an early liturgical ending, probably modeled on 1 Chr 29:11–13; a shorter form appears in the Didache (8.2, about AD 100). It is therefore given here and not in the text.
- f (6:16) Unsightly: literally “make their faces disappear,” perhaps by covering them with ashes or by leaving them unwashed.
- g (6:19) Rust: Greek brōsis, “eating,” perhaps the corrosion of metal or the gnawing of vermin; also in verse 20.
- h (6:22) Healthy: Greek haplous, “single,” “sound,” also “generous.” A “diseased” (literally “evil”) eye in verse 23 was an idiom for a stingy or envious disposition.
- i (6:24) Wealth: Greek mamōnas, from Aramaic mamona, “wealth,” “property,” traditionally “mammon.”
- j (6:27) Eighteen inches: literally “one cubit,” the length from the elbow to the fingertip, about 18 inches (45 cm). The word for span of life (hēlikia) can also mean “stature,” but the context concerns length of life; the expression may then mean “a single hour.”
- k (6:28) Wildflowers: Greek krina, traditionally “lilies,” probably a general term for the bright wildflowers of Galilee.
- l (6:33) His kingdom: later manuscripts read “the kingdom of God.”

Chapter 7

1 “Do not judge, so that you may not be judged. 2 For the judgment you pass on others is the judgment that will be passed on you, and the measure you measure out is the measure you will receive. 3 Why do you notice the speck in your brother’s eye but never notice the log in your own eye? 4 How can you say to your brother, ‘Allow me to take the speck out of your eye,’ while a log sticks out of your own?
5 You hypocrite, first pull the log out of your own eye, and then you will see well enough to pull the speck from your brother’s eye.
6 “Do not give what is sacred to dogs, and do not toss your pearls to pigs; they will trample them underfoot, then turn on you and rip you apart.
7 “Keep asking, and it will be given you; keep seeking, and you will find; keep knocking, and it will be opened for you. 8 For all who ask receive; whoever seeks finds; and for whoever knocks, it will be opened. 9 Is there anyone among you who, if his son asks for bread, will hand him a stone? 10 Or if he asks for a fish, will hand him a snake? 11 If you, then, though you are evil, know how to give your children good gifts, how much more will your Father in heaven give good things to those who ask him! 12 So in everything, treat others in the way you want them to treat you; for this sums up the Law and the Prophets.

13 "Enter through the narrow gate. The gate to destruction is wide and its road is easy, and many people go in that way. 14 But how narrow[a] is the gate and how hard is the road that leads to life, and few are those who find it.
15 "Watch out for false prophets, who come to you in sheep's clothing but underneath are ravenous wolves. 16 By their fruit you will know them. Do people pick grapes off thorns, or figs off thistles? 17 Just so, every healthy tree produces good fruit, but the diseased tree produces bad fruit. 18 A healthy tree cannot produce bad fruit, nor can a diseased tree produce good fruit. 19 Any tree that fails to yield good fruit is cut down and cast into the fire. 20 So it is by their fruit that you will know them.
21 "It is not all who call me 'Lord, Lord' who will enter the kingdom of heaven, but the one who carries out the will of my Father in heaven.
22 Many will say to me on that day, 'Lord, Lord, was it not in your name that we prophesied, in your name that we cast out demons, and in your name that we did many works of power?' 23 And then I will tell them plainly, 'I never knew you. Depart from me, you workers of lawlessness.'[b]
24 "Everyone who hears these words of mine and acts on them is like a wise man who built his house on rock. 25 The rain came down, the rivers rose, and the winds blew and battered that house, yet it did not fall, because its foundation had been laid on the rock. 26 And everyone who hears these words of mine and does not act on them will be like a foolish man who built his house on the sand. 27 The rain came down, the rivers rose, and the winds blew and beat against that house, and it fell, and great was its downfall."

28 When Jesus had finished these sayings,[c] the crowds were amazed at his teaching, 29 since he taught them as one with authority, unlike their scribes.

Notes

- a (7:14) How narrow: some manuscripts read "for narrow." The Westcott–Hort text reads ti, "how," with most witnesses.
- b (7:23) Ps 6:8.
- c (7:28) When Jesus had finished these sayings: this formula closes each of the five great blocks of Jesus' teaching in Matthew (7:28; 11:1; 13:53; 19:1; 26:1).

Chapter 8

1 When he came down from the mountain, great crowds followed him.
2 And just then a man with leprosy[a] approached, knelt before him, and said, "Lord, if you are willing, you have the power to make me clean." 3 Jesus stretched out his hand and touched him, saying, "I am willing; be made clean." And immediately his leprosy was cleansed away. 4 Then Jesus said to him, "Be sure you tell no one; but go and let the priest examine you, and bring the offering that Moses commanded,[b] as evidence to them."
5 When he had entered Capernaum, a centurion[c] came up to him and pleaded with him, 6 "Lord, my servant boy lies paralyzed in the house, suffering dreadfully." 7 Jesus answered, "Shall I come and heal him?"[d] 8 The centurion replied, "Lord, I am not worthy to have you come under my roof. Just say the word, and my servant will be healed. 9 For I myself am a man placed under authority, with soldiers under me. I say to one, 'Go,' and he goes, and to another, 'Come,' and he comes, and to my slave, 'Do this,' and he does it." 10 Jesus was amazed to hear this and told those who followed him, "Amen, I tell you, in no one in Israel have I found such faith.[e] 11 I tell you that many will come from the east and the west and will sit at the table with Abraham, Isaac and Jacob in the kingdom of heaven, 12 while the heirs of the kingdom[f] will be thrown out into the darkness outside; there people will weep and grind their teeth." 13 Then Jesus said to the centurion, "Go home. Because you believed, what you asked for will happen."
And his servant was healed that very hour.

14 Coming into Peter's house, Jesus saw that Peter's wife's mother was laid up with a fever. 15 He took hold of her hand, and the fever left her; she rose and began to serve him. 16 When evening came, people brought to him many who were under the power of demons. He drove out the spirits with a word and healed all who were sick, 17 This fulfilled what the prophet Isaiah had said: "He took our weaknesses on himself and bore our diseases."[g] 18 When Jesus saw the crowd pressing around him, he ordered a crossing to the far shore. 19 Then a scribe came up and said to him,
"Teacher, I will follow you wherever you are going." 20 Jesus told him, "Foxes have dens and the birds of the sky have nests, but the Son of Man[h] has nowhere to rest his head." 21 Another of his disciples said to him, "Lord, allow me first to go away and bury my father."[i] 22 But Jesus told him, "Follow me, and let the dead bury their own dead." 23 He got into the boat, and his disciples went with him. 24 Without warning a violent storm[j] arose on the lake, so that the boat was being swamped by the waves; but he was sleeping. 25 They came and woke him, crying, "Lord, save us! We are going to die!" 26 He said to them, "Why are you so fearful, you people of little faith?" Then he got up and rebuked the winds and the lake, and there was a great calm. 27
The men were astonished and said, "What sort of man is this, that even the winds and the lake obey him?" 28 When he reached the other side, the country of the Gadarenes,[k] two men under the power of demons met him, coming out from the tombs. They were so violent that no one could travel along that road.
29 All at once they shrieked, "What do you want with us, Son of God?
[l] Have you come here to torment us before the appointed time?" 30
Some distance away a large herd of pigs was feeding. 31 The demons pleaded with him, "If you drive us out, send us into that herd of pigs." 32 "Go," he told them. They came out and went off into the pigs, and the entire herd stampeded down the slope into the lake and drowned.
33 The herdsmen fled, went off into the town, and reported everything, including what had happened to the men who had been demonized.
34 And the entire town came out to meet Jesus; and when they saw him, they pleaded with him to leave their district.

Notes

- a (8:2) Leprosy: the Greek word covered a range of skin diseases (see Lev 13–14), not only Hansen's disease. Such a person was ritually unclean and excluded from community life.
- b (8:4) Lev 14:2–32.
- c (8:5) Centurion: a Roman officer in command of about a hundred soldiers; this one, stationed in Galilee, was probably serving Herod Antipas and was a Gentile.
- d (8:7) Am I to come and heal him?: or, as a statement, "I will come and heal him." The Greek can be read either way.
- e (8:10) With no one in Israel …: some manuscripts read "not even in Israel have I found such faith." The Westcott–Hort text follows Vaticanus and other early witnesses.
- f (8:12) Heirs of the kingdom: literally "sons of the kingdom," those who would be expected to inherit it.
- g (8:17) Isa 53:4, translated from the Hebrew.
- h (8:20) Son of Man: Jesus' preferred way of referring to himself. In Aramaic the phrase can mean simply "a human being" (compare Ps 8:4; Ezek 2:1), but it also recalls the heavenly figure of Dan 7:13–14.
- i (8:21) Bury my father: this may mean that the man's father had just died, or that he wished to wait until his father died and he had received his inheritance.
- j (8:24) Violent storm: Greek seismos megas, literally "a great shaking," the word normally used for an earthquake.
- k (8:28) Gadarenes: the people of Gadara, a city of the Ten Towns about 6 miles (10 km) southeast of the lake. Manuscripts vary: the Westcott–Hort text reads Gadarenes with Vaticanus; others read Gerasenes (as in Mark 5:1) or Gergesenes. Scholarly review recommended.
- l (8:29) Son of God: later manuscripts add "Jesus."

Chapter 9

1 He stepped into a boat, crossed the lake, and came to his own town.[a] 2 And there they brought him a man who was paralyzed, laid on a stretcher. Seeing their faith, Jesus told the paralyzed man, "Courage, my son; your sins are forgiven." 3 At this some of the scribes said to themselves, "This man is blaspheming." 4 Jesus, knowing[b] what they were thinking, said, "Why do you think evil things in your hearts? 5 Which is easier: to say, 'Your sins are forgiven,' or to say, 'Get up and walk'? 6 But I want you to know that the Son of Man has authority on earth to forgive sins." Then he said to the paralyzed man, "Stand up, pick up your mat, and go to your house." 7 And the man got up and went off home. 8 The crowds who saw it were struck with awe,[c] and they glorified God for giving such authority to mortals.

9 Leaving that place, Jesus saw a man called Matthew[d] seated at the tax collector's booth. "Follow me," he said to him, and Matthew rose and followed him. 10 Later, as Jesus was reclining at table in the house,[e] many tax collectors and sinners came and joined Jesus and his disciples at the meal. 11 Seeing this, the Pharisees said to his disciples, "Why does your teacher eat with tax collectors and sinners?" 12 He heard them and said, "It is not the healthy who have need of a doctor, but the sick. 13 Go and find out what this means: 'It is mercy I desire, and not sacrifice.'[f] For I did not come to call the righteous, but sinners." 14 Then John's disciples came to him and asked, "Why is it that we and the Pharisees fast often,[g] but your disciples do not fast?" 15 Jesus answered them, "Can the bridegroom's friends[h] mourn while he is still with them? But days are coming when the bridegroom will be taken from them, and then they will fast. 16 Nobody sews a patch of unshrunk cloth on an old garment; the patch would pull away from the garment, and a worse tear would result. 17 Nor do people pour new wine into old wineskins;[i] if they do, the skins split open, the wine pours out, and the skins are ruined. Instead they pour new wine into fresh wineskins, and both are kept safe." 18 While he was saying these things to them, a leader[j] came in, knelt before him, and said, "My daughter has just died; but come and lay your hand on her, and she will live." 19 So Jesus rose and followed him, together with his disciples. 20 Then a woman who had suffered from bleeding for twelve years came up behind him and touched the tassel[k] of his cloak. 21 She had been telling herself, "If I can just touch his cloak, I will be healed." 22 Jesus turned, and when he saw her, he said, "Courage, daughter! Your faith has made you whole." And from that very hour the woman was whole. 23 When Jesus came into the leader's house and saw the flute players[l] and the crowd making a commotion, 24 he told them, "Leave; the girl has not died, she is sleeping." They ridiculed him. 25 But once the crowd had been put outside, he went in and took her by the hand, and the girl rose up. 26 And the news of this spread through that whole region.

27 As Jesus went on from there, two blind men followed him, crying out, “Have mercy on us, Son of David!”[m] 28 When he went into the house, the blind men approached him, and Jesus asked, “Do you believe I can do this?” “Yes, Lord,” they answered. 29 Then he touched their eyes and said, “Be it done to you in keeping with your faith.”[n] 30 And their eyes were opened. Jesus gave them a stern warning, “See that no one learns of this.” 31 But they went out and made him known throughout that whole district.
32 As they were leaving, some people brought to him a man who could not speak because of a demon. 33 And when the demon had been driven out, the mute man spoke. The crowds were amazed and said, “Nothing like this has ever been seen in Israel.” 34 [But the Pharisees were saying, “It is by the ruler of the demons that he drives out the demons.”][o]
35 Jesus went around all the towns and villages, teaching in their synagogues, proclaiming the good news of the kingdom, and healing every disease and every ailment. 36 Seeing the crowds, he was moved with compassion for them, because they were worn out and helpless, like sheep with no shepherd.[p] 37 Then he told his disciples, “The harvest is great, but the laborers are few. 38 Ask the Lord of the harvest, then, to send out workers into his harvest.”

Notes

- a (9:1) His own town: Capernaum (4:13).
- b (9:4) Knowing: many manuscripts read “seeing,” which the Westcott–Hort text places in the margin.
- c (9:8) Filled with awe: literally “they were afraid.” Later manuscripts read “they marveled.”
- d (9:9) Matthew: from Hebrew Mattithyah, “gift of Yahweh.” In Mark 2:14 and Luke 5:27 the tax collector is called Levi; the Gospel bearing his name was attributed to him from the second century.
- e (9:10) In the house: probably Matthew’s house (compare Luke 5:29), though the Greek may mean Jesus’ own house. At formal meals guests reclined on couches, leaning on the left elbow.
- f (9:13) Hos 6:6, quoted again in 12:7.
- g (9:14) Fast often: the Westcott–Hort text, with the first hand of Sinaiticus and Vaticanus, lacks “often,” which it places in the margin; most manuscripts include it.

- h (9:15) The bridegroom's friends: literally "the sons of the bridal chamber," the wedding guests.
- i (9:17) Wineskins: containers made from the whole skin of a goat. New wine continued to ferment and swell, and old skins, already stretched, would burst.
- j (9:18) A leader: Greek archōn, "ruler," probably the leader of a synagogue; Mark 5:22 names him Jairus.
- k (9:20) Tassel: the fringe worn at the corners of the outer garment in obedience to Num 15:38–41 and Deut 22:12.
- l (9:23) Flute players: professional mourners and musicians were customarily hired for funerals.
- m (9:27) Son of David: a title for the Messiah, the promised heir of David's throne (2 Sam 7:12–16; Isa 11:1–10).
- n (9:29) In keeping with your faith: literally "according to your faith."
- o (9:34) This verse is absent from some Western witnesses (Codex Bezae, some Old Latin manuscripts, and the Sinaitic Syriac), and Westcott and Hort placed it in single brackets as doubtful. It is present in all other manuscripts, including Sinaiticus and Vaticanus. Compare 12:24.
- p (9:36) Like sheep with no shepherd: compare Num 27:17; 1 Kgs 22:17; Ezek 34:5.

Chapter 10

1 Jesus called his twelve disciples together and gave them power over unclean spirits, to cast them out and to cure every sickness and disease.
2 The twelve apostles[a] were these: first Simon, called Peter, and his brother Andrew; then James son of Zebedee and his brother John; 3 Philip and Bartholomew; Thomas and Matthew the tax collector; James son of Alphaeus, and Thaddaeus;[b] 4 Simon the Cananaean,[c] and Judas Iscariot,[d] who also betrayed him.
5 These twelve Jesus sent out with these instructions: "Do not go off onto the roads of the Gentiles, and do not go into any Samaritan town.[e] 6 Go instead to the lost sheep of the house of Israel. 7 As you travel, make this announcement: 'The kingdom of heaven is close at hand.' 8 Heal the sick, raise the dead,[f] make lepers clean, drive out demons. You received without paying; give without being paid. 9 Take no gold, no silver, no copper in your belts, 10 nor a bag for the journey, nor two shirts, nor sandals, nor a staff, for the worker deserves to be fed.[g] 11 Whatever town or village you enter, find out who in it is worthy, and stay with him until you leave. 12 As you go into the house, give it your greeting.[h] 13 If the house is worthy, let your peace come upon it; but if it is not, let your peace return to you. 14 If anyone refuses to welcome you or to hear what you say, leave that house or town and shake the dust from your feet.[i] 15 Amen, I tell you, on the day of judgment it will be more bearable for the land of Sodom and Gomorrah than for that town.

16 "See, I send you out as sheep into the midst of wolves. Be wary, then, as serpents are, and guileless, as doves are. 17 Be on your guard against people, for they will hand you over to local councils and flog you in their synagogues; 18 For my sake you will be hauled in front of governors and kings to give witness to them and to the nations. 19 But when they deliver you up, do not be anxious over how you will speak or what you will say, for in that hour you will be given what to say. 20 For it is not you who speak; it is the Spirit of your Father who speaks in you. 21 One brother will deliver another up to death, and a father his child; children will rise in revolt against parents and cause their deaths;[j] 22 and you will be hated by everyone because of my name. But the one who holds out to the end will be saved. 23 Whenever they persecute you in one town, escape to the next; amen, I tell you, before you have completed the circuit of Israel's towns, the Son of Man will come.
24 "A disciple is not above his teacher, nor a slave above his master. 25
The disciple should be satisfied to be like his teacher, and the slave like his master. If they named the master of the house Beelzebul,[k] how much worse names will they give those of his household!
26 "So do not be afraid of them; for there is nothing covered that will not be uncovered, and nothing hidden that will not be made known.
27 What I tell you in the dark, speak in the daylight; and what you hear whispered in your ear, proclaim from the housetops. 28 Do not fear those who kill the body but cannot kill the soul. Fear rather the one who can destroy both soul and body in Gehenna. 29 Are not two sparrows sold for a single small coin?[l] Yet not one of them will fall to the ground apart from your Father. 30 And as for you, every hair of your head has been numbered. 31 So do not be afraid; you are of more value than a great many sparrows.

32 “Whoever, then, acknowledges me before others, I too will acknowledge before my Father in heaven; 33 but whoever disowns me before others, I too will disown before my Father in heaven.
34 “Do not suppose that I came to bring peace upon the earth. I did not come to bring peace, but a sword. 35 I have come to turn a man against his father, a daughter against her mother, and a daughter-in-law against her mother-in-law; 36 a man will find his enemies among those of his own house.[m] 37 Whoever loves father or mother more than me is not worthy of me, and whoever loves son or daughter more than me is not worthy of me. 38 And whoever does not take up his cross and follow after me is not worthy of me. 39 Whoever has found his life will lose it, and whoever has lost his life because of me will find it.
40 “To receive you is to receive me, and to receive me is to receive the one who sent me. 41 Anyone who receives a prophet as a prophet will get a prophet’s reward, and anyone who receives a righteous person as a righteous person will get a righteous person’s reward. 42 And whoever gives even a cup of cold water to one of these little ones because he is a disciple, amen, I tell you, that person will certainly not lose his reward.”

Notes

- a (10:2) Apostles: Greek apostoloi, “those sent out,” “envoys.” Philip is a Greek name meaning “lover of horses.” Bartholomew is Aramaic for “son of Tolmai” (or “of Talmai”).
- b (10:3) Thomas … Thaddaeus: Thomas is from Aramaic teʾoma, “twin” (see John 11:16). Alphaeus is probably from Aramaic Halfai. Thaddaeus is perhaps from Aramaic tad, “breast,” meaning something like “beloved.” Some manuscripts read Lebbaeus, or “Lebbaeus who was called Thaddaeus”; the Westcott–Hort text reads Thaddaeus. Luke 6:16 and Acts 1:13 have “Judas son of James” in his place.
- c (10:4) Cananaean: from Aramaic qanʾan, “zealous one,” not a reference to Canaan. Luke 6:15 calls him “the Zealot.”
- d (10:4) Iscariot: probably Hebrew ish Qeriyyot, “man of Kerioth,” a town in southern Judea (Josh 15:25); other explanations have been proposed. Judas is the Greek form of Judah, “praised” (Gen 29:35).
- e (10:5) Samaritan: the people of Samaria, between Judea and Galilee, who worshiped the God of Israel at Mount Gerizim and accepted only the five books of Moses. Jews and Samaritans were bitterly estranged.
- f (10:8) Raise the dead: some later manuscripts omit these words.

- g (10:10) Deserves to be fed: literally “is worthy of his food.” Compare Luke 10:7; 1 Tim 5:18.
- h (10:12) Give it your greeting: the customary greeting was shalom, “peace” (verse 13). Some manuscripts add, “saying, ‘Peace to this house.’ ”
- i (10:14) Shake its dust off your feet: a sign of disowning a place; devout Jews were said to do this when returning from Gentile territory.
- j (10:21) Compare Mic 7:6.
- k (10:25) Beelzebul: a name for the prince of demons (12:24), probably “lord of the dwelling” or “lord of the heights,” perhaps a deliberate twist of Baal-zebub, “lord of flies,” the god of Ekron (2 Kgs 1:2). Later manuscripts read Beelzebub.
- l (10:29) A single small coin: Greek assarion, a Roman copper coin worth one sixteenth of a denarius (a day’s wage), roughly what a laborer earned in forty minutes.
- m (10:36) Mic 7:6.

Chapter 11

1 Once Jesus had completed his charge to the Twelve, he left that place and went on teaching and proclaiming in the towns of the region.
2 Word reached John in his prison cell about the works of the Messiah, and he dispatched his disciples 3 with a question: “Is it you who are the Coming One, or must we wait for a different person?” 4 Jesus replied, “Go back and tell John what you are hearing and seeing: 5 the blind regain their sight and the lame walk about, those with leprosy are made clean and the deaf hear, the dead are raised, and the poor are hearing good news.[a] 6 Happy is the one who finds in me no cause for stumbling.”
7 While they were on their way, Jesus spoke to the crowds concerning John: “When you trekked out into the wilderness, what were you expecting to look at? A reed shaken by the wind? 8 What, then, did you go out to see? Someone dressed in soft, fine clothing? Look, those who wear fine clothing are to be found in royal palaces. 9 What did you go out to see, then? A prophet? Yes, I tell you, and far more than a prophet. 10 He is the man of whom Scripture says, ‘Look, I send my messenger before your face; he will make your road ready ahead of you.’[b] 11 Amen, I tell you, among all born of women there has never arisen anyone greater than John the Baptist; yet the one who is least in the kingdom of heaven is greater than he. 12 From the days of John the Baptist until now the kingdom of heaven has been under violent attack, and violent people are trying to seize it.[c] 13 For all the Prophets and the Law prophesied until John; 14 and if you are willing to accept it, he himself is Elijah, who was to come.[d] 15 Whoever has ears, let him hear.

16 "But to what shall I compare this generation? It is like children sitting in the marketplaces who call out to the others, 17 'We played the flute for you, and you would not dance; we sang a dirge, and you would not beat your breasts.' 18 For John came neither eating nor drinking, and they say, 'He has a demon.' 19 The Son of Man came eating and drinking, and they say, 'There goes a glutton and a wine-drinker, a crony of tax collectors and sinners!' Yet wisdom is shown to be right by what she does."[e]

20 Then he began to denounce the towns in which most of his mighty works had been done, because they had not changed their ways. 21 "How terrible for you, Chorazin! How terrible for you, Bethsaida![f] If the miracles that happened in you had happened in Tyre and Sidon,[g] they would have repented long ago, in sackcloth and ashes. 22 But I tell you, Tyre and Sidon will find the day of judgment more bearable than you will. 23 And you, Capernaum, will you be raised to heaven? No, you will go down to Hades.[h] If the miracles that happened in you had happened in Sodom, it would still be here today. 24 But I tell you that the land of Sodom will find the day of judgment more bearable than you will."

25 At that time Jesus declared, "Father, Lord of heaven and earth, I thank you for hiding these things from the wise and clever and showing them to little children. 26 Yes, Father, for this is what pleased you. 27 All things have been put into my hands by my Father. None knows the Son fully except the Father; none knows the Father fully except the Son, and anyone to whom the Son is pleased to make him known.

28 "Come to me, all who are weary and weighed down, and I will give you rest. 29 Take my yoke[i] upon you and learn from me, for I am gentle and humble in heart, and you will find rest for your souls.[j] 30 For my yoke is kindly and my load is light."

Notes

- a (11:5) Isa 35:5–6; 26:19; 61:1.
- b (11:10) Mal 3:1; compare Exod 23:20. In Malachi the messenger prepares the way "before me," that is, before Yahweh.
- c (11:12) Has been under violent attack ... seize it: the Greek is difficult. It may also mean "the kingdom of heaven has been forcefully advancing, and forceful people are laying hold of it." Scholarly review recommended.
- d (11:14) Elijah, who was to come: see Mal 4:5–6 (3:23–24 in Hebrew). Elijah means "my God is Yahweh."
- e (11:19) By what she does: literally "by her deeds." The Westcott–Hort text, with Sinaiticus and Vaticanus, reads ergōn, "deeds"; most later manuscripts read "by her children," as in Luke 7:35.
- f (11:21) Chorazin ... Bethsaida: towns on or near the northern shore of the Sea of Galilee, close to Capernaum. Bethsaida means "house of fishing."
- g (11:21) Tyre and Sidon: Gentile seaports on the Phoenician coast, denounced by the prophets (Isa 23; Ezek 26–28).
- h (11:23) Hades: the Greek name for the realm of the dead, corresponding to Hebrew Sheol. Compare Isa 14:13–15.
- i (11:29) Yoke: the wooden frame laid on the necks of draft animals; in Jewish usage, a figure for submission to the Law or to the teaching of a rabbi.
- j (11:29) Jer 6:16.

Chapter 12

1 About that time, on a Sabbath day, Jesus was walking through fields of grain.[a] His disciples were hungry, and they started to pluck the ears and eat them. 2 The Pharisees saw it and told him, "See there!
Your disciples are doing what the Sabbath does not allow." 3 He said to them, "Have you never read what David did when he and his companions were hungry, 4 how he went into the house of God and they ate the consecrated bread,[b] which neither he nor his companions were permitted to eat, but only the priests?[c] 5 Or have you never read in the Law that on the Sabbath the priests in the temple break the Sabbath and yet are blameless?[d] 6 I tell you, here is something greater than the temple. 7 If you had grasped what this means, 'It is mercy I desire, and not sacrifice,'[e] you would not have condemned the innocent. 8 For the Son of Man is lord of the Sabbath." 9 Moving on from there, he went into their synagogue. 10 A man was there with a shriveled hand. Looking for a charge to bring against Jesus, they asked him, "Is healing on the Sabbath permitted?" 11 He said to them, “Suppose one of you has a single sheep and it tumbles into a pit on the Sabbath: will he not grab it and pull it out? 12 A man is worth so much more than a sheep! It is lawful, then, to do good on Sabbath days.” 13 Then he said to the man, “Stretch out your hand.” He stretched it out, and it was healthy again, like the other one. 14 But the Pharisees went out and plotted against him, how they might do away with him.

15 Jesus knew of this and withdrew from there. Many[f] followed him, and he healed them all, 16 and he sternly ordered them not to make him known. 17 This was to fulfill what was spoken through Isaiah the prophet: 18 “Here is my servant, whom I have chosen, my beloved, in whom my soul delights. I will put my Spirit upon him, and he will announce justice to the nations. 19 He will not quarrel or shout, nor will anyone hear his voice in the streets. 20 He will not snap a bent reed, nor quench a flickering wick, till he has led justice on to victory. 21 And in his name the nations will put their hope.”[g]

22 Then they brought him a man under a demon’s power, blind and mute, and Jesus healed him, so that he spoke and saw. 23 The crowds, all of them amazed, kept saying, “Might this man be the Son of David?” 24 Hearing this, the Pharisees said, “It is only through Beelzebul, prince of the demons, that this fellow casts the demons out.” 25 Knowing their thoughts, Jesus said to them, “Any kingdom split against itself ends in ruin, and any town or family split against itself cannot last. 26 If Satan drives out Satan, he is divided against himself; how then will his kingdom stand? 27 And if it is through Beelzebul that I cast out demons, through whom do your own people[h] cast them out? They, then, will be your judges. 28 But if I cast the demons out through God’s Spirit, the kingdom of God has arrived among you. 29 Or how can someone enter a strong man’s house and steal his belongings without first tying up the strong man? Then he can rob the house. 30 Anyone not on my side opposes me, and anyone not gathering with me is scattering.

31 “So I say to you: every sin and blasphemy people commit will be forgiven, but blasphemy against the Spirit will find no forgiveness.[i] 32 Someone who says something against the Son of Man will be forgiven, but someone who speaks against the Holy Spirit will not be forgiven, not in this age, and not in the one to come.

33 "Make the tree good and its fruit will be good, or make the tree bad and its fruit will be bad. A tree is recognized by its fruit. 34 You brood of vipers, how can you say anything good when you are evil? For the mouth speaks out of what overflows from the heart. 35 A good person, from the good stored up within, brings out good; an evil person, from the evil stored up within, brings out evil. 36 I tell you, every thoughtless word that people utter they will answer for on judgment day; 37 for by your words you will be acquitted, and by your words you will be condemned."
38 Then some of the scribes and Pharisees responded to him, "Teacher, we want to see a sign from you." 39 He answered, "A wicked and unfaithful[j] generation looks for a sign, but none will be given it except the sign of the prophet Jonah.[k] 40 Just as Jonah spent three days and three nights inside the belly of the great fish,[l] so the Son of Man will spend three days and three nights in the depths of the earth. 41 On judgment day the people of Nineveh will rise with this generation and pronounce it guilty, for they turned from their ways when Jonah preached; and here is something greater than Jonah. 42 The queen of the South[m] will rise up at the judgment with this generation and condemn it, because she came from the ends of the earth to listen to Solomon's wisdom; and look, something greater than Solomon is here.
43 "When an unclean spirit has gone out of a person, it roams through waterless places seeking rest, and finds none. 44 Then it says, 'I will go back to my house that I left.' And when it comes, it finds the house empty, swept clean, and put in order. 45 Then off it goes and fetches seven more spirits, worse than itself, and they move in and make their home there; and that person ends up in a worse state than at the start.
So it will be with this wicked generation too." 46 He was still talking with the crowds when his mother and brothers[n] came and stood outside, seeking to speak to him. 47 [Someone said to him, "Your mother and brothers are out there, and they want a word with you."][o] 48 But he replied to the one who told him, "Who is my mother, and who are my brothers?" [49] Then he pointed to his disciples and said, "See, these are my mother and my brothers! [50] For whoever does the will of my Father in heaven is my brother and sister and mother."

Notes

- a (12:1) Sabbath: from Hebrew shabbat, "ceasing," "rest," the seventh day of the week (Friday sunset to Saturday sunset), on which work was forbidden (Exod 20:8–11). Picking grain by hand from a neighbor's field was allowed (Deut 23:25), but the Pharisees counted it as reaping, a kind of work.
- b (12:4) Consecrated bread: literally "the bread of the presentation," the twelve loaves set out each week before God in the sanctuary (Lev 24:5–9).
- c (12:4) 1 Sam 21:1–6.
- d (12:5) Num 28:9–10.
- e (12:7) Hos 6:6; see 9:13.
- f (12:15) Many: the Westcott–Hort text, with Sinaiticus and Vaticanus, reads "many"; later manuscripts read "great crowds."
- g (12:21) Isa 42:1–4, quoted freely, partly following the Hebrew and partly the Greek Old Testament (verse 21).
- h (12:27) Your own people: literally "your sons," that is, Jewish exorcists associated with the Pharisees.
- i (12:31) Blasphemy against the Spirit: attributing to Satan the work that God's Spirit is plainly doing (12:24, 28).
- j (12:39) Unfaithful: the Greek says "adulterous," meaning unfaithful to God, as in the prophets' picture of Israel as an unfaithful wife (Hos 2; Ezek 16).
- k (12:39) Jonah: "dove." See the book of Jonah, especially 1:17 and 3:5.
- l (12:40) Sea monster: Greek kētos, "huge fish" or "sea creature" (Jonah 1:17 in the Greek Old Testament).
- m (12:42) The queen of the South: the queen of Sheba, probably in southwest Arabia (1 Kgs 10:1–10).
- n (12:46) His brothers: named in 13:55. Catholic and Orthodox tradition understands them as cousins or as children of Joseph by an earlier marriage.
- o (12:47) The Westcott–Hort text, with the first hand of Sinaiticus, Vaticanus and a few other witnesses, omits this verse, placing it in the margin; most manuscripts include it, and it is needed to make sense of verse 48. It is printed here in brackets.

Chapter 13

[1] That same day Jesus went out of the house and sat down beside the lake. [2] So many people crowded around him that he stepped into a boat and sat down in it, and all the people stood along the beach. [3] He spoke to them at length in parables.[a] "Listen," he said. "A sower went out to scatter seed. 4 As he scattered it, some fell beside the path, and birds swooped down and devoured it. 5 Other seed fell on rocky places where it did not have much soil, and it sprang up at once because the soil was shallow; 6 When the sun rose, the young plants were scorched and, having no root, dried up. 7 Other seed fell among thornbushes, and the thorns grew up and choked it. 8 Still other seed fell on good soil and yielded a crop, some a hundred times as much, some sixty, some thirty. 9 Whoever has ears, let him hear." 10 The disciples approached him and said, "Why are you talking to them in parables?" 11 He replied, "You have been granted knowledge of the secrets[b] of the kingdom of heaven; they have not. 12 Whoever has something will be given more and will have plenty; whoever has nothing will lose even what they have. 13 This is why I speak to them in parables: because seeing they do not see, and hearing they do not hear or understand. 14 In them the prophecy of Isaiah is being fulfilled, which says, 'You will listen and listen, yet never understand; you will look and look, yet never perceive. 15 For this people's heart has grown dull; with their ears they barely hear, and they have shut their eyes, so that they may not see with their eyes, hear with their ears, understand with their heart, and turn back, and I would heal them.'[c] 16 But blessed are your eyes, because they see, and your ears, because they hear. 17 Amen, I tell you, many prophets and righteous people yearned to see the things you see, but never saw them, and to hear the things you hear, but never heard them.

18 "Listen, then, to what the parable of the sower means. 19 When anyone hears the word of the kingdom and does not understand it, the evil one comes and snatches away what was sown in his heart;
this is the seed sown along the path. 20 The seed sown on rocky places is the one who hears the word and at once receives it with joy; 21 Yet it has no root in them and lasts only a short time. When trouble or persecution arises on account of the word, they quickly fall away. 22
The seed that fell among thorns stands for the one who hears the word, but worldly worries and the deceit of riches smother the word, and it bears no fruit. 23 But the seed sown on the good soil is the one who hears the word and understands it; he indeed bears fruit and yields, one a hundredfold, another sixty, another thirty." 24 He told them another parable: "The kingdom of heaven can be compared to a man who planted good seed in his field. 25 But while everyone was asleep, his enemy came and sowed darnel[d] among the wheat and went away. 26 When the wheat sprouted and formed heads of grain, then the darnel appeared too. 27 The servants of the landowner approached him and said, 'Master, was it not good seed you planted in your field? So where did the weeds come from?' 28 He told them, 'An enemy has done this.' The slaves asked him, 'Do you want us, then, to go and pull it up?' 29 But he said, 'No; in pulling up the darnel you might uproot the wheat along with it. 30 Let them both grow together until the harvest. When the time comes, I will tell the harvesters: First collect the weeds and bundle them up to burn; then bring the wheat into my barn.' "

31 He put before them another parable: "The kingdom of heaven is like a mustard seed, which a man took and sowed in his field. 32 Of all seeds it is the tiniest, yet when full grown it is bigger than any garden plant; it becomes a tree, and the birds of the sky come and make their nests among its branches."[e]
33 He told them another parable: "The kingdom of heaven is like yeast that a woman took and worked into about fifty pounds of flour[f] until the whole batch was leavened."
34 Jesus told the crowds all these things in parables; indeed, he told them nothing without a parable. 35 This fulfilled what was spoken through the prophet:[g] "I will open my mouth in parables; I will pour out things hidden since the foundation of the world."[h]
36 Then he left the crowds and went into the house. His disciples came to him and said, "Explain to us the parable of the darnel in the field."
37 He answered, "The one who sows the good seed is the Son of Man. 38 The field is the world; the good seed stands for the children of the kingdom; the darnel stands for the children of the evil one; 39 the enemy who sowed it is the devil; the harvest is the end of the age; and the reapers are angels. 40 Just as the darnel is gathered and burned up in the fire, so will it be at the end of the age. 41 The Son of Man will send his angels, and they will remove from his kingdom everyone who leads others into sin and everyone who does wrong, 42 and they will throw them into the blazing furnace; there people will weep and grind their teeth. 43 Then the righteous will shine like the sun in their Father's kingdom.[i] Whoever has ears, let him hear.

44 "The kingdom of heaven is like a treasure hidden in a field. A man found it and hid it again, and in his joy he went and sold all that he owned and bought that field.

45 "Or again, the kingdom of heaven is like a trader on the lookout for beautiful pearls. 46 When he found one pearl of great price, he went away and sold everything he had and bought it.

47 "Again, the kingdom of heaven is like a dragnet that was let down into the lake and caught fish of every kind. 48 When it was full, they hauled it onto the shore, sat down, and collected the good fish into containers, but threw away the worthless ones. 49 It will be that way at the end of the age: the angels will come, separate the evil from the righteous, 50 and throw them into the blazing furnace; there people will weep and grind their teeth.

51 "Have you understood all this?" They said to him, "Yes." 52 He said to them, "That is why every scribe trained for the kingdom of heaven is like a householder, who brings both new treasures and old out of his storeroom."

53 When Jesus had finished these parables, he left that place. 54 Coming to his hometown,[j] he taught the people in their synagogue, and they were astounded and said, "Where did this man get this wisdom and these mighty powers? 55 This is the carpenter's son,[k] is he not? His mother is Mary, isn't she, and his brothers are James, Joseph,[l] Simon and Judas? 56 And are not all his sisters here with us? Where then did he get all this?" 57 And they took offense at him. But Jesus said to them, "A prophet is not without honor except in his hometown and in his own house." 58 And he did not do many mighty works there because of their unbelief.

Notes

- a (13:3) Parables: Greek parabolē, "comparison," corresponding to Hebrew mashal, a saying, proverb, riddle or illustrative story.

- b (13:11) Secrets: Greek mystēria, things hidden in God's purpose and now revealed.
- c (13:15) Isa 6:9–10, quoted in the wording of the Greek Old Testament.
- d (13:25) Darnel: Greek zizania, a weed (Lolium temulentum) that closely resembles wheat until it forms its head. Its seeds are bitter and mildly poisonous. Traditionally "tares."
- e (13:32) The birds … nest in its branches: compare Ps 104:12; Ezek 17:23; 31:6; Dan 4:12, 21.
- f (13:33) About fifty pounds of flour: literally "three sata" of flour. A saton (Hebrew seah) was about 13 quarts (12–13 liters), so the total was about 10 gallons (39 liters), enough bread for well over a hundred people. Compare Gen 18:6.
- g (13:35) The prophet: a few manuscripts, including the first hand of Sinaiticus, read "Isaiah the prophet"; the quotation is from Asaph (Ps 78), whom 2 Chr 29:30 calls a seer.
- h (13:35) Ps 78:2.
- i (13:43) Compare Dan 12:3.
- j (13:54) His hometown: Nazareth (2:23).
- k (13:55) Carpenter: Greek tektōn, a craftsman who worked in wood or stone, a builder.
- l (13:55) Joseph: later manuscripts read Joses (as in Mark 6:3) or John. James is Jacob (see 4:21 note); Judas is Judah.

Chapter 14

1 At that time Herod the tetrarch[a] heard the reports about Jesus, 2 and told his attendants, "This is John the Baptist. He has risen from the dead, and that is why miraculous powers are working in him."

3 For Herod had arrested John, bound him, and put him in prison on account of Herodias, the wife of his brother Philip,[b] 4 because John had been telling him, "It is against the law for you to have her."[c] 5 Herod wanted to put him to death, but he was afraid of the people, because they regarded John as a prophet. 6 But on Herod's birthday, the daughter of Herodias[d] danced before the guests, and Herod was so delighted 7 that he swore an oath to give her whatever she asked. 8 Prompted by her mother, she said, "Give me here on a platter the head of John the Baptist." 9 The king was grieved, but because of his oaths and his guests he ordered it to be given her. 10 He sent orders, and John was beheaded in the prison. 11 His head was brought on a platter and given to the girl, and she brought it to her mother. 12 John's disciples came, took his body and buried it, and then went and informed Jesus.

13 When Jesus heard it, he withdrew from there by boat to a deserted place to be by himself. But the crowds learned of it and followed him on foot from the towns. 14 When he came ashore, he saw a great crowd, and he was moved with compassion for them and healed their sick. 15 With evening approaching, the disciples came to him. "This is a lonely spot," they said, "and the day is far gone. Let the people go, so that they can make their way to the villages and get provisions for themselves." 16 But Jesus said, "There is no need for them to leave.
You yourselves give them food." 17 They said to him, "All we have here are five loaves and two fish." 18 He said, "Bring them here to me." 19 Then he directed the crowds to sit down on the grass. He took the five loaves and the two fish, and looking up to heaven he said a blessing; he broke the loaves and gave them to the disciples, and the disciples gave them to the crowds. 20 Everyone ate and was satisfied, and they gathered up what was left over of the broken pieces, twelve baskets full. 21 Those who ate were about five thousand men, besides women and children.
22 Immediately he made the disciples get into the boat and go on ahead of him to the other side, while he sent the crowds away. 23 When he had dismissed them, he climbed the mountain alone to pray. Evening fell, and he was there by himself, 24 but the boat was by this time a long way from land,[e] being battered by the waves, for the wind was against
it. 25 Between three and six in the morning[f] he came toward them, walking on the lake. 26 When the disciples saw him walking across the lake, they were terrified. "It is a ghost!" they said, and screamed in fear. 27 But at once Jesus spoke to them: "Take heart; it is I.[g] Do not be afraid." 28 Peter answered him, "Lord, if it is you, command me to come to you on the water." 29 "Come," said Jesus. Peter climbed out of the boat and walked on the water, making his way toward Jesus. 30 But when he saw the wind,[h] he became frightened, and beginning to sink, he cried out, "Lord, save me!" 31 Jesus immediately reached out his hand and caught hold of him, saying to him, "You of little faith, why did you doubt?" 32 And when they had climbed into the boat, the wind died down. 33 Those in the boat bowed down before him and said, "Truly you are the Son of God."

34 When they had crossed over, they came to land at Gennesaret.[i] 35
When the men of that place recognized him, they sent word into all that surrounding region and brought to him all who were sick, 36 and they begged him that they might merely touch the tassel of his cloak;
and all who touched it were made completely well.

Notes

- a (14:1) Herod the tetrarch: Herod Antipas, son of Herod the Great, ruler of Galilee and Perea from 4 BC to AD 39. Tetrarch ("ruler of a fourth") was a title for a minor ruler under Rome; Matthew also calls him "king" (verse 9).
- b (14:3) Herodias … Philip: Herodias was a granddaughter of Herod the Great. She had been married to her uncle Herod (called Philip here and in Mark 6:17), and left him to marry his half-brother Antipas. Some manuscripts omit "Philip." The historian Josephus gives a fuller account (Antiquities 18.5).
- c (14:4) Against the law: Lev 18:16; 20:21.
- d (14:6) The daughter of Herodias: named Salome by Josephus.
- e (14:24) A long way from land: literally "many stadia from the land." A stadion was about 607 feet (185 m). The Westcott–Hort text follows Vaticanus here; other manuscripts read "in the middle of the lake." Compare John 6:19, "about 25 or 30 stadia," about 3 or 3½ miles (5 or 6 km).
- f (14:25) Between three and six in the morning: literally "in the fourth watch of the night." The Romans divided the night into four watches: about 6–9 p.m., 9 p.m.–midnight, midnight–3 a.m., and 3–6 a.m.
- g (14:27) It is I: Greek egō eimi, literally "I am," which may echo God's self-identification in Exod 3:14 and Isa 43:10.
- h (14:30) Saw the wind: the Westcott–Hort text, with Sinaiticus and Vaticanus, lacks "strong," which most manuscripts add.
- i (14:34) Gennesaret: a fertile plain on the northwest shore of the Sea of Galilee, between Capernaum and Magdala.

Chapter 15

1 Then some Pharisees and scribes came to Jesus from Jerusalem with a question: 2 "What makes your disciples break the tradition handed down by the elders? They do not wash their hands before they eat bread."[a] 3 He answered them, "And what makes you break God's commandment for the sake of your tradition? 4 God said, 'Honor your father and mother,'[b] and, 'Whoever reviles father or mother must certainly be put to death.'[c] 5 Yet you teach that a person can say to father or mother, 'Anything of mine that might have helped you is a gift devoted to God,'[d] 6 he need not honor his father at all. So for the sake of your tradition you have cancelled the word[e] of God. 7 Hypocrites!

Isaiah described you well when he prophesied: 8 'This people honors me with their lips, while their heart stays far away from me; 9 their worship of me is empty, for what they teach as doctrine are human rules.' "[f]
10 Then he called the crowd over and said to them, "Listen, and understand this: 11 a person is not made unclean by what goes into the mouth; what comes out of the mouth, that is what makes a person unclean." 12 Then the disciples came and said to him, "Are you aware that the Pharisees were offended to hear you say this?" 13 He replied, "Any plant that my heavenly Father has not planted will be uprooted.
14 Leave them be. They are blind guides; and when one blind man guides another, the two of them will tumble into a ditch."[g] 15 Peter spoke up: "Explain this saying to us." 16 "Are you also still slow to grasp it?" Jesus said. 17 "Do you not see that whatever enters the mouth passes into the stomach and goes out into the latrine? 18 What comes out of the mouth, though, issues from the heart, and that is what defiles a person. 19 For from the heart come evil schemes, murders, adulteries, sexual immoralities, thefts, false witness, slanders. 20 These are what make a person unclean; but eating with hands unwashed does not make anyone unclean." 21 Jesus left that area and went to the district of Tyre and Sidon. 22 And a Canaanite[h] woman from that territory came out and kept crying, "Have mercy on me, Lord, Son of David! My daughter is tormented by a demon, and it is terrible." 23 But he gave her no word of answer.
His disciples came to him and urged him, "Send her off; she keeps shouting after us." 24 He answered, "I was sent to no one but the lost sheep of the house of Israel." 25 But she came and knelt before him.
"Lord," she said, "help me!" 26 He answered, "It is not right to take bread meant for the children and toss it to the little dogs." 27 "True, Lord," she said, "yet even the little dogs eat the scraps falling from their masters' table." 28 Then Jesus answered her, "Woman, great is your faith! Let it be done for you just as you wish." And her daughter was healed from that hour.

29 Jesus moved on from there and went along the shore of the Sea of Galilee. He climbed a hillside and sat there. 30 Great crowds came to him, bringing with them people who were lame, crippled, blind, mute, and many others besides, and laid them at his feet, and he healed them. 31 The crowd marveled as they saw the mute talking, the maimed restored,[i] the lame walking and the blind seeing, and they praised the God of Israel.
32 Jesus called his disciples to him and said, "My heart goes out to these people, because for three days now they have stayed with me and they have nothing left to eat. I am not willing to send them away hungry; they might faint on the road." 33 His disciples asked him, "Where in this remote place could we find enough bread to feed such a large crowd?" 34 Jesus asked them, "How many loaves have you got?"
They said, "Seven, and a few small fish." 35 He instructed the crowd to sit down on the ground, 36 and he took the seven loaves and the fish, gave thanks, broke them, and kept handing them to the disciples, and the disciples handed them to the crowds. 37 They all ate their fill, and they collected the broken pieces that remained, seven large baskets full.[j] 38 There were four thousand men who ate, in addition to women and children. 39 After dismissing the crowds, he got into the boat and came to the district of Magadan.[k]

Notes

- a (15:2) Wash their hands: ritual washing, not hygiene. The "tradition of the elders" was the body of oral rulings by which the Pharisees applied the Law (compare Mark 7:3–4).
- b (15:4) Exod 20:12; Deut 5:16.
- c (15:4) Exod 21:17; Lev 20:9.
- d (15:5) A gift devoted to God: something dedicated to God (Mark 7:11 gives the Aramaic term, Corban) and therefore, by the rule being criticized, unavailable to support one's parents.
- e (15:6) Word: the Westcott–Hort text, with Sinaiticus (corrected) and Vaticanus, reads "word"; some manuscripts read "commandment" and others "law."
- f (15:9) Isa 29:13, quoted in the wording of the Greek Old Testament.
- g (15:14) Many later manuscripts read "blind guides of the blind"; the Westcott–Hort text reads simply "blind guides."
- h (15:22) Canaanite: an old biblical name for the non-Israelite peoples of the region; Mark 7:26 calls her "a Greek, Syrophoenician by birth."

- i (15:31) The crippled made whole: the first hand of Sinaiticus and a few other witnesses omit this phrase.
- j (15:37) Large baskets: Greek spyris, a larger basket than the kophinos of 14:20.
- k (15:39) Magadan: location uncertain. Later manuscripts read Magdala; compare Mark 8:10, "Dalmanutha."

Chapter 16

1 Pharisees and Sadducees approached, testing him, and demanded that he show them some sign out of heaven. 2 He answered them, [["When evening comes, you say, 'Fair weather, for the sky is red';
3 and in the morning, 'Today there will be a storm, because the sky is red and threatening.' You can interpret the appearance of the sky, but you cannot interpret the signs of the times.]][a] 4 A wicked and adulterous generation clamors for a sign, but it will be given no sign except the sign of Jonah." Then he left them and went away.
5 When the disciples reached the far shore, they found that they had forgotten to take bread. 6 Jesus said to them, "Watch out, and be on guard against the yeast[b] of the Pharisees and Sadducees." 7 They discussed this among themselves and said, "He says this because we brought no bread." 8 Jesus knew what they were saying and asked,
"Why all this talk among yourselves about having no bread, you people of little faith? 9 Have you not understood yet? Have you forgotten the five loaves that fed five thousand, and the number of baskets you filled with leftovers? 10 Or the seven loaves for the four thousand, and how many large baskets you gathered? 11 How can you not understand that I was not speaking about bread? Watch out for the yeast of the Pharisees and Sadducees!" 12 Then it dawned on them that he had not told them to beware of the yeast in bread, but of what the Pharisees and Sadducees taught.
13 When Jesus came into the district of Caesarea Philippi,[c] he put a question to his disciples: "Who do people say that the Son of Man is?"
14 They said, "Some say John the Baptist; others, Elijah; and still others, Jeremiah[d] or one of the prophets." 15 He said to them, "And you—who do you say I am?" 16 Simon Peter spoke up: "You are the Messiah, Son of the living God." 17 Jesus answered him, "Blessed are you, Simon son of Jonah,[e] for no human being[f] revealed this to you, but my Father in heaven. 18 And I tell you, you are Peter, and on this rock[g] I will build my church,[h] and the gates of Hades[i] will not overpower it. 19 The keys of the kingdom of heaven I will place in your hands. Whatever you bind on earth will already be bound in heaven, and whatever you release on earth will already be released in heaven."[j] 20 Then he gave the disciples strict orders not to tell anyone that he was the Messiah.

21 From then on Jesus[k] started to explain to his disciples that he must go to Jerusalem and endure great suffering from the elders, chief priests and scribes, be killed, and rise again on the third day. 22 Peter took him aside and began to rebuke him: "God have mercy on you,[l] Lord! This must never happen to you!" 23 But he turned and said to Peter, "Get behind me, Satan! You are a stumbling block to me, for your thinking is not God's way of thinking but man's." 24 Then Jesus said to his disciples, "If anyone wants to come after me, let him say no to himself, take up his cross, and follow me. 25 Anyone set on saving his life[m] will lose it, and anyone who loses his life for my sake will find it. 26 What will it profit anyone to win the entire world and lose their life? Or what can a person give to get life back? 27 The Son of Man will come in the glory of his Father with his angels, and then he will repay each person according to their actions.[n] 28 Amen, I tell you, there are some standing here who will not taste death until they see the Son of Man coming in his kingdom."

Notes

- a (16:3) Verses 2b–3 (from "When evening comes" to "the signs of the times") are absent from Sinaiticus, Vaticanus, and other early witnesses, and Jerome knew manuscripts without them. Westcott and Hort enclosed them in double brackets as not part of Matthew's original text, though very old. They are printed here in double brackets. The Greek pyrrazei means "is fiery red."
- b (16:6) Yeast: here a figure for a corrupting influence that spreads unseen (verse 12; compare 1 Cor 5:6–8).
- c (16:13) Caesarea Philippi: a town at the foot of Mount Hermon near the source of the Jordan, rebuilt by Herod's son Philip and named in honor of Caesar Augustus (and to distinguish it from Caesarea on the coast).
- d (16:14) Jeremiah: "Yahweh exalts" or "Yahweh throws (down)."
- e (16:17) Son of Jonah: Aramaic Bar-Jona. John 1:42 and 21:15 call his father John.
- f (16:17) No human being: literally "flesh and blood."

- g (16:18) Peter ... rock: a wordplay. Petros (Peter) and petra (rock) are related Greek words, both rendering the Aramaic name Kepha (Cephas), "rock" (John 1:42).
- h (16:18) Church: Greek ekklēsia, "assembly," used in the Greek Old Testament for the assembly of Israel.
- i (16:18) The gates of Hades: the power of death.
- j (16:19) Will have been bound ... will have been loosed: or "will be bound ... will be loosed." Binding and loosing were rabbinic terms for forbidding and permitting, and also for imposing or lifting a penalty. Compare 18:18.
- k (16:21) Jesus: Sinaiticus (first hand) and Vaticanus read "Jesus Christ" here, as does the Westcott–Hort text; most manuscripts read "Jesus."
- l (16:22) God have mercy on you: an idiom meaning "God forbid!"
- m (16:25) Life: Greek psychē, which can mean "life" or "soul" (also in verse 26).
- n (16:27) Ps 62:12; Prov 24:12.

Chapter 17

1 After six days Jesus brought Peter, James, and his brother John up a high mountain by themselves. 2 And he was transformed before them; his face shone like the sun, and his clothes became as white as the light. 3 And suddenly Moses and Elijah[a] appeared to them, talking with him. 4 Peter responded to Jesus, "Lord, it is good that we are here.
If you wish, I will put up three shelters[b] here: one for you, one for Moses, and one for Elijah." 5 He was still speaking when a bright cloud spread its shadow over them, and out of the cloud a voice said, "This is my Son, my beloved, in whom I delight. Listen to him!"[c] 6 At the sound of it the disciples fell face down on the ground, overcome with fear. 7 But Jesus came and touched them. "Get up," he said, "and do not be afraid." 8 When they raised their eyes, they saw no one except Jesus himself, alone.
9 As they were coming down from the mountain, Jesus ordered them, "Tell no one what you have seen until the Son of Man has risen from the dead." 10 The disciples asked him, "Why then do the scribes say that Elijah must come first?" 11 He replied, "Elijah is indeed coming, and he will set everything right again.[d] 12 But I tell you that Elijah has already come, and they did not recognize him, but did to him whatever they pleased. In the same way the Son of Man is about to suffer at their hands." 13 Then it became clear to the disciples that he had been talking to them about John the Baptist.

14 When they reached the crowd, a man came up to Jesus and fell on his knees before him. 15 and said, "Lord, take pity on my son. He has seizures[e] and is in terrible pain; he often falls into the fire and often into the water. 16 I brought him to your disciples, but they had no power to cure him." 17 Jesus replied, "O faithless and twisted generation![f] How long shall I remain with you? How long shall I bear with you? Bring the boy to me here." 18 Jesus spoke sternly to the demon, and it left the boy; from that hour he was well.
19 Afterward the disciples came to Jesus privately and asked, "Why were we not able to drive it out?" 20 "Because you have so little faith," he told them. "Amen, I tell you, if you have faith no bigger than a grain of mustard seed, you will tell this mountain, 'Go over there,' and over there it will go. Nothing will be impossible for you." 21 g 22 While they were gathering[h] in Galilee, Jesus said to them, "The Son of Man is about to be handed over into human hands, 23 They will put him to death, and on the third day he will be raised up." And the disciples were deeply saddened.
24 After they arrived in Capernaum, the men who collected the temple tax[i] came to Peter. "Your teacher pays the temple tax, doesn't he?" they asked. 25 "Yes, he does," Peter said. When he came into the house, Jesus spoke first: "What do you think, Simon? From whom do the kings of the earth collect tolls or tribute? From their own sons, or from others?" 26 When Peter said, "From others," Jesus told him, "Then the sons are exempt. 27 However, so that we do not offend them, go to the lake and throw in a fishhook. Take the first fish that bites, open its mouth, and you will find a silver coin[j] to cover the tax for both of us. Take it and pay them for you and me."

Notes

- a (17:3) Moses and Elijah: representing the Law and the Prophets. Both had met God on a mountain (Exod 24; 33–34; 1 Kgs 19). Moses is explained in Exod 2:10 as "drawn out."
- b (17:4) Shelters: Greek skēnē, "tent," "booth," perhaps recalling the booths of the Feast of Tabernacles (Lev 23:42) or the tabernacle in the wilderness.
- c (17:5) Compare Ps 2:7; Isa 42:1; Deut 18:15; and 3:17.

- d (17:11) Mal 4:5–6 (3:23–24 in Hebrew).
- e (17:15) Has seizures: literally “is moonstruck” (Greek selēniazetai), a term for epilepsy-like attacks, blamed on the moon.
- f (17:17) Faithless and perverse generation: compare Deut 32:5, 20.
- g (17:21) The Westcott–Hort text and the earliest manuscripts (including Sinaiticus, first hand, and Vaticanus) do not include verse 21, and the number is kept here only to preserve the traditional verse numbering. Many later manuscripts add, from Mark 9:29, “But this kind does not go out except by prayer and fasting.”
- h (17:22) Gathering: the Westcott–Hort text, with Sinaiticus and Vaticanus, reads systrephomenōn, “gathering together”; most manuscripts read “staying.”
- i (17:24) The temple tax: literally “the two drachmas,” the half-shekel paid yearly by every Jewish man for the upkeep of the temple (Exod 30:13–16; Neh 10:32), equal to about two days’ wages.
- j (17:27) A silver coin: Greek statēr, a coin worth four drachmas, enough to pay the temple tax for two people.

Chapter 18

1 At that time the disciples came to Jesus with the question, “Who, then, ranks highest in the kingdom of heaven?” 2 He called a little child over, stood the child among them, 3 and said, “Amen, I tell you, if you do not turn around and become as little children are, there is no way you will enter the kingdom of heaven. 4 So whoever takes the lowly place of this child is the greatest in the kingdom of heaven. 5
And whoever welcomes one such child in my name welcomes me.
6 “But whoever leads astray one of these little ones who trust in me would be better off with a large millstone[a] tied around their neck and drowned in the deep sea. 7 Alas for the world because of its snares!
Snares there must be; but alas for the one through whom the snare comes! 8 If your hand or your foot leads you into sin, cut it off and throw it from you. Better for you to enter life maimed or lame than to keep both hands or both feet and be thrown into the everlasting fire. 9 And if your eye causes you to sin, pull it out and throw it away.
It is better for you to enter life with one eye than to be thrown into the fire of Gehenna with two.
10 “Take care that you do not look down on one of these little ones; for I tell you that in heaven their angels are always looking upon the face of my Father in heaven.[b] 11 [c] 12 What is your opinion? If a man has a hundred sheep and one of them wanders off, will he not leave the ninety-nine on the hillsides and go in search of the stray? 13 And if he happens to find it, amen, I tell you, he rejoices over it more than over the ninety-nine that never wandered. 14 In the same way, it is not the will of your[d] Father in heaven that a single one of these little ones should be lost.

15 "If your brother sins[e] against you, go to him privately and show him where he went wrong, just the two of you. If he pays attention to you, you have won your brother back. 16 But if he will not listen, take one or two others along with you, so that 'on the evidence of two or three witnesses every matter may be settled.'[f] 17 If he refuses to listen to them, tell it to the church;[g] and if he refuses to listen even to the church, treat him as you would a Gentile or a tax collector. 18 Amen, I tell you, whatever you prohibit[h] on earth will already be prohibited in heaven, and whatever you allow on earth will already be allowed in heaven. 19 Once more, amen, I tell you: when two of you here on earth are of one mind about any request they make, my Father in heaven will do it for them. 20 For where two or three have come together in my name, there I am in their midst." 21 Then Peter came up and asked him, "Lord, how often shall my brother sin against me and I forgive him? Up to seven times?" 22 "Not up to seven times, I say to you," Jesus replied, "but up to seventy-seven times.[i] 23 "For this reason the kingdom of heaven is like a king who wanted to settle accounts with his servants. 24 When he began the reckoning, a man was brought to him who owed ten thousand bags of silver.[j] 25 Since he had no means of paying, his master ordered that he be sold, together with his wife and children and everything he owned, and the debt repaid. 26 So the slave fell down and lay prostrate before him, pleading, 'Be patient with me, and I will pay you everything.' 27 Moved with pity, the master of that slave released him and canceled the debt.
28 But that same slave went out and came upon one of his fellow slaves who owed him a hundred days' wages.[k] He seized him by the throat and began choking him, saying, 'Pay up what you owe!' 29 His fellow slave fell down and begged him, 'Be patient with me, and I will pay you.' 30 But he would not hear of it; instead he went off and had him thrown into prison until he should pay the debt. 31 When his fellow slaves saw what had happened, they were deeply distressed, and they went and reported the whole affair to their master. 32 Then the master summoned him and said to him, ‘You wicked slave! I canceled that entire debt of yours because you begged me. 33 Ought you not to have shown mercy to your fellow slave, as I showed mercy to you?’ 34 And in anger his master handed him over to the jailers[l] until he should repay everything owed. 35 That is how my heavenly Father will deal with each of you, unless you forgive your brother from your heart.”

Notes

- a (18:6) Heavy millstone: literally “a donkey’s millstone,” the large upper stone of a mill turned by a donkey.
- b (18:10) Compare Ps 34:7; 91:11; Heb 1:14.
- c (18:11) The Westcott–Hort text and the earliest manuscripts (including Sinaiticus, Vaticanus, and the Greek of the early versions) do not include verse 11; the number is kept here only to preserve the traditional verse numbering. Many later manuscripts add, from Luke 19:10, “For the Son of Man came to save the lost.”
- d (18:14) Your: some manuscripts, including Vaticanus, read “my.”
- e (18:15) If your brother sins: most manuscripts add “against you”; the Westcott–Hort text, with Sinaiticus and Vaticanus, omits it (WH prints it in the margin).
- f (18:16) Deut 19:15.
- g (18:17) Church: Greek ekklēsia, “assembly” (see 16:18 note), here the local community of disciples.
- h (18:18) Forbid … permit: literally “bind … loose”; see 16:19 note.
- i (18:22) Seventy-seven times: or “seventy times seven.” The Greek is ambiguous, but it matches Gen 4:24 in the Greek Old Testament, where Lamech boasts of revenge “seventy-seven times.”
- j (18:24) Ten thousand bags of silver: literally “ten thousand talents.” A talent was a weight of silver of about 75 pounds (34 kg), worth about 6,000 denarii, that is, about 6,000 days’ wages for a laborer. The sum is deliberately beyond all reckoning: some 60 million days’ wages. Ten thousand (myrioi) was the largest number in Greek counting.
- k (18:28) A hundred days’ wages: the Greek says “a hundred denarii,” and a denarius was what a laborer typically earned in a day (20:2). The debt was about one six-hundred-thousandth of the first.
- l (18:34) Jailers: or “torturers” (Greek basanistai).

Chapter 19

1 Once Jesus had ended these sayings, he departed from Galilee and went to the part of Judea that lies across the Jordan. 2 Great crowds followed him, and he healed them there.
3 Some Pharisees came to him to test him. "Is it permissible," they asked, "for a man to divorce his wife on any ground whatever?" 4 He answered, "Have you not read that the Creator at the beginning made them male and female,[a] 5 and said, 'For this reason a man will leave his father and mother and be joined to his wife, and the two will become one flesh'?[b] 6 So they are no longer two, but one flesh. What God has yoked together, then, no human being must separate." 7 They asked him, "Then why did Moses order that a man give his wife a divorce certificate and send her away?"[c] 8 He told them, "It was because your hearts were hard that Moses allowed you to divorce your wives; but it was not that way from the beginning. 9 I tell you, anyone who divorces his wife, except for sexual immorality, and marries another commits adultery."[d] 10 The disciples said to him, "If that is how things stand between a man and his wife, it is better not to marry." 11 He answered, "This saying is not for everyone to take in, but only for those who are given it. 12 Some are eunuchs because they were born that way; some were made eunuchs by other people; and some have renounced marriage[e] for the sake of the kingdom of heaven. Whoever can take this in should take it in."
13 Then little children were brought to him so that he might lay his hands on them and pray. The disciples scolded those who brought them, 14 but Jesus said, "Let the little children be, and do not stop them from coming to me; for the kingdom of heaven belongs to such as these." 15 He laid his hands on them and went on from there.
16 And now a man came up to him and asked, "Teacher, what good deed must I do to gain eternal life?" 17 "Why are you asking me about the good?" Jesus replied. "Only One is good.[f] If you wish to enter life, keep the commandments." 18 "Which ones?" he asked. Jesus replied, " 'You are not to murder, not to commit adultery, not to steal, and not to give false testimony; 19 honor your father and mother;'[g] and,
'Love your neighbor as yourself.' "[h] 20 "All of those I have observed," the young man told him. “Where do I still fall short?” 21 Jesus said to him, “If you want to be complete,[i] go and sell what you own and give the money to the poor, and you will have treasure in heaven; then come, follow me.” 22 When the young man heard this, he went away grieving, for he had many possessions.

23 Then Jesus said to his disciples, “Amen, I tell you, it will be hard for someone rich to enter the kingdom of heaven. 24 And again I say to you, a camel could go through the eye of a needle[j] more easily than a rich person could enter the kingdom of God.” 25 When the disciples heard this, they were utterly astonished. “Who then can be saved?” they asked. 26 Looking at them, Jesus said, “For human beings it is impossible, but for God everything is possible.”[k] 27 Then Peter answered him, “We have given up everything and followed you. What will we get?” 28 Jesus answered them, “Amen, I tell you: at the world’s rebirth,[l] when the Son of Man sits upon the throne of his glory, you who followed me will likewise sit on twelve thrones and judge the twelve tribes of Israel. 29 And everyone who has given up houses, brothers, sisters, father, mother,[m] children or fields for the sake of my name will receive a hundred times as much[n] and inherit eternal life. 30 Yet many now first will be last, and many now last will be first.

Notes

- a (19:4) Gen 1:27; 5:2.
- b (19:5) Gen 2:24.
- c (19:7) Deut 24:1–4.
- d (19:9) Except for sexual unfaithfulness: Greek porneia, a broad term for sexual immorality, whose exact sense here is debated. Compare 5:32. Many manuscripts add, from 5:32, “and whoever marries a divorced woman commits adultery”; the Westcott–Hort text, with Sinaiticus and other witnesses, lacks it (WH prints it in the margin).
- e (19:12) Renounced marriage: literally “made themselves eunuchs.” Eunuchs were men who could not father children. Those who “made themselves eunuchs” are generally understood as those who chose to remain unmarried for the sake of the kingdom.
- f (19:17) Why are you asking me about the good? Only One is good: so the Westcott–Hort text, with Sinaiticus and Vaticanus. Most later manuscripts assimilate to Mark 10:17–18: “Good teacher … Why do you call me good? No one is good but One, that is, God.”

- g (19:19) Exod 20:12–16; Deut 5:16–20.
- h (19:19) Lev 19:18.
- i (19:21) Complete: or “perfect” (compare 5:48).
- j (19:24) A camel … the eye of a needle: a proverbial image of something impossible. Compare the rabbinic proverb of an elephant going through the eye of a needle.
- k (19:26) Compare Gen 18:14; Job 42:2; Zech 8:6.
- l (19:28) The world’s rebirth: Greek palingenesia, “new genesis” or “rebirth,” the renewal of the world at the end of the age.
- m (19:29) Mother: most manuscripts add “or wife”; the Westcott–Hort text, with Vaticanus and other witnesses, lacks it.
- n (19:29) Many times as much: so the Westcott–Hort text, with Vaticanus and a few other witnesses; most manuscripts read “a hundred times as much.”

Chapter 20

1 “For the kingdom of heaven is like a landowner who went out at daybreak to hire laborers for his vineyard. 2 He agreed with the laborers to pay them the usual day’s wage[a] and sent them into his vineyard. 3 Going out again at about nine in the morning,[b] he saw others standing idle in the marketplace, 4 and he said to them, ‘You too go into the vineyard, and I will give you whatever is fair.’ So off they went. 5 He went out again around noon and again around three in the afternoon, and did the same. 6 About five o’clock in the afternoon he went out again and found others standing around. He asked them, ‘Why are you standing here idle all day long?’ 7 ‘Because no one has hired us,’ they answered. He told them, ‘You also go to the vineyard.’ 8 When evening came, the owner of the vineyard said to his manager, ‘Call the laborers and pay them their wages, starting with the last and ending with the first.’ 9 Those hired at about five o’clock came, and each received a full day’s wage. 10 So when the first came, they supposed they would receive more; but each of them, too, received a day’s wage. 11 On receiving it, they began grumbling against the landowner: 12 ‘These latecomers put in one hour, and you have made them equal to us, who have borne the burden of the day and the scorching heat.’ 13 But he answered one of them, ‘Friend, I am doing you no wrong. Did you not agree with me on a day’s wage? 14 Take what is yours and go. I choose to give this last man the same as I give you. 15 Do I not have the right to do what I want with what is mine?

Are you envious because I am generous?'[c] 16 So the last will be first,
and the first last."[d] 17 As Jesus was going up to Jerusalem, he took the Twelve aside by themselves, and on the road he said to them, 18 "Listen: we are going up to Jerusalem, and the Son of Man will be handed over to the chief priests and scribes. They will sentence him to death 19 and hand him on to the Gentiles, who will make sport of him, whip him and crucify him; and on the third day he will be raised up." 20 Then the mother of Zebedee's sons came to him with her sons, bowing down and asking a favor of him. 21 "What would you like?" he asked. She answered, "Give your word that in your kingdom these two sons of mine will sit beside you, the one on your right and the other on your left." 22 Jesus answered, "You do not know what you are asking. Can you drink the cup[e] that I am about to drink?" "We can," they said.[f] 23 He told them, "You will drink my cup, yes; but the seats at my right and left are not mine to give. They are for those for whom my Father has made them ready." 24 When the other ten heard about this, they were indignant with the two brothers. 25 But Jesus called them to him and said, "You know that the rulers of the Gentiles lord it over them, and their great men make them feel their authority. 26 It must not be like that among you.
Whoever wants to become great among you must be your servant, 27 and whoever wishes to be first among you must be your slave, 28 just as the Son of Man did not come to be served but to serve, and to give his life as a ransom[g] for many."
29 As they made their way out of Jericho,[h] a great crowd went along with him. 30 Two blind men sitting by the roadside heard that Jesus was passing and shouted, "Lord, Son of David, have pity on us!" 31 The people scolded them and told them to hush, but they cried out even more loudly, "Lord, Son of David, have mercy on us!" 32 Jesus came to a halt and called out to them, "What would you have me do for you?" 33 "Lord," they answered, "we want our eyes opened." 34 Jesus was filled with pity and touched their eyes, and at once their sight came back, and they followed him.

Notes

- a (20:2) The usual day's wage: literally "a denarius for the day." The denarius was a Roman silver coin, the normal daily pay of a laborer; so also in verses 9, 10 and 13.
- b (20:3) About nine in the morning: literally "about the third hour." The day was counted from sunrise (about 6 a.m.), so the sixth hour was about noon, the ninth about 3 p.m., and the eleventh (verses 6 and 9) about 5 p.m.
- c (20:15) Is your eye evil because I am good: an idiom. An "evil eye" means envy or stinginess (compare 6:23), so: "Are you envious because I am generous?"
- d (20:16) Many manuscripts add, from 22:14, "For many are called, but few are chosen"; the Westcott–Hort text, with Sinaiticus and Vaticanus, lacks it.
- e (20:22) Cup: a figure for suffering appointed by God (compare 26:39; Isa 51:17; Jer 25:15).
- f (20:22) Many manuscripts add, from Mark 10:38–39, "or be baptized with the baptism with which I am baptized," and in verse 23 "and be baptized with the baptism with which I am baptized"; the Westcott–Hort text, with Sinaiticus, Vaticanus and others, lacks both.
- g (20:28) Ransom: Greek lytron, the price paid to free a slave or captive. Compare Isa 53:10–12.
- h (20:29) Jericho: an ancient city near the Jordan, about 15 miles (24 km) northeast of Jerusalem, rebuilt by Herod the Great. The name may mean "moon city" or "fragrant."

Chapter 21

1 As they approached Jerusalem and reached Bethphage[a] on the Mount of Olives,[b] Jesus dispatched two of his disciples 2 and told them, "Go to the village ahead of you. Right when you enter it, you will find a tied donkey and a colt with her. Untie them and bring them to me.
3 And if anyone says anything to you, you shall say, 'The Lord needs them,' and he will send them at once." 4 All this happened so that the word spoken by the prophet might be fulfilled: 5 "Say to the daughter of Zion,[c] 'See, your king is coming to you, gentle, and riding on a donkey, on a colt, the foal of a beast of burden.' "[d] 6 The disciples went and did as Jesus had directed them. 7 They led the donkey and the colt back, laid their cloaks over them, and he took his seat on them.[e] 8 Very many in the crowd laid their own cloaks on the road, and others were cutting branches off the trees and laying them on the road. 9 The crowds that went ahead of him and those that followed kept shouting, "Hosanna[f] to the Son of David! Blessed is he who comes in the name of the Lord![g] Hosanna in the highest heaven!" 10 When he entered Jerusalem, the whole city was shaken. "Who is this?" people asked.

11 The crowds answered, "This is the prophet Jesus, from Nazareth in Galilee."
12 Jesus entered the temple[h] and threw out everyone doing business there, sellers and buyers alike; he tipped over the money changers' tables and the chairs of the dove sellers.[i] 13 He said to them, "It is written, 'My house shall be called a house of prayer,'[j] but you are making it a den of robbers."[k] 14 Blind and lame people came to him in the temple, and he healed them. 15 But the chief priests and the scribes were incensed when they saw the marvels he performed and heard the children in the temple calling out, "Hosanna to the Son of David!" 16 and asked him, "Do you hear what they are saying?" Jesus answered, "Yes. Have you never read: 'From the mouths of children and infants you have prepared praise'?"[l] 17 And leaving them, he went out of the city to Bethany[m] and spent the night there.
18 Early in the morning, as he was going back to the city, he was hungry. 19 Seeing a fig tree by the road, he went to it and found nothing on it but leaves. He said to it, "May fruit never come from you again!"
And the fig tree withered at once. 20 The disciples were astonished at the sight. "How did the fig tree dry up all at once?" they asked. 21 Jesus said in reply, "Amen, I tell you, if you have faith and are not of two minds, you will do not only what I did to the fig tree; you could even tell this mountain, 'Up with you, and into the sea!' and so it would be. 22 And whatever you ask for in prayer, believing, you will receive." 23 When he had entered the temple, the chief priests and the elders of the people came to him as he was teaching and said, "By what authority are you doing these things, and who gave you this authority?" 24 Jesus replied, "I have one question for you as well. Answer me, and I will tell you on what authority I act as I do. 25 John's baptism: where did it come from? From heaven, or from human beings?" They argued it out among themselves: "If we say, 'From heaven,' he will say to us, ‘Why then did you not believe him?’ 26 And if we say, ‘Of human origin,’ we have the people to fear, since everyone takes John for a prophet.” 27 So their answer to Jesus was, “We cannot tell.” He in turn said to them, “Then neither am I telling you on what authority I act as I do.

28 “Now tell me what you think. A man who had two sons went to the first and said, ‘My son, go and put in a day’s work in the vineyard.’ 29 ‘I am going, sir,’ he replied; but he never went. 30 The father went to the second son and said the same thing. He answered, ‘I will not,’ but afterward he changed his mind and went. 31 Which of the two did what his father wanted?” “The second,”[n] they answered. Jesus said to them, “Amen, I tell you, tax collectors and prostitutes are entering the kingdom of God ahead of you. 32 For John came to you showing the way of righteousness, and you put no faith in him; yet tax collectors and prostitutes put their faith in him. You saw that, and even so you did not repent afterward and believe him.
33 “Hear another parable. A certain householder planted a vineyard, hedged it about, hollowed out a winepress in it and put up a tower.[o]
Then he rented it out to growers and left the country. 34 As the season of fruit came near, he sent his slaves to the growers to receive his share of the crop. 35 But the growers seized his slaves; one they beat, another they killed, another they stoned. 36 He sent still other servants, a larger group than before, and the tenants treated these in the same way. 37 Last of all he sent them his son. ‘My son they will respect,’ he said. 38 But when the growers saw the son, they said to one another, ‘This is the heir. Come, let us kill him and seize his inheritance.’ 39
And they took him, threw him out of the vineyard, and killed him. 40
So when the owner of the vineyard comes, what will he do to those growers?” 41 They answered, “He will put those villains to a miserable death and rent the vineyard out to other growers, who will hand over his share of the fruit when it is due.” 42 Jesus said to them, “Did you never read in the Scriptures, ‘The stone the builders threw aside has been made the head of the corner;[p] this is the Lord’s doing, and a wonder in our eyes’?[q] 43 That is why I say to you that God’s kingdom will be taken from you and handed to a nation that yields its fruit.

44 [Anyone who falls on this stone will be shattered, and anyone on whom it falls will be ground to powder.][r] 45 Hearing his parables, the chief priests and the Pharisees knew that he was talking about them.
46 They were eager to lay hands on him, but were afraid of the crowds, who held him to be a prophet.

Notes

- a (21:1) Bethphage: "house of unripe figs," a village on the Mount of Olives near Bethany.
- b (21:1) Mount of Olives: the ridge east of Jerusalem across the Kidron Valley. Compare Zech 14:4.
- c (21:5) Daughter of Zion: a poetic name for Jerusalem and its people. Zion was the hill of the city of David.
- d (21:5) Isa 62:11; Zech 9:9.
- e (21:7) He sat on them: that is, on the cloaks.
- f (21:9) Hosanna: from Hebrew hoshi'ah na', "save, please!" (Ps 118:25), which by this time had become a shout of praise.
- g (21:9) Ps 118:26. "The Lord" translates kyrios, which in the Hebrew is the divine name Yahweh.
- h (21:12) The temple: Greek hieron, the whole temple complex. The selling and money changing took place in the outer court, the Court of the Gentiles. Many manuscripts read "the temple of God"; the Westcott–Hort text, with Sinaiticus and Vaticanus, reads "the temple."
- i (21:12) Money changers … doves: the temple tax had to be paid in Tyrian silver, so other coins were exchanged; doves were the offering of the poor (Lev 5:7; 12:8).
- j (21:13) Isa 56:7.
- k (21:13) Jer 7:11.
- l (21:16) Ps 8:2 (8:3 in Hebrew), quoted in the wording of the Greek Old Testament; the Hebrew reads "you have established strength."
- m (21:17) Bethany: a village about 2 miles (3 km) from Jerusalem on the far side of the Mount of Olives. The name may mean "house of the poor" or "house of Ananiah."
- n (21:31) The second: literally "the latter." The manuscripts differ widely in verses 29–31. Many read the order: the first son says "I will not" but goes, and the second says "I will, sir" but does not go, with the answer "the first." The Westcott–Hort text follows Vaticanus and others in the order given here. Codex Bezae (D) has the father's will done by the son who says no, yet answers "the latter," which makes little sense. Scholarly review recommended.
- o (21:33) Isa 5:1–2.
- p (21:42) The head of the corner: either the foundation stone at a corner or the capstone.
- q (21:42) Ps 118:22–23. "The Lord" is Yahweh in the Hebrew.

- r (21:44) Verse 44 is absent from Codex Bezae (D), some Old Latin manuscripts, and early writers, and may have been added from Luke 20:18. It is present in Sinaiticus and Vaticanus, and the Westcott–Hort text prints it in single brackets as doubtful. It is printed here in brackets. Compare Isa 8:14–15; Dan 2:34–35, 44–45.

Chapter 22

1 Once more Jesus spoke to them in parables. He said: 2 "Here is a picture of the kingdom of heaven: a king held a marriage feast in honor of his son. 3 He dispatched his slaves to call the guests who had been invited to the feast, but they refused to come. 4 Then he sent other slaves, telling them, 'Say to the invited guests: Look, my dinner is prepared; my oxen and fattened cattle are slaughtered, and everything stands ready. Come to the wedding.' 5 But they shrugged it off and went their ways, this one to his farm and that one to his business, 6 while the rest laid hold of his slaves, mistreated them, and killed them. 7 The king was furious. He sent his troops, destroyed those murderers, and set their city on fire. 8 Then he said to his slaves, 'The wedding is ready, but the invited guests did not deserve it. 9 So go out to where the roads leave the city[a] and invite to the wedding as many as you can find.' 10 Out went those slaves into the roads and brought in everyone they came across, bad and good alike, and the wedding hall was crowded with guests.
11 "When the king came in to view the guests, he caught sight of a man there who had on no wedding garment. 12 'My friend,' he asked, 'how did you get in here without wedding clothes?' The man had no answer. 13 Then the king told his attendants, 'Bind his hands and feet and throw him out into the darkness, where there will be weeping and grinding of teeth.' 14 For many are called, but few are chosen." 15 Then the Pharisees went and laid plans to trap him in what he said.
16 They sent their disciples to him along with the Herodians,[b] who said, "Teacher, we know that you are truthful and teach the way of God in truth, and you defer to no one, for you pay no regard to a person's standing. 17 So give us your opinion: is it lawful to pay the poll tax[c] to Caesar, or not?" 18 Jesus saw through their malice and said, "Hypocrites! Why are you putting me to the test? 19 Let me see the coin you pay the tax with." And they brought him a silver coin.[d] 20

He asked them, “Whose likeness is this, and whose inscription?” 21 “Caesar’s,” they told him. He said to them, “Then pay to Caesar what belongs to Caesar, and pay to God what belongs to God.” 22 Hearing this, they were astonished; and leaving him, they departed.
23 That same day some Sadducees came to him, who say there is no resurrection,[e] and they put a question to him: 24 “Teacher, Moses said, ‘If a man dies without children, his brother is to marry the widow and raise up offspring for his brother.’[f] 25 Now there were seven brothers among us. The first married and died, and having no offspring, he left his wife to his brother. 26 So too the second and the third, all the way to the seventh. 27 Last of all the woman died. 28 In the resurrection, then, whose wife will she be of the seven? For they all had her.” 29 Jesus answered them, “You are going astray, because you know neither the Scriptures nor the power of God. 30 In the resurrection people neither marry nor are given in marriage, but are like angels in heaven. 31 And as for the resurrection of the dead, have you not read what God said to you: 32 ‘I am the God of Abraham, the God of Isaac and the God of Jacob’?[g] He is not a God of dead people, but of living ones.” 33 When the crowds heard this, they were astounded at his teaching.
34 When the Pharisees heard that he had silenced the Sadducees, they gathered together, 35 and a lawyer[h] among them tried to trip him up by asking, 36 “Teacher, which commandment in the Law is greatest?” 37 Jesus said to him, “ ‘Love the Lord your God with all your heart, with all your soul, and with all your mind.’[i] 38 This is the great and first commandment. 39 And there is a second resembling it: ‘You shall love your neighbor as yourself.’[j] 40 On these two commandments the whole Law and the Prophets hang.” 41 While the Pharisees were gathered together, Jesus asked them a question: 42 “How do you see the Messiah? Whose descendant is he?” “David’s,” they answered. 43 He asked them, “Then how can David, inspired by the Spirit, call him Lord? For he says, 44 ‘The Lord said to my Lord, Sit at my right hand, until I put your enemies under your feet’?[k] 45 If, then, David calls him Lord, in what sense is he David’s son?” 46 No one was able to give him a word in answer, and from that day no one dared to question him any further.

Notes

- a (22:9) Where the roads leave the city: literally "the outlets of the roads," where the city streets ran out into the open country, or the crossroads.
- b (22:16) Herodians: supporters of the dynasty of Herod, and so of cooperation with Rome.
- c (22:17) Poll tax: Greek kēnsos (Latin census), the head tax paid by every adult to Rome, bitterly resented by many Jews.
- d (22:19) A silver coin: literally "a denarius," a Roman silver coin worth a day's wage, bearing the image of the emperor Tiberius and an inscription calling him son of the divine Augustus.
- e (22:23) Sadducees: see 3:7 note. They accepted only the Law of Moses as binding and denied a future resurrection (Acts 23:8).
- f (22:24) Deut 25:5–6; compare Gen 38:8. This is the custom of "levirate" marriage.
- g (22:32) Exod 3:6, 15.
- h (22:35) A lawyer: that is, an expert in the Law of Moses; Greek nomikos, a specialist in the Law of Moses, much the same as a scribe. A few witnesses omit the word.
- i (22:37) Deut 6:5, where "the Lord" is Yahweh in the Hebrew. The Hebrew has "heart ... soul ... strength"; Matthew gives "mind" for the last.
- j (22:39) Lev 19:18.
- k (22:44) Ps 110:1. In the Hebrew, "The Lord said" is "Yahweh said"; "my Lord" is adoni, "my master." Many manuscripts read "a footstool for your feet," as in the Greek Old Testament.

Chapter 23

1 Then Jesus addressed the crowds and his disciples: 2 "The scribes and the Pharisees sit in the chair of Moses.[a] 3 So do whatever they tell you, and keep it; but do not imitate their actions, for they talk but do not act. 4 They tie up heavy loads and pile them on people's shoulders, but they themselves will not lift a finger to shift them. 5 All their deeds they do to be noticed by others; they make their phylacteries[b] broad and the tassels on their garments long; 6 they love the places of honor at banquets and the front seats in the synagogues, 7 and being greeted respectfully in the marketplaces, and being called Rabbi[c] by people.
8 You, though, are not to be addressed as Rabbi; your teacher is One, and all of you are brothers. 9 And call no one on earth your father, for you have one Father, the heavenly one. 10 Nor must you be called leaders, for you have one leader, the Messiah. 11 The greatest among you will be your servant. 12 Whoever exalts himself will be humbled, and whoever humbles himself will be exalted.

13 "Woe to you, scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites! You lock people out of the kingdom of heaven. You do not enter yourselves, and when others are going in, you will not let them. 14 [d] 15 "Woe to you, scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites! You travel over sea and dry land to make a single convert,[e] and when he becomes one, you make him twice as much a son of Gehenna as yourselves.
16 "Woe to you, blind guides, who say, 'If anyone swears by the sanctuary,[f] it means nothing; but if anyone swears by the gold of the sanctuary, he is bound by his oath.' 17 Blind fools! Which is greater, the gold, or the sanctuary that made the gold sacred? 18 And you say,
'If anyone swears by the altar, it means nothing; but if anyone swears by the gift that is on it, he is bound.' 19 Blind people! Which is greater, the gift, or the altar that makes the gift sacred? 20 So whoever swears by the altar swears by it and by everything on it; 21 and to swear by the sanctuary is to swear by it and by the one who lives in it; 22 and whoever swears by heaven swears by the throne of God and by him who sits on it.
23 "How terrible for you, scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites! You give a tenth of your mint, dill and cumin,[g] but you have ignored the more important matters of the Law: justice, mercy and faithfulness. You should have done these things without ignoring the others. 24 Blind guides! You strain out a gnat and gulp down a camel![h] 25 "Woe to you, scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites! You clean the outside of the cup and the dish, but inside they are full of plunder and self-indulgence. 26 Blind Pharisee! First clean the inside of the cup [and the dish],[i] so that the outside of it may become clean as well.
27 "Woe to you, scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites! You resemble tombs coated with whitewash,[j] handsome to look at from outside, but full within of the bones of the dead and of all that is unclean. 28 In the same way you too look righteous to people on the outside, but inside you are full of hypocrisy and lawlessness.
29 "How terrible for you, scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites! You build tombs for the prophets and decorate the graves of the righteous, 30 and you say, ‘If we had lived in the time of our ancestors, we would never have taken part with them in killing the prophets.’ 31 So you testify against yourselves that you are the sons of those who murdered the prophets. 32 Go on, then, fill up the measure your fathers began! 33 You snakes, you brood of vipers, how will you escape being sentenced to Gehenna? 34 For this reason, look, I am sending you prophets and wise men and scribes. Some of them you will kill and crucify, and some you will flog in your synagogues and hunt from town to town; 35 so that upon you may come all the righteous blood shed on the earth, from the blood of righteous Abel to the blood of Zechariah son of Barachiah,[k] whom you murdered between the sanctuary and the altar. 36 Amen, I tell you, all these things will come upon this generation.

37 “Jerusalem, Jerusalem, the city that kills the prophets and stones those who are sent to her! How often have I longed to gather your children together, as a hen gathers her chicks under her wings, and you were not willing. 38 Look, your house is left to you.[l] 39 For I tell you, you will not see me from now on until you say, ‘Blessed is he who comes in the name of the Lord.’ ”[m]

Notes

- a (23:2) The chair of Moses: the seat of authority to teach and interpret the Law. Synagogues had a stone seat of this name.
- b (23:5) Phylacteries: small leather boxes containing passages of Scripture (Exod 13:1–16; Deut 6:4–9; 11:13–21), worn on the forehead and arm during prayer (compare Deut 6:8). Tassels: see Num 15:38–39 and 9:20 note.
- c (23:7) Rabbi: Hebrew/Aramaic for “my great one,” “my master,” used as a title of respect for a teacher.
- d (23:14) The Westcott–Hort text and the earliest manuscripts (including Sinaiticus, Vaticanus, Bezae and others) do not include verse 14; the number is kept here only to preserve the traditional verse numbering. Many later manuscripts add, from Mark 12:40 and Luke 20:47 (and some place it before verse 13), “Woe to you, scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites! For you devour widows’ houses and for a pretense make long prayers; therefore you will receive the greater condemnation.”
- e (23:15) Convert: Greek prosēlytos, a Gentile who had accepted circumcision and the Law of Moses.
- f (23:16) Sanctuary: Greek naos, the temple building itself, as distinct from the whole complex (hieron); also in verses 17, 21 and 35.

- g (23:23) Mint and dill and cumin: garden herbs. The Law required a tenth of produce (Lev 27:30; Deut 14:22–23); the Pharisees applied it even to small herbs.
- h (23:24) Gnat … camel: a joke. Both were unclean animals (Lev 11:4, 20–23); in Aramaic the words sound alike (qalma, gamla).
- i (23:26) And the dish: printed in brackets in the Westcott–Hort text as doubtful; Codex Bezae and a few other witnesses omit it.
- j (23:27) Whitewashed tombs: tombs were whitewashed so that people would not touch them unawares and become ritually unclean (Num 19:16).
- k (23:35) Abel … Zechariah: Abel is the first murder victim in the Bible (Gen 4:8), and Zechariah son of Jehoiada the last in the Hebrew order of the books, which ends with Chronicles (2 Chr 24:20–22). Matthew's "son of Barachiah" may reflect the prophet Zechariah (Zech 1:1). Sinaiticus (first hand) omits "son of Barachiah." Abel means "breath," "vapor"; Zechariah means "Yahweh remembers."
- l (23:38) Left to you: many manuscripts add "desolate," as does the Westcott–Hort margin; Vaticanus and a few others lack it. Compare Jer 12:7; 22:5.
- m (23:39) Ps 118:26, where "the Lord" is Yahweh in the Hebrew.

Chapter 24

1 As Jesus came out of the temple and was going on his way, his disciples approached to direct his attention to the temple buildings. 2 He replied, "You see all this, do you not? Amen, I tell you, here not one stone will be left standing on another; every stone will be torn down." 3 While he was seated on the Mount of Olives, the disciples came to him by themselves. "Tell us," they said, "when is this to be, and what sign will mark your coming[a] and the close of the age?" 4 Jesus answered them, "See that no one leads you astray. 5 Many will come using my name and claiming, 'I am the Messiah,' and they will deceive many. 6 You will hear of wars and rumors of wars. See that you are not alarmed; these things must happen, but the end is not yet. 7 Nation will rise against nation and kingdom against kingdom,[b] and there will be famines and earthquakes in one place after another. 8 All this is only the first of the labor pains.[c] 9 "Then they will hand you over to be tormented and will kill you, and you will be hated by all nations because of my name. 10 At that time many will be tripped up; they will hand each other over and hate each other. 11 Many false prophets will arise and lead many astray. 12 And because lawlessness will increase, the love of most people will grow cold. 13 But whoever endures to the end will be saved. 14 And this good news of the kingdom will be proclaimed throughout the whole inhabited world as a testimony to all the nations, and then the end will come.

15 “So when you see the desolating abomination[d] spoken of by Daniel the prophet standing in the holy place (let the reader understand), 16 then let those who are in Judea escape into the mountains. 17 Anyone on the housetop must not go down to take anything out of his house, 18 and anyone in the field must not turn back to fetch his cloak. 19 How dreadful it will be in those days for expectant mothers and for women with nursing babies! 20 Pray that your flight may not come in winter or on a Sabbath. 21 For then there will be great distress, such as has not been from the beginning of the world until now, and never will be again.[e] 22 Unless those days were shortened, no living thing would be rescued; but for the elect’s sake those days will be shortened. 23 At that time, if someone tells you, ‘The Messiah is here!’ or ‘He is over there!’ put no faith in it. 24 For false messiahs and false prophets will arise and produce great signs and wonders, so as to lead astray, if possible, even the chosen. 25 There, I have told you beforehand. 26 So if people tell you, ‘He is out in the wilderness,’ stay where you are; if they say, ‘He is in the back rooms,’ put no faith in it. 27 Like lightning that flashes out of the east and lights up the sky to the west, so the coming of the Son of Man will be. 28 Where the corpse lies, the vultures[f] flock together.
29 “Immediately after the distress of those days the sun will be darkened, and the moon will not give its light, and the stars will fall from the sky, and the powers of the heavens will be shaken.[g] 30 Then the sign of the Son of Man will appear in heaven, and then all the tribes of the earth will mourn,[h] and they will see the Son of Man coming on the clouds of heaven with power and great glory.[i] 31 With a great trumpet blast[j] he will send forth his angels, and they will gather his elect from the four winds, from one edge of the heavens to the other.
32 “Let the fig tree teach you its lesson. When its branch turns soft and its leaves sprout, you recognize that summer is close. 33 In the same way, when you see all this happening, recognize that he is close, right at the door. 34 Amen, I tell you, this generation will not pass away until all these things take place. 35 Heaven and earth will pass away, but my words will never pass away.

36 "As for that day and hour, nobody knows it, not the angels of heaven, not the Son,[k] only the Father. 37 For as the days of Noah were, so will be the coming of the Son of Man. 38 For as in those days before the flood they were eating and drinking, marrying and giving in marriage, until the day Noah entered the ark, 39 and they were unaware until the flood came and carried every one of them off; that is how the Son of Man's coming will be.[l] 40 Then two men will be in the field; one is taken and one is left. 41 Two women will be grinding at the mill; one is taken and one is left. 42 Stay alert, therefore, since you cannot know the day of your Lord's coming. 43 Understand this: if the householder had known in which part of the night[m] the thief would come, he would have kept watch and not allowed his house to be dug through. 44 That is why you also must stand ready; the Son of Man will come at an hour when you are not looking for him.
45 "Who, then, is the trustworthy and prudent slave, set by his master over the household staff to give them their rations at the right time? 46 Happy that slave, if his master finds him so engaged when he arrives!
47 Amen, I tell you, his master will make him steward of everything he owns. 48 But suppose that slave is wicked and thinks, 'My master is taking his time,' 49 and he starts beating his fellow slaves and feasting and drinking with drunkards; 50 then that slave's master will arrive on a day he does not foresee and at an hour he is not aware of, 51 and cut him to pieces,[n] and give him a place among the hypocrites, where there will be weeping and grinding of teeth.

Notes

- a (24:3) Coming: Greek parousia, "presence," "arrival," used of the visit of a king or high official; also in verses 27, 37 and 39.
- b (24:7) Compare Isa 19:2; 2 Chr 15:6.
- c (24:8) Labor pains: a common image for the sufferings expected to come before the age to come.
- d (24:15) The desolating abomination: traditionally "the abomination of desolation," a sacrilege that makes the holy place desolate. Dan 9:27; 11:31; 12:11. Daniel refers to the pagan altar set up in the temple by Antiochus IV in 167 BC (1 Macc 1:54).

- e (24:21) Compare Dan 12:1; Joel 2:2.
- f (24:28) Vultures: Greek aetoi, usually "eagles," but here carrion birds.
- g (24:29) Isa 13:10; 34:4; compare Ezek 32:7; Joel 2:10.
- h (24:30) Compare Zech 12:10–14.
- i (24:30) Dan 7:13–14.
- j (24:31) A great trumpet blast: compare Isa 27:13. Some manuscripts read "a trumpet and a loud sound."
- k (24:36) Nor the Son: so the Westcott–Hort text, with Sinaiticus, Vaticanus (first hand), Bezae and others; most later manuscripts lack these words, perhaps because they seemed to limit the Son's knowledge. Compare Mark 13:32.
- l (24:39) Gen 6:5–7:23.
- m (24:43) In which part of the night: literally "in which watch." The night was divided into watches (see 14:25 note).
- n (24:51) Cut him in pieces: or "punish him severely."

Chapter 25

1 "At that time the kingdom of heaven will be compared to ten young bridesmaids[a] who took their lamps and set out to meet the groom. 2 Five of them were foolish, and five were sensible. 3 The foolish ones took their lamps but brought no oil along; 4 the sensible ones took flasks of oil with their lamps. 5 Since the bridegroom was delayed, they all nodded off and slept. 6 But at midnight a shout rang out:
'The bridegroom is here! Come out to meet him!' 7 Then all those young women woke and trimmed their lamps. 8 The foolish ones said to the sensible ones, 'Let us have some of your oil; our lamps are going out.' 9 But the sensible ones answered, 'No; there may not be enough for both us and you. Go instead to the dealers and buy some for yourselves.' 10 While they were away buying it, the bridegroom arrived, and those who were ready went in with him to the wedding feast, and the door was shut. 11 Later the other young women came too. 'Sir, sir,' they said, 'open up for us!' 12 But he answered, 'Amen, I say to you, you are strangers to me.' 13 Keep watch, then, for you know neither the day nor the hour.[b] 14 "It is like a man who was going abroad. He summoned his slaves and placed his wealth in their hands. 15 To one he gave five bags of silver,[c] to another two, to another one, each according to his own capability; and he went away. At once 16 the one who had received the five bags went and put them to work, and gained five more. 17 In the same way the one with the two gained two more. 18 But the slave who had been given one bag went away and dug in the earth and buried his master's money there. 19 After a long time the master of those slaves came back and settled accounts with them. 20 The one who had received the five bags came forward bringing five more. 'Sir,' he said, 'you entrusted five bags of silver to me; see, I have gained five more.' 21 His master said, 'Excellent, good and faithful servant! You were trustworthy with a little, so I will put you in charge of much. Come and share your master's happiness.' 22 The one with the two bags also came forward.

'Sir,' he said, 'you entrusted two bags to me; see, I have gained two more.' 23 His master said, 'Excellent, good and faithful servant! You were trustworthy with a little, so I will put you in charge of much.
Come and share your master's happiness.' 24 Then the one who had received the single bag came forward too. 'Sir,' he said, 'I knew you to be a hard man, reaping where you did not sow and gathering where you did not scatter seed. 25 I was frightened, so I went off and buried your silver in the earth. There it is; take back what belongs to you.' 26 But his master answered, 'You wicked, lazy servant! You say you knew that I harvest where I never planted and gather where I never scattered seed? 27 Then you ought to have deposited my money with the bankers, and on my return I would have got back what was mine with interest. 28 Take the bag from him, then, and give it to the one who has ten. 29 To all who have, more will be given, until they have plenty; but those who have nothing will lose even what they have.
30 And as for this good-for-nothing slave, throw him out into the darkness outside, where people will weep and grind their teeth.' 31 "When the Son of Man comes in his glory, and all the angels with him, then he will sit on his glorious throne.[d] 32 All the nations will be gathered before him, and he will separate them one from another, as a shepherd separates the sheep from the goats. 33 He will place the sheep on his right and the goats on his left. 34 Then the King will say to those at his right, 'Come, you whom my Father has blessed, take possession of the kingdom prepared for you since the world was founded. 35 For I was hungry and you gave me food; I was thirsty and you gave me drink; I was a stranger and you took me in; 36 I was naked and you clothed me; I was sick and you looked after me; I was in prison and you came to me.' 37 Then the righteous will answer him, 'Lord, when did we see you hungry and feed you, or thirsty and give you drink? 38 When did we see you a stranger and take you in, or naked and clothe you? 39 When did we see you sick or in prison and come to you?' 40 And the King will answer them, 'Amen, I tell you, whenever you did it for one of the least of these brothers of mine, you did it for me.'

41 "Then he will say to those at his left, 'Go away from me, you who are cursed, into the everlasting fire prepared for the devil and his angels.
42 For I was hungry and you gave me no food; I was thirsty and you gave me no drink; 43 I was a stranger and you did not welcome me in; I was naked and you gave me no clothes; I was sick and in prison and you did not visit me.' 44 Then they too will answer, 'Lord, when did we see you hungry or thirsty or a stranger or naked or sick or in prison, and did not serve you?' 45 He will reply, 'Amen, I tell you, every time you failed to do it for one of these, even the least, you failed to do it for me.' 46 And these will go away into everlasting punishment, but the righteous into everlasting life."[e]

Notes

- a (25:1) Young bridesmaids: literally "virgins," unmarried girls who would escort the bridegroom to the wedding feast with torches or lamps.
- b (25:13) Many manuscripts add "in which the Son of Man is coming"; the Westcott–Hort text, with the earliest manuscripts, lacks it.
- c (25:15) Bags of silver: literally "talents"; so throughout this parable. A talent was a large weight of silver, about 75 pounds (34 kg), worth about 6,000 days' wages for a laborer, nearly twenty years' pay. Even the one bag entrusted to the third slave was a fortune. (From this parable the English word talent came to mean a natural gift.)
- d (25:31) Compare Zech 14:5; Dan 7:9–14.
- e (25:46) Compare Dan 12:2.

Chapter 26

1 When Jesus had brought all these sayings to an end, he said to his disciples, 2 "You know that the Passover[a] is two days away, and the Son of Man will be handed over to be crucified."

3 Then the chief priests and the elders of the people met together in the courtyard of the high priest, whose name was Caiaphas,[b] 4 and they laid plans to seize Jesus by cunning and put him to death. 5 Yet they said, "It must not be at the feast, or the people may riot." 6 While Jesus was staying in Bethany at the home of Simon, known as the leper,[c] 7 a woman approached him with an alabaster jar[d] of very expensive perfume, and as he was reclining at table she poured it over his head. 8 The disciples were indignant when they saw it. "What is the point of this waste?" they said. 9 "That perfume might have fetched a high price,[e] and the proceeds could have gone to the poor." 10 Jesus was aware of it and said to them, "Why are you troubling the woman? It is a beautiful thing she has done for me. 11 The poor you have with you always,[f] but me you will not always have. 12 When she poured this ointment over my body, she did it to make me ready for burial. 13 Amen, I tell you, wherever this gospel is preached in the whole world, what she has done will be told in memory of her." 14 It was then that one of the Twelve, called Judas Iscariot, went off to the chief priests 15 and said, "What are you willing to give me if I hand him over to you?" They weighed out thirty silver coins[g] for him. 16 And from then on he kept looking for a good opportunity to betray him.
17 On the first day of the festival of Unleavened Bread[h] the disciples came to Jesus and asked, "Where would you like us to make preparations for you to eat the Passover?" 18 He told them, "Go into the city to So-and-so and say to him, 'The Teacher says: My appointed time is at hand. I mean to keep the Passover with my disciples at your house.' " 19 The disciples did just as Jesus had instructed them, and they prepared the Passover.
20 When evening came, he took his place at table with the Twelve.[i] 21 While they were at the meal, he said, "Amen, I tell you, one of you is going to betray me." 22 They were deeply distressed, and one after another they began to ask him, "Surely not I, Lord?" 23 He answered, "He who dipped his hand in the dish together with me, he will betray me. 24 The Son of Man goes his way as it is written of him, but alas for that man by whom the Son of Man is betrayed! It would have been better for that man if he had never been born." 25 Judas, who was betraying him, answered, "Surely not I, Rabbi?" He said to him, "You have said it."[j]

26 During the meal, Jesus took a loaf of bread, gave thanks, broke it, and gave it to his disciples. "Take it and eat," he said, "this is my body." 27 And taking a cup and giving thanks, he gave it to them, saying, "Drink from it, every one of you; 28 for this is my blood of the covenant,[k] poured out for many for the forgiveness of sins. 29 I tell you, I will not drink of this fruit of the vine again until that day when I drink it new with you in my Father's kingdom." 30 And after singing the hymn,[l] they went out to the Mount of Olives.

31 Then Jesus said to them, "This very night all of you will stumble because of me, for it is written, 'I will strike the shepherd, and the sheep of the flock will be scattered.'[m] 32 But once I am raised up, I will lead the way before you into Galilee." 33 Peter answered him, "Though all the others stumble because of you, I will never stumble." 34 Jesus said to him, "Amen, I tell you, tonight, before the rooster crows, you will deny me three times." 35 "Even if I must die along with you," Peter told him, "disown you I will not!" Every one of the disciples said the same.

36 Then Jesus came with them to a plot of ground named Gethsemane,[n] and he told the disciples, "Stay sitting here while I go yonder to pray." 37 He took with him Peter and the two sons of Zebedee, and he began to be grieved and deeply troubled. 38 And he told them, "My soul is ringed about with grief, enough to kill me.[o] Remain here and keep awake with me." 39 He went on a little farther and fell facedown, praying, "My Father, if it can be, take this cup from me. Yet let your wish be done, not mine." 40 Then he came to the disciples and found them sleeping. He said to Peter, "So, were you not able to keep watch with me for one hour? 41 Keep watch and pray that you may not come into testing. The spirit is eager, but the flesh is weak." 42 He went away again, a second time, and prayed, "My Father, if this cup cannot be taken from me unless I drink it, then let your will be done." 43 And coming again he found them sleeping, for their eyes were heavy. 44 So leaving them again, he went away and prayed a third time, saying the same words once more. 45 Then he came to the disciples and said to them, "Are you still sleeping and resting?[p] Look, the hour has come near, and the Son of Man is being handed over into the hands of sinners. 46 Get up, let us go. Look, my betrayer has come near."

47 While he was still speaking, Judas, one of the Twelve, arrived, and with him a large crowd with swords and clubs, from the chief priests and elders of the people. 48 The betrayer had given them a sign: "The one I kiss is the man; seize him." 49 He went straight up to Jesus and said, "Greetings, Rabbi!" and kissed him warmly. 50 "Friend," Jesus said to him, "do what you are here to do."[q] Then the others stepped forward, laid hold of Jesus and arrested him. 51 Just then one of those who were with Jesus reached for his sword, pulled it out, and struck the high priest's servant, cutting off his ear. 52 Jesus told him, "Return your sword to its sheath. Those who reach for the sword will die by the sword. 53 Or do you suppose I could not call on my Father, and he would immediately send me upward of twelve legions[r] of angels? 54 But then how could the Scriptures come true, that this is how it has to be?" 55 At that time Jesus said to the crowds, "Am I a bandit, that you have come out with swords and clubs to take me? Every day I sat teaching in the temple, and you never laid a hand on me. 56 But all this has taken place so that the writings of the prophets might be fulfilled." Then all the disciples deserted him and fled.
57 Those who had seized Jesus led him away to Caiaphas the high priest, where the scribes and the elders had gathered. 58 Peter followed at a distance as far as the courtyard of the high priest. Once inside, he sat down with the guards to see how things would turn out. 59 Now the chief priests and the whole Sanhedrin[s] were seeking false testimony against Jesus so that they might put him to death, 60 but found none, even though many false witnesses stepped up. Finally two stepped up 61 and said, "This man said, 'I am able to destroy the sanctuary of God and to build it in three days.' "
62 The high priest stood up and said to him, "Have you no answer? What is this that these men are testifying against you?" 63 Jesus, however, remained silent. The high priest said to him, "By the living God I place you under oath: tell us, are you the Messiah, the Son of God?" 64 Jesus said to him, "You have said it. But I tell you, from now on you will see the Son of Man seated at the right hand of the Power[t] and coming on the clouds of heaven."[u] 65 At that the high priest ripped his clothes[v] and said, "Blasphemy!

What further need do we have of witnesses? Here and now you have heard his blasphemy. 66 What is your verdict?" They answered, "He deserves death." 67 Then they spat in his face and struck him with their fists; and some slapped him, 68 and saying, "Messiah, prophesy for us:
who struck you?"
69 Meanwhile Peter was sitting outside in the courtyard. A servant girl came up to him and said, "You too were with Jesus the Galilean." 70
But he denied it in front of them all, saying, "I do not know what you are talking about." 71 As he went out to the gateway, another servant girl saw him and said to the people there, "This man was with Jesus of Nazareth." 72 And again he denied it, with an oath: "I do not know the man!" 73 After a little while the bystanders came over and said to Peter, "You are certainly one of them; your accent gives you away."[w] 74 Then he began to call down curses and to swear, "I do not know the man!" And at once a rooster crowed. 75 Peter remembered what Jesus had said: "Before a rooster crows, you will deny me three times." He went out and wept bitter tears.

Notes

- a (26:2) Passover: the spring festival recalling Israel's deliverance from Egypt (Exod 12), celebrated on the 14th–15th of Nisan, followed by the seven-day festival of Unleavened Bread.
- b (26:3) Caiaphas: Joseph Caiaphas, high priest AD 18–36, son-in-law of Annas (John 18:13). His ossuary may have been found in Jerusalem in 1990.
- c (26:6) The leper: presumably a man Jesus had healed, since lepers were barred from ordinary contact.
- d (26:7) Alabaster jar: a flask of translucent stone with a long neck that was broken to pour out the contents.
- e (26:9) A high price: Mark 14:5 says "more than three hundred denarii," about a year's wages.
- f (26:11) Deut 15:11.
- g (26:15) Thirty silver coins: literally "thirty pieces of silver," probably shekels or Tyrian tetradrachms, about four months' wages. Compare Zech 11:12, and Exod 21:32, where thirty shekels is the compensation for a slave gored to death.

- h (26:17) Unleavened Bread: the seven-day festival following Passover, during which no leavened bread was eaten (Exod 12:15–20). The two were often named together.
- i (26:20) The Twelve: the Westcott–Hort text prints “disciples” after “the Twelve” in brackets, as uncertain.
- j (26:25) You have said it: an affirmative answer, though guarded: “It is as you say,” or “Those are your words.” Also in verse 64 and 27:11.
- k (26:28) My blood of the covenant: compare Exod 24:8; Jer 31:31–34; Zech 9:11. Many manuscripts read “the new covenant,” as in Luke 22:20 and 1 Cor 11:25; the Westcott–Hort text, with the earliest manuscripts, lacks “new.”
- l (26:30) The hymn: probably the second part of the Hallel (Pss 113–118), sung at the end of the Passover meal.
- m (26:31) Zech 13:7, where Yahweh is the speaker.
- n (26:36) Gethsemane: from Hebrew or Aramaic gat shemanim, “oil press,” an olive grove at the foot of the Mount of Olives.
- o (26:38) Compare Ps 42:5, 11; 43:5; Jonah 4:9.
- p (26:45) Are you still sleeping and resting? Or, as a command, “Sleep on now, and take your rest.”
- q (26:50) Do what you are here to do: or, as a question, “Friend, what are you here for?” The Greek is elliptical.
- r (26:53) Legions: a Roman legion had about 6,000 soldiers; twelve legions would be some 72,000.
- s (26:59) Sanhedrin: the supreme Jewish council in Jerusalem, of about seventy-one members, chaired by the high priest.
- t (26:64) The Power: a reverent way of referring to God without saying the name.
- u (26:64) Ps 110:1; Dan 7:13.
- v (26:65) Ripped his clothes: a sign of grief or horror, required of judges on hearing blasphemy.
- w (26:73) The way you talk gives you away: Galileans had a distinctive accent.

Chapter 27

1 When morning came, all the chief priests and the elders of the people took counsel together against Jesus, to bring about his death.
2 They put him in chains, took him off, and delivered him to Pilate, the Roman governor.[a] 3 Then Judas, his betrayer, seeing that Jesus had been condemned, was seized with remorse and brought the thirty silver coins back to the chief priests and the elders. 4 “I have sinned,” he said, “in betraying innocent blood.” But they said, “What is that to us? See to it yourself.” 5 Flinging the silver into the sanctuary, he left, and he went off and hanged himself.[b] 6 The chief priests gathered up the coins. "We may not lawfully put these in the temple treasury," they said, "because it is blood money." 7 After discussing the matter, they bought with it the potter's field, to bury strangers in. 8 That is why that field has been called the Field of Blood[c] to this day. 9 Then the words spoken through the prophet Jeremiah came true: "They took the thirty pieces of silver, the price of the one who was priced by the people of Israel, 10 and they gave them for the potter's field, as the Lord directed me."[d] 11 Jesus now stood before the governor, and the governor questioned him: "Are you the King of the Jews?" Jesus said, "You say so." 12 But when the chief priests and elders brought their accusations against him, he made no answer. 13 Then Pilate said to him, "Do you not hear how many charges they are bringing against you?" 14 But he did not answer him with so much as a single word, so that the governor was greatly amazed.

15 At the festival the governor customarily set free one prisoner for the crowd, whichever one they wanted. 16 They had in custody just then a prisoner of some notoriety, Barabbas[e] by name. 17 So when the people had gathered, Pilate asked them, "Whom do you want me to release for you, Barabbas, or Jesus who is called Messiah?" 18 For he knew it was out of envy that they had handed Jesus over. 19 While he was sitting on the judgment seat, his wife sent word to him: "Have nothing to do with that righteous man, for today I have suffered greatly in a dream because of him." 20 But the chief priests and the elders persuaded the crowds to ask for Barabbas and to have Jesus put to death. 21 The governor spoke to them again: "Which of the two do you want me to release for you?" And they said, "Barabbas." 22 "What, then, am I to do with Jesus, the so-called Messiah?" Pilate asked them.
"Crucify him!" they all replied. 23 "Why," he said, "what wrong has he committed?" But they only shouted the louder, "Crucify him!" 24 When Pilate saw that he was accomplishing nothing, but that a riot was starting instead, he took water and washed his hands before the crowd,[f] saying, "I am innocent of this blood.[g] See to it yourselves." 25 And all the people answered, "His blood be on us and on our children!” 26 So he set Barabbas free for them, and he had Jesus scourged[h] and handed over for crucifixion.

27 Then the governor’s soldiers took Jesus into the governor’s headquarters[i] and gathered the whole cohort[j] around him. 28 They stripped him and put a scarlet military cloak on him, 29 They wove a crown of thorns and placed it on his head, and a reed in his right hand.
Then they knelt down before him and ridiculed him: “Hail, King of the Jews!” 30 They spat on him, took the reed, and kept striking him on the head. 31 When they had finished mocking him, they stripped him of the cloak, put his own clothes on him, and led him away to crucify him.
32 On their way out they met a Cyrenian[k] called Simon, and they pressed him into service to carry Jesus’s cross. 33 They arrived at the spot named Golgotha, that is, the Skull Place,[l] 34 and offered him wine mingled with gall[m] to drink; he tasted it but refused to drink. 35 Having crucified him, they cast lots to share out his garments among them.[n] 36
And they sat there guarding him. 37 Over his head they fixed the notice of the charge against him: THIS IS JESUS, THE KING OF THE JEWS.
38 Then two bandits were crucified with him, one on the right and one on the left. 39 The passers-by jeered at him, wagging their heads[o] 40 and saying, “You who would destroy the sanctuary and build it in three days, save yourself! If you are the Son of God, come down from the cross!” 41 In the same way the chief priests, with the scribes and elders, mocked him and said, 42 “He saved others; himself he cannot save! He is the King of Israel; let him come down now from the cross, and we will believe in him. 43 He trusts in God; let God rescue him now, if he wants him;[p] for he said, ‘I am the Son of God.’ ” 44 Even the bandits crucified alongside him heaped the same insults on him.
45 From noon until three in the afternoon[q] darkness lay over all the land. 46 And about three o’clock Jesus cried out with a loud voice, “Eloi, Eloi, lema sabachthani?” which means, “My God, my God, why have you forsaken me?”[r] 47 When some of those standing there heard it, they said, “This man is calling for Elijah.” 48 One of them quickly ran, got a sponge, soaked it in sour wine,[s] fixed it on a reed, and offered it to him to drink. 49 But the others said, “Wait, let us see whether Elijah comes to save him." [[And another took a spear and pierced his side, and out came water and blood.]][t] 50 And Jesus cried out again with a loud voice and gave up his spirit. 51 And look, the curtain of the sanctuary[u] split in two, from the top down to the bottom; the ground quaked and rocks burst apart. 52 The tombs were opened, and many bodies of the saints who had fallen asleep were raised; 53 and coming out of the tombs after his resurrection, they went into the holy city and appeared to many. 54 The centurion and his men who were guarding Jesus, seeing the earthquake and all that was taking place, were overcome with fear and said, "This man really was the Son of God!"[v] 55 Many women were also there, watching from a distance; they had followed Jesus from Galilee and had looked after his needs. 56 Among them were Mary Magdalene,[w] Mary the mother of James and Joseph,[x] and the mother of the sons of Zebedee.

57 When evening had come, a rich man from Arimathea[y] named Joseph arrived, who had himself become a disciple of Jesus. 58 He went to Pilate and asked for the body of Jesus. Then Pilate ordered it to be given to him. 59 Joseph took the body and wrapped it in a clean linen cloth 60 and placed it in his own new tomb that he had carved out of the rock. Then he rolled a huge stone across the entrance of the tomb and left. 61 Mary Magdalene was there, and the other Mary, sitting across from the grave.

62 The next day, the day after the Preparation,[z] the chief priests and the Pharisees gathered before Pilate 63 and said, "Sir, we remember that while he was still alive that impostor said, 'After three days I will rise again.' 64 So give the order to have the tomb kept secure until the third day. Otherwise his disciples might come and steal him, and then tell the people, 'He has risen from the dead.' That final fraud would be worse than the first." 65 Pilate said to them, "You have a guard.[aa] Go, make it as secure as you know how." 66 So they went and secured the tomb by sealing the stone and setting the guard.

Notes

- a (27:2) Pilate the governor: Pontius Pilate, Roman prefect of Judea AD 26–36. An inscription bearing his name and title was found at Caesarea in 1961.
- b (27:5) Hanged himself: Acts 1:18 gives another account of Judas's death.

- c (27:8) Field of Blood: called in Aramaic Hakeldama (Acts 1:19).
- d (27:10) Zech 11:12–13, combined with themes from Jeremiah (Jer 18:1–12; 19:1–13; 32:6–15), which may be why Matthew names Jeremiah. In Zechariah the speaker is Yahweh, here rendered "the Lord." The Greek follows neither the Hebrew nor the Greek Old Testament exactly. Scholarly review recommended.
- e (27:16) Barabbas: Aramaic Bar-abba, "son of the father." Some manuscripts, including Θ, family 1 and the Sinaitic Syriac, read "Jesus Barabbas" here and in verse 17, a reading Origen knew and which many scholars consider original; the Westcott–Hort text lacks it. Scholarly review recommended.
- f (27:24) Washed his hands: a Jewish rite declaring innocence of bloodshed (Deut 21:6–9; Ps 26:6).
- g (27:24) This blood: so the Westcott–Hort text, with Vaticanus and Bezae; most manuscripts read "this righteous man's blood."
- h (27:26) Scourged: Roman flogging with a whip of leather thongs weighted with bone or metal, which often preceded crucifixion.
- i (27:27) Headquarters: Greek praitōrion (Latin praetorium), the governor's official residence in Jerusalem, probably Herod's palace.
- j (27:27) Cohort: a Roman military unit, nominally 600 soldiers, though perhaps fewer were actually present.
- k (27:32) A Cyrenian: a man from Cyrene, a city in North Africa (modern Libya) with a large Jewish community. Mark 15:21 names Simon's sons, Alexander and Rufus.
- l (27:33) Golgotha: from Aramaic gulgulta, "skull." The traditional English "Calvary" comes from the Latin calvaria, "skull."
- m (27:34) Gall: a bitter substance. Compare Ps 69:21 (69:22 in Hebrew). Many manuscripts read "sour wine" for "wine."
- n (27:35) Ps 22:18 (22:19 in Hebrew). Many later manuscripts add, from John 19:24, "in order that what was spoken by the prophet might be fulfilled: 'They divided my garments among them, and for my clothing they cast lots.' "
- o (27:39) Shaking their heads: Ps 22:7 (22:8 in Hebrew); compare Lam 2:15.
- p (27:43) Ps 22:8 (22:9 in Hebrew); compare Wis 2:13, 18–20.
- q (27:45) From noon until three in the afternoon: literally "from the sixth hour until the ninth hour." Also verse 46.
- r (27:46) Ps 22:1 (22:2 in Hebrew). Eloi is Aramaic for "my God"; lema sabachthani is Aramaic, "why have you forsaken me?" The Westcott–Hort text, with Vaticanus and Sinaiticus, reads Elōi here as in Mark 15:34; most manuscripts read the Hebrew form Eli, which better explains the bystanders' mistake about Elijah (verse 47).
- s (27:48) Sour wine: Greek oxos, cheap sour wine diluted with water, a common drink of soldiers and laborers. Compare Ps 69:21.
- t (27:49) The words in double brackets are found in Sinaiticus, Vaticanus, C, L and some other witnesses, but are absent from most manuscripts, including A, D, W and Θ, and from the Old Latin and Syriac versions. They resemble John 19:34, where the piercing follows Jesus's death. Westcott and Hort printed them in double brackets as a very early insertion, though they discussed the possibility that they are original. Scholarly review recommended.

- u (27:51) Curtain of the sanctuary: probably the inner curtain that separated the Most Holy Place from the Holy Place (Exod 26:31–33), through which only the high priest passed, once a year.
- v (27:54) God's Son: or "a son of God."
- w (27:56) Mary Magdalene: Mary from Magdala, a town on the western shore of the Sea of Galilee. Mary is the Greek form of Miriam, perhaps "beloved" or "bitter"; Magdala means "tower."
- x (27:56) Joseph: so the Westcott–Hort text, with Sinaiticus (first hand); many manuscripts read Joses, as in Mark 15:40.
- y (27:57) Arimathea: probably Ramathaim, the hometown of Samuel (1 Sam 1:1), northwest of Jerusalem.
- z (27:62) The Preparation: the day before the Sabbath, that is, Friday, on which preparations for the Sabbath were made.
- aa (27:65) You have a guard: or, as a command, "Take a guard."

Chapter 28

1 When the Sabbath was over, at the dawning of the first day of the week,[a] Mary Magdalene went with the other Mary to view the grave.
2 And all at once the earth shook violently; for an angel of the Lord came down from heaven, rolled back the stone, and sat upon it. 3 His appearance was like lightning, and his clothing white as snow. 4 The guards shook with fear of him and became like dead men. 5 But the angel spoke to the women: "As for you, have no fear. I know that you are looking for Jesus, the one who was crucified. 6 He is not here; he has been raised, just as he said. Come and see the place where he lay.[b] 7 Now go quickly and tell his disciples, 'He has been raised from the dead, and he is going to Galilee ahead of you; you will see him there.'
This is what I have told you." 8 They hurried away from the tomb, frightened yet overjoyed, and ran to bring the news to his disciples. 9
And suddenly Jesus met them and said, "Greetings!"[c] They came up, clasped his feet, and worshiped him. 10 Then Jesus said to them, "Have no fear. Go and tell my brothers to set out for Galilee; they will see me there."

11 As the women went on their way, some members of the guard came into the city and told the chief priests all that had occurred. 12
The chief priests met with the elders and, after deliberating, gave the soldiers a large sum of money, 13 and instructing them, "Tell people,
'His disciples came in the night and stole him away while we slept.' 14
And if the governor hears about this, we will persuade him and keep you out of trouble." 15 So they took the money and did as they had been instructed. And this story has been spread around among the Jews to the present day.
16 The eleven disciples went to Galilee, to the mountain where Jesus had directed them to go. 17 When they saw him, they worshiped him; but some had doubts.[d] 18 Jesus came near and spoke to them: "All authority in heaven and on earth has been given to me.[e] 19 Go, therefore, and make disciples of all the nations, baptizing them in[f] the name of the Father and of the Son and of the Holy Spirit, 20 and teaching them to keep everything I have commanded you. And remember, I am with you every day, until the end of the age."[g]

Notes

- a (28:1) At the dawning of the first day of the week: Sunday morning. The Greek may also mean "late on the Sabbath, as the first day of the week was drawing on," that is, Saturday evening, since the Jewish day began at sunset.
- b (28:6) Where he lay: many manuscripts read "where the Lord lay"; the Westcott–Hort text, with Sinaiticus and Vaticanus, lacks "the Lord."
- c (28:9) Greetings: Greek chairete, literally "rejoice," the ordinary greeting.
- d (28:17) But some had doubts: or "but they hesitated."
- e (28:18) Compare Dan 7:14.
- f (28:19) In: Greek eis, "into," expressing entry into a relationship with the one named.
- g (28:20) Many manuscripts add a final "Amen"; the Westcott–Hort text, with Sinaiticus, Vaticanus and others, lacks it.

Mark

New Testament

Chapter 1

1 Here begins the good news[a] of Jesus the Messiah[b] [God's Son].[c] 2 It is written in the prophet Isaiah:[d]
"See, ahead of you I send my envoy, who will prepare your path.
3 A voice of someone shouting in the wilderness:
'Make ready the way of the Lord; straighten out the paths he will take.' "
4 And so John the Baptizer[e] came on the scene in the wilderness, calling people to be baptized as a sign of repentance,[f] for the forgiveness of their sins.
5 The whole Judean countryside and all the people of Jerusalem kept streaming out to him, and as they confessed their sins they were baptized by him in the Jordan River.
6 John wore a garment of camel's hair, with a leather belt about his waist, and he lived on locusts and wild honey.
7 He proclaimed, "One stronger than I is coming after me. I am not worthy even to bend low and loosen the thong of his sandals.
8 I have baptized you with water, but he will baptize you with the Holy Spirit."
9 It was in those days that Jesus came from Nazareth[g] in Galilee[h] and was baptized by John in the Jordan. 10 The moment he came up out of the water, he saw the heavens being torn apart and the Spirit coming down upon him like a dove. 11 And a voice sounded from the heavens: "You are my Son, the one I love; in you I take delight."[i]
12 Straightaway the Spirit drove him out into the wilderness. 13 For forty days he remained in the desert while Satan tested him.[j] He lived among wild beasts, and angels looked after him.

14 After John had been handed over,[k] Jesus went into Galilee announcing the good news of God. 15 "The appointed time has arrived," he said, "and God's kingdom has drawn near. Turn your lives around, and put your trust in the good news." 16 Walking beside the Sea of Galilee, he spotted Simon[l] together with Simon's brother Andrew[m], who were casting a net into the water; fishing was their trade. 17 Jesus said to them, "Come, follow me, and I will make you into fishers of people." 18 They dropped their nets on the spot and went after him. 19 A little further on he noticed James[n] son of Zebedee[o] and James's brother John in their boat, repairing their nets.
20 Right away he called them. They abandoned their father Zebedee in the boat with his employees and followed Jesus.
21 Then they entered Capernaum.[p] When the Sabbath arrived, Jesus walked into the synagogue and started to teach. 22 The people were astonished at his teaching, because he taught them as someone with authority of his own, and not in the manner of the scribes.[q] 23 Just then, in their synagogue, there was a man in the grip of an unclean spirit, and he shrieked, 24 "Jesus the Nazarene, what have you to do with us?
Have you come to wipe us out? I know exactly who you are: God's Holy One!" 25 Jesus rebuked it: "Be silent, and come out of him!" 26 The unclean spirit threw the man into convulsions, gave a loud cry, and came out of him. 27 All of them were astonished and kept asking one another, "What does this mean? This is a fresh teaching, delivered with authority! He commands even unclean spirits, and they do as he says!" 28 And the report about him spread swiftly in every direction, through the whole region surrounding Galilee.
29 As soon as they left the synagogue, they entered the home of Simon and Andrew, accompanied by James and John. 30 Simon's wife's mother was lying down, burning with fever, and right away they told Jesus about her. 31 He went to her, took her by the hand, and raised her up. The fever left her, and she began to serve them.
32 At evening, once the sun had set, they brought to him everyone who was sick or demon-possessed. 33 The entire town gathered at the door. 34 He cured many people troubled by various illnesses and expelled many demons. He refused to let the demons speak, because they recognized him.[r]

35 Very early, while it was still quite dark, Jesus got up, went out to a deserted place, and prayed there. 36 Simon and his companions went searching for him, 37 When they located him, they told him, "Everyone is searching for you." 38 He replied, "Let us move on to the neighboring market towns, so that I may proclaim the message there as well. That is what I came out to do." 39 So he went throughout Galilee, preaching in their synagogues and casting out demons.

40 A man with a skin disease[s] came up to him, dropped to his knees, and pleaded, "If you choose, you have the power to make me clean." 41 Jesus, his heart going out to the man,[t] stretched out his hand and touched him, saying, "I want to. Be cleansed." 42 The disease left him that instant, and he was cleansed. 43 Jesus sent him off at once with a stern warning:[u] 44 "See that you tell no one anything. Rather, go and let the priest examine you, and present for your cleansing the gift that Moses commanded, as a testimony to them."[v] 45 But the man went out and started talking freely, spreading the story far and wide, so that Jesus could no longer enter a town openly. He stayed out in lonely places, and still people came to him from everywhere.

Notes

- a (1:1) Good news: Greek euangelion, traditionally "gospel."
- b (1:1) Christ: Greek Christos, "anointed one," translating Hebrew mashiach ("Messiah"). Jesus is the Greek form of Hebrew Yeshua (Yehoshua, Joshua), "Yahweh saves."
- c (1:1) [The Son of God]: the words are bracketed because the manuscripts are divided. They stand in Vaticanus, Bezae and most later manuscripts, but are absent from the first hand of Sinaiticus, from Koridethi (Θ), and from several early writers (Origen). The Westcott–Hort text places them in the margin; Tischendorf omits them; the Nestle–Aland and SBL editions print or bracket them differently. Accidental omission by a scribe (the title is abbreviated in manuscripts) and later addition are both possible.
- d (1:2) Mal 3:1 combined with Exod 23:20, and then (verse 3) Isa 40:3 in the wording of the Greek Old Testament; Mark names Isaiah, the more prominent prophet. In Isa 40:3 Hebrew, "the Lord" is Yahweh. Many later manuscripts read "in the prophets."
- e (1:4) John the Baptizer: literally "John the one who baptizes." John is Greek for Hebrew Yohanan, "Yahweh has been gracious."

- f (1:4) Repentance: Greek metanoia, a change of mind and direction of life; in verse 15 the verb is rendered “turn your lives around.” As a sign of repentance: literally “a baptism of repentance.”
- g (1:9) Nazareth: a village in lower Galilee, perhaps from Hebrew netser, “branch” or “shoot.”
- h (1:9) Galilee: from Hebrew galil, “circle” or “district.”
- i (1:11) Ps 2:7; Isa 42:1; compare Gen 22:2. The one I love: or “my beloved Son.”
- j (1:13) Satan: Hebrew for “adversary,” “accuser.”
- k (1:14) Handed over: that is, arrested and imprisoned (6:17).
- l (1:16) Simon: a Greek name close to Hebrew Shimon, “he has heard.” He is later named Peter (3:16).
- m (1:16) Andrew: a Greek name meaning “manly.”
- n (1:19) James: Greek Iakōbos, the Hebrew name Yaakov (Jacob), “he grasps the heel” (Gen 25:26).
- o (1:19) Zebedee: from Hebrew Zebadiah, “Yahweh has given.”
- p (1:21) Capernaum: from Hebrew Kefar Nahum, “village of Nahum,” on the northwest shore of the lake.
- q (1:22) Scribes: experts in the Law of Moses and its interpretation.
- r (1:34) Who he was: Vaticanus and some other manuscripts add “to be the Christ”; the Westcott–Hort text brackets the words in its margin.
- s (1:40) Skin disease: Greek lepros, traditionally “leper,” covering a range of skin diseases that made a person ritually unclean (Lev 13–14). Falling on his knees is bracketed by Westcott–Hort as doubtful.
- t (1:41) His heart going out to the man: Greek splanchnistheis, the reading of Westcott–Hort and nearly all manuscripts. Codex Bezae (D) and a few Old Latin manuscripts read orgistheis, “becoming angry.” Some scholars and modern translations prefer “angry” as the harder reading that scribes would have softened; compare the strong verb in verse 43 and 3:5. This is noted for scholarly review.
- u (1:43) With a stern warning: Greek embrimēsamenos, a word expressing strong feeling, “snorting” or “speaking harshly.”
- v (1:44) Lev 14:1–32. As evidence for them: or “as a testimony against them.”

Chapter 2

1 Some days later, when Jesus came back to Capernaum, word went around that he was at home. 2 So many people crowded in that there was no space left, not even outside the door, and he was speaking the message to them. 3 A group came along with a man who could not move, borne along by four bearers. 4 Since the crowd kept them from getting him near Jesus, they stripped away the roof above the spot where he was, and when they had dug through it, they let down the mat the paralyzed man was lying on.[a] 5 When Jesus saw how they trusted, he spoke to the man: “Son, your sins have been forgiven you.” 6 Now some of the scribes were sitting there, turning this over in their minds: 7 “Why does this fellow talk like that? It is blasphemy! Who can forgive sins except God alone?” 8 Jesus immediately sensed in his spirit what was going on in their thoughts, and he asked them, “Why are you debating these matters inwardly? 9 Which is easier—to tell the paralyzed man, ‘Your sins are forgiven,’ or to tell him, ‘Get up, pick up your mat, and walk’? 10 But so that you may know that the Son of Man[b] has authority on earth to forgive sins”—he turned to the paralyzed man— 11 “To you I say: rise, take your mat, and go back to your own house.” 12 And the man rose, picked up the mat without delay, and went out in front of everyone. They were all astounded and praised God. “Never have we seen such a thing,” they said.

13 Jesus went out again beside the lake. The whole crowd kept coming to him, and he taught them. 14 As he walked along, he noticed Levi[c] the son of Alphaeus[d] sitting at the tax booth. “Follow me,” he told him. And Levi rose and followed him.
15 Afterward, as Jesus sat at dinner in Levi’s home,[e] many tax collectors[f] and sinners shared the meal with him and his disciples; indeed, a great number of them were following him. 16 When the scribes who belonged to the Pharisees[g] saw him eating with sinners and tax collectors, they asked his disciples, “He eats with tax collectors and sinners?”[h] 17 Jesus heard it and told them, “It is not people in good health who need a doctor, but those who are ill. I did not come to call the righteous; I came to call sinners.” 18 John’s disciples and the Pharisees were fasting. Some people approached Jesus and asked, “Why do the disciples of John and of the Pharisees fast, but your disciples do not?” 19 Jesus replied, “Can the groom’s guests[i] fast while the groom is with them? For as long as the groom is in their midst, they cannot fast. 20 The time will come, though, when the groom is taken away from them. On that day they will fast.
21 “No one sews a piece of new, unshrunk fabric onto an old garment.
Otherwise the new piece tugs away from the old, and the rip becomes worse. 22 Nor does anybody pour new wine into old wineskins. If he does, the wine will burst the skins, and both the wine and the skins are lost. New wine calls for fresh skins."[j] 23 It happened that on a Sabbath he was going through fields of standing grain, and his disciples, while walking, started to pick the ears. 24 The Pharisees said to him, "Look at that! Why are they doing what is forbidden on the Sabbath?" 25 He answered, "Have you never read what David[k] did when he was in need and he and his men were hungry— 26 He entered God's house in the time of Abiathar[l] the high priest and ate the loaves set before God,[m] which no one but the priests may eat, and gave some to those with him." 27 Then he said to them, "The Sabbath was made for the sake of human beings, not human beings for the sake of the Sabbath. 28 So the Son of Man holds authority over the Sabbath too."

Notes

- a (2:4) Mat: Greek krabattos, a poor person's pallet or camp bed. Palestinian houses usually had flat roofs of beams covered with branches and packed clay, reached by an outside stair.
- b (2:10) Son of Man: Jesus' usual way of referring to himself, from Aramaic bar enash, "a human being," and recalling the heavenly figure "like a son of man" in Dan 7:13–14.
- c (2:14) Levi: Hebrew, "joined" or "attached" (Gen 29:34). In Matthew's parallel (Matt 9:9) the tax collector is named Matthew. Codex Bezae and some other manuscripts here read "James the son of Alphaeus" (compare 3:18).
- d (2:14) Alphaeus: perhaps from Aramaic Halfai, meaning uncertain, possibly "changing."
- e (2:15) In Levi's house: literally "in his house," which could also mean Jesus' house.
- f (2:15) Tax collectors: local agents who collected tolls and customs for the ruling authorities; they were widely despised as collaborators and cheats.
- g (2:16) Pharisees: probably "separated ones," a lay movement devoted to strict keeping of the Law and its traditions. The scribes who belonged to the Pharisees is the Westcott–Hort reading; many manuscripts read "the scribes and the Pharisees."
- h (2:16) He eats with tax collectors and sinners?: or "He eats with tax collectors and sinners!" Many manuscripts add "and drinks."
- i (2:19) Wedding guests: literally "sons of the bridal chamber," the bridegroom's friends.
- j (2:22) The last sentence is bracketed by Westcott–Hort as doubtful; Codex Bezae and some Old Latin manuscripts omit it.

- k (2:25) David: Hebrew, probably “beloved.” See 1 Sam 21:1–6.
- l (2:26) Abiathar: Hebrew, “the father is abundant” or “father of abundance.” In 1 Sam 21 the priest at Nob was Ahimelech, the father of Abiathar; when Abiathar was high priest may mean “in the passage about Abiathar” or refer to the better-known priest of that period. Some manuscripts omit the phrase.
- m (2:26) Bread of the Presence: twelve loaves set out each Sabbath before God in the sanctuary (Lev 24:5–9), literally “bread of setting forth.”

Chapter 3

1 Once again he entered the synagogue, and a man with a shriveled hand happened to be there. 2 People were watching Jesus closely, to find out if he would heal the man on the Sabbath, in order to have grounds for accusing him. 3 Jesus told the man whose hand was shriveled, “Stand up here where everyone can see you.” 4 Then he asked them, “On the Sabbath, is it lawful to do good or to do harm, to save a life or to kill?” But they said nothing. 5 Looking around at them with anger, and grieved by their stubborn hearts, he told the man, “Stretch out your hand.” He stretched it out, and it was restored.
6 The Pharisees walked out and immediately began plotting with the Herodians[a] against Jesus, how they might do away with him.
7 Jesus retreated toward the sea with his disciples, and a great crowd from Galilee went after him. Many also came from Judea, 8 Jerusalem,[b] Idumea,[c] the territory across the Jordan, and the vicinity of Tyre and Sidon.[d] A huge crowd arrived, because they had heard what he was doing. 9 He told his disciples to keep a small boat ready for him because of the crowd, so that they would not crush him. 10 He had cured so many that everyone suffering from diseases[e] kept pressing in on him to touch him. 11 Whenever the unclean spirits caught sight of him, they would throw themselves down before him and scream, “You are the Son of God!” 12 But he gave them strict orders not to make him known.
13 He climbed the mountain and called to himself those he chose, and they went to him. 14 He chose twelve men—he called them apostles as well[f]—so that they would stay in his company and so that he could send them out with the message, 15 and to have authority to cast out demons. 16 The Twelve he chose[g] were these: Simon, whom he named Peter;[h] 17 James son of Zebedee, and John the brother of James (he gave them the name Boanerges, meaning "Sons of Thunder");[i] 18 Andrew, Philip,[j] Bartholomew,[k] Matthew,[l] Thomas,[m] James the son of Alphaeus, Thaddaeus,[n] Simon the Cananaean,[o] 19 and Judas Iscariot,[p] who handed him over.

20 He went into a house, and again a crowd gathered, so large that he and his followers were unable to eat. 21 His relatives[q] heard of this and went out to seize him, because people were saying, "He has lost his senses."
22 The scribes who had come from Jerusalem were claiming, "Beelzebul[r] has hold of him," and, "He expels demons by the power of the demons' chief." 23 So he called them over and spoke to them in parables: "How can Satan drive out Satan? 24 If a kingdom is split against itself, that kingdom cannot last. 25 And if a household is split against itself, that household will not be able to last. 26 So if Satan has risen up against himself and is split, he cannot last; his end has come. 27 In fact, nobody can break into a strong man's house and carry off his belongings unless he first ties up the strong man; only then can he loot his house.
28 "Amen, I tell you:[s] the children of humankind will be forgiven all their sins, and whatever blasphemies they may utter; 29 but whoever blasphemes against the Holy Spirit never has forgiveness; that person is guilty of a sin that lasts forever."[t] 30 This was his answer to their claim that he had an unclean spirit in him.
31 Then his mother and his brothers arrived. They stood outside and sent word in to him, calling for him. 32 A crowd sat around him. They said to him, "Your mother and your brothers[u] are outside asking for you." 33 He answered, "Who are my mother and my brothers?" 34 Then, looking at the people sitting all around him, he said, "See—my mother and my brothers are here! 35 Whoever carries out the will of God, that one is my brother, my sister, my mother."

Notes

- a (3:6) Herodians: supporters of the dynasty of Herod, whose son Herod Antipas then ruled Galilee.

- b (3:8) Jerusalem: in Hebrew Yerushalayim, often explained as “foundation of peace.”
- c (3:8) Idumea: the Greek form of Edom (“red”), the region south of Judea.
- d (3:8) Tyre and Sidon: Phoenician coastal cities north of Galilee. Tyre means “rock”; Sidon probably “fishing place.”
- e (3:10) Afflictions: literally “scourges,” “torments.”
- f (3:14) He called them apostles as well: the phrase stands in the Westcott–Hort text, with Sinaiticus and Vaticanus, but is lacking in many manuscripts and may have come in from Luke 6:13. Apostle means “one sent out.”
- g (3:16) The Twelve he chose: the Westcott–Hort text, with Sinaiticus and Vaticanus, has these words; many manuscripts lack them.
- h (3:16) Peter: Greek Petros, “rock” or “stone,” corresponding to Aramaic Kepha (Cephas).
- i (3:17) Boanerges: a Greek transliteration, probably of Aramaic bene regesh or bene regaz, “sons of commotion” or “sons of anger,” which Mark translates “Sons of Thunder.” The exact Aramaic form is uncertain.
- j (3:18) Philip: Greek, “lover of horses.”
- k (3:18) Bartholomew: Aramaic bar Talmai, “son of Talmai” (perhaps “furrowed”).
- l (3:18) Matthew: probably from Hebrew Mattityahu, “gift of Yahweh.”
- m (3:18) Thomas: Aramaic Toma, “twin” (compare John 11:16).
- n (3:18) Thaddaeus: meaning uncertain, perhaps “breast” or “heart,” suggesting “beloved.” In Luke 6:16 the corresponding name is Judas the son of James.
- o (3:18) Cananaean: from Aramaic qan’ana, “zealous one,” “zealot” (compare Luke 6:15), not a reference to Canaan or Cana.
- p (3:19) Iscariot: possibly “man of Kerioth,” a town in Judea; other explanations have been proposed. Judas is the Greek form of Judah, “praised.”
- q (3:21) His family: literally “those from beside him,” that is, his relatives (compare 3:31).
- r (3:22) Beelzebul: a name for the prince of demons, perhaps “lord of the dwelling” or a mocking form of Baal-zebub, “lord of flies” (2 Kgs 1:2).
- s (3:28) Amen, I tell you: Hebrew amen, “surely,” “truly,” used by Jesus to begin a solemn statement.
- t (3:29) A sin that lasts forever: literally “an eternal sin”; many later manuscripts read “eternal judgment.”
- u (3:32) Your mother and your brothers: many manuscripts add “and your sisters”; the Westcott–Hort text lacks the words.

Chapter 4

1 Again he started teaching by the sea. The crowd that gathered around him was so enormous that he climbed into a boat and sat there on the water, while all the people lined the shore. 2 He taught them many things by means of parables,[a] and in the course of his teaching he said to them: 3 "Listen! A farmer went out to sow seed. 4

As he scattered it, some fell beside the path, and birds came and ate it up. 5 Other seed fell on rocky places where there was not much soil, and it shot up quickly because the earth was shallow. 6 But when the sun rose it was scorched, and having no root, it dried up. 7 Other seed fell among thornbushes, and the thorns grew up and choked it, and it yielded no grain. 8 Still other seeds fell into good soil, and they came up, grew, and produced grain, yielding thirty, sixty, even a hundred times as much." 9 And he said, "Whoever has ears for hearing, let that person hear!"
10 When he was by himself, the people around him, together with the Twelve, asked him about the parables.
11 He told them, "To you the secret[b] of God's kingdom has been given;
but for those outside, everything comes in parables, 12 so that

'looking, they may look but never see,
and listening, they may listen but never grasp, lest they turn around and be pardoned.' "[c]

13 Then he said to them, "You do not grasp this parable? Then how will you grasp any of the parables? 14 The sower sows the word. 15 The ones beside the path are those where the word is sown, but as soon as they hear it, Satan comes and snatches away the word that was sown in them. 16 In the same way, the ones sown on rocky ground are those who, on hearing the word, accept it at once with joy. 17 They have no roots, so they endure only briefly. When hardship or harassment comes because of the message, they promptly stumble.[d] 18 Others are the ones sown among the thorns: they hear the word, 19 but the worries of this present age, the lure of riches, and cravings for other things creep in and smother the word, so that it bears nothing.
20 And the ones sown on the good soil are those who hear the word, welcome it, and bear fruit—thirtyfold, sixtyfold, a hundredfold." 21 He also told them, "Does anyone bring a lamp inside in order to cover it with a bowl[e] or slide it under a bed? Is it not meant to stand on a lamp stand? 22 For nothing is concealed except to be brought into the open, and nothing has been kept secret except to come to light. 23

If anyone has ears for hearing, let that person hear." 24 He continued, "Take care what you listen to. The standard you apply will be applied to you, and you will receive even more. 25 To anyone who has, more will be given; but from anyone who has nothing, even that will be taken away."
26 He also said, "God's kingdom is like this: a man scatters seed on the ground; 27 and whether he sleeps or rises, night and day, the seed sprouts and grows, though he has no idea how. 28 The earth produces crops by itself—first the shoot, then the head, then the full grain in the head. 29 And as soon as the crop allows, he sends in the sickle at once, because harvest time has arrived."[f] 30 He said further, "What can we compare God's kingdom to, or what parable shall we use for it? 31 It is like a mustard seed. When it is sown in the ground, it is the tiniest of all the seeds on earth; 32 yet once sown, it springs up and becomes greater than all the garden plants, and puts out such large branches that the birds of the sky can find shelter in its shade."[g] 33 With many such parables he spoke the word to them, as much as they were able to take in. 34 He did not speak to them without a parable, yet privately he explained everything to his own disciples.
35 On that same day, in the evening, he told them, "Let's go over to the opposite shore." 36 So they left the crowd and took him with them in the boat, since he was already in it; and there were other boats along with him. 37 A violent windstorm arose, and waves broke over the boat, until it was nearly swamped. 38 But he was in the stern, asleep on the cushion. They woke him and said to him, "Teacher, does it not matter to you that we are about to die?" 39 He got up, rebuked the wind, and said to the lake, "Hush! Be still!" The wind dropped, and there was a great calm. 40 He said to them, "Why are you so fearful?
Have you still no faith?"[h] 41 They were overcome with awe and said to each other, "Who can this be? Even the wind and the lake obey him!"

Notes

- a (4:2) Parables: Greek parabolē, a comparison or story that sets one thing beside another to illustrate a truth, sometimes a riddle (Hebrew mashal).

- b (4:11) Secret: Greek mystērion, “mystery,” a hidden purpose of God now revealed.
- c (4:12) Isa 6:9–10, quoted freely and in a form close to the Aramaic Targum (“be forgiven” for the Hebrew “be healed”).
- d (4:17) Fall away: or “stumble,” “are caused to sin” (Greek skandalizontai).
- e (4:21) Basket: Greek modios, a grain measure holding about 8.75 liters (about 2 US gallons, a quarter bushel), here the container itself.
- f (4:29) Joel 3:13 (4:13 in Hebrew).
- g (4:32) Compare Ezek 17:23; 31:6; Dan 4:12, 21.
- h (4:40) Have you still no faith?: many manuscripts read “How is it that you have no faith?”

Chapter 5

1 They came to the far side of the lake, into the territory of the Gerasenes.[a] 2 When he had come ashore from the boat, a man possessed by an unclean spirit met him, coming from the tombs. 3 He lived among the tombs, and by this time nobody was able to hold him down, not even with a chain. 4 Time and again he had been bound with shackles and chains, but he had snapped the chains apart and smashed the shackles, and nobody had the strength to subdue him. 5 Night and day, among the tombs and on the hillsides, he kept howling and gashing himself with stones. 6 Catching sight of Jesus from far off, he ran and fell down before him, 7 and shouting with a loud cry he said, “Jesus, Son of God Most High, what is there between you and me? In God’s name I beg you, do not torture me!” 8 For Jesus had been saying to him, “Come out of the man, you unclean spirit!” 9 Then Jesus asked him, “What is your name?” He replied, “I am called Legion,[b] because we are many.” 10 And he begged Jesus over and over not to send them out of that region. 11 A big herd of swine happened to be grazing nearby on the slope of the hill. 12 The spirits pleaded with him, “Send us to the swine, so that we may go into them.” 13 He gave them leave, and the unclean spirits came out and went into the swine. The herd, about two thousand of them, rushed down the steep slope into the lake and were drowned in the water.
14 Those who tended the swine fled and spread the news in the town and around the farms, and people came out to see what had happened. 15 They came to Jesus and saw the man who had been possessed—the one who had held the legion—sitting there clothed and in his right mind, and they were afraid. 16 Those who had witnessed it told them what had happened to the demon-possessed man and about the swine. 17 Then they began urging Jesus to leave their district. 18 While Jesus was boarding the boat, the man freed from the demons kept begging to be allowed to stay with him. 19 Jesus did not allow this. Instead he said, "Return to your family and tell them all that the Lord[c] did for you and how he took pity on you." 20 So the man went off and began to make known throughout the Decapolis[d] what Jesus had done for him, and everyone was amazed.

21 Jesus crossed over by boat again to the opposite shore, and a great crowd came together around him while he was beside the lake. 22
One of the leaders of the synagogue, named Jairus,[e] came along, and on seeing Jesus, threw himself at his feet 23 and pleaded with him earnestly: "My little daughter is at death's door. Please come and lay your hands on her, so that she may get well and live." 24 So Jesus set off with him. A large crowd followed and pressed in on him from every side.
25 Among them was a woman who had suffered from bleeding for twelve years. 26 She had endured a great deal at the hands of many doctors and had spent everything she owned, yet instead of improving she had grown worse. 27 She had heard the reports about Jesus, and she came up behind him in the crowd and touched his cloak, 28 for she kept telling herself, "If I touch even his clothes, I shall be made well." 29 At once the flow of her blood dried up, and she sensed in her body that she was cured of her affliction. 30 Jesus, aware at once that power had gone out from him, turned around in the crowd and said, "Who touched my clothes?" 31 His disciples answered, "You see the crowd jostling you, and still you ask, 'Who touched me?' " 32 But he kept looking around to see who had done this. 33 The woman, afraid and shaking because she knew what had happened to her, came and threw herself down before him and told him everything. 34 He said to her, "Daughter, your faith has made you well.[f] Go in peace, free from your affliction."

35 While he was still speaking, messengers arrived from the synagogue leader's house with the news: "Your daughter has died. There is no reason to trouble the Teacher further." 36 But Jesus, overhearing[g] what they said, told the synagogue leader, "Do not be afraid; just keep believing." 37 He let no one come along with him except Peter, James, and James's brother John. 38 When they reached the synagogue leader's house, Jesus saw an uproar, with people weeping and wailing loudly.
39 Going in, he said to them, "Why this commotion and weeping? The child is not dead; she is sleeping." 40 They laughed at him. But he sent them all out, took along the child's father and mother and his own companions, and went into the place where the child was lying. 41 Taking the child by the hand, he said to her, "Talitha koum,"[h] which translated means, "Little girl, I say to you, get up." 42 Immediately the girl stood up and began walking about—she was twelve years old—and at once they were utterly astounded. 43 He charged them firmly that nobody must know about it, and said that she should be given food.

Notes

- a (5:1) Gerasenes: the Westcott–Hort reading, referring to Gerasa (modern Jerash), a city of the Decapolis about 35 miles (55 km) southeast of the lake. Other manuscripts read "Gadarenes" (from Gadara, about 6 miles or 10 km from the lake; compare Matt 8:28) or "Gergesenes" (from Gergesa, a site on the eastern shore).
- b (5:9) Legion: a Latin military term for a Roman army unit of up to about 6,000 soldiers.
- c (5:19) The Lord: here God, though Mark may also intend Jesus (compare verse 20).
- d (5:20) Decapolis: Greek, "Ten Cities," a league of Greek-speaking cities mostly east of the Jordan.
- e (5:22) Jairus: the Greek form of Hebrew Yair, "he will give light" or "he enlightens" (Num 32:41).
- f (5:34) Made you well: or "saved you" (Greek sesōken); also in verses 23 and 28.
- g (5:36) Overhearing: or "ignoring" (Greek parakousas). Many manuscripts read "hearing."
- h (5:41) Talitha koum: Aramaic talyetha qum, "little girl (lamb), get up," transliterated in Greek. The Westcott–Hort text, with Sinaiticus and Vaticanus, has koum; many manuscripts have koumi, the feminine form of the command.

Chapter 6

1 Leaving that place, Jesus went to his hometown, and his disciples went along with him.
2 When the Sabbath came, he began teaching in the synagogue, and many who listened were astounded. “Where did this man get all this?” they asked. “What is this wisdom that has been granted to him?
And such mighty works done by his hands!
3 Is he not the carpenter,[a] the son of Mary,[b] and the brother of James and Joses[c] and Judas and Simon? And are his sisters not here among us?” And they took offense at him.
4 Jesus said to them, “A prophet is not without honor except in his own hometown, among his own relatives, and in his own household.” 5 He could not do any mighty work there, apart from laying his hands on a few sick people and healing them.
6 He was amazed at their lack of faith.

¶Then he went around the villages in a circuit, teaching.
7 He summoned the Twelve and began sending them out two by two,
and he gave them authority over the unclean spirits.
8 He instructed them to take nothing for the road but a staff—no bread, no bag, no small change[d] in their belts—9 but to wear sandals, and “do not put on two tunics.” 10 He said to them, “Wherever you enter a house, stay there until you leave that place.
11 And wherever people refuse to welcome you or hear you out, shake off the dust from under your feet when you go, as a witness to them.”[e] 12 So they set out and proclaimed that people should repent.
13 Many demons were cast out by them, and many who were ill were anointed with oil by them and cured.
14 Now King Herod[f] came to hear of it, since the name of Jesus was on everyone’s lips. Some were saying,[g] “This is John the Baptizer risen from the dead; that explains why such powers are active in him.” 15 Others said, “He is Elijah,”[h] and still others, “He is a prophet, like one of the prophets of old.” 16 But when Herod heard of it, he said, “John, the man I beheaded—he has been raised!”

17 Herod himself had given the order to seize John and tie him up in prison. He did it because of Herodias,[i] the wife of his brother Philip, whom Herod had married. 18 John had been telling Herod, "It is not lawful for you to have your brother's wife."[j] 19 So Herodias held a grudge against him and wanted him killed, but she could not manage it, 20 because Herod stood in awe of John, knowing him to be a righteous and holy man, and kept him safe. When he heard him, he was greatly perplexed;[k] yet he liked to listen to him. 21 But a suitable day arrived: Herod, celebrating his birthday, held a feast for his courtiers, the army officers, and the foremost people of Galilee. 22 His daughter Herodias[l] came in and danced, and she delighted Herod and his guests. The king said to the girl, "Ask me for anything you like, and I will give it to you." 23 And he swore to her with an oath, "Whatever you ask me, I will give you, up to half of my kingdom." 24 She went out and asked her mother, "What shall I ask for?" Her mother answered, "The head of John the Baptizer." 25 The girl hurried straight back to the king and made her request: "I want you to give me, here and now, on a platter, the head of John the Baptist." 26 Though the king was very sorry, he would not turn her down, out of regard for the oaths he had sworn and for the guests at his table. 27 Without delay he dispatched a soldier of the guard[m] and ordered him to fetch John's head. The man went and cut off John's head there in the prison, 28 carried it in on a platter, and handed it to the girl; and she handed it to her mother. 29 When John's disciples heard about this, they came, took his body away, and put it in a tomb.
30 The apostles came back together to Jesus and told him everything —what they had done and what they had taught. 31 "Come with me, just yourselves, to some out-of-the-way spot, and get a little rest," he told them. So many were arriving and departing that they had no chance even to eat. 32 They left in the boat to go to an isolated spot by themselves. 33 But many people saw them leaving and recognized them, and they ran there together on foot from all the towns and got there before them. 34 As Jesus came ashore, he saw a great crowd and felt compassion for them, because they were like sheep without a shepherd;[n] and he began to teach them many things.

35 By the time it was late in the day, his disciples approached him and said, “This place is remote, and it is already getting late. 36 Dismiss them, so they can go off to the surrounding farms and villages and buy food for themselves.” 37 He replied, “Feed them yourselves.” They asked him, “Shall we go off and buy two hundred days’ wages[o] worth of bread to give them a meal?” 38 “How many loaves have you got?” he asked. “Go and look.” They checked and reported, “Five—and two fish.” 39 Then he told them to have everyone sit down in groups on the green grass. 40 So they sat down in companies, by hundreds and by fifties. 41 He took the five loaves and the two fish, looked up to heaven, spoke the blessing,[p] broke the loaves, and kept handing them to his disciples to set before the people; and he divided the two fish among them all. 42 Everyone ate and was satisfied, 43 and they picked up twelve baskets full of broken pieces of bread and of the fish. 44 The men who ate the bread came to five thousand.
45 Right away Jesus made his disciples get into the boat and go on ahead of him to the other side, to Bethsaida,[q] while he sent the crowd away. 46 After he had taken leave of them, he went up the mountain to pray. 47 Evening fell. The boat was far out on the lake, and he was by himself on the shore. 48 He saw that they were straining at the oars, since the wind was blowing against them. Sometime between three and six in the morning[r] he went out to them, walking on the lake, and was going to pass them by.[s] 49 but when they caught sight of him walking on the water, they supposed he was a phantom and screamed; 50 for they all saw him and were terrified. But at once he spoke with them and said, “Take courage! It is I.[t] Do not be afraid.” 51
Then he climbed into the boat with them, and the wind died down.
They were utterly astounded, 52 They had not grasped the meaning of the loaves; instead, their minds were closed.
53 When they had crossed over, they came to land at Gennesaret[u] and moored the boat. 54 The moment they stepped ashore, the people knew who he was. 55 and ran throughout that whole region and began to carry the sick on their mats to wherever they heard he was.
56 Wherever he went, whether to villages, towns or farms, people would set the sick down in the marketplaces and plead with him to let them touch just the tassel[v] of his cloak. Everyone who touched it was healed.

Notes

- a (6:3) Carpenter: Greek tektōn, a craftsman who worked in wood or stone, a builder. Many later manuscripts, and P45 as reported, read "the son of the carpenter" (compare Matt 13:55).
- b (6:3) Mary: Greek Maria (Mariam), from Hebrew Miryam, of uncertain meaning; suggestions include "beloved" and "bitter."
- c (6:3) Joses: a Greek form of Joseph (Hebrew, "may he add"). Matthew 13:55 has "Joseph."
- d (6:8) Small change: literally "copper (coins)."
- e (6:11) Many manuscripts add "Amen, I tell you, it will be easier for Sodom and Gomorrah on the day of judgment than for that town" (compare Matt 10:15); the Westcott–Hort text lacks it.
- f (6:14) King Herod: Herod Antipas, son of Herod the Great, ruler of Galilee and Perea (4 BC–AD 39). His official title was "tetrarch" (Matt 14:1); Mark uses the popular title "king." Herod means "heroic."
- g (6:14) People were saying: the Westcott–Hort text, with Vaticanus and some other manuscripts, has the plural; most manuscripts read "he was saying."
- h (6:15) Elijah: Hebrew, "my God is Yahweh." He was expected to return before the day of the Lord (Mal 4:5).
- i (6:17) Herodias: granddaughter of Herod the Great. According to Josephus her first husband was Herod (a son of Herod the Great), whom some identify with Philip; the tetrarch Philip married her daughter Salome.
- j (6:18) Lev 18:16; 20:21.
- k (6:20) He was greatly perplexed: the reading of Sinaiticus, Vaticanus and Westcott–Hort (Greek ēporei); most manuscripts read "he did many things" (epoiei).
- l (6:22) His daughter Herodias: the reading of Westcott–Hort with Sinaiticus and Vaticanus, which makes the girl Herod's own daughter, also named Herodias. Most manuscripts read "the daughter of Herodias herself"; Josephus names her Salome ("peace"). Noted for review.
- m (6:27) A soldier of the guard: Greek spekoulatōr, a Latin loanword for a scout or bodyguard, who also served as executioner.
- n (6:34) Num 27:17; 1 Kgs 22:17; Ezek 34:5.
- o (6:37) Two hundred days' wages: Greek "two hundred denarii." A denarius was a silver coin, the usual pay for a day's work by a laborer (Matt 20:2).
- p (6:41) Spoke the blessing: that is, gave thanks to God for the food, according to Jewish custom.
- q (6:45) Bethsaida: Aramaic, "house of fishing," a town at the northern end of the lake.

- r (6:48) Between three and six in the morning: literally “about the fourth watch of the night.” The Romans divided the night from 6 p.m. to 6 a.m. into four watches.
- s (6:48) He meant to pass by them: compare God passing by Moses and Elijah (Exod 33:19–22; 1 Kgs 19:11).
- t (6:50) It is I: Greek egō eimi, literally “I am,” which may also echo God’s self-designation (Exod 3:14; Isa 43:10).
- u (6:53) Gennesaret: a fertile plain on the northwest shore of the lake, south of Capernaum; the name may mean “garden of riches” or “harp,” of uncertain derivation.
- v (6:56) Tassel: or “fringe,” “edge”; compare Num 15:38–39.

Chapter 7

1 The Pharisees and some of the scribes who had come from Jerusalem gathered around Jesus.
2 They saw that some of his disciples were eating with hands that were unclean, meaning unwashed.
3 (The Pharisees, and indeed all the Jews, do not eat unless they wash their hands thoroughly,[a] holding fast to the tradition of the elders; 4 and when they come in from the marketplace they do not eat unless they purify themselves.[b] There are many other customs they have received and keep, such as the washing of cups, pitchers, and copper kettles.)[c] 5 So the Pharisees and scribes asked him, “Why do your disciples not live by the tradition of the elders, but eat their food with defiled hands?”
6 He answered them, “Isaiah prophesied rightly about you hypocrites, as it is written:

‘This people honors me with their lips,
but their heart stays far away from me.
7 Their worship of me is empty, for what they teach as doctrine are human rules.’[d]

8 You abandon God’s commandment and cling to human tradition.” 9 He went on, “How neatly you set aside God’s commandment in order to keep[e] your own tradition!
10 For Moses said, ‘Honor your father and your mother,’ and, ‘Whoever curses father or mother must be put to death.’[f]

11 Yet your teaching is that a man may say to his father or his mother, 'Anything of mine that could have helped you is Corban' "—meaning a gift set apart for God—[g] 12 "and after that you release him from doing anything at all for the parents who bore him.
13 In this way you make God's word void through the tradition you pass along. And many other such things you do." 14 He called the crowd over once more and told them, "Everyone, hear me and understand. 15 Nothing outside a person can make him unclean by going into him. It is the things that come out of a person that make him unclean." 16 [h] 17 When he had left the crowd and gone into the house, his disciples asked him about the parable. 18 He said to them, "Are you also so slow to understand? Do you not see that nothing that goes into a person from outside can make him unclean, 19 since it enters not his heart but his stomach, and passes out into the latrine?" (In saying this, he declared all foods clean.)[i] 20 He continued, "What comes out of a person—that is what makes him unclean. 21 For from within, out of the human heart, come evil thoughts, sexual immorality, theft, murder, 22 adultery, greed, malice, deceit, debauchery, envy,[j] slander, arrogance, and folly. 23 All these evils come from within, and they make a person unclean."
24 Jesus rose and left that place for the territory around Tyre [and Sidon].[k] He went into a house, wishing nobody to find out, but his presence could not be kept hidden. 25 In fact, a woman whose little daughter had an unclean spirit heard about him at once, and she came and fell at his feet. 26 She was a Greek-speaking Gentile,[l] born in Syrian Phoenicia,[m] and she kept pleading with him to cast the demon out of her child. 27 He said to her, "Let the children be fed first; it is not right to take the children's bread and throw it to the little dogs." 28 She replied, "Lord,[n] that is true, but even the dogs under the table feed on the scraps the children drop." 29 He said to her, "Because you have answered this way, you may go; the demon has left your daughter." 30 When she got back to her house, the child was lying on the bed and the demon had gone out.

31 Then Jesus left the district of Tyre, went through Sidon, and came to the Sea of Galilee by way of the region of the Decapolis.[o] 32 There they brought him someone who was deaf and had an impediment in his speech, and they pleaded with Jesus to place his hand upon him. 33 Taking him away from the crowd to be alone, he placed his fingers in the man's ears, then spat and touched the man's tongue. 34 Looking up to heaven, he gave a deep sigh and said to him, "Ephphatha,"[p] which means, "Be opened." 35 His ears were opened at once, his tongue was freed, and he spoke clearly. 36 Jesus ordered them to tell no one; but the more he ordered them, the more widely they proclaimed it. 37 Their astonishment knew no bounds. "Everything he does is well done," they kept saying. "He gives the deaf their hearing and the speechless their speech."[q]

Notes

- a (7:3) Thoroughly: Greek pygmē, literally "with the fist," a phrase of uncertain meaning: perhaps "with a cupped hand," "up to the wrist," or "carefully."
- b (7:4) Purify themselves: literally "sprinkle themselves" (rhantisōntai, the reading of Sinaiticus, Vaticanus and Westcott–Hort); most manuscripts read "wash" or "immerse themselves" (baptisōntai).
- c (7:4) Copper kettles: many manuscripts add "and dining couches"; the Westcott–Hort text lacks the words.
- d (7:7) Isa 29:13, in the wording of the Greek Old Testament.
- e (7:9) Keep: or "establish" (Greek stēsēte, the reading of some manuscripts); the Westcott–Hort text reads tērēsēte, "keep."
- f (7:10) Exod 20:12; Deut 5:16; Exod 21:17; Lev 20:9.
- g (7:11) Corban: Hebrew qorban, "offering," a gift dedicated to God and so withdrawn from ordinary use; the vow could be used to deny support to one's parents.
- h (7:16) Verse 16 is lacking in the Westcott–Hort text, with Sinaiticus, Vaticanus and other early witnesses. Many later manuscripts add, "If anyone has ears to hear, let that person hear" (compare 4:9, 23).
- i (7:19) He declared all foods clean: literally "cleansing all foods." The words are best taken as Mark's comment. Most later manuscripts read the neuter katharizon, which would attach the phrase to the latrine ("which purges all foods").
- j (7:22) Envy: literally "an evil eye."
- k (7:24) Tyre [and Sidon]: the words "and Sidon" are bracketed in the Westcott–Hort text; Codex Bezae and some other manuscripts lack them, possibly because they came in from Matt 15:21.
- l (7:26) Greek-speaking Gentile: literally "Greek," meaning a non-Jew.

- m (7:26) Syrian Phoenicia: Greek Syrophoinikissa, “Syrophoenician,” from Phoenicia, which belonged to the Roman province of Syria, as distinct from Libyan Phoenicia (Carthage).
- n (7:28) Lord: or “Sir”; Greek kyrie was also a polite form of address.
- o (7:31) Many later manuscripts read “Leaving the region of Tyre and Sidon, he came to the Sea of Galilee.”
- p (7:34) Compare Isa 35:5–6.
- q (7:37) Ephphatha: Aramaic, probably ethpattach (or ephattach), “be opened,” transliterated in Greek.

Chapter 8

1 About that time another vast crowd had collected, and they had nothing to eat. Jesus called his disciples to him and said, 2 “My heart goes out to these people. They have been with me for three days now and have nothing left to eat. 3 If I dismiss them to go home with empty stomachs, they will collapse along the way, and some of them have traveled from far away.” 4 His disciples answered, “Where could anyone get enough bread out here in the wilds to satisfy these people?” 5 “How many loaves do you have?” he asked. “Seven,” they said. 6 He told the crowd to sit down on the ground. Then he took the seven loaves and gave thanks. He broke them and gave them to his disciples to hand out, and they distributed them to the people. 7 They also had a few small fish; after blessing them, he told the disciples to serve these too. 8 The people ate their fill, and they gathered up seven large baskets[a] of leftover pieces. 9 About four thousand were there.
Then he sent them on their way. 10 Right away he boarded the boat together with his disciples and came into the parts of Dalmanutha.[b] 11 Out came the Pharisees and began disputing with him, asking him for a heavenly sign as a way of testing him. 12 Groaning from deep within, he said, “Why does this generation demand a sign? Truly I tell you, no sign will be given to this generation.”[c] 13 Leaving them, he embarked once more and crossed to the opposite shore.
14 Now the disciples had neglected to take any bread along; apart from a single loaf, they had none in the boat. 15 Jesus warned them, “Watch out—be on your guard against the yeast of the Pharisees and the yeast of Herod.”[d] 16 They kept saying to each other that it was because they were without bread. 17 Jesus knew what they were saying and asked, “Why talk about being out of bread? Do you not yet perceive or comprehend? Have your hearts grown hard? 18 You have eyes—can you not see? You have ears—can you not hear?[e] And do you not remember? 19 At the breaking of the five loaves for the five thousand, how many basketfuls of leftovers did you pick up?” They replied, “Twelve.” 20 “And at the seven for the four thousand, how many hampers of leftovers did you fill?” “Seven,” they answered.

21 “Even now you fail to understand?” he said to them.
22 They reached Bethsaida. There some people led a blind man to Jesus and implored him to lay a hand on him. 23 He took the blind man by the hand and led him out of the village. When he had spat on his eyes and laid his hands on him, he asked him, “Do you see anything?” 24 Looking up, the man said, “I can see people—they look to me like trees moving about.” 25 Then Jesus once more placed his hands on the man’s eyes. He looked intently, his sight was restored, and he saw everything clearly. 26 He sent the man back to his house with the words, “Do not enter the village at all.”[f] 27 Then Jesus went out with his disciples to the villages near Caesarea Philippi,[g] and as they traveled he put a question to them: “Who do people say that I am?” 28 They answered him, “John the Baptizer; others say Elijah; and still others, one of the prophets.” 29 He questioned them: “And you, who do you say that I am?” Peter replied, “You are the Messiah.”[h] 30 And he warned them sternly not to tell anyone about him.
31 Then he began to teach them that the Son of Man must suffer many things and be rejected by the elders, the chief priests, and the scribes, and be put to death, and after three days rise again. 32 He was speaking about this quite openly. Peter took him aside and began to rebuke him. 33 But Jesus, turning and looking at his disciples, rebuked Peter.
“Get behind me, Satan!”[i] he said. “Your mind is not on God’s concerns but on human ones.”
34 Summoning the crowd together with his disciples, he told them, “Anyone who wishes to come after me must renounce self, pick up their cross, and walk with me. 35 Anyone set on saving his life[j] will lose it; but if someone loses his life on account of me and the gospel, that person will keep it safe.[k] 36 What good does it do a person to gain the whole world and forfeit his life? 37 Indeed, what can a person give in exchange for his life? 38 For if anyone is embarrassed by me and my words among this unfaithful and sinful generation, the Son of Man will be embarrassed by that person when he arrives in his Father's glory, accompanied by the holy angels."

Notes

- a (8:8) Large baskets: Greek spyris, a large woven basket or hamper, distinct from the smaller kophinos of 6:43 (compare 8:19–20).
- b (8:10) Dalmanutha: an unknown place, apparently on the western shore of the lake. Some manuscripts read "Magadan" or "Magdala" (compare Matt 15:39).
- c (8:12) No sign will be given: literally "if a sign will be given," a Hebrew form of oath meaning "certainly not."
- d (8:15) Yeast of Herod: P45 (as reported), Koridethi (Θ) and some others read "the yeast of the Herodians."
- e (8:18) Jer 5:21; Ezek 12:2.
- f (8:26) Do not even go into the village: many manuscripts add "or tell anyone in the village."
- g (8:27) Caesarea Philippi: a city near the sources of the Jordan, rebuilt by the tetrarch Philip and named in honor of Caesar Augustus and himself.
- h (8:29) Messiah: Greek Christos, "anointed one."
- i (8:33) Satan: Hebrew, "adversary." Peter is acting as an adversary, opposing God's purpose.
- j (8:35) Life: Greek psychē, "life," "soul," "self"; so in verses 35–37.
- k (8:35) On account of me and the gospel: the words "me and" are bracketed in the Westcott–Hort text; P45 (as reported) and Codex Bezae lack them.

Chapter 9

1 And he said to them, "Amen, I tell you, there are some standing here who will not taste death until they have seen God's kingdom come in power."

2 After six days Jesus took along Peter, James, and John, and brought them up a lofty mountain, privately, with no one else present. There his appearance was changed[a] in front of them, 3 and his clothes became dazzling, intensely white, whiter than any bleacher[b] on earth could make them. 4 Elijah appeared to them together with Moses,[c] and the two were talking with Jesus. 5 Peter spoke up and said to Jesus, "Rabbi,[d] how good it is that we are here! Let us put up three shelters—one for you, one for Moses, and one for Elijah." 6 He hardly knew how to respond, since they were frightened. 7 Then a cloud came and cast its shadow over them, and a voice came out of the cloud: "This is my Son, the one I love. Listen to him!"[e] 8 All at once, looking about them, they saw nobody there anymore, only Jesus by himself with them.

9 As they were coming down the mountain, he instructed them to tell nobody what they had seen until the Son of Man had risen from the dead. 10 They kept the matter to themselves, debating among themselves what this "rising from the dead" might mean. 11 And they put a question to him: "Why do the scribes say that Elijah must come first?"[f] 12 He answered, "Elijah does come first, to set everything right.
But why then is it written about the Son of Man that he must endure great suffering and be rejected?[g] 13 I assure you, Elijah has already come, and people treated him however they liked, exactly as the Scriptures say of him."
14 On reaching the rest of the disciples, they found a big crowd surrounding them, and scribes engaged in debate with them. 15 As soon as the crowd saw Jesus, they were all overcome with amazement and ran up to greet him. 16 "What is this dispute you are having with them?" he asked. 17 A man from the crowd replied, "Teacher, I have brought you my boy. A spirit has taken his speech from him. 18 Whenever it takes hold of him, it hurls him to the ground; he foams at the mouth, grinds his teeth, and becomes rigid. I asked your disciples to cast it out, but they did not have the power." 19 Jesus responded, "Faithless generation! How much longer am I to be among you? How much longer must I bear with you? Bring the boy here to me." 20 So they brought the boy. As soon as the spirit caught sight of Jesus, it shook the child violently, and he dropped to the ground and kept rolling around, frothing at the mouth. 21 Jesus questioned the boy's father: "For how long has this been going on?" He replied, "From childhood. 22 "Many times it has thrown him into fire or into water to destroy him. But if you are able to do anything, take pity on us and help us!" 23 Jesus replied, " 'If you are able'?[h] For someone who trusts, nothing is impossible." 24 Immediately the boy's father shouted, "I do believe! Come to the aid of my lack of faith!" 25 Seeing that a crowd was rushing toward them, Jesus scolded the unclean spirit: “Deaf and mute spirit, I order you: leave him, and do not ever go into him again!” 26 The spirit shrieked, threw the boy into fierce spasms, and left him.

He lay there like a dead body, so that most of the people said he had died. 27 But Jesus took him by the hand and lifted him, and he stood up. 28 After he had entered a house, his disciples asked him in private, “Why were we unable to expel it?” 29 He said to them, “Only prayer can drive out this sort.”[i] 30 Leaving that district, they traveled on through Galilee, and he wished nobody to find out, 31 since he was instructing his disciples.
“The Son of Man,” he told them, “is to be delivered into the hands of men; they will put him to death, and when he has been killed, on the third day after, he will rise.” 32 But what he was saying was beyond them, and they were afraid to question him about it.
33 They arrived at Capernaum. Once inside the house, he asked them, “What were you arguing about on the way?” 34 They were silent, since along the way they had been disputing with each other over which of them was greatest. 35 Sitting down, he called the Twelve and told them, “Anyone who wishes to come first must take the last place of all and be the servant of everyone.” 36 Then he took a little child and stood the child among them; and taking the child in his arms, he said to them, 37 “Anyone who receives a child like this one in my name is receiving me; and anyone who receives me is receiving, not me, but the One who sent me.”
38 John said to him, “Teacher, we came across a man driving out demons by using your name, and we kept trying to prevent him, since he was not one of our followers.” 39 Jesus answered, “Do not hinder him. Nobody who performs a miracle in my name will be quick to speak badly of me afterward. 40 For whoever is not against us is for us.
41 Truly I tell you, whoever hands you a drink of water because you are Christ’s will by no means forfeit a reward.
42 “Whoever causes one of these little ones who believe in me[j] to fall into sin would do better to have a huge millstone[k] tied around the neck and be thrown into the sea. 43 Should your hand trip you up, cut it off. Better that you go into life crippled than keep both hands and depart into Gehenna,[l] to the fire nothing can put out. [44] [m] [45] And should your foot trip you up, cut it off. Better that you go into life limping than keep both feet and be cast into Gehenna. [46] [n] [47] And should your eye trip you up, pull it out. Better that you go into God's kingdom one-eyed than keep both eyes and be cast into Gehenna, [48] where the worm that feeds on them never dies, and the fire never goes out.[o] [49] For everyone will be salted with fire.[p] [50] Salt is fine. But if it goes flat, how can you restore its flavor? Keep salt among yourselves, and live in peace with each other."

Notes

- a (9:2) His appearance was changed: Greek metamorphōthē, traditionally "transfigured."
- b (9:3) Bleacher: Greek gnapheus, a fuller, who cleaned and whitened cloth.
- c (9:4) Elijah … Moses: representing the Prophets and the Law. Moses is explained in Exod 2:10 as "drawn out."
- d (9:5) Rabbi: Hebrew, "my great one," "my master," a respectful title for a teacher.
- e (9:7) Ps 2:7; Deut 18:15; compare Isa 42:1.
- f (9:11) Mal 4:5–6 (3:23–24 in Hebrew).
- g (9:12) Compare Isa 53:3; Ps 22:6–7.
- h (9:23) 'If you are able'!: Jesus repeats the father's words. Many later manuscripts read "If you can believe, all things are possible to one who believes."
- i (9:29) Through prayer: many manuscripts add "and fasting"; the Westcott–Hort text, with the first hand of Sinaiticus and Vaticanus, lacks the words.
- j (9:42) Who believe: many manuscripts add "in me."
- k (9:42) A great millstone: literally "a donkey's millstone," the large upper stone of a mill turned by a donkey.
- l (9:43) Gehenna: Greek form of Hebrew Ge-Hinnom, "Valley of Hinnom," a ravine south of Jerusalem once used for child sacrifice (Jer 7:31) and later a symbol of the place of final judgment. In verse 45 many manuscripts add "into the fire nothing can put out."
- m (9:44) Verse 44 is lacking in the Westcott–Hort text and the earliest manuscripts (Sinaiticus, Vaticanus and others). Many later manuscripts add, "where their worm does not die and the fire is not quenched," repeated from verse 48.
- n (9:46) Verse 46 is lacking in the Westcott–Hort text and the earliest manuscripts. Many later manuscripts repeat verse 48 here as well ("where their worm does not die and the fire is not quenched").
- o (9:48) Isa 66:24.
- p (9:49) Many manuscripts add "and every sacrifice will be salted with salt" (compare Lev 2:13); Codex Bezae has this clause instead of the other. The Westcott–Hort text has the shorter reading.

Chapter 10

1 Setting out from there, Jesus went into the territory of Judea and beyond the Jordan.[a] Again crowds gathered to him, and as was his habit, he taught them once more. 2 Some Pharisees[b] came up and, to test him, asked whether a man is permitted to divorce his wife. 3 He answered by asking, "What instruction did Moses give you?" 4 They said, "Moses allowed a man to write out a certificate of divorce and send her away."[c] 5 Jesus told them, "It was because your hearts were hard that he wrote you this command. 6 But from the start of creation, 'male and female he made them.'[d] 7 'For this reason a man will leave his father and mother,[e] 8 and the two will become one flesh.' So they are two no longer, but a single flesh. 9 What God has yoked together, then, no human being should split apart." 10 Once they were indoors again, the disciples asked him about it. 11 He said to them, "Any man who divorces his wife and weds another woman commits adultery against her; 12 and if she divorces her husband and weds another man, she commits adultery."

13 People kept bringing little children to Jesus for him to touch, but the disciples scolded them. 14 When Jesus saw this, he was indignant.
"Let the little children come to me," he told them. "Do not hold them back, for God's kingdom belongs to such as these. 15 Amen, I tell you, anyone who will not receive God's kingdom as a little child receives it will never get into it." 16 And he gathered them into his arms and blessed them, laying his hands on them.

17 As Jesus was starting out on his way, a man ran up, knelt in front of him, and asked, "Good Teacher, what must I do to inherit everlasting life?" 18 "Why call me good?" Jesus replied. "Nobody is good except one—God. 19 You know the commands: 'You shall not kill; you shall not commit adultery; you shall not steal; you shall not give false evidence; you shall not defraud; respect your father and mother.' "[f] 20
"Teacher," he said, "I have kept all of these since I was young." 21 Jesus fixed his eyes on him and loved him. "One thing you still lack," he told him. "Go, sell whatever you possess and give to the poor, and you will have treasure in heaven. Then come, follow me." 22 At these words the man's face fell, and he went off grieving, for he owned great estates.

23 Jesus looked around and said to his disciples, “How hard it will be for the wealthy to enter God’s kingdom!” 24 The disciples were startled at his words. But Jesus said to them again, “Children, how hard it is to enter God’s kingdom![g] 25 A camel can squeeze through the eye of a needle more easily than a wealthy person can enter the kingdom of God.” 26 They were astonished beyond measure and said to one another, “Then who can be saved?” 27 Jesus gazed at them and said, “For mortals this cannot be done, but not for God; everything is possible for God.”[h] 28 Peter started to say to him, “Consider that we have left everything behind and have followed you.” 29 Jesus said, “Amen, I tell you, there is no one who has left house or brothers or sisters or mother or father or children or fields for my sake and for the gospel 30 will receive a hundredfold now, in this very age—houses, brothers and sisters, mothers and children, and farms, though with persecutions—and, in the age to come, life without end. 31 But many who are first will be last, and the last will be first.” 32 They were traveling the road up to Jerusalem, and Jesus was in front.
The disciples were amazed, and those trailing behind were fearful.
Again he took the Twelve apart from the others and began to explain what would happen to him. 33 “Listen,” he said, “we are going up to Jerusalem, and the Son of Man will be handed over to the chief priests and the scribes. They will condemn him to death and hand him over to the Gentiles, 34 They will mock him, spit on him, flog him and kill him, and after three days he will rise.” 35 Then James and John, Zebedee’s sons, approached him. “Teacher,” they said, “we want you to do for us whatever we ask of you.” 36
“What do you want me to do for you?” he asked them. 37 They replied, “Allow us to sit with you in your glory, one at your right hand and one at your left.” 38 Jesus said to them, “You have no idea what you are asking. Can you drink the cup I am drinking, or be baptized with the baptism I am being baptized with?”[i] 39 “We are able,” they answered.
Then Jesus told them, “You will drink the cup that I drink, and you will undergo the baptism that I undergo; 40 but who sits at my right or my left is not for me to grant; those places belong to the ones for whom they are prepared.” 41 When the ten heard about it, they began to be indignant with James and John. 42 Jesus called them together and said to them, "You know that those regarded as rulers of the Gentiles lord it over them, and their great ones exercise power over them. 43 It is not to be that way among you. Instead, anyone who wants to become great among you must be your servant, 44 and whoever would hold first place among you is to be everybody's slave. 45 For the Son of Man himself did not come to be served but to serve, and to give his life as a ransom[j] for many."

46 They came to Jericho.[k] As Jesus was leaving Jericho with his disciples and a sizable crowd, the son of Timaeus, Bartimaeus,[l] a blind beggar, was sitting beside the road. 47 Hearing that it was Jesus of Nazareth,[m] he began to shout, "Son of David,[n] Jesus, have mercy on me!" 48 Many rebuked him, telling him to keep quiet, but he only cried out more loudly, "Son of David, take pity on me!" 49 Jesus stopped and said, "Call him." So they called the blind man, saying, "Cheer up! Get up—he is calling you." 50 He threw off his cloak, jumped to his feet, and went to Jesus. 51 Jesus asked him, "What do you want me to do for you?" The blind man said, "Rabbouni,[o] let me see again." 52 Jesus told him, "Go; your faith has made you well." Instantly he could see, and he followed Jesus along the road.

Notes

- a (10:1) Beyond the Jordan: that is, Perea, east of the river. Many manuscripts read "by way of the far side of the Jordan."
- b (10:2) Some Pharisees: the words are bracketed by Westcott–Hort; Codex Bezae and some Old Latin manuscripts lack them, giving "people asked him."
- c (10:4) Deut 24:1–4.
- d (10:6) Gen 1:27; 5:2.
- e (10:7) Gen 2:24. Many manuscripts add "and be united to his wife"; the Westcott–Hort text, with Sinaiticus and Vaticanus, lacks the words.
- f (10:19) Exod 20:12–16; Deut 5:16–20. Do not cheat may reflect Deut 24:14 or Exod 20:17.
- g (10:24) Many manuscripts read "how hard it is for those who trust in riches to enter God's kingdom"; the Westcott–Hort text, with Sinaiticus and Vaticanus, lacks the phrase.
- h (10:27) Compare Gen 18:14; Job 42:2.
- i (10:38) The cup … the baptism: images for suffering and death (compare 14:36; Ps 75:8; Isa 51:17).

- j (10:45) Ransom: Greek lytron, the price paid to free a slave or captive. Compare Isa 53:10–12.
- k (10:46) Jericho: Hebrew Yericho, perhaps "moon city" or "fragrant place," about 15 miles (24 km) northeast of Jerusalem.
- l (10:46) Bartimaeus: Aramaic bar Timai, "son of Timaeus," as Mark explains. Timaeus may come from Greek timē, "honor," or from Aramaic, "unclean," "defiled."
- m (10:47) Jesus of Nazareth: literally "the Nazarene."
- n (10:47) Son of David: a messianic title (2 Sam 7:12–16; Isa 11:1).
- o (10:51) Rabbouni: Aramaic, "my master," "my teacher," a more emphatic form of Rabbi.

Chapter 11

1 As they drew close to Jerusalem, near Bethphage[a] and Bethany[b] at the Mount of Olives,[c] Jesus sent off two of his disciples 2 telling them, "Go to the village opposite you. Just as you go in, you will come upon a young donkey tethered there, one nobody has yet sat on. Untie it and lead it here.
3 If anybody asks you, 'Why are you doing that?' say, 'The Lord[d] needs it, and he will send it back here without delay.' " 4 Off they went, and they came upon a colt tethered by a doorway out on the street, and they set it loose.
5 Some of the bystanders said to them, "What do you mean by untying that colt?"
6 They answered as Jesus had told them, and the people let them go.
7 Then they led the colt to Jesus, laid their cloaks over it, and Jesus mounted it.
8 Many people laid their coats along the road, and others strewed branches cut from the fields.
9 The people in front and the people behind were crying out, "Hosanna![e]
Blessed is he who comes in the name of the Lord![f] 10 Blessed is the coming kingdom of our father David!
Hosanna in the highest heaven!"
11 Entering Jerusalem, he went to the temple and surveyed everything there; then, because the hour was late, he went back out with the Twelve to Bethany.

12 On the following day, when they had left Bethany, he felt hungry.
13 Seeing in the distance a fig tree in leaf, he went to check whether it had any fruit. When he reached it he found only foliage, for the season for figs had not yet come.[g] 14 He said to the tree, "Let no one eat your fruit ever again." His disciples were listening.
15 They reached Jerusalem, and Jesus entered the temple precincts and started to expel the sellers and buyers who were doing business there.
He knocked over the tables of the money changers[h] and the benches of the dove sellers, 16 and he would not allow anyone to carry goods through the temple courts. 17 He taught them: "Does Scripture not say, 'My house shall be called a house of prayer for every nation'?[i] Yet you have made it a robbers' den."[j] 18 The chief priests and scribes learned of this and searched for some means of doing away with him.
They were afraid of him, for the entire crowd was astonished at his teaching. 19 And each evening they[k] would leave the city.
20 Early in the morning, as they passed by, they saw the fig tree withered from the roots up. 21 Peter remembered and said to him, "Rabbi, look! The fig tree you cursed has withered." 22 Jesus answered them, "Have faith in God.[l] 23 Amen, I tell you, should anyone say to this mountain, 'Rise up and hurl yourself into the sea,' and have no doubt in his heart, but trust that what he says is happening, it will be so for him. 24 For this reason I say to you: whatever you ask for in prayer, believe that you have already received it, and it will be yours.
25 And whenever you stand up to pray, forgive whatever grievance you have against someone, so that your Father in heaven may also forgive your wrongdoings." 26 [m] 27 Once more they arrived in Jerusalem. While Jesus was strolling in the temple precincts, the chief priests, scribes, and elders approached him 28 They asked him, "On what authority do you do these things?
Or who authorized you to do them?" 29 Jesus said to them, "I will ask you one question. Answer me, and I will tell you on what authority I act in this way. 30 John's baptism—was it from heaven or from human beings? Answer me." 31 They argued among themselves, "If we say, 'From heaven,' he will say, 'Then why did you not believe him?' 32 But should we say, 'From human beings'?"—they were afraid of the people, for everyone held that John had truly been a prophet. [33] So their answer to Jesus was, "We cannot say." Jesus replied, "Then I will not tell you either on what authority I am doing these things."

Notes

- a (11:1) Bethphage: Aramaic, "house of unripe figs," a village on the Mount of Olives.
- b (11:1) Bethany: perhaps "house of the poor" or "house of Ananiah," a village about 2 miles (3 km) east of Jerusalem.
- c (11:1) Mount of Olives: the ridge east of Jerusalem across the Kidron Valley (compare Zech 14:4).
- d (11:3) The Lord: or "its master." The Greek kyrios can mean "Lord" or "owner."
- e (11:9) Hosanna: Hebrew hoshi'ah na, "save, please!" (Ps 118:25), which had become a shout of praise.
- f (11:9) Ps 118:26. In the Hebrew text, "the Lord" is Yahweh.
- g (11:13) Compare Jer 8:13; Hos 9:10; Mic 7:1.
- h (11:15) Money changers: they exchanged foreign coins for the Tyrian silver coins required for paying the temple tax.
- i (11:17) Isa 56:7. All the nations: or "all the Gentiles."
- j (11:17) Jer 7:11. Hideout for robbers: literally "a cave of bandits."
- k (11:19) They: Alexandrinus, Vaticanus and some others, followed by Westcott–Hort, read "they"; Sinaiticus and many manuscripts read "he."
- l (11:22) Have faith in God: or "Have the faith that comes from God." Sinaiticus, Bezae and a few others read "If you have faith in God."
- m (11:26) Verse 26 is lacking in the Westcott–Hort text and in the earliest manuscripts (Sinaiticus, Vaticanus and others). Many later manuscripts add, "But if you do not forgive, neither will your Father in heaven forgive your wrongdoings" (compare Matt 6:15).

Chapter 12

[1] Then he began to speak to them in parables: "A man planted a vineyard, put a wall around it, dug a pit for the winepress, and built a watchtower.[a] He leased it to tenant farmers and went abroad.

[2] At harvest time he dispatched a slave to the farmers to receive his share of the grapes from them.

[3] But they grabbed him, beat him, and sent him off with nothing.

[4] Again he sent them another slave. This one they struck on the head and treated shamefully.

[5] He sent still another, and that one they murdered. He sent many more; some they beat and some they killed.

6 He still had one left to send, a son he dearly loved. Last of all he sent him to them, thinking, 'They will have regard for my son.' 7 But those tenants said to one another, 'Here is the heir! Come on, we will kill him, and the inheritance will belong to us.' 8 So they seized him and killed him, and flung him outside the vineyard.
9 What then will the vineyard's owner do? He will come and destroy those tenants, and hand the vineyard over to others.
10 Have you never read this scripture:
'The stone the builders rejected as worthless has turned out to be the chief cornerstone.
11 This came about from the Lord,[b] and it is a marvel in our eyes'?"[c] 12 They were looking for a way to lay hands on him, for they knew the parable had been told against them; yet they feared the crowd. So they let him be and departed.
13 Next they sent to him some of the Pharisees and Herodians,[d] to catch him out in something he said. 14 They came to him and said, "Teacher, we know you are truthful and do not bow to anyone, since you pay no attention to a person's status but teach God's way truthfully. Does the Law permit paying the census tax[e] to Caesar, or not? Are we to pay or not to pay?" 15 Seeing through their pretense, he replied, "Why are you testing me? Fetch me a silver coin[f] and let me have a look." 16 They brought one, and he asked them, "Whose likeness is this, and whose inscription?" "Caesar's," they told him. 17 Jesus said to them, "What belongs to Caesar, give back to Caesar, and what belongs to God, give to God." And they were utterly amazed at him.
18 Then some Sadducees[g] came to him—the people who say there is no resurrection—and put a question to him. 19 "Teacher," they said, "Moses laid down for us in writing: should a man die childless, leaving a widow, his brother is to marry her and produce descendants for the dead man.[h] 20 Now there were seven brothers. The first took a wife and died without leaving any children. 21 The second took her, and he too died leaving no children; the third likewise. 22 Not one of the seven had children by her. Finally the woman herself died. 23 In the resurrection, when they rise, whose wife will she be? The seven of them all had her as wife." 24 Jesus told them, "Surely this is why you are wrong: you are ignorant both of the scriptures and of the power of God. 25 For when people rise from among the dead, men do not marry and women are not given in marriage; they are like the angels in heaven. 26 And as for the dead being raised, have you not read in the book of Moses, in the passage about the bush,[i] how God spoke to him, saying, 'I am the God of Abraham, the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob'?[j] 27 He is not God of corpses but of the living. You are badly mistaken."

28 One of the scribes came up and heard them debating. Seeing that Jesus had answered them well, he asked him, "Which commandment ranks first of all?" 29 Jesus answered, "The first is this: 'Hear, Israel: the Lord our God, the Lord is one.[k] 30 love the Lord[l] your God with your whole heart, your whole soul, your whole mind and your whole strength.'[m] 31 The second is this: 'You shall love your neighbor as you love yourself.'[n] No other commandment is greater than these." 32 The scribe said to him, "Teacher, you have spoken well. You are right that God is one and there is no other besides him, 33 And to love him with one's whole heart, whole understanding, and whole strength, and to love one's neighbor as oneself, outweighs all the whole burnt offerings and sacrifices."[o] 34 When Jesus saw how thoughtfully he had replied, he said to him, "You are not far from God's kingdom." And after that nobody dared to question him any more.

35 While teaching in the temple, Jesus took up the matter and asked, "How can the scribes claim that the Messiah is David's son?

36 It was David himself who said, moved by the Holy Spirit:

'The Lord said to my lord,
"Take your seat at my right hand until I put your enemies beneath your feet." '[p]

37 David himself calls him 'lord'; so how can he be his son?" And the great crowd listened to him with delight.

38 In his teaching he said, "Be on your guard against the scribes, who like to parade about in long robes and to be greeted with deference in the marketplaces, 39 and who want the chief seats in the synagogues and the places of honor at banquets. [40] They swallow up widows' houses and, for show, pray at great length. These will receive the heavier sentence."

[41] He sat down across from the treasury[q] and watched how the crowd dropped money into the offering chests. Many rich people were putting in large sums. [42] Then a poor widow came and dropped in two tiny copper coins, together worth only a sixty-fourth of a day's wage.[r] [43] He called the disciples over and told them, "Amen, I say to you: more has gone into the treasury from this destitute widow than from all the rest. [44] For they all gave out of their surplus, but she, out of her want, put in everything she possessed—all she had to live on."

Notes

- a (12:1) Vineyard ... lookout tower: the description echoes Isa 5:1–2.
- b (12:11) The Lord: Greek kyrios; in Ps 118:23 the Hebrew has the divine name, Yahweh.
- c (12:11) Ps 118:22–23.
- d (12:13) Herodians: supporters of the dynasty of Herod, here allied with the Pharisees as in 3:6.
- e (12:14) Poll tax: Greek kēnsos (Latin census), the head tax paid directly to Rome.
- f (12:15) Silver coin: Greek dēnarion, the Roman denarius, a day's wage for a laborer, bearing the emperor's image.
- g (12:18) Sadducees: a priestly party that accepted only the written law as binding and denied the resurrection; the name is probably derived from Zadok, the priest of David and Solomon (2 Sam 8:17).
- h (12:19) Deut 25:5–6 (levirate marriage); compare Gen 38:8.
- i (12:26) The bush: Exod 3:1–6, the burning bush.
- j (12:26) Exod 3:6, 15.
- k (12:29) Deut 6:4, the Shema (from its first word, "Hear"). Both occurrences of "Lord" stand for the divine name, Yahweh, in the Hebrew. Israel means "he strives with God" (Gen 32:28).
- l (12:30) The Lord: in Deut 6:5 the Hebrew has Yahweh.
- m (12:30) Deut 6:5. Mark lists four faculties (heart, soul, mind, strength) where the Hebrew has three.
- n (12:31) Lev 19:18.
- o (12:33) Compare 1 Sam 15:22; Hos 6:6.
- p (12:36) Ps 110:1. The first "Lord" stands for the divine name, Yahweh, in the Hebrew; the second ("my lord") translates adoni, a title of honor.

- q (12:41) Treasury: the thirteen trumpet-shaped offering chests in the Court of the Women.
- r (12:42) Two tiny copper coins: Greek lepta duo, "two lepta," the smallest copper coins in circulation; Mark adds, "which make a kodrantēs" (Latin quadrans), one sixty-fourth of a denarius, the denarius being a laborer's day's wage.

Chapter 13

1 As he was leaving the temple, one of his disciples said to him, "Teacher, look! What enormous stones, what splendid buildings!" 2 Jesus answered him, "You see these great structures? Not a single stone will be left here upon another; every one will be pulled down." 3 Peter, James, John and Andrew asked him privately as he was sitting on the Mount of Olives opposite the temple: 4 "Tell us, when is this to happen? And what will be the signal that all these things are about to reach their completion?" 5 Jesus began to tell them, "Take care that nobody leads you astray. 6 Many will come using my name, claiming,
'I am he,'[a] and they will lead many astray. 7 When you hear the noise of battles and rumors of wars, do not be alarmed. These things have to happen, but that is not yet the finish. 8 One nation will rise against another, and one kingdom against another. There will be earthquakes in many places, and famines. These things are just the beginning of the labor pains.
9 "As for you, be on your guard. They will hand you over to councils,[b] and you will be flogged in synagogues; you will stand before governors and kings on my account, to bear witness to them. 10 And first the good news must be proclaimed among all the nations. 11 Whenever they arrest you and bring you to trial, do not fret beforehand about what you will say; just say whatever is given you at that moment, for it is not you who speak but the Holy Spirit. 12 Brothers will betray brothers to death, and fathers their children; children will rise against parents and have them put to death. 13 Everyone will hate you because of my name. But whoever holds out to the end will be saved.
14 "When you see the desolating abomination[c] standing where he ought not to be—let the reader take note—then those in Judea must escape to the hills. 15 Anyone on the rooftop must not go down or go inside to fetch anything out of the house; 16 anyone out in the field must not turn back to pick up a cloak. 17 How hard it will be in those days for women expecting a child and for mothers with babies at the breast! 18 Pray that it does not happen in winter. 19 For those days will bring distress such as has never been from the beginning of the creation God made until now, and never will be again. 20 Had the Lord not cut short those days, no living being would survive; but for the sake of the chosen, whom he has chosen for himself, he has cut the days short. 21 And at that time, if anyone says to you, 'Look, the Messiah is here!' or 'Look, he is there!' do not believe it. 22 For pretended messiahs and pretended prophets will arise and work signs and marvels, aiming to deceive even the chosen, were that possible.

23 So keep watch; I have forewarned you of everything.
24 "But in those days, after that time of distress,
'the sun will grow dark,
and the moon will not shed its light; 25 the stars will be falling out of the sky, and the powers in the heavens will be shaken.'[d] 26 Then they will see the Son of Man coming in clouds[e] with great power and glory.
27 And then he will send out the angels and gather [his] chosen ones from the four winds, from the farthest edge of the earth to the farthest edge of the sky.
28 "Learn the lesson from the fig tree. As soon as its branch turns tender and puts out leaves, you know summer is close. 29 So it is with you: when you see these things taking place, know that he[f] is near, right at the doors. 30 Amen, I tell you, this generation will not pass away before all these things have happened. 31 Sky and earth will pass away, but my words will never pass away.
32 "But that day or hour nobody knows—not the angels in heaven, nor the Son,[g] but only the Father. 33 Be on the lookout and keep alert, since the appointed moment is unknown to you.[h] 34 It is like a man away on a journey, who leaves his house and puts his slaves in charge, each with his own task, and orders the doorkeeper to keep awake. 35 Stay awake, then, because the master of the house may return at any time unknown to you—late in the evening, at midnight, at cockcrow, or early in the morning.[i] 36 Otherwise he may come without warning and find you sleeping. 37 What I say to you I say to everyone: Keep awake!"

Notes

- a (13:6) I am he: literally "I am," perhaps echoing the divine self-designation (Exod 3:14; Isa 43:10).
- b (13:9) Councils: Greek synedria, local Jewish courts.
- c (13:14) Desolating abomination: literally "the abomination of desolation," Dan 9:27; 11:31; 12:11; compare 1 Macc 1:54. The participle "standing" is masculine, suggesting a person.
- d (13:25) Isa 13:10; 34:4; compare Joel 2:10.
- e (13:26) Coming in clouds: Dan 7:13.
- f (13:29) He: or "it."
- g (13:32) Nor the Son: these words, present in all the major manuscripts of Mark, are omitted in some late manuscripts of Matt 24:36.
- h (13:33) The appointed moment is unknown to you: literally "you do not know when the time is"; Westcott–Hort bracket "is" (estin). Many manuscripts add "and pray" after "keep alert" (Sinaiticus and others); Vaticanus and Bezae lack it.
- i (13:35) Late in the evening … early in the morning: the four Roman watches of the night, roughly six to nine in the evening, nine to midnight, midnight to three, and three to six in the morning.

Chapter 14

1 Two days remained until the Passover and the feast of Unleavened Bread.[a] Meanwhile the chief priests and scribes were seeking a way to seize Jesus by a trick and put him to death. 2 For they said, "Not at the feast, in case there is an uproar among the people." 3 He was at Bethany in the house of Simon the leper,[b] sitting at the table, when a woman arrived with an alabaster jar of very expensive perfume, pure nard.[c] She broke the jar open and poured the perfume on his head. 4 Some of those present grumbled indignantly to one another, "What was the point of squandering the ointment like this?
5 It could have been sold for over three hundred days' wages[d] and the money given to the poor." And they spoke sharply to her. 6 But Jesus said, "Leave her alone. Why are you making trouble for her? She has done a beautiful thing for me. 7 The poor you always have among you, and you can do good to them [always] whenever you wish; but me you will not always have. 8 She has done what lay in her power:
she has anointed my body ahead of time for its burial. 9 Amen, I tell you, in every part of the world where the good news is preached, her deed too will be spoken of, so that she is remembered." 10 Judas Iscariot,[e] who was one of the Twelve, went to the chief priests in order to hand Jesus over to them. 11 They were delighted to hear it and promised to pay him in silver. So he kept looking for a convenient opportunity to hand him over.

12 On the first day of the Unleavened Bread, the day the Passover lambs were slaughtered, his disciples said to him, "Where would you like us to go and get things ready for you to eat the Passover meal?" 13 He sent two of his disciples with these instructions: "Go into the city, and a man carrying a clay jar of water will meet you. Follow him, 14 and whatever house he enters, tell its master, 'The Teacher says: Where is the room set aside for me, so that I can eat the Passover there with my disciples?' 15 He himself will point out to you a spacious room upstairs, already furnished with couches. Get things ready for us there." 16 The disciples set out, came into the city, and found everything just as he had told them; and they prepared the Passover.
17 When evening came, he arrived with the Twelve. 18 And as they reclined at the meal, Jesus said, "Amen, I tell you, one of you will betray me—one who is eating with me."[f] 19 Grief came over them, and one after another they began asking him, "Surely not I?" 20 He told them, "It is one of the Twelve, one who is dipping his bread with me into the [one] bowl. 21 The Son of Man will go as the Scriptures say about him; but how terrible for the one by whom the Son of Man is handed over! It would have been better for that man never to have been born."
22 While they were eating, he took a loaf, said the blessing, broke it, and gave it to them with the words, "Take it; this is my body."[g] 23 Then he took a cup, gave thanks, and handed it to them, and they all drank from it. 24 And he told them, "This is my blood of the covenant,[h] poured out on behalf of many. 25 Amen, I tell you, never again will I drink of the fruit of the vine until that day when I drink it new in God's kingdom."
26 After singing the hymn,[i] they went out to the Mount of Olives.

27 And Jesus told them, “All of you will stumble and fall away, because Scripture says:
‘I will strike down the shepherd, and the sheep will be scattered.’[j] 28 But once I am raised, I will lead the way before you into Galilee.”
29 Peter declared, “Everyone else may fall away, but not I.” 30 Jesus said to him, “Amen, I tell you: this very night, before a rooster crows twice, you will deny me three times.” 31 But Peter kept protesting all the more forcefully, “Even if it means dying alongside you, I will not disown you!” And all of them were saying the same.
32 They went to a place named Gethsemane,[k] and he said to his disciples, “Stay here while I pray.” 33 Taking with him Peter, James, and John, he began to be filled with alarm and anguish. 34 “My soul is crushed with grief, even to death,”[l] he told them. “Wait here and stay awake.” 35 Going on a little farther, he fell to the ground and prayed that, if it were possible, the hour might pass him by. 36 “Abba,[m] Father,” he said, “for you all things are possible. Take this cup away from me.
Yet let it be not what I want, but what you want.” 37 He came back and found them asleep. “Simon,” he said to Peter, “are you sleeping?
Had you not the strength to stay awake a single hour? 38 Keep awake and pray, so that you do not come into the time of testing.[n] The spirit is eager, but human nature is frail.” 39 Once more he went away and prayed, [saying the same words.] 40 And again he came and found them sleeping, for their eyes were weighed down; and they had no idea what to say to him. 41 Coming back a third time, he said to them, “Still asleep? Still taking your rest?[o] It is enough; the hour is here.
See, the Son of Man is being betrayed into sinners’ hands. 42 Get up, let us go. Look, the one betraying me is close at hand.” 43 And just then, as he was speaking, up came Judas, one of the Twelve, with a mob carrying swords and cudgels, dispatched by the chief priests, scribes, and elders. 44 His betrayer had given them a prearranged sign: “The man I kiss—he is the one. Take hold of him and lead him off securely.” 45 As soon as he arrived, he went straight up to Jesus, said, “Rabbi!” and kissed him warmly. 46 Then they laid hands on him and arrested him. 47 One of those standing nearby drew a sword and slashed at the high priest's slave, slicing off his ear. 48 Jesus responded, "Have you come out with swords and cudgels to capture me as though I were a bandit? 49 Every day I was among you in the temple teaching, and you never arrested me. But this is happening so that the Scriptures will be fulfilled." 50 Then they all deserted him and ran away.

51 A young man was following him, wearing only a linen cloth over his naked body. They seized him, 52 but he left the linen cloth behind and fled naked.[p]
53 They took Jesus away to the high priest,[q] and all the chief priests, elders, and scribes assembled. 54 Peter trailed behind at a distance, as far as the inside of the high priest's courtyard, and he was sitting among the attendants, keeping warm by the blaze. 55 Meanwhile the chief priests and the entire Council[r] kept searching for evidence against Jesus that would justify putting him to death, yet they could find none. 56 Many gave false evidence against him, but their statements did not agree. 57 Some men then rose and testified falsely against him, saying, 58 "We ourselves heard him say, 'I will pull down this temple made with hands, and within three days I will build another, not made with hands.' " 59 But even so, their accounts were inconsistent. 60 Then the high priest stood up in their midst and questioned Jesus: "Have you no answer to make? What is this testimony these men bring against you?" 61 He kept silent and said nothing in reply. Once more the high priest put a question to him: "Are you the Christ, the Son of the Blessed?"[s] 62 "I am," said Jesus, "and you will see the Son of Man seated at the right hand of the Power[t] and coming with the clouds of heaven."[u] 63 At that the high priest ripped his garments. "What further need have we of witnesses?" he said. 64 "You heard him blaspheme.
How does it seem to you?" And all of them judged him worthy of death. 65 Then some started spitting at him; they covered his face, punched him, and taunted him, "Prophesy!" And the attendants took him and slapped him.
66 Peter was down in the courtyard when one of the high priest's maidservants came along. 67 Noticing Peter warming himself, she looked closely at him and said, “You too were with the Nazarene, this Jesus.” 68 But he denied it: “I have no idea what you mean—I don’t understand it.” And he went outside into the entryway.[v] 69 The servant girl saw him there and began telling the bystanders once more, “This fellow is one of them.” 70 Again he denied it. A little while afterward the bystanders said to Peter again, “You certainly are one of them, for you are a Galilean.”[w] 71 Then he began to put himself under a curse and to swear, “I have no knowledge of this man you speak of.” 72 And right then the rooster crowed for the second time, and Peter recalled the word Jesus had spoken to him: “Twice the rooster will crow, and before that you will have disowned me three times.” And he broke down and wept.[x]

Notes

- a (14:1) Passover … Unleavened Bread: the Passover meal on the evening beginning 15 Nisan, followed by the seven-day festival of Unleavened Bread (Exod 12:1–20; Lev 23:5–8).
- b (14:3) Simon the leper: presumably a man Jesus had healed. Simon means “he has heard.”
- c (14:3) Pure nard: Greek nardou pistikēs, spikenard, an aromatic oil imported from the Himalayas; pistikēs probably means “genuine.”
- d (14:5) More than three hundred days’ wages: literally “more than three hundred denarii,” a denarius being a laborer’s day’s wage.
- e (14:10) Iscariot: probably Hebrew ish Qeriyot, “man of Kerioth,” a town in Judea (Josh 15:25).
- f (14:18) Eating with me: compare Ps 41:9.
- g (14:22) This is my body: Westcott–Hort and the earliest manuscripts lack “eat” after “take it,” which many later manuscripts add (compare Matt 26:26).
- h (14:24) Blood of the covenant: Exod 24:8; compare Zech 9:11. Many manuscripts read “the new covenant” (compare Luke 22:20; 1 Cor 11:25); Westcott–Hort, following Sinaiticus and Vaticanus, lack “new.”
- i (14:26) The hymn: probably the second half of the Hallel (Pss 115–118), sung at the close of the Passover meal.
- j (14:27) Zech 13:7.
- k (14:32) Gethsemane: Aramaic gat shemanim, “oil press.”
- l (14:34) Ps 42:5, 11; 43:5.
- m (14:36) Abba: Aramaic for “father,” the intimate address of a child to a parent; compare Rom 8:15; Gal 4:6.
- n (14:38) Time of testing: or “temptation.”

- o (14:41) Still asleep? Still taking your rest?: or, as a command, “Sleep on now and take your rest.” It is enough: Greek apechei, of uncertain meaning; perhaps “the account is settled,” “he (the betrayer) has received payment,” or “it is far off.” Bezae and some others add “the end.”
- p (14:52) Fled naked: this episode is found only in Mark. Some have suggested the young man was Mark himself, but this is conjecture.
- q (14:53) The high priest: Caiaphas (Matt 26:57), high priest AD 18–36.
- r (14:55) Council: Greek synedrion, the Sanhedrin, the supreme Jewish court in Jerusalem, presided over by the high priest.
- s (14:61) The Blessed: a reverent Jewish substitute for the name of God.
- t (14:62) The Power: another reverent substitute for the name of God. The words echo Ps 110:1.
- u (14:62) Dan 7:13.
- v (14:68) Entryway: or “forecourt.” Many manuscripts add “and a rooster crowed” (Alexandrinus, Bezae and others); Westcott–Hort, with Sinaiticus and Vaticanus, lack it.
- w (14:70) Galilean: many later manuscripts add “and your speech gives you away” (compare Matt 26:73).
- x (14:72) He broke down and wept: the meaning of the Greek epibalōn is uncertain; perhaps “he thought of it,” “he threw himself down,” or “he covered his head.”

Chapter 15

1 Early in the morning, the chief priests conferred with the elders, the scribes and the entire Council. Then they tied up Jesus, took him away, and handed him over to Pilate.[a] 2 Pilate questioned him: “You are the king of the Jews?” “You say so,”[b] he answered. 3 The chief priests kept bringing many charges against him. 4 So Pilate questioned him once more: “Have you nothing to say in reply? Listen to how many accusations they are making against you!” 5 But Jesus gave no further answer at all, which left Pilate astonished.
6 At each festival Pilate used to set free for them one prisoner, whomever they requested. 7 There was a man called Barabbas[c] held in prison with the rebels who had committed murder during the uprising. 8 So the crowd went up and started demanding that he follow his usual practice for them. 9 Pilate replied, “Is it your wish that I set free the king of the Jews for you?” 10 For he was aware that it was out of envy that the chief priests had handed Jesus over. 11 The chief priests, however, incited the crowd to ask that he free Barabbas for them in place of Jesus. 12 Pilate spoke to them again: “Then what am I to do with the one you call the king of the Jews?” 13 They shouted back, “Crucify him!” 14 “Why? What crime has he committed?” Pilate asked. But they only shouted louder, “Crucify him!” 15 Pilate, intent on pleasing the crowd, released Barabbas to them; and he had Jesus scourged[d] and then gave him up for crucifixion.

16 The soldiers marched him off inside the palace courtyard (the governor’s residence)[e] and summoned the whole company of troops.[f] 17 They dressed him in purple, twisted together a crown of thorns, and set it on his head. 18 Then they began to salute him: “Hail, king of the Jews!” 19 They kept hitting him on the head with a reed and spitting on him, and bending their knees, they paid him mock homage. 20 When their mockery was over, they pulled the purple robe off him, dressed him in his own garments, and took him out for crucifixion.
21 A passerby, Simon of Cyrene,[g] the father of Alexander and Rufus,[h] was coming in from the country, and they forced him to carry Jesus’ cross. 22 They brought Jesus to the place called Golgotha, which translated means “Place of a Skull.”[i] 23 They held out to him wine laced with myrrh,[j] but he would not take it. 24 And they crucified him and divided up his clothes, throwing dice for them to see what each would take.[k] 25 It was nine o’clock in the morning[l] when they crucified him.
26 The notice of the charge against him was inscribed: THE KING OF THE JEWS. 27 Two bandits[m] were crucified along with him, the one at his right, the other at his left. 28 [n] 29 People going by hurled insults at him, shaking their heads[o] and saying, “Ha! You who would tear down the temple and rebuild it in three days, 30 save yourself and come down from the cross!” 31 In the same way the chief priests, along with the scribes, mocked him among themselves: “He saved others, but he cannot save himself! 32 This Messiah, this king of Israel—let him climb down from the cross this minute, so we can see it and believe!” Even the men crucified beside him reviled him.
33 When noon came, darkness fell over the whole land[p] until three in the afternoon.[q] 34 At three o’clock Jesus cried out in a loud voice, “Eloi, Eloi, lema sabachthani?”[r] which translated means, “My God, my God, why have you forsaken me?” 35 Some of the bystanders who heard it said, “Listen, he is calling Elijah.” 36 Someone ran and filled a sponge with sour wine,[s] fixed it to a reed, and held it up for him to drink, saying, “Leave him alone! Let us see if Elijah comes to take him down.” 37 Then Jesus gave a great cry and breathed out his life. 38

And the curtain of the temple[t] was torn in two from top to bottom. 39
When the centurion[u] who stood facing him saw that he had died in this way,[v] he said, “Truly this man was God’s Son!”[w] 40 Some women were also looking on from far away, among them Mary Magdalene,[x] Mary the mother of James the younger and of Joses, and Salome.[y] 41 While he was in Galilee they used to follow him and provide for him; and many other women were there as well, who had traveled up to Jerusalem with him.
42 It was already evening, and because it was Preparation Day—the day before a Sabbath— 43 Joseph of Arimathea[z] came, a prominent Council member who was also looking for God’s kingdom. He ventured boldly into Pilate’s presence and requested Jesus’ body. 44 Pilate was astonished that he had already died. He called the centurion and asked whether Jesus had been dead for long.[aa] 45 Once the centurion had confirmed it, Pilate gave Joseph the body. 46 Joseph bought a linen cloth, took Jesus down, wrapped him in it, and laid him in a tomb that had been cut into the rock. He then rolled a stone across the tomb’s entrance. 47 Mary Magdalene and Mary the mother of Joses saw the place where they put him.

Notes

- a (15:1) Pilate: Pontius Pilate, Roman prefect (governor) of Judea AD 26–36.
- b (15:2) You say so: an evasive or affirmative answer, meaning “That is your word for it” or “It is as you say.”
- c (15:7) Barabbas: Aramaic bar Abba, “son of the father.” Some manuscripts of Matthew (27:16–17) give his name as “Jesus Barabbas.”
- d (15:15) Scourged: Greek phragellōsas, from Latin flagellum, a scourge of leather thongs weighted with bone or metal, the brutal preliminary to crucifixion.
- e (15:16) Governor’s residence: Greek praitōrion (Latin praetorium), the official residence of the Roman governor in Jerusalem.
- f (15:16) Whole company of troops: literally “the whole cohort,” Greek speira, a unit of a Roman legion, nominally 600 soldiers, though the term was used of smaller detachments.

- g (15:21) Cyrene: a Greek city on the coast of North Africa (modern Libya), with a large Jewish community. Simon means "he has heard."
- h (15:21) Alexander and Rufus: Alexander is Greek, "defender of men"; Rufus is Latin, "red." They were apparently known to Mark's readers (compare Rom 16:13).
- i (15:22) Golgotha: Aramaic gulgulta, "skull." The Latin equivalent, calvaria, gives the traditional name "Calvary."
- j (15:23) Wine laced with myrrh: a drink perhaps meant to dull the pain (compare Prov 31:6).
- k (15:24) Ps 22:18. Throwing dice: literally "casting lots."
- l (15:25) Nine in the morning: literally "the third hour," counting from sunrise at about six o'clock.
- m (15:27) Bandits: or "rebels" (Greek lēstai), the term Josephus uses for insurgents.
- n (15:28) Verse 28 is lacking in the Westcott–Hort text and in the earliest manuscripts (Sinaiticus, Vaticanus, Alexandrinus, Bezae and others). Many later manuscripts add, "And the scripture was fulfilled that says, 'He was counted among the lawless' " (Isa 53:12; compare Luke 22:37).
- o (15:29) Shaking their heads: compare Ps 22:7; 109:25; Lam 2:15.
- p (15:33) Land: or "earth." Compare Amos 8:9.
- q (15:33) Noon … three in the afternoon: literally "the sixth hour … the ninth hour."
- r (15:34) Eloi, Eloi, lema sabachthani: Ps 22:1, in Aramaic, transliterated in Greek. Eloi is Aramaic for "my God" (the Westcott–Hort reading here); some manuscripts have the Hebrew form Eli (compare Matt 27:46). Three o'clock: literally "the ninth hour." Westcott–Hort bracket the second "my God" in Mark's translation.
- s (15:36) Sour wine: Greek oxos, a cheap wine vinegar drunk by soldiers and laborers. Compare Ps 69:21.
- t (15:38) Curtain of the temple: probably the curtain separating the Most Holy Place from the Holy Place (Exod 26:31–33).
- u (15:39) Centurion: a Roman officer commanding about a hundred soldiers.
- v (15:39) Died in this way: literally "breathed out thus." Many manuscripts read "cried out and breathed his last in this way."
- w (15:39) God's Son: or "a son of God." The Greek lacks the article; the phrase may express a Roman soldier's recognition of a divine man or the full Christian confession (compare 1:1, 11; 9:7).
- x (15:40) Mary Magdalene: that is, Mary of Magdala, a town on the western shore of the lake; Magdala comes from Aramaic migdal, "tower."
- y (15:40) Salome: from Hebrew shalom, "peace." She may be the mother of James and John (compare Matt 27:56).
- z (15:43) Arimathea: probably Ramathaim (Ramah), the birthplace of Samuel (1 Sam 1:1), northwest of Jerusalem; the name means "heights." Joseph means "may he add" (Gen 30:24).

- aa (15:44) Had been dead for some time: Vaticanus, Bezae and some others, followed by Westcott–Hort in the margin, read “was already dead.”

Chapter 16

1 Once the Sabbath had ended, Mary Magdalene, Mary the mother of James, and Salome purchased fragrant spices, intending to go and anoint him. 2 Very early on the first day of the week, just after sunrise, they made their way to the tomb. 3 They were saying to one another, “Who is going to roll the stone back from the tomb’s entrance for us?” 4 But when they looked up, they saw that the stone—an exceedingly large one—had already been rolled away. 5 Going into the tomb, they saw a young man dressed in a white robe sitting on the right-hand side, and they were struck with amazement. 6 “Do not be so amazed,” he said to them. “You are looking for Jesus the Nazarene, the one who was crucified. He has been raised; he is not here. See the spot where they laid him. 7 Now go and tell his disciples, and Peter, ‘He is going on ahead of you into Galilee. There you will see him, just as he told you.’ ” 8 They came out and fled from the tomb, seized with trembling and bewilderment; and they said nothing to anyone, for they were afraid.[a]

9 [[After he rose early on the first day of the week, he appeared first to Mary Magdalene, from whom he had driven out seven demons. 10
She went and told those who had been with him, as they mourned and wept. 11 But when they heard that he was alive and that she had seen him, they would not believe it.

12 After this he showed himself in another form to two of them as they were walking along on their way into the country. 13 They went back and told the others, but these did not believe them either.

14 Later he showed himself to the eleven themselves as they reclined at table, and he rebuked them for their unbelief and stubbornness of heart, because they had not believed those who had seen him after he was raised.[b] 15 He said to them, “Go out into all the world and announce the good news to the whole creation. 16 Whoever believes and is baptized will be saved, but whoever refuses to believe will be condemned. 17 Those who believe will be attended by these signs: they will cast out demons by my name; they will speak in new tongues;[c] 18 they will pick up snakes [with their hands],[d] and if they drink any deadly poison it will do them no harm; they will lay their hands on the sick, and these will recover." 19 So then, after speaking with them, the Lord [Jesus] was taken up into heaven and sat down at God's right hand.[e] 20 Then the disciples set out and proclaimed the message far and wide, the Lord working alongside them and confirming the word through the accompanying signs.]][f]

Notes

- a (16:8) For they were afraid: here the earliest manuscripts, Sinaiticus and Vaticanus, end the Gospel of Mark, as do the Sinaitic Syriac, about a hundred Armenian manuscripts, and the two oldest Georgian manuscripts; Eusebius and Jerome report that almost all Greek copies known to them ended here. Westcott–Hort print 16:9–20 and the shorter ending within double brackets as early additions, not part of Mark's original text. Whether Mark intended to end at 16:8, or a lost ending once followed, remains debated. See the note at 16:20 for the endings found in other manuscripts.
- b (16:14) Raised: Westcott–Hort bracket "from the dead."
- c (16:17) New tongues: Vaticanus lacks "new"; Westcott–Hort retain it.
- d (16:18) With their hands: Westcott–Hort bracket these words, which Alexandrinus and many others lack.
- e (16:19) God's right hand: compare Ps 110:1. Jesus is bracketed by Westcott–Hort.
- f (16:20) The endings of Mark. (1) The longer ending (16:9–20, printed here in double brackets) appears in Alexandrinus, Ephraemi, Bezae, Washingtonianus and the great majority of later manuscripts, and Irenaeus (late 2nd century) knew of it. Its vocabulary and style differ markedly from the rest of Mark, and it draws on the resurrection accounts of the other Gospels and Acts. (2) The shorter ending, which Westcott–Hort also print in double brackets, comes after 16:8 in a few manuscripts (alone in Codex Bobiensis and the Old Latin k; in several Greek manuscripts it is followed by the longer ending). In summary, it says the women briefly passed on their instructions to Peter's companions, and that afterward Jesus himself sent out through them, from east to west, the holy and unfading message of eternal salvation. [Amen.] (3) The Freer Logion, found only in Codex Washingtonianus (W, 4th–5th century) after 16:14, includes in part a reply from the disciples that this age of lawlessness and unbelief lies under Satan, who prevents God's truth and power from overcoming the unclean powers of the spirits, and so they ask Christ to reveal his righteousness at once. Christ answers that the span of years of Satan's authority is complete, but that other terrible things are near, even for those sinners for whom he was handed over to death, so that they might turn to the truth, sin no more, and inherit the spiritual and imperishable glory of righteousness in heaven. Jerome mentions a form of this saying (Against the Pelagians 2.15). None of the early papyri of Mark (P45, P88, P137) preserves this chapter.

Luke

New Testament

Chapter 1

1 Seeing that many have undertaken to set in order an account of the events that have been brought to fulfillment among us, 2 in keeping with what was handed down to us by the people who were eyewitnesses from the outset and who became servants of the message, 3 it seemed right to me as well, after investigating everything carefully from the beginning, to write an orderly account for you, most excellent Theophilus,[a] 4 in order that you might come to recognize how reliable are the matters in which you were instructed.[b] 5 In the time of Herod, king of Judea,[c] a certain priest by the name of Zechariah belonged to the priestly division of Abijah.[d] His wife, Elizabeth by name, was herself one of Aaron's descendants.[e] 6 Both of them were upright before God, walking blamelessly in all the commandments and requirements of the Lord.[f] 7 Yet they were childless, for Elizabeth could not conceive, and both of them were well on in years. 8 It came about that, as he was carrying out his priestly duties before God while his division was on duty, 9 according to the custom of the priesthood, the lot fell to him to go into the sanctuary of the Lord and burn incense.[g] 10 And all the throng of the people was outside, praying at the time of the incense offering. 11 There appeared to him an angel of the Lord, standing to the right of the incense altar.
12 Zechariah was shaken when he saw him, and fear fell upon him.
13 But the angel said to him, "Do not be afraid, Zechariah, for your prayer has been answered. Your wife Elizabeth will bear you a son, and you are to name him John.[h] 14 He will bring you joy and gladness, and many will be happy because of his birth, 15 For in the Lord's sight he will be great. Wine and strong drink he must never drink,[i] and he will be full of the Holy Spirit while still in his mother's womb. 16 Many of Israel's sons he will turn back to the Lord their God. 17 And he will go ahead of him in Elijah's spirit and power, to turn fathers' hearts toward their children,[j] and those who disobey toward the wisdom of the just, to have a people ready and prepared for the Lord." 18 Zechariah said to the angel, "How shall I know this? For I am an old man, and my wife is advanced in her days." 19 In reply the angel said, "I am Gabriel.[k] I stand before God, and I have been sent to talk with you and to announce this good news to you. 20 Look, you will be silent, unable to say a word, until the day when these things happen, since you did not trust my words, which will come true at their proper time." 21 Meanwhile the people were waiting for Zechariah, and they wondered why he was taking so long in the sanctuary. 22 On coming out he was unable to speak to them, and they understood that he had seen a vision in the sanctuary. He went on making signs to them and stayed speechless. 23 When his days of service were completed, he went back to his home.

24 Some time afterward Elizabeth his wife became pregnant, and for five months she kept out of sight, saying, 25 "The Lord has done this for me. In these days he has looked on me with favor, to remove my shame before others."
26 In the sixth month the angel Gabriel was sent from God to a town of Galilee named Nazareth,[l] 27 to a virgin promised in marriage to a man whose name was Joseph, of the house of David; and the virgin's name was Mary.[m] 28 He came in to where she was and said, "Greetings, you who have been shown favor! The Lord is with you."[n] 29 But she was deeply troubled at his words, and she kept wondering what sort of greeting this might be. 30 Then the angel told her, "Mary, have no fear; you have found grace in God's sight. 31 Listen: you will conceive and bear a son, and Jesus is the name you are to give him.[o] 32 He will be great and will be called the Son of the Most High, and the Lord God will give him the throne of his ancestor David. 33 and over Jacob's house he will reign for all ages; his kingdom will never come to an end." 34 But Mary asked the angel, "How can this be, when I have no relations with a man?" 35 In reply the angel told her, "The Holy Spirit will come over you, and the Most High's power will cast its shadow over you. That is why the child to be born will be called holy, Son of God.[p] 36 And look, Elizabeth your relative has also conceived a son in her old age, and this is the sixth month for her who was called barren.

37 For no word from God will be without power."[q] 38 Mary said, "Here
I am, the Lord's slave woman.[r] Let it happen to me as you have said."
And the angel departed from her.
39 In those days Mary set out and went in haste into the hill country, to a town of Judah. 40 She went into Zechariah's house and gave Elizabeth her greeting. 41 And as Elizabeth heard Mary greet her, the child jumped in her womb, and Elizabeth became full of the Holy Spirit. 42 With a great cry she called out, "Among women you are blessed, and blessed is the fruit your womb bears! 43 And how has this happened to me, that the mother of my Lord should come to me? 44 The moment the sound of your greeting came to my ears, look, the child within me jumped for joy. 45 Blessed is the woman who believed that the things the Lord has told her would be fulfilled." 46 And Mary said,[s]
"My soul magnifies the Lord,
47 and my spirit has exulted in God my Savior, 48 because he has looked upon the lowliness of his slave woman.
For look, from now on all generations will call me blessed, 49 for great things have been done for me by the Mighty One, and his name is holy.
50 His mercy is for generation after generation to those who fear him.
51 He has worked might with his arm;
he has scattered those who are proud in the thinking of their hearts.
52 He has pulled down the powerful from their thrones and raised the humble high.
53 The hungry he has filled with good things, and the rich he has sent away empty.
54 He has come to the help of Israel his servant,
remembering mercy,
55 as he spoke to our fathers, to Abraham and to his offspring forever."[t]

56 Mary remained with her some three months, and then went back home.
57 Elizabeth's time to deliver arrived, and she gave birth to a son. 58
When her neighbors and family heard how the Lord had magnified his mercy toward her, they shared her joy. 59 On the eighth day they came for the child's circumcision, and they wanted to call him Zechariah, his father's name. 60 But his mother spoke up: "No; he is to be called John." 61 They told her, "None of your kin bears this name." 62 Then they gestured to his father, asking what name he wished to give him. 63 Asking for a tablet, he wrote the words, "John is his name."
And all of them marveled. 64 Instantly his mouth was opened, and his tongue too, and he began speaking and praising God. 65 Fear came on all who lived around them, and throughout the whole hill country of Judea all these things were talked about. 66 Everyone who heard of it kept it in mind and said, "What will this child be, then?" For the Lord's hand was indeed with him.
67 Then Zechariah his father was filled with the Holy Spirit and prophesied, saying,[u] 68 "Blessed be the Lord, the God of Israel, because he has visited his people and brought about their redemption.
69 He has raised up a horn of salvation[v] for us in the house of David his servant, 70 as he spoke by the mouth of his holy prophets from of old:
71 salvation from our enemies and from the hand of all who hate us, 72 to show mercy to our fathers and to remember his holy covenant, 73 the oath that he swore to Abraham our father, to grant us
74 that, rescued from the hand of our enemies, we might serve him without fear, 75 in holiness and righteousness before him all our days.
76 And you, child, will be called a prophet of the Most High; for you will walk ahead of the Lord to make his ways ready,[w]

77 to grant his people the knowledge of salvation by the forgiving of their sins, 78 because of the tender mercy of our God, by which the dawn from on high will visit us,[x] 79 to give light to those sitting in darkness and in death's shadow, to direct our feet into the path of peace."
80 And the child kept growing and gaining strength in spirit, and he lived in the desert places until the day of his public appearance to Israel.

Notes

- a (1:3) Theophilus: a Greek name meaning "friend of God" or "loved by God." Most excellent was a title of respect used for persons of rank (compare Acts 23:26; 24:3; 26:25). He may have been Luke's patron.
- b (1:4) Taught: Greek katēchēthēs, "informed" or "instructed."
- c (1:5) Herod the Great, king of Judea under Roman authority from 37 to 4 BC. Judea here means the whole Jewish homeland.
- d (1:5) Zechariah … Abijah: Zechariah means "Yahweh remembers." The priests were divided into twenty-four divisions that served in the temple in turn; Abijah's was the eighth (1 Chr 24:10). Abijah means "Yahweh is my father."
- e (1:5) Elizabeth: Greek Elisabet, Hebrew Elisheba (Exod 6:23, the name of Aaron's wife), probably "my God is an oath." The meaning of Aaron is uncertain.
- f (1:6) The Lord: in Old Testament phrasing like this, kyrios stands for Yahweh, as throughout Luke 1–2 where it refers to God (for example 1:9, 11, 15, 16, 17, 25, 28, 38, 45, 46, 58, 66, 68, 76).
- g (1:9) Each morning and evening a priest burned incense on the golden altar in the holy place of the temple (Exod 30:7–8); a priest might receive this honor only once in his life.
- h (1:13) John: Greek Iōannēs, from Hebrew Yohanan, "Yahweh has been gracious."
- i (1:15) Compare Num 6:3; Judg 13:4; 1 Sam 1:11. Strong drink (Greek sikera) is fermented drink other than wine, such as beer.
- j (1:17) Mal 4:5–6 (3:23–24 in Hebrew). Elijah means "my God is Yahweh."
- k (1:19) Gabriel: "God is my mighty one" or "man of God" (compare Dan 8:16; 9:21).
- l (1:26) Nazareth: a small village in Galilee, not mentioned in the Old Testament; the meaning of the name is uncertain.
- m (1:27) Joseph … Mary: Joseph means "may he add" (Gen 30:24). Mary (Greek Mariam) is the Hebrew name Miriam; its meaning is uncertain.
- n (1:28) Greetings: Greek chaire, literally "rejoice," the ordinary greeting. Favored one translates kecharitōmenē, "one who has been shown grace." Many later manuscripts add “Blessed are you among women” (from 1:42); the earliest witnesses do not have it.

- o (1:31) Jesus: the Greek form of the Hebrew Yeshua (Yehoshua, Joshua), “Yahweh saves.”
- p (1:35) Or “the holy one to be born will be called the Son of God.” Some manuscripts add “of you” after “to be born.”
- q (1:37) Or “For nothing will be impossible with God.” Compare Gen 18:14.
- r (1:38) Slave woman: Greek doulē, the feminine of doulos, “slave” or “bond-servant” (also in 1:48).
- s (1:46) Mary’s song (traditionally called the Magnificat, from its first word in Latin) echoes Hannah’s song (1 Sam 2:1–10) and many psalms. A few Old Latin manuscripts and some early writers attribute the song to Elizabeth.
- t (1:55) Compare Gen 17:7; 22:17–18; Mic 7:20. Abraham is explained in Gen 17:5 as “father of a multitude.”
- u (1:67) Zechariah’s song is traditionally called the Benedictus, from its first word in Latin.
- v (1:69) Horn of salvation: the horn is a figure of strength (1 Sam 2:10; Ps 18:2; 132:17).
- w (1:76) Compare Isa 40:3; Mal 3:1. In the Hebrew text, the Lord is Yahweh.
- x (1:78) Will visit us: so the Westcott–Hort text, with Sinaiticus and Vaticanus; many manuscripts read “has visited us.” The dawn from on high (Greek anatolē, “rising,” also used in the Greek Old Testament for the messianic “Branch,” Jer 23:5; Zech 3:8) may refer to the rising sun or star (compare Num 24:17; Mal 4:2).

Chapter 2

1 At that time an edict was issued by Caesar Augustus[a] for a registration of the entire inhabited world. 2 This was the first registration, made when Quirinius was governing Syria.[b] 3 So all were on their way to register, every one to his home town. 4 Joseph too went up out of Galilee, out of Nazareth town, into Judea, to David’s city, which is called Bethlehem,[c] since he belonged to David’s house and lineage, 5 to be registered with Mary, who was promised to him in marriage and was pregnant. 6 While they were in Bethlehem, the time came for her to deliver her child, 7 There she bore her son, her firstborn. She swaddled him and put him to lie in a feeding trough, since the guest room had no space for them.[d] 8 Nearby, in the open country, shepherds were spending the night guarding their flocks.

9 An angel of the Lord stood before them, and the glory of the Lord shone all around them, and they were overcome with fear.[e] 10 The angel said to them, “Have no fear. See, I am announcing to you good news of a great joy, which is for the whole people.
11 For today, in the city of David, a Savior has been born for you, who is the Messiah, the Lord.[f] 12 This is to be your sign: a newborn baby, swaddled and lying in a feeding trough, is what you will find.” 13 And all at once there appeared with the angel a multitude of the army of heaven, praising God and saying, 14 “Glory to God in the highest heavens, and on earth peace among people of his good pleasure!”[g] 15 After the angels had left them and gone into heaven, the shepherds said to each other, “Come, let us go over to Bethlehem and look at what has taken place, this thing the Lord has told us of.” 16 They went in haste and found Mary and Joseph, and the baby lying in the feeding trough. 17 Having seen him, they reported the word that had been spoken to them concerning this child. 18 And all who heard were astonished at what the shepherds told them. 19 But Mary kept all these things, pondering them in her heart. 20 Then the shepherds returned, giving glory and praise to God for everything they had heard and seen, all of it as they had been told.
21 When eight days had passed and it was time to circumcise him, he was given the name Jesus, the name given by the angel before he was conceived in the womb.
22 When the days of purification required by the law of Moses[h] had passed, Joseph and Mary brought him to Jerusalem to present him to the Lord 23 (as it is written in the law of the Lord, “Every male that opens the womb shall be called holy to the Lord”),[i] 24 and to offer a sacrifice according to what is said in the law of the Lord, “a pair of turtledoves or two young pigeons.”[j] 25 Now there was a man in Jerusalem whose name was Simeon.[k] This man was upright and devout, waiting for the consolation of Israel, and the Holy Spirit was upon him.

26 The Holy Spirit had disclosed to him that he would not see death until he had seen the Lord's Messiah.[l] 27 Led by the Spirit, he came into the temple; and when the parents brought in the child Jesus to do for him what was customary under the law,
28 Simeon took him into his arms and blessed God, saying, 29 "Now, Master, you are letting your slave depart in peace, according to your word,[m] 30 for my eyes have seen your salvation, 31 which you made ready before the face of all peoples, 32 a light for revelation to the nations and for glory to your people Israel."[n] 33 His father and mother were marveling at what was said about him.
34 Simeon blessed them and said to Mary his mother, "Look, this child is destined for the fall and the rising of many in Israel, and for a sign that will be spoken against 35 (and a sword will pierce through your own soul too), so that the thoughts of many hearts may be laid bare." 36 There was also a prophetess, Anna[o] the daughter of Phanuel,[p] of the tribe of Asher.[q] She was far advanced in years. After her girlhood she had lived with her husband seven years, 37 and after that was a widow up to the age of eighty-four.[r] She never went away from the temple, but served God night and day with fasting and prayer. 38 Coming up at that very moment, she gave thanks to God and spoke of the child to everyone who was looking for Jerusalem's redemption.
39 Once they had carried out all that the law of the Lord required, they went back into Galilee, to Nazareth, their town. 40 The child grew and became strong, filled with wisdom, and the grace of God was upon him.
41 Each year his parents would go to Jerusalem for the Passover feast.
42 When he was twelve years old, they went up as the custom of the festival required. 43 After the days were over, as they were returning, the boy Jesus stayed behind in Jerusalem, and his parents did not know it. 44 Thinking he was in the traveling party, they went a day's journey and then began searching for him among their relatives and acquaintances. 45 Not finding him, they returned to Jerusalem to look for him. 46 Three days later they found him in the temple, seated in the midst of the teachers, both listening to them and putting questions to them. 47 Everyone who heard him was amazed by his insight and by the answers he gave. 48 His parents were astonished to see him, and his mother said, "Child, why have you treated us so? Here your father and I have been anxiously seeking you." 49 "Why did you look for me?" he said to them. "Didn't you know I had to be in my Father's house?"[s] 50 But they did not understand the saying he spoke to them. 51 And he went down with them to Nazareth and was subject to them. His mother kept all these words in her heart.

52 And Jesus kept advancing in wisdom and in stature,[t] and in favor with God and people.

Notes

- a (2:1) Caesar Augustus: Octavian, the first Roman emperor (31 BC–AD 14). Augustus, "revered," was a title given him by the Roman Senate in 27 BC.
- b (2:2) Quirinius: Publius Sulpicius Quirinius, Roman legate of Syria from AD 6, when he conducted a census of Judea (compare Acts 5:37). How this registration relates to the reign of Herod (1:5) is a long-debated historical question; some render "this registration took place before Quirinius was governing Syria." Scholarly review recommended.
- c (2:4) Bethlehem: "house of bread," David's hometown (1 Sam 16:1; Mic 5:2).
- d (2:7) Guest room: Greek katalyma, a lodging place or guest room (used of the upper room in 22:11), not necessarily an inn. The feeding trough (traditionally "manger") suggests the part of the house or shelter where animals were kept.
- e (2:9) An angel of the Lord … the glory of the Lord: in Old Testament phrasing, the angel and glory of Yahweh.
- f (2:11) The Messiah, the Lord: Greek christos kyrios, "anointed Lord." A few witnesses read "the Lord's Messiah," as in 2:26.
- g (2:14) People of his good pleasure: so the Westcott–Hort text with the earliest manuscripts (Sinaiticus and Vaticanus, first hands, and Codex Bezae), which read eudokias, "of good pleasure," meaning people on whom God's favor rests. Most later manuscripts read eudokia, giving "peace on earth, good will toward people."
- h (2:22) The purification of a mother after childbirth (Lev 12:1–8) and the redemption of a firstborn son (Exod 13:2, 12–15; Num 18:15–16). Moses is explained in Exod 2:10 as "drawn out."
- i (2:23) Exod 13:2, 12. In the Hebrew text, the Lord is Yahweh; the phrase the law of the Lord likewise means the law of Yahweh (also 2:24, 39).
- j (2:24) Lev 12:8, the offering allowed to those who could not afford a lamb.
- k (2:25) Simeon: Hebrew Shimon, linked with "hear" (Gen 29:33).

- l (2:26) The Lord's Messiah: literally "the Lord's anointed," an Old Testament phrase for the king chosen by Yahweh (1 Sam 24:6; Ps 2:2).
- m (2:29) Simeon's song is traditionally called the Nunc Dimittis, from its first words in Latin. Master is Greek despotēs.
- n (2:32) Compare Isa 42:6; 49:6; 52:10.
- o (2:36) Anna: Hebrew Hannah, "grace" or "favor" (1 Sam 1:2).
- p (2:36) Phanuel: a form of Penuel, "face of God" (Gen 32:30–31).
- q (2:36) Asher: "happy" or "blessed" (Gen 30:13). The tribe belonged to the northern kingdom of Israel.
- r (2:37) Or "had been a widow for eighty-four years."
- s (2:49) Or "about my Father's affairs"; literally "in the things of my Father."
- t (2:52) Or "in age." Compare 1 Sam 2:26.

Chapter 3

1 It was the fifteenth year of the rule of Tiberius Caesar.[a] Pontius Pilate was the governor of Judea;[b] Herod was the tetrarch of Galilee,[c] his brother Philip the tetrarch of the region of Ituraea and Trachonitis, and Lysanias the tetrarch of Abilene.[d] 2 during the high priesthood of Annas and Caiaphas,[e] the word of God came to John the son of Zechariah in the wilderness.
3 And he came into the whole area around the Jordan, preaching a baptism of repentance that leads to forgiveness of sins, 4 as the book of the sayings of Isaiah the prophet has it:[f]

"The voice of one who calls aloud in the desert:
'Make ready the road for the Lord;
straighten his paths.
5 Every ravine will be filled in,
every mountain and hill made low;
the winding ways will be straightened,
and the rough roads made level;
6 and all flesh shall see the salvation of God.'"[g]

7 John said to the crowds that came out to be baptized by him, "You brood of snakes! Who told you that you could escape the wrath that is coming? 8 Produce fruit that shows you have repented. And do not start telling yourselves, 'Abraham is our father.' I tell you, God can make children for Abraham out of these stones. 9 The ax is already at the root of the trees, and every tree that fails to bear good fruit will be chopped down and thrown into the fire."

10 The crowds kept asking him, "What then should we do?" 11 He answered them, "Whoever has two tunics[h] should share with the one who has none, and whoever has food should do the same." 12 Tax collectors[i] also came to be baptized, and they said to him, "Teacher, what should we do?" 13 He answered them, "Exact nothing beyond the amount you are directed to collect." 14 Soldiers also kept asking him, "And we, what should we do?" He told them, "Do not take money from anyone by force or by false accusation, and be content with your pay."
15 The people were filled with expectation, and everyone wondered in their hearts whether John might be the Messiah. 16 John answered them all, "I baptize you with water; but one is coming who is mightier than I, the strap of whose sandals I am not worthy to untie. He will baptize you in the Holy Spirit and fire. 17 He holds his winnowing fork[j] in his hand, ready to clear his threshing floor and store the wheat in his barn; but the chaff he will burn with a fire that cannot be put out."
18 So with many other words of exhortation he proclaimed the good news to the people. 19 But Herod the tetrarch, who had been rebuked by him on account of Herodias, his brother's wife,[k] and on account of all the evil things Herod had done, 20 added this to them all: he shut John up in prison.
21 Now when all the people were baptized, and Jesus also had been baptized and was praying, heaven was opened, 22 and the Holy Spirit descended on him in a physical form, as a dove. And a voice spoke from heaven: "You are my Son, whom I love; you make me very glad."[l] 23 Jesus himself was about thirty years old when he began. He was the son, as was supposed, of Joseph, the son of Heli,[m] 24 the son of Matthat, the son of Levi, the son of Melchi, the son of Jannai, the son of Joseph, 25 the son of Mattathias, the son of Amos, the son of Nahum, the son of Esli, the son of Naggai, 26 the son of Maath, the son of Mattathias, the son of Semein, the son of Josech, the son of Joda, 27 the son of Joanan, the son of Rhesa, the son of Zerubbabel, the son of Shealtiel, the son of Neri, 28 the son of Melchi, the son of Addi, the son of Cosam, the son of Elmadam, the son of Er, 29 the son of Jesus,[n] the son of Eliezer, the son of Jorim, the son of Matthat, the son of Levi, 30 the son of Simeon, the son of Judah, the son of Joseph, the son of Jonam, the son of Eliakim, 31 the son of Melea, the son of Menna, the son of Mattatha, the son of Nathan, the son of David, 32 the son of Jesse, the son of Obed,[o] the son of Boaz, the son of Sala, the son of Nahshon, 33 the son of Admin, the son of Arni,[p] the son of Hezron, the son of Perez, the son of Judah, 34 the son of Jacob, the son of Isaac, the son of Abraham, the son of Terah, the son of Nahor, 35 the son of Serug, the son of Reu, the son of Peleg, the son of Eber, the son of Shelah, 36 the son of Cainan,[q] the son of Arphaxad, the son of Shem, the son of Noah, the son of Lamech, 37 the son of Methuselah, the son of Enoch, the son of Jared, the son of Mahalaleel, the son of Cainan, 38 the son of Enosh, the son of Seth, the son of Adam, the son of God.[r]

Notes

- a (3:1) Tiberius Caesar: Roman emperor AD 14–37. His fifteenth year was probably AD 28–29, depending on how the years were reckoned.
- b (3:1) Pontius Pilate: Roman prefect of Judea AD 26–36.
- c (3:1) Herod Antipas, son of Herod the Great, ruler of Galilee and Perea from 4 BC to AD 39. A tetrarch ("ruler of a fourth") was a minor ruler under Roman authority.
- d (3:1) Philip, another son of Herod the Great, ruled the territories northeast of the Sea of Galilee. Lysanias ruled Abilene, northwest of Damascus; he is otherwise known from an inscription.
- e (3:2) Annas was high priest AD 6–15 and remained influential; Caiaphas, his son-in-law, was high priest AD 18–36 (John 18:13). Caiaphas is a family name of uncertain meaning.
- f (3:4) Isaiah: "Yahweh is salvation."
- g (3:6) Isa 40:3–5, in the wording of the Greek Old Testament. In the Hebrew text, "the Lord" is Yahweh.
- h (3:11) Tunics: the chitōn was a garment worn next to the skin, under the outer cloak.
- i (3:12) Tax collectors: men who collected tolls and taxes for the Romans or for Herod, often despised as collaborators and extortioners.
- j (3:17) Winnowing shovel: a wooden fork or shovel used to toss threshed grain into the wind, which blew the chaff away.
- k (3:19) Herodias was the wife of Herod Antipas's half-brother (Mark 6:17 calls him Philip); Antipas married her after divorcing his first wife.

- l (3:22) Compare Ps 2:7; Isa 42:1. Codex Bezae and some Old Latin witnesses read, from Ps 2:7, “You are my Son; today I have fathered you.”
- m (3:23) Luke’s genealogy runs from Jesus back to Adam and differs from Matthew’s (Matt 1:1–16) between David and Joseph. The difference has been explained in various ways (for example, as Mary’s line, or by levirate marriage); none is certain. The Old Testament names are given in their Old Testament forms where they can be identified.
- n (3:29) Jesus: here the name of an ancestor; it is the Greek form of Joshua.
- o (3:32) Obed: the Westcott–Hort text reads Iōbēl, with Sinaiticus (first hand) and Vaticanus; most manuscripts read Iōbēd, the Obed of Ruth 4:21–22. The same person is meant.
- p (3:33) Admin … Arni: so the Westcott–Hort text, with some early manuscripts; the names do not appear in the Old Testament list (Ruth 4:19; 1 Chr 2:9–10, “Ram”). Many manuscripts read “the son of Amminadab, the son of Aram” (compare Matt 1:3–4). The manuscripts vary widely here.
- q (3:36) Cainan: this name appears in the Greek Old Testament (Gen 11:12) but not in the Hebrew text.
- r (3:38) The son of God: Adam had no human father; compare Gen 1:26–27; 5:1–3. Adam means “human being” or “humankind.”

Chapter 4

1 Jesus, full of the Holy Spirit, returned from the Jordan and was led by the Spirit in the wilderness 2 where for forty days he was put to the test by the devil.[a] Through those days he ate nothing, and at their end he felt hunger. 3 The devil said to him, “If you are the Son of God, tell this stone to turn into bread.” 4 Jesus answered him, “It is written, ‘A person shall not live on bread alone.’”[b] 5 Then the devil led him up and showed him all the kingdoms of the inhabited world in an instant of time. 6 “All this authority, and the glory of these kingdoms, I will give to you,” the devil told him, “for it has been given into my hands, and I give it to whomever I choose. 7 If you, then, will bow down in worship before me, it will all be yours.” 8 Jesus answered him, “It is written, ‘You shall worship the Lord your God and serve him alone.’”[c] 9 Then he brought him to Jerusalem and set him on the pinnacle[d] of the temple and said to him, “If you are the Son of God, throw yourself down from here,

10 for it is written,

'He will give his angels orders concerning you, to guard you closely,'

11 and,

'They will lift you up in their hands, lest you strike your foot on a stone.'"[e]

12 In answer Jesus told him, "It is said, 'Do not test the Lord your God.'"[f]

13 Having completed every kind of testing, the devil went away from him until a fitting time.

14 And Jesus went back into Galilee in the Spirit's power, and word of him spread throughout the whole countryside. 15 He taught in their synagogues, and everyone gave him praise.

16 He went to Nazareth, where he had grown up, and on the sabbath he entered the synagogue as he usually did and stood to read.

17 The scroll of the prophet Isaiah was handed to him. He unrolled the scroll and found the place where it was written,

18 "The Spirit of the Lord is upon me, because he has anointed me to bring good news to the poor.
He has sent me to proclaim release to captives and recovery of sight to the blind, to send away the crushed in freedom, 19 to proclaim the year of the Lord's favor."[g]

20 He rolled the scroll up, returned it to the attendant, and took his seat. Everyone in the synagogue kept looking at him.

21 He began by saying to them, "Today this scripture has been fulfilled in your hearing."

22 Everyone bore witness to him and wondered at the words of grace coming from his lips, and they kept saying, "Isn't this Joseph's son?"

23 He said to them, "No doubt you will quote me this proverb: 'Doctor, cure yourself!' What we heard had happened in Capernaum,[h] do here also in your own hometown."

24 And he said, "Amen, I tell you, no prophet is welcome in his own hometown.

25 Truly, I tell you, in the time of Elijah there were many widows in Israel. The sky had been shut for three and a half years, and a terrible famine had spread throughout the land.
26 Yet Elijah was sent to none of them, only to a widow in Zarephath, in the region of Sidon.[i] 27 And there were many with leprosy[j] in Israel in the time of Elisha the prophet, and none of them was cleansed except Naaman the Syrian."[k] 28 All in the synagogue, on hearing these things, were filled with fury.
29 They rose up and forced him out of the town and took him to the edge of the hill their town stood on, intending to hurl him over.
30 But he passed through the middle of them and went on his way.
31 He went down to Capernaum, a town of Galilee, and he was teaching them on the sabbath. 32 They were astounded at his teaching, because his word had authority. 33 In the synagogue there was a man who had the spirit of an unclean demon, and he cried out with a loud voice, 34 "Ha![l] What have we to do with you, Jesus of Nazareth?
Have you come to destroy us? I know who you are: the Holy One of God." 35 Jesus rebuked him, saying, "Be silent, and come out of him!"
When the demon had thrown him down in their midst, it came out of him without doing him any harm. 36 Amazement came over them all, and they kept saying to one another, "What is this word? For with authority and power he gives orders to the unclean spirits, and they come out!" 37 And news of him kept spreading into every place in the surrounding region.
38 After leaving the synagogue, he went to Simon's home. Simon's mother-in-law was suffering from a high fever, and they asked him to help her. 39 He stood over her and rebuked the fever, and it left her.
At once she got up and began to serve them.
40 At sunset, everyone who had friends or relatives sick with different kinds of illnesses brought them to him, and he placed his hands on each of them and cured them. 41 Demons too were coming out of many, crying, "You are the Son of God!" He rebuked them and did not permit them to say anything, since they knew he was the Messiah.
42 At daybreak he left and went off to a lonely place. The crowds kept seeking him, and reaching him, they tried to hold him back so that he would not go away from them. 43 But he told them, "I have to announce the kingdom of God as good news to the other towns as well, for this is why I was sent." 44 And he kept on preaching in the synagogues of Judea.[m]

Notes

- a (4:2) Devil: Greek diabolos, "slanderer," the Greek Old Testament's rendering of Hebrew satan, "adversary."
- b (4:4) Deut 8:3. Many later manuscripts add "but by every word of God."
- c (4:8) Deut 6:13. In the Hebrew text, "the Lord your God" is "Yahweh your God," as also in 4:12.
- d (4:9) Pinnacle: literally "little wing," probably a high corner of the temple courts.
- e (4:11) Ps 91:11–12.
- f (4:12) Deut 6:16.
- g (4:19) Isa 61:1–2, with a line from Isa 58:6 ("to send away the crushed in freedom"), in the wording of the Greek Old Testament. In the Hebrew text, "the Lord" is Yahweh (Hebrew "the Spirit of the Lord Yahweh"). The year of the Lord's favor recalls the year of release (Lev 25:10).
- h (4:23) Capernaum: "village of Nahum," on the northwest shore of the Sea of Galilee.
- i (4:26) 1 Kgs 17:1, 8–16; 18:1. Zarephath was a Phoenician town; the widow was a Gentile.
- j (4:27) Leprosy: the Greek word covered various skin diseases, not only Hansen's disease (Lev 13–14).
- k (4:27) 2 Kgs 5:1–14. Elisha means "God is salvation." Naaman means "pleasant."
- l (4:34) Ha: or "Leave us alone!" (Greek ea).
- m (4:44) Judea: so the Westcott–Hort text, with the earliest manuscripts; here it probably means the whole Jewish homeland. Many later manuscripts read "Galilee."

Chapter 5

1 Once, while the crowd was pressing in on him to hear the word of God, he was standing beside the lake of Gennesaret.[a] 2 He saw two boats drawn up at the lakeside; the fishermen had stepped out of them and were washing their nets. 3 He got into one of the boats, which was Simon's, and asked him to put out a little way from the land. Then he sat down and taught the crowds from the boat. 4 When he had stopped speaking, he said to Simon, "Put out into deep water, and let down your nets for a catch." 5 Simon answered, "Master, we worked hard all through the night and caught nothing. But at your word I will let down the nets." 6 When they had done so, they enclosed a great number of fish, and their nets were beginning to tear. 7 They signaled to their partners in the other boat to come and help them. They came and filled both boats, so that they began to sink. 8 Seeing this, Simon Peter fell down at Jesus' knees and said, "Leave me, Lord, for I am a sinner!" 9 For astonishment had seized him and all who were with him at the catch of fish they had taken, 10 and so also James and John, the sons of Zebedee, who were Simon's partners. Jesus said to Simon,

"Do not be afraid; from now on you will be catching people alive."[b] 11
When they had brought their boats to land, they left everything and followed him.
12 Once when he was in one of the towns, a man appeared who was full of leprosy. Seeing Jesus, he fell face down and pleaded with him, "Lord, if you want to, you are able to cleanse me." 13 He stretched out his hand and touched him, saying, "I am willing. Be made clean." Immediately the leprosy left him. 14 Jesus ordered him to tell nobody.
"Instead," he said, "go and let the priest see you, and bring the offering for your cleansing that Moses prescribed, as evidence for them."[c] 15 But the report about him spread all the more, and great crowds gathered to hear him and to be healed of their illnesses. 16 But he himself kept slipping away into the wilderness to pray.
17 On one of those days he was teaching, and sitting nearby were Pharisees[d] and teachers of the law who had come out of every village in Galilee and Judea, and out of Jerusalem. And the power of the Lord was present for him to heal.[e] 18 Some men then arrived carrying a paralyzed man on a mat. They tried to get him inside and set him down in front of Jesus. 19 Since the throng gave them no way of getting him in, they went up on the housetop and let him down through the tiles on his mat, right into the middle, before Jesus. 20 Seeing their faith, he said, "Friend,[f] your sins have been forgiven you." 21 The scribes[g] and Pharisees began to question among themselves: "Who is this who talks like this, blaspheming? Who but God alone can forgive sins?" 22 Jesus, perceiving their reasonings, answered them, "Why are you reasoning this way in your hearts? 23 Which is easier, to say, 'Your sins are forgiven you,' or to say, 'Get up and walk'? 24 But so you may know that the Son of Man[h] has authority on earth to forgive sins" — and here he spoke to the paralyzed man — "I say to you, stand up, pick up your mat, and go home." 25 At once he got up in front of them, picked up the mat he had lain on, and set off for home, giving glory to God. 26 Astonishment seized them all, and they glorified God and were filled with fear, saying, "We have seen extraordinary things today." 27 Afterward he went out and saw a tax collector named Levi[i] sitting in his tax booth. "Follow me," he said to him. 28 And he left everything, got up, and began to follow him. 29 Afterward Levi held a great reception for him at his home, and many tax collectors and others were at the table with them. 30 The Pharisees and their scribes grumbled to his disciples, "Why are you eating and drinking with tax collectors and sinners?" 31 In reply Jesus told them, "People in good health have no need of a doctor, but the sick do. 32 I have not come to call the upright but sinners to repentance." 33 They said to him, "John's disciples fast often and offer prayers, and so do those of the Pharisees, but yours eat and drink." 34 Jesus answered them, "Can you force the wedding guests[j] to fast while the groom is with them? 35 But days will come, and when the bridegroom is taken away from them, then they will fast in those days." 36 He spoke a parable to them as well: "Nobody rips a piece from a new coat to patch an old coat. If he does, he will have torn the new one, and the piece taken from the new one will not match the old. 37 And no one puts new wine into old wineskins. Otherwise the new wine will burst the skins; it will be spilled, and the skins will be ruined. 38 New wine must be put into fresh wineskins. 39 [And nobody who has drunk old wine wishes for new; he says, 'The old is good.'][k]

Notes

- a (5:1) Lake of Gennesaret: the Sea of Galilee, named after the plain of Gennesaret on its northwest shore.
- b (5:10) Catching people alive: Greek zōgreō, "take alive."
- c (5:14) Lev 14:1–32.
- d (5:17) Pharisees: a Jewish party devoted to strict observance of the law and the traditions of the elders. The name probably means "separated ones."

- e (5:17) The power of the Lord: here kyrios refers to God. Many later manuscripts read “to heal them.”
- f (5:20) Friend: literally “Man” (Greek anthrōpe), a form of address.
- g (5:21) Scribes: experts in the law of Moses, who taught and interpreted it.
- h (5:24) Son of Man: an Aramaic expression meaning “human being,” used by Jesus to refer to himself, probably with reference to Dan 7:13–14.
- i (5:27) Levi: “joined” or “attached” (Gen 29:34). Matt 9:9 calls him Matthew.
- j (5:34) Wedding guests: literally “sons of the bridal chamber.”
- k (5:39) Westcott and Hort placed this verse in single brackets as doubtful; it is absent from Codex Bezae and some Old Latin witnesses but present in the earliest manuscripts, including P75 (as reported in the standard editions), Sinaiticus and Vaticanus. Good: so the Westcott–Hort text; many manuscripts read “better.”

Chapter 6

1 It happened on a sabbath[a] that he was making his way through fields of grain, and his disciples were plucking the heads of grain, rubbing them in their hands, and eating them. 2 Some Pharisees asked, “Why do you do a thing not permitted on sabbath days?” 3 Jesus answered them, “Have you not even read about what David did when he was hungry, he and his companions, 4 how he entered God’s house and took the loaves of the presentation, ate them, and gave some to his companions, though no one may lawfully eat them except the priests alone?”[b] 5 And he told them, “The Son of Man is lord of the sabbath.” 6 Another sabbath came, and he entered the synagogue and was teaching. There was a man present with a withered right hand. 7
The scribes and the Pharisees were watching him closely to see if he would heal on the sabbath, so as to find grounds to accuse him. 8 But he knew what they were thinking, and he told the man with the withered hand, “Get up and stand here in the middle.” And he rose and stood there. 9 Then Jesus said to them, “Let me ask you something: on the sabbath is it lawful to do good, or to do harm; to save a life, or to destroy it?” 10 Looking around at all of them, he told the man, “Stretch out your hand.” He did, and his hand was made sound again.
11 But they were filled with senseless rage and began discussing with each other what they might do to Jesus.
12 In those days he went out to the mountain to pray, and he spent the whole night in prayer to God. 13 At daybreak he summoned his disciples and selected twelve from among them, to whom he gave the name apostles:[c] 14 Simon, whom he also named Peter,[d] and Andrew his brother; James and John; Philip and Bartholomew; 15 Matthew and Thomas;[e] James son of Alphaeus, and Simon, who was called the Zealot;[f] 16 Judas son of James, and Judas Iscariot,[g] who turned traitor.

17 He descended with them and stopped on level ground. A large group of his disciples was there, along with a great crowd of people from all over Judea, from Jerusalem, and from the coast of Tyre and Sidon,[h] 18 who had come to hear him and to be healed of their diseases. People troubled by unclean spirits were set free, 19 and everyone in the crowd was trying to touch him, because power came out of him and healed them all.
20 Lifting his eyes toward his disciples, he said:

"Blessed are you who are poor, for yours is the kingdom of God.
21 Blessed are you who hunger now, for you will be fed until you are satisfied.

Blessed are you who weep now, for you will laugh.
22 Blessed are you when people hate you, when they cut you off and heap insults on you and throw out your name as evil, on account of the Son of Man.
23 On that day rejoice and leap for joy, for look, your reward in heaven is great; it was in the same way that their fathers treated the prophets.
24 "But woe to you who are rich, for you are already receiving your comfort in full.
25 Woe to you who are full now, for hunger will come to you.

Woe to you who laugh now, for you will mourn and weep.
26 Woe to you when all people speak well of you, for it was in the same way that their fathers treated the false prophets.
27 "But I say to you, my hearers: Love your enemies; treat well those who hate you; 28 bless those who curse you; pray for those who mistreat you. 29 If someone strikes you on one cheek, offer the other as well; and if someone takes your coat, do not withhold your shirt either. 30 Give to everyone who asks of you, and from one who takes what is yours, do not demand it back. 31 Just as you want people to treat you, treat them in the same way. 32 "If you love those who love you, what thanks is due to you? Even sinners love those who love them. 33 And if you do good to those who do good to you, what thanks is due to you? Even sinners do that. 34 And if you lend to those from whom you hope to get something back, what thanks is due to you? Even sinners lend to sinners, so as to get back as much again. 35 No, love your enemies, do good, and lend, despairing of no one.[i] Then your reward will be great, and you will be sons of the Most High, for he is kind to the ungrateful and the wicked. 36 Be merciful, just as your Father is merciful.

37 "Do not judge, and you will by no means be judged. Do not condemn, and you will by no means be condemned. Release, and you will be released. 38 Give, and gifts will come to you: good measure, pressed down, shaken together, overflowing, they will pour into your lap.[j] The measure you measure with is the measure you will receive."

39 He also told them a parable: "Can a blind man guide a blind man? Will not both of them fall into a pit? 40 A disciple is not above the teacher, but everyone, when fully trained, will be like his teacher. 41 Why do you look at the speck in your brother's eye, but take no notice of the beam in your own eye? 42 How can you tell your brother, 'Brother, let me remove the speck from your eye,' when you do not notice the beam in your own? You hypocrite! Take the beam out of your own eye first, and then you will be able to see well enough to take the speck out of your brother's.

43 "A good tree does not bear rotten fruit, and a rotten tree does not bear good fruit. 44 Each tree is known by the fruit it bears. People do not pick figs off thorns, nor do they harvest grapes from a briar. 45 The good person brings out good from the good treasure of the heart, and the evil one brings out evil from the evil; for out of the overflow of the heart the mouth speaks.

46 "Why do you call me 'Lord, Lord,' but do not do what I tell you? 47 Everyone who comes to me and hears my words and does them — I will show you what he is like. 48 He is like a man building a house, who dug, going down deep, and laid a foundation on the rock. When a flood came, the river burst against that house and could not shake it, because it had been well built.[k] 49 But whoever hears and does not do is like a man who put up a house on bare earth, with no foundation. The river burst against it, and at once it collapsed, and the ruin of that house was great."

Notes

- a (6:1) On a sabbath: so the Westcott–Hort text, with the earliest manuscripts. Many manuscripts read "on the second-first sabbath," an expression of uncertain meaning.
- b (6:4) The loaves of the presentation: the twelve loaves set out before Yahweh in the holy place each sabbath (Lev 24:5–9), traditionally "showbread." See 1 Sam 21:1–6. David probably means "beloved." Codex Bezae adds after 6:4 a saying about a man working on the sabbath.
- c (6:13) Apostles: Greek apostoloi, "those sent out," "messengers."
- d (6:14) Peter: Greek Petros, "rock" or "stone"; compare Aramaic Kepha (Cephas). Simon is a Greek name used for Hebrew Shimon (Simeon), linked with "hear." Andrew means "manly." James is Greek Iakōbos, that is, Jacob. Philip means "lover of horses." Bartholomew means "son of Talmai."
- e (6:15) Matthew: probably "gift of Yahweh." Thomas means "twin" in Aramaic.
- f (6:15) The Zealot: Greek zēlōtēs, "zealous one," perhaps for the law, or a member of the later anti-Roman party. Alphaeus is a name of uncertain meaning.
- g (6:16) Iscariot: probably "man of Kerioth," a town in Judea, though other explanations have been offered. Judas is the Greek form of Judah, explained in Gen 29:35 as "praise."
- h (6:17) In the Westcott–Hort edition the words that follow in 6:18 ("who had come to hear him … diseases") are numbered as part of verse 17; the standard English numbering is followed here. Tyre and Sidon were Phoenician cities on the coast north of Galilee; Tyre means "rock."
- i (6:35) Despairing of no one: Greek mēden apelpizontes, which may mean "expecting nothing in return." So the Westcott–Hort text; some manuscripts read mēdena, "despairing of no one," which this rendering follows in sense. Scholarly review recommended.
- j (6:38) Lap: Greek kolpos, the fold of a garment above the belt, used as a pocket.
- k (6:48) Because it had been well built: so the Westcott–Hort text, with the earliest manuscripts. Many manuscripts read "because it had been founded on the rock" (compare Matt 7:25).

Chapter 7

1 When he had completed all his sayings in the hearing of the people, he went into Capernaum. 2 There was a centurion[a] there whose slave, whom he valued greatly, was sick and close to death. 3 Hearing of Jesus, he sent Jewish elders to him with the request that he come and bring his slave safely through. 4 When they reached Jesus, they pleaded with him earnestly, saying, "He deserves to have you do this for him, 5 for he loves our nation, and he himself built our synagogue for us." 6 Jesus went with them. He was not far from the house when the centurion sent friends to say to him, "Lord, do not go to any trouble, since I am not worthy to have you come under my roof. 7

That is why I did not consider myself worthy even to come to you.
Just say a word, and let my servant be healed. 8 I too am a man under authority, with soldiers under my command. When I tell one, 'Go!' he goes; when I tell another, 'Come!' he comes; and when I tell my slave, 'Do this!' he does it." 9 When Jesus heard this, he was amazed.
Turning toward the crowd that followed him, he said, "I tell you, I have not found such faith even in Israel." 10 The messengers went back to the house and found the slave restored to health.
11 Soon afterward[b] he went to a town called Nain,[c] and his disciples and a large crowd went with him. 12 As he drew near the gate of the town, look, a dead man was being carried out, the only son of his mother, and she was a widow. A sizable crowd from the town was with her.
13 Seeing her, the Lord was moved with compassion for her, and he told her, "Do not weep." 14 He came up and touched the bier, and those carrying it stood still. And he said, "Young man, I say to you, get up!" 15 The dead man sat up and started talking, and Jesus handed him back to his mother. 16 Fear took hold of them all, and they glorified God, saying, "A great prophet has arisen among us!" and, "God has visited his people!" 17 And this word about him spread through all Judea and all the surrounding region.
18 John's disciples brought him a report of all these things. So John summoned two of his disciples 19 and sent them to the Lord with the question, "Are you the coming one, or are we to wait for someone else?" 20 Reaching him, the men said, "John the Baptist sent us to put this to you: 'Are you the coming one, or are we to wait for someone else?'" 21 In that hour he healed many of illnesses and torments and evil spirits, and to many blind people he gave the gift of sight. 22 And he answered them, "Go and report to John what you have seen and heard: blind people see again, lame people walk, people with leprosy are cleansed, and deaf people hear, dead people are raised, poor people have good news brought to them.[d] 23 And blessed is anyone who does not stumble over me."[e]

24 When John's messengers had gone, Jesus began to talk to the crowds about John: "What did you go out to the wilderness to see? A reed swaying in the wind? 25 Then what did you go out to see? A man clothed in fine soft garments? Look, those in splendid garments, living in luxury, are found in kings' courts. 26 What then did you go out to see? A prophet? Yes, I tell you, and more than a prophet. 27 This is the man of whom it stands written, 'See, I send my messenger before your face, and he will make your road ready ahead of you.'[f]

28 I tell you, of all born of women, none is greater than John; yet one who is least in the kingdom of God is greater than he." 29 (All the people who heard, even the tax collectors, acknowledged God's justice, having been baptized with John's baptism. 30 But the Pharisees and the lawyers set aside God's purpose for themselves, since they had not been baptized by him.)[g]

31 "To what, then, shall I liken the people of this generation? What do they resemble?

32 They resemble children who sit in the marketplace and call out to each other, saying,

'We piped for you, but you would not dance;
we wailed, but you would not weep.'

33 For John the Baptist has come neither eating bread nor drinking wine, and you say, 'He has a demon.'

34 The Son of Man has come eating and drinking, and you say, 'Look, a glutton and a drunkard, a friend of tax collectors and sinners!'

35 Yet wisdom is vindicated by all her children."

36 One of the Pharisees invited him to dinner, so he went to the Pharisee's house and took his place at the table. 37 And look, a woman of that town, a sinner, learned that he was at table in the Pharisee's house, and she brought an alabaster flask of perfumed oil,[h] 38 and standing behind him at his feet, weeping, she began to wet his feet with her tears, and she wiped them with the hair of her head, and kept kissing his feet and anointing them with the perfume. 39 Seeing it, the Pharisee who had invited him said within himself, “Were this man a prophet, he would recognize who and what kind of woman it is that touches him, for she is a sinner.” 40 In response Jesus said to him, “Simon, I have something to say to you.” “Teacher,” he replied, “say it.” 41 “A moneylender had two debtors. One owed five hundred days’ wages, the other fifty.[i] 42 Since neither had anything to pay with, he freely forgave both. Which of the two, then, will love him the more?” 43 Simon answered, “The one, I suppose, for whom he canceled the larger debt.” And he told him, “You have judged rightly.” 44 Then, turning toward the woman, he said to Simon, “Do you see this woman? I came into your house; you gave me no water for my feet, but she has wet my feet with her tears and wiped them with her hair.

45 You did not kiss me, but she, ever since I came in, has not ceased to kiss my feet. 46 You did not anoint my head with oil, but she has anointed my feet with perfume. 47 Therefore I tell you, her many sins have been forgiven, because she has shown great love.[j] But whoever has been forgiven little shows little love.” 48 Then he said to her, “Your sins have been forgiven.” 49 Those reclining at table with him began to say among themselves, “Who is this, who even forgives sins?” 50 But he said to the woman, “Your faith has saved you; go in peace.”

Notes

- a (7:2) Centurion: a Roman officer in command of about a hundred soldiers; here probably in the service of Herod Antipas.
- b (7:11) Soon afterward: or “On the next day,” according to many manuscripts.
- c (7:11) Nain: a village in southern Galilee; the name may mean “pleasant.”
- d (7:22) Compare Isa 26:19; 29:18–19; 35:5–6; 61:1.
- e (7:23) Stumble over me: or “take offense at me.”
- f (7:27) Mal 3:1; compare Exod 23:20. In the Hebrew of Malachi it is Yahweh who speaks.
- g (7:30) Verses 29–30 may be Luke’s comment rather than the words of Jesus.
- h (7:37) Alabaster flask: a sealed jar of soft stone used for costly perfume.
- i (7:41) Five hundred days’ wages … fifty: Greek “five hundred denarii … fifty.” A denarius was a Roman silver coin, the usual day’s pay for a laborer.
- j (7:47) For she loved much: or “as is shown by her great love”; her love is the evidence, not the cause, of her forgiveness (compare 7:42–43).

Chapter 8

1 Soon afterward he was journeying through one town and village after another, preaching and announcing the good news of God's kingdom. The Twelve were with him, 2 and certain women who had been cured of evil spirits and infirmities: Mary, the one called Magdalene,[a] out of whom seven demons had gone, 3 and Joanna,[b] wife of Chuza, Herod's steward, and Susanna,[c] and many other women, who were providing for them out of their own resources.
4 When a large crowd was gathering and people from town after town were making their way to him, he spoke by way of a parable: 5 "A sower went out to scatter seed. As he scattered it, some fell on the path and was stepped on, and the birds of the sky devoured it. 6 Other seed dropped onto the rock, and when it came up it dried out for lack of moisture. 7 Other seed fell in among thorns, and the thorns came up with it and choked it. 8 And other seed fell into the good soil and came up and yielded fruit a hundredfold." As he said this, he called out, "Whoever has ears to hear, let him hear!" 9 His disciples began asking him what this parable might mean. 10 He said, "To you it has been granted to know the secrets[d] of the kingdom of God, but to the rest it comes in parables, so that 'seeing they may not see, and hearing they may not understand.'[e] 11 "Now the parable means this: the seed is God's word. 12 Those along the path are the ones who hear; then the devil comes and carries off the word from their hearts, lest they believe and be saved. 13 Those on the rock are the ones who, on hearing, welcome the word with joy; but these have no root. They believe for a while, and in a time of testing they fall away. 14 As for the seed that landed among thorns, these are people who hear, but as time goes by, worries, wealth and the pleasures of life choke them, and they bear no ripe fruit. 15 But the seed in the fine soil stands for people who, having heard the word, keep it fast in a noble and good heart and bear fruit through endurance.
16 "Nobody, after lighting a lamp, hides it under a jar or sets it beneath a bed; instead he sets it on a lampstand, so that those coming in may see the light. 17 For there is nothing hidden that will not become plain, nor anything secret that will not be known and come out into the open. 18 Pay attention, then, to how you hear. More will be given to anyone who has; and from anyone who lacks, even what he supposes he has will be taken away." 19 His mother and his brothers came to see him, but they could not reach him because of the crowd. 20 Someone reported to him, "Your mother and brothers are outside and would like to see you." 21 But he answered them, "My mother and my brothers are these: the people who hear God's word and do it." 22 It happened one day that he boarded a boat with his disciples and said to them, "Let us cross over to the far side of the lake." So they set out. 23 As they sailed, he fell asleep. A windstorm swept down on the lake, and they were taking on water and were in danger. 24 They went and roused him, saying, "Master, Master, we are perishing!" He woke and rebuked the wind and the surging water; they ceased, and all was calm. 25 He said to them, "Where is your faith?" Frightened and amazed, they said to one another, "Who then is this, that he commands even the winds and the water, and they obey him?" 26 They sailed down to the region of the Gerasenes,[f] which lies across from Galilee. 27 When he got out on shore, he was met by a demon-possessed man from the town. For a long while this man had gone without clothes, and instead of a house he made his home among the tombs. 28 When he saw Jesus, he cried out, fell at his feet, and shouted, "What do you want with me, Jesus, Son of the Most High God? I beg you, do not torture me!" 29 For Jesus had been ordering the unclean spirit to come out of the man. Again and again it had taken hold of him; they would guard him, binding him with chains and fetters, yet he would snap the restraints and be driven off into the desert by the demon. 30 Jesus asked him, "What is your name?" He said, "Legion,"[g] because many demons had gone into him. 31 And they kept begging him not to order them to depart into the abyss.[h] 32 A sizable herd of pigs was feeding there on the hillside, and the demons begged him to let them enter these, and he gave them leave. 33 The demons came out of the man and went into the pigs, and the herd rushed down the steep bank into the lake and was drowned. 34 When the herdsmen saw what had happened, they fled and spread the news in the town and in the countryside. 35 People went out to see what had happened.

They came to Jesus and found the man from whom the demons had gone out sitting at Jesus' feet, clothed and in his right mind, and they were afraid. 36 The eyewitnesses reported to them how the man who had been possessed by demons was rescued. 37 Then the whole population of the surrounding region of the Gerasenes asked him to go away from them, for they were gripped by great fear. So he got into the boat and went back. 38 The man from whom the demons had gone out kept begging to be allowed to stay with him, but Jesus sent him away, saying, 39 "Return to your house, and recount everything God has done for you." And he went off, proclaiming throughout the whole town all that Jesus had done for him.
40 When Jesus came back, the crowd gave him a welcome, since everyone was expecting him. 41 Then a man named Jairus[i] came, who was the leader of the synagogue. He threw himself down at Jesus' feet and begged him to come to his house, 42 because his only daughter, about twelve years old, was dying. As Jesus went, the crowds were pressing in on him. 43 A woman was there who had suffered from bleeding for twelve years and could not be healed by anyone.[j] 44 Coming up behind him, she touched the fringe[k] of his cloak, and her flow of blood stopped instantly. 45 "Who touched me?" Jesus asked. As they all denied it, Peter said, "Master, the crowds are pressing around you and jostling you."[l] 46 But Jesus said, "Someone touched me, for I perceived that power had gone out from me." 47 The woman saw that she could not stay hidden, so she came forward trembling and fell at his feet. In front of everyone, she explained why she had touched him and how she had been healed immediately. 48 He said to her, "Daughter, your faith has made you well; go in peace." 49 While he was still speaking, someone arrived from the home of the synagogue leader with this message: "Your daughter is dead. Do not trouble the Teacher any longer." 50 But Jesus heard it and answered him, "Have no fear. Only believe, and she will be made well." 51 When he came to the house, he let no one go in with him except Peter and John and James, and the child's father and mother. 52 Everyone was weeping and beating their breasts for her. But he said, "Stop weeping; she has not died but is asleep." 53 They laughed at him, knowing she was dead. 54 But he took her by the hand and called out, "Child, get up!" 55 Her spirit returned, and she rose at once, and he directed that she be given something to eat. 56 Her parents were beside themselves, but he ordered them not to tell anyone what had taken place.

Notes

- a (8:2) Magdalene: "of Magdala," a town on the western shore of the Sea of Galilee; the name means "tower."
- b (8:3) Joanna: a feminine form of John, "Yahweh has been gracious." Chuza is a name of uncertain meaning; a steward managed an estate or household.
- c (8:3) Susanna: "lily."
- d (8:10) Secrets: Greek mystēria, "mysteries," things once hidden and now revealed.
- e (8:10) Isa 6:9.
- f (8:26) Gerasenes: so the Westcott–Hort text, with Vaticanus, P75, and others (also 8:37). Other manuscripts read "Gadarenes" or "Gergesenes." Gerasa and Gadara were towns of the Decapolis southeast of the Sea of Galilee.
- g (8:30) Legion: a Latin military term for a Roman unit of several thousand soldiers.
- h (8:31) Abyss: Greek abyssos, the bottomless deep, here the place where evil spirits are confined (compare Rev 9:1–2; 20:1–3).
- i (8:41) Jairus: Greek form of Jair, "he enlightens" or "he awakens" (Num 32:41).
- j (8:43) So the Westcott–Hort text, with Vaticanus and others. Many manuscripts add "though she had spent all she had on physicians."
- k (8:44) Fringe: Greek kraspedon, the edge or tassel of the garment (compare Num 15:38–39).
- l (8:45) Many manuscripts read "Peter and those with him said," and add at the end "and you say, 'Who touched me?'"

Chapter 9

1 Calling the Twelve together, he granted them power and authority over every demon and for curing diseases, 2 and he sent them out to herald God's kingdom and to heal. 3 He told them, "Carry nothing for the road: no staff, no bag, no bread, no silver, and do not have a second tunic. 4 Whatever house you go into, stay on there, and from there move on. 5 Wherever people refuse to receive you, when you leave that town shake the very dust from your feet as evidence against them." 6 So they set out and traveled from village to village, announcing the good news and healing people everywhere.

7 Now Herod the tetrarch heard of everything that was happening and was perplexed, since it was said by some that John had risen from among the dead, 8 some that Elijah had appeared, and others that one of the prophets of old had risen. 9 Herod said, "John I beheaded. Then who is this I keep hearing such things about?" And he was eager to see him.
10 On their return the apostles gave him an account of what they had done. Taking them with him, he went off by themselves to a town named Bethsaida.[a] 11 But the crowds found out and followed him. He welcomed them and talked to them of the kingdom of God, and he cured those in need of healing. 12 As the day began to wane, the Twelve approached and told him, "Dismiss the crowd, so that they can go into the villages and farms round about to find lodging and get provisions, for here we are in a desolate place." 13 But he said to them, "You give them something to eat." They answered, "We have nothing more than five loaves and two fish — unless perhaps we are to go and purchase food for this whole people." 14 For there were about five thousand men. He told his disciples, "Have them recline in groups of about fifty each." 15 They did so and got everyone seated. 16 Taking the five loaves and the two fish, he looked up to heaven, blessed them, broke them, and kept giving them to the disciples to set before the crowd. 17 They all ate their fill, and what they had left over was gathered up, twelve baskets of pieces.
18 It happened once, as he was praying in solitude, that the disciples were with him, and he put a question to them: "Whom do the crowds declare me to be?" 19 They replied, "John the Baptist; but others say Elijah, and others that one of the ancient prophets has risen." 20 He said to them, "And you, whom do you declare me to be?" Peter replied,
"The Messiah of God." 21 He sternly ordered them to tell this to no one, 22 "The Son of Man must endure great suffering and be rejected by the elders, chief priests and scribes. He must be killed and on the third day be raised."
23 To all he said, "Anyone who wishes to come after me must disown himself, take up his cross each day, and follow me. 24 Those who want to save their life[b] will lose it, but those who lose their life because of me will save it. 25 What does a person gain by winning the entire world if he loses or forfeits himself? 26 For whoever is ashamed of me and of my words, of him the Son of Man will be ashamed when he comes in his glory and the glory of the Father and of the holy angels.

27 I tell you truly, some who are standing here will not taste death until they see the kingdom of God." 28 About eight days after these sayings, he took Peter and John and James with him and went up onto the mountain to pray. 29 While he prayed, the look of his face became different, and his clothing flashed white as lightning. 30 And look, two men were talking with him, Moses and Elijah, 31 who appeared in glory and spoke of his departure,[c] which he was about to fulfill in Jerusalem. 32 Peter and his companions were weighed down with sleep, but they stayed awake and saw his glory and the two men standing with him. 33 As the men were parting from him, Peter said to Jesus, "Master, it is a fine thing that we are here.
We should put up three shelters, for you, for Moses, and for Elijah" — not knowing what he was saying. 34 While he was saying these things, a cloud came and overshadowed them, and they were frightened as they entered the cloud. 35 A voice came from the cloud: "This is my Son, my Chosen One;[d] listen to him!" 36 After the voice had spoken, Jesus was found alone. They kept silent and in those days told nobody anything of what they had seen.
37 The next day, when they had come down from the mountain, a large crowd met him.
38 And look, from the crowd a man cried aloud, "Teacher, I implore you, look on my son, for he is the only child I have.
39 A spirit takes hold of him, and all at once he cries out; it convulses him till he foams, and it will hardly leave him, battering him as it goes.
40 I pleaded with your disciples to expel it, but they could not."
41 Jesus answered, "O unbelieving and perverse generation, how long must I be with you and put up with you? Bring your son here." 42 Even as the boy was coming, the demon dashed him down and threw him into a convulsion. But Jesus rebuked the unclean spirit, healed the boy, and gave him back to his father.

43 And everyone was amazed at the greatness of God.

¶Everyone marveled at all that Jesus was doing, and he said to his disciples,

44 "Let these words sink into your ears: the Son of Man is about to be handed over into human hands."

45 They did not grasp what this saying meant; its meaning was concealed from them, so they were unable to perceive it, and they were afraid to ask him about it.

46 An argument started among them over who among them could be the greatest. 47 But Jesus, knowing the reasoning of their hearts, took a little child and stood it at his side, 48 and told them, "The person who receives this child on account of my name is receiving me; and the person who receives me is receiving him who sent me. It is the smallest among you all who is great."

49 John spoke up: "Master, we saw a man expelling demons by your name, and we kept trying to prevent him, since he does not follow along with us." 50 But Jesus told him, "Do not prevent him. Anyone who is not against you is on your side."

51 As the days for him to be taken up[e] were coming to completion, he set his face resolutely to go to Jerusalem. 52 He sent messengers ahead of him, and they went and entered a village of Samaritans[f] to make preparations for him; 53 but the people did not receive him, because his face was set toward Jerusalem. 54 When his disciples James and John saw this, they said, "Lord, shall we command fire to come down out of the sky and destroy them?"[g] 55 But he turned and rebuked them.[h] 56 And they went on to another village.

57 As they traveled along the road, someone said to him, "I will follow you wherever you go." 58 Jesus told him, "Foxes have dens and the birds of the sky have roosts, but the Son of Man has nowhere to lay his head." 59 To another he said, "Follow me." But he replied, "Allow me first to go and bury my father." 60 Jesus told him, "Leave the dead to bury their own dead; but as for you, go and spread the news of the kingdom of God." 61 Yet another said, "I will follow you, Lord; but first let me bid farewell to my household." 62 Jesus said to him, "No one who sets a hand to the plow and then looks back is suited for the kingdom of God."

Notes

- a (9:10) Bethsaida: "house of fishing," a town at the north end of the Sea of Galilee.
- b (9:24) Life: Greek psychē, "life" or "soul," also in the rest of the verse.
- c (9:31) Departure: Greek exodos, "exodus," here a reference to his death and what followed.
- d (9:35) My Chosen One: so the Westcott–Hort text, with P45, P75, Sinaiticus, and Vaticanus (Greek ho eklelegmenos). Many manuscripts read "my Beloved," as in Matt 17:5 and Mark 9:7. Compare Isa 42:1.
- e (9:51) Taken up: Greek analēmpsis, here of his ascension, and perhaps his death, compare Acts 1:2.
- f (9:52) Samaritans: inhabitants of Samaria, between Galilee and Judea, who worshiped on Mount Gerizim and were at odds with the Jews (compare John 4:9).
- g (9:54) Many manuscripts add "as Elijah also did" (compare 2 Kgs 1:10–12).
- h (9:55) This is how the Westcott–Hort text reads, supported by the earliest manuscripts (including P45 and P75 as reported in the standard editions, Sinaiticus, and Vaticanus). Many later manuscripts add the words, "and said, 'You do not know what spirit you share; the Son of Man did not come to destroy people's lives but to save them.'" Some have only the first part.

Chapter 10

1 Following these events the Lord designated seventy-two[a] more, and he dispatched them in pairs ahead of himself to every town and locality where he intended to go. 2 He told them, "The harvest is plentiful, but the laborers are few. So ask the Lord of the harvest to send out laborers into his harvest. 3 Be on your way. I am sending you off as lambs into the midst of wolves. 4 Do not carry a money bag or a pack or sandals, and stop to greet nobody on the way. 5 Whatever house you enter, first say, 'Peace to this house!' 6 If a son of peace[b] is there, your peace will rest on him; if not, it will come back to you.
7 Stay in that one house and eat and drink whatever they offer you, since workers deserve their pay. Do not go from house to house. 8 Whenever you enter a town and they welcome you, eat what is put in front of you; 9 heal the sick who are there, and tell them, 'The kingdom of God has come close to you.' 10 But if you go into a town where they refuse to receive you, go out into its open streets and declare, 11 'We wipe off against you even the dust from your town that has stuck to our feet. Nevertheless, be sure of this: God's kingdom has drawn near.' 12 I say to you, Sodom will fare more tolerably on that day than that town.

13 "Woe to you, Chorazin! Woe to you, Bethsaida![c] For had the miracles performed among you been performed in Tyre and Sidon, long ago they would have sat in sackcloth and ashes and repented. 14 But at the judgment it will be more bearable for Tyre and Sidon than for you. 15 And you, Capernaum, will you be lifted up as far as heaven? You will be brought down as far as Hades![d] 16 "Whoever hears you hears me; whoever sets you aside sets me aside; and whoever sets me aside sets aside the one who sent me."

17 The seventy-two came back joyfully, saying, "Lord, even the demons submit to us in your name!" 18 He said to them, "I saw Satan[e] fall from heaven like lightning. 19 Look, I have given you authority to tread on snakes and scorpions, and over all the power of the enemy, and nothing at all will harm you. 20 Even so, do not rejoice in this, that the spirits submit to you; rejoice rather that your names have been recorded in heaven."

21 In that same hour he rejoiced in the Holy Spirit and said, "I praise you, Father, Lord of heaven and earth, because you have hidden these things from the wise and intelligent and revealed them to little children. Yes, Father, for such was your good pleasure. 22 Everything has been entrusted to me by my Father. Nobody knows who the Son is but the Father, nor who the Father is but the Son, and whoever the Son wills to make him known to."

23 Then, turning to the disciples, he said privately, "Blessed are the eyes that see what you see. 24 I assure you, many a prophet and king longed to see the things you are seeing, yet did not see them, and to hear the things you are hearing, yet did not hear them."

25 Then an expert in the law stood up to test him. "Teacher," he said, "what must I do to inherit eternal life?" 26 He said to him, "What is written in the law? How do you read it?" 27 He answered, "You shall love the Lord your God out of your whole heart, and with your whole soul, and with your whole strength, and with your whole mind; and your neighbor as yourself."[f] 28 Jesus told him, "You have answered correctly. Do this, and you will live." 29 But he, wishing to justify himself, asked Jesus, "And who is my neighbor?" 30 Jesus took this up and said, "A man was going down from Jerusalem to Jericho,[g] and he fell among robbers, who stripped him, beat him, and went off, leaving him half dead. 31 A priest happened to be traveling along that road.

He saw the man, but moved to the other side and passed by. 32 So too a Levite,[h] when he came to the place and saw him, passed by on the other side. 33 But a Samaritan who was traveling came upon him, and when he saw him he was moved with compassion. 34 He went to him and bandaged his wounds, pouring on oil and wine. Then he put him on his own animal, brought him to an inn, and took care of him. 35
The next day he took out two days' wages[i] and handed them to the innkeeper. 'Look after him,' he said, 'and anything further you spend, I will pay you back on my return.' 36 Which of these three seems to you to have become a neighbor to the man who had fallen into the hands of the robbers?" 37 He said, "The one who showed him mercy." Jesus told him, "Go, and you do the same." 38 As they went on their way, he entered a certain village, and a woman named Martha[j] welcomed him into her house. 39 She had a sister named Mary, who seated herself by the Lord's feet and was listening to his word. 40 Martha, however, was pulled in many directions by all the serving. She came over and said, "Lord, does it not matter to you that my sister has abandoned me to do the serving by myself? Tell her to lend me a hand." 41 The Lord answered her, "Martha, Martha, you are anxious and troubled about many things; 42 only a few things are necessary, really only one.[k] Mary has picked the better part, and it will not be taken away from her."

Notes

- a (10:1) Seventy-two: so the Westcott–Hort text, which brackets "two" (also 10:17); the manuscripts are divided between "seventy-two" and "seventy." Compare the nations in Gen 10, numbered seventy in the Hebrew text and seventy-two in the Greek Old Testament.
- b (10:6) A son of peace: a Hebrew idiom for a person disposed to peace or worthy of it.
- c (10:13) Chorazin … Bethsaida: towns near the north shore of the Sea of Galilee. The meaning of Chorazin is uncertain.

- d (10:15) Hades: Greek hadēs, the realm of the dead, corresponding to Hebrew Sheol. Compare Isa 14:13–15.
- e (10:18) Satan: Hebrew for "adversary."
- f (10:27) Deut 6:5; Lev 19:18. In the Hebrew text, "the Lord your God" is "Yahweh your God."
- g (10:30) Jericho: a city near the Jordan, about 17 miles (27 km) from Jerusalem and some 3,300 feet (1,000 m) lower; the name may mean "moon city" or "fragrant."
- h (10:32) Levite: a member of the tribe of Levi who assisted the priests in the temple.
- i (10:35) Two days' wages: Greek "two denarii." A denarius was the usual day's pay for a laborer.
- j (10:38) Martha: Aramaic, "lady" or "mistress."
- k (10:42) Few things are needed, or only one: so the Westcott–Hort text, with Sinaiticus, Vaticanus, and others. P45, P75, and many manuscripts read "one thing is needed"; some witnesses omit the words "you are anxious … only one."

Chapter 11

1 Jesus was praying somewhere, and when he finished, one of his disciples asked him, "Lord, teach us to pray, as John taught his disciples."
2 He told them, "Whenever you pray, say: Father,[a] may your name be held holy;
may your kingdom come.
3 Day by day keep giving us our bread for the coming day;[b] 4 and pardon our sins,
since we also release all who owe us;
and bring us not into testing."[c] 5 He went on, "Imagine that one of you has a friend, and at midnight you call on him and say, 'My friend, lend me three loaves, 6 because a friend of mine has arrived at my place from a journey and I have nothing to set in front of him.' 7 And the man inside answers, 'Do not trouble me. The door has been shut by now, and my little ones are with me in bed. I am unable to get up and give you something.' 8 I tell you, though he will not get up and give him anything on the ground of friendship, yet because of his shameless persistence[d] he will rise and give him as much as he needs. 9 "And so I tell you: keep asking, and it will be given you; keep seeking, and you will find; keep knocking, and it will be opened for you. 10 For everyone who asks receives, the seeker finds, and to the one who knocks it will be opened. 11 Which father among you, if his son asks for[e] a fish, will hand him a snake in place of a fish? 12 Or if he asks for an egg, will hand him a scorpion? 13 If you, who are evil, know how to give good gifts to your children, how much more will your Father in heaven give the Holy Spirit to those who ask him!" 14 He was driving out a demon that was mute. When the demon had gone out, the mute man spoke, and the crowds were amazed. 15 But some of them said, "It is by Beelzebul,[f] the ruler of the demons, that he drives the demons out." 16 Others, putting him to the test, were seeking a sign from heaven from him. 17 But he, knowing their thoughts, said to them, "Any kingdom split against itself is laid waste, and house falls upon house. 18 And if Satan too is split against himself, how will his kingdom stand? For you claim that it is by Beelzebul I drive out the demons. 19 If I drive out demons by Beelzebul, by whom do your followers drive them out? For that reason, they will be your judges. 20 If, however, I drive out the demons by God's finger,[g] then God's kingdom has come upon you. 21 When a strong man, fully armed, guards his own courtyard, his goods are undisturbed. 22 But when someone stronger than he comes upon him and conquers him, he strips him of the armor he trusted in and hands out the spoils. 23 Whoever is not on my side opposes me, and whoever does not join me in gathering scatters.

24 "When the unclean spirit has gone out of a person, it roams through waterless places seeking rest, and finding none, it says, 'I will go back to my house that I left.' 25 On arrival it finds the house swept and put in order. 26 Then it goes and brings along seven other spirits more wicked than itself, and they go in and settle there; and that person's final state turns out worse than the first." 27 While he was speaking these words, a woman lifted up her voice from the crowd and told him, "Happy is the womb that bore you, and the breasts that nursed you!" 28 But he replied, "No — happy instead are the ones who hear the word of God and guard it!" 29 As the crowds were thronging together, he began to say, "This generation is a wicked generation. It looks for a sign, yet no sign will be granted it except the sign of Jonah.[h] 30 For as Jonah became a sign to the Ninevites, so will the Son of Man be to this generation. 31 The queen of the South[i] will rise at the judgment with the men of this generation and condemn them, because she came from the ends of the earth to hear Solomon's wisdom; and look, something greater than Solomon is here. 32 At the judgment the men of Nineveh will rise up together with this generation and pass sentence on it, for they turned in repentance at Jonah's proclamation; and look, here is something greater than Jonah.

33 "No one lights a lamp and then hides it in a cellar or under a basket,[j] but sets it on a lampstand so that those who enter can see the light. 34 Your eye is the lamp of your body. When your eye is healthy,[k] your whole body is full of light; but when it is unhealthy, your body is full of darkness. 35 Watch out, therefore, that the light within you is not darkness. 36 If then your whole body is full of light, with no part of it dark, it will be wholly bright, as when a lamp shines on you with its gleam."

37 When he had spoken, a Pharisee invited him to have a meal at his house; so he went in and reclined at table. 38 The Pharisee was surprised to see that he did not first wash[l] before the meal. 39 But the Lord said to him, "Now you Pharisees cleanse the outside of the cup and the dish, but inside you are full of greed and wickedness. 40 Fools! Did not he who made the outside make the inside as well? 41 Rather, give as alms what is within, and look, everything is clean for you. 42 "But woe to you Pharisees! You tithe mint and rue and every garden herb, yet pass over justice and the love of God. These you ought to have practiced, without neglecting the others. 43 Woe to you Pharisees! You love the front seats in the synagogues and greetings in the marketplaces. 44 Woe to you! You resemble tombs that are not marked, which people walk on unawares."[m]

45 In response one of the lawyers said to him, "Teacher, by saying this you are insulting us as well." 46 He replied, "And woe to you lawyers! You weigh people down with loads that are crushing to carry, while you yourselves will not lay one finger on the loads. 47 Woe to you! You construct monuments for the prophets, whom your ancestors put to death. 48 Thus you testify that you approve of what your ancestors did; they did the killing, and you do the building. 49 For this reason also the Wisdom of God said, 'I will send them prophets and apostles, and some of them they will kill and persecute,' 50 so that from this generation may be required the blood of all the prophets, poured out since the world was founded, 51 from Abel's blood to the blood of Zechariah,[n] who met his death between the altar and the house. Yes, I say to you, it will be required from this generation. 52 Woe to you lawyers! You have carried off the key of knowledge. You yourselves have not entered, and those who were entering you have blocked." 53 When he left there, the scribes and Pharisees began to oppose him fiercely and to question him on many subjects, 54 lying in wait to catch him in something he might say.

Notes

- a (11:2) Father: many manuscripts expand the prayer to resemble Matt 6:9–13, reading "Our Father in heaven" here, adding "may your will be done, on earth as in heaven" after "may your kingdom come," and adding "but rescue us from the evil one" (or "from evil") at the end of 11:4. The shorter form is that of the Westcott–Hort text, with P75, Vaticanus, and others.
- b (11:3) Bread for the coming day: Greek epiousios, a rare word of uncertain meaning; possibly "daily," "needed," or "for tomorrow."
- c (11:4) Testing: or "temptation."
- d (11:8) Shameless persistence: Greek anaideia, "shamelessness." It is uncertain whether the shamelessness is that of the asker or of the sleeper, who would be shamed by refusing.
- e (11:11) If his son asks for: many manuscripts add "bread, will give him a stone? Or if he asks for," as in Matt 7:9.
- f (11:15) Beelzebul: a name of uncertain meaning, perhaps "lord of the dwelling" or "lord of dung"; compare Baal-zebub, "lord of flies," in 2 Kgs 1:2.
- g (11:20) The finger of God: compare Exod 8:19.
- h (11:29) Jonah: Hebrew for "dove." Many manuscripts add "the prophet."
- i (11:31) The queen of the South: the queen of Sheba (1 Kgs 10:1–10).
- j (11:33) Basket: Greek modios, a container holding about 2 gallons (8.75 liters).
- k (11:34) Sound: Greek haplous, "single," "sincere," or "generous"; "bad" may also mean "stingy."
- l (11:38) Wash: Greek baptizō, here a ritual washing before meals.
- m (11:44) Contact with a grave made a person ritually unclean (Num 19:16).
- n (11:51) Zechariah: probably the priest stoned in the temple court (2 Chr 24:20–22), the last murder recorded in the Hebrew Bible, whose final book is Chronicles. The name means "Yahweh remembers."

Chapter 12

1 In the meantime, as the crowd assembled in tens of thousands, until they were treading on one another, he started by addressing his disciples: "Beware, above all, of the Pharisees' leaven, which is hypocrisy. 2 Nothing is covered over that will not be uncovered, nor secret that will not become known. 3 Therefore whatever you have said in the dark will be heard in the daylight, and what you have whispered into an ear in inner rooms will be proclaimed from the housetops.
4 "To you, my friends, I say: have no fear of those who kill the body and after that can do nothing further. 5 But I will show you whom to fear: fear him who, once he has killed, holds the power to throw into Gehenna.[a] Yes, I tell you, fear that one. 6 Five sparrows are sold for two small coins,[b] are they not? And yet not one of them is forgotten in God's sight. 7 Why, even the hairs of your head have all been counted.
Have no fear; you are worth more than a great many sparrows.
8 "I tell you, everyone who acknowledges me before people, the Son of Man too will acknowledge before God's angels; 9 but whoever disowns me in front of people will be disowned in front of God's angels. 10 Everyone who utters a word against the Son of Man will receive forgiveness; but for the one who has blasphemed the Holy Spirit there will be no forgiveness. 11 When they bring you before synagogues and rulers and authorities, do not worry about how to defend yourselves or what to say; 12 For in that hour the Holy Spirit will instruct you in the things you must say." 13 Someone in the crowd said to him, "Teacher, tell my brother to divide the family inheritance with me." 14 But he told him, "Man, who set me up as judge or arbitrator over the two of you?" 15 And he said to them, "Look out, and guard yourselves against greed of every kind; for even when someone has abundance, his life does not consist in his possessions." 16 Then he told them this parable: "A rich man's land produced an abundant harvest. 17 He reasoned with himself, 'What shall I do? I have no room to store my produce.' 18 Then he said, 'Here is what I will do: I will pull my barns down and build bigger ones, and there I will gather in all my grain and my goods. 19 And I will say to my soul, "Soul, you have plenty of goods [laid up for many years; take it easy, eat, drink,] enjoy yourself."'[c] 20 But God told him, 'Senseless man! On this night they are demanding your soul back from you. And all you have prepared — who will own it then?' 21 [So it is with anyone who lays up treasure for himself and is not rich toward God.]"[d] 22 Then he told his disciples, "For this reason I say to you, stop fretting over your life — what to eat — or over your body — what to wear. 23 Life is more than food, and the body more than clothing. 24 Think about the ravens: they do not plant or harvest, they have no storeroom or barn, yet God feeds them. How much more valuable you are than birds! 25 And which of you, by fretting, is able to add an hour[e] to the length of his life? 26 If then you cannot do even so small a thing, why be anxious about the rest? 27 Consider how the lilies grow: they neither toil nor spin. Yet I tell you, not even Solomon in all his splendor was robed like one of these. 28 If God clothes in this way the grass of the field, which is here today and is tossed into an oven tomorrow, how much more will he clothe you, you people of little faith! 29 So do not be searching for what to eat and what to drink, and do not hang in suspense. 30 For all the nations of the world chase after these things, and your Father knows you need them. 31 Instead, seek his kingdom,[f] and these things will be added to you. 32 "Do not be afraid, little flock, because it has pleased your Father to give you the kingdom. 33 Sell what you own and give to the poor. Provide yourselves with purses that will never wear out, a treasure in heaven that cannot fail, where no thief can reach it and no moth can destroy it. 34 For where your treasure is, there your heart will be as well.

35 "Keep your belts fastened[g] and your lamps lit, 36 Be like servants who are expecting their master on his way back from a marriage feast, ready to open for him the moment he arrives and knocks. 37 Blessed are those slaves whom the master finds awake when he comes. Truly I tell you, he will tie on an apron, have them recline at table, and come and wait on them. 38 Whether he comes before midnight or after it,[h] and finds them so, blessed are they. 39 Be sure of this: had the householder known the hour the thief would come, he would not have allowed his house to be dug through.[i] 40 You also, be prepared, since at an hour you do not imagine, the Son of Man comes." 41 Then Peter asked, "Lord, is it to us that you are speaking this parable, or to all people too?" 42 The Lord answered, "Who, then, is the trustworthy, prudent manager whom his lord will appoint over his servants to hand out their portion of grain at the right time? 43 Blessed is that slave whom his master on arrival finds doing so. 44 I tell you truthfully, he will appoint him over everything he possesses. 45 But suppose that servant tells himself, 'My master is taking a long time to come,' and starts to beat the male and female servants, and to eat, drink and get drunk, 46 the master of that servant will return on a day when he is not expecting him and at a time he does not know. He will cut him to pieces[j] and put him with the unfaithful. 47 And that slave who was aware of what his master wanted yet made no preparation and did not do as he wished will be flogged with many blows. 48 But the one who did not know, and did things deserving a beating, will be beaten lightly. Much will be required of everyone who has been given much, and even more will be asked of the one who has been trusted with much.

49 "I came to cast fire on the earth, and how I wish it were already kindled! 50 I have a baptism to undergo, and how distressed I am until it is accomplished! 51 Do you imagine I came to give peace on the earth? Not at all, I tell you; rather, division! 52 For from this time on there will be five in a single house split up, three against two and two against three. 53 They will be divided, father against son and son against father, mother against daughter and daughter against mother, mother-in-law against her daughter-in-law and daughter-in-law against her mother-in-law."[k] 54 He also said to the crowds, "When you see a cloud rising in the west, at once you say, 'A rainstorm is coming,' and so it happens. 55
And when the wind blows from the south, you say, 'It is going to be hot,' and it is. 56 Hypocrites! You know how to read the face of earth and sky, but how is it you cannot read this present time? 57 "Why not decide for yourselves what is just? 58 As you are going with your opponent to the magistrate, make an effort on the way to settle with him, so that he does not drag you to the judge, and the judge hand you over to the officer, and the officer throw you into prison. 59 I tell you, you will not get out of there until you have paid the very last cent."[l]

Notes

- a (12:5) Gehenna: the Valley of Hinnom south of Jerusalem, once a place of child sacrifice (Jer 7:31), used as a name for the place of final punishment.
- b (12:6) Two small coins: Greek "two assaria." An assarion was a Roman copper coin worth one sixteenth of a denarius (a day's wage).
- c (12:19) The words in brackets are bracketed in the Westcott–Hort text; they are lacking in Codex Bezae and some Old Latin witnesses but present in nearly all other manuscripts.
- d (12:21) The verse is bracketed in the Westcott–Hort text; it is lacking in Codex Bezae and some Old Latin witnesses but present in nearly all other manuscripts.
- e (12:25) An hour: or "a cubit"; Greek pēchys, a forearm's length, about 18 inches (45 cm), here probably used figuratively of time.
- f (12:31) His kingdom: many manuscripts read "the kingdom of God."
- g (12:35) Keep your belts fastened: literally "Let your loins be girded," that is, with long robes tucked up for action.
- h (12:38) Before midnight or after it: literally "in the second or the third watch." The Romans divided the night into four watches: about 6–9 p.m., 9 p.m.–midnight, midnight–3 a.m., and 3–6 a.m.
- i (12:39) He would not have allowed: many manuscripts read "he would have stayed awake and would not have allowed."
- j (12:46) Cut him in pieces: or "punish him severely."
- k (12:53) Compare Mic 7:6.
- l (12:59) Cent: Greek lepton, the smallest copper coin, worth about one hundred twenty-eighth of a denarius (a day's wage).

Chapter 13

1 At that very time some people who were there brought him word about the Galileans whose blood Pilate had mingled with their sacrifices. 2 He responded, "Do you imagine that these Galileans, because they underwent such things, were greater sinners than every other Galilean? 3 By no means, I tell you. But unless you repent, you will every one of you perish as they did. 4 Or those eighteen on whom the tower at Siloam[a] fell and killed them — do you imagine they were more in debt[b] than all the other people living in Jerusalem? 5 By no means, I tell you. But unless you repent, you will all perish in the same way."

6 He went on to tell this parable: "A man had planted a fig tree in his vineyard. He went to look for fruit on it and found none. 7 So he told the gardener, 'Look, I have come for three years searching this fig tree for fruit, and there is none. Cut it down! Why should it take up space in the ground?' 8 He answered, 'Master, let it stand one more year, until I dig around it and fertilize it. 9 If after this it yields fruit — fine; but if not, you shall cut it down.'" 10 He was teaching in one of the synagogues on the sabbath. 11 There was also a woman who for eighteen years had been disabled by a spirit. She was bent over and could not stand up straight at all. 12 When Jesus saw her, he called her over and told her, "Woman, you are set free from your infirmity." 13 He laid his hands on her, and at once she was made upright again and began to glorify God. 14 But the synagogue ruler, angry because Jesus had done a healing on the sabbath, said repeatedly to the people, "Six days there are for working. On those, then, come and get your healing, not on the sabbath day." 15
The Lord answered him, "Hypocrites! Does not each of you on the sabbath untie his ox or his donkey from the manger and lead it off to water? 16 And this woman, a daughter of Abraham whom Satan has kept tied up for eighteen long years — was it not right that she be untied from this bond on the sabbath day?" 17 As he said these things, all his opponents were put to shame, while the whole crowd was delighted at all the glorious things being done by him.
18 So he said, "What is the kingdom of God like? To what shall I compare it? 19 It is like a mustard seed that someone took and tossed into his garden. It grew and turned into a tree, and the birds of the sky nested in its branches." 20 Once more he said, "To what shall I compare the kingdom of God? 21 It is like leaven that a woman took and hid in about forty-five pounds of flour,[c] until the whole batch was leavened." 22 He journeyed on through towns and villages, teaching and making his way toward Jerusalem. 23 Someone asked him, "Lord, is it only a few who are being saved?" He said to them, 24 "Strain every nerve to go in through the narrow door. For many, I tell you, will seek to go in and will not manage it. 25 Once the owner of the house has risen and locked the door, you will find yourselves standing outside, knocking and pleading, ‘Lord, open the door for us!’ But he will answer, ‘I do not know where you are from.’ 26 Then you will say, ‘We ate and drank with you, and you taught in our streets.’ 27 And he will say, ‘I tell you, I do not know where you come from. Get away from me, all you doers of wrong!’[d] 28 There will be weeping there and grinding of teeth, when you see Abraham and Isaac and Jacob and all the prophets inside God’s kingdom, while you yourselves are being thrown outside. 29 People will come from east and west, and from north and south, and will recline at table in God’s kingdom. 30 And note this: there are last ones who will be first, and there are first ones who will be last.” 31 At that same hour some Pharisees came up and told him, “Leave this place and be on your way, for Herod intends to kill you.” 32 He replied, “Go and tell that fox, ‘Look, I drive out demons and carry out healings today and tomorrow, and the third day I am brought to completion.’ 33 Yet I must keep going today and tomorrow and the day after that, for it is unthinkable that a prophet should perish anywhere but in Jerusalem. 34 Jerusalem, Jerusalem, you who kill the prophets and stone those sent to you! Time after time I wanted to gather your children as a hen gathers her chicks under her wings, but you refused! 35 See, your house is abandoned to you.[e] And I tell you, you will not see me until you say, ‘Blessed is he who comes in the name of the Lord.’”[f]

Notes

- a (13:4) Siloam: Hebrew Shiloah, “sent,” a pool and district in the southeast of Jerusalem (compare John 9:7).
- b (13:4) In debt: that is, guilty; sin is often pictured as a debt (compare 11:4).
- c (13:21) About forty-five pounds of flour: Greek “three sata of wheat flour.” A saton (Hebrew seah) was about 13 liters, so the whole was about 10 gallons (39 liters), a very large batch of dough.
- d (13:27) Ps 6:8.
- e (13:35) Many manuscripts add “desolate.” Compare Jer 12:7; 22:5.
- f (13:35) Ps 118:26. In the Hebrew text, “the Lord” is Yahweh.

Chapter 14

1 It happened one sabbath, when he went to eat a meal in the house of one of the leading Pharisees, that they were watching him closely.
2 And look, before him stood a man suffering from dropsy.[a] 3 Jesus responded by asking the lawyers and Pharisees, “Is healing on the sabbath permitted, or not?” 4 But they held their peace. So he took hold of the man, cured him, and let him go. 5 Then he asked them, “Suppose your son[b] or your ox falls into a well on the sabbath. Will you not pull him out right away?” 6 To this they had no reply to make.

7 Noticing how the guests were picking out the places of honor, he told them a parable: 8 “Whenever someone invites you to a marriage feast, do not recline in the foremost seat. A guest more eminent than you may have been invited by him, 9 and the host who invited you both comes and says to you, ‘Make room for this man,’ and then, red-faced, you start to take the lowest place. 10 Instead, when someone invites you, go and sit in the lowest seat, so that your host will come and tell you, ‘My friend, move up higher.’ Then you will be honored in front of all the other guests. 11 For all who exalt themselves will be brought low, and those who humble themselves will be lifted up.” 12 He also said to his host, “When you put on a midday meal or an evening meal, do not summon your friends, your brothers, your kin, or wealthy neighbors; they might well invite you in return, and you would be paid back. 13 Rather, when you give a reception, call the poor, the maimed, the lame, and the blind. 14 Then you will be blessed, because they have no means of repaying you; for you will be repaid at the resurrection of the righteous.” 15 On hearing this, one of the dinner guests said to him, “Blessed is whoever will eat bread in God’s kingdom!” 16 Jesus told him, “A certain man was giving a great dinner and invited many. 17 At the dinner hour he sent his slave to tell the invited guests, ‘Come, for everything is now ready.’ 18 But one by one they all started to make excuses. The first told him, ‘I have bought a field, and I need to go and inspect it.
Please excuse me.’ 19 Another said, ‘I have bought five yoke of oxen, and I am on my way to try them out. Please, consider me excused.’ 20 Another said, ‘I have married a wife, and that is why I cannot come.’ 21 On his return the slave told his lord these things. At that the master of the house was enraged and said to his slave, ‘Go out quickly into the broad streets and alleys of the city and bring the poor, the maimed, the blind, and the lame in here.’ 22 Then the slave said, ‘Sir, your order has been carried out, and still there is room.' 23 So the master told the slave, 'Go out to the roads and the hedgerows and compel people to come in, so that my house may be filled. 24 I assure you, none of those men who were invited shall so much as sample my banquet.'" 25 Large crowds were traveling with him, and he turned and said to them, 26 "If anyone comes to me and does not hate[c] his own father and mother and wife and children and brothers and sisters — yes, and even his own life — he cannot be my disciple. 27 Whoever does not carry his own cross and come after me cannot be my disciple. 28 For which of you, intending to build a tower, does not first sit down and reckon up the cost, to see whether he has enough to complete it? 29 Otherwise, when he has laid a foundation and is unable to finish, all the onlookers will begin to ridicule him, 30 saying, 'This fellow began to build and was not able to finish.' 31 Or what king, setting out to meet another king in battle, will not sit down first and deliberate whether with ten thousand he is strong enough to face the one coming against him with twenty thousand? 32 If he cannot, he sends envoys while the other is yet far away and asks what the conditions of peace are. 33 In the same way, then, none of you who does not say farewell to all his possessions can be my disciple. 34 "Salt, then, is good; but if even salt loses its taste,[d] with what will its saltiness be restored? 35 It is of no use for the soil or for the manure heap; people throw it out. Let anyone with ears to hear, hear!"

Notes

- a (14:2) Dropsy: Greek hydrōpikos, a disease in which fluid gathers in the tissues, causing swelling.
- b (14:5) A son: so the Westcott–Hort text, with P45, P75, Vaticanus, and many others. Some manuscripts read "a donkey" (compare 13:15), and a few "a sheep."
- c (14:26) Hate: a Semitic idiom for loving less or putting in second place (compare Matt 10:37; Gen 29:30–31).
- d (14:34) Loses its taste: Greek mōrainō, "becomes foolish" or "becomes insipid." The salt of the region, from the Dead Sea, contained impurities and could lose its savor.

Chapter 15

1 All the tax collectors and sinners were gathering around to listen to him. 2 And both the Pharisees and the scribes kept grumbling, "This man welcomes sinners and eats with them." 3 So he told them this parable: 4 "Suppose one of you has a hundred sheep and loses one. Will you not leave the ninety-nine in the wilderness and search for the lost sheep until you find it? 5 And having found it, he lifts it onto his shoulders, rejoicing, 6 and on reaching home he calls his friends and neighbors together. 'Celebrate with me,' he tells them, 'for my lost sheep has been found.' 7 In the same way, I tell you, there will be more joy in heaven over one sinner who repents than over ninety-nine righteous persons who have no need of repentance.
8 "Or suppose a woman has ten silver coins[a] and loses one. Will she not light a lamp, sweep the house, and search with care until she finds it? 9 And having found it, she calls her women friends and neighbors together, saying, 'Celebrate with me, for I have found the coin I lost.' 10 Just so, I tell you, joy arises before the angels of God over a single sinner who repents." 11 He continued: "A certain man had two sons. 12 The younger one said to his father, 'Father, give me my share of the estate.' So the father divided his property between his two sons. 13 A few days later the younger son turned everything into cash and went abroad to a distant country, where he squandered his property in reckless living. 14 When he had spent it all, a severe famine swept that country, and he began to be in want. 15 He hired himself out to a citizen of that country, who sent him to his fields to feed pigs. 16 He wished he could fill his stomach[b] with the carob pods[c] that the pigs were eating, but nobody gave him anything. 17 Coming to himself, he said, 'My father's hired workers, all of them, have more bread than they need, while I am perishing here from famine! 18 I will set off and go to my father, and I will tell him, "Father, I have sinned against heaven and before you. 19 I no longer deserve to be called your son; treat me as one of your hired men."' 20 So he got up and came to his own father. But while he was still at a great distance, his father saw him and was moved to pity; running to him, he fell on his neck and kissed him over and over. 21

The son said to him, ‘Father, I have sinned against heaven and before you; I no longer deserve to be called your son. [Treat me as one of your hired men.]’[d] 22 But the father told his slaves, ‘Quick! Bring out a robe, the finest, and put it on him; put a ring on his hand and sandals on his feet. 23 Fetch the fattened calf and slaughter it, and let us eat and celebrate; 24 for this my son was dead and is alive again; he was lost and is found.’ And they began to celebrate.

25 “Meanwhile his elder son was out in the field. As he came near the house on his way in, he heard music and dancing. 26 He called one of the servant boys over and inquired what this might mean. 27 He told him, ‘Your brother has come home, and your father has slaughtered the fattened calf, because he has got him back safe and sound.’ 28 But he grew angry and would not go in. His father came out and kept pleading with him. 29 He answered his father, ‘Look! All these years I have been slaving for you, and never once disobeyed an order of yours; yet you never gave me so much as a young goat to celebrate with my friends. 30 But when this son of yours came, who has devoured your livelihood with prostitutes, for him you slaughtered the fattened calf!’ 31 He said to him, ‘My child, you are always with me, and all that is mine is yours. 32 But it was fitting to celebrate and be glad, for this brother of yours was dead and is alive; he was lost and is found.’”

Notes

- a (15:8) Silver coins: Greek drachmai. A drachma was a Greek silver coin worth about a day’s wage for a laborer.
- b (15:16) To fill his stomach: so the Westcott–Hort text, with Sinaiticus, Vaticanus, and others; many manuscripts read “to fill his belly.”
- c (15:16) Carob pods: the pods of the carob tree, used as animal fodder and eaten by the very poor.
- d (15:21) The bracketed words are found in Sinaiticus, Vaticanus, Codex Bezae, and a few others, but are lacking in P75 and most manuscripts; they may have been added from 15:19.

Chapter 16

1 Jesus also said to his disciples, “A rich man had a manager who was accused of wasting his master’s property. 2 So he summoned the manager and asked, ‘What am I hearing about you? Turn in the account of your work, because you can no longer manage my affairs.’

3 The steward thought to himself, ‘What shall I do, since my lord is removing me from the stewardship? Digging I have no strength for; begging I would be ashamed of. 4 I know what I will do, so that when I am removed from the stewardship people will receive me into their homes.’ 5 Then he summoned his master’s debtors one by one. To the first he said, ‘What is the amount you owe my lord?’ 6 He said, ‘Six hundred gallons of olive oil.’[a] He told him, ‘Take your bill, sit down quickly, and write three hundred.’ 7 Then he asked another, ‘And you, how much do you owe?’ He said, ‘Six hundred twenty-five bushels of wheat.’[b] He told him, ‘Take your bill and write five hundred.’ 8 And the master commended the dishonest steward because he had acted shrewdly; for the sons of this age are shrewder in dealing with their own generation than the sons of light. 9 And I tell you, make friends for yourselves by means of the mammon[c] of unrighteousness, so that when it gives out they may receive you into the eternal dwellings. 10 “One who is trustworthy in a very little is trustworthy also in much, and one who is dishonest in a very little is dishonest also in much. 11 If, then, you have not proved trustworthy with unrighteous mammon, who will entrust you with what is genuine? 12 And if you have not been faithful with someone else’s property, who will hand over to you what belongs to you?[d] 13 No household slave can serve two masters. Either he will hate the one and love the other, or he will cling to one and scorn the other. You cannot be slaves to God and to mammon.”
14 The Pharisees, who were lovers of money, were listening to all this, and they sneered at him. 15 He said to them, “You are the ones who declare yourselves righteous in people’s eyes, but God knows your hearts; for what is lofty among humans is an abomination before God.
16 “The law and the prophets lasted until John. From then on the good news of God’s kingdom is being proclaimed, and everyone is forcing his way into it.[e] 17 Yet heaven and earth will sooner pass away than a single stroke[f] of the law fall to the ground. 18 “Any man who sends his wife away and marries another woman is committing adultery, and anyone who marries a woman sent away by her husband is committing adultery.

19 "A certain man was rich, and he used to clothe himself in purple and fine linen, enjoying a lavish feast every day. 20 Before his gateway had been laid a poor man, Lazarus[g] by name, full of ulcers, 21 who yearned to be fed with the scraps dropping from the rich man's table.[h]
The dogs even came and licked his ulcers. 22 In time the poor man died and was carried away by the angels to Abraham's side.[i] The rich man also died and was buried. 23 In Hades, in torment, he looked up and saw Abraham far away with Lazarus beside him. 24 So he called out, 'Father Abraham, have pity on me, and send Lazarus to dip the tip of his finger in water and cool my tongue, for I am in anguish in this flame.' 25 But Abraham replied, 'My child, remember: you in your lifetime got your good things, and Lazarus in the same way got evil things. Now here he is being consoled, while you are in anguish. 26 Besides all this, between us and you a great chasm has been fixed, so that those who wish to cross from here to you cannot, nor may anyone pass over from there to us.' 27 Then the rich man said, 'In that case, father, I ask you to send him to the house of my father — 28 for I have five brothers. Let him warn them, so that they will not end up in this place of torment.' 29 But Abraham said, 'They have Moses and the prophets; let them listen to them.' 30 'No, Father Abraham,' he replied, 'but if someone returns to them from the dead, they will repent.' 31 He said to him, 'If they do not listen to Moses and the prophets, neither will they be persuaded even if someone rises from the dead.'"

Notes

- a (16:6) Six hundred gallons of olive oil: Greek "a hundred batoi of oil." A batos (Hebrew bath) was about 22 liters (6 gallons), so the whole was about 2,200 liters. The reduction is by half.
- b (16:7) Six hundred twenty-five bushels of wheat: Greek "a hundred koroi of wheat." A koros (Hebrew kor) was about 220 liters (6¼ bushels), so the whole was about 22,000 liters. The reduction is by a fifth.
- c (16:9) Mammon: an Aramaic word for wealth or property, here almost personified (also in 16:11, 13).
- d (16:12) Your own: some manuscripts read "ours."

- e (16:16) Everyone is forcing his way into it: or “everyone is urged to enter it,” or “everyone is treating it violently”; the meaning of Greek biazetai is uncertain here.
- f (16:17) Stroke: Greek keraia, “little horn,” a small mark distinguishing one letter from another.
- g (16:20) Lazarus: a Greek form of Eleazar, “God has helped.”
- h (16:21) The scraps dropping: literally “the things falling”; many manuscripts read “the crumbs falling.”
- i (16:22) Abraham’s side: literally “Abraham’s bosom,” the place of honor beside the host at a banquet (compare John 13:23).

Chapter 17

1 He said to his disciples, “Snares that cause people to fall are bound to come, but woe to the one through whom they come! 2 He would be better off thrown into the sea with a millstone hung around his neck than causing one of these little ones to stumble. 3 Keep watch over yourselves. If your brother sins, reprove him, and if he repents, forgive him. 4 Even if seven times in a day he sins against you, and seven times turns back to you and says, ‘I repent,’ you must forgive him.”
5 The apostles said to the Lord, “Increase our faith!” 6 The Lord replied, “If you had faith like a grain of mustard seed, you could say to this mulberry tree,[a] ‘Be uprooted and planted in the sea,’ and it would obey you. 7 “Which of you who has a slave plowing or minding sheep will say to him when he comes in from the field, ‘Come along at once and take your place at table’? 8 Will he not rather tell him, ‘Get my supper ready, put on your apron, and wait on me while I eat and drink; afterward you can eat and drink yourself’? 9 Does he thank the slave for carrying out his orders? 10 So it is with you as well. When you have done all you were ordered, say, ‘We are slaves who deserve no credit;[b] we have only done what was our duty.’” 11 On his way to Jerusalem, Jesus was traveling through the border country[c] between Samaria and Galilee. 12 As he went into a certain village, ten leprous[d] men met him. They kept their distance 13 and raised their voices: “Jesus, Master, take pity on us!” 14 Seeing them, he said, “Go, show yourselves to the priests.”[e] And as they went, they were made clean. 15 One of them, seeing that he had been healed, turned back, praising God at the top of his voice. 16 He fell face down at Jesus' feet, thanking him; and he was a Samaritan. 17 Jesus responded, "Were not ten made clean? Where are the other nine? 18 Did no one come back to praise God except this foreigner?" 19 And he told him, "Rise and go on your way; your faith has made you well."[f] 20 Once, on being asked by the Pharisees when the kingdom of God would come, he answered them, "The kingdom of God does not come in a way that can be watched for, 21 nor will people say, 'See, it is here!' or 'There!' For look, the kingdom of God is within your grasp."[g] 22 Then he said to the disciples, "Days are coming when you will long to see one of the days of the Son of Man, and you will not see it.

23 People will say to you, 'See, there!' or 'See, here!' Do not [go off, or] chase after them.[h] 24 For just as lightning flashes and lights up the sky from one end under heaven to the other, so will the Son of Man be.[i] 25 Before that, however, he has many things to suffer and must be rejected by this generation. 26 As things were in Noah's days, so they will be also in the days of the Son of Man. 27 People ate, drank, married and were given in marriage, up to the day Noah went into the ark; then the flood came and destroyed every one of them. 28 It was the same in the days of Lot: they ate, drank, bought, sold, planted, built; 29 but the day Lot went out from Sodom it rained fire and brimstone out of the sky, and all of them perished. 30 It will be just like that on the day the Son of Man is revealed. 31 On that day, anyone on the housetop whose goods are in the house must not come down to fetch them; likewise anyone in the field must not turn back for what is behind. 32 Remember Lot's wife![j] 33 Whoever seeks to keep his life safe will lose it, but whoever loses it will preserve it alive. 34 I tell you, on that night there will be two in one bed; one will be taken and the other left. 35 Two women will be grinding grain together; one will be taken and the other left." 36 [k] 37 They asked him in reply, "Where, Lord?" He said to them, "Where the body is, there the vultures[l] too will gather."

Notes

- a (17:6) Mulberry tree: Greek sykaminos, probably the black mulberry, a tree with deep and extensive roots.
- b (17:10) Who deserve no credit: or "unworthy," "useless"; Greek achreioi.

- c (17:11) Between: or “through the middle of”; the Greek phrase is unusual, and its precise sense is uncertain.
- d (17:12) Leprous: the Greek term for leprosy covered various skin diseases, not only Hansen’s disease.
- e (17:14) Compare Lev 14:1–32.
- f (17:19) Made you well: or “saved you.”
- g (17:21) Within your grasp: or “among you,” “in your midst,” or “within you”; Greek entos hymōn.
- h (17:23) Do not go off, or chase after them: the bracketed words are bracketed in the Westcott–Hort text; the manuscripts vary in the wording here.
- i (17:24) So will the Son of Man be: many manuscripts add “in his day.” The words are lacking in P75, Vaticanus, Codex Bezae, and a few others.
- j (17:32) Compare Gen 19:26.
- k (17:36) Verse 36 is lacking in the Westcott–Hort text and in the earliest manuscripts, including P75, Sinaiticus, and Vaticanus; the number is kept here only to preserve the traditional verse numbering. Codex Bezae and some later witnesses add, “Two will be in the field; one will be taken and the other left” (from Matt 24:40).
- l (17:37) Vultures: or “eagles”; Greek aetoi.

Chapter 18

1 He told them a parable about their need to pray at all times and not lose heart. 2 “In a certain city,” he said, “there was a judge who had no fear of God and no regard for any human being. 3 There was a widow in that town who kept coming to him and saying, ‘Give me justice against my opponent.’ 4 For a while he would not. But afterward he said to himself, ‘Granted that I fear neither God nor any person, 5 still, because this widow keeps pestering me, I will see that she gets justice, or else she will wear me out[a] with her endless coming.’” 6 And the Lord said, “Listen to what the unjust judge says. 7 Will not God, then, see justice done for his chosen ones who cry out to him day and night? Will he be slow to help them?[b] 8 I tell you, he will see justice done for them speedily. Yet when the Son of Man comes, will he find faith on the earth?”
9 To certain people who were confident in themselves that they were righteous, and who looked down on everyone else, he also told this parable: 10 “Two men went up to the temple to pray, one a Pharisee and the other a tax collector. 11 The Pharisee took his stand and prayed thus about himself:[c] ‘God, I thank you that I am not like the rest of humankind — swindlers, wrongdoers, adulterers — or even like this tax collector. 12 Twice a week I fast; a tenth of all I acquire I give.’ 13

But the tax collector, standing far back, would not so much as raise his eyes toward heaven, but kept striking his breast and saying, ‘God, be merciful[d] to me, the sinner!’ 14 I tell you, it was this man, not the other, who went down to his home justified. For everyone who raises himself up will be humbled, while the one who humbles himself will be raised up.”
15 People were bringing even their babies to him, for him to touch them. When the disciples noticed, they scolded them. 16 But Jesus summoned them, saying, “Allow the little children to come to me, and stop preventing them; for God’s kingdom belongs to such as these. 17 Truly I tell you, whoever does not receive God’s kingdom as a little child does will never enter it.” 18 A certain ruler put this question to him: “Good Teacher, what must I do to inherit eternal life?” 19 Jesus said to him, “Why do you call me good? No one is good but God alone. 20 You know the commandments: ‘Never commit adultery or murder; never steal or give false testimony; honor your father and mother.’”[e] 21 He replied, “I have observed all these from my youth.” 22 On hearing this, Jesus told him, “There is still one thing you lack. Sell everything you have and distribute it to the poor, and you will have treasure in heaven; then come, follow me.” 23 But at these words he became very sad, for he was extremely rich. 24 Looking at him, Jesus said, “How hard it is for those who possess wealth to make their way into God’s kingdom!
25 It is easier for a camel to go through the eye of a needle than for a rich person to enter the kingdom of God.” 26 Those who heard it said, “Then who can be saved?” 27 He replied, “Things impossible with humans are possible with God.” 28 Peter said, “Look, we have left what was ours and followed you.” 29 He told them, “Truly I tell you, there is no one who has left house or wife or brothers or parents or children for the sake of God’s kingdom 30 who will not receive many times as much in this present time, and in the age to come eternal life.” 31 He took the Twelve aside and told them, “Listen, we are going up to Jerusalem, and all that the prophets wrote about the Son of Man will be fulfilled. 32 He will be delivered up to the nations; they will make sport of him, treat him with contempt, and spit on him; 33 they will scourge him and put him to death, and on the third day he will rise." 34 But they understood none of these things. This saying was hidden from them, and they did not grasp what was being said.

35 When he was approaching Jericho, there was a blind man seated beside the road, begging. 36 Hearing a crowd going by, he asked what was happening. 37 They informed him, "Jesus the Nazarene[f] is going past." 38 So he shouted, "Jesus, Son of David, have mercy on me!" 39 Those who were in front scolded him to make him be quiet, but he cried out all the more, "Son of David, have mercy on me!" 40 Jesus stopped and ordered the man brought to him. When he had come near, Jesus asked him, 41 "What do you wish me to do for you?" He answered, "Lord, I want to see again." 42 Jesus told him, "Receive your sight! Your faith has healed you." 43 At once he could see, and he followed Jesus, praising God. When all the people saw it, they too praised God.

Notes

- a (18:5) Wear me out: Greek hypōpiazō, literally "give me a black eye," perhaps used figuratively.
- b (18:7) Will he be slow to help them: or "even though he is patient with them"; the sense of the clause is uncertain.
- c (18:11) About himself: or "to himself." Some manuscripts read "standing by himself, prayed thus."
- d (18:13) Be merciful: Greek hilasthēti, "be propitiated," "be reconciled."
- e (18:20) Exod 20:12–16; Deut 5:16–20.
- f (18:37) The Nazarene: Greek ho Nazōraios, "the Nazorean," probably meaning "from Nazareth."

Chapter 19

1 He entered Jericho and was making his way through it. 2 And there was a man there, Zacchaeus[a] by name, who was a chief tax collector and a wealthy one. 3 He kept trying to get a look at Jesus, to see who he was, yet he was unable because of the throng, for he was a small man. 4 So he ran on ahead and climbed up into a sycamore-fig tree[b] in order to see him, since Jesus was about to come that way. 5 When Jesus reached that spot, he looked up and called to him, “Zacchaeus, hurry down, for I must stay at your house today.” 6 He came down in haste and gladly welcomed him as his guest. 7 Everyone who saw it began to grumble, “He has gone in to lodge with a sinful man.” 8 But Zacchaeus stood and said to the Lord, “Look, Lord, I am giving half of my possessions to the poor now, and anyone I have defrauded of anything I will repay four times over.”[c] 9 Jesus said to him, “Today salvation has come to this household, since he also is a son of Abraham. 10 For the Son of Man came to look for the lost and to save them.”

11 As they listened to these things, he added a parable, since he was close to Jerusalem and they imagined that God’s kingdom was to be revealed immediately. 12 So he said, “A man of noble birth traveled to a far country to obtain royal power for himself and then return.[d] 13 Summoning ten of his slaves, he handed them ten sums of money, each about a hundred days’ wages,[e] and told them, ‘Put this to work in trade until I come.’ 14 But his citizens hated him, and they sent a delegation after him to say, ‘We will not have this man reign over us.’ 15 When he returned, having received the royal power, he had those slaves to whom he had given the money called to him, to find out what each had gained by trading. 16 The first came forward and said, ‘Lord, your sum has earned ten sums more.’ 17 He told him, ‘Well done, good slave! Since you proved faithful in a very small matter, take charge of ten cities.’ 18 The second came and said, ‘Your sum, lord, has made five sums.’ 19 He said to him likewise, ‘And you, be over five cities.’ 20 Then the other one came and said, ‘Lord, here is your sum, which I kept stored away in a cloth; 21 for I feared you, since you are a hard man: you pick up what you never laid down and harvest what you never planted.’ 22 He told him, ‘By your own words I will judge you, you wicked slave! You knew, did you, that I am an exacting man, collecting what I did not deposit and reaping what I did not sow?
23 Why then did you not put my money in the bank, so that on my return I could have collected it with interest?’ 24 And to the bystanders he said, ‘Take the sum from him and give it to the one who has the ten.’ 25 They said to him, ‘Lord, he has ten already!’ 26 ‘I tell you, to all who have, more shall be given; but from anyone who lacks, even what he does have shall be taken away. 27 But those enemies of mine, the ones unwilling for me to be king over them, bring them here and execute them in my presence.'" 28 Having said these things, he went on ahead, going up to Jerusalem.

29 As he approached Bethphage and Bethany,[f] near the hill called the Mount of Olives, he sent two of his disciples ahead, 30 saying, "Go into the village opposite. As you enter it you will find a colt tied up that no one has ever yet sat on. Untie it and lead it here.
31 And if anyone asks you, 'Why are you untying it?' tell them, 'The Lord needs it.'" 32 Those who had been sent went off and found things just as he had told them.
33 As they were untying the colt, its owners said to them, "Why are you untying the colt?"
34 They answered, "The Lord needs it."
35 They brought it to Jesus, threw their cloaks on the colt, and mounted Jesus on it.
36 As he rode on, people kept spreading their cloaks on the road.
37 And as he was now approaching the descent from the Mount of Olives, the whole throng of disciples began joyfully to praise God with loud voices for all the mighty works they had seen, 38 saying,

"Blessed is the King who comes in the name of the Lord![g] In heaven peace, and glory in the highest!"

39 From among the crowd some Pharisees spoke to him: "Teacher, rebuke your disciples." 40 He answered, "I tell you, if these keep quiet, the stones will shout out."
41 As he came near and caught sight of the city, he wept over it, 42 saying, "If only you had recognized on this day, you of all people, the things that make for peace! But as it is, they are hidden from your eyes. 43 For days will come upon you when your enemies will throw up a rampart against you, encircle you, and hem you in on every side.
44 They will dash you to the ground, you and your children within you, and they will not leave one stone on another within you, because you did not recognize the time of your visitation." 45 He entered the temple and started driving out the merchants, 46 telling them, "It is written, 'My house shall be a house of prayer,'[h] but you have made it a bandits' cave." 47 Day after day he was teaching in the temple. The chief priests and the scribes were seeking to destroy him, and so were the leaders of the people; 48 yet they could find nothing they could do, for the whole people clung to him as they listened.

Notes

- a (19:2) Zacchaeus: from Hebrew Zakkai, "pure" or "innocent."
- b (19:4) Sycamore-fig tree: Greek sykomorea, a fig tree with low, spreading branches, not the North American sycamore.
- c (19:8) Four times over: compare Exod 22:1; 2 Sam 12:6.
- d (19:12) Compare the journey of Archelaus, son of Herod the Great, to Rome in 4 BC to be confirmed as king, and the Jewish delegation that opposed him (Josephus, Antiquities 17.299–314).
- e (19:13) Ten sums of money, each about a hundred days' wages: Greek "ten minas." A mina was a sum of a hundred drachmas, each drachma about a day's wage; so also "sum" in 19:16–25.
- f (19:29) Bethphage and Bethany: villages on the eastern slope of the Mount of Olives. Bethphage means "house of unripe figs"; the meaning of Bethany is uncertain, perhaps "house of affliction" or "house of Ananiah."
- g (19:38) Ps 118:26. In the Hebrew text, "the Lord" is Yahweh.
- h (19:46) Isa 56:7; compare Jer 7:11.

Chapter 20

1 One day, as Jesus was teaching the people in the temple and preaching the good news, the chief priests and scribes came up with the elders 2 and asked him, "Tell us what authority you have for doing these things. Who gave you this authority?" 3 In reply he said to them, "I too will put a question to you; tell me: 4 John's baptism — was it from heaven, or of human origin?" 5 They reasoned among themselves, saying, "If we answer, 'From heaven,' he will ask, 'Why did you not believe him?' 6 But if we answer, 'Of human origin,' the whole people will stone us, for they are convinced that John was a prophet." 7 Their answer was that they could not say where it was from. 8 Jesus said to them, “Then I will not tell you what authority I have for doing these things either.” 9 He began to tell the people this parable: “A man planted a vineyard, leased it out to tenant farmers, and went abroad for a long time.

10 When the season came he dispatched a slave to the farmers, for them to hand over to him some of the fruit of the vineyard; but the farmers beat him and sent him away empty-handed.
11 He went on to send another slave; that one too they beat and treated shamefully and sent off with nothing.
12 And he went on to send a third; this one too they wounded and threw out.
13 Then the owner of the vineyard said, ‘What shall I do? I will send my son, the beloved one; perhaps they will show him respect.’ 14 But when the tenants saw him, they talked it over with one another:
‘This is the heir. Let us kill him, so the inheritance may become ours.’ 15 So they threw him out of the vineyard and killed him. What, then, will the owner of the vineyard do to them?
16 He will come and destroy these tenants and give the vineyard to others.” When they heard this, they said, “May it never be!” 17 But he looked straight at them and said, “What then is this that is written:

‘The stone that the builders rejected, this has become the cornerstone’?[a]

18 Everyone who falls on that stone will be shattered, and anyone on whom it falls, it will crush.”[b] 19 The scribes and chief priests wanted to arrest him then and there, but they were afraid of the people, because they knew he had aimed this parable at them. 20 Keeping him under watch, they sent agents posing as honest men, to fasten on some word of his so they could deliver him up to the rule and authority of the governor. 21 They questioned him: “Teacher, we are aware that what you say and teach is right, and that you do not favor anyone, but truly teach God’s way.
22 Does the Law permit us to pay taxes to Caesar, or not?” 23 But he saw through their cunning and said to them, 24 “Show me a silver coin.[c] Whose image and inscription does it bear?” They said, “Caesar’s.”

25 He told them, “Then render to Caesar the things that belong to Caesar, and to God the things that belong to God.” 26 Before the people they could not trap him in his words; amazed at his reply, they said nothing more.
27 Some Sadducees, those who deny that there is a resurrection, came to him and questioned him, 28 saying, “Teacher, Moses wrote for us that if a man’s brother dies, leaving a wife but no child, the man is to take the wife and raise up offspring for his brother.[d] 29 Now there were seven brothers. The first took a wife and died childless; 30 then the second 31 and the third took her, and so on; all seven died without leaving children. 32 Last of all the woman died too. 33 At the resurrection, then, whose wife will the woman be, since all seven were married to her?” 34 Jesus told them, “The children of this age marry and are given in marriage; 35 but those who are judged worthy to share in that age and in the resurrection from the dead will neither marry nor be given in marriage. 36 Nor can they die anymore, for they are like angels, and are sons of God, being sons of the resurrection.
37 And that the dead are raised Moses himself made known, in the passage about the bush, where he calls the Lord ‘the God of Abraham and the God of Isaac and the God of Jacob.’[e] 38 Now he is not God of the dead but of the living; for to him all are alive.” 39 Some of the scribes responded, “Teacher, you have spoken well.” 40 For they no longer dared to question him on anything.
41 Then he put it to them: “In what sense is the Messiah said to be the son of David?
42 For David himself says in the book of Psalms,
‘The Lord said to my Lord,
Sit at my right hand
43 until I set your enemies as a footstool under your feet.’[f] 44 David then calls him ‘Lord’; so how is he his son?” 45 In the hearing of all the people he said to his disciples, 46 “Beware of the scribes, who like to walk around in long robes and love greetings in the marketplaces and the front seats in the synagogues and the places of honor at banquets. 47 They devour widows’ houses, and for show they make long prayers. These will receive the more severe judgment."

Notes

- a (20:17) Ps 118:22.
- b (20:18) Verse 18 echoes Isa 8:14–15 and Dan 2:34–35, 44–45.
- c (20:24) A silver coin: literally "a denarius," a Roman silver coin worth a day's wage, bearing the emperor's image and inscription.
- d (20:28) Deut 25:5–6; compare Gen 38:8.
- e (20:37) Exod 3:6. "The Lord" is Yahweh in the Hebrew of Exod 3:15–16.
- f (20:43) Ps 110:1. In the Hebrew, "The Lord said" is "Yahweh said"; "my Lord" is adoni, "my master."

Chapter 21

1 Looking up, he saw rich people dropping their gifts into the treasury.
2 And he noticed a certain needy widow dropping in two tiny copper coins.[a] 3 And he said, "Truly I tell you, this poor widow has put in more than all of them. 4 For these all contributed from what they had left over, but she from her want has given her entire livelihood." 5 When some were remarking about the temple, how it was adorned with fine stones and votive offerings, he said, 6 "As for these things you are gazing at, days will come when not one stone here will be left upon another that will not be torn down." 7 They asked him, "Teacher, when, then, will these things be, and what will be the sign when they are about to happen?" 8 He said, "Be careful not to be misled.
Many will come using my name and saying, 'I am he,' and, 'The time is near.' Do not follow them. 9 And when you hear of wars and upheavals, do not be terrified; for these things must take place first, but the end does not follow at once." 10 Then he told them, "Nation will fight against nation, and kingdom against kingdom. 11 There will be powerful earthquakes, plagues and famines in various places, and terrifying events and great signs from the sky. 12 But before all this they will lay their hands on you and persecute you, handing you over to synagogues and prisons, and you will be led before kings and governors on account of my name. 13 It will turn out for you as an opportunity for testimony. 14 So settle it in your hearts not to rehearse your defense beforehand; 15 for I myself will give you a mouth and wisdom that none of your opponents will be able to withstand or contradict. 16 You will be betrayed even by parents and brothers and relatives and friends, and some of you they will put to death. 17 You will be hated by all because of my name. 18 Yet not a hair of your head will perish. 19 By your endurance you will gain your lives.[b] 20 "When you see Jerusalem encircled by armies, then know that her desolation has drawn near. 21 At that time let those who are in Judea run for the hills, let those in the middle of the city leave it, and let those out in the fields not enter it; 22 for these are days of vengeance, in fulfillment of all that is written. 23 Alas for women who are pregnant and for those nursing infants in those days! For there will be great distress on the land and wrath against this people. 24 They will be killed by the sword and taken captive among all nations, and Gentiles will trample Jerusalem until the times of the Gentiles [are] complete.[c] 25 "There will be signs in sun and moon and stars, and on the earth anguish among nations, bewildered by the roar of the sea and the surging waves. 26 People will faint from fear and from foreboding of what is coming upon the inhabited world, for the powers of the heavens will be shaken. 27 And then they will see the Son of Man coming in a cloud with power and great glory.[d] 28 When these things begin to happen, stand up straight and lift your heads, because your redemption is drawing near." 29 And he spoke a parable to them: "Consider the fig tree, and every tree. 30 When they are already budding, you can tell by looking that summer is at hand. 31 So also you, when you see these things taking place, know that the kingdom of God is near. 32 Truly I tell you, this generation will not pass away until all things take place. 33 Heaven and earth will pass away, but my words will never pass away.

34 "Take heed to yourselves, lest your hearts be burdened by dissipation and drunkenness and the cares of daily living, and that day spring upon you unexpectedly 35 like a snare. For it will come in upon everyone living on the face of all the earth. 36 But stay awake at every season, praying that you may have strength to escape all these things that are going to happen, and to stand before the Son of Man."

37 Each day he was teaching in the temple, and each night he would go out and spend the night on the hill called the Mount of Olives. 38
And early in the morning all the people would gather at the temple to listen to him.[e]

Notes

- a (21:2) Tiny copper coins: Greek lepta, the smallest coins in use, each worth about one hundred twenty-eighth of a denarius (a day's wage).
- b (21:19) Gain your lives: Greek psychē, "soul" or "life." Many manuscripts read "you will gain" (future); others read "gain" (imperative).
- c (21:24) Are: the Westcott–Hort text brackets the words "and they will be" before "the times of the Gentiles," and they are lacking in many manuscripts.
- d (21:27) Compare Dan 7:13.
- e (21:38) After 21:38 a group of manuscripts (family 13) places the story of the woman caught in adultery (John 7:53–8:11).

Chapter 22

1 The feast of Unleavened Bread, which is called Passover, was drawing near. 2 The chief priests and the scribes were looking for a way to do away with him, for they were afraid of the people.
3 Then Satan entered into Judas, the one called Iscariot,[a] who was of the number of the Twelve. 4 He went off and conferred with the chief priests and officers of the temple guard about how he might betray him to them. 5 They were delighted and agreed to give him money. 6
He agreed, and from then on he sought a favorable moment to deliver him up to them apart from the crowd.
7 The day of Unleavened Bread arrived, the day on which the Passover had to be slaughtered. 8 Jesus sent Peter and John, saying, "Go and get the Passover ready for us to eat." 9 They asked him, "Where do you want us to prepare it?" 10 He told them, "Listen: as you go into the city, a man carrying a jar of water will meet you. Follow him into the house he enters, 11 and tell the householder, 'Our Teacher wants to know: Which room is set aside for me to eat the Passover meal with my disciples?' 12 He will show you a large upstairs room, already furnished. Make the preparations there." 13 Off they went, and they found everything as he had said to them; and they made the Passover ready.

14 When the hour arrived, he took his place at the table, and with him the apostles. 15 He said to them, “With great longing I have longed to eat this Passover with you before I suffer. 16 For I tell you that I will never eat it until it finds its fulfillment in God’s kingdom.” 17 Then he took a cup and gave thanks. “Take this,” he said, “and divide it among yourselves. 18 For I tell you, from now on I will not drink of the fruit of the vine until the kingdom of God comes.” 19 And he took bread, gave thanks, broke it, and gave it to them, saying, “This is my body, [[which is given for you. Do this in remembrance of me.” 20 Likewise also the cup after supper, saying, “This cup is the new covenant in my blood, which is poured out for you.]][b] 21 But look, the hand of the one who will betray me is on the table with me. 22 The Son of Man will go just as it has been decided, but how terrible for the man who betrays him!” 23 And they began to debate among themselves which of them it could be who was about to do this.
24 A quarrel broke out among them too, over which of them seemed to be the greatest. 25 But he said to them, “The kings of the Gentiles lord it over them, and those who exercise authority over them are called benefactors. 26 Not so with you. Rather, let the greatest among you become like the youngest, and the leader like one who serves. 27 For which is greater: the guest at the table, or the servant? Surely the guest at the table. Yet here among you I am like a servant. 28 But it is you who have remained with me through my trials. 29 So I assign to you a kingdom, as my Father assigned one to me, 30 so that you may eat and drink at my table in my kingdom, and you will sit on thrones judging the twelve tribes of Israel.
31 “Simon, Simon, look: Satan has asked for you all,[c] so as to sift you as wheat is sifted. 32 But I have prayed for you, that your faith will not fail. And when you have turned back, strengthen your brothers.” 33 Peter said to him, “Lord, I am ready to go with you both to prison and to death.” 34 But Jesus said, “I tell you, Peter, the rooster will not crow today until you have three times denied that you know me.” 35 He said to them, “When I sent you out without purse or bag or sandals, did you lack anything?” They said, “Nothing.” 36 He said to them, “But now, whoever has a purse must take it, and likewise a bag; and whoever has no sword must sell his cloak and buy one. 37 For I say to you that what is written must find its completion in me: ‘And with lawless men he was reckoned.’[d] For what concerns me is coming to its end.” 38 They said, “Lord, look, here are two swords.” He said to them, “It is enough.”

39 He went out and made his way, as was his custom, to the Mount of Olives; and the disciples followed him. 40 When he reached the place, he said to them, “Pray that you may not come into testing.”[e] 41 Then he withdrew from them about a stone’s throw, knelt down, and prayed, 42 “Father, if it is your will, remove this cup from me. Nevertheless, let your will be done, not mine.” 43 [[Then an angel from heaven appeared to him and strengthened him. 44 And being in anguish, he prayed more earnestly, and his sweat became like great drops of blood falling down on the ground.]][f] 45 When he rose from prayer and came to the disciples, he found them sleeping for grief. 46 “Why are you asleep?” he asked them. “Rise and pray, so that you do not enter into testing.” 47 While he was still speaking, a crowd appeared, and the man called Judas, one of the Twelve, was leading them. He came near to Jesus to kiss him. 48 But Jesus asked him, “Judas, would you betray the Son of Man with a kiss?” 49 When those around him saw what was coming, they said, “Lord, shall we strike with the sword?” 50 And one of them struck the high priest’s slave and cut off his right ear. 51 But Jesus answered, “Stop! No more of this!” And he touched the ear and healed him. 52 Then Jesus said to those who had come out against him — chief priests, officers of the temple guard, and elders — “Have you come out with swords and clubs as if against a bandit? 53 Every day I was with you in the temple, and you never laid a hand on me. But this is your hour, when darkness has power.” 54 They seized him, led him away, and brought him into the high priest’s house. Peter was following at a distance. 55 When they had kindled a fire in the middle of the courtyard and sat down together, Peter sat among them. 56 A servant girl noticed him sitting in the light of the fire, looked at him closely and said, “This man was with him too.” 57 But he disowned him: “Woman, I don’t know him.” 58 A little later someone else saw him and said, “You also are one of them.”

But Peter said, “Man, I am not.” 59 About an hour later another kept insisting, “Certainly this man also was with him, for he too is a Galilean.” 60 But Peter answered, “Man, what you are saying I do not know.” And immediately, before he had finished speaking, a rooster crowed. 61 The Lord turned and looked at Peter, and Peter remembered the word of the Lord, how he had said to him, “Before the rooster crows today, you will deny me three times.” 62 [And he went outside and wept bitterly.][g] 63 The men who were holding Jesus began mocking him as they beat him. 64 They covered his face and questioned him: “Prophesy! Who was it that hit you?” 65 And they said many other insulting things against him.
66 At daybreak the elders of the people met together, chief priests as well as scribes, and they brought him before their Sanhedrin,[h] saying, 67 “If you are the Messiah, tell us.” But he said to them, “If I tell you, you will not believe, 68 and if I ask you, you will not answer. 69 But from now on the Son of Man will be seated at the right hand of the power of God.”[i] 70 All of them said, “Are you, then, the Son of God?”
He said to them, “You say that I am.” 71 Then they said, “What further need of testimony do we have? We ourselves have heard it from his own lips.”

Notes

- a (22:3) Iscariot: perhaps “man of Kerioth” (a town in Judea); the meaning is uncertain.
- b (22:20) Which is given for you … poured out for you: the Westcott–Hort text places these words in double brackets as one of the “Western non-interpolations,” since they are absent from Codex Bezae and some Old Latin witnesses (some of which also reorder 22:17–19a). They are present in P75 (as reported in the critical editions), Sinaiticus, Vaticanus, and nearly all other manuscripts, and modern critical editions (NA, SBLGNT) print them as part of the text.
- c (22:31) You all: the Greek pronoun is plural; in 22:32 “you” is singular, addressed to Simon.
- d (22:37) Isa 53:12.
- e (22:40) Testing: or “temptation”; so also in 22:46.
- f (22:44) The angel and the sweat like drops of blood (22:43–44) are placed in double brackets in the Westcott–Hort text. The verses are lacking in early and important witnesses, including P75 (as reported), Vaticanus, the first corrector of Sinaiticus, and others, and some manuscripts mark them as doubtful; but they are present in the original hand of Sinaiticus, Codex Bezae, and many others, and were known to second-century writers. A few manuscripts (family 13) place them after Matt 26:39.

- g (22:62) The Westcott–Hort text places 22:62 in single brackets, since it is lacking in some Old Latin witnesses; it is present in almost all Greek manuscripts.
- h (22:66) Sanhedrin: the supreme Jewish council in Jerusalem, presided over by the high priest.
- i (22:69) Compare Ps 110:1; Dan 7:13.

Chapter 23

1 Then the whole assembly of them rose and brought him before Pilate. 2 They began to accuse him, saying, "We found this man subverting our nation, forbidding the payment of taxes to Caesar, and claiming to be Messiah, a king." 3 Pilate questioned him: "Are you the King of the Jews?" In answer he said to him, "You say so." 4 Pilate then declared to the chief priests and the crowds, "I find no grounds for a charge against this man." 5 But they pressed all the harder, saying, "He stirs up the people with his teaching throughout all Judea; he began in Galilee and has come even here." 6 On hearing this, Pilate inquired whether the man was a Galilean.
7 Learning that he belonged to Herod's jurisdiction, he referred him to Herod, who was himself in Jerusalem during those days. 8 Herod was overjoyed to see Jesus, for he had been wanting to see him for a long while, because of what he had heard about him, and he was hoping to watch some sign performed by him. 9 He questioned him at length, but Jesus made him no reply. 10 Meanwhile the chief priests and the scribes stood there, vehemently accusing him. 11 Herod and his soldiers treated him with contempt and made a mockery of him; then, dressing him in a splendid robe, he sent him back to Pilate. 12 That very day Herod and Pilate became friends with each other, for before this they had been at enmity.
13 Pilate called together the chief priests, the rulers, and the people, 14 and said to them, "You brought me this man as one who leads the people astray. Now look: I examined him in your presence and found in him no basis for the charges you bring against him. 15 Nor did Herod, since he has returned him to us. See, nothing worthy of death has been done by him. 16 So I will have him flogged and let him go.” 17 [a] 18 But the whole crowd shouted together, “Take this man away!

Set Barabbas[b] free for us!” 19 He was someone who had been thrown into prison for an uprising that had taken place in the city, and for murder. 20 Pilate addressed them once more, wishing to release Jesus, 21 but they kept shouting back, “Crucify, crucify him!” 22 A third time he spoke to them: “Why? What wrong has this man done? I have found in him no cause deserving death. So I will have him flogged and release him.” 23 But they kept pressing him with loud cries, demanding that he be crucified, and their voices prevailed. 24 Pilate gave sentence that what they asked should be done. 25 He set free the one whom they requested, who had been put in prison for rebellion and murder; but Jesus he delivered up to their will.
26 As they led him off, they grabbed a man named Simon from Cyrene,[c] who was coming in from the countryside, and put the cross on him to carry behind Jesus. 27 A large number of the people followed him, among them women who were beating their breasts and wailing for him. 28 But Jesus turned toward them and said, “Daughters of Jerusalem, stop weeping over me. Weep over yourselves instead, and over your children. 29 For look, days are coming when they will say, ‘Blessed are the barren, the wombs that never bore and the breasts that never nursed.’ 30 At that time they will start saying to the mountains, ‘Fall upon us!’ and to the hills, ‘Hide us!’[d] 31 For if they treat the green tree like this, what will become of the dry?” 32 Two others also, who were criminals, were being led away with him to be executed. 33 When they came to the place called the Skull,[e] they crucified him there, and the criminals too, one on his right and one on his left. 34 [[And Jesus was saying, “Father, forgive them, since they do not understand what they are doing.”]][f] Then they cast lots to share out his garments.[g] 35 The people stood watching, and the rulers jeered at him: “He saved others; let him save himself if he is the Messiah of God, the Chosen One!” 36 The soldiers joined in the mockery, approaching him and holding out sour wine to him, 37 and saying, “If you are the King of the Jews, save yourself!” 38 Above him there was also a placard: “This is the King of the Jews.”

39 One of the criminals hanging there kept insulting him: "Are you not the Messiah? Save yourself, and us!" 40 But the other rebuked him, saying, "Have you no fear of God, since you are under the same sentence? 41 And for us it is just, since we are receiving what is due for what we did; but this one has done nothing improper." 42 Then he said, "Jesus, remember me when you come into[h] your kingdom." 43 Jesus said to him, "Truly I tell you, today you will be with me in paradise." 44 By now it was about noon, and darkness fell over all the land[i] until three in the afternoon,[j] 45 the sun's light having failed;[k] and the curtain of the temple was torn down the middle. 46 Then Jesus, crying out with a loud voice, said, "Father, into your hands I commit my spirit."[l] Having said this, he breathed his last. 47 The centurion, seeing what took place, gave glory to God and said, "Surely this was a righteous man." 48 And the crowds that had come together to view this sight, once they had seen the things that happened, returned home striking their breasts. 49 But all who knew him, and the women who had accompanied him from Galilee, stood far off and saw these things.
50 Now there was a man named Joseph, a member of the council, a good and righteous man, 51 He had not agreed to their plan and action.
He was from Arimathea, a Jewish town, and was looking forward to the kingdom of God. 52 This man went to Pilate and asked for the body of Jesus. 53 He took it down, wrapped it in a linen cloth, and laid him in a tomb cut in the rock, where no one had ever yet been laid. 54 It was the day of Preparation, and the sabbath was beginning to dawn.[m] 55
The women who had come with him from Galilee followed after, and they saw the tomb and how his body was laid. 56 Then they went back and prepared spices and ointments. And on the sabbath they rested according to the commandment.[n]

Notes

- a (23:17) Verse 17 is lacking in the Westcott–Hort text and in the earliest manuscripts, including P75, Alexandrinus, and Vaticanus; the number is kept here only to preserve the traditional verse numbering. Many later manuscripts add, "For he had to release one man to them at the festival" (compare Matt 27:15; Mark 15:6), some of them after 23:19.
- b (23:18) Barabbas: Aramaic, "son of the father" or "son of Abba."

- c (23:26) Cyrene: a city in North Africa (in modern Libya) with a large Jewish community.
- d (23:30) Hos 10:8.
- e (23:33) The Skull: Latin Calvaria, from which comes “Calvary”; in Aramaic, Golgotha.
- f (23:34) The prayer “Father, forgive them…” is placed in double brackets in the Westcott–Hort text. It is lacking in early and diverse witnesses, including P75 (as reported), Vaticanus, the first hand of Codex Bezae, and some early versions; it is present in Sinaiticus (original and later hands), Alexandrinus, and most manuscripts. NA and SBLGNT print it within double brackets.
- g (23:34) Ps 22:18.
- h (23:42) Into: Greek eis. Many manuscripts read “in” (en) your kingdom, that is, “in your royal power.”
- i (23:44) Land: or “earth.”
- j (23:44) About noon … three in the afternoon: literally “about the sixth hour … until the ninth hour,” counted from sunrise.
- k (23:45) The sun’s light having failed: Greek tou hēliou ekleipontos, the reading of the Westcott–Hort text (with P75, Sinaiticus, and Vaticanus); the verb can be used of an eclipse. Many manuscripts read “and the sun was darkened.”
- l (23:46) Ps 31:5.
- m (23:54) Beginning to dawn: Greek epiphōskō, used here of the start of the sabbath at sunset on Friday.
- n (23:56) Exod 20:10; Deut 5:14.

Chapter 24

1 On the first day of the week, at early dawn, they came to the tomb bringing the spices they had prepared. 2 They found the stone rolled away from the tomb, 3 yet on going inside they found no body [[of the Lord Jesus]].[a] 4 And as they stood perplexed over this, look, two men stood by them in clothing that flashed like lightning. 5 Filled with fear, the women bent their faces toward the earth; and the men asked them, “Why do you seek the living one among the dead? 6 [[He is not here, but has been raised.]][b] Recall how he spoke to you while he was still in Galilee, 7 saying that the Son of Man must be handed over into the hands of sinful people, be crucified, and on the third day rise again.” 8 Then they remembered his words, 9 and returning [from the tomb][c] they reported all these things to the Eleven and to all the rest.
10 It was Mary Magdalene,[d] Joanna, Mary the mother of James, and the other women with them who told these things to the apostles. 11

But these words seemed to them like nonsense, and they would not believe the women. 12 [[But Peter got up and ran to the tomb; stooping to look in, he saw the linen wrappings lying by themselves; and he went home, wondering at what had happened.]][e] 13 And look, on that very day two of them were traveling to a village about seven miles[f] away from Jerusalem, whose name was Emmaus, 14 and they were conversing with each other about all these events. 15 As they talked and debated, Jesus himself drew near and began walking along with them, 16 but their eyes were kept from recognizing him.
17 He said to them, "What are these words you are exchanging with one another as you walk?" And they stood still, their faces downcast.
18 One of them, whose name was Cleopas, replied, "Are you the only visitor in Jerusalem who has not heard what has taken place there lately?" 19 He asked them, "What things?" They told him, "The things about Jesus the Nazarene, who was a prophet, mighty in deed and word before God and all the people; 20 how our chief priests and rulers handed him over to be condemned to death and crucified him. 21 But we had been hoping that he was the one who would redeem Israel.
And besides all this, it is now the third day since these things took place. 22 Moreover, some women from our group astounded us. They went to the tomb early in the morning, 23 and when they did not find his body, they came back saying they had even seen a vision of angels, who said that he is alive. 24 Some of those with us went off to the tomb and found it just as the women had said; but him they did not see." 25 He told them, "How foolish you are, and how slow in your hearts to believe all that the prophets declared! 26 Did the Messiah not have to suffer these things before entering his glory?" 27 And beginning from Moses and from all the prophets, he explained to them the things concerning himself in all the Scriptures.
28 As they approached the village they were headed for, he behaved as if he were going on farther. 29 But they pressed him: "Stay with us, because it is nearly evening and the day is almost over." So he went in to stay with them. 30 When he had reclined at table with them, he took the bread, blessed it, broke it, and began handing it to them. 31 Then their eyes were opened, and they recognized him; and he vanished from their sight. 32 And they said to one another, “Did not our hearts burn inside us as he spoke to us along the way, as he laid open the Scriptures for us?” 33 They got up that same hour and returned to Jerusalem, and they found the Eleven and those with them gathered together, 34 who were saying, “The Lord has really been raised, and he has appeared to Simon!” 35 They in turn related the things on the road, and how they had come to know him in the breaking of the bread.

36 While they were still talking about these things, he himself stood among them [[and said to them, “Peace to you.”]][g] 37 But they were alarmed and frightened, supposing that what they saw was a spirit.
38 He said to them, “Why are you troubled, and why do doubts arise in your hearts? 39 Look at my hands and my feet, that it is I myself.
Touch me and see; for a spirit does not have flesh and bones, as you see that I have.” 40 [[And when he had said this, he showed them his hands and his feet.]][h] 41 While in their joy they still could not believe it and were marveling, he said to them, “Do you have anything here to eat?” 42 They gave him a piece of broiled fish,[i] 43 and taking it he ate it as they watched.
44 He said to them, “This is what I meant when I told you, while I was still with you, that everything written about me in the Law of Moses, the Prophets and the Psalms had to be fulfilled.” 45 Then he opened their minds to understand the Scriptures, 46 He said to them, “So it stands written: the Messiah is to suffer and rise from the dead on the third day, 47 and that repentance for[j] the forgiveness of sins is to be proclaimed in his name to all the nations, beginning from Jerusalem.
48 You are witnesses of these things. 49 And look, I am sending forth the promise of my Father on you; you, however, are to remain in the city until you have been clothed with power from on high.” 50 Then he led them out as far as Bethany, and lifting up his hands he blessed them. 51 While he was blessing them, he parted from them [[and was carried up into heaven]].[k] 52 And they [[worshiped him and]][l] returned to Jerusalem with great joy, 53 and they were continually in the temple, blessing God.[m]

Notes

- a (24:3) Of the Lord Jesus: these words are placed in double brackets in the Westcott–Hort text as one of the "Western non-interpolations" in Luke 24 (see also 24:6, 12, 36, 40, 51, 52). They are absent only from Codex Bezae and some Old Latin witnesses, but present in P75 (as reported), Sinaiticus, Vaticanus, and nearly all other manuscripts; NA and SBLGNT print them. Some manuscripts read "of Jesus."
- b (24:6) He is not here, but has been raised: a "Western non-interpolation" (see 24:3); lacking in Codex Bezae and some Old Latin witnesses, but present in P75 (as reported), Sinaiticus, Vaticanus, and almost all others. The verb may also be rendered "he has risen."
- c (24:9) From the tomb: the Westcott–Hort text brackets these words, which are lacking in Codex Bezae and some Old Latin and Armenian witnesses.
- d (24:10) Magdalene: "of Magdala," a town on the western shore of the Sea of Galilee; the name may mean "tower."
- e (24:12) The whole of 24:12 is a "Western non-interpolation" in the Westcott–Hort text (see 24:3); it is lacking in Codex Bezae and some Old Latin witnesses, but present in P75 (as reported), Sinaiticus, Vaticanus, and nearly all others, and is printed by NA and SBLGNT. Compare John 20:3–10.
- f (24:13) About seven miles: Greek "sixty stadia," about 11 kilometers. Some manuscripts, including Sinaiticus, read "one hundred sixty stadia" (about 18 miles; 30 kilometers).
- g (24:36) The words "and said to them, 'Peace to you'" are a "Western non-interpolation" in the Westcott–Hort text (see 24:3); lacking in Codex Bezae and some Old Latin witnesses, but present in P75 (as reported) and nearly all others. Some manuscripts add, "It is I; do not be afraid" (compare John 6:20).
- h (24:40) The whole of 24:40 is a "Western non-interpolation" in the Westcott–Hort text (see 24:3); lacking in Codex Bezae, some Old Latin witnesses, and the Old Syriac, but present in P75 (as reported) and nearly all others. Compare John 20:20.
- i (24:42) Broiled fish: many later manuscripts add "and some honeycomb."
- j (24:47) For: Greek eis, the reading of the Westcott–Hort text (with P75, Sinaiticus, and Vaticanus); many manuscripts read "and" (kai), "repentance and forgiveness of sins."
- k (24:51) And was carried up into heaven: a "Western non-interpolation" in the Westcott–Hort text (see 24:3); lacking in the original hand of Sinaiticus, Codex Bezae, and some Old Latin and Syriac witnesses, but present in P75 (as reported), Vaticanus, and most others.
- l (24:52) Worshiped him and: a "Western non-interpolation" in the Westcott–Hort text (see 24:3); lacking in Codex Bezae, some Old Latin witnesses, and the Old Syriac, but present in P75 (as reported), Sinaiticus, Vaticanus, and most others.
- m (24:53) Blessing God: many manuscripts read "praising and blessing God"; Codex Bezae reads "praising God." Many later manuscripts add "Amen."

John

New Testament

Chapter 1

1 In the beginning was the Word,[a] and the Word was with God, and the Word was God.[b] 2 He was in the beginning with God. 3 Through him everything came to be; without him not a single thing came to be.[c] 4 What has come into being in him was life, and the life was the light of humankind. 5 The light shines in the darkness, and the darkness has not overcome[d] it.
6 There came a man sent from God; his name was John.[e] 7 He came as a witness, to speak for the light, so that all people could come to believe through him. 8 He himself was not the light; he came to bear witness about the light. 9 The true light, which gives light to every person, was coming into the world.[f] 10 He was present in the world, and through him the world came to be, yet the world failed to recognize him. 11 He came to his own home, and those who were his own did not welcome him. 12 But to all who did receive him, to those who believe in his name, he gave the right to become children of God, 13 who were born not of blood, nor of the will of the flesh, nor of a husband's will, but of God.
14 And the Word became human and made his dwelling[g] among us.
We saw his glory, the glory of the one and only Son[h] from the Father, full of grace and truth. 15 John testifies concerning him; he cried aloud, "This is the man I meant when I said, 'He who comes after me has gone ahead of me, for he was before me.'" 16 Out of his fullness we all have received, one grace after another.[i] 17 For the Law was given through Moses;[j] grace and truth came into being through Jesus Christ.[k] 18 No one has seen God at any time; the only Son, himself God,[l] who rests at the Father's side,[m] he is the one who has made him known.

19 This is the testimony of John, when the Jews[n] sent priests and Levites from Jerusalem to ask him, "Who are you?" 20 He confessed and did not deny; he confessed, "I am not the Messiah."[o] 21 They asked him, "What then? Are you Elijah?"[p] He says, "I am not." "Are you the Prophet?"[q] He answered, "No." 22 So they said to him, "Who are you?
Give us an answer to take back to those who sent us. What do you say about yourself?" 23 He said, "I am the voice of one crying out in the wilderness, 'Make straight the way of the Lord,'[r] just as Isaiah[s] the prophet said." 24 Now they had been sent from the Pharisees.[t] 25 So they asked him, "If you are not the Messiah, or Elijah, or the Prophet, why are you baptizing?" 26 John replied to them, "I baptize in water.
Standing among you is one you do not know, 27 who comes after me;
I am not worthy to loosen the strap of his sandal." 28 These things took place in Bethany[u], east of the Jordan, the place where John was baptizing.
29 The next day he sees Jesus coming toward him and says, "Look, the Lamb of God,[v] who takes away the sin of the world! 30 He is the one about whom I said, 'A man is coming after me who has gone ahead of me, because he was before me.' 31 I myself did not know him; but it was so that he might be revealed to Israel that I came baptizing with water." 32 And John bore witness: "I have seen the Spirit coming down like a dove out of heaven, and it remained on him. 33 I did not recognize him myself. But the one who sent me to baptize in water said to me, 'You will see the Spirit descend and stay on someone. That is the one who baptizes in the Holy Spirit.' 34 And I have seen, and have borne witness, that this is the Son of God."[w] 35 The following day John was there again, with two of his disciples, 36 and as he watched Jesus walking by, he says, "Look, the Lamb of God!" 37 When the two disciples heard what he said, they went after Jesus. 38 Jesus turned, and seeing them following, he says to them, "What are you looking for?" They said to him, "Rabbi" (which, translated, means Teacher), "where are you staying?" 39 "Come," he says to them, "and you will see." So they went and saw where he lodged, and they remained with him for the rest of that day. It was about four in the afternoon.[x] 40 Andrew,[y] the brother of Simon Peter, was one of the two who heard John and followed Jesus. 41 He first finds his own brother Simon[z] and says to him, “We have found the Messiah” (which, translated, is Christ).[aa] 42 He brought him to Jesus. Jesus looked at him and said, “You are Simon the son of John.[ab] You will be called Cephas” (which is translated Peter).[ac]

43 The next day Jesus decided to set out for Galilee. He finds Philip[ad] and says to him, “Follow me.” 44 Philip came from Bethsaida,[ae] the hometown of Andrew and Peter. 45 Philip finds Nathanael[af] and tells him, “We have found the one Moses wrote of in the Law, and the prophets also: Jesus son of Joseph,[ag] from Nazareth.”[ah] 46 Nathanael said to him, “From Nazareth can anything good come?” Philip says to him, “Come and see.” 47 Jesus saw Nathanael coming toward him and says of him, “Here truly is an Israelite in whom there is no deceit!”[ai] 48 Nathanael asked him, “How do you know me?” Jesus replied, “I saw you before Philip called you, when you were sitting under the fig tree.” 49 Nathanael answered him, “Rabbi, you are the Son of God! You are King of Israel!” 50 Jesus answered him, “Because I told you I saw you beneath the fig tree, you believe? You will see greater things than these.” 51 And he says to him, “Amen, amen,[aj] I tell you all,[ak] you will see heaven opened and the angels of God going up and coming down on the Son of Man.”[al]

Notes

- a (1:1) The Word: Greek logos, “word,” “speech,” or “reason.” In the Greek Old Testament God creates by his word (Gen 1:3; Ps 33:6) and his word or wisdom is personified (Prov 8:22–31; Wis 9:1–2; 18:15); Greek philosophers also used logos for the rational principle ordering the world. John applies the term to the one who became flesh (1:14). It is used of him in this sense only in 1:1 and 1:14 (compare 1 John 1:1; Rev 19:13).
- b (1:1) The Word was God: Greek theos ēn ho logos. The word theos has no article and stands first for emphasis; the construction identifies the Word as sharing God’s nature while distinguishing him from “God” (the Father) in the preceding clause. It does not mean “a god.”
- c (1:3) The punctuation of verses 3–4 is ancient and disputed, because the earliest manuscripts had little or none. The Westcott–Hort text, with many early writers, attaches the final words of verse 3 to verse 4 (“What has come into being in him was life”), as here. Many later manuscripts and versions divide the text differently, ending verse 3 after the words “has come into being,” and starting verse 4 with “In him was life.”

- d (1:5) Overcome: Greek katelaben can mean “grasp,” “comprehend,” or “seize, overcome.” Both senses may be intended.
- e (1:6) John: from Hebrew Yohanan, “Yahweh has been gracious.” This is John the Baptist (compare Matt 3:1), not the disciple traditionally connected with this Gospel, who is never named in it.
- f (1:9) Or “He was the true light, which gives light to every person coming into the world.” The Greek erchomenon can go with “light” or with “every person.”
- g (1:14) Pitched his tent: Greek eskēnōsen, “tented,” “tabernacled.” The word recalls the tabernacle (Greek skēnē) where God’s glory dwelt among Israel (Exod 25:8–9; 40:34–35).
- h (1:14) The only Son: Greek monogenēs, “only,” “one of a kind,” “unique,” used of an only child (Luke 7:12; Heb 11:17). The older rendering “only begotten” comes from the Latin unigenitus. Here and in 1:18; 3:16, 18 it describes Jesus’ unique relationship to the Father.
- i (1:16) One grace after another: Greek charin anti charitos, literally “grace in place of grace,” meaning one gift following another, or perhaps the grace of the new covenant replacing that given through Moses (1:17).
- j (1:17) Moses: the name is explained in Exod 2:10; it may come from an Egyptian word meaning “born of” or “son.”
- k (1:17) Jesus Christ: Jesus is the Greek form of Hebrew Yeshua (Yehoshua, Joshua), “Yahweh saves.” Christ translates Greek Christos, “Anointed One,” the equivalent of Hebrew mashiach, “Messiah” (see 1:41). As in Matthew, Christos is rendered “Messiah” where it functions as a title and “Christ” where it is part of Jesus’ name.
- l (1:18) The only Son, himself God: literally “only (monogenēs) God.” This is the reading of the earliest manuscripts, including P66 and P75 (about AD 200), Sinaiticus (first hand) and Vaticanus, followed by Westcott–Hort; P75 and some others have “the only God” with the article. Alexandrinus, the great majority of later manuscripts, and many versions read “the only Son” (monogenēs huios). Since monogenēs used by itself regularly implies “only son” (1:14), the reading “only God” is taken here as “the only Son, himself God.” Scholarly review recommended.
- m (1:18) At the Father’s side: literally “in (or into) the bosom of the Father,” a picture of intimacy, like a guest reclining at table next to the host (compare 13:23).
- n (1:19) The Jews: Greek hoi Ioudaioi, “the Jews” or “the Judeans.” In John the term often refers to the religious authorities in Jerusalem who opposed Jesus (as here, 1:19, 24), and sometimes to the people of Judea; at other times it simply means the Jewish people (2:6, 13; 4:9, 22). Jesus, his disciples, and the Gospel’s first witnesses were themselves Jews.
- o (1:20) The Messiah: Greek ho christos, “the Anointed One.”

- p (1:21) Elijah: “my God is Yahweh.” Mal 4:5 (3:23 in Hebrew) promised that Elijah would return before the day of Yahweh.
- q (1:21) The Prophet: the prophet like Moses promised in Deut 18:15–18 (compare 6:14; 7:40).
- r (1:23) Isa 40:3, in a form close to the Greek Old Testament (“make straight” combines two verbs of that verse). In the Hebrew text, “the Lord” is Yahweh.
- s (1:23) Isaiah: “Yahweh is salvation.”
- t (1:24) Pharisees: from Hebrew or Aramaic perushim, probably “separated ones.” A lay movement devoted to the careful keeping of the Law and its traditions.
- u (1:28) Bethany: a place east of the Jordan River whose location is unknown; it is not the Bethany near Jerusalem (11:1, 18). Some later manuscripts read Bethabara (“place of crossing”), following Origen. The name Bethany may mean “house of figs” or “house of the poor” (uncertain).
- v (1:29) The Lamb of God: the image may recall the Passover lamb (Exod 12; compare 19:36), the servant led like a lamb to the slaughter (Isa 53:7), or the lamb God provides (Gen 22:8).
- w (1:34) The Son of God: a few early witnesses, including Sinaiticus (first hand) and probably P5, read “the Chosen One of God” (compare Isa 42:1).
- x (1:39) About four in the afternoon: literally “about the tenth hour.” Hours of the day were usually counted from sunrise, about 6 a.m., which gives four in the afternoon. Some interpreters have argued that John reckons hours from midnight, as Roman legal practice sometimes did, which would make the time about 10 a.m.; but the evidence for such a reckoning is debated, and most interpreters count from sunrise in John as in the other Gospels (compare 4:6, 52; 19:14).
- y (1:40) Andrew: a Greek name, “manly.”
- z (1:41) Simon: Greek form of Hebrew Shimon, “he has heard” (Gen 29:33).
- aa (1:41) Messiah … Christ: Greek Messias, a transliteration of Hebrew mashiach or Aramaic meshicha, “anointed one”; Christos is the Greek translation of it. Only John uses the word Messias in the New Testament (here and 4:25).
- ab (1:42) The son of John: so the earliest manuscripts and Westcott–Hort; many later manuscripts read “son of Jonah” (as in Matt 16:17). Jonah means “dove.”
- ac (1:42) Cephas … Peter: Aramaic Kepha and Greek Petros both mean “rock” or “stone.”
- ad (1:43) Philip: a Greek name, “lover of horses.”
- ae (1:44) Bethsaida: “house of fishing” or “house of the hunt,” a town at the north end of the Sea of Galilee, east of the Jordan.
- af (1:45) Nathanael: “God has given.” He is not mentioned in the other Gospels; some have identified him with Bartholomew.
- ag (1:45) Joseph: “may he add” (Gen 30:24).

- ah (1:45) Nazareth: a small village in the hills of lower Galilee, not mentioned in the Old Testament or in other sources before the Gospels; the meaning of its name is uncertain.
- ai (1:47) No deceit: perhaps a contrast with Jacob, the deceiver, who was renamed Israel (Gen 27:35; 32:28); compare 1:51.
- aj (1:51) Amen, amen: Hebrew amen, "surely, truly," used by Jesus to introduce a solemn statement. Only in John is it doubled (twenty-five times).
- ak (1:51) You all: the Greek "you" is plural here, though Jesus is speaking to Nathanael.
- al (1:51) Compare Jacob's dream at Bethel (Gen 28:12). Son of Man (Aramaic bar enash, "human being") is Jesus' usual way of referring to himself; compare Dan 7:13–14.

Chapter 2

1 On the third day a marriage was held in Cana[a] of Galilee, and the mother of Jesus was there. 2 Jesus also had been invited to the wedding, along with his disciples. 3 When the wine ran short, the mother of Jesus says to him, "They have no wine." 4 Jesus said to her, "Woman,[b] how does this concern you and me? My time has not come yet." 5 His mother says to the servants, "Whatever he tells you, do it." 6 Six stone water jars stood nearby, used for the purification rites of the Jews, each able to hold twenty or thirty gallons.[c] 7 Jesus says to them, "Fill the jars with water." And they filled them to the brim. 8 Then he says to them, "Now draw some out, and carry it to the master of the feast." So they carried it. 9 The master of the feast tasted the water that had turned into wine, not knowing its source (though the servants who had drawn the water knew). He called the bridegroom 10 and says to him, "Everyone sets out the good wine first, and when the guests have drunk freely, the poorer wine. You have kept the good wine until now." 11 Jesus did this at Cana in Galilee as the first of his signs.[d] He showed his glory, and his disciples put their faith in him.
12 After this he went down to Capernaum,[e] he and his mother and his brothers[f] and his disciples, and they stayed there for a few days.
13 When the Jewish Passover[g] was approaching, Jesus went up to Jerusalem.[h] 14 In the temple he found those who were selling cattle, sheep, and doves, and the money changers sitting there. 15 Making a whip of cords, he drove everyone out of the temple courts, sheep and cattle alike; he scattered the money changers' coins and turned their tables over. 16 And to those selling the doves he said, "Take these things out of here! Stop making my Father's house a house of trade." 17 His disciples remembered that it is written, "Zeal for your house will consume me."[i]

18 So the Jews responded to him, "What sign do you show us, to justify your doing these things?" 19 Jesus answered them, "Destroy this sanctuary,[j] and in three days I will raise it up." 20 The Jews replied, "It took forty-six years[k] to build this temple, and you will raise it in three days?" 21 But he was speaking about the sanctuary of his body. 22 So when he was raised from the dead, his disciples remembered that he had said this, and they believed the Scripture and the word that Jesus had spoken.

23 While he was in Jerusalem at the Passover, during the festival, many believed in his name when they saw the signs that he was doing. 24 Jesus, however, did not trust himself to them, since he knew everyone, 25 and he had no need for anyone to bear witness about humankind, for he himself knew what was in each person.

Notes

- a (2:1) Cana: a village in Galilee, probably Khirbet Qana, about 8 miles (13 km) north of Nazareth. The name may mean "reed."
- b (2:4) Woman: a respectful form of address in Greek (compare 19:26; 20:15), though unusual from a son to his mother. What is that to me and to you? is a Semitic idiom (compare Judg 11:12; 1 Kgs 17:18) that marks a distance between the speakers: "What concern is that of ours?"
- c (2:6) Twenty or thirty gallons: literally "two or three measures." The Greek metrētēs was a liquid measure of about 9 gallons (39 L), so each jar held about 75–115 liters, and the six together about 120–180 gallons.
- d (2:11) Signs: Greek sēmeia. John calls Jesus' miracles "signs," pointing beyond themselves to who he is (20:30–31).
- e (2:12) Capernaum: from Hebrew Kefar Nahum, "village of Nahum" ("comfort"), on the northwest shore of the Sea of Galilee.
- f (2:12) His brothers: see 7:3–5. Their exact relation to Jesus (sons of Mary and Joseph, of Joseph by an earlier marriage, or cousins) has been understood differently in different church traditions.
- g (2:13) Passover: Greek pascha, from Hebrew pesach, the spring festival commemorating the exodus from Egypt, celebrated on the fourteenth of Nisan (March–April). John mentions three Passovers during Jesus' ministry (here, 6:4, and 11:55).

- h (2:13) Jerusalem: the meaning of the name is uncertain, perhaps "foundation of Shalem" or "city of peace."
- i (2:17) Ps 69:9 (68:10 in the Greek Old Testament). The psalm has "has consumed"; John uses the future.
- j (2:19) Sanctuary: Greek naos, the temple building proper, as distinct from hieron, the whole temple complex (2:14–15).
- k (2:20) Forty-six years: Herod the Great began rebuilding the temple in about 20–19 BC, which places this conversation about AD 27–28. The work was not finished until about AD 63.

Chapter 3

1 Among the Pharisees there was a man named Nicodemus,[a] a leader of the Jews. 2 He came to Jesus at night and said, "Rabbi, we are sure you are a teacher who has come from God, since no one is able to do the signs you are doing unless God is with him." 3 Jesus answered him, "Amen, amen, I tell you, unless someone is born from above,[b] he cannot see the kingdom of God." 4 Nicodemus says to him, "How can a person be born when he is old? Surely he cannot go back a second time into his mother's womb and be born?" 5 Jesus answered,
"Amen, amen, I tell you, unless someone is born of water and Spirit, he cannot enter the kingdom of God. 6 What is born of the flesh is flesh, and what is born of the Spirit is spirit. 7 Do not be amazed that I told you, 'All of you must be born from above.' 8 The wind[c] blows where it likes. Its sound reaches your ears, yet you have no idea where it begins or where it ends. Everyone who is born of the Spirit is like that." 9 Nicodemus answered him, "How can such things come about?" 10 Jesus replied, "You are a teacher of Israel, and yet you do not grasp this? 11 Amen, amen, I tell you, what we know we speak, and what we have seen we declare, and still you people refuse our testimony. 12 If you do not believe when I have spoken to you of things on earth, how will you believe when I speak of things in heaven? 13 No one has ever ascended to heaven except the one who descended from heaven, the Son of Man.[d] 14 And just as Moses raised up the snake in the desert,[e] even so must the Son of Man be raised up,[f] 15 in order that each one who believes may possess eternal life in him.[g]

16 “For God loved the world in this way: he gave his only Son,[h] so that whoever believes in him should not perish but have eternal life. 17 God sent the Son into the world, not to pronounce a verdict against it, but so that the world could be rescued by him. 18 Whoever believes in him does not come under judgment; whoever does not believe stands judged already, for not having believed in the name of God’s only Son. 19 And this is the judgment: the light has come into the world, and people loved the darkness more than the light, because what they did was evil. 20 For everyone who practices wicked things hates the light and will not come to the light, lest his deeds be exposed. 21 But the one who practices the truth comes to the light, so that his deeds may be shown to have been wrought in God.” 22 After this Jesus and his disciples went into the land of Judea, and he spent time there with them and was baptizing. 23 John also was baptizing at Aenon near Salim,[i] since there was much water in that place, and people were coming to be baptized. 24 John had not yet been put in prison at that time.
25 A dispute then arose between John’s disciples and a Jew[j] over purification. 26 So they went to John and told him, “Rabbi, that man who was with you beyond the Jordan, to whom you bore witness, is now baptizing, and the whole world is flocking to him.” 27 John replied, “A person can receive nothing unless it has been granted him from heaven. 28 You can testify for me yourselves that I said, ‘I am not the Messiah; rather, I have been sent before him.’ 29 The bridegroom is the one who has the bride. The bridegroom’s friend, who stands by and listens for him, is overjoyed at the bridegroom’s voice. So this joy of mine is now complete. 30 He must grow greater, and I must grow less.”[k] 31 The one who comes from above is above everyone. Whoever is from the earth is earthly and speaks about earthly things. The one who comes from heaven is above everyone. 32 What he has seen and heard, to that he bears witness, yet his testimony no one receives. 33 Whoever has accepted his testimony has set his seal to this: that God is true.
34 For the one whom God has sent speaks the words of God, since he does not give the Spirit by measure. 35 The Father loves the Son and has put everything into his hand. 36 Anyone who believes in the Son possesses eternal life; anyone who refuses to obey the Son will not see life, and God's wrath stays upon him.

Notes

- a (3:1) Nicodemus: a Greek name, "victor over the people."
- b (3:3) From above: Greek anōthen means both "from above" and "again, anew." Nicodemus takes it in the second sense (3:4); Jesus means the first (3:31).
- c (3:8) Wind: Greek pneuma means both "wind" and "spirit," as does Hebrew ruach.
- d (3:13) Many later manuscripts add "who is in heaven." The Westcott–Hort text, with P66, P75, Sinaiticus and Vaticanus, does not include it.
- e (3:14) Num 21:8–9.
- f (3:14) Raised up: Greek hypsōthēnai, "lifted up,", used in John both of being raised up on the cross and of exaltation to glory (8:28; 12:32–34).
- g (3:15) Or "so that each one who believes in him may possess eternal life." Some interpreters end Jesus' words at 3:15 and take 3:16–21 as the evangelist's comment; the Greek did not mark quotations. The same uncertainty applies to 3:31–36.
- h (3:16) His only Son: Greek ton huion ton monogenē; see the note on 1:14.
- i (3:23) Aenon near Salim: Aenon means "springs." The location is uncertain, perhaps in the Jordan valley south of Scythopolis, or in Samaria near Shechem. Salim may be related to shalom, "peace."
- j (3:25) A Jew: so the Westcott–Hort text and most manuscripts; P66, Sinaiticus (first hand), and some others read "the Jews."
- k (3:30) Grow greater ... grow less: or "increase ... decrease."

Chapter 4

1 Now when the Lord[a] learned that the Pharisees had heard that Jesus was making and baptizing more disciples than John 2 (though in fact it was not Jesus himself who baptized, but his disciples), 3 he left Judea and went away again to Galilee. 4 He had to pass through Samaria.[b] 5 So he comes to a town of Samaria called Sychar,[c] near the piece of land that Jacob[d] gave to his son Joseph. 6 Jacob's well[e] was there, and Jesus, worn out from the journey, was sitting just as he was beside the well. It was about noon.[f] 7 A woman of Samaria comes to draw water. Jesus says to her, "Give me a drink." 8 His disciples had gone away into the town to purchase food. 9 So the Samaritan woman says to him, "How is it that you, a Jew, ask for a drink from me, a Samaritan woman?" (Jews, you see, have no dealings with Samaritans.)[g] 10 Jesus answered her, "If you knew the gift of God, and who it is that says to you, 'Give me a drink,' you would have asked him, and he would have given you living water."[h] 11 She said to him, "Sir,[i] you have no rope or bucket, and this well is deep. So where can you find that living water? 12 Surely you are not greater than our ancestor Jacob, who gave us this well? He drank from it himself, as did his sons and his flocks." 13 Jesus answered her, "Everyone who drinks of this water will be thirsty again; 14 but anyone who drinks the water that I will give him will never thirst again; rather, the water I will give him will become within him a spring of water leaping up to eternal life." 15 The woman said to him, "Sir, give me this water, so I will never be thirsty again and never have to come here to draw water." 16 He says to her, "Go, call your husband, and come back here." 17 The woman answered him, "I have no husband." Jesus says to her, "You spoke rightly in saying, 'I have no husband,' 18 You have had five husbands, and the man you now have is no husband of yours. In this you have spoken truly." 19 "Sir," the woman says to him, "I perceive you are a prophet. 20 Our ancestors worshiped on this mountain,[j] yet you Jews claim that Jerusalem is where people must worship." 21 Jesus says to her, "Woman, believe me: the hour is coming when it will be neither on this mountain nor in Jerusalem that you worship the Father. 22 You worship something you do not know; we worship something we know, since it is from the Jews that salvation comes.

23 But an hour is coming, and is here now, when the true worshipers will worship the Father in spirit and truth; for the Father is seeking people such as these to worship him. 24 God is spirit, and those who worship him must worship in spirit and truth." 25 The woman says to him, "I know that Messiah is coming" (the one called Christ). "When he comes, he will declare everything to us." 26 Jesus says to her, "I am he,[k] the one who is speaking to you." 27 At that point his disciples arrived, and they were surprised to find him speaking with a woman. Still, none of them said, "What are you after?" or, "Why do you speak with her?" 28 The woman then left her water jar, went off into the town, and says to the people, 29 "Come, see a man who told me everything I ever did! Can this be the Messiah?" 30 They went out of the town and were making their way to him.

31 Meanwhile the disciples were urging him, "Rabbi, eat." 32 But he said to them, "I have food to eat that you know nothing about." 33 The disciples therefore began asking one another, "Has anyone brought him food?" 34 Jesus says to them, "My food is doing the will of him who sent me, and finishing his work. 35 Do you not say, 'Four months more, and then comes the harvest'? Look, I tell you, raise your eyes and see the fields: they are white for harvest already. 36 Already the reaper is drawing his pay and bringing in a harvest for eternal life, that sower and reaper alike may be glad. 37 In this the saying is true:
'One person sows, another reaps.' 38 I sent you to reap what you have not labored for. Others have labored, and you have entered into their labor."
39 Many Samaritans from that town trusted in him, because the woman had testified, "He told me everything I ever did." 40 When therefore the Samaritans came to him, they begged him to remain with them, and he remained there for two days. 41 And far more believed because of his own word. 42 They said to the woman, "It is no longer your words that make us believe. We have now heard him ourselves, and we know that this man truly is the Savior of the world." 43 After the two days he left there for Galilee. 44 (For Jesus himself had testified that a prophet has no honor in his own homeland.) 45 When he arrived in Galilee, the Galileans received him, having seen all he did at Jerusalem during the feast, since they too had gone up for the feast.
46 Then he came once more to Cana in Galilee, where he had turned the water into wine. At Capernaum there was a certain royal official[1] whose son was ill. 47 He heard that Jesus had come out of Judea into Galilee, so he went and pleaded with him to come and heal his son, who was about to die. 48 So Jesus said to him, "Unless you all see signs and wonders, you will not believe at all." 49 The official says to him, "Sir, come down before my little boy dies." 50 Jesus says to him, "Go; your son lives." The man believed the word that Jesus spoke to him and set off. 51 While he was still on his way down, his servants met him and told him that his boy was living. 52 He inquired of them at what hour the boy had started to improve. “Yesterday, at one in the afternoon,”[m] they said, “the fever went from him.” 53 The father realized that this was the very hour when Jesus had said to him, “Your son lives.” And he himself believed, along with his whole household. 54 This again was the second sign that Jesus did after coming from Judea into Galilee.

Notes

- a (4:1) The Lord: Greek ho kyrios, used here of Jesus. Many manuscripts, including P66 and P75 as reported, read “Jesus”; the Westcott–Hort text reads “the Lord.”
- b (4:4) Samaria: the region between Judea and Galilee, named after the city of Samaria (Hebrew Shomron, perhaps “watch-post”). Jews traveling between Judea and Galilee sometimes went around it by way of the Jordan valley.
- c (4:5) Sychar: probably the village of Askar near ancient Shechem, at the foot of Mount Gerizim; some identify it with Shechem itself.
- d (4:5) Jacob: Hebrew Yaakov, explained in Gen 25:26 and 27:36 as “heel-grabber” or “one who supplants.” For the land given to Joseph, see Gen 33:19; 48:22; Josh 24:32.
- e (4:6) Well: Greek pēgē, “spring,” here and in 4:14; in 4:11–12 the word is phrear, “well, cistern.” The well was fed by an underground spring.
- f (4:6) About noon: literally “about the sixth hour,” counting from sunrise (about 6 a.m.). On the view that John counts from midnight, which would make the time about 6 a.m. or 6 p.m., see the note on 1:39.
- g (4:9) Many interpreters take the parenthesis as the evangelist’s comment. The words sunchrōntai may mean “have no dealings with” or, more narrowly, “do not use vessels in common with.” Sinaiticus (first hand) and a few other witnesses omit the sentence; the Westcott–Hort text places it in brackets.
- h (4:10) Living water: an idiom for running water from a spring or stream, as opposed to still water in a cistern; Jesus uses it of the life he gives (compare 7:37–39; Jer 2:13).
- i (4:11) Sir: Greek kyrie, which can be a polite address (“sir”) or a title (“Lord”).
- j (4:20) This mountain: Mount Gerizim, near Sychar, where the Samaritans had built a temple (destroyed about 110 BC) and continued to worship (compare Deut 11:29; 27:12).
- k (4:26) I am he: literally “I am” (Greek egō eimi). See the note on 6:20 and 8:58.
- l (4:46) Royal official: Greek basilikos, an officer in the service of the king, here probably Herod Antipas, tetrarch of Galilee.
- m (4:52) One in the afternoon: literally “the seventh hour,” counting from sunrise. See the note on 1:39.

Chapter 5

1 Some time later there was a festival of the Jews,[a] and Jesus went up to Jerusalem. 2 Now in Jerusalem, by the Sheep Gate, there is a pool, called in Hebrew[b] Bethzatha,[c] which has five colonnades. 3 In these lay a crowd of invalids: blind, lame, withered.[d] 4 [e] 5 One man there had been in his illness thirty-eight years. 6 When Jesus saw him lying there and knew that he had already been that way a long time, he says to him, "Do you want to become well?" 7 The sick man replied, "Sir, I have no one to put me in the pool once the water is stirred.
By the time I get there, someone else has already gone in ahead of me." 8 "Rise," Jesus says to him, "take up your pallet and walk about." 9 Immediately the man was healed. He picked up his mat and walked.
That day was a Sabbath.[f] 10 The Jews therefore told the healed man, "This is the Sabbath; it is not lawful for you to be carrying your pallet." 11 But he answered them,
"The man who made me well, he is the one who told me, 'Take up your pallet and walk.'" 12 They questioned him, "Who is the man that told you, 'Take it up and walk'?" 13 But the man who had been healed had no idea who it was, for Jesus had slipped away, there being a crowd in the place. 14 Afterward Jesus finds him in the temple and said to him, "See, you have become well. Sin no more, so that nothing worse befalls you." 15 The man went off and told the Jews that it was Jesus who had made him well. 16 That is why the Jews began to hound Jesus: he was doing such things on a Sabbath. 17 But Jesus answered them, "My Father is at work until now, and I am at work too." 18 This made the Jews try all the harder to kill him. He was not only breaking the Sabbath; he was also calling God his own Father, and so making himself equal with God.
19 So Jesus responded to them, "Amen, amen, I tell you, the Son is able to do nothing by himself, except what he sees the Father doing; for whatever things the Father does, these the Son does in like manner.
20 The Father has affection for the Son and lets him see everything he himself is doing, and greater works than these he will let him see, to your amazement. 21 For just as the Father raises the dead and gives them life, so the Son too gives life to whomever he wills. 22 Nor does the Father judge anyone; he has entrusted all judgment to the Son, 23 so that everyone will honor the Son just as they honor the Father.

Anyone who does not honor the Son does not honor the Father who sent him. 24 Truly, truly, I say to you, anyone who listens to what I say and believes the one who sent me has eternal life. That person will not be judged but has already passed from death to life. 25 Truly, truly, I say to you, a time is coming, and has already come, when the dead will hear the voice of the Son of God, and those who listen will live.
26 For as the Father has life in himself, so he has granted the Son also to have life in himself. 27 And he has given him authority to execute judgment, because he is the Son of Man.[g] 28 Do not be amazed at this;
the hour is coming when everyone lying in the graves will hear his voice 29 and will come out. Those who did good will rise to live, and those who did evil will rise to be judged.
30 "On my own I can do nothing. I judge only as I am told, and my judgment is fair, because I am not seeking my own will but the will of the one who sent me. 31 If I bear witness about myself, my witness is not true.[h] 32 Someone else testifies about me, and I know that his testimony about me is true. 33 You yourselves sent messengers to John, and his testimony was to the truth. 34 Not that the testimony I accept is from a human being; but I say these things so that you may be saved. 35 John was a lamp, burning and giving light, and for a short time you were glad to enjoy his light. 36 But the testimony I have is greater than John's. The works that the Father has given me to bring to completion, the very works I am doing, testify about me that the Father has sent me. 37 The Father who sent me has himself testified about me. You have never heard his voice or seen his form, 38 and his word you do not have abiding in you, because you do not believe the one he sent. 39 You pore over the Scriptures[i] because you suppose you possess eternal life in them; yet these are the very writings that testify about me. 40 Yet you are unwilling to come to me to have life.
41 Glory from human beings I do not receive. 42 But I have come to know you, and the love of God is not in you. 43 I have come in my Father's name, and you do not receive me; if someone else comes in his own name, him you will receive. 44 How are you able to believe, you who accept honor from each other and do not look for the honor that is from the only God?[j] 45 Do not imagine that it is I who will bring charges against you before the Father. The one who brings charges against you is Moses, in whom you have placed your hope. 46 For if you believed Moses, you would believe me, for it was about me that he wrote. 47 But if you do not believe his writings, how will you believe my words?"

Notes

- a (5:1) A festival of the Jews: the festival is not named. Sinaiticus and some other manuscripts read "the festival," which would probably mean Passover or Tabernacles.
- b (5:2) In Hebrew: that is, in the Hebrew or Aramaic language spoken in Judea (so also 19:13, 17; 20:16).
- c (5:2) Bethzatha: so the Westcott–Hort text, with Sinaiticus and a few others. Other manuscripts read Bethesda ("house of mercy," or perhaps "house of the outpouring"), and P66, P75 and Vaticanus are reported to read Bethsaida. Bethzatha may mean "house of olives," or be the name of the northern quarter of the city (Bezetha). A double pool with five porticoes has been excavated near the Church of St. Anne, north of the temple area.
- d (5:3) Withered: that is, paralyzed. Many later manuscripts add a clause at the end of verse 3 about waiting for the water to move, and add a verse 4 saying that an angel of the Lord went down into the pool at certain times and stirred the water, and that the first person to step in afterward was cured of any disease. Neither addition appears in the earliest manuscripts, including P66, P75, Sinaiticus and Vaticanus (as reported), and the wording of verse 4 varies greatly among the manuscripts that have it. The Westcott–Hort text does not include them.
- e (5:4) The verse number is kept here only to preserve the traditional verse numbering. See the note on 5:3.
- f (5:9) Sabbath: from Hebrew shabbat, "rest" or "ceasing," the seventh day of the week, from sunset Friday to sunset Saturday, on which work was forbidden (Exod 20:8–11). Carrying a load from one place to another was counted as work (compare Jer 17:21–22).
- g (5:27) Or "because he is a son of man," that is, a human being; the Greek has no article. Compare Dan 7:13–14.
- h (5:31) True: that is, valid as legal evidence. The Law required two or three witnesses (Deut 19:15; compare 8:13–18).
- i (5:39) Or, as a command, "Pore over the Scriptures."
- j (5:44) The only God: some early witnesses, including P66, P75 and Vaticanus (as reported), read "the only one." The Westcott–Hort text prints "God" in brackets.

Chapter 6

1 Afterward Jesus went away to the far side of the Sea of Galilee, that is, the Sea of Tiberias.[a] 2 A great crowd kept following him, because they were watching the signs he did on the sick. 3 Jesus climbed the hill and was sitting there with his disciples. 4 It was close to the Passover, the Jewish festival. 5 Lifting his eyes and seeing that a great crowd was coming toward him, Jesus says to Philip, "Where shall we buy bread, so that these people may eat?" 6 He said this to test him, for he himself knew what he was going to do. 7 Philip answered him,
"Two hundred days' wages[b] would not buy bread enough for each of them to have a mouthful." 8 One of his disciples, Andrew, Simon Peter's brother, says to him, 9 "There is a boy here with five barley loaves and two small fish. Yet what use are they for such a crowd?" 10 Jesus said, "Have the people recline." There was much grass in the place. So the men reclined, about five thousand in number. 11 Then Jesus took the loaves, and when he had given thanks, he distributed them to those who were reclining; so also with the fish, as much as they wanted. 12 And when they were filled, he tells his disciples, "Gather up the pieces left over, so that nothing goes to waste." 13 So they gathered them up, and from the five barley loaves they filled twelve baskets with pieces left over by those who had eaten. 14 Seeing the sign he had done, the people said, "This must surely be the Prophet who was to come into the world!" 15 Then Jesus, aware that they were about to come and seize him to make him king, withdrew again to the mountain by himself.

16 When evening came, his disciples went down to the sea, 17 got into a boat and started across the sea toward Capernaum. It was already dark, and Jesus had not yet joined them. 18 The sea was being whipped up by a strong wind. 19 After they had rowed about three or four miles,[c] they saw Jesus walking on the sea, coming near the boat, and they were frightened. 20 But he says to them, "It is I;[d] do not be afraid." 21 Then they were glad to take him into the boat, and immediately the boat reached the shore they were heading for.

22 The next day the crowd that was still on the far side of the sea noticed that there had been just one small boat there, and that Jesus had not got into it with his disciples. His disciples had gone off by themselves. 23 Other boats, however, came from Tiberias near the place where they had eaten the bread after the Lord gave thanks.[e] 24 When the crowd realized that Jesus was not there, and his disciples were gone as well, they boarded the small boats themselves and came to Capernaum searching for Jesus. 25 And when they found him on the other side of the sea, they said to him, "Rabbi, when did you get here?" 26 Jesus answered them, "Amen, amen, I tell you, it is not because you saw signs that you seek me, but because you ate of the loaves and were filled. 27 Do not labor for food that spoils, but for food that remains for eternal life, which the Son of Man will give you, because God the Father has placed his seal on him." 28 So they asked him, "What should we be doing, so as to do God's works?" 29 Jesus answered, "The work God asks of you is this: believe in the one he sent." 30 They said to him, "What sign, then, will you do, so we may see and put our faith in you? What are you going to accomplish? 31 Our ancestors ate the manna[f] in the wilderness, as it is written, 'He gave them bread out of heaven to eat.'"[g] 32 Jesus then said to them, "Amen, amen, I tell you, it was not Moses who gave you the bread out of heaven; my Father is giving you the true bread out of heaven. 33 For the bread of God is the one who comes down out of heaven and gives life to the world." 34 "Sir," they said to him, "always give us this bread." 35 Jesus said to them, "I am the bread of life.[h] Whoever comes to me will never go hungry, and whoever believes in me will never be thirsty again. 36 But I told you that you have seen me and still you do not believe. 37 All those the Father gives me will come to me, and I will never turn away anyone who comes to me. 38 For I have come down from heaven not to do my own will but the will of the one who sent me. 39 And the will of him who sent me is this, that of all he has given me I lose none, but raise it to life on the last day. 40 For this is the will of my Father, that everyone who looks to the Son and believes in him should have eternal life; and I will raise him up on the last day." 41 Then the Jews began to grumble about him because he said, "I am the bread that came down out of heaven." 42 They were saying, "Is this not Jesus, Joseph's son, whose father and mother we know? How can he now say, ‘I have come down out of heaven’?” 43 Jesus answered them, “Stop grumbling among yourselves. 44 No one can come to me unless the Father who sent me draws him; and I will raise him up on the last day. 45 It is written in the Prophets, ‘And they will all be taught by God.’[i] Everyone who has heard from the Father and has learned comes to me. 46 Not that anyone has seen the Father, except the one who is from God; he has seen the Father. 47 Amen, amen, I tell you, whoever believes[j] has eternal life. 48 I am the bread of life. 49 Your ancestors ate the manna in the wilderness, and they died. 50 This is the bread that comes down from heaven, so that a person may eat it and never die. 51 I am the living bread that came down out of heaven.

If anyone eats of this bread, he will live forever. And the bread that I will give for the life of the world is my flesh.” 52 The Jews then began to argue sharply with one another, saying,
“How can this man give us his flesh to eat?” 53 Jesus said to them, “Truly, truly, I say to you, unless you eat the flesh of the Son of Man and drink his blood, you do not have life within you. 54 Whoever feeds on my flesh and drinks my blood has eternal life, and I will raise him up on the last day. 55 For my flesh is food indeed, and my blood is drink indeed. 56 The one who feeds on my flesh and drinks my blood remains in me, and I remain in him. 57 The living Father sent me, and I live because of the Father. In the same way, the person who feeds on me will live because of me. 58 This is the bread that came down out of heaven, not like the bread the ancestors ate and died. Whoever feeds on this bread will live forever.” 59 He said these things while teaching in a synagogue at Capernaum.
60 When they heard this, many of his disciples said, “This is a hard saying. Who can listen to it?” 61 Jesus was aware that his disciples were complaining about this, and he said to them, “Does this cause you to stumble? 62 What if you were to see the Son of Man ascend to the place where he was before? 63 The Spirit gives life; the flesh is no help at all. The words I have spoken to you are spirit, and they are life. 64 Yet some of you do not believe.” For from the start Jesus knew which of them did not believe and who would betray him. 65 And he said, “That is why I told you that no one can come to me unless it has been granted him by the Father.”

66 From that point many of his disciples drew back and would no longer go about with him. 67 Jesus then asked the Twelve, “And you, do you also want to leave?” 68 “Lord,” Simon Peter answered, “to whom would we go? It is you who have words of eternal life; 69 and we for our part have believed and know that you are the Holy One of God.”[k] 70 “Was it not I who chose you Twelve?” Jesus answered them. “Yet one of you is a devil.” 71 He was speaking of Judas son of Simon Iscariot,[l] who, though he was one of the Twelve, was going to hand him over.

Notes

- a (6:1) Sea of Tiberias: another name for the Sea of Galilee, from the city of Tiberias on its western shore, founded by Herod Antipas about AD 20 and named in honor of the emperor Tiberius.
- b (6:7) Two hundred days’ wages: literally “two hundred denarii.” A denarius was a silver coin, the usual day’s wage for a laborer (Matt 20:2), so the sum is about eight months’ wages.
- c (6:19) Three or four miles: literally “twenty-five or thirty stadia.” A stadion was about 607 feet (185 m), so the distance is about 3–3½ miles (5–6 km).
- d (6:20) It is I: literally “I am” (Greek egō eimi), the ordinary way of saying “It is I,” but in John it may also echo God’s self-designation in the Greek Old Testament (Exod 3:14; Isa 41:4; 43:10, 25). In John Jesus uses egō eimi both absolutely (here; 8:24, 28, 58; 13:19; 18:5–8) and with a predicate in seven sayings: “I am the bread of life” (6:35), “the light of the world” (8:12), “the door” (10:7, 9), “the good shepherd” (10:11, 14), “the resurrection and the life” (11:25), “the way, the truth, and the life” (14:6), and “the true vine” (15:1).
- e (6:23) After the Lord gave thanks: a few Western witnesses, including Codex Bezae, omit these words.
- f (6:31) Manna: the food God provided for Israel in the wilderness (Exod 16). Exod 16:15 explains the name by the question man hu, “What is it?”
- g (6:31) Compare Ps 78:24; Exod 16:4, 15; Neh 9:15.
- h (6:35) I am the bread of life: the first of the seven “I am” sayings with a predicate; see the note on 6:20.
- i (6:45) Isa 54:13.
- j (6:47) Whoever believes: many later manuscripts add “in me.”
- k (6:69) The Holy One of God: so the earliest manuscripts and the Westcott–Hort text. Later manuscripts read “the Messiah, the Son of the living God” or similar (compare Matt 16:16).

- l (6:71) Iscariot: probably from Hebrew ish Qeriyyot, “man of Kerioth,” a town in Judea (Josh 15:25), though other explanations have been proposed. Judas is the Greek form of Judah, “praised” (Gen 29:35).

Chapter 7

1 After this Jesus moved about in Galilee; he chose not to go about in Judea, since the Jews were seeking to kill him. 2 But the Jewish festival of Booths[a] was near. 3 So his brothers told him, “Leave here and go into Judea, so that your disciples can see the works you do. 4 No one who wants to be widely known keeps his doings hidden. Since you do such things, display yourself to the world.” 5 For not even his brothers believed in him. 6 Jesus therefore says to them, “My time has not yet arrived, but for you any time will do. 7 The world cannot hate you, but me it hates, because I testify against it that its works are evil. 8 Go on up to the feast, all of you. I am not yet[b] going up to this feast, for my time is not yet complete.” 9 Having told them this, he stayed on
in Galilee.
10 But once his brothers had gone up to the festival, then he too went up, not openly but as it were in secret. 11 Meanwhile at the feast the Jews kept searching for him and asking, “Where can he be?” 12 The crowds were full of whispered talk about him. “He is a good man,” some said; others said, “Not so; he deceives the people.” 13 Yet for fear of the Jews nobody would speak openly about him.
14 About the middle of the feast Jesus went up to the temple and taught. 15 The Jews were astonished and said, “How does this man know letters, when he has never studied?”[c] 16 Jesus answered them, “What I teach is not mine; it belongs to the one who sent me. 17 If anyone resolves to do his will, he will come to know whether my teaching is from God or whether I speak on my own authority. 18 The one who speaks on his own authority seeks glory for himself; but the one who seeks the glory of him who sent him is truthful, and there is no wrongdoing in him. 19 Did Moses not give you the Law? Yet none of you obeys it. Why do you want to kill me?” 20 “You are possessed by a demon!” the crowd answered. “Who wants to kill you?” 21 Jesus answered them, “I did a single work, and you all wonder at it. 22 Moses gave you circumcision for this reason[d] (though it did not originate with Moses but with the fathers),[e] and on the Sabbath you circumcise a male. 23 If a man receives circumcision on the Sabbath so that the Law of Moses may not be broken, are you angry with me because I made a whole man well on the Sabbath? 24 Stop judging by appearances; judge with right judgment." 25 Some of the people of Jerusalem were therefore saying, "Is this not the man they are seeking to kill? 26 And look, he speaks boldly, and they say nothing to him. Can it be that the rulers really know that this is the Messiah? 27 Yet we know where this man comes from; but when the Messiah comes, no one will know where he is from." 28 So as he taught in the temple courts Jesus called out loudly, "So you know me, and you know my origin? Yet it was not on my own initiative that I came; the one who sent me is genuine, and him you do not know. 29 I know him, because I am from him, and he sent me." 30 So they tried to arrest him, yet no one laid a hand on him, because his hour had not yet come. 31 Many in the crowd, however, put their faith in him. They said, "Will the Messiah, when he comes, perform more signs than this man has performed?" 32 The Pharisees overheard the crowd muttering these things about him. Then the chief priests and Pharisees dispatched temple guards[f] to arrest him. 33 Jesus then said, "Only a little while longer am I with you, and then I go to the one who sent me. 34 You will look for me but will not find me, and you cannot come to where I will be." 35 The Jews then asked among themselves, "Where is this fellow about to go, that we will not be able to find him? Surely he does not mean to go to the Dispersion[g] among the Greeks and teach Greeks? 36 What is this saying of his, 'You will seek me and not find me,' and, 'Where I am, you cannot come'?"

37 On the last day of the festival, the great day, Jesus stood and cried out, "If anyone is thirsty, let him come to me and drink. 38 Whoever believes in me, as the Scripture has said, 'Rivers of living water will flow from within him.'"[h] 39 He said this about the Spirit, whom those who believed in him would receive. The Spirit had not yet been given,[i] because Jesus had not yet been glorified.

40 On hearing these words, some of the crowd said, “This really is the Prophet.” 41 Others said, “This is the Messiah.” But some said, “What? Is the Messiah to come out of Galilee? 42 Has the Scripture not said that the Messiah comes from the offspring of David,[j] and from Bethlehem,[k] the village where David was?” 43 So a division arose in the crowd because of him. 44 Some of them wanted to seize him, but no one laid hands on him.
45 The officers then went back to the chief priests and Pharisees, who said to them, “Why have you not brought him?” 46 The officers answered, “Never has anyone spoken the way this man speaks!” 47
The Pharisees answered them, “Have you been taken in as well? 48 Has any of the rulers believed in him, or any of the Pharisees? 49 But this rabble that does not know the Law, they are accursed.” 50 Nicodemus, who had come to him earlier and was one of them, says to them, 51 “Does our Law condemn a man without first hearing from him and learning what he is doing?” 52 They replied, “Are you from Galilee as well? Look into it, and you will find that no prophet comes from Galilee.”[l] 53 [[[m]Then they went each to his own house.

Notes

- a (7:2) Booths: Greek skēnopēgia, “tent-pitching,” the festival of Booths or Tabernacles (Hebrew Sukkot), held for seven days in the autumn (Lev 23:33–43), with an eighth day of solemn assembly (7:37).
- b (7:8) Not yet: so P66, P75, Vaticanus (as reported) and the Westcott–Hort text. Sinaiticus, Codex Bezae and some other witnesses read “I am not going up.”
- c (7:15) Know letters: that is, have learning, especially in the Scriptures, without having studied under a rabbi.
- d (7:22) For this reason: the Greek phrase may instead go with the end of 7:21: “and you all wonder at it for this reason.”
- e (7:22) Circumcision was commanded to Abraham (Gen 17:10–12) before it was included in the Law of Moses (Lev 12:3). Since a male child was to be circumcised on the eighth day, the rite was performed even when that day fell on a Sabbath.
- f (7:32) Officers: Greek hypēretai, the temple police under the authority of the chief priests.
- g (7:35) The Dispersion: Greek diaspora, the Jewish communities living outside the land of Israel.
- h (7:38) The source of the quotation is uncertain; compare Isa 44:3; 55:1; 58:11; Ezek 47:1–12; Zech 14:8. From within him is literally “out of his belly.” The punctuation is also disputed: some join “whoever believes in me” to 7:37 (“let him come to me and drink, whoever believes in me”), so that the rivers flow from within Jesus.

- i (7:39) As yet there was no Spirit: literally “the Spirit was not yet,” that is, had not yet been given. So the Westcott–Hort text with P66 (first hand), P75 and Sinaiticus (as reported); many manuscripts add “given,” and Vaticanus and others reportedly read “the Holy Spirit was not yet given.”
- j (7:42) Compare 2 Sam 7:12; Ps 89:3–4; Mic 5:2. David may mean “beloved.”
- k (7:42) Bethlehem: “house of bread.”
- l (7:52) P66 and some later witnesses are reported to read “the Prophet,” that is, the expected prophet like Moses.
- m (7:53) The account of the woman caught in adultery (7:53–8:11) is placed in double brackets because it is almost certainly not part of the original Gospel. It is absent from the earliest Greek manuscripts, including P66 and P75 (about AD 200), Sinaiticus and Vaticanus (fourth century), and probably from Alexandrinus and Ephraemi (which are defective here, but whose missing leaves are too short to have held it); from the earliest Syriac and Coptic versions and many Old Latin manuscripts; and no Greek writer comments on it before the twelfth century. Its earliest Greek witness is Codex Bezae (D, fifth century); it is found in the great majority of later manuscripts and in the Latin Vulgate, and was known to some Western writers such as Ambrose and Augustine, and in a related form perhaps to Papias and the Didascalia (third century). In manuscripts that include it, it appears in different places: most often after 7:52, but in some after 7:36, 7:44, or 21:25, and in one group (family 13) after Luke 21:38. Many manuscripts that place it here mark it with asterisks or obeli as doubtful, and its text varies more than any other passage in the Gospels. Its vocabulary and style are closer to Luke than to John. Most scholars regard it as an authentic early tradition about Jesus that circulated independently and was later inserted into the Gospels. Westcott and Hort printed it in double brackets after the end of John; it is placed here, at its traditional position, so as to keep the familiar verse numbering.

Chapter 8

1 But Jesus went to the Mount of Olives.

2 At daybreak he came back into the temple. All the people came to him, and he sat down and began to teach them. 3 The scribes and the Pharisees bring a woman who had been caught in adultery, and after making her stand in the middle, 4 and they say to him, “Teacher, this woman was caught in the act, committing adultery. 5 Now in the Law Moses commanded us to stone such women.[a] So what do you say?” 6
They said this to trap him, so that they would have a charge to bring against him. But Jesus bent down and wrote on the ground with his finger. 7 And as they persisted in asking him, he stood up straight and told them, “The one among you who is sinless, let him throw the first stone at her.” 8 And again he bent down and went on writing on the ground. 9 When they heard this, they went out one by one, beginning with the elders, and he was left alone with the woman standing there in the middle. 10 Then Jesus stood up and asked her, “Woman, where have they gone? Has nobody condemned you?” 11 She answered, “No one, sir.” Jesus said, “I do not condemn you either. Go now, and do not sin again.”]]

12 Jesus spoke to them again, saying, “I am the light of the world.[b] Whoever follows me will never walk in darkness but will have the light that gives life.” 13 The Pharisees objected, “You are testifying about yourself, so your testimony is not valid.” 14 “Though I bear witness concerning myself,” Jesus answered them, “my witness holds true, since I know from where I came and to where I go. You, though, know neither my origin nor my destination. 15 You judge according to the flesh;[c] I pass judgment on nobody. 16 Yet even if I do judge, my judgment is true, because I am not alone; it is I and the Father who sent me. 17 In your own Law it is written that the testimony of two persons is valid.[d] 18 I am one who testifies about myself, and the Father who sent me testifies about me.” 19 Then they said to him, “Where is your Father?” Jesus answered, “You know neither me nor my Father.
If you knew me, you would know my Father as well.” 20 These words he spoke in the treasury[e] while he taught in the temple; and no one seized him, because his hour had not yet come.
21 He spoke to them once more: “I am going away. You will search for me, and you will die in your sin. You are not able to come where I am going.” 22 At this the Jews said, “He will not kill himself, will he?
Is that why he says, ‘You are not able to come where I am going’?” 23 He said to them, “You are from below; I am from above. You are of this world; I am not of this world. 24 So I told you that you would die in your sins; for unless you believe that I am he,[f] you will die in your sins.” 25 Then they said to him, “Who are you?” Jesus said to them, “Just what I have been telling you from the beginning.[g] 26 There is much I could say about you and much I could judge; but the one who sent me is true, and what I heard from him is what I tell the world." 27 They did not grasp that he was talking to them of the Father. 28 So Jesus said, "When you have lifted up the Son of Man, then you will know that I am he, and that I do nothing on my own, but speak just as the Father taught me. 29 The one who sent me stays with me; he has not left me on my own, for I always do the things that please him." 30

As he was saying these things, many believed in him.
31 Then Jesus said to the Jews who had put their faith in him, "If you remain in my word, you are my disciples indeed; 32 and you will know the truth, and the truth will set you free." 33 They answered him,
"We are Abraham's offspring[h] and have never been slaves to anyone.
How can you say, 'You will become free'?" 34 Jesus answered them,
"Amen, amen, I tell you, everyone who commits sin is a slave of sin.[i] 35
The slave does not remain in the household forever; the son remains forever. 36 If therefore the Son makes you free, you will truly be free.
37 I know that you are Abraham's offspring; yet you seek to kill me, because my word finds no room in you. 38 I speak of what I have seen with the Father; and you, then, do what you have heard from the father."[j] 39 They answered him, "Our father is Abraham." Jesus says to them, "If you are children of Abraham, do the works of Abraham.[k] 40 Yet now you are trying to kill me, a man who told you the truth that I heard from God. Abraham did nothing like that. 41 You are doing the works of your father." They said to him, "We were not born of sexual immorality. We have one Father, God himself." 42 Jesus said to them, "If God were your Father, you would love me, for I came out from God and have arrived here. I have not come on my own; he sent me.
43 Why is my language not clear to you? It is because you are unable to listen to my message. 44 You come from your father the devil, and you are set on doing what your father desires. From the beginning he was a murderer, and he has not stood in the truth, for truth is not in him. When he speaks a lie, he is speaking out of his own nature, for he is a liar and the father of lies.[l] 45 But because I speak the truth, you do not believe me. 46 Which of you convicts me of sin? If I speak the truth, why do you not believe me? 47 Whoever is of God hears the words of God. The reason you do not hear is that you are not of God."

48 “Are we not right,” the Jews replied, “when we say you are a Samaritan and demon-possessed?” 49 Jesus answered, “I do not have a demon; I honor my Father, and you dishonor me. 50 I do not seek my own glory; there is one who seeks it, and he judges. 51 Amen, amen, I tell you, if anyone keeps my word, he will never see death.” 52 The Jews said to him, “Now we know that you have a demon! Abraham died, and so did the prophets; and you say, ‘If anyone keeps my word, he will never taste death.’ 53 Are you greater than our father Abraham, who died? The prophets died too! Who do you make yourself out to be?” 54 Jesus answered, “If I glorify myself, my glory is nothing. It is my Father who glorifies me, of whom you say, ‘He is our God.’ 55 You have never known him, but I do know him. Were I to say I do not know him, I would be a liar, as you are. But I know him, and his word I keep. 56 Abraham your father was overjoyed at the thought of seeing my day; and he did see it, and rejoiced.” 57 So the Jews said to him, “You are not yet fifty years old, and you have seen Abraham?”[m] 58 Jesus said to them, “Amen, amen, I tell you, before Abraham came to be, I am.”[n] 59 So they picked up stones to throw at him; but Jesus hid himself and went out of the temple.

Notes

- a (8:5) Lev 20:10 and Deut 22:22 prescribe death for both the man and the woman; Deut 22:23–24 specifies stoning for a betrothed woman and the man.
- b (8:12) I am the light of the world: the second of the “I am” sayings with a predicate (see the note on 6:20). Lamps were lit in the temple’s Court of the Women during the festival of Booths.
- c (8:15) According to the flesh: that is, by human standards.
- d (8:17) Compare Deut 17:6; 19:15.
- e (8:20) The treasury: probably the area of the Court of the Women where the offering chests stood (compare Mark 12:41).
- f (8:24) That I am he: literally “that I am” (Greek egō eimi), used absolutely; compare Isa 43:10 (Greek Old Testament), “that you may know and believe … that I am.” See the note on 6:20; also 8:28, 58; 13:19.
- g (8:25) The Greek of Jesus’ answer (tēn archēn ho ti kai lalō hymin) is notoriously difficult. Other possible renderings include “Why do I speak to you at all?” and “I am from the beginning what I am telling you.” P66 (as reported) adds “I told you” at the beginning.
- h (8:33) Offspring: literally “seed.”
- i (8:34) Of sin: Codex Bezae and a few other witnesses omit these words.

- j (8:38) From the father: many later manuscripts read “from your father,” which makes clear that the devil is meant (8:44); others read “I speak of what I have seen with my Father.” Without the pronoun, the sentence may also be a command: “and you, then, do what you have heard from the Father.”
- k (8:39) If you are … do: some manuscripts read “If you were … you would do.”
- l (8:44) Father of lies: or “the father of the liar,” or “a liar, and so was his father”; the Greek is ambiguous.
- m (8:57) Seen Abraham: P75, Sinaiticus (first hand) and a few other witnesses are reported to read “and Abraham has seen you?”
- n (8:58) I am: Greek egō eimi, used absolutely, without a predicate. Contrasted with Abraham’s “coming to be,” the phrase claims an existence before Abraham and recalls God’s self-naming in Exod 3:14 (“I am who I am”; the Greek Old Testament has egō eimi ho ōn) and Isa 43:10–13. The response in 8:59 shows that the hearers took it as blasphemy. See the note on 6:20.

Chapter 9

1 As he went along, he saw a man blind from his birth. 2 His disciples asked him, “Rabbi, whose sin caused him to be born blind, this man’s or his parents’?” 3 Jesus answered, “Neither he nor his parents sinned;
it happened so that the works of God might be put on display in him.
4 We[a] have to do the work of the one who sent me while it is still day.
Night is coming, and then no one can work. 5 While I am in the world, I am the world’s light.” 6 Having said this, he spat on the ground, made some mud with the spit, and put the mud on the man’s eyes, 7 and told him, “Go and wash in the pool of Siloam” (a name that means “Sent”).[b] So the man went off and washed, and came back able to see.
8 His neighbors, and those who had formerly seen him as a beggar, began saying, “Is this not the fellow who used to sit and beg?” 9 Some said, “It is he”; others said, “No, but he resembles him.” He kept saying, “I am the man.” 10 “How then,” they asked him, “did your eyes come to be opened?” 11 He replied, “That man they call Jesus made some mud and rubbed it on my eyes and said to me, ‘Off to Siloam, and wash.’ I went off and washed, and my sight came back.” 12 “Where is he?” they asked him. He says, “I do not know.” 13 They bring the man who had once been blind to the Pharisees. 14 Now it was a Sabbath on the day Jesus made the mud and opened his eyes. 15 So the Pharisees also asked him how he came to see. He told them, “He put mud on my eyes. I washed, and now I see.” 16 Some of the Pharisees said, “This man does not come from God, because he does not keep the Sabbath.” Others asked, “How could a sinner do such signs?” So they were divided. 17 So they turned to the blind man again: “Since he opened your eyes, what is your opinion of him?” He said, “He is a prophet.” 18 The Jews did not believe that the man had been blind and then received his sight, until they sent for his parents, 19 and asked them, “Is this your son? Do you say he was born blind? Then how can he see now?” 20 His parents answered, “We know this is our son, and we know he was born blind. 21 But how he can see now, or who it was that opened his eyes, we do not know. He is old enough; put your questions to him. He will speak about himself.” 22 His parents said this because they were afraid of the Jews; for the Jews had already agreed that anyone who confessed him as Messiah would be put out of the synagogue.[c] 23 That is why his parents said, “He is of age; question him.”

24 So they summoned once more the man who had been blind and said, “Give glory to God![d] This man, we know, is a sinner.” 25 He answered, “Whether he is a sinner, I cannot say. One thing I do know: I was blind, and now I see.” 26 They said to him, “What did he do to you?
How did he open your eyes?” 27 He replied, “I already told you, and you did not listen. Why do you want to hear it all over again? Do you also want to become his disciples?” 28 They ridiculed him and said, “You are his disciple! We are disciples of Moses. 29 We know that God spoke to Moses, but we do not know where this man comes from.” 30 “Well, here is an astonishing thing!” the man replied. “You have no idea where he comes from, and yet he has opened my eyes. 31 We know God does not hear sinners; rather, if anyone is God-fearing and does what God wills, him God hears. 32 Never since the beginning of time has anyone heard of someone opening the eyes of a person born blind. 33 If this man were not from God, he could do nothing at all.” 34 They answered him, “You were born steeped in sin, and you would teach us?” And they threw him out.

35 Jesus heard that they had thrown him out, and when he found him he said, “Do you believe in the Son of Man?”[e] 36 He answered, “And who is he, sir, that I may believe in him?” 37 “You have seen him,” Jesus said to him. “He is the very one who is talking with you.” 38 He said, “Lord, I believe,” and he worshiped him.[f] 39 And Jesus said, “I came into this world for judgment: that the sightless might see, and that those with sight might be made blind.” 40 Some Pharisees who were near him heard this and asked him, “We are not blind as well, are we?” 41 Jesus said to them, “If you were blind, you would have no sin.
But now that you say, ‘We see,’ your sin remains.”

Notes

- a (9:4) We: so the earliest manuscripts and the Westcott–Hort text; many later manuscripts read “I.” Some early witnesses also read “the one who sent us.”
- b (9:7) Siloam: from Hebrew Shiloach, “sending” (Isa 8:6), the pool at the south end of the City of David, fed by Hezekiah’s tunnel from the Gihon spring. John interprets the name as “Sent,” pointing to Jesus as the one sent by the Father.
- c (9:22) Put out of the synagogue: Greek aposynagōgos, excluded from the synagogue community (also 12:42; 16:2).
- d (9:24) Give glory to God: a solemn charge to tell the truth (compare Josh 7:19).
- e (9:35) The Son of Man: so P66, P75, Sinaiticus, Vaticanus (as reported) and the Westcott–Hort text; many later manuscripts read “the Son of God.”
- f (9:38) P75, Sinaiticus (first hand) and a few other witnesses are reported to omit 9:38 and the opening words of 9:39 (“Jesus said”).

Chapter 10

1 “Amen, amen, I tell you, whoever does not go into the sheepfold through the gate but climbs in some other way, that man is a thief and a bandit. 2 But the one who goes in through the gate is shepherd of the sheep. 3 For him the gatekeeper opens, and the sheep hear his voice; he calls his own sheep by name and leads them out. 4 When he has brought out all his own, he walks on ahead of them, and the sheep follow him, because they know his voice. 5 A stranger they will never follow; they will flee from him, because they do not know the voice of strangers.” 6 This was the figure of speech[a] Jesus used with them, but what he was telling them they did not understand.
7 So Jesus spoke again: “Amen, amen, I tell you, I am the gate[b] for the sheep. 8 All who came ahead of me are thieves and robbers; but the sheep paid them no heed. 9 I am the gate. If anyone enters through me, he will be saved, and will go in and go out and find pasture. 10 The thief arrives only to steal, to kill, and to destroy. I came so that they might have life, a full and overflowing life.

11 "I am the good shepherd.[c] The good shepherd lays down his life for the sheep. 12 The hired hand, who is no shepherd and does not own the sheep, sees the wolf coming, abandons the sheep, and runs off; and the wolf snatches them and scatters the flock. 13 He runs because he works for wages and the sheep are no concern of his. 14 I am the good shepherd. I know my own, and my own know me, 15 just as the Father knows me and I know the Father; and I lay down my life for the sheep. 16 Other sheep too I have, which are not of this fold. These also I must lead, and they will listen for my voice, and they will become one flock with one shepherd. 17 For this reason the Father loves me: because I lay down my life, so that I may take it up again. 18 No one has taken it[d] from me; I lay it down of my own free will. I have authority to lay it down, and I have authority to take it up again. This charge I received from my Father." 19 Once more the Jews were divided over these words. 20 Many of them were saying, "He is demon-possessed and raving. Why pay attention to him?" 21 Others said, "These are not the sayings of someone possessed by a demon. Can a demon open the eyes of the blind?" 22 The festival of Dedication[e] was then being held in Jerusalem; it was the winter season, 23 and Jesus was walking about in the temple, in Solomon's Colonnade.[f] 24 The Jews therefore surrounded him and kept saying, "How long are you going to hold us in suspense?[g] If you are the Messiah, say so openly." 25 Jesus answered them, "I told you, and you do not believe. The works that I do in my Father's name, these testify about me. 26 But you do not believe, because you are not among my sheep. 27 My sheep hear my voice, and I know them, and they come after me. 28 I give them eternal life, and they will never perish, and no one will snatch them out of my hand. 29 What my Father has given me is greater than all things,[h] and nobody can snatch anything out of my Father's hand. 30 I and the Father are one."[i]

31 Again the Jews picked up stones to stone him. 32 Jesus answered, “I have shown you many good works from the Father. For which one of them do you want to stone me?” 33 “We are not stoning you for any good work,” the Jews answered him, “but for blasphemy: you are a man, and you make yourself God.” 34 Jesus answered them, “Is it not written in your Law, ‘I said, you are gods’?[j] 35 If he called them gods to whom the word of God came (and Scripture cannot be set aside), 36 do you say of the one whom the Father consecrated and sent into the world, ‘You are blaspheming,’ because I said, ‘I am God’s Son’?
37 If I am not doing my Father’s works, do not believe me. 38 But if I do them, then even if you do not believe me, believe the works, so that you may know and understand that the Father is in me, and I am in the Father.” 39 Again they tried to seize him, but he slipped out of their hands.
40 He went away again across the Jordan to the place where John had first been baptizing, and he stayed there. 41 Many people came out to him, saying, “John did no sign at all, yet all that John said of this man has proved true.” 42 And many believed in him there.

Notes

- a (10:6) Figure of speech: Greek paroimia, a proverb or riddle, an illustration with a hidden meaning (also 16:25, 29).
- b (10:7) Gate: or “door.” The third of the “I am” sayings with a predicate (see the note on 6:20). P75 and the Sahidic Coptic version are reported to read “I am the shepherd of the sheep.”
- c (10:11) I am the good shepherd: the fourth “I am” saying with a predicate. Good translates Greek kalos, which can also mean “noble” or “model.” Compare Ezek 34; Ps 23.
- d (10:18) Has taken it: Greek ēren, “took,” the reading of the Westcott–Hort text with P45, Sinaiticus (first hand) and Vaticanus (as reported). Most manuscripts read “takes” (airei).
- e (10:22) Dedication: Greek enkainia, Hebrew Hanukkah, the eight-day festival in December commemorating the rededication of the temple by Judas Maccabeus in 164 BC after its profanation by Antiochus IV (1 Macc 4:36–59).
- f (10:23) Solomon’s Colonnade: a covered portico along the east side of the temple court (compare Acts 3:11; 5:12). Solomon is related to Hebrew shalom, “peace.”
- g (10:24) Hold us in suspense: literally “lift up our soul,” perhaps “keep annoying us.”

- h (10:29) What my Father has given me is greater than all things: so the Westcott–Hort text, following Vaticanus (first hand) and some others, with a neuter relative and adjective. Many manuscripts read instead “My Father, who has given them to me, is greater than all.” The manuscript tradition here is complex.
- i (10:30) One: Greek hen, neuter, “one thing,” not “one person” (masculine heis); unity of action and purpose is in view, which the hearers took as a claim to deity (10:33).
- j (10:34) Ps 82:6.

Chapter 11

1 A certain man was sick, Lazarus[a] of Bethany, the village of Mary[b] and her sister Martha.[c] 2 (This Mary, whose brother Lazarus was ill, was the one who anointed the Lord with perfume and wiped his feet dry with her hair.)[d] 3 The sisters therefore sent a message to him: “Lord, look, your dear friend is ill.” 4 When Jesus heard this, he said, “This illness will not lead to death. It is for the glory of God, so that the Son of God may be glorified through it.” 5 Now Jesus loved Martha and her sister and Lazarus. 6 Yet when he heard that Lazarus was ill, he remained where he was for two more days. 7 Only then did he say to the disciples, “Let us go back to Judea.” 8 “Rabbi,” the disciples say to him, “just now the Jews were wanting to stone you, and are you going back there?” 9 Jesus answered, “Does the day not have twelve hours? A man who walks by day does not stumble, because he sees by the light of this world. 10 But a man who walks by night stumbles, because the light is not in him.” 11 He said this, and then he tells them, “Our friend Lazarus has fallen asleep, but I am going there to wake him.” 12 So the disciples said to him, “Lord, if he has fallen asleep, he will recover.” 13 Jesus, however, had been speaking of his death, while they thought he meant ordinary sleep. 14 So then Jesus told them in plain words, “Lazarus has died, 15 and for your sake I am glad that I was not there, so that you may believe. But let us go to him.” 16 Then Thomas, called the Twin,[e] said to his fellow disciples, “Let us go as well, so that we may die with him.” 17 On his arrival Jesus found that Lazarus had now been four days in the tomb. 18 Bethany was close to Jerusalem, less than two miles[f] away, 19 and many of the Jews had come to Martha and Mary to console them over their brother. 20 As soon as Martha heard that Jesus was coming, she went out to meet him, while Mary stayed seated in the house.

21 Martha said to Jesus, "Lord, had you been here, my brother would not have died. 22 Even now I know that whatever you ask of God, God will grant you." 23 Jesus says to her, "Your brother will rise again." 24 Martha says to him, "I know he will rise again in the resurrection on the last day." 25 Jesus said to her, "I am the resurrection and the life.[g]
The one who believes in me will live, even though he dies; 26 and no one who lives and believes in me will ever die. Do you believe this?" 27 "Yes, Lord," she says to him. "I have believed, and I still believe, that you are the Messiah, God's Son, who was to come into the world." 28 After saying this she went off and called her sister Mary, telling her privately, "The Teacher is here and is asking for you." 29 When Mary heard it, she rose quickly and went to him. 30 Jesus had not yet come into the village; he was still in the place where Martha had gone out to him. 31 The Jews who were comforting Mary in the house saw her stand up quickly and leave. They went after her, thinking that she was headed for the tomb to weep there. 32 When Mary reached the place where Jesus was and saw him, she fell at his feet and said, "Lord, if you had been here, my brother would not have died." 33 When Jesus saw her weeping, and the Jews who had come with her weeping too, he was deeply moved in spirit[h] and greatly troubled, 34 and he said,
"Where have you laid him?" They say to him, "Lord, come and see." 35 Jesus wept. 36 So the Jews said, "See how fond of him he was!" 37 But some of them asked, "He opened the eyes of the blind man. Could he not have kept this man from dying?" 38 Jesus, once more deeply moved within, comes to the tomb. It was a cave, and a stone was lying against it. 39 Jesus says, "Take away the stone." Martha, the dead man's sister, says to him, "Lord, by now there will be a stench; it has been four days." 40 "Did I not tell you," Jesus says to her, "that you would see God's glory if you believed?" 41 So they took away the stone. And Jesus lifted up his eyes and said, "Father, I thank you for having heard me. 42 I knew you hear me at all times; yet I spoke on account of the crowd that stands here, that they may come to believe you sent me." 43 With these words he cried out with a great voice, “Lazarus, here, outside!” 44 The dead man came out with strips of linen wrapped around his hands and feet, and a cloth around his face. Jesus told them, “Untie him and let him go.” 45 So, many of the Jews who had come to visit Mary, and who had watched what he did, put their faith in him. 46 But some of them went off to the Pharisees and told them what Jesus had done. 47 The chief priests and the Pharisees therefore convened the council[i] and said, “What are we doing? Here is this man working many signs. 48 If we let him go on like this, everyone will believe in him, and the Romans will come and take away both our place[j] and our nation.” 49 But one of them, Caiaphas,[k] who was high priest that year, said to them, “You know nothing at all, 50 nor do you consider that it is to your advantage for one man to die on behalf of the people, rather than for the entire nation to be lost.” 51 It was not from himself that he said this; rather, as high priest that year he prophesied that Jesus would die on behalf of the nation, 52 and not for the nation only, but also to gather into one the scattered children of God. 53 From that day, then, their counsel was to put him to death.

54 For this reason Jesus no longer walked about in public among the Jews. He left that place for the country close to the wilderness, to a town called Ephraim,[l] and stayed there with the disciples.
55 Now the Passover of the Jews was near, and many went up from the countryside to Jerusalem before the Passover to purify themselves. 56 They searched for Jesus, and as they stood in the temple they asked one another, “What do you think? Will he not come to the festival at all?” 57 Now the chief priests and the Pharisees had given orders that anyone who knew where he was should report it, so that they might arrest him.

Notes

- a (11:1) Lazarus: a Greek form of Hebrew Eleazar, “God has helped.”
- b (11:1) Mary: Greek Mariam or Maria, from Hebrew Miryam (Miriam), a name of uncertain meaning.
- c (11:1) Martha: Aramaic, “lady” or “mistress.”
- d (11:2) The anointing is narrated in 12:1–8; John refers to it here as already known to his readers.

- e (11:16) Thomas ... the Twin: Thomas is from Aramaic toma, "twin," and Greek Didymos also means "twin."
- f (11:18) Less than two miles: literally "about fifteen stadia," about 1¾ miles (2.8 km).
- g (11:25) I am the resurrection and the life: the fifth "I am" saying with a predicate (see the note on 6:20). P45 and a few other witnesses are reported to omit "and the life."
- h (11:33) Deeply moved in spirit: Greek enebrimēsato, a strong word that elsewhere expresses indignation or stern rebuke (Mark 1:43; 14:5); here perhaps anger at the power of death, or intense distress. So also in 11:38.
- i (11:47) Council: Greek synedrion, the Sanhedrin, the supreme Jewish council in Jerusalem, presided over by the high priest.
- j (11:48) Our place: probably the temple (compare Acts 6:13–14), or perhaps Jerusalem or the council's position.
- k (11:49) Caiaphas: Joseph Caiaphas, high priest AD 18–36, son-in-law of Annas (18:13). That year means "in that fateful year."
- l (11:54) Ephraim: perhaps et-Taiyibeh, about 12 miles (19 km) northeast of Jerusalem. The name means "doubly fruitful" (Gen 41:52).

Chapter 12

1 Six days before the Passover Jesus came to Bethany, where Lazarus was, whom Jesus had raised from the dead. 2 There they gave a dinner for him. Martha was serving, and Lazarus was one of those reclining at table with him. 3 Then Mary took a pound[a] of very costly perfume, pure nard,[b] anointed Jesus' feet, and wiped his feet with her hair; and the house was filled with the fragrance of the perfume. 4 But Judas Iscariot, one of his disciples, who was about to betray him, says, 5
"Why was this ointment not sold for three hundred days' wages,[c] and the proceeds given to the poor?" 6 He said this not because he cared about the poor, but because he was a thief; he kept the money bag and used to help himself to what was put in it. 7 So Jesus said, "Let her alone; she was to keep it for the day of my burial.[d] 8 For you always have the poor with you, but you do not always have me." 9 Then a large crowd of the Jews found out he was there, and they came, not for Jesus' sake alone, but to see Lazarus too, whom he had raised from the dead. 10 The chief priests, however, resolved to kill Lazarus also, 11 because many of the Jews were leaving them for his sake and putting their faith in Jesus.

12 On the following day the large crowd who had come up for the feast, hearing that Jesus was on his way into Jerusalem, 13 So they took branches of palm trees and went out to meet him, shouting, "Hosanna![e] Blessed is he who comes in the name of the Lord,[f] even the King of Israel!" 14 Jesus came upon a young donkey and seated himself on it, just as Scripture says, 15 "Fear not, daughter of Zion; look, your king comes, sitting on the colt of a donkey."[g] 16 His disciples did not grasp this at first. Only after Jesus had been glorified did they remember that these things were written about him, and that these were the things people had done to him. 17 The crowd that had been with him when he called Lazarus out of the tomb and raised him from the dead kept bearing witness. 18 That was the reason the crowd went to meet him: they had heard that he had performed this sign. 19 So the Pharisees said to one another, "You see, you are getting nowhere.
Look, the world has gone after him!" 20 Among those who went up to worship at the festival were some Greeks. 21 They approached Philip, who was from Bethsaida in Galilee, and made a request of him: "Sir, we wish to see Jesus." 22 Philip goes and tells Andrew; Andrew and Philip go and tell Jesus. 23 And Jesus answers them, "The hour has come for the Son of Man to be glorified.
24 Amen, amen, I tell you, unless a grain of wheat falls into the earth and dies, it remains a single grain; but if it dies, it bears much fruit.
25 The one who loves his life is losing it, and the one who hates his life in this world will guard it to life eternal. 26 Whoever serves me must follow me, and my servant will be wherever I am. The Father will honor anyone who serves me.
27 "Now my soul is in turmoil. What am I to say? 'Father, rescue me from this hour'? No, this is the very reason I came to this hour. 28 Father, bring glory to your name." Then a voice came from heaven:
"I have glorified it, and I will glorify it again." 29 The crowd standing there heard it and said it had thundered. Others said, "An angel has spoken to him." 30 Jesus replied, "It was not on my account that this voice came, but on yours. 31 Now is the judgment of this world; now the ruler of this world will be driven out. 32 And I, when I am lifted up from the earth, will draw all people to myself."[h] 33 He said this to indicate by what kind of death he was going to die. 34 The crowd answered him, "We have heard out of the Law that the Messiah abides forever.[i] So how do you say the Son of Man has to be lifted up? Who is he, this Son of Man?" 35 Jesus then said to them, "For only a short time more the light is with you. Keep walking as long as you have the light, lest darkness seize you; the one who walks in darkness has no idea where he goes. 36 Believe in the light while you have it, so that you may become people of the light." When Jesus had said these things, he left and hid from them.

37 But for all the signs he had done in their sight, they did not believe in him, 38 This happened so that the word spoken by the prophet Isaiah would be fulfilled: "Lord, who has believed what we reported? To whom has the Lord's mighty arm been revealed?"[j] 39 That is why they could not believe; for again Isaiah said, 40 "He has made their eyes blind and their heart hard, lest they see with the eyes and grasp with the heart and turn back, and I heal them."[k] 41 Isaiah said these things because[l] he saw his glory and spoke about him. 42 Even so, many of the leaders believed in him. But because of the Pharisees they would not admit it openly, for fear of being expelled from the synagogue, 43 They loved the glory people give more than the glory God gives.

44 Then Jesus cried out and said, "Whoever believes in me believes not in me but in the one who sent me. 45 And whoever sees me sees the one who sent me. 46 I, a light, have come into the world, that whoever believes in me may not be left in the dark. 47 If someone hears my sayings and fails to keep them, it is not I who judge him. I came not to condemn the world but to save it. 48 Whoever sets me aside and will not accept my sayings has one who judges him: the very word I have spoken will be his judge on the last day. 49 I did not speak from myself; the Father who sent me gave me his own command about what I should say and how I should speak. 50 And I know that his command is life eternal. So the things I speak, I speak as the Father has said them to me."

Notes

- a (12:3) A pound: literally "a litra," the Roman pound (Latin libra), about 12 ounces (327 g).

- b (12:3) Pure nard: Greek nardos pistikē, an aromatic oil made from a plant of the Himalayas; the meaning of pistikē is uncertain (perhaps "genuine" or a place name).
- c (12:5) Three hundred days' wages: literally "three hundred denarii," about a year's wages for a laborer. See the note on 6:7.
- d (12:7) She was to keep it for the day of my burial: the Greek is difficult. Many later manuscripts read "she has kept it for the day of my burial." Others take it as "Let her keep it for the day of my burial."
- e (12:13) Hosanna: a Greek transliteration of Hebrew hoshiah na, "Save, we pray!" (Ps 118:25), which had become a shout of praise.
- f (12:13) Ps 118:26. In the Hebrew text, "the Lord" is Yahweh.
- g (12:15) Zech 9:9, abbreviated; do not be afraid may come from Isa 40:9 or Zeph 3:16. Zion is the hill of Jerusalem, and by extension the city and its people.
- h (12:32) All people: P66 (as reported), Sinaiticus (first hand), Codex Bezae and the Latin versions read "all things."
- i (12:34) Compare Ps 89:36–37; Isa 9:7; Ezek 37:25; Dan 7:14. The Law here means the Scriptures generally.
- j (12:38) Isa 53:1, following the Greek Old Testament, which adds the opening "Lord" (addressed to God). In the Hebrew text, "the arm of the Lord" is "the arm of Yahweh."
- k (12:40) Isa 6:10, in a form that differs from both the Hebrew and the Greek Old Testament.
- l (12:41) Because: so the Westcott–Hort text with the earliest manuscripts; many later manuscripts read "when." Isaiah's vision of the Lord's glory is in Isa 6:1–5.

Chapter 13

1 It was before the feast of the Passover, and Jesus knew that his hour had come to pass out of this world to the Father. He had loved his own who were in the world, and he loved them to the end.[a] 2 During supper,[b] when the devil had already planted in the heart of Judas son of Simon Iscariot the resolve to hand him over, 3 Jesus, knowing that the Father had put everything into his hands, and that he had come out from God and was going back to God, 4 gets up from the supper, lays aside his outer garments, takes a towel, and ties it around his waist. 5 After that, he poured water into a basin and began washing the disciples' feet, drying them with the towel wrapped around his waist. 6 So he comes to Simon Peter, who says to him, "Lord, you, washing my feet?" 7 Jesus replied, "What I do, you do not understand yet; you will come to know it after these things." 8 Peter says to him, “Never shall you wash my feet, not ever!” Jesus answered him, “Unless I wash you, you have no share with me.” 9 Simon Peter says to him, “Lord, then not only my feet, but my hands and my head as well!” 10 Jesus says to him, “One who has bathed needs only to wash his feet;[c] he is clean all over. And you are clean, though not all of you.” 11 He knew his betrayer; that is why he said, “You are not all clean.” 12 After he had washed their feet, put his outer clothing back on, and returned to his place, he asked them, “Do you understand what I have just done to you? 13 You call me ‘the Teacher’ and ‘the Lord,’ and you are right to say it, for so I am. 14 If I then, the Lord and the Teacher, have washed your feet, you too are bound to wash one another’s feet.

15 I have set you a pattern, so that you also may do as I have done for you. 16 Amen, amen, I tell you, a slave is not above his master, nor is a messenger[d] above the one who sent him. 17 Now that you know these things, blessed are you if you act on them. 18 I am not speaking of all of you; I know whom I have chosen. But the Scripture must be fulfilled: ‘The one who eats my bread has raised his heel against me.’[e] 19 I tell you this now, ahead of the event, that once it takes place you may believe that I am.[f] 20 Amen, amen, I tell you, whoever welcomes anyone I send welcomes me, and whoever welcomes me welcomes
the one who sent me.”
21 After saying this, Jesus was troubled in spirit, and he testified, “Amen, amen, I tell you, one of you will betray me.” 22 The disciples looked at one another, at a loss to know whom he meant. 23 There was reclining close to Jesus[g] one of his disciples, whom Jesus loved.[h] 24 So Simon Peter motions to him to ask Jesus whom he was speaking of. 25 Leaning back, then, against Jesus’ chest, that disciple says to him, “Lord, who is it?” 26 Jesus replied, “I will dip a piece of bread, and whoever receives it is the one.” Then he dipped the bread and handed it to Judas, the son of Simon Iscariot. 27 After the morsel, Satan[i] then entered into him. So Jesus says to him, “What you are doing, do quickly.” 28 But none of those at table knew why he had said this to him. 29 Since Judas had charge of the money bag, some supposed that Jesus was telling him, “Buy what we need for the feast,” or that he should give something to the poor. 30 So, after receiving the morsel, he went out at once. And it was night.

31 When he had gone out, Jesus says, "Now has the Son of Man been glorified, and God has been glorified in him. 32 And God[j] will glorify him in himself, and without delay. 33 Little children, only a little while more am I with you. You will seek me; and what I said to the Jews I say now to you as well: 'Where I go, you are unable to come.' 34 I am giving you a new commandment: love one another. As I have loved you, so you are to love one another. 35 By this everyone will recognize that you are my disciples: if you have love among yourselves." 36 Simon Peter says to him, "Lord, where are you going?" Jesus answered, "Where I am going you cannot follow me now, but you will follow later." 37 Peter says to him, "Lord, why can I not follow you now? I will lay down my life for you." 38 Jesus answered, "You will give up your life for me? Truly, truly, I say to you, before the rooster crows, you will have denied me three times.

Notes

- a (13:1) To the end: or "to the uttermost," "completely"; Greek eis telos can mean both.
- b (13:2) During supper: so the Westcott–Hort text with Sinaiticus (first hand) and Vaticanus (present participle, as reported); many manuscripts read "when supper was over."
- c (13:10) Needs only to wash his feet: the words "except the feet" (here "only … his feet") are bracketed in the Westcott–Hort text; Sinaiticus, some Latin witnesses and some early writers lack them, giving "One who has bathed has no need to wash."
- d (13:16) Messenger: Greek apostolos, "one who is sent," the word usually rendered "apostle."
- e (13:18) Ps 41:9 (40:10 Greek). To raise one's heel against someone is to turn on him in treachery.
- f (13:19) That I am: Greek egō eimi, perhaps "that I am he"; see the notes on 6:20 and 8:58.
- g (13:23) Close to Jesus: literally "in the bosom of Jesus." At a formal meal the guests reclined on their left side, so that the head of one lay near the chest of the one to his left. Compare 1:18.
- h (13:23) Whom Jesus loved: the first mention of the "beloved disciple," who appears again at 19:26; 20:2; 21:7, 20, and is named as the source of the Gospel at 21:24. He is unnamed in the Gospel; second-century tradition identified him with John the son of Zebedee.

- i (13:27) Satan: from Hebrew satan, “adversary, accuser.”
- j (13:32) God: many manuscripts, followed by most modern editions, begin the verse “If God has been glorified in him, God will also …”; the clause is absent from P66, Sinaiticus (first hand), Vaticanus, Ephraemi (first hand) and Bezae (as reported), and from the Westcott–Hort text.

Chapter 14

1 “Do not let your hearts be troubled. You believe in God; believe also in me.[a] 2 My Father’s house has many dwelling places.[b] Were it otherwise, would I have said to you that I go to prepare you a place?
[c] 3 And when I have gone and prepared a place for you, I will come back and bring you to myself, so that you may be where I am. 4 And where I am going, you know the way.”[d] 5 Thomas says to him, “Lord, we have no idea where you are going; how can we know the way?” 6 Jesus says to him, “I am the way, and the truth, and the life.[e] Nobody comes to the Father except through me. 7 If you had known me, you would have known my Father also.[f] From now on you know him and have seen him.”
8 Philip says to him, “Lord, show us the Father, and that will be enough for us.” 9 Jesus says to him, “Have I been among you all this time, Philip, and still you have not come to know me? Anyone who has seen me has seen the Father. How is it that you say, ‘Show us the Father’? 10 Do you not believe that I am in the Father and the Father in me? The sayings I speak to you are not from myself; the Father, who abides in me, is doing his own works. 11 Take my word for it that I am in the Father and the Father in me; or else believe on the strength of the works themselves. 12 Truly, truly, I say to you, anyone who believes in me will do the works I do, and will do even greater ones, because I am going to the Father. 13 Whatever you ask in my name I will do, so that the Father may be glorified in the Son. 14 If you ask me[g] for anything in my name, I will do it.
15 “Love me, and you will keep the commands that are mine. 16 And I will ask the Father, and he will give you another Advocate,[h] to be with you forever: 17 the Spirit of truth. The world is unable to receive him, for it does not behold him or recognize him; but you recognize him, for he abides beside you and is[i] in you. 18 I will not leave you orphans;

I am coming to you. 19 Yet a little while, and the world beholds me no more; but you behold me. Because I live, you will live as well. 20 On that day you will know that I am in my Father, and you in me, and I in you. 21 Whoever holds my commands and keeps them is the one who loves me. My Father will love the one who loves me, and I will love him and make myself plain to him." 22 Judas (not Iscariot)[j] says to him, "Lord, what has happened, that you are going to show yourself to us and not to the world?" 23 Jesus answered him, "If anyone loves me, he will keep my word, and my Father will love him, and we will come to him and make our dwelling with him. 24 The one without love for me does not keep my sayings; and the word you are hearing is not my own, but belongs to the Father who sent me.
25 "All this I have told you while still remaining with you. 26 But the Advocate, the Holy Spirit, whom the Father will send in my name, he will teach you everything and remind you of everything I have said to you. 27 Peace I leave you; my peace I give you; I give it not in the way the world gives. Let your hearts not be shaken, nor be fearful. 28 You heard what I said to you: 'I go away, and I come to you.'
Had you loved me, you would have been glad that I go to the Father, for the Father is greater than I. 29 And now I have told you before it happens, so that when it happens you may believe. 30 I will not say much more to you, because the ruler of this world is approaching. He has no power over me;[k] 31 but so that the world may know that I love the Father, I do just as the Father has commanded me. Rise, let us go from here.[l]

Notes

- a (14:1) You believe in God; believe also in me: both verbs can be either statements or commands: "Believe in God; believe also in me," or "You believe in God, and you believe in me."
- b (14:2) Dwelling places: Greek monai, "places to stay" (the noun from menō, "remain, abide," as in 14:23); the older rendering "mansions" is from the Latin mansiones.
- c (14:2) Would I have told you ...?: or "If it were not so, I would have told you, for I am going to make ready a place for you." The punctuation and the presence of "for" (in many manuscripts) are uncertain.
- d (14:4) You know the way: many manuscripts read, in effect, "You know where I am going, and you know the way."

- e (14:6) I am the way, and the truth, and the life: the sixth "I am" saying with a predicate (see the note on 6:20).
- f (14:7) You would have known my Father also: P66, Sinaiticus and Bezae (as reported) read, in effect, "If you have come to know me, you will also know my Father."
- g (14:14) Me: so the Westcott–Hort text (in brackets) with P66, Sinaiticus and Vaticanus (as reported); many manuscripts lack "me."
- h (14:16) Advocate: Greek paraklētos, "one called alongside" to help, used of a legal advocate or counselor; also rendered "Helper," "Counselor" or "Comforter," or transliterated "Paraclete." So in 14:26; 15:26; 16:7; and of Jesus in 1 John 2:1.
- i (14:17) Is: so the Westcott–Hort text with P66 (first hand), Vaticanus and Bezae (first hand, as reported); many manuscripts read "will be."
- j (14:22) Judas (not Iscariot): probably the "Judas son of James" of Luke 6:16 and Acts 1:13, perhaps the same as Thaddaeus (Mark 3:18). Judas is the Greek form of Judah, "praised."
- k (14:30) He has no hold on me: literally "in me he has nothing."
- l (14:31) Rise, let us go from here: the discourse continues through chapters 15–17 before they leave in 18:1; many scholars see here a sign that the farewell discourses were composed in stages.

Chapter 15

1 "I am the true vine,[a] and the vinedresser is my Father. 2 Every branch in me that yields no fruit he cuts away, and every branch that yields fruit he prunes clean,[b] that it may yield fruit more abundantly. 3 Already you are clean, by reason of the word I have spoken to you.
4 Abide in me, and I in you. A branch has no power to yield fruit by itself unless it abides in the vine, and no more have you unless you abide in me. 5 I am the vine; you are the branches. The one abiding in me, with me abiding in him, is the one who yields fruit in plenty; for apart from me you are able to do nothing. 6 If anyone does not abide in me, he is thrown out like the branch and withers; and such branches are gathered and tossed into the fire, and they burn. 7 If you abide in me, and my sayings abide in you, ask for whatever you will, and it shall come about for you. 8 Herein is my Father glorified: that you yield fruit in plenty and so prove to be[c] my disciples. 9 Just as the Father loved me, so I too loved you. Abide in my love. 10 If you keep my commands, you will abide in my love, as I have kept the commands of my Father and abide in his love. 11 I have said all this to you so that my joy may be within you, and your joy brought to fullness.

12 “This is the command that is mine: love one another as I loved you.
13 No one has love greater than this, that a person lay down his life on behalf of his friends. 14 You are friends of mine if you do the things I command you. 15 I no longer call you slaves, since a slave is not let into his master’s plans. You I have called friends, for everything I heard from my Father I have shared with you. 16 It was not you who chose me; I chose you, and I appointed you to go out and yield fruit, fruit that will abide, so that the Father may grant you whatever you ask him in my name. 17 This I command you: love one another.
18 “If the world hates you, know that it hated me before it hated you.
19 Were you of the world, the world would be fond of what is its own. But because you are not of the world, but I chose you out from the world, for this reason the world hates you. 20 Call to mind the word I spoke to you: ‘A slave is not above his master.’[d] Since they persecuted me, they will persecute you also; since they kept my word, they will keep yours as well.[e] 21 But all these things they will do to you for my name’s sake, because the one who sent me they do not know. 22 Had I not come and spoken to them, they would not have sin; but as things are, they have no excuse to cover their sin. 23 Whoever hates me hates my Father as well. 24 If I had not done among them works that no one else had done, they would not be guilty of sin. But now they have seen those works, and they have hated both me and my Father. 25 But this happened to fulfill what is written in their Law: ‘They hated me for no reason.’[f]
26 “When the Advocate[g] comes, whom I will send you from the Father, the Spirit of truth who goes forth from the Father, he will bear witness about me; 27 and you too are witnesses, for you have been with me from the start.

Notes

- a (15:1) I am the true vine: the seventh “I am” saying with a predicate (see the note on 6:20). In the Old Testament Israel is God’s vine or vineyard (Ps 80:8–16; Isa 5:1–7; Jer 2:21).

- b (15:2) Prunes clean: Greek kathairei, “cleanses,” a wordplay with katharoi, “clean,” in 15:3.
- c (15:8) Prove to be: so the Westcott–Hort text (subjunctive, as reported from Vaticanus and Bezae); many manuscripts read “you will be.”
- d (15:20) See 13:16.
- e (15:20) Since … since: or “If … if.” The second clause may be ironic.
- f (15:25) Ps 35:19; 69:4 (34:19; 68:5 Greek). Law here means the Scriptures generally.
- g (15:26) Advocate: Greek paraklētos; see the note on 14:16.

Chapter 16

1 “All this I have said to you so that you will not be made to stumble.[a] 2 They will put you out of the synagogues. Indeed, a time is coming when anyone who kills you will suppose he is offering God an act of worship. 3 And they will do these things because they have known neither the Father nor me. 4 But I have told you these things so that, when their hour arrives, you may remember that I told you of them. I did not speak of this to you at the beginning, because I was with you.
5 “But now I go to him who sent me, and none of you asks me, ‘Where are you going?’ 6 Rather, sorrow has filled your hearts because I have spoken of these things. 7 But it is the truth I tell you: it is to your advantage that I depart. Unless I depart, the Advocate will not come to you; if I go, though, I will send him to you. 8 And when he comes, he will expose the world’s error[b] concerning sin and righteousness and judgment: 9 concerning sin, because they do not believe in me; 10 concerning righteousness, because I go to the Father and you see me no longer; 11 concerning judgment, because the ruler of this world has been judged.
12 “I have yet many things to say to you, but you cannot bear them now. 13 When he comes, the Spirit of truth, he will guide you into all the truth;[c] for he will not speak from himself, but will speak whatever he hears, and he will announce to you the things that are coming.
14 He will bring glory to me, because he will take what is mine and make it known to you. 15 Everything the Father has belongs to me.
That is why I said that he takes what is mine and makes it known to you.

16 “A little while, and you no longer see me; and again a little while, and you will see me.” 17 At this, some of his disciples began to say to each other, “Whatever is this he says to us, ‘A little while, and you do not see me, and again a little while, and you will see me,’ and, ‘Because I am going to the Father’?” 18 So they kept asking, “What is this ‘little while’ he speaks of? We do not know what he means.” 19 Jesus knew they wanted to ask him something, so he said to them, “Are you discussing with each other what I meant when I said, ‘In a little while you will not see me, and then in a little while you will see me’? 20 Truly, truly, I say to you, you will cry and mourn while the world celebrates. You will be sorrowful, but your sorrow will become joy. 21 A woman in labor suffers, because her hour has arrived. But when she has delivered the child, she no longer remembers the pain, in her joy that a human being has been born into the world. 22 So you also now have grief; but I will see you again, and your hearts will rejoice, and your joy no one takes from you. 23 On that day you will not ask me anything. Truly, truly, I say to you, whatever you ask the Father in my name, he will give you.[d] 24 Until now you have asked nothing in my name. Ask, and you will receive, so that your joy may be complete.
25 “I have spoken these things to you in figures of speech.[e] An hour is coming when I will no longer speak to you in figures, but will tell you plainly about the Father. 26 On that day you will ask in my name; and I do not say to you that I will ask the Father on your behalf, 27 for the Father himself loves you, because you have loved me and have believed that I came from the Father.[f] 28 From the Father I came out, and I have come into the world; now once more I leave the world and make my way to the Father.” 29 His disciples say, “There! Now you are speaking plainly and using no figure of speech. 30 Now we can see that you know everything and do not need anyone to ask you questions. Because of this, we believe that you came from God.” 31 Jesus answered them, “Do you believe now?[g] 32 See, the hour is coming, and has now come, for you to be scattered each to his own, leaving me by myself. And yet I am not by myself, for the Father is with me. 33 I have told you these things so that in me you may have peace. In the world you have distress; but take courage: I have conquered the world."

Notes

- a (16:1) Made to stumble: Greek skandalizō, to cause to fall away from faith.
- b (16:8) Expose the world's error: Greek elenchō, "convict, prove wrong, bring to light."
- c (16:13) Into all the truth: some manuscripts, including Sinaiticus and Bezae (as reported), read "in all the truth."
- d (16:23) He will give it to you in my name: so the Westcott–Hort text with P5, Sinaiticus, Vaticanus and Ephraemi (as reported); many manuscripts read "whatever you ask the Father in my name, he will give you."
- e (16:25) Figures of speech: Greek paroimia, a veiled or enigmatic saying; so in 10:6 and 16:29.
- f (16:27) From the Father: so the Westcott–Hort text with Vaticanus and Bezae (as reported, "from the Father," para tou patros); many manuscripts read "from God."
- g (16:31) Do you believe now?: or "Now you believe!"

Chapter 17

1 After Jesus said these things, he looked up to heaven and said, "Father, the time has come. Give glory to your Son, so that your Son may give glory to you, 2 since you gave him authority over all flesh, so that he might give eternal life to all whom you have given him.[a] 3 And eternal life is this: that they know you, the only true God, and the one you sent, Jesus Christ. 4 On the earth I have brought you glory, finishing the task you assigned me. 5 So now, Father, glorify me at your own side with the glory I had at your side before the world existed.
6 "To those you gave me from the world I have revealed your name.[b] They belonged to you, and you entrusted them to me, and they have held fast to your word. 7 They know now that all you have given me comes from you; 8 for the sayings you gave me I have passed on to them, and they took them in and knew in truth that I came forth from you, and they believed that you sent me. 9 It is for them that I make my request. I do not make it for the world, but for those you have given me, because they are yours. 10 All that I have is yours, and all that you have is mine. Through them I have been glorified. 11 I am in the world no longer, but they remain in the world, while I come to you. Holy Father, guard them by your name, the name you have given me,[c] that they may be one as we are one. 12 When I was with them, I protected them by your name, the name you gave me. I watched over them, and not one was lost except the one headed for destruction,[d] so that Scripture would be fulfilled. 13 But now I am coming to you, and I speak these things while in the world, so that they may have my joy brought to fullness within themselves. 14 I have given them your word, and the world hated them, since they are not of the world, as I am not of the world. 15 My request is not that you take them out of the world, but that you keep them from the evil one.[e] 16 They are not of the world, as I am not of the world. 17 Make them holy[f] by the truth; your word is truth. 18 Just as you sent me into the world, I in turn have sent them into the world. 19 I set myself apart for their sake, so that they also may be truly set apart.

20 "Nor do I make request for these alone, but also for those who believe in me through their word, 21 that all may be one; that as you, Father, are in me and I in you, they also may be in us,[g] so that the world may believe that you sent me. 22 The glory that you have given me I have given to them, that they may be one as we are one, 23 I in them and you in me, that they may be brought to perfect oneness, so that the world may come to know that you sent me and loved them as you loved me. 24 Father, as for what you have given me,[h] I desire that where I am, they also may be with me, to behold my glory, which you have given me because you loved me before the foundation of the world. 25 Father, you who are righteous: though the world did not know you, I knew you, and these men have come to know that it was you who sent me. 26 To them I revealed your name, and I will go on revealing it, so that the love you had for me may be within them, and I myself within them."

Notes

- a (17:2) All whom you have given him: literally "all that you have given him," a neuter singular collective, as also in 17:24.
- b (17:6) I have revealed your name: literally "I manifested your name," that is, revealed who God is.

- c (17:11) The name you have given me: so the Westcott–Hort text with the earliest manuscripts (the relative pronoun agreeing with "name"); some later manuscripts read "those whom you have given me." So also in 17:12.
- d (17:12) The son of destruction: a Semitic idiom for one destined to perish (compare 2 Thess 2:3), here Judas. The Scripture is probably Ps 41:9, quoted in 13:18.
- e (17:15) From the evil one: or "from evil."
- f (17:17) Make them holy: Greek hagiason, "sanctify, consecrate, set apart for God"; the same verb is rendered "consecrate" in 17:19.
- g (17:21) In us: many manuscripts read "one in us."
- h (17:24) What you have given me: see the note on 17:2. Many manuscripts read "those whom you have given me."

Chapter 18

1 After saying these things, Jesus went out with his disciples across the Kidron ravine,[a] where there was a garden, which he and his disciples entered. 2 Judas, who was betraying him, also knew the place, for Jesus had often met there with his disciples. 3 So Judas, having taken the cohort[b] and some officers from the chief priests and from the Pharisees, comes there with lanterns and torches and weapons. 4 Then Jesus, knowing all that was about to befall him, came forward and says to them, "Whom are you seeking?" 5 They answered him, "Jesus the Nazarene." He says to them, "I am he."[c] Judas, who was betraying him, was also standing with them. 6 As soon as he told them, "I am he," they stepped backward and dropped to the ground. 7 Again then he asked them, "Whom are you seeking?" And they said, "Jesus the Nazarene." 8 "I have told you I am he," Jesus replied. "If it is me you want, then allow these to go their way." 9 This was to fulfill the word he had spoken, "Of those you have given me I have not lost one."[d] 10 Simon Peter had a sword; he drew it, struck at the slave of the high priest, and sliced off his right ear. Malchus[e] was the slave's name. 11 So Jesus said to Peter, "Put the sword into its sheath. The cup the Father has given me, shall I not drink it?" 12 Then the cohort and its commander[f] and the officers of the Jews seized Jesus and bound him. 13 They led him first to Annas,[g] for he was father-in-law of Caiaphas, who was high priest that year. 14 It was Caiaphas who had counseled the Jews that it was expedient for one man to die for the people.

15 Simon Peter followed Jesus, along with another disciple. Because this disciple was an acquaintance of the high priest, he went in with Jesus into the high priest's courtyard, 16 but Peter was standing by the door outside. The other disciple, the acquaintance of the high priest, came out, had a word with the doorkeeper, and brought Peter inside. 17
The servant girl at the door then says to Peter, "You are not one of this man's disciples too, are you?" He says, "I am not." 18 The slaves and the officers had lit a charcoal fire, since it was cold, and stood about it warming themselves; and Peter too stood among them, warming himself.
19 The high priest therefore asked Jesus about his disciples and what he taught. 20 Jesus answered him, "I have spoken openly to the world.
I always taught in synagogue and in the temple, where all the Jews come together, and in secret I said nothing. 21 Why do you ask me?
Ask the people who heard what I told them. They know what I said." 22
After he said this, one of the officers who was standing there slapped Jesus and said, "Is this how you respond to the high priest?" 23 Jesus answered him, "If I spoke wrongly, testify to the wrong; but if rightly, why do you strike me?" 24 Annas then sent him bound to Caiaphas the high priest.
25 Simon Peter, meanwhile, stood warming himself. They said to him, "Surely you are not another of his disciples?" He denied it: "I am not." 26 A slave of the high priest, kinsman to the one whose ear Peter had cut off, says, "Didn't I see you in the garden, with him?" 27 Again Peter denied it; and at once a rooster crowed.
28 From Caiaphas, then, they bring Jesus to the governor's headquarters.[h] It was early morning.[i] They did not go into the headquarters themselves, lest they incur defilement; they wanted to eat the Passover.[j] 29 Pilate[k] therefore came out to them and says, "What accusation are you bringing against this man?" 30 They answered him, "If this man were not a wrongdoer, we would not have handed him over to you." 31 "You take him," Pilate said to them, "and try him under your own law." The Jews told him, "We have no legal right to execute anyone."[l] 32 This was to fulfill the word Jesus had spoken to indicate by what kind of death he was going to die.

33 Pilate went back inside the headquarters, called for Jesus, and asked him, “Are you the king of the Jews?” 34 Jesus replied, “Is this your own question, or did other people say this to you about me?” 35 Pilate replied, “Am I a Jew? Your own people and their chief priests handed you over to me. What did you do?” 36 “My kingdom is not of this world,” Jesus answered. “If it were, those who serve me would be fighting to prevent my being handed over to the Jews. But in fact my kingdom does not come from here.” 37 “So you are a king?” Pilate asked. Jesus answered, “You say that I am a king.[m] I was born for this, and for this I came into the world: to testify to the truth. Everyone who belongs to the truth hears my voice.” 38 Pilate says to him, “What is truth?” After saying this, he went out again to the Jews and says to them, “I find no case against him. 39 It is a custom of yours that I set someone free for you at the Passover. Would you like me, then, to set free for you the King of the Jews?” 40 They shouted back, “Not this man, but Barabbas!”[n] Now Barabbas was a bandit.[o]

Notes

- a (18:1) Kidron ravine: Greek cheimarros, a “winter torrent,” a valley that runs with water only in the rainy season, here the Kidron valley east of Jerusalem, between the city and the Mount of Olives.
- b (18:3) Cohort: Greek speira, a Roman unit nominally of 600 soldiers, though here perhaps a detachment.
- c (18:5) I am he: Greek egō eimi, “I am”; in context an identification, but see the notes on 6:20 and 8:58; the arresting party’s falling to the ground (18:6) suggests the fuller sense. So in 18:6, 8.
- d (18:9) See 6:39; 17:12.
- e (18:10) Malchus: a Semitic name, “king” or “counselor.”
- f (18:12) Commander: Greek chiliarchos, “commander of a thousand,” a Roman military tribune.
- g (18:13) Annas: high priest AD 6–15, still powerful afterward; five of his sons and his son-in-law Caiaphas held the office. Annas is a Greek form of Hebrew Hanan, “gracious.”
- h (18:28) Governor’s headquarters: Greek praitōrion, the Roman governor’s residence (praetorium) in Jerusalem, probably Herod’s palace or the Antonia fortress.
- i (18:28) Early morning: Greek prōi, the last watch of the night, about 3–6 a.m.
- j (18:28) Eat the Passover: in John, Jesus is crucified on the day of preparation for the Passover (19:14, 31), at the time the lambs were slaughtered; in Matthew, Mark and Luke the Last Supper is a Passover meal. The relation of the two chronologies is much discussed.

- k (18:29) Pilate: Pontius Pilate, Roman prefect of Judea AD 26–36.
- l (18:31) We have no legal right to execute anyone: under Roman rule the Jewish authorities apparently lacked the right of capital punishment, at least for a case such as this. John 18:31–33 and 37–38 are preserved in P52 (John Rylands Library, Manchester), a small papyrus fragment usually dated about AD 125–175 and one of the oldest surviving New Testament manuscripts.
- m (18:37) You say that I am a king: or "You say it: I am a king." Compare Matt 27:11; Mark 15:2; Luke 23:3.
- n (18:40) Barabbas: Aramaic, "son of the father" (or "son of Abba"). See Matt 27:16–17, where some manuscripts give his name as Jesus Barabbas.
- o (18:40) Bandit: Greek lēstēs, a robber, often used by Josephus of armed insurgents against Rome.

Chapter 19

1 Pilate then took Jesus and had him flogged.[a] 2 The soldiers twisted thorns into a crown and set it upon his head, and threw a purple robe around him; 3 Again and again they came up to him with "Hail, King of the Jews!" and struck him in the face. 4 Pilate came outside once more and says to them, "Here, I am bringing him out to you, so you may know that I find no case against him." 5 So out came Jesus, wearing the thorny crown and the purple robe. And Pilate says to them, "Look: the man!"[b] 6 At the sight of him the chief priests and the officers shouted, "Crucify, crucify!" Pilate tells them, "You take him and crucify him; I find no case against him." 7 The Jews answered him, "We have a law, and by that law he ought to die, for he has made himself out to be God's Son."
8 When Pilate heard this statement, he grew more afraid than ever. 9 Then he went inside the headquarters again and said to Jesus, "Where have you come from?" But Jesus did not answer him. 10 So Pilate says to him, "Will you not speak to me? Do you not realize I have power to release you, and power to crucify you?" 11 "You would hold no authority over me at all," Jesus answered, "unless it had been given you from above.[c] That is why the man who delivered me to you is guilty of a greater sin." 12 After this Pilate tried to set him free, but the Jews cried out, "Set this man free, and you are no Friend of Caesar![d] Whoever makes himself a king is defying Caesar." 13 On hearing these words, Pilate brought Jesus outside and sat down[e] on the judgment seat at a place called the Stone Pavement, in Hebrew[f] Gabbatha.[g] 14 It was the day of Preparation for the Passover, about noon.[h] And he says to the Jews, "Here is your king!" 15 They shouted, "Away with him!

Away with him! Crucify him!" Pilate says to them, "Shall I crucify your king?" The chief priests answered, "We have no king but Caesar." 16 So then he delivered him up to them for crucifixion, and they took Jesus away.
17 He went out, bearing the cross on his own, to the spot known as Skull Place, Golgotha[i] in Hebrew. 18 They nailed him to the cross there, and two other men along with him, one on each side and Jesus between them. 19 Pilate also had a notice[j] written and fixed on the cross; it read, "JESUS THE NAZARENE, THE KING OF THE JEWS." 20 Many of the Jews read this notice, because the place where Jesus was crucified was near the city; and it was written in Hebrew, in Latin, and in Greek. 21 The chief priests of the Jews said to Pilate, "Do not write, 'The King of the Jews.' Write instead that he claimed, 'I am the King of the Jews.'" 22 Pilate answered, "What I have written, I have written."
23 The soldiers, after crucifying Jesus, took his garments and divided them in four, one portion for each soldier. They took the tunic too; it had no seam, being woven in one piece throughout from the top. 24 They said to each other, "Let us not tear it. Instead, let us cast lots to see who will get it." This was so that the Scripture would be fulfilled that says: "They shared out my clothes among them, and for my robe they cast lots."[k] And that is what the soldiers did.
25 By the cross of Jesus there stood his mother, and his mother's sister, Mary the wife of Clopas,[l] and Mary Magdalene.[m] 26 Jesus, seeing his mother and the disciple whom he loved standing near, says to his mother, "Woman,[n] here is your son." 27 Next he says to the disciple, "Here is your mother." From that hour on, the disciple received her into his own household.
28 After this, Jesus, knowing that all was now accomplished, says (so that the Scripture might be fulfilled), "I thirst."[o] 29 A jar of sour wine[p] was sitting there. They soaked a sponge in the wine, fixed it on a branch of hyssop[q], and lifted it to his mouth. 30 Having taken the sour wine, Jesus said, "It is finished";[r] and he bowed his head and handed over his spirit.

31 Now it was the day of Preparation, and the Jews did not want the bodies left on the crosses over the Sabbath, especially as that Sabbath was a high day.[s] So they requested Pilate to have the men's legs broken[t] and the bodies removed. 32 So the soldiers came and broke the legs of the first man, and then of the other who had been crucified with him. 33 But when they got to Jesus and saw that he had already died, they did not break his legs. 34 Instead, one of the soldiers pierced his side with a spear, and blood and water immediately flowed out. 35 The man who saw this has testified to it, and his testimony is true. He knows that he is telling the truth, so that you also may believe. 36 For these things took place to fulfill the Scripture, "Not one bone of his shall be broken."[u] 37 And again another Scripture says, "They will look on him whom they pierced."[v]

38 After this, Joseph of Arimathea,[w] who was a disciple of Jesus, though a secret one for fear of the Jews, asked Pilate whether he might remove the body of Jesus; and Pilate gave permission. So he came and removed his body. 39 Nicodemus came too, the man who had first come to Jesus by night, bringing a mixture[x] of myrrh and aloes, about seventy-five pounds.[y] 40 They took the body of Jesus and wrapped it in linen strips together with the spices, as is the Jewish custom of burial. 41 At the place where he was crucified there was a garden, and in the garden a new tomb in which no one had ever yet been laid. 42 So, because of the Jewish day of Preparation, and because the tomb was close at hand, they laid Jesus there.

Notes

- a (19:1) Flogged: Greek mastigoō, the Roman scourging with a whip of leather thongs weighted with bone or metal, often inflicted before crucifixion.
- b (19:5) Look: the man!: or "Here is the man!" (Latin Ecce homo).
- c (19:11) From above: that is, from God; the same Greek word as "again"/"from above" in 3:3, 7.

- d (19:12) Friend of Caesar: perhaps an honorary title (Latin amicus Caesaris) for officials loyal to the emperor, here Tiberius (AD 14–37). Caesar became the imperial title.
- e (19:13) Sat down: or "seated him" (that is, seated Jesus) on the judgment seat; the Greek can be read either way.
- f (19:13) Hebrew: here and in 19:17, 20 probably meaning Aramaic, the everyday language of Jews in the land.
- g (19:13) Gabbatha: an Aramaic name of uncertain meaning, perhaps "height" or "ridge."
- h (19:14) About noon: literally "about the sixth hour," counting from about 6 a.m.; see the note on 1:39. If John reckoned from midnight, as has sometimes been proposed, the time would be about 6 a.m. Mark 15:25 places the crucifixion at the third hour (about 9 a.m.); the two accounts have been reconciled in various ways, and a few manuscripts read "third" here.
- i (19:17) Golgotha: Aramaic gulgulta, "skull"; Latin calvaria, whence "Calvary."
- j (19:19) Notice: Greek titlos (Latin titulus), a placard stating the charge against the condemned.
- k (19:24) Ps 22:18 (21:19 Greek), following the Greek Old Testament.
- l (19:25) Mary the wife of Clopas: literally "Mary of Clopas," perhaps "wife" or "daughter." It is uncertain whether three or four women are named (his mother's sister may be a separate person). Clopas may be the same as Cleopas (Luke 24:18).
- m (19:25) Mary Magdalene: "Mary of Magdala," a town on the west shore of the Sea of Galilee; Magdala means "tower."
- n (19:26) Woman: a respectful form of address (see the note on 2:4).
- o (19:28) I thirst: compare Ps 22:15; 69:21.
- p (19:29) Sour wine: Greek oxos, cheap wine vinegar, a common drink of soldiers and laborers.
- q (19:29) Hyssop: a small bushy plant used to sprinkle the blood of the Passover lamb (Exod 12:22). Because its stalk is short, some have conjectured hyssō, "on a javelin," a reading found in one late manuscript.
- r (19:30) It is finished: Greek tetelestai, "it has been completed, accomplished"; the same verb as "accomplished" in 19:28.
- s (19:31) High day: that Sabbath coincided with the Passover festival (see 19:14 and 18:28).
- t (19:31) Have the men's legs broken: breaking a crucified man's legs (Latin crurifragium) hastened death by suffocation.
- u (19:36) Exod 12:46; Num 9:12 (of the Passover lamb); compare Ps 34:20.
- v (19:37) Zech 12:10, in a form closer to the Hebrew than to the Greek Old Testament.
- w (19:38) Arimathea: a town in Judea, perhaps Ramathaim (1 Sam 1:1), about 20 miles (32 km) northwest of Jerusalem. Joseph means "may he add."

- x (19:39) Mixture: so the Westcott–Hort text with Sinaiticus (first hand) and Vaticanus (as reported, heligma, “package, roll”); most manuscripts read migma, “mixture.”
- y (19:39) About seventy-five pounds: literally “about a hundred litras.” The Roman pound (litra, Latin libra) was about 12 ounces (327 g), so the total was about 75 pounds (33 kg), a quantity fit for a royal burial.

Chapter 20

1 On the first day of the week,[a] early, while it was still dark, Mary Magdalene comes to the tomb and sees that the stone has been taken away from the tomb. 2 She runs, then, and comes to Simon Peter and the other disciple, whom Jesus held dear, and says to them, “They have removed the Lord from the tomb, and where they have laid him we cannot tell!” 3 Peter therefore set out with the other disciple, and they made for the tomb. 4 The two were running side by side, but the other disciple outran Peter and was first to arrive at the tomb. 5 Stooping to look in, he sees the linen strips lying there; he did not, however, go in. 6 Then Simon Peter arrives, following him, and he went into the tomb. He looks at the linen strips lying there, 7 and the face cloth that had been on his head, not lying with the strips but rolled up in a place by itself. 8 Then the other disciple, who had reached the tomb first, went in as well, and he saw and believed; 9 They did not yet grasp the Scripture that he had to rise again out of death. 10 The disciples then went back home again.
11 But Mary stayed outside by the tomb, weeping. As she wept, she bent down to look into the tomb, 12 and she sees two angels in white sitting where the body of Jesus had lain, one at the head and one at the feet. 13 “Woman,” they say to her, “what are you weeping for?” She tells them, “Someone has removed my Lord, and where they have laid him I cannot tell.” 14 On saying this she turned around, and she sees Jesus standing there, but she did not know that it was Jesus. 15 Jesus says to her, “Woman, why are you weeping? Whom are you looking for?” She, supposing him to be the gardener, says to him, “Sir, if it was you who carried him off, tell me where you put him, and I will take him away.” 16 Jesus says to her, “Mary.” She turns and says to him in Hebrew, “Rabbouni!”[b] (which means Teacher). 17 Jesus told her, “Do not cling to me,[c] since I have not yet ascended to the Father. Rather, go to my brothers and give them this message: 'I am going up to my Father, who is also your Father, to my God, who is also your God.'" 18 Mary Magdalene goes and announces to the disciples, "I have seen the Lord," and that he had told her these things.

19 When evening came on that day, the first day of the week, and the doors of the place where the disciples were had been locked for fear of the Jews, Jesus came and stood among them and says to them, "Peace be with you." 20 And after saying this he showed them his hands and his side. The disciples were overjoyed at seeing the Lord. 21 So Jesus said to them again, "Peace be with you. As the Father has sent me, so I am sending you." 22 Having said this, he breathed on them[d] and says to them, "Receive the Holy Spirit. 23 If you forgive anyone's sins, they stand forgiven; if you retain anyone's, they stand retained." 24 Thomas, however, one of the Twelve, the one called the Twin,[e] had been absent when Jesus came. 25 So the other disciples told him, "We have seen the Lord." But he said to them, "I will never believe unless I see the nail marks in his hands, touch those marks with my finger, and put my hand into his side." 26 Eight days later[f] his disciples were again indoors, and Thomas was with them. Though the doors were locked, Jesus comes and stood among them and said, "Peace be with you." 27 Then he said to Thomas, "Put your finger here and look at my hands. Reach out your hand and place it in my side. Do not be unbelieving,[g] but believe." 28 Thomas answered him, "My Lord and my God!"[h] 29 Jesus says to him, "Because you have seen me, you have believed? Blessed are those who have not seen and yet have believed." 30 Now Jesus did many other signs in the presence of the disciples, which are not written in this book; 31 These, though, have been written that you may believe[i] Jesus to be the Messiah, God's Son, and that through believing you may have life by his name.

Notes

- a (20:1) The first day of the week: literally "on the first of the sabbaths," that is, of the week; our Sunday.
- b (20:16) Rabbouni: an Aramaic form of "Rabbi," literally "my master," "my teacher."

- c (20:17) Stop clinging to me: or "Do not hold on to me"; the present imperative suggests stopping an action already begun. The older rendering "Touch me not" is from the Latin Noli me tangere.
- d (20:22) Breathed on them: Greek enephysēsen, the verb used in the Greek Old Testament of God breathing life into the first man (Gen 2:7) and in Ezek 37:9.
- e (20:24) Twin: see the note on 11:16.
- f (20:26) Eight days later: counting inclusively, the following Sunday.
- g (20:27) Stop doubting: literally "Do not be unbelieving, but believing."
- h (20:28) My Lord and my God: compare 1:1, 18. Lord and God was a combination used of the God of Israel in the Greek Old Testament (for example Ps 35:23).
- i (20:31) May believe: so the Westcott–Hort text with P66 (apparently), Sinaiticus (first hand) and Vaticanus (as reported), a present tense that may mean "continue to believe"; most manuscripts read the aorist, which may mean "come to believe." Many scholars regard 20:30–31 as the original ending of the Gospel, with chapter 21 an epilogue; no manuscript lacks chapter 21.

Chapter 21

1 Later, Jesus again made himself known to the disciples beside the Sea of Tiberias.[a] This is how he made himself known. 2 Simon Peter, Thomas (known as the Twin), Nathanael of Cana in Galilee, the sons of Zebedee,[b] and two other disciples of Jesus were together. 3 Simon Peter says to them, "I am going fishing." They say to him, "We will come with you." They went out and got into the boat, and that night they caught nothing. 4 At daybreak Jesus was standing on the beach, but the disciples did not realize that it was Jesus. 5 So Jesus says to them, "Lads,[c] you have no fish to eat, have you?" They answered him, "No." 6 He said to them, "Cast the net on the right-hand side of the boat, and you will find some." So they cast it, and now they could not haul it in for the great number of fish. 7 The disciple whom Jesus loved said to Peter, "It is the Lord!" When Simon Peter heard that it was the Lord, he wrapped his outer garment around himself (he had been working without it) and jumped into the sea. 8 The other disciples followed in the small boat, pulling the net full of fish, since they were not far from shore, only about a hundred yards.[d] 9 When they got out onto the land, they see a charcoal fire laid there, with fish lying on it, and bread. 10 Jesus says to them, "Bring some of the fish you have just caught." 11 Simon Peter therefore climbed up and dragged the net to land, crammed with big fish, one hundred fifty-three[e] in all; and for all their number, the net did not split. 12 “Come and eat,” says Jesus to them. Not one of the disciples ventured to inquire, “Who are you?” for they knew it was the Lord. 13 Jesus comes and takes the bread and gives it to them, and the fish likewise. 14 That made the third time Jesus appeared to the disciples after rising from the dead.

15 When they had eaten breakfast, Jesus says to Simon Peter, “Simon son of John,[f] do you love me more than these?”[g] He says to him, “Yes, Lord; you know that I love you.”[h] He says to him, “Feed my lambs.” 16
He says to him again, a second time, “Simon son of John, do you love me?” He says to him, “Yes, Lord; you know that I love you.” He says to him, “Shepherd my sheep.” 17 A third time he says to him, “Simon son of John, do you love me?” It hurt Peter that he asked him a third time, “Do you love me?” and he answered, “Lord, you know everything; you are aware that I love you.” Jesus says to him, “Feed my sheep.
18 Amen, amen, I tell you, in your youth you put on your own belt and went about where you pleased; but when you have grown old, you will stretch out your hands,[i] and someone else will belt you and lead you where you would not go.” 19 He said this to show the kind of death by which Peter would bring glory to God. Then he told him, “Follow me.”
20 Peter turned and sees the disciple whom Jesus loved following them, the one who had leaned back against his chest at the supper and said, “Lord, who is it that is betraying you?” 21 Seeing him, Peter says to Jesus, “Lord, and what about him?” 22 Jesus says to him, “Suppose I wish him to stay until I come; what concern is that of yours? As for you, follow me.” 23 Hence the report went out among the brothers that this disciple was not going to die. But Jesus had not said to him that he would not die; only, “Suppose I wish him to stay until I come; what concern is that of yours?” 24 This is the disciple who bears witness about these things and who has written them, and we know that his witness is true.[j] 25 Jesus did many other things besides. Were they to be written down one by one, I imagine the world itself would not have room for the books that would be written.[k]

Notes

- a (21:1) Sea of Tiberias: the Sea of Galilee (see the note on 6:1).
- b (21:2) The sons of Zebedee: James and John, mentioned only here in this Gospel. Zebedee is from Hebrew, “gift (of Yahweh).”
- c (21:5) Lads: Greek paidia, “children,” a familiar form of address.
- d (21:8) About a hundred yards: literally “about two hundred cubits,” about 300 feet (90 m).
- e (21:11) One hundred fifty-three: many symbolic interpretations have been proposed (for example, Jerome reported that Greek zoologists counted 153 kinds of fish), but none is certain.
- f (21:15) Simon son of John: so the Westcott–Hort text with Sinaiticus and Vaticanus (as reported); many manuscripts read “Simon son of Jonah,” as in Matt 16:17. So in 21:16, 17. See the note on 1:42.
- g (21:15) More than these: either “more than these others do” or “more than you love these things.”
- h (21:15) Love … love: in 21:15–17 Jesus twice asks with agapaō and the third time with phileō, while Peter answers each time with phileō. Many interpreters see the change as stylistic variation, since John uses both verbs of the same love (compare 3:35 and 5:20); others find a deliberate distinction.
- i (21:18) Stretch out your hands: early Christian writers took this as a reference to crucifixion; tradition holds that Peter was crucified in Rome under Nero, about AD 64–67.
- j (21:24) We know that his witness is true: the “we” appears to be a group associated with the beloved disciple who vouch for his testimony; see the note on 13:23.
- k (21:25) The books that would be written: in the manuscripts of family 1 (as reported), the account of the woman caught in adultery (7:53–8:11) is placed after this verse; see the note on 7:53.

Acts

New Testament

Chapter 1

1 In my former book, Theophilus,[a] I gave an account of all that Jesus began to do and to teach, 2 until the day on which he was taken up, having by the Holy Spirit laid his commands upon the apostles whom he had chosen. 3 To them also, after his suffering, he presented himself alive by many convincing proofs, appearing to them over a period of forty days and speaking about the kingdom of God. 4 And while he was at table with them,[b] he directed them that they were not to depart from Jerusalem, but to remain there awaiting the Father's promise, "of which," he said, "you have heard me speak; 5 for John baptized with water, but you will be baptized in the Holy Spirit not many days from now."
6 So those who had gathered asked him again and again, "Lord, is it now, at this time, that you will give back the kingdom to Israel?" 7 He told them, "It is not for you to know times or seasons that the Father has fixed by his own authority. 8 But power will be yours when the Holy Spirit comes upon you, and in Jerusalem, in all Judea and Samaria, and as far as the end of the earth, you shall be witnesses for me." 9 And having said these things, he was raised up while they watched, and a cloud received him and hid him from their eyes. 10 While they were gazing intently toward heaven as he went, all at once two men in white garments stood beside them, 11 who said, "Men of Galilee, why do you stand looking up into the sky? This Jesus, who has been taken up from you into heaven, will come in the same way as you saw him going into heaven." 12 Then they went back to Jerusalem from the hill called the Mount of Olives, which is near Jerusalem, about half a mile away.[c] 13 On entering the city they went up to the upstairs room where they were lodging: Peter and John and James and Andrew, Philip and

Thomas, Bartholomew and Matthew, James son of Alphaeus, Simon the Zealot,[d] and Judas son of James. 14 All of these were united in constant prayer, along with the women, including Mary, the mother of Jesus, and his brothers.

15 In those days Peter stood up among the brothers and sisters[e] (a crowd of about a hundred and twenty persons was gathered together) and said, 16 "Brothers, the Scripture had to come true, the words the Holy Spirit spoke long ago through David about Judas, who served as the guide for the men who arrested Jesus.

17 For he was counted as one of us and was allotted his share in this ministry."

18 (This man, then, got himself a piece of land out of the reward of his crime; and falling headlong,[f] he split open in his midsection, and his inward parts all poured out.

19 And it came to be known by everyone living in Jerusalem, so that the plot was called in their language Akeldama, that is, Field of Blood.)[g] 20 "For it is written in the Book of Psalms,

'May his place be left empty, and may no one live in it,'[h]
and,
'May someone else take over his position.'[i]

21 So of the men who have accompanied us during all the time that the Lord Jesus went in and out among us,

22 beginning from the baptism of John until the day when he was taken up from us — one of these must become with us a witness to his resurrection."

23 They put forward two: Joseph called Barsabbas,[j] who was surnamed Justus, and Matthias.[k]

24 They prayed, "Lord, you know every person's heart. Show us which of these two men you have chosen

25 to take the place in this ministry and apostleship from which Judas turned aside to go to his own place."

26 And they gave lots for them, and the lot fell upon Matthias; and he was reckoned along with the eleven apostles.

Notes

- a (1:1) Theophilus: “friend of God” or “dear to God”; compare Luke 1:3.
- b (1:4) At table with them: Greek synalizomenos, of uncertain meaning, perhaps “eating salt with them,” or “gathering them together,” or (if from a different verb) “staying with them.”
- c (1:12) About half a mile away: literally “a sabbath day’s journey away,” the distance a person was permitted to walk on the sabbath, about 2,000 cubits, roughly 3/5 mile (1 kilometer).
- d (1:13) Zealot: Greek zēlōtēs, “zealous one,” perhaps a member of the party opposed to Roman rule, or simply one zealous for the Law.
- e (1:15) Brothers and sisters: Greek adelphoi, used of the whole community of believers; in 1:16 Peter addresses the men (andres adelphoi).
- f (1:18) Falling headlong: Greek prēnēs genomenos; some interpret it as “swelling up.” Compare Matt 27:3–10.
- g (1:19) Akeldama: Aramaic ḥaqel dema, “field of blood.”
- h (1:20) Ps 69:25 (Greek Ps 68:26).
- i (1:20) Ps 109:8 (Greek Ps 108:8).
- j (1:23) Barsabbas: Aramaic, probably “son of the sabbath.”
- k (1:23) Matthias: a shortened form of Mattathias, “gift of Yahweh.”

Chapter 2

1 When the day of Pentecost[a] arrived, they were all gathered in one place. 2 And suddenly out of heaven there came a sound like a violent wind rushing along, and it filled the whole house where they sat. 3 And tongues as if of fire appeared to them, being distributed, and one settled upon each of them. 4 They were all filled with the Holy Spirit and began to speak in other tongues,[b] as the Spirit was giving them to utter.
5 Now there were Jews dwelling in Jerusalem, devout men from every nation under heaven. 6 And when this sound arose, the multitude gathered, and confusion seized them, since every one of them heard the speakers in his own dialect. 7 Amazed and astonished, they said, “Look, are not all these who are speaking Galileans? 8 How then is it that each of us hears them in the very language we were born to?
9 Parthians and Medes and Elamites, and residents of Mesopotamia, Judea and Cappadocia, Pontus and Asia,[c] 10 Phrygia and Pamphylia, Egypt and the regions of Libya around Cyrene, and Roman visitors (Jews and also proselytes[d]), 11 Cretans and Arabs. We hear them declaring the wonderful acts of God in our own languages!" 12 All were amazed and perplexed, saying one to another, "What can this mean?" 13 But others mocked and said, "They have had too much new wine." 14 Then Peter took his stand with the Eleven and addressed the crowd in a loud voice: "People of Judea and everyone living in Jerusalem, I want you to understand this. Pay attention to my words.

15 For these men are not drunk, as you suppose, since it is only nine o'clock in the morning.[e] 16 Rather, here is the thing foretold by Joel the prophet:
17 'And it shall be in the last days, says God, that I will pour out some of my Spirit on all flesh;
and your sons and your daughters shall prophesy, and your young men shall see visions,
and your old men shall dream dreams; 18 yes, even on my male slaves and on my female slaves in those days I will pour out some of my Spirit, and they shall prophesy.
19 And I will give wonders in the heaven above and signs on the earth beneath, blood and fire and a vapor of smoke; 20 the sun shall be changed into darkness and the moon into blood, before the coming of the great and glorious day of the Lord.
21 And then everyone who calls on the name of the Lord will be saved.'[f] 22 "People of Israel, listen to this: Jesus of Nazareth was a man whom God confirmed to you by miracles, wonders and signs, which God performed through him among you, as you yourselves know.
23 this man, given up by the set purpose and foreknowledge of God, you nailed up by the hands of lawless men and killed.
24 God raised him up, having loosed the pangs of death,[g] because it was not possible for him to be held in its grip.
25 For David says concerning him,
'I saw the Lord always before me,
for he is at my right hand so that I may not be shaken;

26 therefore my heart was glad and my tongue rejoiced;
moreover my flesh also will dwell in hope.
27 For you will not leave my soul behind in Hades,[h] nor give over your Holy One to see decay.
28 The ways of life you have shown to me;
with joy before your face you will fill me full.'[i] 29 "Brothers, it is permitted to speak freely to you about the patriarch David: he died and was buried, and his grave is among us even to this day.
30 So, since he was a prophet and knew God had sworn an oath to him that from the fruit of his body[j] one would be set upon his throne, 31 he looked ahead and spoke of the Messiah's resurrection, that neither was he left behind in Hades, nor did his flesh see decay.
32 This Jesus God raised up, and of that we are all witnesses.
33 Exalted therefore to[k] the right hand of God, and having received from the Father the promised Holy Spirit, he has poured out this which you both see and hear.
34 For it was not David who went up into heaven; yet he says,
'The Lord said to my Lord,
"Take your seat at my right, 35 until I make your enemies a footstool for your feet."'[l]
36 So let the whole nation of Israel know with certainty that God has made this Jesus, whom you crucified, both Lord and Messiah."
37 When they heard this they were stabbed to the heart, and said to Peter and the rest of the apostles, "Brothers, what are we to do?"
38 Peter said to them, "Repent, and be baptized, each one of you, in the name of Jesus Christ for the forgiveness of your sins; and you will receive the gift of the Holy Spirit. 39 For to you is the promise, and to your children, and to all who are far off, as many as the Lord our God shall call to himself." 40 And with many other words he bore witness and kept urging them, saying, "Be saved from this crooked generation." 41 So those who welcomed his word were baptized, and that day about three thousand souls were added.
42 And they were steadfast in what the apostles taught and in the fellowship,[m] in the breaking of the bread and in the prayers. 43 Awe came upon every soul, and many wonders and signs were being done through the apostles.[n] 44 All who believed were together and held everything in common; 45 they would sell their properties and possessions and distribute the proceeds to all, as anyone had need. 46 Every day they met together in the temple with a common purpose, and they broke bread in their homes. They ate together with joyful and generous hearts, 47 They praised God and were respected by all the people. And daily the Lord increased[o] the number of those who were being saved.

Notes

- a (2:1) Pentecost: Greek pentēkostē, "fiftieth," the Feast of Weeks, held fifty days after Passover (Lev 23:15–21).
- b (2:4) Tongues: or "languages"; the same Greek word (glōssa) is used in 2:3, 4, 11.
- c (2:9) Asia: the Roman province in western Asia Minor, not the continent.
- d (2:10) Proselytes: Gentile converts to Judaism.
- e (2:15) Nine o'clock in the morning: literally "the third hour of the day."
- f (2:21) Joel 2:28–32 (Greek and Hebrew 3:1–5), with "in the last days" (for "afterward") and "says God" added. In the Hebrew text, "the Lord" in 2:20 and 2:21 is Yahweh.
- g (2:24) Pangs of death: literally "the birth pains of death"; the phrase may reflect a Hebrew idiom meaning "the cords of death" (Ps 18:4–5).
- h (2:27) Hades: Greek hadēs, the realm of the dead, rendering Hebrew Sheol.
- i (2:28) Ps 16:8–11 (Greek Ps 15:8–11). In the Hebrew text, "the Lord" in 2:25 is Yahweh.
- j (2:30) From the fruit of his body: literally "from the fruit of his loins," that is, one of his descendants; compare Ps 132:11. Many later manuscripts add "according to the flesh, to raise up the Messiah."
- k (2:33) To: or "by."
- l (2:35) Ps 110:1 (Greek Ps 109:1). In the Hebrew, "The Lord said" is "Yahweh said"; "my Lord" is adoni, "my master."
- m (2:42) Fellowship: Greek koinōnia, "sharing, partnership, communion."
- n (2:43) Through the apostles: many manuscripts add "in Jerusalem, and great fear was upon all."
- o (2:47) To their number: literally "together" (epi to auto). Many later manuscripts add "to the church."

Chapter 3

1 Now Peter and John were going up to the temple at the hour of prayer, at three in the afternoon.[a] 2 And a certain man, lame since birth, was being carried there; every day people would lay him at that temple gate which is called Beautiful, so he could ask alms from those entering the temple. 3 When he saw Peter and John about to enter the temple, he asked them for money. 4 Peter, fixing his eyes upon him together with John, said, "Look at us." 5 So he held his gaze on them, looking to receive some gift from them. 6 But Peter said, "Silver and gold are not mine to give, but what is mine I give to you: in the name of Jesus Christ the Nazarene, walk!" 7 And seizing him by the right hand he raised him up; and immediately the soles of his feet and his ankles grew firm. 8 He jumped to his feet and began to walk. Then he went into the temple with them, walking, jumping, and praising God.

9 All the people saw him walking and praising God, 10 They realized he was the man who used to sit and beg at the temple's Beautiful Gate, and they were filled with amazement and wonder at what had happened to him.
11 While he clung to Peter and John, all the people ran together to them in the colonnade[b] called Solomon's, utterly astonished. 12 Seeing this, Peter addressed the people: "Men of Israel, why do you marvel at this, or why stare at us, as though by our own power or godliness we had made him walk? 13 The God of Abraham and of Isaac and of Jacob, the God of our fathers, has glorified his servant[c] Jesus, whom you handed over and disowned in the presence of Pilate, when he had decided to release him. 14 But you disowned the Holy and Righteous One and asked for a murderer to be granted to you, 15 and the Author[d] of life you put to death — whom God has raised out from among the dead, of which we are witnesses. 16 And by faith in his name, his name has made strong this man whom you see and know; and the faith that comes through Jesus has given him this perfect health in the presence of you all.
17 "And now, brothers, I am aware that it was out of ignorance that you did it, just as your rulers did. 18 But what God foretold by the mouth of all the prophets, that his Messiah would suffer, he has thus fulfilled. 19 So change your hearts and turn back to God, so that your sins may be erased and seasons of renewal may come from the Lord's presence,[e] 20 and so that he may send Jesus, the Messiah chosen for you, 21 whom heaven must receive until the times of the restoration of all things, of which God spoke by the mouth of his holy prophets from of old.

22 For Moses said, ‘A prophet like me the Lord your God will raise up for you out of your brothers; you are to hear him in everything he may speak to you. 23 Everyone who will not obey that prophet will be wiped out and separated from the people.’[f] 24 And all the prophets too, from Samuel and those who came after him, as many as have spoken, also announced these days. 25 You are the descendants of the prophets and heirs of the covenant that God made with your ancestors. He told Abraham, ‘Through your offspring[g] every family on earth will be blessed.’[h] 26 God, having raised up his servant, sent him to you first, to bless you by turning every one of you from your wicked ways.”

Notes

- a (3:1) At three in the afternoon: literally “the ninth hour,” the time of the afternoon sacrifice and prayer.
- b (3:11) Colonnade: Greek stoa, a roofed portico along the eastern side of the temple court.
- c (3:13) Servant: Greek pais, “servant” or “child”; compare Isa 52:13 (Greek), “my servant shall be glorified.”
- d (3:15) Author: Greek archēgos, “founder, originator, leader, pioneer.”
- e (3:19) From the presence of the Lord: some editions begin verse 20 with “that times of refreshing may come,” following a different verse division.
- f (3:23) Deut 18:15–19, with Lev 23:29. In the Hebrew text, “the Lord” in 3:22 is Yahweh.
- g (3:25) Offspring: literally “seed.”
- h (3:25) Gen 22:18; 26:4.

Chapter 4

1 As they were speaking to the people, the priests[a] and the captain of the temple and the Sadducees came upon them, 2 annoyed because they were instructing the people and proclaiming, in the case of Jesus, the resurrection from among the dead. 3 They laid hands on them and put them in custody until the next day, since evening had already come. 4 But many who heard the word came to believe, and the men among them numbered about five thousand.
5 On the following day it happened that their rulers and elders and scribes were gathered together in Jerusalem,

6 with Annas the high priest, and Caiaphas, John,[b] Alexander, and all who belonged to the high-priestly family.
7 Having made the two stand in their midst, they began to inquire:
"By what sort of power, or in what sort of name, have such men as you done this?"
8 Then Peter, filled with the Holy Spirit, said to them, "Rulers of the people and elders, 9 since today we are on trial concerning a good deed to a man who was ill — by what means he has been restored — 10 be it known to all of you and to all the people of Israel that it is in the name of Jesus Christ the Nazarene, whom you crucified, whom God raised from the dead — by him[c] this man stands here before you in good health.
11 He is
'the stone that was treated with contempt by you, the builders, which has become the head of the corner.'[d] 12 And salvation is in no one else; for under heaven there is no other name given among human beings by which we must be saved." 13 When they observed how boldly Peter and John spoke, and grasped that they were uneducated men without special training,[e] they were amazed; and they took note that these had been with Jesus. 14 And seeing the man who had been healed standing there with them, they had nothing to say against it. 15 So, ordering them to go out of the council,[f] they conferred among themselves, 16 saying, "What are we to do about these men? For it is evident to all the inhabitants of Jerusalem that a remarkable sign has come about by their means, and denying it is beyond us. 17 Still, to keep this from spreading further among the people, let us threaten them so they no longer speak in this name to any person at all." 18 So they called them and commanded them not to utter a sound or teach at all in the name of Jesus. 19 But Peter and John answered them, "Whether it is right in the sight of God to listen to you rather than to God, you must judge; 20 for as for us, we cannot help speaking of what we have seen and heard." 21 After threatening them further they let them go, finding no way to punish them because of the people, for all were glorifying God for what had taken place. 22 For he was a man of over forty years, the one on whom this healing sign had come about.

23 Once set free, they came to their companions and told them everything the chief priests and elders had said.
24 Hearing it, they lifted their voices to God with one mind and said, "Sovereign Lord, you who made the heaven and the earth and the sea and everything in them, 25 who through the Holy Spirit, by the mouth of our father David your servant, said:[g]
'Why did the nations rage,
and the peoples plot vain things?
26 The kings of the earth took their stand, and the rulers were gathered together, against the Lord and against his Anointed.'[h] 27 In fact, in this very city Herod and Pontius Pilate joined together with the Gentiles and the peoples of Israel against your holy servant
Jesus, whom you anointed, 28 to do whatever your hand and your purpose had decided beforehand should happen.
29 And now, Lord, look upon their threats, and grant your slaves to speak your word with all boldness, 30 as you reach out your hand for healing, and as signs and wonders come about by the name of your holy servant Jesus." 31 After they prayed, the building where they were meeting shook. All of them were filled with the Holy Spirit and kept on speaking God's message fearlessly.
32 Now the whole company of those who had believed were of one heart and soul, and not one of them said that any of his possessions was his own, but they had everything in common. 33 With great power the apostles kept giving their testimony to the resurrection of the Lord Jesus, and great grace was upon them all. 34 For there was not a needy person among them, since as many as were owners of lands or houses would sell them and bring the proceeds of what was sold 35 and they would put it down at the feet of the apostles; and distribution was made to each according to his need. 36 Thus Joseph, who was called by the apostles Barnabas[i] (which translated means "son of encouragement"), a Levite, a native of Cyprus, 37 he had a field, and selling it he brought the proceeds and set them down at the feet of the apostles.

Notes

- a (4:1) Priests: so the Westcott–Hort text, with Sinaiticus and most manuscripts; Vaticanus and Alexandrinus read "chief priests."
- b (4:6) John: Codex Bezae and some other witnesses read "Jonathan," the name of a son of Annas who was high priest in AD 36–37.
- c (4:10) By him: or "in this name."
- d (4:11) Ps 118:22 (Greek Ps 117:22).
- e (4:13) Without special training: Greek idiōtai, "laymen, ordinary people," here those without formal training in the Law.
- f (4:15) Council: Greek synedrion, the Sanhedrin, the Jewish high council in Jerusalem.
- g (4:25) The Greek of this verse is unusually difficult and may have suffered early corruption; it reads literally, "who of our father through the Holy Spirit mouth of David your servant saying." Many later manuscripts read more simply, "who by the mouth of your servant David said."
- h (4:26) Ps 2:1–2. In the Hebrew text, "the Lord" is Yahweh; "his Anointed" is "his messiah."
- i (4:36) Barnabas: the explanation given, "son of encouragement" (or "of exhortation"), is not an exact etymology; the name may derive from Aramaic bar nebuʾah, "son of prophecy," or from a name meaning "son of Nebo." The meaning is uncertain.

Chapter 5

1 Now a man by the name of Ananias,[a] together with Sapphira[b] his wife, sold some land, 2 and holding back for himself some of the price, with his wife also aware of it, he brought a part only and set it down at the feet of the apostles. 3 Peter said, "Ananias, why has Satan taken over your heart, so that you lied to the Holy Spirit and kept back part of the money you received for the land? 4 As long as it was kept, was it not still yours to keep? And once sold, did not the money lie within your own power? How did you come to plan such a thing in your heart? It is not to people that you have lied, but to God." 5 And on hearing these words Ananias fell and expired; and a great fear seized everyone who heard. 6 The young men got up, wrapped his body, carried it out, and buried it.

7 Some three hours passed, and then his wife entered, unaware of what had taken place. 8 Peter said to her, "Tell me whether you sold the land for so much." And she said, "Yes, for so much." 9 Peter said to her, "Why did the two of you agree to try the Spirit of the Lord? Listen — at the door are the feet of the men who buried your husband, and they will carry you out too." 10 And at once she dropped at his feet and expired. The young men came in, found her lying dead, and carried her out and buried her next to her husband. 11 Great fear gripped the entire church[c] and everyone else who heard about these events.
12 Many signs and wonders were being done among the people by the apostles. All the believers used to meet together in agreement in Solomon's Colonnade. 13 None of the rest dared to join them, though the people held them in high esteem. 14 Yet more and more those who believed in the Lord were added, multitudes of both men and women, 15 The result was that people would bring the sick out even into the broad streets and put them on cots and pallets, so that as Peter passed, his shadow at any rate might overshadow one of them.[d] 16 And a multitude also came together from the cities surrounding Jerusalem, carrying those who were ill and those tormented by unclean spirits, and every one of them was cured.
17 Then the high priest stood up, with all his associates — the sect of the Sadducees, as it then was — and they were filled with jealousy, 18 they laid hands on the apostles and put them in the public prison.
19 But during the night an angel of the Lord opened the doors of the prison, brought them out, and said, 20 "Go, take your stand in the temple, and tell the people every word of this Life." 21 When they heard this, they went into the temple near dawn and taught. Meanwhile the high priest arrived with his associates, and they convened the council and the whole body of the elders of the sons of Israel, and sent to the prison to have the apostles brought in. 22 When the officers arrived, they did not find the apostles in the prison. So they went back and reported, 23 "We found the jail locked up with all security and the guards standing at the doors, but when we opened them we found no one inside." 24 When the captain of the temple guard and the chief priests heard this report, they were baffled and wondered where it would lead. 25 Then someone arrived and reported to them, "Look! The men you put in the prison are standing in the temple and teaching the people." 26 Then the captain went with the officers and fetched them, though without violence, because they feared the people might stone them.

27 When they had brought them, they set them before the council.
And the high priest questioned them, 28 He said, "We strictly ordered you not to teach in this name. Yet you have filled Jerusalem with your teaching, and you are determined to make us responsible for this man's death." 29 But Peter and the apostles answered, "We must obey God rather than human beings. 30 The God of our fathers raised up Jesus, whom you killed by hanging him on a tree.[e] 31 Him God has lifted up to his right hand as Leader and Savior, to grant Israel repentance and the forgiveness of sins. 32 And we are witnesses of these things,[f] and so is the Holy Spirit, whom God has given to those who obey him."
33 On hearing this they were enraged[g] and were determined to do away with them. 34 But a member of the council stood up, a Pharisee named Gamaliel,[h] a teacher of the Law honored by the whole people, and gave orders that the men be taken outside for a short time. 35 Then he spoke to the council: "Men of Israel, consider well what you intend to do to these men. 36 For before these days Theudas appeared, saying that he was someone important, and around four hundred men attached themselves to him. He was slain, and all his followers were broken up and reduced to nothing. 37 After this man Judas the Galilean appeared at the time of the census[i] and led a following away after him; he likewise perished, and his followers were all scattered abroad. 38 So now I say to you, stand back from these men and leave them be; for if this counsel or this work comes from human beings, it will be brought to ruin; 39 but if it is from God, you will not be able to overthrow them. You might even be found fighting against God!" So they were persuaded by him, 40 They called the apostles in and had them beaten.[j] Then they warned them to say nothing more in the name of Jesus, and let them go. 41 They went out from the presence of the council rejoicing that they had been counted worthy to suffer dishonor for the sake of the Name. 42 Day after day, in the temple and in people's homes, they never stopped teaching and announcing the good news that Jesus is the Messiah.

Notes

- a (5:1) Ananias: Hebrew Ḥananyah, "Yahweh has been gracious."
- b (5:1) Sapphira: probably Aramaic, "beautiful," or from the word for "sapphire."
- c (5:11) Church: Greek ekklēsia, "assembly, congregation"; this is the first use of the word in Acts.
- d (5:15) Some of them: Codex Bezae and some other witnesses add, "for they were set free from every sickness that each of them had."
- e (5:30) Tree: or "cross"; literally "wood." Compare Deut 21:22–23.
- f (5:32) Of these things: literally "of these words." Some manuscripts add "his witnesses" or "in him."
- g (5:33) Furious: literally "sawn through," that is, cut to the quick.
- h (5:34) Gamaliel: Hebrew, "God is my reward"; the grandson (or son) of Hillel and teacher of Paul (22:3).
- i (5:37) Census: the registration under Quirinius in AD 6 (compare Luke 2:2), which provoked Judas's revolt.
- j (5:40) Beat them: that is, had them flogged, probably with the thirty-nine lashes (Deut 25:3; 2 Cor 11:24).

Chapter 6

1 In those days, as the disciples were growing in number, a complaint arose from the Hellenists[a] against the Hebrews, because their widows were being passed over in the daily distribution.[b] 2 So the Twelve called the whole body of the disciples together and said, "It would not be fitting for us to leave the word of God behind in order to wait on tables. 3 Instead, brothers, pick out from among you seven men of good report, full of the Spirit and of wisdom, whom we will put in charge of this need. 4 As for us, we will hold fast to prayer and to the ministry of the word." 5 What they said pleased the entire gathering, and they chose Stephen,[c] a man full of faith and of the Holy Spirit, along with Philip, Prochorus, Nicanor, Timon, Parmenas, and Nicolaus, a proselyte from Antioch. 6 These men they set in front of the apostles, and after praying, the apostles placed their hands on them. 7 And the word of God kept spreading, and in Jerusalem the number of the disciples multiplied greatly, and a large company of the priests became obedient to the faith.

8 And Stephen, a man full of grace[d] and power, did great signs and wonders among the people. 9 But some men stood up from the synagogue called that of the Freedmen[e] (made up of Cyrenians and Alexandrians, and of people from Cilicia and Asia) and began to dispute with Stephen; 10 and they had not the strength to stand up against the wisdom and the Spirit with which he was speaking. 11 Then they secretly put forward men who said, "We have heard this man utter blasphemous words against Moses and against God." 12 So they stirred up the people and the elders and the scribes, and coming upon him they seized him and led him to the council. 13 They produced false witnesses, who testified, "This fellow keeps on speaking against this holy place and against the Law. 14 We have heard him claim that Jesus of Nazareth will destroy this place and change the customs Moses passed on to us." 15 And everyone seated in the council stared at him, and they saw his face, as it were an angel's face.

Notes

- a (6:1) Hellenists: Greek-speaking Jews, probably from outside the land of Israel; "the Hebrews" were those whose language was Aramaic (or Hebrew).
- b (6:1) Distribution: literally "service" (diakonia), here the daily provision of food.
- c (6:5) Stephen: Greek Stephanos, "crown, wreath."
- d (6:8) Grace: many later manuscripts read "faith."
- e (6:9) Freedmen: Greek Libertinoi, from Latin libertini, Jews who had been slaves (or whose ancestors had been) and were set free. The Greek may describe one synagogue or several.

Chapter 7

1 And the high priest said, "Are these things so?" 2 Stephen replied: "Brothers and fathers, listen. The God of glory appeared to our father Abraham while he was in Mesopotamia, before he settled in Haran,[a] 3 'Leave your land and your family, and go to the land I will show you.'[b] 4 So he left the country of the Chaldeans and lived in Haran; and from there, once his father had died, God moved him to this land where you are living today. 5 Yet he gave him no inheritance in it, not even room to set his foot, though he promised to give it to him as a possession, and to his descendants after him, at a time when he had no child. 6

This is what God said: that his offspring would live as sojourners in a foreign country, and its people would make slaves of them and treat them harshly for four hundred years. 7 'But I will judge the nation whom they serve,' said God, 'and afterward they will go out and serve me in this place.'[c] 8 And he gave him the covenant of circumcision.
So Abraham became the father of Isaac, and circumcised him on the eighth day; and Isaac became the father of Jacob, and Jacob of the twelve patriarchs.
9 "The patriarchs, envious of Joseph, sold him into Egypt; but God was with him, 10 and rescued him out of all his afflictions, and gave him favor and wisdom before Pharaoh king of Egypt, who appointed him governor over Egypt and over his whole household. 11 Then a famine came over all of Egypt and Canaan, with great affliction, and our fathers could find no food. 12 But when Jacob heard there was grain in Egypt, he sent our fathers out on their first visit. 13 And at the second time Joseph was recognized by his brothers, and Pharaoh learned of Joseph's family. 14 Then Joseph sent and summoned Jacob his father and all his kindred, seventy-five persons[d] in all; 15 and Jacob went down [into Egypt]. There he died, he and our fathers, 16 And they were brought over to Shechem and placed in the grave which Abraham had purchased with silver money from the sons of Hamor in Shechem.[e]
17 "But as the time drew near for the promise that God had granted to Abraham, the people grew and multiplied in Egypt, 18 until there arose over Egypt another king, one who did not know Joseph. 19 He dealt craftily with our race and mistreated our fathers, forcing them to abandon their infants so that they would not survive. 20 It was at this time that Moses was born, and he was a beautiful child in God's eyes.[f] For three months he was cared for in his father's house. 21 and when he was put out, Pharaoh's daughter adopted him and raised him as her own son. 22 And Moses was trained in all the wisdom of the Egyptians, and was mighty in his words and deeds. 23 "When he was turning forty years old, it came into his heart to visit his brothers, the sons of Israel. 24 And seeing one of them being wronged, he came to his defense and avenged the oppressed man by striking down the Egyptian. 25 He thought his brothers would see that through his hand God was giving them rescue; but they did not see it. 26 The following day he came upon two of them in a fight, and he sought to make peace between them: 'Men, brothers you are! Why are you harming each other?' 27 But the man who was mistreating his fellow Israelite shoved Moses away and said, 'Who made you our ruler and judge? 28 Are you thinking of killing me, just as you killed the Egyptian yesterday?'[g] 29 When Moses heard that, he escaped and settled as a resident foreigner in Midian, where two sons were born to him.

30 "And after forty years were completed, in the wilderness of Mount Sinai an angel appeared to him in a flaming fire in a thornbush.

31 Moses was amazed at what he saw. As he went closer to get a better look, the Lord's voice spoke:

32 'I am the God of your fathers, the God of Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob.' And Moses, all trembling, did not venture to look closer.

33 And the Lord said to him, 'Untie your sandals from your feet, because holy ground is the place on which you stand.

34 I have seen, I have seen the suffering of my people who are in Egypt, I have heard their groans, and I have come down to deliver them. And now come — I will send you to Egypt.'[h]

35 "This Moses, whom they rejected, saying, 'Who appointed you ruler and judge?' — this one God sent as both ruler and redeemer, with the help of the angel who appeared to him in the bush.

36 This man led them out, doing wonders and signs in Egypt, at the Red Sea,[i] and in the wilderness for forty years.

37 This is that Moses who told the sons of Israel, 'A prophet like me God will raise up for you out of your brothers.'[j]

38 He was among the assembly[k] in the wilderness, with the angel who spoke to him at Mount Sinai and with our ancestors. He received living words to pass on to us.[l]

39 To him our fathers refused to be obedient; they pushed him away, and their hearts turned back toward Egypt,

40 They said to Aaron, ‘Make gods for us who will lead us. As for this Moses who brought us out of the land of Egypt, we do not know what has happened to him.’[m] 41 At that time they made an image of a calf, offered a sacrifice to the idol, and celebrated what their own hands had made.
42 But God turned away and handed them over to worship the host of heaven, as it is written in the book of the Prophets: ‘Did you offer me slain beasts and sacrifices forty years in the desert, O house of Israel?
43 You took along the tent of Moloch and the star of your god Rompha,[n] images that you made so you could worship them.
Therefore I will remove you to a place beyond Babylon.’[o] 44 “Our fathers had the tent of testimony in the desert, just as he who spoke to Moses directed him to make it, according to the pattern he had seen.
45 This tent our fathers, receiving it in their turn, brought in with Joshua[p] when they took possession of the nations whom God thrust out before our fathers’ faces; and it remained until the time of David, 46 who won favor before God and asked leave to find a dwelling for the God of Jacob.[q]
47 Yet a house for him was built by Solomon.
48 But the Most High does not live in what is made by hands; as the prophet says, 49 ‘Heaven is my throne,
and the earth is my footstool.
What kind of house could you build for me? says the Lord.
Or where would my resting place be?
50 Did not my hand make all these things?’[r] 51 “You stiff-necked people, uncircumcised in heart and ears, you are always resisting the Holy Spirit; as your fathers did, so do you. 52 Was there a prophet your fathers did not hound? They put to death those who foretold the Righteous One’s coming, of whom you have now become the betrayers and murderers — 53 you who received the Law as ordained by angels,[s] and did not keep it.”

54 When they heard these things they were cut to the heart,[t] and they ground their teeth at him. 55 But he, full of the Holy Spirit, gazed into heaven and saw the glory of God, and Jesus standing at the right hand of God, 56 and he said, "Look, I see the heavens opened, and the Son of Man standing at the right hand of God." 57 But they cried out with a loud voice, stopped their ears, and rushed at him with one accord. 58 They cast him out of the city and began to stone him; and the witnesses laid down their garments at the feet of a young man named Saul.[u] 59 And they went on stoning Stephen as he called out, "Lord Jesus, receive my spirit." 60 And kneeling down, he called out in a great voice, "Lord, do not count this sin against them." And with these words he fell asleep.[v]

Notes

- a (7:2) Haran: in northern Mesopotamia; compare Gen 11:31–12:4.
- b (7:3) Gen 12:1.
- c (7:7) Gen 15:13–14, with Exod 3:12.
- d (7:14) Seventy-five persons: so the Greek Old Testament of Gen 46:27 and Exod 1:5; the Hebrew text has seventy.
- e (7:16) The account combines Abraham's purchase at Hebron (Gen 23:16–20) with Jacob's purchase at Shechem from the sons of Hamor (Gen 33:19; Josh 24:32).
- f (7:20) Beautiful in God's sight: or "exceedingly fair"; compare Exod 2:2.
- g (7:28) Exod 2:14.
- h (7:34) Exod 3:5–10. In the Hebrew text, "the Lord" in 7:31 and 7:33 is Yahweh.
- i (7:36) Red Sea: Greek erythra thalassa; the Hebrew is yam suph, "Sea of Reeds."
- j (7:37) Deut 18:15. Many later manuscripts add "the Lord" before "God" and "listen to him" at the end.
- k (7:38) Assembly: Greek ekklēsia, the word rendered "church" elsewhere.
- l (7:38) To you: many manuscripts read "to us."
- m (7:40) Exod 32:1, 23.
- n (7:43) Rompha: so the Westcott–Hort text; other manuscripts spell the name Rephan, Remphan, or Raiphan. It renders, in the Greek Old Testament, the Hebrew Kiyyun (probably the planet Saturn) of Amos 5:26. The name's origin is uncertain.
- o (7:43) Amos 5:25–27 (Greek), with "Babylon" in place of "Damascus."
- p (7:45) Joshua: Greek Iēsous, the Greek form of the Hebrew name Joshua, "Yahweh saves."
- q (7:46) God of Jacob: so the Westcott–Hort text, with Alexandrinus and many others; Sinaiticus, Vaticanus, and Codex Bezae read "house of Jacob," which NA and SBLGNT print. Compare Ps 132:5.

- r (7:50) Isa 66:1–2. In the Hebrew text, “the Lord” is Yahweh.
- s (7:53) As ordained by angels: or “by the directions of angels”; compare Gal 3:19; Heb 2:2.
- t (7:54) Cut to the heart: literally “sawn through in their hearts,” as in 5:33.
- u (7:58) Saul: Hebrew Sha’ul, “asked for.”
- v (7:60) Fell asleep: that is, died.

Chapter 8

1 And Saul was giving approval to his killing.

And there arose on that day a severe persecution of the church at Jerusalem; and everyone but the apostles was dispersed across the countryside of Judea and Samaria.

2 Devout men buried Stephen and raised a loud lament over him.

3 But Saul was ravaging the church; going in house after house and dragging off both men and women, he would commit them to prison.

4 Those who had been scattered traveled from place to place, spreading the message of the good news. 5 Philip went down to the city[a] of Samaria and began preaching the Messiah to them. 6 And with one mind the crowds paid heed to what Philip said, as they listened and watched the signs he was doing. 7 For from many who had unclean spirits, the spirits came out shrieking with a loud cry, and many paralyzed and lame people were cured. 8 So there was much joy in that city.

9 But a certain man named Simon had for some time been practicing magic in the city and astounding the nation of Samaria, claiming to be someone great. 10 Everyone, from the least to the greatest, gave heed to him and said, “This man is the power of God called Great.” 11 They gave heed to him because for a long time he had amazed them with his magic arts. 12 But when Philip announced the good news of the kingdom of God and the name of Jesus Christ, they believed him, and men and women were baptized. 13 Even Simon himself believed; and after his baptism he stayed close to Philip constantly, and watching the signs and great miracles taking place, he was astounded.

14 Now the apostles at Jerusalem, on hearing that the people of Samaria had welcomed God’s word, dispatched Peter and John to them. 15 These went down and prayed for them, so that they might receive the Holy Spirit; 16 since as yet the Spirit had come down on none of them; they had simply been baptized into the name of the Lord Jesus. 17 Then they laid their hands on them, and they received the Holy Spirit. 18 Now when Simon saw that it was through the laying on of the apostles' hands that the Spirit was given, he offered them money, 19 and said, "Grant me also this power, so that whoever has my hands laid on him will receive the Holy Spirit." 20 But Peter said to him, "May your silver perish along with you, because you thought the gift of God could be bought with money! 21 In this word you have neither portion nor lot,[b] because before God your heart is not upright.

22 So turn from this evil of yours, and plead with the Lord in the hope that the purpose in your heart might perhaps be pardoned. 23 For I see that you are in the gall of bitterness[c] and the bond of wrongdoing." 24 Simon replied, "Please pray to the Lord for me, so that nothing you have said will come upon me."[d] 25 So when they had borne their witness and declared the Lord's word, they made their way back toward Jerusalem, and in many Samaritan villages they announced the gospel.
26 And the Lord's angel spoke to Philip: "Rise and make your way southward[e] along the road running down from Jerusalem to Gaza." (It is a desert road.)[f] 27 He rose and went. And there was a man of Ethiopia,[g] a eunuch, a high officer under the Candace,[h] the Ethiopians' queen, set over her entire treasure, who had made the journey to Jerusalem to worship 28 and was returning, seated in his chariot and reading the prophet Isaiah.
29 The Spirit said to Philip, "Go up and stay close to that chariot." 30 So Philip ran up and heard him reading Isaiah the prophet, and asked, "Do you really understand what you are reading?" 31 "How could I," he replied, "without someone to lead me in it?" And he begged Philip to climb up and sit beside him.
32 The passage of Scripture he was reading said:

"He was led like a sheep to be slaughtered, and like a lamb that is silent before its shearer,
he does not open his mouth.

33 In his humiliation justice was denied him.[i]
Who will tell of his generation?
For his life is taken away from the earth."[j] 34 And the eunuch said to Philip in reply, "Tell me, please: about whom does the prophet say this — about himself, or about someone else?" 35 Then Philip began to speak, and starting from this very Scripture he proclaimed Jesus to him.
36 As they went along the road they came to some water, and the eunuch said, "Look, here is water! What prevents me from being baptized?"
37 [k]
38 He gave an order to stop the chariot. Then Philip and the eunuch both went down into the water, and Philip baptized him.
39 When they came up out of the water, the Spirit of the Lord snatched Philip away,[l] and the eunuch saw him no more, for he went on his way rejoicing.
40 But Philip found himself at Azotus,[m] and passing through he preached the good news in all the towns until he came to Caesarea.

Notes

- a (8:5) The city: so the Westcott–Hort text, with the earliest manuscripts; many others read "a city." The city may be Sebaste, the old capital Samaria.
- b (8:21) Matter: literally "word."
- c (8:23) Gall of bitterness: compare Deut 29:18 (Greek).
- d (8:24) Codex Bezae adds that Simon "did not stop weeping profusely."
- e (8:26) Toward the south: or "at noon" (kata mesēmbrian).
- f (8:26) This is a desert road: or "This city is deserted," referring to Gaza.
- g (8:27) Ethiopian: from Greek Aithiops, "burnt-face"; here the kingdom of Meroë on the upper Nile, south of Egypt.
- h (8:27) Candace: a title of the queen mother of Ethiopia, not a personal name.
- i (8:33) Justice was denied him: literally "his judgment was taken away."
- j (8:33) Isa 53:7–8 (Greek).
- k (8:37) The earliest and most important manuscripts do not include verse 37; the number is kept here only to preserve the traditional verse numbering. Some later manuscripts, mostly of the Western type, add, "And Philip said, 'If you believe with all your heart, you may.' And he replied, 'I believe that Jesus Christ is the Son of God.'" The verse is not in the Byzantine majority text, but entered the printed editions from Erasmus.

- l (8:39) Snatched Philip away: Codex Alexandrinus and some others read, "the Holy Spirit fell upon the eunuch, and an angel of the Lord snatched Philip away."
- m (8:40) Azotus: the Philistine city Ashdod.

Chapter 9

1 Meanwhile Saul, still breathing threats and murder against the disciples of the Lord, went to the high priest 2 and requested from him letters addressed to the synagogues in Damascus, so that any he should find who were of the Way, men or women, he could lead bound to Jerusalem. 3 As he traveled and was approaching Damascus, suddenly a light out of heaven flashed all around him. 4 Falling to the ground, he heard a voice saying to him, "Saul, Saul,[a] why are you persecuting me?" 5 He asked, "Who are you, Lord?" And he said, "I am Jesus, whom you are persecuting.[b] 6 But rise and go into the city, and you will be told what you must do." 7 The men traveling with him stood there speechless, hearing the voice but seeing no one. 8 Saul rose from the ground, yet with his eyes open he saw nothing; and taking him by the hand they guided him into Damascus. 9 For three days he was without sight, and he neither ate nor drank.
10 Now there was a disciple at Damascus named Ananias. The Lord said to him in a vision, "Ananias." And he said, "Here I am, Lord." 11 And the Lord told him, "Rise, go to the street they call Straight, and inquire in the house of Judas after one Saul, from Tarsus; for he is at prayer,
12 and he has seen [in a vision] a man by the name of Ananias entering and placing his hands upon him, that his sight might return." 13 But Ananias replied, "Lord, many have told me of this man and of all the evil things he did to your holy ones[c] in Jerusalem; 14 and here he holds authority from the chief priests to bind all who call on your name."
15 But the Lord said to him, "Go, for this man is a vessel of my choosing, to carry my name before the Gentiles and kings and the sons of Israel.
16 For I myself will show him all that he is bound to suffer on behalf of my name."

17 So Ananias went off to that house. Laying his hands on Saul, he said, "Brother Saul, I am sent by the Lord, by Jesus himself, who appeared to you along the road you took here. He wants you to see again and to be filled with the Holy Spirit." 18 And at once there fell from his eyes what looked like scales, and his sight came back; he rose and was baptized, 19 and after taking food he was strengthened.

For some days he was with the disciples in Damascus, 20 and immediately in the synagogues he began proclaiming Jesus, that he is the Son of God.
21 And all his hearers were astonished, saying, "Isn't this the one who brought havoc in Jerusalem upon those calling on this name? And didn't he come here just to take them in chains to the chief priests?" 22 But Saul kept growing stronger, and threw the Jews dwelling in Damascus into confusion, showing for certain that this one is the Messiah.
23 After many days had gone by, the Jews plotted together to kill him, 24 But Saul came to know of their plan. Day and night they kept watch even on the gates, so as to do away with him; 25 but his disciples took him by night and let him down through an opening in the wall,[d] lowering him in a basket.
26 On reaching Jerusalem he tried to associate with the disciples. Yet every one of them feared him, because they could not believe he was truly a disciple. 27 Barnabas, however, took Saul to the apostles. He explained how Saul had seen the Lord on the road, how the Lord had spoken to him, and how in Damascus he had preached boldly in the name of Jesus. 28 So he was with them, going in and out at Jerusalem, speaking boldly in the name of the Lord. 29 He was speaking and debating with the Hellenists; but they were attempting to kill him. 30
When the brothers learned of it, they brought him down to Caesarea and sent him off to Tarsus.
31 Meanwhile the church in all of Judea, Galilee, and Samaria had a period of calm. It grew stronger and, as people lived in awe of the Lord and were encouraged by the Holy Spirit, it kept increasing in numbers.

32 As Peter traveled around the country, he went to visit God's holy people who lived in Lydda. 33 And he came upon a man there named Aeneas, who had lain on a cot for eight years, being paralyzed. 34 And Peter said to him, "Aeneas, Jesus Christ heals you; get up and make your bed."[e] And immediately he got up. 35 And everyone living in Lydda and in Sharon saw him, and they turned to the Lord.
36 And there lived in Joppa a certain disciple, Tabitha by name, or in translation, Dorcas.[f] She was rich in good deeds and in the alms she gave. 37 In those days she fell sick and died; and when they had washed her, they laid her in an upstairs room. 38 Since Lydda was near Joppa, the disciples, hearing that Peter was there, sent two men to him to urge him, "Please come to us without delay." 39 So Peter got up and accompanied them. On his arrival they brought him up into the upper room, and all the widows came to stand by him in tears, displaying the shirts and cloaks Dorcas had sewn while she was still with them. 40 But Peter put them all outside, knelt down and prayed; then, turning to the body, he said, "Tabitha, get up." And she opened her eyes, and seeing Peter she sat up. 41 He gave her his hand and raised her up.
Then calling the holy ones and widows, he presented her alive. 42 This became known throughout all Joppa, and many believed in the Lord.
43 And it came about that he remained a good while in Joppa, with one Simon, a tanner.

Notes

- a (9:4) Saul: here Greek Saoul, the Hebrew form of the name; so also in 9:17.
- b (9:5) Persecuting: some late manuscripts and the Latin Vulgate add here, "It is hard for you to kick against the goads" (compare 26:14), and continue in verse 6, "And trembling and astonished he said, 'Lord, what do you want me to do?' And the Lord said to him." These words are not found in any known Greek manuscript of this passage except as a late correction; they entered the printed editions from Erasmus, who translated them from the Latin.
- c (9:13) Holy ones: or "saints" (hagioi), a common name for believers.
- d (9:25) Through an opening in the wall: literally "through the wall"; compare 2 Cor 11:32–33.
- e (9:34) Make your bed: or "prepare a meal for yourself"; literally "spread for yourself."
- f (9:36) Tabitha … Dorcas: both names mean "gazelle," the first in Aramaic, the second in Greek.

Chapter 10

1 There was in Caesarea a man named Cornelius, a centurion[a] of the cohort known as the Italian Cohort, 2 a devout man who feared God, as did his whole household; he gave many alms to the people and prayed to God without ceasing. 3 One afternoon, at about three o'clock,[b] he clearly saw in a vision an angel of God coming to him and calling, "Cornelius!" 4 Staring at him in fright, he said, "What is it, Lord?" And the angel told him, "Your prayers and your alms have gone up as a memorial before God. 5 Now then, send men to Joppa and summon one Simon, who is also called Peter. 6 He is lodging with a certain Simon, a tanner, whose house lies by the sea." 7 When the angel who had spoken to him was gone, he called two of his household servants and a devout soldier from among those in attendance on him, 8 and having explained everything to them, he sent them off to Joppa.

9 The next day, while they were traveling and approaching the city, Peter went up on the roof to pray at about noon.[c] 10 He grew hungry and wanted something to eat; and while it was being made ready, a trance[d] came over him. 11 He beheld the sky opened and some object descending, like a great linen sheet, let down by its four corners to the earth. 12 In it were all kinds of four-footed animals and creeping things of the earth, and birds of the sky. 13 And there came a voice to him: "Up, Peter; slaughter and eat." 14 But Peter said, "By no means, Lord; for never have I eaten anything common[e] or unclean." 15 And the voice came to him a second time: "What God has made clean, you must not call common." 16 This happened three times, and at once the object was taken up into the sky.

17 While Peter was inwardly perplexed as to what the vision he had seen could mean, look — the men sent by Cornelius, having asked their way to Simon's house, were standing at the gate.

18 They called out and inquired whether Simon who was called Peter was staying there as a guest.

19 And as Peter was still turning the vision over in his mind, the Spirit said, "Look, two[f] men are seeking you.

20 Rise, then, go down, and travel with them, not hesitating at all; for I have sent them."
21 So Peter went down to the men and said, "Here I am, the man you are looking for. Why have you come?" 22 They answered, "We come from Cornelius, a centurion. He is an upright man who worships God and is respected by the whole Jewish nation. A holy angel instructed him to invite you to his house and listen to what you have to say."
23 Then Peter called them inside and had them stay as his guests.

On the morrow he got up and went off with them, accompanied by some of the brothers from Joppa.
24 And the day after that he arrived in Caesarea, where Cornelius was awaiting them, having invited his kinsmen and his intimate friends to join him.
25 As Peter was coming in, Cornelius met him, fell at his feet, and paid him homage.
26 But Peter lifted him up, saying, "Stand up; I too am only a man."
27 And talking with him, he went in and found many gathered, 28 And he told them, "You know well that for a Jewish man to keep company with a foreigner or to go to his house is forbidden; but God has shown me to call no person common or unclean.
29 That is why, when I was sent for, I came without objection. So I ask: for what reason did you send for me?" 30 And Cornelius said, "Four days ago, at this very hour, I was praying in my house at three in the afternoon;[g] and look, a man in shining clothing stood before me 31 and said, 'Cornelius, God has listened to your prayer, and he has called your alms to mind.
32 So send to Joppa and invite Simon, whose other name is Peter, to come; he is a guest at the house of Simon the tanner beside the sea.'[h] 33 So I sent for you without delay, and you did well to come. And now all of us are present before God to listen to everything the Lord has instructed you to say."

34 Then Peter began to speak: “Truly I perceive that God shows no partiality, 35 rather, whoever in any nation fears him and practices righteousness is welcome to him. 36 The word he sent to the sons of Israel, preaching the good news of peace through Jesus Christ — he is Lord of all —[i] 37 that word you yourselves know, which spread through all Judea, beginning from Galilee after the baptism that John proclaimed: 38 You know how God anointed Jesus of Nazareth with the Holy Spirit and power, and how Jesus went around doing good and healing everyone who was under the devil’s power, because God was with him. 39 And we are witnesses of all that he did, both in the country of the Jews and in Jerusalem. Him they put to death by hanging him on a tree; 40 but God raised him on the third day and granted that he be made manifest, 41 not to all the people, but to witnesses chosen beforehand by God — to us, who ate and drank with him after he rose from the dead. 42 And he ordered us to proclaim to the people and bear solemn witness that this is the one whom God has ordained to judge both living and dead. 43 All the prophets testify about him, that everyone who believes in him receives forgiveness of sins through his name.” 44 Peter was still uttering these words when the Holy Spirit fell on all who were listening to the message. 45 And the circumcised believers who had accompanied Peter were astonished, because upon the Gentiles as well the gift of the Holy Spirit had been poured. 46 for they heard them speaking in tongues and magnifying God. Then Peter declared, 47 “Surely no one can refuse the water, that these should not be baptized, who have received the Holy Spirit as we did?” 48 And he commanded them to be baptized in the name of Jesus Christ. Then they asked him to remain for some days.

Notes

- a (10:1) Centurion: a Roman officer in command of about a hundred soldiers.
- b (10:3) About three o’clock one afternoon: literally “about the ninth hour of the day,” the hour of prayer (3:1).
- c (10:9) About noon: literally “about the sixth hour.”
- d (10:10) Trance: Greek ekstasis.
- e (10:14) Common: that is, ritually unclean; Greek koinos.

- f (10:19) Two: so the Westcott–Hort text, with Vaticanus; most manuscripts read "three" (compare 11:11), and some omit the number.
- g (10:30) Three in the afternoon: literally "the ninth hour." The Greek of this sentence is difficult; many manuscripts read "Four days ago I was fasting until this hour, and at the ninth hour I was praying."
- h (10:32) By the sea: many later manuscripts add "When he comes he will speak to you."
- i (10:36) The Greek of 10:36–37 is irregular, and the sentence may be read in several ways. Some manuscripts omit "which" (hon) in 10:36, making it read, "He sent the word to the sons of Israel."

Chapter 11

1 Now the apostles and the brothers who were throughout Judea heard that the Gentiles too had received the word of God. 2 So when Peter went up to Jerusalem, the believers who held to circumcision[a] criticized him, 3 saying, "You went in to uncircumcised men and ate with them." 4 But Peter began and set the matter out before them in order, saying, 5 "I was in the city of Joppa praying, and in a trance I saw a vision: an object was coming down, like a great sheet lowered by its four corners out of the sky, and it came right down to me. 6 Gazing into it I looked closely, and I saw four-footed creatures of the earth, wild beasts, reptiles, and birds of the sky. 7 And I also heard a voice telling me, 'Up, Peter; slaughter and eat.' 8 But I answered, 'Never, Lord; for nothing common or unclean has once entered my mouth.' 9 And the voice from the sky answered again: 'The things God has cleansed, you are not to treat as common.' 10 Three times this occurred, and then all of it was pulled up again into the sky. 11 And look, at that moment three men, sent from Caesarea to me, came and stood before the house in which we were. 12 The Spirit told me to go with them without hesitating.[b] These six brothers came with me too, and we went into the man's house. 13 And he reported to us how he saw the angel stand in his house and say, 'Dispatch men to Joppa and fetch Simon, surnamed Peter; 14 he will tell you things through which you and your whole house will be saved.' 15 And when I had begun to speak, the Holy Spirit came down upon them, even as upon us in the beginning. 16 Then I recalled what the Lord had said: 'John baptized with water, whereas you shall be baptized in the Holy Spirit.' 17 So if God gave them the same gift he gave us when we believed in the Lord Jesus Christ, who was I to stand in God's way?" 18 At hearing this they quieted down, and they gave glory to God: "Then even to the Gentiles God has given the repentance that brings life."

19 Now those who had been scattered by the persecution that began with Stephen traveled as far as Phoenicia, Cyprus, and Antioch, sharing the message only with Jews. 20 Some of them, however, were from Cyprus and Cyrene. When they reached Antioch, they also spoke to the Greek-speaking people,[c] telling them the good news about the Lord Jesus. 21 And the hand of the Lord was with them, and a great number believed and turned to the Lord. 22 News of this came to the ears of the church in Jerusalem, and they sent Barnabas off to Antioch. 23 On arriving he saw the grace that God had given, and he was glad, and he urged everyone to cling to the Lord with a resolute heart; 24 He was a good man, full of the Holy Spirit and faith. And a great many people were brought to the Lord. 25 Then he went off to Tarsus to look for Saul, 26 and when he had found him, he brought him to Antioch. For a whole year they met with the church and taught a large company; and it was in Antioch that the disciples were first called Christians.[d]

27 In these days prophets came down from Jerusalem to Antioch.[e] 28 And one of them, Agabus by name, rose and signified through the Spirit that a great famine was about to come upon the whole world;[f] and it came in the time of Claudius. 29 So the disciples determined, each according to his ability, to send relief to the brothers living in Judea. 30 This they did, sending it to the elders by the hand of Barnabas and Saul.

Notes

- a (11:2) Those of the circumcision: that is, Jewish believers who insisted on circumcision for Gentile converts; or simply "the circumcised believers." Codex Bezae greatly expands 11:1–2, telling how Peter, after long delay, journeyed to Jerusalem teaching along the way.
- b (11:12) Making no distinction: or "without hesitating"; some manuscripts omit the phrase.

- c (11:20) Hellenists: so the Westcott–Hort text, with Vaticanus and most manuscripts; others, including Alexandrinus and Codex Bezae, read "Greeks," which suits the context better and is followed by many translations.
- d (11:26) Christians: Greek Christianoi, "partisans of Christ" (Christos, "Anointed").
- e (11:27) Antioch: Codex Bezae here begins one of its "we" passages: "and there was great rejoicing; and when we were gathered together, one of them…."
- f (11:28) World: Greek oikoumenē, "the inhabited earth," that is, the Roman world. A severe famine struck Judea about AD 46–48.

Chapter 12

1 At about that season Herod the king[a] set his hand to mistreat certain members of the church. 2 James the brother of John he put to death with the sword; 3 and when he saw that this pleased the Jews, he went further and had Peter seized as well. (These were the days of Unleavened Bread.) 4 After seizing him, Herod put him in prison and assigned four teams of four soldiers each to guard him. He planned to bring him out for public trial after the Passover. 5 So Peter was kept under guard in the prison; but earnest prayer for him was being made to God by the church. 6 On the very night before Herod was going to bring him out, Peter lay sleeping between two soldiers, bound with two chains, while sentries in front of the door kept watch over the prison. 7 Suddenly an angel of the Lord appeared, and light flooded the cell. The angel tapped Peter's side to wake him and said, "Hurry, get up!" And the chains dropped from his hands. 8 The angel said to him, "Fasten your belt and tie on your sandals." He did so. Then the angel told him, "Throw your cloak around you and follow me." 9 And he went out and followed, not knowing that what the angel was doing was real; he thought he was seeing a vision. 10 They passed the first guard and then the second, and came to the iron gate to the city. It swung open for them by itself, and they went out and walked down one street.[b] Then suddenly the angel left him. 11 Peter then realized what had happened. He said, "Now I am sure that the Lord sent his angel and saved me from Herod's power and from everything the Jewish people were hoping for."
12 When he had grasped this, he went to the house of Mary, the mother of John whose other name was Mark, where a good number had gathered and were praying. 13 He knocked at the door of the gateway, and a servant girl named Rhoda[c] came to answer. 14 She knew Peter's voice, and for sheer gladness she left the gate unopened, running inside instead to report that Peter stood outside. 15 "You are out of your mind," they told her. But she kept insisting it was so. They said, "It is his angel." 16 Meanwhile Peter kept on knocking; and when they opened, they saw him and were amazed. 17 Motioning to them with his hand to be quiet, he related how the Lord had brought him out of the prison. And he said, "Tell these things to James and to the brothers."

Then he left and went to another place.
18 With the coming of daylight the soldiers were in no little uproar: what, then, had happened to Peter? 19 Herod searched for him, and when he could not find him, he examined the guards and ordered them led away to execution.[d] Then he went down from Judea to Caesarea and stayed there.
20 Now Herod was bitterly at odds with the Tyrians and Sidonians.
With one accord they presented themselves before him, and once they had persuaded Blastus, who was over the king's bedchamber, they sued for peace, since their land was fed from the king's land.
21 On a day fixed beforehand Herod, arrayed in kingly apparel and seated on the tribunal,[e] made an oration to them. 22 And the populace kept shouting, "The voice of a god, and not of a man!" 23 Instantly an angel of the Lord struck him down, because he did not give the glory to God; and he was eaten by worms and breathed his last.[f] 24 But the word of the Lord kept growing and multiplying. 25 And Barnabas and Saul returned to[g] Jerusalem when they had fulfilled their service, bringing with them John whose other name was Mark.

Notes

- a (12:1) Herod the king: Herod Agrippa I, grandson of Herod the Great, king of Judea AD 41–44.
- b (12:10) Street: Codex Bezae adds that they "went down the seven steps."
- c (12:13) Led away to execution: literally "led away," which in this context implies execution.
- d (12:19) Rhoda: "rose."
- e (12:21) Platform: Greek bēma, a raised speaker's platform or judgment seat.

- f (12:23) Josephus also records Agrippa's sudden death at Caesarea in AD 44 (Antiquities 19.343–50).
- g (12:25) Returned to: so the Westcott–Hort text, with Sinaiticus, Vaticanus, and most manuscripts (literally "returned, to Jerusalem"); because Barnabas and Saul had been sent to Jerusalem (11:30), many manuscripts read "from Jerusalem," and some editors join "to Jerusalem" with what follows: "returned, having fulfilled their service in Jerusalem."

Chapter 13

1 There were in Antioch, in the church that was there, prophets and teachers — Barnabas; Simeon, called Niger;[a] Lucius the Cyrenian; Manaen, a companion from boyhood of Herod the tetrarch;[b] and Saul. 2 As they were serving[c] the Lord and fasting, the Holy Spirit said, "Separate now to me Barnabas and Saul, for the work I have summoned them to." 3 So when they had fasted and prayed and placed their hands upon them, they released them.
4 So these two, sent out by the Holy Spirit, went down to Seleucia, and from there they sailed off to Cyprus. 5 Arriving at Salamis, they began announcing the word of God in the synagogues of the Jews; and they had John as their assistant. 6 Having gone through the whole island as far as Paphos, they came upon a magician, a Jewish false prophet whose name was Bar-Jesus.[d] 7 He was in the company of the proconsul, Sergius Paulus, a man of understanding, who summoned Barnabas and Saul and sought to hear the word of God. 8 But Elymas the magician (that is what his name means)[e] stood against them and tried to keep the proconsul from believing. 9 But Saul, also known as Paul,[f] filled with the Holy Spirit, fixed his eyes on him 10 and said, "Full of all trickery and all unscrupulousness, son of the devil, foe of everything right — will you never cease twisting the Lord's straight ways? 11 And now, see, the Lord's hand is against you: blind you shall be, unable for a season to look upon the sun." At once a mist and a darkness came down on him, and he went about seeking people to lead him by the hand. 12 Then the proconsul, seeing what had occurred, believed, struck with astonishment at the teaching about the Lord.

13 Setting sail from Paphos, Paul and those with him reached Perga in Pamphylia; John, however, parted from them and went back to Jerusalem.
14 They went on from Perga and came to Pisidian Antioch;[g] and on the sabbath day they went into the synagogue and took their seats.
15 Once the Law and the Prophets had been read aloud, the synagogue rulers sent them a message: "Brothers, if there is among you any word of encouragement for the people, say it." 16 So Paul stood up and, motioning with his hand, said:
"Men of Israel, and you who fear God,[h] listen.
17 The God of this people Israel chose our fathers, and made the people great during their sojourn in the land of Egypt, and with an uplifted arm he led them out of it.
18 For about forty years he put up with them[i] in the desert.
19 He wiped out seven nations in Canaan and distributed their territory to his people as an inheritance.
20 All this took roughly four hundred fifty years.[j] Afterward he provided judges for them, until the time of the prophet Samuel.
21 Then they asked for a king, and God gave them Saul the son of Kish, a man of the tribe of Benjamin, for forty years.
22 After removing Saul, he made David their king. God testified about him, saying, 'I have found David son of Jesse to be a man who pleases my heart; he will do everything I want him to do.'[k] 23 God has brought to Israel a Savior, Jesus, from this man's descendants, as he promised.
24 John having first proclaimed, before his coming, a baptism of repentance to all the people of Israel.
25 As John was finishing his work, he used to say, 'Who do you think I am? I am not the one. But someone is coming after me, and I am not even worthy to untie his sandals.' 26 "Brothers, sons of the family of Abraham, and those among you who fear God, to us[l] has the message of this salvation been sent.

27 For those dwelling in Jerusalem and their rulers, in ignorance of him and of the voices of the prophets read out sabbath after sabbath, brought those voices to fulfillment by their condemning him.
28 And though they found no ground for a sentence of death, they asked Pilate to have him executed.
29 When they had carried out everything that was written of him, they took him down from the tree and laid him in a tomb.
30 But God raised him from the dead, 31 and over a span of many days he was seen by the men who had gone up with him from Galilee to Jerusalem, who are [now] his witnesses to the people.
32 And as for us, we announce to you as good news the promise made to the fathers,
33 that this promise God has fully kept for us, their children,[m] in raising up Jesus, just as the second psalm[n] has it written:

'You are my Son;
today I have begotten you.'[o]

34 That he raised him up from among the dead, never again to go back to corruption, he declared thus: 'I will give you the holy things of David, the trustworthy ones.'[p] 35 Therefore he also says in another psalm, 'You will not let your Holy One see decay.'[q]
36 For David, when in his own generation he had ministered to God's purpose, fell asleep, was gathered to his fathers, and saw corruption; 37 but he whom God raised saw no corruption.
38 Be it known to you, then, brothers, that through this one release from sins is being announced to you, 39 and that by him everyone who believes is set free[r] from all the things from which you could not be set free by the Law of Moses.
40 Take care that what the prophets said does not happen to you:
41 'See, you despisers, and marvel, and vanish away;
for a deed I am doing in your days, a deed you will by no means believe, though one should recount it to you.'"[s]

42 As they were leaving, people[t] kept pleading that on the sabbath next following these words be spoken to them again.
43 When the synagogue gathering had dispersed, many Jews and devout converts went after Paul and Barnabas, who talked with them and persuaded them to abide in God's grace.
44 The sabbath after, nearly all the city came together to listen to the Lord's word.[u]
45 But when the Jews saw the crowds, they were filled with jealousy, and they contradicted what Paul was saying, reviling him.
46 Then Paul and Barnabas, speaking with all boldness, declared, "To you first the word of God had to be spoken. But since you push it away and reckon yourselves undeserving of life eternal, see, we turn now to the Gentiles.
47 For this is the Lord's command to us:
'I have made you a light of the nations, that you should be for salvation to the farthest end of the earth.'"[v] 48 When the Gentiles heard this, they began rejoicing and glorifying the word of God,[w] and as many as had been appointed to eternal life believed.
49 And the Lord's word was carried through all that country.
50 But the Jews worked upon the God-fearing women of rank and the foremost men of the town, raised a persecution against Paul and Barnabas, and threw them out of their borders.
51 But they shook off the dust of their feet against them and went to Iconium.
52 And the disciples were filled with joy and with the Holy Spirit.

Notes

- a (13:1) Niger: Latin, "black."
- b (13:1) Herod the tetrarch: Herod Antipas, ruler of Galilee and Perea (Luke 3:1); "brought up with" may mean "foster brother of" or "companion at court of."
- c (13:2) Worshiping: Greek leitourgountōn, "serving, ministering."
- d (13:6) Bar-Jesus: Aramaic, "son of Jesus (Joshua)."
- e (13:8) That is how his name is translated: the connection between "Elymas" and "magician" is uncertain; the name may come from an Aramaic or Arabic word for "sage" or "sorcerer." Codex Bezae reads "Etoimas."
- f (13:9) Paul: Latin Paulus, "small"; from here on Luke uses Saul's Roman name.

- g (13:14) Pisidian Antioch: literally “Antioch the Pisidian,” a city on the border of Pisidia in the Roman province of Galatia, distinct from Antioch in Syria.
- h (13:16) You who fear God: Gentiles who worshiped the God of Israel without becoming full proselytes.
- i (13:18) Put up with them: so the Westcott–Hort text (etropophorēsen); other manuscripts read etrophophorēsen, “cared for them.” Compare Deut 1:31 (Greek).
- j (13:20) About four hundred and fifty years: probably the 400 years in Egypt, 40 in the desert, and the period of the conquest. Many later manuscripts place this phrase after “And after that,” making it the period of the judges.
- k (13:22) Ps 89:20; 1 Sam 13:14; Isa 44:28.
- l (13:26) To us: so the Westcott–Hort text, with the earliest manuscripts; many manuscripts read “to you.”
- m (13:33) For us, their children: so the Westcott–Hort text, with the earliest manuscripts (literally “for our children”); many later manuscripts read “for us their children.” Some editions begin verse 33 at “this he has fulfilled,” as here; others, at “as also it is written.”
- n (13:33) The second psalm: Codex Bezae reads “the first psalm,” reflecting an ancient practice of counting Psalms 1 and 2 as one.
- o (13:33) Ps 2:7.
- p (13:34) Isa 55:3 (Greek).
- q (13:35) Ps 16:10 (Greek Ps 15:10).
- r (13:39) Set free: Greek dikaioutai, “is justified, is acquitted.”
- s (13:41) Hab 1:5 (Greek).
- t (13:42) The people: literally “they.” Many later manuscripts read, “As the Jews went out of the synagogue, the Gentiles begged.”
- u (13:44) Of the Lord: many manuscripts read “of God.”
- v (13:47) Isa 49:6. In the Hebrew text this is said to the Servant of Yahweh.
- w (13:48) Of God: so the Westcott–Hort text, with Vaticanus and Codex Bezae; many manuscripts read “of the Lord.”

Chapter 14

1 In Iconium it happened likewise: they entered the synagogue of the Jews and so spoke that a great multitude, Jews and Greeks alike, came to faith. 2 But the Jews who would not be persuaded[a] roused the minds of the Gentiles and poisoned them against the brothers.
3 So they stayed there for a considerable time, speaking boldly and trusting in the Lord. He supported the message of his grace by letting them perform signs and wonders. 4 And the population of the city was split: some sided with the Jews, some with the apostles. 5 When a move was afoot among Gentiles and Jews, together with their rulers, to abuse them and stone them, 6 they learned of it and fled for refuge to the Lycaonian towns of Lystra and Derbe and the country round about, 7 and there they went on telling the good news.[b] 8 Now at Lystra a certain man sat who had no strength in his feet, lame since his mother's womb, one who had never walked. 9 This man was listening as Paul spoke; and Paul, looking at him intently and seeing that he had faith to be made well, 10 and shouted, "Get up and stand on your feet!" At that, the man sprang up and started walking around. 11 When the crowds saw what Paul had done, they lifted up their voices, crying in Lycaonian, "The gods have come down to us in human likeness!" 12 Barnabas they called Zeus, and Paul Hermes,[c] since it was he who led in speaking. 13 And the priest of Zeus, whose temple stood before the city,[d] brought bulls and garlands to the gates and with the crowds was ready to offer sacrifice. 14 When the apostles Barnabas and Paul heard about this, they tore their clothes and ran into the crowd, shouting, 15 "Men, why are you doing this? We too are mortals, with feelings like your own, and we bring you good news: that from these empty things you should turn to a living God, who made heaven and earth and sea and everything in them. 16 In the generations gone by he let all the nations go their own ways; 17 and yet he did not leave himself without witness, for he did you good — giving you rains from heaven and fruitful seasons, filling your hearts with food and gladness." 18 Even with these words they barely restrained the crowds from sacrificing to them.

19 But Jews arrived from Antioch and Iconium, and having won the crowds over, they stoned Paul and dragged him outside the city, supposing him dead. 20 But the disciples formed a circle about him, and he rose and walked back into the town; and the next day he left with Barnabas for Derbe.
21 After evangelizing that town and making a good many disciples, they retraced their way to Lystra, Iconium, and Antioch, 22 strengthening the souls of the disciples, encouraging them to hold fast to the faith, and telling them that it is through many afflictions that we must enter the kingdom of God. 23 They chose[e] elders for them church by church, and after praying and fasting they committed them to the Lord on whom their faith rested. 24 Then they traveled through Pisidia and reached Pamphylia; 25 and after speaking the word in Perga, they went down to Attalia. 26 Thence they sailed off to Antioch, the place where they had first been handed over to God's grace for the task that they had now fulfilled. 27 On arriving, they assembled the church and told them all that God had accomplished through them, and how he had opened the door of faith to the Gentiles. 28 And they spent no little time with the disciples.

Notes

- a (14:2) Who would not be persuaded: or "who disobeyed"; Greek apeithēsantes. Codex Bezae expands 14:2, saying that the synagogue leaders stirred up persecution, "but the Lord soon gave peace."
- b (14:7) Codex Bezae adds that the whole populace was stirred by the teaching, and that Paul and Barnabas stayed on in Lystra.
- c (14:12) Zeus ... Hermes: chief of the Greek gods, and the messenger of the gods. A local legend told of Zeus and Hermes visiting this region in human form.
- d (14:13) Whose temple stood before the city: literally "of Zeus who was before the city," a title of the god of the shrine outside the gates.
- e (14:23) Appointed: Greek cheirotonēsantes, originally "electing by a show of hands," but by this time also "appointing."

Chapter 15

1 Some men came down from Judea and kept teaching the brothers, "Unless you are circumcised according to the custom of Moses, you cannot be saved."[a] 2 And when Paul and Barnabas had come into no small dissension and debate with them, it was arranged that Paul and Barnabas and certain others of their number should go up to Jerusalem, to the apostles and elders, about this question. 3 So, sent on their way by the church, they passed through both Phoenicia and Samaria, telling in full of the conversion of the Gentiles, and brought great joy to all the brothers. 4 On their arrival in Jerusalem the church, the apostles, and the elders received them, and they told over everything God had accomplished with them. 5 Some, however, from the Pharisees' sect who had come to believe stood up and declared, "They must be circumcised, and charged to observe Moses' Law." 6 So the apostles and elders met together to consider this question. 7
After a long discussion, Peter stood up and told them, "Brothers, you know that some time ago God chose me from among you to bring the message of the gospel to the Gentiles, so that they would hear it and believe. 8 And God, the knower of hearts, testified for them, granting them the Holy Spirit even as he granted him to us; 9 and he set no difference at all between them and us, when by faith he purified their hearts. 10 Now, then, why are you putting God to the test by laying on the neck of the disciples a yoke that neither our fathers nor we have had strength to bear? 11 No — it is through the grace of the Lord Jesus that we believe we are saved, in the same way as they."

12 The whole assembly fell silent, and they listened while Barnabas and Paul related what signs and wonders God had done among the Gentiles through them.

13 After they finished speaking, James answered, "Brothers, hear me.
14 Simeon[b] has related how God first took thought to take from among the Gentiles a people for his name.
15 With this the words of the prophets agree, as it stands written, 16 'After this I will return, and I will rebuild the fallen tent of David;
its ruins I will rebuild,
and I will set it upright again, 17 that those remaining of mankind may search out the Lord, and every nation upon whom my name is called,
says the Lord, who does these things, 18 known from of old.'[c]

19 My judgment, therefore, is that we should not make trouble for those among the Gentiles who are turning to God, 20 but should write to them to keep away from the pollutions of idols and from sexual immorality and from what is strangled and from blood.[d]
21 For Moses has had people preaching his Law in every city since ancient times, and it is read aloud in the synagogues every Sabbath."

22 Then the apostles and elders, with the agreement of the whole church, chose men from among their own number to send to Antioch along with Paul and Barnabas. They were Judas, called Barsabbas,[e] and Silas,[f] two men who held leading positions among the believers.

23 with this letter in their hand:[g]

"The apostles and the elders, your brothers, to the brothers of Gentile origin in Antioch and Syria and Cilicia: greetings.
24 Since we have heard that certain persons from among us, to whom we gave no instructions, have unsettled you with words, upsetting your minds,[h]
25 we have resolved, having come to one mind, to choose men and send them to you along with our beloved Barnabas and Paul, 26 men who have handed over their lives for the name of our Lord Jesus Christ.
27 We have therefore sent Judas and Silas, who will tell you the same things by word of mouth.
28 For it has seemed good to the Holy Spirit and to us to lay upon you no further burden than these necessary things:
29 keep away from food offered to idols, from blood, from things strangled, and from fornication. Guard yourselves against these and it will be well with you.[i] Be strong in health."
30 So when they had been sent off, they went down to Antioch, and having gathered the assembly together, they delivered the letter. 31 And when they had read it, they rejoiced at the encouragement. 32 And Judas and Silas, who were themselves also prophets, encouraged the brothers with many words and strengthened them. 33 And when they had passed some time there, the brothers released them with a blessing of peace to return to the ones who sent them. 34 [j] 35 But Paul and Barnabas stayed on in Antioch, teaching and proclaiming, with many others also, the word of the Lord.
36 Some days later Paul told Barnabas, "We should return and check on the believers in every town where we announced the word of the Lord, to find out how they are doing." 37 Barnabas wanted to take along with them John also, who was called Mark. 38 Paul, however, did not consider it fitting to bring along the man who had deserted them back in Pamphylia and had not stayed with them for the work. 39 And there arose a sharp disagreement, so that they parted company; Barnabas took Mark and sailed off to Cyprus, 40 but Paul chose Silas and departed, commended by the brothers to the grace of the Lord.[k] 41 And he went through Syria and Cilicia, strengthening the churches.

Notes

- a (15:1) Codex Bezae adds "and walk according to the custom of Moses," and in 15:2 says that Paul had told them to remain as they were when they believed.
- b (15:14) Simeon: Peter's Hebrew name, Shimon, "he has heard."
- c (15:18) Amos 9:11–12 (Greek), with Isa 45:21. The Hebrew of Amos 9:12 reads "that they may possess the remnant of Edom." For "known from of old," many later manuscripts read "Known to God from of old are all his works."
- d (15:20) The Western text (Codex Bezae and others) omits "what is strangled" here and in 15:29, and adds the negative Golden Rule: "and not to do to others what they would not want done to themselves." This turns the decree from food laws into moral precepts (idolatry, immorality, bloodshed).
- e (15:22) Barsabbas: probably "son of the sabbath"; the meaning is uncertain.
- f (15:22) Silas: a Semitic name, perhaps from Aramaic sheila, "asked"; Paul calls him Silvanus (1 Thess 1:1). The meaning is uncertain.
- g (15:23) With this letter in their hand: literally "having written by their hand."
- h (15:24) Many later manuscripts add "saying, 'You must be circumcised and keep the Law.'"
- i (15:29) You will do well: Codex Bezae adds "being borne along by the Holy Spirit."
- j (15:34) Verse 34: the Westcott–Hort text and the earliest manuscripts do not include verse 34; the number is kept here only to preserve the traditional verse numbering. Some manuscripts, including Codex Bezae and Ephraemi, add "But it seemed good to Silas to remain there," and Bezae continues, "and Judas journeyed alone." The addition explains why Silas is in Antioch in 15:40.
- k (15:40) Of the Lord: many manuscripts read "of God."

Chapter 16

1 He arrived too at Derbe, and at Lystra. A certain disciple was there by the name of Timothy,[a] whose mother was a believing Jewess, while his father was Greek. 2 The brothers in Lystra and Iconium gave a good report of him. 3 Paul wanted him to go with him; and he took him and circumcised him on account of the Jews who were in those places, for they all knew that his father was a Greek. 4 As they traveled from town to town, they passed on to the believers the decisions made by the apostles and elders in Jerusalem, for them to follow. 5 So the churches were strengthened in the faith and grew in numbers daily. 6 They went through the region of Phrygia and Galatia,[b] having been forbidden by the Holy Spirit to speak the word in Asia.[c] 7 When they had come opposite Mysia, they tried to go into Bithynia, but the Spirit of Jesus[d] did not allow them. 8 So, passing by Mysia, they went down to Troas. 9 And a vision appeared to Paul in the night: a man of Macedonia was standing there, pleading with him and saying, "Cross over into Macedonia and help us." 10 As soon as Paul had seen the vision, we[e] tried to find passage to Macedonia, since we were sure that God had called us to give them the good news.

11 Setting sail, then, from Troas, we ran a straight course to Samothrace, and the following day to Neapolis, 12 and thence to Philippi, foremost city of that part of Macedonia,[f] a Roman colony. Some days we spent in this city. 13 And on the sabbath day we went outside the gate beside a river, where we supposed there was a place of prayer;[g] and sitting down, we spoke to the women who had come together. 14 Among our hearers was a God-fearing woman by the name of Lydia,[h] a seller of purple goods, from the city of Thyatira, whose heart the Lord opened to give heed to Paul's words. 15 And when she had been baptized, and her household, she urged us, saying, "If you have judged me to be faithful to the Lord, come into my house and stay." And she prevailed on us.

16 Once, on our way to the place of prayer, we encountered a slave girl possessed by a spirit of divination,[i] who by her soothsaying brought her masters large profits. 17 She followed Paul and the rest of us, shouting, "These men are servants of the Most High God, and they are telling you how to be saved." 18 This she kept doing for many days. Paul, greatly annoyed, turned and said to the spirit, "I command you in the name of Jesus Christ to come out of her." And it came out that very hour.

19 Her masters, seeing that the hope of their profits had departed, laid hold of Paul and Silas and hauled them to the marketplace in front of the authorities. 20 And having brought them to the magistrates,[j] they said, "These men are throwing our city into an uproar. They are Jews, 21 and they teach practices that we, being Romans, are not permitted to adopt or to observe." 22 The mob also rose up together against them, and the magistrates ripped their clothes from them and ordered them flogged with rods. 23 After beating them severely, they threw them into prison and told the jailer to guard them carefully. 24 He, on receiving an order like this, cast them into the innermost cell and made their feet fast in the wooden stocks.

25 About midnight Paul and Silas were praying and singing hymns to God, and the prisoners were listening to them, 26 and suddenly there was a great earthquake, so that the foundations of the prison were shaken; and [immediately] all the doors were opened, and everyone's bonds were unfastened. 27 When the jailer woke and saw the prison doors open, he drew his sword and was about to kill himself, supposing that the prisoners had escaped. 28 But Paul called out with a loud voice, "Do yourself no harm, for we are all here." 29 Calling for lights, the jailer sprang inside and, quaking, threw himself down before Paul and Silas. 30 Then he brought them out and said, "Sirs, what must I do to be saved?" 31 And they said, "Believe in the Lord Jesus, and you will be saved, you and your household." 32 And they spoke the word of the Lord[k] to him and to all who were in his house. 33 And taking them at that hour of the night, he bathed the stripes from their backs; and immediately he was baptized, he and all who were his. 34 Then, leading them up into his home, he spread a table before them, and with all his house he was full of joy at having come to believe in God.
35 But when it was day, the magistrates sent the police[l] with the message, "Let those men go." 36 And the jailer reported these words to Paul: "The magistrates have sent word to let you go. So come out now and go in peace." 37 But Paul answered them, "Without a trial they flogged us in public, Roman citizens though we are, and cast us into prison — and are they now to put us out quietly? Not at all! Let them come in person and escort us out." 38 The police reported these words to the magistrates, and they were afraid when they heard that they were Roman citizens. 39 So they came and pleaded with them, and bringing them out, they begged them to depart from the city.[m] 40 After leaving the prison, they went to Lydia's house. There they met with the believers and encouraged them, and then they left.

Notes

- a (16:1) Timothy: Greek, "honoring God."
- b (16:6) The region of Phrygia and Galatia: or "Phrygia and the Galatian region."

- c (16:6) Asia: the Roman province in western Asia Minor.
- d (16:7) The Spirit of Jesus: this unusual expression is in the earliest manuscripts; later manuscripts read simply "the Spirit."
- e (16:10) We: here the first of the "we" passages in Acts begins (16:10–17; 20:5–21:18; 27:1–28:16), traditionally taken to mean the author joined Paul.
- f (16:12) A leading city of the district of Macedonia: so the Westcott–Hort text (literally "first city of the part of Macedonia"); the Greek is difficult, and some editors adopt a conjectural reading, "a city of the first district of Macedonia." Macedonia was divided into four districts.
- g (16:13) Place of prayer: Greek proseuchē, often used of a synagogue.
- h (16:14) Lydia: a name meaning "the Lydian woman"; Thyatira was in the region of Lydia.
- i (16:16) A spirit of divination: literally "a spirit, a python," after the serpent Python of the oracle at Delphi.
- j (16:20) Magistrates: Greek stratēgoi, the chief officials of the colony.
- k (16:32) Police: Greek rhabdouchoi, "rod-bearers," the attendants of the magistrates (Latin lictores).
- l (16:35) Of the Lord: some early manuscripts read "of God."
- m (16:39) Codex Bezae greatly expands 16:35–40: the magistrates come "to the market place" and, "remembering the earthquake," are afraid; they beg Paul and Silas, "We did not know the truth about you, that you are righteous men," and ask them to leave lest the crowd turn on them again.

Chapter 17

1 Taking the road through Amphipolis and Apollonia, they arrived at Thessalonica, where the Jews had a synagogue. 2 Paul, as his habit was, went in among them, and over three sabbaths he reasoned with them out of the Scriptures, 3 He explained and showed that the Messiah had to suffer and rise from the dead. "This Jesus I am telling you about," he said, "is the Messiah." 4 Some of them were convinced and threw in their lot with Paul and Silas, as did a great crowd of God-fearing Greeks and not a few of the foremost women. 5 But the Jews grew jealous, and taking along some wicked fellows from the marketplace rabble, they gathered a mob and set the city in an uproar.
They descended on Jason's[a] house, seeking to bring Paul and Silas out to the people's assembly.[b] 6 Not finding them there, they dragged Jason and certain brothers before the city officials,[c] bawling out, "These men who have turned the world upside down have come here too, 7 and Jason has taken them in! They all act against the decrees of Caesar, saying there is another king, Jesus." [8] At these words both the crowd and the politarchs became agitated; [9] and only after taking security from Jason and the others did they let them go.

[10] Immediately, under cover of night, the brothers sent Paul and Silas away to Beroea, and on their arrival there they went off to the synagogue of the Jews. [11] These Jews were of nobler mind than those in Thessalonica: they took in the word with all eagerness, sifting the Scriptures day after day to see whether these things held true. [12] Many of them, therefore, became believers, along with no small number of Greek women of standing and of men. [13] But once the Jews of Thessalonica learned that the word of God had been proclaimed by Paul in Beroea too, there also they came, agitating and stirring up the crowds. [14] Then the brothers at once sent Paul off to make his way to the sea, while Silas and Timothy stayed behind there. [15] Those who escorted Paul brought him as far as Athens; and with instructions for Silas and Timothy to join him with all possible speed, they departed.
[16] Now while Paul waited for them in Athens, his spirit was roused within him as he saw that the city was full of idols. [17] So he debated in the synagogue with the Jews and the God-fearing Gentiles, and daily in the public square with whoever was present. [18] Some of the Epicurean and Stoic philosophers also engaged him in debate. And some were saying, "What would this seed-picker[d] wish to say?" Others, "He seems to be a herald of foreign divinities" — because he was preaching Jesus and the resurrection.[e] [19] So they took hold of him and brought him to the Areopagus,[f] saying, "May we learn what this new teaching is that you are presenting? [20] For you are bringing some strange notions to our ears; we want, then, to know what these things mean." [21] (Now all the Athenians and the foreigners residing there had leisure for nothing else than telling or hearing something newer.) [22] Paul stood up in front of the Areopagus and said:

"People of Athens, I see that you are very religious in every way.[g] [23] For as I was passing through and looking over the objects of your worship, I found also an altar on which had been inscribed, 'To an unknown god.' What therefore you worship without knowing, this I announce to you.

24 The God who made the world and all that is in it — he, being Lord of heaven and earth, does not dwell in shrines made by hands, 25 nor is he waited on by human hands as if he lacked anything, since he himself gives to all life and breath and all things.
26 And from one[h] he made every nation of humankind to dwell on all the face of the earth, having fixed appointed seasons and the boundaries of their habitation, 27 God did this so that they would search for him and perhaps reach out for him and find him, though he is not far from any one of us.
28 'In him we live and move and exist.' As some of your own poets have said,

'We are also his children.'[i]

29 Being, then, God's offspring, we ought not to think the divine nature is like gold or silver or stone, a thing engraved by human art and imagination.
30 God, then, has looked past the times of not knowing; but at present he is announcing to humanity that everyone in every place must repent,
31 because he has set a day on which he is about to judge the inhabited world in righteousness by a man whom he has designated, having furnished proof to all by raising him from the dead." 32 When they heard about the resurrection of the dead, some of them mocked, but others said, "We want to hear you again on this topic." 33 So Paul went out from among them. 34 Some people did side with him and believe. They included Dionysius, who sat on the Areopagus court,[j] a woman called Damaris,[k] and several others.

Notes

- a (17:5) Jason: a Greek name, "healer," often used by Jews named Joshua (Jesus).
- b (17:5) People's assembly: Greek dēmos, the citizen body of a free city; or simply "the crowd."
- c (17:6) City officials: Greek politarchas, "politarchs," the title of the magistrates of Thessalonica, attested in inscriptions.
- d (17:18) Seed-picker: Greek spermologos, a bird that picks up seeds; used of an idle babbler who picks up scraps of learning.
- e (17:18) Jesus and the resurrection: some hearers may have taken "Resurrection" (Anastasis) as the name of a goddess paired with Jesus.

- f (17:19) Areopagus: “hill of Ares,” the Greek god of war; also the name of the council that met there.
- g (17:22) Exceedingly religious: or “very superstitious”; Greek deisidaimonesterous.
- h (17:26) From one: many later manuscripts read “from one blood.”
- i (17:28) The words “in him we live and move and have our being” are thought to echo the Cretan poet Epimenides; the quoted line is from Aratus, Phaenomena 5.
- j (17:34) Areopagite: a member of the council of the Areopagus.
- k (17:34) Damaris: the meaning is uncertain; perhaps a form of damalis, “heifer.” Codex Bezae omits her name.

Chapter 18

1 After this Paul left Athens and came to Corinth. 2 There he came upon a Jew named Aquila,[a] a native of Pontus, lately arrived from Italy with Priscilla[b] his wife because Claudius had ordered all the Jews to leave Rome.[c] He went to see them, 3 and since their craft was his own he lodged with them and they plied it together; tentmaking[d] was their trade. 4 And every sabbath he would argue in the synagogue, trying to persuade Jews and Greeks.

5 When Silas and Timothy arrived from Macedonia, Paul devoted himself fully to preaching, and he declared to the Jews that Jesus was the Messiah. 6 And when they set themselves against him and spoke abusively, he shook out his garments and said to them, “Your blood be on your own heads! I am clean. From now on I will go to the Gentiles.” 7 Moving on from there, he entered the home of one Titius Justus,[e] a God-fearer, whose house stood next door to the synagogue. 8 Crispus,[f] the synagogue ruler, came to believe in the Lord, along with all his household; and many of the Corinthians who heard believed and were baptized. 9 Then the Lord said to Paul one night in a vision, “Have no fear; keep on speaking, and do not be silent, 10 for I am with you, and no one shall lay a hand on you to harm you, because I have many people in this city.” 11 So he settled there a year and six months, teaching the word of God among them.

12 But when Gallio was proconsul of Achaia,[g] the Jews rose up in concert against Paul and brought him before the judgment seat, 13 and charging, “This man is inducing people to revere God against the law.” 14 Paul was about to open his mouth when Gallio said to the Jews, “If it were some misdeed or vicious crime, O Jews, I would have reason to bear with you; 15 but if these are questions about words and names and your own law, see to it yourselves. A judge of such matters I refuse to be." 16 So he had them driven from the tribunal. 17 Then everyone[h] grabbed Sosthenes, the leader of the synagogue, and beat him in front of the judge's seat. But Gallio showed no concern about any of this.

18 Paul remained many days more, then bade the brothers farewell and set sail for Syria, Priscilla and Aquila with him, having shorn his head at Cenchreae, since he had taken a vow.[i] 19 They came to Ephesus, and he left them there; but he himself went into the synagogue and reasoned with the Jews. 20 They pressed him to remain longer, but he would not consent; 21 but on taking leave of them he said, "I will come back to you again, if God wills,"[j] and he set sail from Ephesus. 22 When he had landed at Caesarea, he went up[k] and greeted the church, and then went down to Antioch. 23 Having spent a while there, he set out and passed in turn through the Galatian country and Phrygia, giving strength to all the disciples.
24 Meanwhile there arrived at Ephesus a certain Jew, Apollos[l] by name, Alexandrian by birth, a learned man and mighty in the Scriptures. 25
This man had received instruction in the way of the Lord. He was passionate in spirit, and he taught accurately about Jesus, though the only baptism he knew was John's. 26 He began to speak out boldly in the synagogue; but when Priscilla and Aquila heard him, they took him aside and explained to him the Way of God[m] more accurately. 27 He wanted to go across into Achaia, so the brothers urged him on and wrote asking the disciples to receive him. After he came, he was of great service to the ones who by grace had come to believe;[n] 28 for with force he confuted the Jews openly, demonstrating from the Scriptures that the Messiah was Jesus.

Notes

- a (18:2) Aquila: Latin, "eagle."
- b (18:2) Priscilla: a diminutive of the Latin Prisca, "ancient, venerable."
- c (18:2) The emperor Claudius expelled Jews from Rome about AD 49 (Suetonius, Claudius 25.4).
- d (18:3) Tentmakers: Greek skēnopoioi; possibly "leatherworkers."

- e (18:7) Titius Justus: so the Westcott–Hort text, with Vaticanus; Sinaiticus reads "Titus Justus," and many manuscripts simply "Justus."
- f (18:8) Crispus: Latin, "curly."
- g (18:12) Gallio … proconsul of Achaia: Lucius Junius Gallio, brother of the philosopher Seneca; an inscription at Delphi places his proconsulship in AD 51–52.
- h (18:17) They all: many later manuscripts read "all the Greeks."
- i (18:18) He was under a vow: probably a Nazirite vow or one like it (Num 6:1–21); grammatically, the one who cut his hair might be Aquila.
- j (18:21) If God wills: many later manuscripts, following Codex Bezae, add before this, "I must by all means keep the coming feast in Jerusalem."
- k (18:22) He went up: that is, to Jerusalem.
- l (18:24) Apollos: short for Apollonius, from the god Apollo.
- m (18:26) The Way of God: some manuscripts read "the Way of the Lord," and others "the Way."
- n (18:27) Codex Bezae rewrites 18:27, saying that some Corinthians staying in Ephesus urged Apollos to come to their country.

Chapter 19

1 It came about, while Apollos was at Corinth, that Paul, having passed through the inland regions,[a] came down to Ephesus, where he found certain disciples. 2 "Did you receive the Holy Spirit when you came to believe?" he asked them. They replied, "No — we have not so much as heard whether there is a Holy Spirit." 3 "Into what, then, were you baptized?" he said. "Into John's baptism," said they. 4 Paul answered, "John's was a baptism of repentance; he told the people that their faith must rest on him who was to come after — on Jesus, that is." 5 On hearing this, they were baptized into the name of the Lord Jesus. 6 And when Paul had laid his hands upon them, the Holy Spirit came on them, and they began speaking in tongues and prophesying. 7 There were about twelve men in all.
8 He went into the synagogue and for three months spoke out boldly, debating and persuading about the kingdom of God. 9 But when some grew hardened and would not believe, maligning the Way before the gathering, he withdrew from them, took the disciples apart with him, and day by day held discussions in the lecture hall of Tyrannus.[b] 10
This went on for two years, so that every inhabitant of Asia, Jew and Greek, heard the word of the Lord. 11 And God was working miracles of no ordinary kind by Paul's hands, 12 so much so that cloths and aprons[c] were taken from his body to those who were ill, and they were rid of their sicknesses and the wicked spirits departed.

13 Some traveling Jewish exorcists tried to use the name of the Lord Jesus over people who had evil spirits. They said, "I command you in the name of the Jesus that Paul preaches." 14 Seven sons of a certain Sceva, a Jewish high priest,[d] were doing this. 15 But the evil spirit retorted to them, "Jesus I know, and Paul I am acquainted with; but you — who are you?" 16 Then the man in whom the evil spirit was leaped on them, overpowered them both,[e] and so prevailed against them that they fled out of that house naked and wounded. 17 This became known to all the residents of Ephesus, Jews and Greeks alike; fear fell upon them all, and the name of the Lord Jesus was held in high honor. 18 Many of those who had believed now came forward, confessing and disclosing their practices.[f] 19 And a good number of those who had practiced magic arts brought their books together and burned them in the sight of all. When they reckoned up the value of them, it came to fifty thousand days' wages.[g] 20 So mightily did the word of the Lord grow and prevail.
21 When all this was accomplished, Paul purposed in the Spirit[h] to travel by way of Macedonia and Achaia to Jerusalem, saying, "After I have been there, I must see Rome as well." 22 He sent two of his assistants, Timothy and Erastus,[i] to Macedonia, while he himself remained in Asia a little longer.
23 About that time there arose no small disturbance concerning the Way. 24 For a silversmith named Demetrius, who made [silver] shrines of Artemis,[j] was bringing the craftsmen no small business. 25 He gathered them together, along with the workers in similar trades, and said, "Gentlemen, you know that we make a good living from this business. 26 You are looking on and hearing how, not at Ephesus only but over nearly the whole of Asia, this Paul has won over a sizable crowd and led them astray, by telling them that handmade gods are no gods at all. 27 It is not merely this line of ours that risks falling into contempt; the sanctuary of the mighty goddess Artemis also stands to be reckoned as nothing, and she is about to be stripped of her majesty, she whom the whole of Asia and the world revere." 28 When they heard this, they were filled with rage and kept shouting, “Great is Artemis of the Ephesians!” 29 So the whole city was filled with turmoil, and with one impulse they surged into the theater, seizing as they went Gaius and Aristarchus,[k] Macedonians traveling with Paul.

30 Paul wanted to go in among the people, but the disciples would not let him; 31 and even some of the officials of the province,[l] who were friends of his, sent to him and urged him not to venture into the theater. 32 Now some were crying one thing, some another; the assembly was a confused mass, and the greater part had no idea for what purpose they had assembled. 33 Some in the crowd instructed Alexander, since the Jews had thrust him to the front; and Alexander, waving his hand for silence, was ready to offer a defense before the populace. 34 But when they recognized that he was a Jew, a single cry went up from them all, and for about two hours they kept shouting, “Great is Artemis of the Ephesians!” 35 The town clerk[m] finally calmed the mob and said, “Ephesians, what man alive is unaware that Ephesus is guardian of the temple[n] of great Artemis and of the image fallen from heaven?[o] 36 Since, then, these things cannot be contradicted, you ought to be quiet and do nothing rash. 37 For you have brought these men here who are neither temple robbers nor blasphemers of our goddess. 38 So if Demetrius and his fellow craftsmen have a case against somebody, court days are held and proconsuls sit; let the parties bring their accusations there. 39 And should you want anything beyond that, the matter will be resolved in the regular assembly. 40 For we are in danger of being charged with rioting over today’s events, there being no cause that we can give to account for this commotion.” 41 And when he had said these things, he dismissed the assembly.

Notes

- a (19:1) The inland regions: literally “the upper parts,” the highlands of Asia Minor. Codex Bezae begins the verse: “But when Paul wished, according to his own plan, to go to Jerusalem, the Spirit told him to return to Asia.”
- b (19:9) Tyrannus: Greek, “tyrant, ruler,” probably the owner of the hall or a teacher who lectured there. Codex Bezae adds “from eleven in the morning until four in the afternoon” (literally “from the fifth hour to the tenth”), the hours of the midday rest.

- c (19:12) Handkerchiefs or aprons: Latin loanwords in Greek, soudaria and simikinthia; probably sweat cloths and work aprons.
- d (19:14) A Jewish high priest: no Sceva is known among the high priests; he may have been of a high-priestly family or claimed the title.
- e (19:16) Both: or "all of them"; the Greek amphoterōn sometimes means "all" in later Greek.
- f (19:18) Practices: Greek praxeis, perhaps in the technical sense of magic spells.
- g (19:19) Fifty thousand days' wages: literally "fifty thousand of silver," that is, silver coins, probably drachmas, each roughly a day's wage for a laborer.
- h (19:21) In the Spirit: or "in his spirit."
- i (19:22) Erastus: Greek, "beloved."
- j (19:24) Artemis: the Greek goddess identified with the Roman Diana; the Artemis of Ephesus was a mother goddess whose temple was one of the seven wonders of the world. The shrines were probably small models of the temple.
- k (19:29) Gaius and Aristarchus: Gaius is a common Latin name; Aristarchus, Greek, "best ruler."
- l (19:31) Officials of the province: Greek Asiarchōn, "Asiarchs," leading men of the province of Asia.
- m (19:35) Town clerk: Greek grammateus, the chief civic official of Ephesus.
- n (19:35) Temple keeper: Greek neōkoros, an honorary title of cities that maintained the temple of a deity or of the emperor.
- o (19:35) The sacred stone that fell from the sky: literally "the fallen-from-Zeus [thing]," probably a meteorite venerated as an image of the goddess.

Chapter 20

1 When the uproar had ceased, Paul sent for the disciples and, after encouraging them, said farewell and set out for Macedonia. 2 When he had gone through those parts and had given them much encouragement, he came to Greece. 3 where he stayed for three months.
Because the Jews plotted against him just as he was about to sail for Syria, he decided to go back through Macedonia.[a] 4 He was accompanied by Sopater the son of Pyrrhus, of Beroea; of the Thessalonians, Aristarchus and Secundus; Gaius of Derbe,[b] and Timothy; and from Asia, Tychicus and Trophimus.[c] 5 These went on ahead and were waiting for us at Troas; 6 As for us, we set sail out of Philippi once the days of Unleavened Bread were over, and five days later joined them in Troas, where we remained a week.
7 On the first day of the week we met to break bread. Paul spoke to the people, and since he was going to leave the next day, he kept on talking until midnight. 8 There were many lamps in the upper room where we were gathered. 9 And a young man named Eutychus,[d] sitting at the window, was sinking into a deep sleep as Paul talked still longer. Overcome by sleep, he fell down from the third story[e] and was picked up dead. 10 Paul, however, went down, flung himself upon him, and clasping him said, "Stop your lamenting; his life is still in him." 11 Then he climbed back up, broke the bread, and ate; and after speaking with them at length, till dawn, he left. 12 And they brought the lad home living, and were greatly comforted.

13 We, meanwhile, went before him to the ship and put out for Assos, where we were to pick Paul up; this was his arrangement, as he meant to make the journey on foot. 14 When he joined us at Assos, we took him aboard and came to Mitylene. 15 And sailing from there we came the following day opposite Chios; the next day we touched at Samos;[f] and the day after that we came to Miletus. 16 For Paul had determined to sail on past Ephesus and not lose time in Asia; he was pressing on, if at all possible, to be in Jerusalem for Pentecost day.
17 Now from Miletus he sent to Ephesus and called the elders of the church to come to him.
18 On their arrival he addressed them:

"You know well what my conduct was with you all along, from the day I first stepped into Asia: 19 slaving for the Lord in all lowliness of mind, in tears, and in the testings that came upon me from the Jews' plotting; 20 how I held back nothing that would benefit you, but declared it to you and taught you openly and in your homes, 21 bearing solemn witness to Jews and Greeks alike of repentance toward God and faith in our Lord Jesus.[g] 22 And now, see, bound by the Spirit[h] I am on my way to Jerusalem, unaware of what I shall meet with there, 23 save that city after city the Holy Spirit warns me solemnly that chains and hardships lie in wait for me.
24 Yet I hold my life worth nothing, not precious to me at all, so long as I complete my race and the service the Lord Jesus entrusted to me, of bearing witness to the good news of God's grace.[i]

25 And now, see, this I know: you will none of you look upon my face again — you all, among whom I went about heralding the kingdom.
26 For that reason I solemnly declare to you on this very day: I am clean of everyone's blood, 27 for I did not shrink from declaring to you the whole counsel of God.
28 Keep watch over yourselves and over all the flock that the Holy Spirit has put in your care as overseers.[j] Be shepherds of the church of God,[k] which he bought with his own blood.[l] 29 I know that once I have gone, savage wolves will make their way in among you and will not spare the flock; 30 yes, out of your own number men will rise up uttering perversions, so as to lure the disciples away after themselves.
31 Keep awake, then, and remember that for a three-year stretch, by night and by day, I never stopped warning each of you, with tears.
32 And now I commend you to the Lord[m] and to the word of his grace, which is able to build you up and to give you the inheritance among all those who are sanctified.
33 I coveted no one's silver or gold or apparel.
34 You know very well that I worked with my own hands to meet my needs and the needs of my companions.
35 In everything I have given you an example: that toiling thus we ought to come to the aid of the weak, keeping in mind the saying of the Lord Jesus himself, 'More blessed is giving than receiving.'"[n] 36 And when he had said these things, he knelt down and prayed with them all. 37 They all wept freely, and falling on Paul's neck they kissed him again and again, 38 grieved above all at the word he had said, that they were never more to see his face. Then they went with him down to the ship.

Notes

- a (20:3) Codex Bezae reads, "he wished to sail to Syria, but the Spirit told him to return through Macedonia."
- b (20:4) Gaius of Derbe: Codex Bezae reads "Gaius of Doberus," a town in Macedonia, which would make him the Macedonian Gaius of 19:29.
- c (20:4) Tychicus and Trophimus: Greek names, "fortunate" and "nourishing, foster child." Many manuscripts add after "accompanied by" the words "as far as Asia."
- d (20:9) Eutychus: Greek, "fortunate."

- e (20:9) Third story: Greek tristegou.
- f (20:15) Many later manuscripts add “at Trogyllium, and stayed there,” after “Samos.”
- g (20:21) Our Lord Jesus: many manuscripts read “our Lord Jesus Christ.”
- h (20:22) Constrained by the Spirit: or “bound in spirit.”
- i (20:24) The text of this verse varies considerably among the manuscripts. Many later ones have a longer form in which Paul says that none of these things disturbs him and that he places no value on his own life, so long as he can complete his mission with joy.
- j (20:28) Overseers: Greek episkopous, the word from which “bishop” derives.
- k (20:28) The church of God: so the Westcott–Hort text, with Sinaiticus and Vaticanus. Many manuscripts, including Alexandrinus, Ephraemi, Codex Bezae, and the papyrus P74 (as reported), read “the church of the Lord,” and many later manuscripts conflate the two: “the church of the Lord and God.” The harder reading “of God” is generally preferred.
- l (20:28) With the blood of his own: or “with his own blood.” Westcott and Hort suggested the meaning is “with the blood of his own [Son],” taking tou idiou as a title; many later manuscripts read “with his own blood” in a different word order.
- m (20:32) The Lord: many manuscripts read “God.”
- n (20:35) This saying of Jesus is not recorded in the Gospels.

Chapter 21

1 When we had torn ourselves away from them and put to sea, we ran a straight course to Cos, the next day to Rhodes, and thence to Patara.[a] 2 Finding there a ship bound across to Phoenicia, we went aboard and set sail. 3 We sighted Cyprus, passed it on our left, and sailed on to Syria. We landed at Tyre, where the ship was to unload its cargo. 4 We sought out the disciples and stopped there seven days. Through the Spirit they kept telling Paul not to set foot in Jerusalem. 5 But when our days there were ended, we left and went on our way, and all of them, with wives and children, escorted us till we were outside the city. Kneeling on the beach, we prayed 6 and bade one another goodbye; then we boarded the ship, and they went back home.
7 Completing the voyage from Tyre, we arrived at Ptolemais, where we greeted the brothers and spent a day with them. 8 Departing on the morrow, we came to Caesarea and entered the house of Philip the evangelist, one of the Seven, and lodged with him. 9 He had four unmarried daughters who prophesied. 10 While we were staying on there for a number of days, a prophet named Agabus came down from Judea. 11 He came over to us, took up Paul's girdle, tied his own feet and hands, and declared, "The Holy Spirit says this: 'The owner of this girdle the Jews in Jerusalem will tie up just so, and hand over into Gentile hands.'" 12 On hearing this, both we and the people of the place pleaded with him not to go up to Jerusalem. 13 Then Paul replied, "What are you about, weeping and crushing my heart? For my part, I stand ready not only to be bound but even to die in Jerusalem for the name of the Lord Jesus." 14 And since he would not be persuaded, we held our peace, saying only, "The Lord's will be done." 15 After those days we packed[b] and started up to Jerusalem. 16 Certain disciples from Caesarea traveled with us too, conducting us to one Mnason, a Cypriot and an early disciple, at whose home we were to be guests.[c]

17 On our reaching Jerusalem the brothers made us gladly welcome.
18 On the following day Paul went with us to James's, and the elders all came. 19 After greeting them, he gave a detailed account, one thing after another, of what God had done among the Gentiles through his ministry. 20 They glorified God when they heard it, and said to him, "You see, brother, how many tens of thousands there are among the Jews who have believed — and every one of them a zealot for the Law. 21 They have heard it said of you that you instruct all the Jews living among the Gentiles to turn away from Moses, and that you tell them to stop circumcising their children and living by our customs.
22 What, then? No doubt they will learn of your arrival.[d] 23 So do what we tell you. We have four men who are under a vow. 24 Join these men, undergo purification with them, and bear the cost for them to have their heads shaved. So everybody will recognize that the reports about you amount to nothing, and that you too keep in line, observing the Law. 25 As regards the Gentile believers, we have written them our decision, that they guard themselves from what is offered to idols, from blood, from what is strangled, and from fornication."[e] 26 Then Paul took the men, and the next day, having purified himself with them, he went into the temple, giving notice of when the days of purification would be completed and the offering presented for each one of them.

27 As the seven days were about to end, some Jews from the province of Asia noticed Paul in the temple. They agitated the entire crowd and seized him, 28 crying out, "Israelites, help! This is the man who goes everywhere teaching everyone to oppose our people, our Law, and this place. On top of that, he has brought Greeks into the temple and desecrated this holy place." 29 (They had seen Trophimus the Ephesian with him in the city earlier, and they assumed that Paul had taken him into the temple.) 30 The whole city was set in motion, and the people came running together. They seized Paul and dragged him out of the temple, and immediately the gates were shut. 31 As they were trying to kill him, word went up to the tribune[f] of the cohort that all Jerusalem was in confusion. 32 At once he took soldiers and centurions and ran down to them; and when they saw the tribune and the soldiers, they stopped beating Paul. 33 The commander came over, arrested him, and ordered that he be tied up with two chains. Then he asked who Paul was and what he had done. 34 In the crowd, though, some yelled this and some that; and as the din kept him from learning anything certain, he gave orders for Paul to be taken to the barracks. 35 When Paul came to the steps, he had actually to be carried by the soldiers because of the violence of the mob, 36 for the mass of the people followed, crying out, "Away with him!"

37 As Paul was about to be brought into the barracks, he said to the commander, "May I speak with you?" The commander asked, "Do you speak Greek? 38 Are you not, then, that Egyptian who lately raised an insurrection and took the four thousand Assassins[g] out to the wilderness?" 39 "I am a Jewish man," said Paul, "of Tarsus in Cilicia, citizen of a city of some note. I ask you, allow me to address the people." 40 The commander gave permission, so Paul stood on the steps and motioned to the people. When it became quiet, he spoke to them in the Hebrew language,[h] saying:

Notes

- a (21:1) Patara: Codex Bezae and some others add "and Myra."
- b (21:15) We packed: or "we made ready," possibly "we saddled horses."

- c (21:16) Codex Bezae reads, “These brought us to the village where we were to lodge with Mnason,” placing Mnason’s home on the way to Jerusalem.
- d (21:22) Many manuscripts add, “A multitude must certainly come together, for they will hear that you have come.”
- e (21:25) Codex Bezae and others add “that they should observe no such thing except to keep themselves from,” and omit “what is strangled” (compare 15:20).
- f (21:31) Tribune: Greek chiliarchos, “commander of a thousand,” the officer in command of the Roman cohort in the Antonia fortress.
- g (21:38) Assassins: Greek sikariōn, from Latin sicarii, “dagger men,” Jewish insurgents who stabbed their opponents in crowds. Josephus tells of an Egyptian false prophet who led a large following to the Mount of Olives about AD 54.
- h (21:40) The Hebrew language: probably Aramaic, the common language of the Jews of Palestine.

Chapter 22

1 “Brothers and fathers, hear the defense I am making to you now.” 2 And on hearing him speak to them in the Hebrew tongue, they kept still all the more. Then he said: 3 “A Jew am I, born in Tarsus of Cilicia, yet brought up here in this city at Gamaliel’s feet, trained exactly in the Law of our fathers, and as full of zeal for God as all of you are this day. 4 This Way I hounded to the death, putting men and women alike in fetters and handing them over to prisons — 5 to which the high priest bears me out, and all the body of elders. Letters from them I carried to the brothers in Damascus, and I traveled there to fetch those who were there back to Jerusalem in bonds, for their punishment.
6 “Now it came about, as I journeyed and neared Damascus around midday, that suddenly out of the sky a powerful light blazed all about me. 7 I dropped to the ground and heard a voice say to me, ‘Saul, Saul, why are you hunting me?’ 8 I answered, ‘Who are you, Lord?’ And he said to me, ‘I am Jesus the Nazarene, the one you are hunting.’ 9 My companions beheld the light,[a] yet they did not catch the voice of him who was talking with me. 10 Then I said, ‘Lord, what am I to do?’ The Lord told me, ‘Rise and continue into Damascus; there you shall be told everything it is laid down for you to do.’ 11 And as I was sightless because of the glory of that light, my companions took me by the hand and so I came into Damascus.

12 “Then a certain Ananias, a man reverent according to the Law and well attested by all the Jews dwelling there, 13 he came to me, took his stand by my side, and told me, ‘Saul, my brother, see again!’ And in the same hour I could see, and I looked upon him.[b] 14 And he said, ‘The God of our fathers has chosen you beforehand to know his will, to see the Just One, and to hear speech from his own mouth; 15 because to all mankind you are to be his witness of the things you have seen and heard. 16 And now, why delay? Get up and be baptized and have your sins washed away, calling upon his name.’ 17 “It happened, after my return to Jerusalem, that as I prayed in the temple I came to be in a trance, 18 and I saw him, and he said to me, ‘Hurry, leave Jerusalem without delay; for they will not receive what you testify concerning me.’ 19 And I said, ‘Lord, they know well enough that from synagogue to synagogue I used to jail and whip the people who believed on you; 20 and when the blood of your witness[c] Stephen was poured out, I too was there, standing near, consenting to it, and minding the clothes of his killers.’ 21 Then he told me, ‘Go; it is to the nations far off that I shall send you.’” 22 They had given him a hearing until this word; but now they lifted up their voices: “Rid the earth of such a man! It is not fit that he should live!” 23 And while they bellowed and tossed their garments about and hurled dust in the air, 24 the tribune commanded that he be taken into the barracks, directing that he be questioned under the lash, so he might discover the cause of their outcry against him. 25
As they tied him forward with the straps,[d] Paul said to the centurion standing there, “Are you allowed to scourge a man who is a Roman, and that without a verdict?” 26 Hearing this, the centurion went off to the tribune with the report: “What are you going to do? This man is a Roman.” 27 The tribune came up and asked him, “Say: are you a Roman?” “I am,” said he. 28 And the tribune replied, “I paid a heavy price for this citizenship of mine.”[e] “I, though,” said Paul, “have been a citizen from birth.” 29 At that, the men who were to interrogate him stepped back from him at once; and the tribune too grew fearful, once he knew Paul was a Roman and he had put him in chains.

30 The following day, wishing to know for certain what accusation the Jews were bringing, he loosed him and ordered the chief priests and the whole Sanhedrin to assemble; and bringing Paul down, he stood him before them.

Notes

- a (22:9) Beheld the light: many later manuscripts add “and were afraid.” Compare 9:7.
- b (22:13) I could see, and I looked upon him: or “I looked up at him”; the Greek anablepsa has both senses.
- c (22:20) Witness: Greek martys, the word that later came to mean “martyr.”
- d (22:25) Tied him forward with the straps: or “stretched him out for the lashes.”
- e (22:28) A heavy price: literally “a great sum of money.” Citizenship could be obtained through bribery of officials under Claudius; the tribune’s name, Claudius Lysias (23:26), suggests he took the emperor’s name on becoming a citizen.

Chapter 23

1 Fixing his gaze on the Sanhedrin, Paul said, “Brothers, with a wholly good conscience I have conducted myself as God’s citizen until this very day.” 2 At that, Ananias[a] the high priest directed the men standing near him to hit him across the mouth. 3 Paul then said to him, “God will strike you, you limewashed wall! You sit judging me by the Law, and against the Law you bid them strike me?” 4 The bystanders said, “Is it God’s high priest you are insulting?” 5 Paul answered, “Brothers, I was unaware that he was high priest; for Scripture says, ‘A ruler of your people you shall not curse.’”[b] 6 But Paul, aware that some of them were Sadducees and others Pharisees, called out in the Sanhedrin, “Brothers, a Pharisee am I, born of Pharisees! I am being judged over our hope, the rising of the dead.” 7 No sooner had he said it than strife broke out between Pharisees and Sadducees, and the gathering was split in two. 8 (Sadducees hold that there is neither resurrection nor angel nor spirit, while Pharisees confess both.) 9 A loud outcry followed; and some scribes of the Pharisee side got up and fought it out: “Nothing evil do we find in the man. And suppose a spirit has spoken to him, or an angel?”[c] 10 As the strife grew great, the tribune feared they would tear Paul apart, and he ordered the troops to come down, snatch him out of their midst, and carry him to the barracks. 11 That next night the Lord came and stood beside him and said, "Be of good heart; just as you bore witness to me in Jerusalem, so in Rome too you must bear witness." 12 At daybreak the Jews formed a conspiracy and put themselves under a curse,[d] vowing they would neither eat nor drink till Paul was dead.

13 Those who joined in this compact numbered over forty. 14 These approached the chief priests and the elders: "Under a solemn curse we have put ourselves to taste nothing until Paul is dead. 15 Now then, you and the Sanhedrin must signify to the tribune that he should bring him down before you, on the pretext of examining his affairs more thoroughly; and before ever he gets near, we stand prepared to do away with him." 16 But Paul's nephew, his sister's son, got wind of the ambush; he came, went into the barracks, and reported it to Paul. 17 Paul summoned one of the centurions and said, "Bring this youth to the tribune; he has a report to make to him." 18 So he took charge of him, led him before the tribune, and said, "The prisoner Paul called me over and requested me to bring this youth to you; he has something to tell you." 19 The tribune took his hand, drew him aside, and asked him in private, "What is it you have to report to me?" 20 He said, "The Jews have arranged to ask you to bring Paul down to the Sanhedrin tomorrow, as if intending to look into his case with more care. 21 Do not give in to them, then; for upward of forty of them lie in wait for him, men who have cursed themselves not to eat or drink until they have done away with him; even now they stand ready, only awaiting your promise." 22 So the tribune sent the youth away with a warning: "Breathe to nobody that you have made this known to me." 23 Then, calling over a pair of his centurions, he said, "By nine o'clock tonight[e] have two hundred soldiers in readiness to march to Caesarea, along with seventy cavalry and two hundred spearmen;[f] 24 and have beasts on hand to mount Paul and convey him safe to Felix[g] the governor." 25 And he wrote a letter in these terms:[h] 26 "Claudius Lysias to the most excellent Governor Felix: greeting. 27 The Jews had laid hold of this man and were on the point of killing him, when I intervened with my troops and took him from them, having found out that he is a Roman. 28 Wishing to ascertain the ground of their charges against him, [I brought him down to their Sanhedrin.] 29 I discovered that the charges concerned disputes over their Law, and that there was nothing against him worthy of death or of bonds. 30 Information then reached me of a plot to be carried out against the man, and I have forthwith dispatched him to you, directing his accusers as well to lay their case against him before you."[i] 31 So the soldiers, as ordered, took charge of Paul and conducted him by night as far as Antipatris.[j] 32 On the morrow they went back to the barracks, leaving the cavalry to continue with him. 33 These, on entering Caesarea, handed the letter to the governor and presented Paul as well before him. 34 He read it and asked from which province Paul came; and learning it was Cilicia, 35 he said, "I will hear your case in full whenever your accusers also are here," and he ordered him kept under guard in Herod's praetorium.[k]

Notes

- a (23:2) Ananias: high priest about AD 47–59; the name is Hebrew Hananiah, "Yahweh has been gracious."
- b (23:5) Exod 22:28.
- c (23:9) Many later manuscripts add, "Let us not fight against God."
- d (23:12) Put themselves under a curse: Greek anathematizō.
- e (23:23) Nine o'clock tonight: literally "from the third hour of the night."
- f (23:23) Spearmen: the meaning of the rare Greek dexiolabous is uncertain; perhaps "bowmen," "slingers," or "led horses."
- g (23:24) Felix: Antonius Felix, procurator of Judea about AD 52–59; the name is Latin, "fortunate, happy."
- h (23:25) In these terms: or "of this kind." Codex Bezae and some Latin manuscripts add, "for he was afraid that the Jews might seize Paul and kill him, and that he would afterward be accused of having taken a bribe."
- i (23:30) Many later manuscripts add "Farewell."
- j (23:31) Antipatris: a town about 37 miles (60 km) northwest of Jerusalem and 25 miles (40 km) south of Caesarea.
- k (23:35) Praetorium: the governor's residence, built as a palace by Herod the Great.

Chapter 24

1 Five days afterward the high priest Ananias came down, bringing certain elders and a pleader, one Tertullus,[a] and these laid their information against Paul before the governor. 2 When [he] had been called in, Tertullus opened the accusation thus: "Through you we enjoy great peace, and by your forethought reforms are coming about for this nation; 3 at every turn and in every place, most excellent Felix, we welcome it with the fullest gratitude. 4 But that I may not detain you longer, I entreat you of your forbearance to give us a brief hearing.

5 For we have found this fellow a very plague, a stirrer-up of riots among all the Jews throughout the world, and a ringleader of the sect of the Nazarenes.[b] 6 He even attempted to profane the temple; and so we took hold of him.[c] 7 [d] 8 From him, should you question him in person, you may ascertain the truth of everything of which we charge him." 9 The Jews too joined in the attack, asserting that so these things stood.
10 The governor then gestured for Paul to speak, and Paul answered:
"I know you have judged this nation for a good many years, and so I am glad to defend myself before you. 11 You are able to verify that not more than twelve days are past since I went up to worship at Jerusalem; 12 and neither in the temple did they find me arguing with anyone or gathering a crowd, nor in the synagogues, nor about the city. 13 Nor can they make good to you the charges they now bring against me. 14 This much I do confess to you: after the Way, which they call a sect, so do I serve the God of my fathers, believing all that accords with the Law and all that is written in the Prophets, 15 holding a hope toward God, which these men themselves also look for, that there is to be a resurrection of both righteous and unrighteous. 16 Therefore I too exercise myself to keep at all times a conscience void of offense toward God and toward men. 17 Now after several years I came to bring alms to my nation, and offerings; 18 in the midst of which they found me purified in the temple, with no crowd and no tumult. But some Jews from Asia — 19 these ought to be present before you to accuse me, if they had anything against me. 20 Or else let these men here say what wrongdoing they found when I stood before the Sanhedrin, 21 unless it be this one cry which I uttered standing among them: 'Over the resurrection of the dead I am under judgment before you this day.'"
22 Felix, though, being rather well informed concerning the Way, adjourned the hearing: "Once Lysias the tribune is down here," said he, “I shall determine your matter.” 23 He directed the centurion to hold him under guard, yet with a measure of freedom, forbidding none of his friends to wait on him.

24 Some days later Felix arrived with Drusilla[e] his wife, who was a Jewess, and he sent for Paul and listened to him on faith in Christ Jesus. 25 But as he discoursed of righteousness and self-mastery and the judgment to come, Felix took fright and answered, “Go your way for the present; when I find a convenient season I will send for you.” 26 At the same time he was hoping too that money would be given [him] by Paul; on which account he sent for him all the oftener and conversed with him. 27 But when two years had run their course, Felix was succeeded by Porcius Festus;[f] and wishing to do the Jews a favor, Felix left Paul in bonds.

Notes

- a (24:1) Tertullus: a Latin name, a diminutive of Tertius, “third.” He was a professional advocate (Greek rhētōr, “orator”).
- b (24:5) Nazarenes: the earliest Jewish name for the followers of Jesus, after Nazareth.
- c (24:6) Took hold of him: the Westcott–Hort text ends the sentence here and continues directly with verse 8, so that “him” in verse 8 refers to Paul.
- d (24:7) The Westcott–Hort text and the earliest manuscripts do not include verse 7 (with the end of verse 6 and the beginning of verse 8); the number is kept here only to preserve the traditional verse numbering. Some later manuscripts, and the printed editions from Erasmus, include additional words saying that the speakers would have judged him by their own Law, but that Lysias the tribune intervened, took him from their hands by force, and ordered his accusers to appear before the governor. In that reading, “him” in verse 8 refers to Lysias.
- e (24:24) Drusilla: a Latin name, a diminutive of Drusus (meaning uncertain). She was the youngest daughter of Herod Agrippa I (12:1), who had left her first husband to marry Felix. Some Western witnesses add that it was she who wished to see Paul.
- f (24:27) Festus: Porcius Festus, procurator of Judea about AD 59–62; the name is Latin, “festive, joyful.” Felix was recalled about AD 59.

Chapter 25

1 Festus, then, three days after setting foot in his province, went up from Caesarea to Jerusalem. 2 And the chief priests and the principal men of the Jews laid information before him against Paul, and they kept urging him, 3 begging as a favor to themselves, to his hurt, that he would summon him to Jerusalem — laying an ambush to make away with him on the road. 4 Festus answered, however, that Paul was being held at Caesarea, and that he himself would shortly be setting out thither. 5 "So let those among you who are men of standing," said he, "go down with me, and if there is anything amiss in the man, let them accuse him."

6 After staying among them no more than eight or ten days, he went down to Caesarea; and on the next day he took his seat on the tribunal and commanded Paul to be brought. 7 When he had come, the Jews who had come down from Jerusalem stood round him, bringing many and grave charges which they could not prove, 8 while Paul pleaded in his defense, "Neither against the Law of the Jews, nor against the temple, nor against Caesar have I committed any offense."

9 But Festus, wishing to put the Jews under obligation, answered Paul, "Are you willing to go up to Jerusalem and there be judged on these matters before me?" 10 Said Paul, "At Caesar's tribunal I stand, where I ought to be judged. To the Jews I have done no wrong, as you too know very well. 11 If I am guilty and have done anything deserving death, I do not refuse to die. But if there is no truth in the charges these men bring against me, no one has the right to hand me over to them. I appeal to Caesar!" 12 Then Festus, after conferring with his council, replied, "To Caesar you have appealed; to Caesar you shall go."

13 When some days had passed, Agrippa the king and Bernice[a] arrived at Caesarea to pay their respects to Festus. 14 As they were staying there a good many days, Festus laid Paul's case before the king, saying, "There is a man left a prisoner by Felix, 15 about whom, when I was at Jerusalem, the chief priests and elders of the Jews brought information, asking for sentence against him. 16 I told them that Romans have no custom of handing over anyone as a favor, before the accused has faced the accusers in person and had a chance to answer the charges. 17 When therefore they had assembled here, I lost no time; the day following I sat down upon the judgment seat and gave orders for the man to be fetched. 18 When the accusers stood up around him, they brought no charge of such evil deeds as I was supposing; 19 rather they had certain questions against him about their own religion[b] and about one Jesus, who was dead, whom Paul affirmed to be alive. 20 Being at a loss how to inquire into these things, I asked whether he would go to Jerusalem and be judged there concerning them. 21 But when Paul appealed to be kept for the decision of His Majesty the Emperor,[c] I ordered him held until I could send him on to Caesar." 22 Agrippa said to Festus, "I would like to hear this man myself." Festus replied, "Tomorrow you will hear him."

23 Accordingly, on the morrow, there came Agrippa and Bernice amid much display, and they went into the hall of hearing with the tribunes and the city's leading men; and Festus gave the word, and Paul was led in. 24 And Festus said, "King Agrippa, and all you men here present with us, you behold this man concerning whom the whole multitude of the Jews petitioned me, both in Jerusalem and here, crying out that he ought not to live any longer. 25 But I found that he had done nothing deserving of death; and as he himself appealed to His Majesty, I determined to send him. 26 Yet I have nothing definite to write to my lord[d] about him. Therefore I have brought him out before you all, and especially before you, King Agrippa, so that after the examination has been held I may have something to write. 27 For it seems to me unreasonable, in sending a prisoner, not to signify as well the charges against him."

Notes

- a (25:13) Agrippa and Bernice: Herod Agrippa II, son of Agrippa I (12:1), king of territories north and east of Galilee; the name is Latin, of uncertain meaning. Bernice, his sister, is the Macedonian form of Greek Pherenike, "bringer of victory."
- b (25:19) Religion: or "superstition" (Greek deisidaimonia); compare 17:22.
- c (25:21) His Majesty the Emperor: Greek ho Sebastos, "the Revered One," the Greek equivalent of the title Augustus; here Nero.
- d (25:26) My lord: Greek kyrios, used of the emperor.

Chapter 26

1 Agrippa said to Paul, "Leave is given you to speak on your own behalf." Then Paul stretched forth his hand and made his defense: 2 "Touching all the things whereof I am accused by Jews, King Agrippa, I count myself fortunate that it is before you I am to answer for myself today, [3] the more so because you are expert in all the customs and controversies among Jews. I pray you, therefore, hear me out with patience.

[4] "My manner of life from youth, spent from the beginning among my own nation and at Jerusalem, all Jews know, [5] having known me a long while, if only they would bear witness, that after the strictest party of our religion I lived a Pharisee. [6] And now for the hope of the promise made by God to our fathers I stand here on trial, [7] a promise our twelve tribes, earnestly serving night and day, hope to attain. For this hope, O king, I am accused by Jews! [8] Why is it judged a thing past belief among you, if God raises the dead?

[9] "I myself, indeed, once thought it my duty to do many things in opposition to the name of Jesus of Nazareth. [10] And this I did in Jerusalem: many of the saints I shut up in prisons, having received authority from the chief priests, and when they were put to death I cast my vote[a] against them. [11] In all the synagogues I often had them punished and tried to make them blaspheme. I was so furiously angry at them that I even chased them to cities in foreign lands.

[12] "On such an errand I was journeying to Damascus with authority and commission from the chief priests, [13] when at midday, O king, I saw on the road a light out of heaven, brighter than the brilliance of the sun, shining round about me and those who journeyed with me. [14] And when we had all fallen to the earth, I heard a voice saying to me in the Hebrew language,[b] 'Saul, Saul, why are you persecuting me? It is hard for you to kick against the goads.'[c] [15] I asked, 'Lord, who are you?' The Lord replied, 'Jesus am I, whom you persecute. [16] But rise and stand upon your feet; for to this end have I appeared to you, to appoint you a servant and a witness both of the things in which you have seen me[d] and of those in which I will appear to you, [17] rescuing you from the people and from the Gentiles, to whom I send you, [18] I am sending you to open their eyes, so that they will turn from the dark to the light, and from Satan's control to God. Then they will receive forgiveness of sins and a share with those who have been made holy by trusting in me.'

19 Hence, King Agrippa, to that vision from heaven I was not disobedient, 20 but to them of Damascus first, and at Jerusalem, and over all the region of Judea, and to the Gentiles, I proclaimed that they must repent and turn to God, performing deeds worthy of repentance. 21 On this account Jews seized me in the temple and tried to make an end of me. 22 Having therefore obtained the help that is from God, I stand to this day bearing witness to small and great alike, saying nothing beyond what the prophets and Moses said should come to pass: 23 that the Messiah was to suffer, and that he, first of the resurrection from the dead, would proclaim light both to the people and to the Gentiles." 24 And as he was so making his defense, Festus said with a loud voice, "You are mad, Paul! Your great learning is turning you to madness." 25
But Paul said, "I am not mad, most excellent Festus, but am uttering words of truth and soberness. 26 For the king knows of these matters, and to him I speak with boldness; for I am persuaded that none of these things escapes his notice, since this was not done in a corner. 27 King Agrippa, do you believe the prophets? I know that you believe." 28 And Agrippa said to Paul, "In a little you would persuade me to play the Christian!"[e] 29 And Paul said, "I would pray to God that, whether in little or in much, not only you but also all who hear me this day might become such as I am — save for these chains." 30 Then the king rose, and the governor and Bernice, and those who sat with them; 31 and when they had withdrawn, they spoke to one another, saying, "This man does nothing deserving death or imprisonment." 32 And Agrippa said to Festus, "This man could have been set at liberty, had he not appealed to Caesar."

Notes

- a (26:10) Cast my vote: literally "brought down a pebble," the voting stone; whether Paul had a formal vote in the Sanhedrin is uncertain, and the phrase may simply mean "I gave my approval."
- b (26:14) The Hebrew language: probably Aramaic.
- c (26:14) Kick against the goads: a Greek proverb for useless resistance, from an ox kicking against the pointed stick of its driver.
- d (26:16) Seen me: some manuscripts read "have seen."
- e (26:28) In a little you would persuade me to play the Christian: the Greek is difficult. It may mean "In a short time," or "With so little," and the verb may mean

"persuade me to become" or "persuade me to act as." Many later manuscripts read "You almost persuade me to become a Christian."

Chapter 27

1 Now when it was resolved that we should sail away for Italy, they handed over Paul and certain other prisoners to a centurion named Julius,[a] of the Augustan Cohort.[b] 2 Embarking in a ship of Adramyttium,[c] which was about to sail to the ports along the coast of Asia, we put to sea, there being with us Aristarchus, a Macedonian of Thessalonica. 3 The next day we landed at Sidon. Julius treated Paul with kindness and allowed him to visit his friends so they could provide for his needs. 4 Putting out from thence, we sailed under the lee of Cyprus, because the winds were against us. 5 And when we had sailed across the open sea off Cilicia and Pamphylia, we came down to Myra in Lycia.[d] 6 There the centurion found a ship of Alexandria sailing for Italy, and put us aboard her. 7 Many a day we crept along slowly and with much ado got abreast of Cnidus; then, the wind forbidding our approach, we slipped under the lee of Crete by Salmone. 8 Coasting along it with difficulty, we came to a certain place called Fair Havens, near which was the town of Lasea.

9 Much time having now been spent, and the voyage being already perilous because even the Fast[e] was already gone by, Paul gave them warning, 10 saying to them, "Sirs, I perceive that this voyage will be with injury and heavy loss, not only of the cargo and the ship but also of our lives." 11 But the centurion paid more heed to the pilot and to the owner of the ship than to the things spoken by Paul. 12 And because the harbor was ill suited to winter in, the majority advised putting out from there, in hope that they might somehow reach Phoenix, a harbor of Crete looking toward the southwest and northwest,[f] and winter there.

13 When a south wind blew softly, supposing they had gained their purpose, they weighed anchor and sailed along Crete, hugging the shore. 14 But not long after, there rushed down from it a tempestuous wind, the one called Euraquilo.[g] 15 And when the ship was caught and could not face the wind, we gave way to it and were driven along. 16

Darting in to the shelter of a small island named Cauda,[h] we barely managed to secure the skiff. 17 After hoisting it up, they used helps, undergirding the ship; and fearing lest they should run aground on the Syrtis,[i] they lowered the gear,[j] and so were driven along. 18
As we were exceedingly storm-tossed, the next day they began to throw cargo overboard; 19 and the third day they flung out the ship's furniture with their own hands. 20 And when neither sun nor stars appeared for many days, and no small tempest lay upon us, all hope of our being saved was at last being taken away.
21 When they had long gone without food, Paul stood up in their midst and said, "Sirs, you ought to have hearkened to me and not have set sail from Crete, and so have been spared this injury and loss. 22 Yet now I counsel you to take heart; for there shall be no loss of life among you, but only of the ship. 23 For there stood by me this night an angel of the God whose I am and whom I serve, 24 and he told me, 'Paul, have no fear. You are going to stand before Caesar. And God has granted you the lives of all who are sailing with you.' 25 So take heart, sirs; for I have faith in God that it shall be even as I have been told. 26 But we must run aground on a certain island." 27 On the fourteenth night, as we were drifting across the Adriatic Sea,[k] around midnight the sailors sensed that land was near. 28 And taking soundings they found a hundred and twenty feet; a little farther on they sounded again and found ninety feet.[l] 29 And fearing lest we should be cast upon rocky places, they let go four anchors from the stern and longed for day to come. 30 And as the sailors were seeking to flee from the ship and had lowered the boat into the sea under color of laying out anchors from the bow, 31 Paul said to the centurion and the soldiers, "Unless these men abide in the ship, you cannot be saved." 32 Then the soldiers cut away the ropes of the boat and let her fall off.
33 While day was coming on, Paul besought them all to partake of food, saying, "This is the fourteenth day you have continued in suspense and without food, having taken nothing. 34 Therefore I urge you to take some food, for it is for your preservation; for not a hair shall perish from the head of any of you." 35 And having said this, he took bread, gave thanks to God in the presence of all, and broke it and began to eat. 36 Then they were all encouraged and themselves also took food. 37 (We were in all about seventy-six persons[m] in the ship.) 38 And when they had eaten enough, they lightened the ship, casting out the wheat into the sea.

39 When daylight came, they did not recognize the coast, but they saw a bay with a sandy beach, and they decided to try to run the ship aground there. 40 So casting off the anchors, they left them in the sea, at the same time loosing the lashings of the steering oars; and hoisting the foresail to the wind, they made for the beach. 41 But striking a place where two seas met,[n] they beached the vessel; the prow stuck and stayed fast, unmoved, while the stern began to go to pieces under the violence of the surf. 42 The soldiers' counsel was to kill the prisoners, lest any should swim off and escape. 43 But the centurion, wishing to bring Paul safely through, kept them from their purpose, and ordered that those who could swim should cast themselves overboard first and get to land, 44 and the rest, some on planks and some on pieces of the ship. And so it came to pass that all were brought safe to land.

Notes

- a (27:1) Julius: a Roman family name, perhaps from Iulus, legendary son of Aeneas; the meaning is uncertain.
- b (27:1) Augustan Cohort: or "Imperial Cohort."
- c (27:2) Adramyttium: a port in Mysia, on the northwest coast of Asia Minor.
- d (27:5) Myra in Lycia: some Western witnesses add that the crossing took fifteen days.
- e (27:9) The Fast: the Day of Atonement, on the tenth of Tishri, in late September or early October, after which sailing on the Mediterranean was considered dangerous.
- f (27:12) Southwest and northwest: literally "toward Lips and toward Chorus," the names of the southwest and northwest winds; the exact sense is uncertain.
- g (27:14) Euraquilo: a hybrid of Greek euros, "east wind," and Latin aquilo, "north wind": a northeaster. Many later manuscripts read Euroclydōn.
- h (27:16) Cauda: many manuscripts read "Clauda." The island is modern Gavdos, south of Crete.
- i (27:17) Syrtis: the gulf of shoals and quicksands off the coast of Libya.
- j (27:17) Lowered the gear: perhaps "let down the sea anchor" or "lowered the mainsail"; the Greek is uncertain.
- k (27:27) Adriatic Sea: in ancient usage the central Mediterranean between Greece, Italy, and Africa, not only the modern Adriatic.

- l (27:28) A hundred and twenty feet ... ninety feet: literally “twenty fathoms ... fifteen fathoms”; about 37 and 27 meters.
- m (27:37) Seventy-six persons: so Codex Vaticanus, followed by the Westcott–Hort text. Most manuscripts read “two hundred seventy-six,” and some “two hundred seventy-five.” In Greek numerals the difference may arise from a single letter.
- n (27:41) A place where two seas met: or “a sandbar,” “a reef.”

Chapter 28

1 Once safe ashore, we learned then that the island was called Malta.[a] 2 The islanders[b] showed us unusual kindness. Because it had begun to rain and was cold, they built a fire and welcomed all of us. 3 But when Paul had gathered a bundle of sticks and laid them on the fire, a viper came out by reason of the heat and fastened on his hand. 4
When the natives saw the creature hanging from his hand, they said one to another, “No doubt this man is a murderer, whom, though he has escaped the sea, Justice[c] has not suffered to live.” 5 But he flung the beast off into the flames and took no hurt. 6 But they were expecting him to swell up or suddenly fall down dead; and after they had waited a long while and saw nothing amiss come to him, they changed their minds and said that he was a god.
7 Now in the neighborhood of that place were lands belonging to the chief man of the island, named Publius,[d] who received us and entertained us courteously three days. 8 And it fell out that the father of Publius lay sick of fever and dysentery; to whom Paul went in, and having prayed and laid his hands on him, he healed him. 9 When this had taken place, the rest [also] on the island who had diseases came and were cured. 10 They also honored us with many honors, and when we were setting sail they put on board such things as we needed.
11 After three months we sailed in a ship from Alexandria that had spent the winter at the island. It carried the Twin Brothers[e] as its figurehead. 12 Putting in at Syracuse, we stayed there three days. 13 And thence we made a circuit[f] and arrived at Rhegium; and after one day a south wind sprang up, and on the second day we came to Puteoli. 14 There we found brothers and were entreated to stay with them seven days. And so we came to Rome. 15 The brothers there, having had word of us, came out from the city to meet us at Appius’ Market and the Three Inns;[g] and at the sight of them Paul gave God thanks and was heartened.

16 On our entry into Rome,[h] leave was granted Paul to lodge on his own, along with the soldier set to guard him.
17 It came to pass after three days that he called together the leading men of the Jews; and when they had come together, he said to them, “Brothers, though I had done nothing against the people or the customs of our fathers, yet I was delivered a prisoner from Jerusalem into the hands of the Romans, 18 who, when they had examined me, were minded to release me, because there was no cause for death in me. 19 But when the Jews objected, I had no choice but to appeal to Caesar, even though I had nothing to accuse my own nation of. 20 On this account, then, I invited you here, to see you face to face and talk with you; for it is for Israel’s hope that I wear this chain.” 21 They told him, “For our part, no letters about you have reached us out of Judea, nor has any brother arrived to report or tell anything evil about you. 22 But we think it fitting to hear from you what your views are; for as concerning this sect, it is known to us that everywhere it is spoken against.”
23 And when they had appointed him a day, they came to him at his lodging in greater numbers. To them he expounded the matter from morning till evening, testifying to the kingdom of God and seeking to persuade them concerning Jesus from both the Law of Moses and the Prophets.
24 And some were persuaded by what was spoken, while others disbelieved.
25 And being at variance among themselves, they departed, after Paul had spoken one word: “Well did the Holy Spirit speak through Isaiah the prophet to your fathers, 26 saying,

‘Go to this people, and say,
By hearing you will hear, and shall in no wise understand;
and seeing you will see, and shall in no wise perceive.
27 For the heart of this people has grown gross, and with their ears they have heard heavily,

and their eyes they have closed;
lest at any time they should see with their eyes,
and hear with their ears,
and understand with their heart, and turn again, and I should heal them.'[i] 28 Know, then, that to the Gentiles this saving work of God is sent; and they, for their part, will listen." 29 [j]
30 And he abode two whole years in his own hired dwelling,[k] and welcomed all who came in to him, 31 proclaiming the kingdom of God and teaching the things concerning the Lord Jesus Christ with all boldness, unhindered.

Notes

- a (28:1) Malta: Greek Melitē; the Westcott–Hort text, following Codex Vaticanus, reads Melitēnē. The name is perhaps from Phoenician, "refuge," but the meaning is uncertain.
- b (28:2) Natives: Greek barbaroi, people who did not speak Greek; the Maltese spoke a Punic dialect.
- c (28:4) Justice: Greek Dikē, the goddess of justice and retribution.
- d (28:7) Publius: a Latin first name, perhaps related to populus, "people"; the meaning is uncertain. His title, "chief man" (Greek prōtos), is attested on Maltese inscriptions.
- e (28:11) The Twin Brothers: Greek Dioskouroi, Castor and Pollux, sons of Zeus and patrons of sailors.
- f (28:13) Made a circuit: some manuscripts read "cast off."
- g (28:15) Appius' Market and the Three Inns: Latin Forum Appii and Tres Tabernae, stations on the Appian Way, about 43 and 33 miles (69 and 53 km) south of Rome.
- h (28:16) Entry into Rome: many manuscripts, mainly Western and Byzantine, add "the centurion delivered the prisoners to the commander of the camp," and continue "but Paul was allowed to live by himself outside the camp."
- i (28:27) Isa 6:9–10, following the Greek translation of the Old Testament.
- j (28:29) The Westcott–Hort text and the earliest manuscripts do not include verse 29; the number is kept here only to preserve the traditional verse numbering. Some later manuscripts add a sentence saying that after Paul spoke, the Jews left, arguing vigorously among themselves.
- k (28:30) Hired dwelling: or "at his own expense."

Romans

New Testament

Chapter 1

1 From Paul,[a] slave[b] of Christ Jesus,[c] an apostle by calling, set apart for God's gospel[d] 2 the gospel God promised beforehand through his prophets in holy writings, 3 concerning his Son, who as to the flesh was born from the seed of David, 4 and who was installed as Son of God with power, by the Spirit of holiness,[e] when he rose from the dead: Jesus Christ our Lord. 5 Through him we were given grace and a commission as apostle, to bring about faithful obedience[f] among every non-Jewish nation for the sake of his name; 6 and among them are you also, called to belong to Jesus Christ. 7 To all who are in Rome,[g] beloved of God, called to be saints:[h] grace to you and peace from God our Father and the Lord Jesus Christ.
8 First, I thank my God through Jesus Christ for all of you, because the report of your faith is spreading through the whole world. 9 For God, whom I serve in my spirit in the gospel of his Son, is my witness how without ceasing I make mention of you, 10 always asking in my prayers that somehow, at last, by God's will I may succeed in coming to you. 11 For I long to see you, to share with you some spiritual gift so that you may be made firm; 12 or rather, that we may be encouraged together among you, each by the other's faith, both yours and mine.
13 Brothers,[i] I want you to know that many a time I have planned to come to you, though up to now I have been hindered, in order to gather some fruit among you as well, just as among the other Gentiles. 14 To Greeks and to barbarians,[j] to the wise and to the foolish, I am a debtor; 15 so, for my part, I am eager to preach the gospel to you also who are in Rome.
16 I am not ashamed of the gospel,[k] for it is the power of God bringing salvation to all who believe, the Jew first[l] and the Greek as well. 17 For God's righteousness[m] is unveiled in it, starting from faith and aiming at faith; as scripture says, "The righteous person will live by faith."[n]

18 For God's wrath is being revealed from heaven against all ungodliness and wickedness of people who by their wickedness hold down the truth. 19 because what may be known of God lies open before them; God himself has shown it to them. 20 From the world's creation onward, the unseen things of God, his everlasting power and godhead, are discerned and grasped through what he has made, leaving them without defense. 21 For although they knew God, they did not glorify him as God or give thanks, but became futile in their reasonings, and their senseless heart was darkened. 22 Claiming to be wise, they became fools, 23 and exchanged the glory of the immortal God for a likeness in the shape of mortal man and of birds and four-footed beasts and creeping things.
24 That is why God handed them over, in their hearts' desires, to uncleanness, so that their bodies were degraded among them. 25 They traded God's truth for a falsehood, and revered and served what was made instead of the Maker, who is praised forever. Amen.
26 For this reason God gave them up to dishonorable passions. Their females exchanged natural relations for those contrary to nature; 27 and in the same way the men abandoned natural intimacy with women and burned with desire for one another, men doing shameful things with men and receiving in themselves the fitting penalty for their straying.
28 And since they did not see fit to keep God in their knowledge, God gave them up to an unfit mind,[o] to do what ought not to be done. 29 They have been filled with every kind of wickedness, evil, greed, malice; they are full of envy, murder, strife, deceit, spite. They are gossips, 30 gossips, God-haters,[p] bullies, haughty, braggarts, devisers of wrongdoing, defiant toward parents, 31 senseless, faithless,[q] heartless, ruthless.[r] 32 They know well God's decree that people who do such things are worthy of death; yet they do them, and what is more, they approve of others who do them.

Notes

- a (1:1) Paul: Latin Paulus, "small"; his Jewish name was Saul (Acts 13:9).

- b (1:1) Slave: Greek doulos, a slave or bondservant; also used of God's servants such as Moses and the prophets.
- c (1:1) Christ Jesus: Christ (Greek Christos) means "Anointed One," the equivalent of Hebrew Mashiach, "Messiah." In Paul's letters it usually functions as part of Jesus' name. Some manuscripts read "Jesus Christ."
- d (1:1) Gospel: Greek euangelion, "good news."
- e (1:4) Spirit of holiness: probably the Holy Spirit, though some understand Jesus' own holy spirit.
- f (1:5) The obedience of faith: either "the obedience that consists in faith" or "the obedience that comes from faith."
- g (1:7) In Rome: a few witnesses, including Codex Boernerianus (G) and some early writers (as reported), lack "in Rome" here and in 1:15, perhaps because the letter circulated more generally.
- h (1:7) Saints: Greek hagioi, "holy ones," those set apart for God; Paul's usual term for believers.
- i (1:13) Brothers: Greek adelphoi, used by Paul of fellow believers, women and men alike.
- j (1:14) Barbarians: non-Greek-speaking peoples.
- k (1:16) The gospel: many later manuscripts read "the gospel of Christ."
- l (1:16) First: bracketed in the Westcott–Hort text; Vaticanus and Codex Boernerianus (as reported) lack it.
- m (1:17) The righteousness of God: either God's own righteousness (his saving justice and faithfulness) or the righteous standing that God gives.
- n (1:17) Hab 2:4. Or "The righteous will live by faith." The Hebrew text reads "by his faithfulness."
- o (1:28) An unfit mind: Greek adokimon noun, a wordplay with edokimasan, "they did not see fit."
- p (1:30) Haters of God: or "hateful to God."
- q (1:31) Faithless: or "covenant-breakers," "untrustworthy."
- r (1:31) Ruthless: many later manuscripts add "implacable."

Chapter 2

[1] So you have no defense, whoever you are, O man, who sit in judgment. In judging the other person you pass sentence on yourself, since you who judge are doing those same things. [2] We know that the judgment of God falls in accordance with truth on those who practice such things. [3] O man, judging people who do such things while doing them yourself, do you really think you will escape God's judgment? [4] Or do you think lightly of his rich goodness, his patience and long-suffering, unaware that the goodness of God is leading you toward repentance? 5 With your hard and unrepentant heart you are heaping up wrath against yourself for the day of wrath, the day God's just judgment is unveiled. 6 He "will give back to every person as his deeds deserve":[a] 7 to those who by perseverance in good work seek glory and honor and immortality, eternal life; 8 but to those who are self-seeking[b] and disobey the truth but obey wickedness, wrath and fury.

9 Trouble and anguish will come upon every human soul that works evil, upon the Jew first and the Greek as well; 10 but glory, honor and peace upon everyone who works what is good, upon the Jew first and the Greek as well. 11 For God shows no partiality.
12 All who have sinned without the law will also perish without the law, and all who have sinned under the law will be judged by the law.
13 For it is not the hearers of the law who are righteous before God, but the doers of the law who will be justified. 14 Whenever Gentiles, who lack the law, do by nature what the law contains, these people, though they lack the law, are their own law. 15 They display the law's work inscribed on their hearts; their conscience adds its testimony, and their thoughts in turn accuse them or perhaps defend them, 16 on the day when God, as my gospel declares, judges people's hidden things through Christ Jesus.[c] 17 Now you bear the name of Jew; you lean on the law; you make your boast in God; 18 you know his will and can tell what really matters,[d] being taught out of the law; 19 and if you are confident that you are a guide to the blind, a light to those in darkness, 20 an instructor of the foolish, a teacher of infants, possessing in the law the very shape of knowledge and truth. 21 Well then, you who teach another, will you not teach yourself? You who proclaim, "Do not steal," are you a thief?
22 You who forbid adultery, do you commit it yourself? You who detest idols, do you plunder their temples?[e] 23 You who boast in the law, do you dishonor God by breaking the law? 24 For, as it is written, "The name of God is blasphemed among the Gentiles because of you."[f] 25 Circumcision does have worth if you keep the law; but if you break the law, your circumcision turns into uncircumcision. 26 If, then, an uncircumcised man observes the law's just demands, will his lack of circumcision not be reckoned to him as circumcision? 27 Then the one who is physically uncircumcised but fulfills the law will judge you, who with the written code and circumcision are a breaker of the law. 28 For a Jew is not one outwardly, nor is circumcision something outward in the flesh. 29 No, the true Jew is one in secret, and true circumcision is of the heart, in the Spirit, not in the letter. Such a person's praise[g] comes from God, not from people.

Notes

- a (2:6) Ps 62:12; Prov 24:12.
- b (2:8) Self-seeking: Greek eritheia, selfish ambition or rivalry.
- c (2:16) Christ Jesus: some manuscripts read "Jesus Christ." Verses 14–15 may be a parenthesis, with v. 16 continuing v. 13.
- d (2:18) Tell what really matters: or "approve what is excellent."
- e (2:22) Rob temples: perhaps plundering pagan temples, or more broadly committing sacrilege.
- f (2:24) Isa 52:5, following the Greek Old Testament; compare Ezek 36:20.
- g (2:29) Praise: a wordplay on Jew (from Judah), which means "praised" (Gen 29:35; 49:8).

Chapter 3

1 What advantage, then, does the Jew have? Or what good is there in circumcision? 2 Much, in every respect. To begin with, it was to them that God's oracles were committed. 3 What then if some proved unfaithful? Will their faithlessness cancel out God's faithfulness? 4 Far from it! Let God be found true, though every human being be a liar, as it stands written, "So that you may be shown in the right in your words, and win when you are put on trial."[a] 5 But if our wrongdoing brings out God's righteousness, what are we to say? That God does wrong in bringing his wrath upon us? (I am speaking in human terms.) 6 Far from it! For then how could God judge the world? 7 Yet if my lie makes God's truth overflow all the more to his glory, why should I, of all people, still be judged a sinner? 8 And why not say, as we are slanderously charged with saying, and as some assert that we say, "Let us do evil so that good may come"? Their condemnation is deserved.

9 What follows? Do we have the upper hand?[b] By no means. We have already brought the charge that Jews and Greeks alike all lie under sin, 10 as it is written: "There is no one righteous, not even one; 11 there is no one who understands; there is no one who seeks out God. 12 Every one has swerved away; all alike have gone bad. Not one does what is kind, no, not a single one.[c] 13 Their throat is a grave thrown open; with their tongues they keep deceiving.[d] The venom of asps is under their lips.[e] 14 Their mouth is full of cursing and bitterness.[f] 15 Swift are their feet to shed blood; 16 ruin and misery lie along their paths, 17 and the way of peace they have not known.[g] 18 There is no fear of God before their eyes."[h] 19 Now we understand that everything the law declares is addressed to those under the law, so that no one has anything to say and the entire world is held accountable to God. 20 For by works of the law no flesh will be justified[i] before him;[j] for through the law comes the knowledge of sin.

21 But now, apart from the law, God's righteousness has been disclosed, attested by the Law and the Prophets: 22 a righteousness of God that comes through faith in Jesus Christ[k] to all who believe. No distinction is made, 23 all have sinned and fall short of the glory of God, 24 and are justified freely by his grace through the redemption that is in Christ Jesus. 25 He is the one God set forth publicly as a mercy seat,[l] through faith, by means of his blood, to show forth his righteousness, since in his patience God had let earlier sins go unpunished; 26 it was to demonstrate his righteousness at the present time, so that he might be righteous and also the one who justifies the person who has faith in Jesus.
27 Where, then, is boasting? It has been shut out. By what kind of law?
A law of works? No, but by a law of faith. 28 For we reckon that a person is justified by faith apart from works of the law. 29 Or is God the God of Jews only? Is he not the God of Gentiles also? Yes, of Gentiles also, 30 if indeed God is one;[m] he will declare the circumcised righteous out of faith, and the uncircumcised by means of the very same faith.
31 Do we then nullify the law through faith? Far from it! Instead, we uphold the law.

Notes

- a (3:4) Ps 51:4 (50:6 Greek), following the Greek Old Testament.

- b (3:9) Do we have the upper hand?: the meaning of Greek proechometha is disputed; it may mean “Are we at a disadvantage?” or “Are we making excuses?”
- c (3:12) Ps 14:1–3 (13:1–3 Greek); 53:1–3; compare Eccl 7:20.
- d (3:13) Ps 5:9.
- e (3:13) Ps 140:3.
- f (3:14) Ps 10:7.
- g (3:17) Isa 59:7–8; compare Prov 1:16.
- h (3:18) Ps 36:1.
- i (3:20) Justified: Greek dikaioō, “declare righteous, acquit, put in the right”; related to dikaiosynē, “righteousness,” and dikaios, “righteous.”
- j (3:20) Compare Ps 143:2.
- k (3:22) Faith in Jesus Christ: or “the faithfulness of Jesus Christ.” The Greek genitive can be read either way; the same question arises in 3:26 and Gal 2:16, 20; 3:22; Phil 3:9. “Jesus” is bracketed in the Westcott–Hort text and absent from Vaticanus (as reported).
- l (3:25) Mercy seat: Greek hilastērion, the word used in the Greek Old Testament for the gold cover of the ark of the covenant, where atoning blood was sprinkled on the Day of Atonement (Lev 16:14–15); or more generally “a means of atonement,” “a sacrifice of atonement,” “propitiation.”
- m (3:30) God is one: echoing the Shema (Deut 6:4).

Chapter 4

1 What then shall we say of Abraham,[a] our forefather according to the flesh?[b] 2 For if Abraham was justified by works, he has something to boast about, but not before God. 3 For what does the Scripture say?
“Abraham believed God, and it was credited to him as righteousness.”[c] 4 Now to the one who works, his wages are not credited as a gift but as what is owed. 5 But to the one who does not work, yet trusts in him who justifies the ungodly, his faith is credited as righteousness. 6 Just so David also speaks of the blessedness of the man to whom God credits righteousness apart from works: 7 “How happy are they whose lawbreaking is pardoned, whose sins are hidden from view! 8 How happy the man against whom the Lord will by no means reckon sin!”[d] 9 This blessedness, then: does it come upon the circumcised, or upon the uncircumcised too? For we say, “Faith was credited to Abraham as righteousness.” 10 Under what circumstances, then, was it credited?
Was he circumcised at the time, or not? He was not yet circumcised; he was uncircumcised. 11 And he was given circumcision as a sign, a seal of the righteousness by faith that was his in uncircumcision. So he is father to all who believe while uncircumcised, so that righteousness is credited to them as well, 12 and the father of the circumcised, to those who are not only circumcised but who also walk in the footsteps of the faith our father Abraham had while uncircumcised.

13 For the promise to Abraham and his offspring, that he would inherit the world, did not arrive by way of the law but by the righteousness that comes from faith. 14 For if it is the adherents of the law who are heirs, faith has been emptied of meaning and the promise made void.
15 For the law produces wrath; but where no law exists, there is no violation either. 16 For this reason it comes from faith, in order to be by grace, so that the promise stands firm for every descendant, not only the one belonging to the law, but also the one belonging to Abraham's faith. He is father of us all, 17 just as Scripture says, "I have appointed you father of many nations."[e] He stands so before God, in whom he put his faith, the God who makes the dead alive and summons what does not exist as though it did. 18 Past all hope, he believed in hope, that he would be made father of many nations, in keeping with the word, "So shall your descendants be."[f] 19 Without wavering in faith he took full account of[g] his body, already[h] as good as dead at about a hundred years of age, and of the deadness of Sarah's[i] womb. 20 He did not waver in distrust at God's promise; instead he grew strong in faith and gave glory to God, 21 being fully assured that what God had promised he could also perform. 22 So it was that "it was credited to him as righteousness." 23 But the phrase "it was credited to him" was not recorded for his benefit alone, 24 but for ours also. It will be credited to us who believe in him who raised Jesus our Lord from the dead, 25 who was handed over for our trespasses and raised for our justification.

Notes

- a (4:1) What then shall we say of Abraham: so the Westcott–Hort text with Vaticanus (as reported). Most manuscripts include the verb "found," giving a question like "What, then, are we to say that Abraham, our forefather, discovered by natural means?" (with differences in word order). Abraham is explained in Gen 17:5 as "father of a multitude."
- b (4:1) According to the flesh: that is, by physical descent.

- c (4:3) Gen 15:6.
- d (4:8) Ps 32:1–2 (31:1–2 Greek). In the Hebrew text, “the Lord” is Yahweh.
- e (4:17) Gen 17:5.
- f (4:18) Gen 15:5.
- g (4:19) Took full account of: so the Westcott–Hort text with the earliest manuscripts; most later manuscripts insert “not,” giving “Not being weak in faith, he did not consider his own body.”
- h (4:19) Already: Greek ēdē, bracketed in the Westcott–Hort text and lacking in some manuscripts.
- i (4:19) Sarah: Hebrew, “princess” (Gen 17:15).

Chapter 5

1 Having been justified, then, by faith, let us have[a] peace toward God through our Lord Jesus Christ. 2 Through him we have also been granted entry by faith[b] into this grace where we now stand, and we boast in our hope of sharing God’s glory. 3 More than that, we exult even in our afflictions, knowing that affliction works out endurance, 4 and endurance, tested character, and tested character, hope; 5 and this hope does not disappoint, since God’s love has flooded our hearts by the Holy Spirit he has given us.
6 For while we were still helpless, at the appointed time Christ died on behalf of the ungodly. 7 It is rare for anyone to die for a just person, though for a truly good person someone might possibly find the courage to die. 8 But God proves how he loves us: Christ died for us when we were yet sinners. 9 How much more, then, now that we have been justified by his blood, shall we be saved through him from the wrath. 10 For if we were reconciled to God through his Son’s death while still enemies, how much more certain is it that, now reconciled, we will be saved through his life. 11 And not only that, but we also exult in God through our Lord Jesus Christ,[c] through whom we have now received the reconciliation.
12 Therefore, just as through one man sin made its entrance into the world, and through sin death, so death spread to all people, inasmuch as all sinned.[d] 13 Sin was already present in the world until the law came, though no account of sin is kept where law is absent. 14 Still, death reigned from Adam[e] until Moses, even over people whose sins were not like Adam's offense; Adam is a pattern of the one who was coming.

15 But the gift does not match the offense. For if the many died through one person's offense, how much more has God's grace, and the gift that came by the grace of one person, Jesus Christ, overflowed to the many. 16 Again, the gift does not resemble the outcome of the one man's sin. For judgment followed one trespass and led to condemnation, but the free gift followed many trespasses and led to acquittal. 17 For if, by the trespass of the one, death reigned through that one, much more will those who receive the abundance of grace and of the gift of righteousness reign in life through the one, Jesus Christ.
18 So then, as one trespass led to condemnation for all people, so too one righteous act[f] leads to acquittal and life for all people. 19 For just as through the disobedience of the one man the many were made sinners, so also through the obedience of the one the many will be made righteous. 20 The law slipped in so that the offense would multiply; but where sin multiplied, grace multiplied far more, 21 so that, as sin reigned in death, so also grace might reign through righteousness to eternal life through Jesus Christ our Lord.

Notes

- a (5:1) Let us have: Greek echōmen, the reading of the Westcott–Hort text, supported by many early witnesses, including Sinaiticus and Vaticanus (original hands), Alexandrinus, Ephraemi, and Bezae (as reported). Other witnesses, including correctors of Sinaiticus and Vaticanus, read echomen, "we have," printed in NA28 and SBLGNT. The two forms were pronounced alike in later Greek, and many scholars judge "we have" to suit the context of vv. 1–11 better.
- b (5:2) By faith: bracketed in the Westcott–Hort text; lacking in Vaticanus, Bezae, and some others (as reported).
- c (5:11) Jesus Christ: "Christ" is bracketed in the Westcott–Hort text.
- d (5:12) Inasmuch as all sinned: or "because all sinned"; Greek eph' hō. The Latin rendering "in whom" (that is, in Adam) shaped later Western doctrine.
- e (5:14) Adam: Hebrew, "man, humankind," related to adamah, "ground" (Gen 2:7).
- f (5:18) One righteous act: or "the righteous requirement of one."

Chapter 6

1 What then shall we say? Should we persist in sin so that grace may multiply? 2 Absolutely not! We have died to sin; how can we still continue in it? 3 Or are you unaware that all of us who were baptized[a] into Christ Jesus[b] were baptized into his death? 4 So we were buried with him through baptism into death, in order that, as Christ was raised from the dead through the Father's glory, we too may live a new kind of life. 5 For if we have grown together with him in the likeness of his death, we will certainly also share in the likeness of his resurrection. 6 This we know: our old humanity was crucified along with him, to put out of action the sin-ruled body, so that we would be slaves of sin no more. 7 For the one who has died has been set free[c] from sin. 8 But if we died with Christ, we believe that we shall also live with him, 9 knowing that Christ, now raised from the dead, will never die again; death no longer lords it over him. 10 In dying, he died to sin a single time for all; in living, he lives to God. 11 You too, then, must count yourselves dead to sin but alive to God in Christ Jesus.[d] 12 So do not let sin reign in your mortal body, to make you obey its cravings. 13 Do not keep offering the parts of your body to sin as tools[e] of wickedness, but offer yourselves to God as people brought from death to life, and your body's parts to God as tools of righteousness.
14 Sin will not rule over you, because you live not under law but under grace.
15 What then? Shall we sin because we are not under law but under grace? Never! 16 Surely you know that if you present yourselves to anyone as slaves for obedience, you are that master's slaves whom you obey, slaves either of sin, ending in death, or of obedience, ending in righteousness. 17 But thanks be to God that you, once slaves of sin, have obeyed from the heart the pattern of teaching to which you were handed over; 18 and, set free from sin, you have been enslaved to righteousness. 19 I speak in human fashion on account of your fleshly weakness. As you once put your limbs and faculties in bondage to uncleanness and lawlessness, for lawless ends,[f] so now put them in bondage to righteousness, for holiness. 20 While you were sin's slaves, righteousness had no claim on you. 21 And what harvest did you have back then? Things that now make you ashamed, for those things end in death. 22 But now that you have been freed from sin and have become slaves of God, the fruit you reap leads to holiness, and its end is eternal life. 23 For the wages that sin pays are death, but God's free gift is eternal life in Christ Jesus our Lord.

Notes

- a (6:3) Baptized: Greek baptizō, "dip, immerse, wash."
- b (6:3) Christ Jesus: "Jesus" is bracketed in the Westcott–Hort text.
- c (6:7) Set free: Greek dedikaiōtai, literally "has been justified," here in the sense "acquitted" or "released."
- d (6:11) In Christ Jesus: many later manuscripts add "our Lord."
- e (6:13) Tools: or "weapons"; Greek hopla.
- f (6:19) For lawless ends: Greek "to lawlessness," bracketed in the Westcott–Hort text.

Chapter 7

1 Or do you not realize, brothers (for I am speaking to people acquainted with law), that the law has authority over a person only as long as that person lives? 2 Take the married woman: the law binds her to her living husband, but should the husband die, she is discharged from the law concerning the husband. 3 So she will be labeled an adulteress if she takes up with another man while her husband is alive. But if her husband dies, the law no longer binds her, and she commits no adultery by marrying someone else. 4 In the same way, my brothers, you too were put to death to the law through the body of Christ, so as to belong to another, to him who was raised from the dead, in order that we might bear fruit for God. 5 For when we were in the flesh, the passions of sin, aroused through the law, were at work in our members to bear fruit for death. 6 Now, however, having died to what once held us fast, we have been discharged from the law, so as to be slaves in the newness of the Spirit and not in the oldness of the letter.

7 What are we to conclude? That the law is sinful? Certainly not! But I would never have recognized sin without the law. I would not have known about greed unless the law had said, "You must not covet."[a] 8 Sin, seizing the opening given by the commandment, worked in me every kind of covetous desire. For apart from the law, sin lies dead. 9 Once, without law, I was living; but with the commandment's arrival sin revived, and I died. 10 The very commandment that was meant for life turned out for me to bring death. 11 For sin, seizing the opening given by the commandment, deceived me and through it killed me. 12

The law, then, is holy; holy too is the commandment, and just, and good.
13 Did what is good, then, become death to me? Never! It was sin, so that it might be exposed as sin, that brought about my death through what is good, so that through the commandment sin might become sinful past all measure. 14 For we know that the law is spiritual; but I am made of flesh,[b] sold as a slave under sin. 15 I do not grasp what I am doing. For I do not carry out what I desire; instead I do the very thing I loathe. 16 But when I do the thing I do not will, I am agreeing that the law is fine. 17 So now it is no longer I who carry it out, but sin that dwells in me. 18 For I know that nothing good dwells in me, that is, in my flesh. The wanting is there in me, but the carrying out of what is good is not. 19 For the good I want, I fail to do; but the evil I do not want, that is what I keep doing. 20 And if what I am doing is what I do not will, then the doer is no longer I, but the sin that has its home in me.
21 This, then, is the law I find: when I want to do good, evil lies close at hand. 22 For in my inner being I delight in the law of God, 23 but I see another law in my members, waging war against the law of my mind and taking me captive to the law of sin that is in my members.
24 What a miserable man I am! Who will deliver me out of this body that is bound for death? 25 Thanks be[c] to God through Jesus Christ our Lord! So then, I myself with my mind serve the law of God, but with my flesh the law of sin.

Notes

- a (7:7) Exod 20:17; Deut 5:21.
- b (7:14) Made of flesh: Greek sarkinos; many later manuscripts read sarkikos, "fleshly."
- c (7:25) Thanks be: so the Westcott–Hort text (charis [de]). Many manuscripts read "I thank God"; others read "the grace of God" or "the grace of the Lord."

Chapter 8

1 There is therefore at present no sentence of condemnation against those in Christ Jesus.[a] 2 For the law of the Spirit of life in Christ Jesus has set you[b] free from the law of sin and of death. 3 The law was powerless because of the flesh's weakness, but God did what it could not: he sent his own Son in the likeness of sinful flesh, as a sin offering,[c] and passed sentence on sin within the flesh, 4 so that the righteous requirement of the law might be fulfilled in us, who walk not according to the flesh but according to the Spirit. 5 For those who live according to the flesh set their minds on the things of the flesh, but those who live according to the Spirit, on the things of the Spirit.
6 The mind of the flesh is death, but the mind of the Spirit is life and peace, 7 for the flesh-minded outlook is at enmity with God; to God's law it does not submit; indeed it is unable to. 8 Those who are in the flesh cannot please God.

9 You, however, are not in flesh but in Spirit, provided that God's Spirit makes his home in you. If someone lacks Christ's Spirit, that person is not his. 10 Yet if Christ is within you, the body is a dead thing on account of sin, but the Spirit is life on account of righteousness. 11 If the Spirit of the one who raised Jesus from the dead lives in you, then the one who raised Christ Jesus from the dead will also bring your mortal bodies to life, by means of his Spirit residing in you.[d]

12 So then, brothers, we are debtors, but not to the flesh, to live according to the flesh. 13 For if you live by the flesh, you will die; but if you use the Spirit to kill the practices of the body, you will live. 14 For all who are led by the Spirit of God are sons of God. 15 The spirit you received was not one of slavery, plunging you back into fear; what you received was the Spirit of sonship,[e] in whom we call out, "Abba!
[f] Father!" 16 The Spirit himself bears witness together with our spirit that we are children of God, 17 and if we are children, we are heirs as well: God's heirs, and Christ's co-heirs, if we share his suffering in order to share his glory too.

18 In my reckoning, what we suffer in the present age does not deserve to be set beside the glory about to be unveiled for us. 19 For the creation waits with eager longing for the unveiling of the sons of God. 20 For creation was placed under futility, not of its own will, but on account of the one who placed it there, in hope[g] 21 that creation itself will be freed from enslavement to corruption into the glorious freedom of God's children. 22 For we know that the whole creation has been groaning together and suffering birth pains together until now. 23 Not that alone: we too, holding the Spirit as firstfruits, groan within ourselves while we eagerly await adoption,[h] the redeeming of our body. 24 It was in hope that we were saved. But a hope that is seen is no hope. Who hopes for what is in plain sight?[i] 25 If our hope is for what we do not see, we wait eagerly for it with perseverance.

26 Likewise the Spirit also helps us in our weakness. For we do not know what we should pray for as we ought, but the Spirit himself intercedes with groanings too deep for words. 27 And the one who examines our hearts knows the Spirit's intention, since the Spirit pleads on behalf of God's holy people in line with God's will. 28 We know that God works all things together[j] for the good of those who love him, who are called in keeping with his purpose. 29 For those whom he foreknew he also predestined to be conformed to the image of his Son, so that he might be the firstborn among many brothers. 30 Whom he predestined, these he called as well; whom he called, these he justified as well; whom he justified, these he glorified as well.
31 What then shall we say to these things? If God is for us, who can be against us? 32 He spared not even his own Son but handed him over on behalf of us all. How then shall he fail to give us everything along with him, as a gift? 33 Who will bring a charge against God's elect? It is God who justifies. 34 Who is there to condemn? It is Christ Jesus[k] who died, or rather was raised,[l] who sits at God's right hand, who also pleads for us! 35 Who shall separate us from the love of Christ?[m] Shall affliction, or distress, or persecution, or famine, or nakedness, or danger, or sword? 36 As Scripture says, "On your account we face death all day long; we are counted as sheep for slaughter."[n] 37 No, in all these things we are more than conquerors through him who loved us.
38 I am persuaded that not death, not life, not angels, not principalities, not the present, not the future, not powers, 39 not height, not depth, nor any other created thing will have power to part us from God's love in Christ Jesus our Lord.

Notes

- a (8:1) In Christ Jesus: many later manuscripts add "who walk not according to the flesh," and some add further "but according to the Spirit" (compare v. 4).
- b (8:2) You: so the Westcott–Hort text with Sinaiticus and Vaticanus (as reported); many manuscripts read "me," others "us."
- c (8:3) As an offering for sin: or simply "concerning sin"; the Greek phrase peri hamartias often renders "sin offering" in the Greek Old Testament.
- d (8:11) Through his Spirit dwelling in you: so the Westcott–Hort text (genitive); many manuscripts read "because of his Spirit dwelling in you" (accusative). "Also" is bracketed in the Westcott–Hort text.
- e (8:15) Sonship: Greek huiothesia, a legal term for adoption granting full rights of inheritance.
- f (8:15) Abba: Aramaic, "father."
- g (8:20) In hope: or, joining to v. 21, "in hope, because the creation itself…"
- h (8:23) Adoption: a few witnesses, including P46 and Bezae (as reported), lack "adoption." "We" (hēmeis) after "firstfruits" is bracketed in the Westcott–Hort text.
- i (8:24) Who hopes for what is in plain sight?: some manuscripts read "why does anyone still hope for what he sees?"; others "why does anyone still wait for what he sees?"
- j (8:28) All things work together: so the Westcott–Hort text in its main reading; "God" is printed in brackets after it, from P46, Alexandrinus, Vaticanus, and a few others (as reported), giving "God works all things together for good" or "in all things God works for good." Grammatically, "all things" may also be the object, with the Spirit (v. 27) as subject: "he works all things together for good."
- k (8:34) Christ Jesus: "Jesus" is bracketed in the Westcott–Hort text.
- l (8:34) Raised: "from the dead" is added in brackets in the Westcott–Hort text, following Sinaiticus (original hand) and others (as reported).
- m (8:35) Of Christ: Sinaiticus reads "of God"; Vaticanus reads "of God in Christ Jesus" (as reported).
- n (8:36) Ps 44:22 (43:23 Greek).

Chapter 9

1 I am speaking the truth in Christ; I am not lying, as my conscience confirms by the Holy Spirit: 2 I carry a great sorrow and an unceasing anguish in my heart. 3 I could pray to be accursed[a] myself, severed from Christ, on behalf of my brothers, my own flesh-and-blood kin. 4 They are Israelites;[b] theirs are the adoption, the glory, the covenants, the giving of the law, the worship, and the promises; 5 theirs are the patriarchs, and from them, by physical descent, comes the Messiah, who is God over all, blessed forever. Amen.[c] 6 But it is not as though the word of God has failed. For not all who are descended from Israel are Israel, 7 nor are they all Abraham's children because they are his offspring; rather, "Through Isaac[d] your offspring will be named."[e] 8 That is, it is not the children of the flesh who are God's children, but the children of the promise are counted as offspring. 9 For this was the wording of the promise: "At this season I will return, and Sarah will have a son."[f] 10 And not only so, but Rebekah too conceived children by one man, our forefather Isaac. 11

For before they were born, before they had done anything either good or worthless, in order that God's electing purpose might remain in force, resting not on deeds but on the one who calls, 12 it was said to her, "The elder shall be slave to the younger."[g] 13 As it is written, "Jacob I loved, but Esau I hated."[h] 14 What then shall we say? Is there injustice with God? Never! 15 For he says to Moses, "I will have mercy on whom I have mercy, and I will have compassion on whom I have compassion."[i] 16 So then it does not depend on human willing or running, but on God who shows mercy.
17 For the Scripture says to Pharaoh, "For this very purpose I raised you up, to display my power in you, and so that my name might be proclaimed in all the earth."[j] 18 So, then, he shows mercy to whom he chooses, and to whom he chooses he gives a hard heart.
19 You will say to me then, "Why does he still find fault? For who resists his will?" 20 But rather, O man, who are you to answer God back? Shall the thing formed say to the one who formed it, "Why have you made me this way?"[k] 21 Has the potter not the authority over his clay to make from a single lump this pot for an honored purpose and that one for an ordinary purpose? 22 What if God, wanting to show his wrath and make known his power, endured with much patience vessels of wrath made ready for destruction, 23 and did so to make the wealth of his glory known upon vessels of mercy, prepared in advance for glory: 24 namely us, whom he also called, not only from among the Jews but also from among the Gentiles? 25 So he says in

Hosea[l] also, "The people not mine I will name 'My people,' and the one not loved I will name 'Loved.'[m] 26 And in the very place where it was said to them, 'You are not my people,' there they will be called sons of the living God."[n] 27 And Isaiah[o] proclaims about Israel: "Even if Israel's people are as many as the sand by the sea, only a remnant will be rescued; 28 for the Lord will execute his word upon the earth, bringing it to an end and cutting it short."[p] 29 And as Isaiah foretold, "Had not the Lord of Hosts left us a seed, we would have fared as Sodom did, and resembled Gomorrah."[q]

30 What should we say, then? That non-Jews, who were not chasing after righteousness, have grasped righteousness, the righteousness that comes through faith; 31 but Israel, pursuing a law of righteousness, did not attain to that law. 32 Why? Because they did not pursue it from faith, but as though it were from works.[r] They stumbled over the stone of stumbling, 33 just as Scripture says, "Look, I place in Zion a stone that makes people stumble, a rock that trips them up; and the one who trusts in him will not be disgraced."[s]

Notes

- a (9:3) Accursed: Greek anathema, devoted to destruction.
- b (9:4) Israelites: Israel, the name given to Jacob, is explained in Gen 32:28 as "he strives with God."
- c (9:5) The Messiah, who is God over all, blessed forever. Amen: the punctuation is disputed, and early manuscripts lack punctuation. The Westcott–Hort text prints a comma after "descent," as rendered here; its margin offers a full stop there, so that the next sentence becomes a separate doxology: "God, who is over all, be blessed forever. Amen." Other possible punctuations make "who is over all" describe the Messiah, with a separate sentence praising God, or make "God" a further title of the Messiah in the same sentence.
- d (9:7) Isaac: Hebrew, "he laughs" (Gen 17:17–19; 21:6).
- e (9:7) Gen 21:12.
- f (9:9) Gen 18:10, 14.
- g (9:12) Gen 25:23.
- h (9:13) Mal 1:2–3.
- i (9:15) Exod 33:19.
- j (9:17) Exod 9:16.
- k (9:20) Isa 29:16; 45:9.
- l (9:25) Hosea: Hebrew, "salvation."
- m (9:25) Hos 2:23.

- n (9:26) Hos 1:10.
- o (9:27) Isaiah: Hebrew, "Yahweh is salvation."
- p (9:28) Isa 10:22–23, following the Greek Old Testament; compare Hos 1:10. In the Hebrew text, "the Lord" is "the Lord Yahweh of Hosts." Many later manuscripts expand v. 28: "for he will finish the matter and cut it short in righteousness, because the Lord will make a short work upon the earth."
- q (9:29) Isa 1:9. Greek Kyrios Sabaōth, for Hebrew Yahweh Tseva'ot, Yahweh of the armies (of heaven). Sodom and Gomorrah: Gen 19:24–25.
- r (9:32) From works: many later manuscripts add "of the law."
- s (9:33) Isa 28:16 combined with Isa 8:14.

Chapter 10

1 Brothers, my heart's goodwill and my plea to God on their behalf is for their salvation. 2 I can testify for them that they have zeal for God, though not a zeal guided by knowledge. 3 Not recognizing the righteousness that comes from God, and seeking to set up their own, they did not yield to God's righteousness. 4 For Christ is the goal[a] of the law, bringing righteousness to everyone who believes.
5 For Moses describes law-based righteousness this way: "Whoever does these things shall live by them."[b] 6 But the righteousness based on faith speaks this way: "Do not say in your heart, 'Who will climb up into heaven?'" (that is, to bring Christ down), 7 "or, 'Who will go down into the abyss?'" (that is, to bring Christ up from among the dead). 8 But what does it say? "The word is close to you, on your lips and in your heart"[c] (that is, the word of faith that we proclaim): 9 that if with your mouth you confess Jesus as Lord, and in your heart believe that God raised him from the dead, you will be saved. 10 For one believes with the heart and so is made righteous, and one confesses with the mouth and so is saved. 11 For the Scripture says, "No one who puts his trust in him will be put to shame."[d] 12 There is no difference between Jew and Greek; the same Lord is Lord of all, and pours out his riches on all who call upon him. 13 For "everyone who calls upon the name of the Lord will be saved."[e] 14 But how can people call upon him without first believing in him?
And how believe in him if they never heard of him? And how hear of him with no one proclaiming? 15 And how are people to herald unless they are sent? As it is written, "How lovely are the feet of those who announce good news!"[f] 16 But not everyone has obeyed the good news.

For Isaiah asks, "Lord, who has trusted our message?"[g] 17 Faith, then, arises from hearing the message, and the message comes by the word of Christ.[h] 18 But, I ask, is it that they never heard? Of course they heard: "Their sound went forth into every land, and their sayings to the far reaches of the world."[i] 19 But I ask, did Israel not understand?
First Moses says, "I will provoke you to jealousy by what is no nation; by a senseless nation I will rouse you to anger."[j] 20 And Isaiah grows bold and says, "I was found by those who were not seeking me; I became plain to see for those who were not asking for me."[k] 21 But of Israel he says, "All day long I have held out my hands to a disobedient and contrary people."[l]

Notes

- a (10:4) Goal: Greek telos, "end, goal, culmination"; often understood as "end" in the sense of termination.
- b (10:5) Lev 18:5.
- c (10:8) Deut 30:12–14.
- d (10:11) Isa 28:16.
- e (10:13) Joel 2:32 (3:5 Hebrew). In the Hebrew text, "the Lord" is Yahweh; Paul applies the verse to Jesus as Lord (vv. 9, 12).
- f (10:15) Isa 52:7; compare Nah 1:15. Many later manuscripts expand the quotation: "…of those who announce the gospel of peace, who announce good news of good things."
- g (10:16) Isa 53:1, following the Greek Old Testament; "Lord" is not in the Hebrew text.
- h (10:17) Of Christ: many later manuscripts read "of God."
- i (10:18) Ps 19:4 (18:5 Greek).
- j (10:19) Deut 32:21.
- k (10:20) Isa 65:1.
- l (10:21) Isa 65:2.

Chapter 11

1 I ask, then, has God rejected his people? Never! For I myself am an Israelite, a descendant of Abraham, of the tribe of Benjamin.[a] 2 No, God has not cast off his people whom he knew in advance. Do you not know what Scripture says in the story of Elijah,[b] when he appeals to God against Israel? 3 "Lord, your prophets they have put to death, your altars they have demolished; I am the only one remaining, and now they want my life."[c] 4 But what is the divine answer to him? "I have kept for myself seven thousand men who have not bent the knee to Baal."[d] 5 Just so, in this present time too, a remnant exists, selected by grace. 6 But if by grace, then not from works, or grace would cease to be grace.[e]

7 What then? What Israel is seeking, it has not obtained. The elect obtained it, but the rest were hardened, 8 just as Scripture says, "God has given them a numbed spirit, eyes for not seeing and ears for not hearing, up to this present day."[f] 9 David also says, "May their table turn into a net and a snare, a cause of stumbling and a payback to them; 10 may their eyes grow dark, unable to see, and may you keep their backs bowed forever."[g] 11 So I ask, did they stumble in order to fall? Never! Rather, through their trespass salvation has come to the Gentiles, to provoke Israel to jealousy. 12 If their false step is wealth for the world, and their loss is wealth for the Gentiles, what will their fullness be?
13 Now I am speaking to you Gentiles. Inasmuch as I am an apostle to the Gentiles, I make much of my ministry 14 in the hope that I may somehow provoke my own people[h] to jealousy and save some of them. 15 If casting them away brings the world's reconciliation, what will receiving them back bring, if not life out of death? 16 If the portion of dough offered as firstfruits is holy, so is the whole batch; and if the root is holy, so are the branches.
17 Now if certain branches were snapped off, and you, being wild olive, were grafted in among the rest and became a sharer in the rich sap of the olive's root, 18 do not look down on the branches. If you do, remember that you do not hold up the root; the root holds up you. 19
"But," you will say, "branches were snapped off to make room for me to be grafted in." 20 Quite so: they were snapped off for unbelief, while you hold your place through faith. So do not think proud thoughts; fear instead. 21 If God did not spare the branches that grew there by nature, he will not spare you either.[i] 22 Consider, then, God's kindness and his severity: severity toward those who fell, but toward you God's kindness, provided you continue in that kindness; otherwise you too will be cut off. 23 And they too, if they do not remain in unbelief, will be grafted in, for God is able to graft them in again. 24 You were cut out of an olive that grows wild by nature and grafted, contrary to nature, into a garden olive; how much more readily will these natural branches be grafted back into the tree that is their own!

25 For I would not have you uninformed, brothers, about this mystery, so that you do not think yourselves wise: a partial hardening has befallen Israel until the Gentiles in their full number have come in; 26 and so all Israel will be saved, just as Scripture says, "Out of Zion will come the Rescuer, and he will banish ungodliness from Jacob.[j] 27 and this will be my covenant with them, when I take away their sins."[k] 28 With respect to the gospel, they are opposed to God for your benefit; but with respect to election, they are loved because of their ancestors. 29 For the gifts and the calling of God are irrevocable. 30 Just as you once defied God but have now been shown mercy through their defiance, 31 so they too have now been disobedient, so that by the mercy shown to you they also may now[l] receive mercy. 32 For God has shut up all people together in disobedience, so that he may have mercy on all.
33 Oh, the depth of the riches and wisdom and knowledge of God!
How unsearchable are his judgments, and how untraceable his ways!
34 "For who has known the mind of the Lord, or who has been his counselor?"[m] 35 "Or who has given him a gift first, so that he must be repaid?"[n] 36 For from him and through him and to him are all things.
To him be the glory forever. Amen.

Notes

- a (11:1) Benjamin: Hebrew, "son of the right hand" (Gen 35:18).
- b (11:2) Elijah: Hebrew, "my God is Yahweh."
- c (11:3) 1 Kgs 19:10, 14. "Lord" is not in the Hebrew text.
- d (11:4) 1 Kgs 19:18.
- e (11:6) Grace would cease to be grace: many later manuscripts add, "But if it is by works, it is no longer grace; otherwise work is no longer work."
- f (11:8) Deut 29:4; Isa 29:10.
- g (11:10) Ps 69:22–23 (68:23–24 Greek).
- h (11:14) My own people: literally "my flesh."
- i (11:21) He will not spare you either: many manuscripts read "perhaps he will not spare you either."
- j (11:26) Jacob: Hebrew, "he grasps the heel" (Gen 25:26), hence "he supplants."

- k (11:27) Isa 59:20–21; 27:9.
- l (11:31) Now: lacking in P46 and many other manuscripts (as reported); some read “later.”
- m (11:34) Isa 40:13, following the Greek Old Testament. In the Hebrew text, “the Lord” is Yahweh.
- n (11:35) Job 41:11 (41:3 Hebrew).

Chapter 12

1 So I urge you, brothers and sisters, by God’s mercies, to offer your bodies as a living sacrifice, set apart and pleasing to God; this is your rational[a] worship. 2 Stop being molded by the pattern of this age, and be changed by a renewed mind, so that you can test and recognize God’s will: what is good, acceptable, and complete.
3 Through the grace granted me I say to every one of you: do not rate yourself above what is fitting, but rate yourself soberly, in keeping with the measure of faith God has allotted each. 4 For just as in one body we have many parts, and the parts do not all have the same function, 5 so we, many as we are, are one body in Christ, and individually we are parts of one another. 6 We have gifts that differ according to the grace given us. If prophecy, let it be in proportion to our faith; 7 if service, in serving; the one who teaches, in teaching; 8 whoever exhorts, by exhorting; whoever gives, generously;[b] whoever governs, diligently; whoever shows compassion, cheerfully.
9 Let love be free of pretense. Loathe what is evil; cling to what is good. 10 In brotherly love be warmly devoted to one another; in showing honor, go ahead of one another. 11 Do not lag in zeal; be aglow with the Spirit;[c] serve the Lord.[d] 12 Rejoice in hope, hold firm in affliction, persist in prayer. 13 Contribute to the needs of the saints; pursue hospitality. 14 Bless those who persecute you;[e] bless and do not curse. 15 Rejoice with people who rejoice; weep with people who weep. 16 Be of one mind toward one another. Do not set your mind on lofty things, but associate with the lowly.[f] Do not be wise in your own estimation. 17 Pay back no one evil for evil. Give thought to what is honorable in the sight of all people. 18 As far as possible, and as far as it rests with you, live peaceably with all. 19 Never take revenge yourselves, beloved, but leave room for God’s[g] wrath; for it is written, “Vengeance is mine; I will repay, says the Lord.”[h] 20 Instead, “if your enemy is hungry, give him food; if he is thirsty, give him something to drink; for in doing this you will pile burning coals on his head.”[i] 21 Do not let evil overpower you; overpower evil with good.

Notes

- a (12:1) Reasonable: Greek logikos, “rational, spiritual”; or “true and proper.”
- b (12:8) With generosity: or “with sincerity, single-mindedness.”
- c (12:11) Be aglow with the Spirit: or “be fervent in spirit.”
- d (12:11) The Lord: some Western manuscripts read “the time,” that is, “serve the opportune moment.”
- e (12:14) Persecute you: “you” is lacking in P46 and Vaticanus (as reported).
- f (12:16) Associate with the lowly: or “give yourselves to humble tasks.”
- g (12:19) God’s: not in the Greek, which reads “the wrath,” most likely meaning God’s.
- h (12:19) Deut 32:35. “Says the Lord” is not in the Hebrew or Greek text of Deuteronomy, where Yahweh is the speaker.
- i (12:20) Prov 25:21–22.

Chapter 13

1 Every soul must submit to the authorities that hold power over it. No authority exists apart from God, and the authorities that are have been appointed by God. 2 So whoever sets himself against the authority is resisting what God has ordained, and those who resist will bring judgment on themselves. 3 For rulers hold no fear for those who do right, only for wrongdoers. Would you like to live free of fear toward the authority? Then keep doing good, and you will receive its praise; 4 for it serves God for your benefit. But if you do wrong, you should fear, because it does not bear the sword without purpose; it serves God as an executor of punishment on the one who does wrong. 5 So you must submit, not merely out of fear of punishment but also because of your conscience. 6 For the same reason you pay tribute; the authorities are ministers of God, and they give themselves continually to just this task. 7 Pay to all what is owed them: tax to whom tax is owed, revenue to whom revenue, respect to whom respect, honor to whom honor.

8 Owe no one anything, except to love one another; for whoever loves the other has fulfilled the law. 9 For the commandments, “You shall not commit adultery, you shall not murder, you shall not steal, you shall not covet,"[a] and any other commandment there may be, are summed up in this word: "You shall love your neighbor as yourself."[b] 10 Love does no wrong to a neighbor; love, then, is the law's fulfillment.

11 And do it as people who understand the season, that the hour has already struck for you[c] to wake out of sleep; our salvation is closer now than at the time we came to faith. 12 The night is far gone; the day is close at hand. So let us lay aside the works of darkness and put on the armor of light. 13 Let us walk with decency, as in the daytime, not in revelry and drunkenness, not in sexual immorality and debauchery, not in quarreling and jealousy. 14 Instead, clothe yourselves with the Lord Jesus Christ, and make no provision for the flesh, to gratify its cravings.

Notes

- a (13:9) Exod 20:13–15, 17; Deut 5:17–19, 21. Many later manuscripts add "you shall not bear false witness."
- b (13:9) Lev 19:18.
- c (13:11) You: many manuscripts read "us."

Chapter 14

1 As for the person who is weak in faith, welcome him, but not for the purpose of passing judgment on his scruples. 2 One man believes he may eat everything; another, being weak, lives on vegetables. 3 The one who eats must not look down on the one who abstains, and the one who abstains must not sit in judgment on the one who eats; for God has welcomed him. 4 Who are you to condemn somebody else's house slave? His standing or falling concerns his own master. And he will be held upright, for the Lord[a] is able to keep him standing. 5 One person rates one day above another, while another rates all days alike. Let each be fully settled in his own mind. 6 Whoever keeps a special day keeps it to honor the Lord.[b] Whoever eats, eats to honor the Lord, for he thanks God; and whoever refrains, refrains to honor the Lord, and he too thanks God. 7 Not one of us has his life for himself alone, and not one of us has his death for himself alone. 8 If we live, we live to the Lord, and if we die, we die to the Lord. Whether we live, then, or whether we die, we are the Lord's. 9 For this purpose Christ died and came to life again: to be Lord over the dead and the living alike. 10 Why, then, do you judge your fellow believer? And you, why do you look down on your fellow believer? All of us will stand before God's tribunal.[c] 11 For scripture says, "By my life, says the Lord, every knee will bow to me, and every tongue will confess God."[d] 12 Each one of us, then, will render to God[e] a reckoning for himself.

13 So let us stop judging one another, and decide instead never to place an obstacle or trap in a fellow believer's way. 14 I know, and am convinced in the Lord Jesus, that nothing is unclean in itself; but to anyone who regards something as unclean, to him it is unclean. 15 For if your brother is grieved because of what you eat, you are no longer walking by love. Do not by your food destroy that person for whom Christ died. 16 Do not let your good be slandered as evil. 17 God's kingdom does not consist in food and drink; it is righteousness, peace and joy in the Holy Spirit. 18 Anyone who serves Christ like this finds favor with God and wins people's esteem. 19 So then let us pursue[f] the things that make for peace and for building one another up. 20 Do not tear down the work of God for the sake of food. Everything is indeed clean, but it is wrong for a person to eat in a way that makes another stumble. 21 The right thing is to abstain from meat and wine and anything else that trips up your brother.[g] 22 Hold the faith you have as a matter between yourself and God. Blessed is the one who need not judge himself over what he allows. 23 But the one who has doubts is condemned if he eats, because he does not act from faith; and whatever does not come from faith is sin.[h]

Notes

- a (14:4) The Lord: many manuscripts read "God."
- b (14:6) For the Lord: many later manuscripts add "and the one who does not observe the day does not observe it for the Lord."
- c (14:10) Of God: many later manuscripts read "of Christ."
- d (14:11) Isa 49:18; 45:23. In the Hebrew text, "the Lord" is Yahweh. Or "shall confess to God."
- e (14:12) To God: bracketed in the Westcott–Hort text; lacking in Vaticanus and some others (as reported).
- f (14:19) Let us pursue: many manuscripts read "we pursue."

- g (14:21) Trips up your brother: many manuscripts add “or is offended or is made weak.”
- h (14:23) Is sin: many later manuscripts, followed by the Robinson–Pierpont text, place the doxology of 16:25–27 here; some witnesses have it both here and at the end of chapter 16. The Latin evidence and Marcion (as reported by Origen) point to a form of the letter that ended at 14:23. See the note at 16:25.

Chapter 15

1 We, the strong, are bound to carry the frailties of those without strength, rather than to gratify ourselves. 2 Each of us should seek to satisfy his neighbor, aiming at what is good and builds up. 3 Christ himself did not seek his own satisfaction; rather, as Scripture says, “The reproaches of those reproaching you landed on me.”[a] 4 All that was written long ago was written to teach us, so that by the stead-fastness and comfort the Scriptures give we might hold on to hope.
5 May the God of endurance and encouragement grant you to be of one mind with one another, in keeping with Christ Jesus, 6 so that together, with one voice, you may glorify the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ.
7 Welcome one another, therefore, just as Christ also welcomed you,[b] for the glory of God. 8 I declare that Christ became a minister to the circumcision for the sake of God’s truth, to make good the promises given to the patriarchs, 9 and so that the Gentiles might glorify God for his mercy. As it is written, “For this reason I will praise you among the Gentiles, and sing to your name.”[c] 10 And again it says, “Rejoice, you Gentiles, with his people.”[d] 11 And again, “Praise the Lord, all you Gentiles, and let all the peoples extol him.”[e] 12 And Isaiah says again, “There will be a shoot from the root of Jesse,[f] one who stands up to govern the nations; the nations will place their hope in him.”[g] 13 Now may the God who gives hope fill you with every joy and peace as you believe, until hope overflows in you through the Holy Spirit’s power.
14 I myself am convinced about you, my brothers, that you yourselves are full of goodness, filled with all knowledge, and able to instruct one another. 15 Still, I have written to you in places with some daring, as one who refreshes your memory, through the grace God gave me 16 to serve as Christ Jesus’ minister to the nations, working as a priest for God's gospel, so that the nations may become an acceptable offering, made holy by the Holy Spirit. 17 So I have grounds for pride in Christ Jesus regarding my work for God. 18 I will not presume to mention anything but what Christ has done by my means to win the Gentiles' obedience, in speech and in action, 19 with mighty signs and wonders, in the might of the Spirit;[h] so it is that, from Jerusalem round in a circle as far as Illyricum,[i] I have fully proclaimed Christ's gospel. 20

It has been my aim to proclaim the good news where Christ's name was not yet known, so as not to build on foundations someone else had laid, 21 rather, as Scripture says, "People to whom no word of him came shall see, and people who never heard shall understand."[j] 22 That is what has so many times kept me from reaching you. 23 Now, though, with no further scope for me in these parts, and with a longing these many years to visit you, 24 I hope, when I journey to Spain,[k] to see you on the way and to be helped on my journey by you, after first enjoying your fellowship a little. 25 For now, though, I am traveling to Jerusalem in the service of the saints. 26 Macedonia and Achaia[l] have gladly resolved to share their resources with the poor among Jerusalem's saints. 27 They resolved it gladly, and they owe it to them; for since the Gentiles have shared in their spiritual goods, they are bound to render them service in earthly goods as well. 28 So once I have finished this and have made sure they receive this fruit,[m] I will leave for Spain and pass through your city. 29 I know that when I come to you, I will come in the fullness of the blessing of Christ.[n] 30 I appeal to you, brothers,[o] by our Lord Jesus Christ and by the love of the Spirit, to strive together with me in your prayers to God on my behalf, 31 Pray that I may be kept safe from the disobedient in Judea, and that the aid I bring to Jerusalem may be well received by the saints, 32 so that, God willing, I may reach you joyfully and find rest with you. 33 May the God of peace be with you all. Amen.[p]

Notes

- a (15:3) Ps 69:9 (68:10 Greek).
- b (15:7) You: many manuscripts read "us."
- c (15:9) 2 Sam 22:50; Ps 18:49 (17:50 Greek).
- d (15:10) Deut 32:43, following the Greek Old Testament.

- e (15:11) Ps 117:1 (116:1 Greek). In the Hebrew text, “the Lord” is Yahweh.
- f (15:12) Jesse: the father of King David (1 Sam 16:1).
- g (15:12) Isa 11:10, following the Greek Old Testament.
- h (15:19) Spirit: “Holy” is bracketed in the Westcott–Hort text; many manuscripts read “the Spirit of God,” and Vaticanus reads “the Spirit” (as reported).
- i (15:19) Illyricum: a Roman province on the eastern coast of the Adriatic Sea, roughly modern Albania, Montenegro, Bosnia, and Croatia.
- j (15:21) Isa 52:15, following the Greek Old Testament.
- k (15:24) Spain: many later manuscripts add “I will come to you.”
- l (15:26) Macedonia and Achaia: Roman provinces in northern and southern Greece.
- m (15:28) Made sure they receive this fruit: literally “sealed to them this fruit.”
- n (15:29) Of Christ: many later manuscripts read “of the gospel of Christ.”
- o (15:30) Brothers: bracketed in the Westcott–Hort text; lacking in P46 and Vaticanus (as reported).
- p (15:33) Amen: lacking in some manuscripts. P46 places the doxology of 16:25–27 here, after 15:33, and then continues with chapter 16 (as reported). See the note at 16:25.

Chapter 16

1 I introduce to you our sister Phoebe,[a] who also serves as a minister[b] of the congregation at Cenchreae,[c] 2 asking you to receive her in the Lord in a way worthy of the saints and to stand by her in whatever matter she may need you; for she herself has been a patron[d] of many,
and of me as well.
3 Give my greetings to Prisca and Aquila,[e] my co-workers in Christ Jesus, 4 who put their own necks on the line to save my life. Not only I give thanks for them, but every one of the Gentile churches does too. 5 Greet also the church that meets in their house. Greet my dear Epaenetus,[f] the first convert in Asia[g] to Christ. 6 Greet Mary, who has toiled hard on your behalf. 7 Greet Andronicus and Junia,[h] my kin and once my fellow prisoners. They are eminent among the apostles,[i] and they were in Christ before me. 8 Greet Ampliatus, my dear friend in the Lord. 9 Greet Urbanus, our fellow worker in Christ, and my dear Stachys. 10 Greet Apelles, tried and proven in Christ. Greet the members of the household of Aristobulus. 11 Greet Herodion, my kinsman. Greet those in Narcissus’s household who are in the Lord.
12 Greet those workers in the Lord, Tryphaena and Tryphosa.[j] Greet dear Persis, who has labored hard in the Lord. 13 Greet Rufus,[k] the Lord's chosen one, and his mother, who has mothered me as well.

14 Greet Asyncritus, Phlegon, Hermes, Patrobas, Hermas, and the brothers with them. 15 Greet Philologus and Julia, Nereus and his sister, and Olympas, and all the saints with them. 16 Greet one another with a holy kiss. All the churches of Christ send you greetings.
17 I urge you, brothers, keep an eye on those who stir up divisions and set traps contrary to the teaching you learned; steer clear of them. 18 Such people are not slaves of our Lord Christ but of their own belly, and by smooth talk and flattery they lead astray the hearts of the unsuspecting. 19 Everyone has heard how obedient you are, and that makes me glad for you; still, I would have you skilled in goodness and untainted by evil. 20 The God of peace will soon crush Satan[l] beneath your feet. The grace of our Lord Jesus be with you.[m] 21 Timothy,[n] my fellow worker, sends you greetings, as do Lucius, Jason, and Sosipater, my kinsmen. 22 I, Tertius,[o] who wrote this letter down, send you greetings in the Lord. 23 Greetings to you from Gaius, my host and host of the entire church. Erastus, treasurer of the city, sends greetings, and so does Quartus, our brother. 24 [p] 25 Now to him who is able to make you firm according to my gospel and the proclamation of Jesus Christ, according to the revelation of the mystery kept in silence for long ages[q] 26 but now brought to light, and through the prophetic writings, by command of the eternal God, made known to all the Gentiles to bring about the obedience of faith: 27 to God, who alone is wise, be[r] glory through Jesus Christ forever and ever. Amen.

Notes

- a (16:1) Phoebe: Greek, "bright, radiant."
- b (16:1) Minister: Greek diakonos, "servant, minister," also used of the church office of deacon (Phil 1:1; 1 Tim 3:8–13).
- c (16:1) Cenchreae: the eastern port of Corinth.
- d (16:2) Patron: Greek prostatis, a benefactor, protector, or leader.
- e (16:3) Prisca and Aquila: Prisca (diminutive Priscilla, Acts 18:2) is Latin, "ancient, venerable"; Aquila is Latin, "eagle."
- f (16:5) Epaenetus: Greek, "praised."

- g (16:5) Asia: the Roman province in western Asia Minor. Many later manuscripts read "Achaia."
- h (16:7) Junia: a common Latin woman's name, so understood by early Christian writers, including John Chrysostom (as reported). Medieval and later interpreters often read the Greek accusative Iounian as the man's name "Junias," which is not otherwise attested; the unaccented Westcott–Hort text allows either. P46 and a few other witnesses read "Julia" (as reported).
- i (16:7) Eminent among the apostles: or "well known to the apostles." The Greek phrase can mean either that they were outstanding apostles or that the apostles held them in high regard.
- j (16:12) Tryphaena and Tryphosa: Greek, "dainty" and "delicate"; perhaps sisters.
- k (16:13) Rufus: Latin, "red"; perhaps the son of Simon of Cyrene (Mark 15:21).
- l (16:20) Satan: Hebrew, "adversary."
- m (16:20) The grace of our Lord Jesus be with you: lacking in Bezae and some other Western witnesses (as reported), which place a similar benediction at v. 24 instead.
- n (16:21) Timothy: Greek, "one who honors God."
- o (16:22) Tertius: Latin, "third." Quartus (v. 23) is Latin, "fourth."
- p (16:24) The Westcott–Hort text, with P46, Sinaiticus, Alexandrinus, Vaticanus and others (as reported), lacks v. 24. Many later manuscripts include it: "The grace of our Lord Jesus Christ be with you all. Amen." Some place it after v. 27.
- q (16:25) Kept in silence for long ages: vv. 25–27, the closing doxology, stand here in P61, Sinaiticus, Vaticanus, Ephraemi, Bezae, and others; after 14:23 in most later manuscripts; after 15:33 in P46; in both places in Alexandrinus and a few others; and nowhere in Codices Augiensis and Boernerianus (as reported). Its varying position suggests that the letter circulated in shorter forms, and many scholars judge the doxology to have been added by a later hand.
- r (16:27) Be: the Westcott–Hort text includes, in brackets, hō, "to whom," which leaves the sentence grammatically incomplete: "to the only wise God, through Jesus Christ, to whom be the glory forever." Vaticanus and a few others lack it (as reported).

1 Corinthians

New Testament

Chapter 1

1 From Paul, called by God's will to be an apostle of Christ Jesus, and from Sosthenes[a] our brother, 2 to the church of God that is in Corinth,[b] to those made holy in Christ Jesus, called to be saints, together with all who in every place call on the name of our Lord Jesus Christ, their Lord and ours: 3 grace to you and peace from God our Father and the Lord Jesus Christ.
4 I give thanks to my God at all times on your account, for the grace of God granted you in Christ Jesus; 5 for in him you have been enriched in every respect, in all your speaking and all your understanding, 6 just as the testimony about Christ was made firm among you, 7 so that you lack no gift of grace as you eagerly await the unveiling of our Lord Jesus Christ. 8 He will keep you steady to the very end, beyond reproach on the day of our Lord Jesus Christ.[c] 9 Faithful is God, through whom you were called into fellowship with his Son, Jesus Christ our Lord.
10 I appeal to you, brothers and sisters, in the name of our Lord Jesus Christ: agree among yourselves, have no factions, and be joined together with a shared outlook and purpose. 11 For Chloe's[d] household have reported to me, my brothers and sisters, that there are disputes among you. 12 What I mean is this: each of you says, "I belong to Paul," or "I to Apollos,"[e] or "I to Cephas,"[f] or "I to Christ." 13 Has Christ been parceled out? Was Paul crucified on your behalf? Or were you baptized into Paul's name? 14 I am thankful[g] that I baptized none of you except Crispus and Gaius, 15 so no one can say that you were baptized into my name. 16 (I did baptize the household of Stephanas[h] too; beyond that, I do not recall baptizing anyone else.) 17 For Christ did not commission me to baptize but to announce the good news, and not through polished rhetoric, lest the cross of Christ be emptied of its force.

18 For the message[i] of the cross is foolishness to those on the way to destruction, but to us who are being saved it is the power of God.
19 For it is written, "I will destroy the wisdom of the wise, and the shrewdness of the shrewd I will set aside."[j] 20 Where is the wise man? Where is the scribe? Where is the debater of this age? Has God not made foolish the wisdom of the world? 21 For since the world, surrounded by God's wisdom, did not come to know God through its own wisdom, God chose to rescue believers by means of the apparent absurdity of the proclamation. 22 Jews ask for signs and Greeks look for wisdom, 23 but we proclaim Christ crucified, an offense to Jews and folly to Gentiles, 24 but to those who are called, both Jews and Greeks, Christ the power of God and the wisdom of God. 25 For God's folly is wiser than human beings, and God's weakness is stronger than human beings.

26 Just look at your own calling, brothers: not many of you were wise by worldly standards, not many powerful, not many of noble birth. 27 But God chose what is foolish in the world to put the wise to shame; God chose what is weak in the world to put the strong to shame;
28 God chose what is lowborn in the world and what is despised, things that are not, to bring to nothing things that are, 29 so that no human being might boast before God. 30 It is from him that you are in Christ Jesus, who became for us wisdom from God, and righteousness and holiness and redemption, 31 so that it may be as Scripture says: "Whoever boasts, let him make his boast in the Lord."[k]

Notes

- a (1:1) Sosthenes: Greek, "safe in strength"; perhaps the synagogue ruler of Acts 18:17.
- b (1:2) Corinth: a Roman colony and capital of the province of Achaia, on the isthmus between mainland Greece and the Peloponnese.
- c (1:8) Jesus Christ: "Christ" is bracketed in the Westcott–Hort text.
- d (1:11) Chloe: Greek, "green shoot," a name of the goddess Demeter.
- e (1:12) Apollos: a short form of Apollonius, from the god Apollo; a Jewish Christian teacher from Alexandria (Acts 18:24–28).

- f (1:12) Cephas: Aramaic Kepha, “rock,” rendered in Greek as Petros, Peter (John 1:42).
- g (1:14) I am thankful: so the Westcott–Hort text with Sinaiticus (original hand) and Vaticanus (as reported); most manuscripts read “I thank God.”
- h (1:16) Stephanas: Greek, “crown.”
- i (1:18) Message: Greek logos, “word.”
- j (1:19) Isa 29:14, following the Greek Old Testament.
- k (1:31) Jer 9:24. In the Hebrew text, “the Lord” is Yahweh.

Chapter 2

1 For my part, brothers, when I came to you, I did not come with any superiority of speech or wisdom as I proclaimed to you the mystery[a] of God. 2 For I made up my mind to know nothing among you except Jesus Christ, and him crucified. 3 And I came among you in weakness and fear and much trembling, 4 and my speech and my proclamation were not in persuasive words of wisdom,[b] but in a demonstration of the Spirit and of power, 5 so that your faith would rest not on human wisdom but on God’s power.
6 Yet among the mature we do speak wisdom, though not a wisdom of this age, nor of the rulers of this age, who are passing away. 7 Rather, we speak God’s wisdom in a mystery, the hidden wisdom that God foreordained before the ages for our glory. 8 This wisdom not one of the rulers of this age has grasped; had they grasped it, they would never have crucified the Lord of glory. 9 But, as it is written, “What no eye has seen and no ear has heard, and what has not arisen in any human heart, all that God has made ready for those who love him”[c] 10 for it is to us that God has revealed them[d] through the Spirit. The Spirit searches out everything, even the depths of God. 11 For who among human beings knows what is in a person except that person’s own spirit within? In the same way no one comprehends what is in God except the Spirit of God. 12 Now we have received not the spirit of the world but the Spirit that comes from God, so that we may know the things freely given us by God. 13 And we speak of these things in words taught not by human wisdom but by the Spirit, interpreting spiritual things to spiritual people.[e]

14 The unspiritual person[f] rejects what comes from God's Spirit, since it seems absurd to him, and he is unable to grasp it, because it can only be evaluated spiritually. 15 But the spiritual person discerns all things, and is himself discerned by no one. 16 For "who has known the mind of the Lord, so as to instruct him?"[g] But we have the mind of Christ.

Notes

- a (2:1) Mystery: so the Westcott–Hort text with P46 (probably), Sinaiticus (original hand), Alexandrinus, and Ephraemi (as reported); many manuscripts read "testimony."
- b (2:4) Persuasive words of wisdom: the manuscripts differ widely here; many read "persuasive words of human wisdom," and P46 and a few others read "persuasion of wisdom" (as reported).
- c (2:9) Isa 64:4 (64:3 Hebrew), freely; compare Isa 52:15; 65:17.
- d (2:10) Revealed them: the sentence begun in v. 9 is incomplete in the Greek. "For" is the reading of the Westcott–Hort text, with P46 and Vaticanus (as reported); many manuscripts read "but" ("But God has revealed them to us...").
- e (2:13) Interpreting spiritual things to spiritual people: or "combining spiritual things with spiritual words," or "comparing spiritual things with spiritual."
- f (2:14) The natural person: Greek psychikos anthrōpos, the person who lives on the merely natural level, without the Spirit.
- g (2:16) Isa 40:13, following the Greek Old Testament. In the Hebrew text, "the Lord" is Yahweh.

Chapter 3

1 As for me, brothers, I was unable to talk to you as to people of the Spirit; I had to talk to you as to people of flesh, as to babies in Christ.
2 Milk was what I gave you to drink, not solid food, for you were not yet able to take it. Even now[a] you are still not able, 3 for you are still fleshly. As long as there is jealousy and strife among you,[b] are you not fleshly, behaving in merely human fashion? 4 When someone declares, "I am for Paul," and someone else, "I am for Apollos," is that not purely human?
5 Who is Apollos, then, and who is Paul? Just ministers by whose means you came to faith, as the Lord assigned to each. 6 I planted; Apollos watered; but it was God who kept making it grow. 7 So neither the planter nor the waterer counts for anything, but only God, who makes things grow. 8 The one who plants and the one who waters are one, and each will receive his own wages in keeping with his own labor. 9 For we are God's fellow workers; you are God's field, God's building.

10 In keeping with the grace God gave me, I laid a foundation as an expert builder would, and another is now building upon it. Let every builder watch how he builds. 11 For no one can lay any other foundation than the one already laid, which is Jesus Christ. 12 Whether a person builds on the foundation in gold or silver or costly stones, in wood or grass or straw, 13 the quality of each builder's work will become plain; for the Day will expose it, since it is unveiled by fire, and fire will test the kind of work each has done. 14 If the work someone has built on it survives, he will receive a reward. 15 If the fire consumes someone's work, he will bear the loss; yet he will be saved himself, though as one escaping through flames.
16 Do you not know that you are God's temple[c] and that God's Spirit dwells in you? 17 If anyone ruins God's temple, God will ruin him. For the temple of God is holy, and that temple you are.
18 Do not fool yourselves. Anyone among you who imagines himself wise by the standards of this age must become foolish in order to become wise. 19 For the wisdom of this world is folly in God's sight. For it is written, "He catches the wise in their own craftiness,"[d] 20 and again, "The Lord knows the reasonings of the wise, that they are futile."[e] 21 So let no one boast in human beings. For everything belongs to you, 22 whether Paul or Apollos or Cephas or the world or life or death or the present or the future; all of it is yours, 23 and you are Christ's, and Christ is God's.

Notes

- a (3:2) Even now: "even" translates eti, bracketed in the Westcott–Hort text.
- b (3:3) Among you: many later manuscripts add "and divisions."
- c (3:16) Temple: Greek naos, the sanctuary itself, where God dwells.
- d (3:19) Job 5:13.
- e (3:20) Ps 94:11 (93:11 Greek), following the Greek Old Testament, which reads "of human beings" where Paul has "of the wise." In the Hebrew text, "the Lord" is Yahweh.

Chapter 4

1 This is how one should regard us: as assistants of Christ and stewards of God's mysteries. 2 Moreover, what is required of stewards is that each be found trustworthy. 3 For my part, being put on trial by you, or by any human court,[a] matters very little to me; I do not even sit in judgment on myself. 4 For I am not aware of anything against myself, but that does not acquit me. The one who examines me is the Lord. 5 So do not pronounce judgment on anything before the appointed time, before the Lord comes, who will both bring to light what is hidden in darkness and lay bare the purposes of hearts. Then each one will receive his praise from God.
6 Brothers, I have used myself and Apollos to illustrate these points for your benefit, so that by our example you may learn the rule "Nothing beyond what stands written," and none of you may swell with pride, siding with one man against another. 7 Who sets you apart as special?
What do you possess that was not given to you? And if it was given, why boast as if it were your own achievement? 8 Already you are satisfied! Already you have become rich! You have begun to reign without us! I only wish you did reign, so that we too might reign with you. 9 I think God has exhibited us apostles at the tail end of the procession, like men sentenced to death, for we have been made a public show before the world, both angels and humans. 10 We are fools on behalf of Christ, but you are wise in Christ. We are frail, but you are strong. You are respected, but we are despised. 11 Right up to this moment we are hungry and thirsty, wearing rags, beaten, and homeless, 12 We wear ourselves out with the work of our own hands.
When we are reviled, we bless; when persecuted, we endure; 13 when we are defamed, we respond gently. To this day we have become the world's garbage, the refuse of all things.
14 I am not writing these things to shame you, but to admonish you as my dear children. 15 For though you may have countless guardians[b] in Christ, you do not have many fathers. For in Christ Jesus I became your father through the gospel. 16 I urge you, then, be imitators of me. 17 For this reason I am sending Timothy to you,[c] my dear and trustworthy child in the Lord, who will bring to your mind how I live in Christ Jesus,[d] as I teach everywhere in every congregation. 18 Some have become puffed up, as though I were not coming to you. 19 But I will come to you soon, if the Lord wills, and then I will find out not the talk of these puffed-up people but their power. 20 God's kingdom is a matter not of words but of power. 21 Which will it be? Should I visit you with a stick, or with love and a gentle spirit?

Notes

- a (4:3) Human court: literally "human day," in contrast with the Day of the Lord.
- b (4:15) Guardians: Greek paidagōgos, the household slave who supervised a child's conduct and escorted him to school (compare Gal 3:24).
- c (4:17) Timothy: Greek, "one who honors God."
- d (4:17) Jesus: bracketed in the Westcott–Hort text.

Chapter 5

1 There is a widespread report of sexual immorality among you, of a sort not even tolerated among the nations: a man has taken his father's wife.[a] 2 And you are puffed up! Should you not instead have gone into mourning, so that the man who did this would be removed from your company? 3 As for me, although I am away in body, I am here in spirit, and I have already, as though present, pronounced judgment on the man who did this. 4 When you meet in the name of [our] Lord Jesus, with my spirit joining you and the power of our Lord Jesus behind you, 5 deliver such a man to Satan, for the ruin of his flesh, with a view to the rescue of his spirit on the Lord's day.[b]
6 Your boasting is no good thing. Are you unaware that a little yeast leavens the whole lump of dough? 7 Clean out the old yeast, so that you may be a fresh batch, as in fact you are unleavened. For our Passover lamb, Christ, has been sacrificed.[c] 8 So let us keep the festival not with old yeast, the yeast of vice and wickedness, but with the unleavened bread of sincerity and truth.
9 In my letter[d] I wrote to you not to mix with sexually immoral people, 10 not meaning the immoral people of this world in general, or the greedy and swindlers, or idolaters; for then you would have to leave the world altogether. 11 What I am now writing to you is that you must not keep company with anyone who bears the name of brother if he is sexually immoral or greedy, an idolater, a slanderer, a drunkard, or a swindler; with such a person do not even share a meal. 12 For what business is it of mine to judge outsiders? Is it not those inside whom you are to judge? 13 Those outside, God judges. “Drive out the wicked person from among you.”[e]

Notes

- a (5:1) Father’s wife: evidently his stepmother. Compare Lev 18:8.
- b (5:5) The Lord’s day: that is, the day of the Lord’s coming. Many manuscripts add “Jesus,” and some “our Lord Jesus Christ.”
- c (5:7) Sacrificed: many later manuscripts add “for us.”
- d (5:9) My letter: an earlier letter of Paul to Corinth that has not survived.
- e (5:13) Deut 17:7 and similar passages (Deut 19:19; 22:21, 24; 24:7).

Chapter 6

1 When one of you has a grievance against another, how dare he go to law before the unrighteous instead of before the saints? 2 Or are you unaware that the saints will judge the world? And if the world is to be judged by you, are you unfit to try the most trivial cases? 3 Are you not aware that angels will come under our judgment? Then surely the affairs of this life will! 4 So if you have such everyday cases, do you seat as judges those who carry no standing in the church? 5
I say this to put you to shame. Is there really not one wise person among you who will be able to settle a dispute between one brother and another? 6 Yet here is a brother suing a brother, and in front of unbelievers at that! 7 In fact, to have lawsuits with one another at all already means a defeat for you. Why not rather put up with wrong?
Why not rather let yourselves be cheated? 8 Instead you yourselves do wrong and cheat, and you do it to brothers!
9 Or are you unaware that the unrighteous will not inherit God’s kingdom? Do not be led astray: neither the sexually immoral, nor idolaters, nor adulterers, nor malakoi nor arsenokoitai,[a] 10 nor those who steal or grasp for more, nor those given to drink, abusive speech, or extortion, will have any share in God’s kingdom. 11 And this is what some of you were. But you were washed clean, you were made holy, you were justified in the name of the Lord Jesus Christ[b] and by the Spirit of our God.

12 “I am free to do anything,”[c] you say; but not everything does any good. “I am free to do anything”; but I will not let anything master me. 13 “Meals for the belly, and the belly for meals,” and God will bring both to nothing. But the body exists not for immorality but for the Lord, and the Lord for the body. 14 And God raised the Lord and will also raise us up by his power. 15 Do you not know that your bodies are members of Christ? Shall I then take the members of Christ and make them members of a prostitute? Never! 16 Or are you not aware that whoever unites with a prostitute is one body with her? For it says, “The two will be one flesh.”[d] 17 Whoever is joined to the Lord, however, is one spirit with him. 18 Run from sexual immorality. Every other sin people commit is outside the body, but whoever commits sexual immorality sins against his own body. 19 Or do you not realize that your body is a sanctuary of the Holy Spirit who lives in you, whom you received from God? You do not belong to yourselves, 20 for a price was paid for you. Honor God, then, with your body.[e]

Notes

- a (6:9) Malakoi … arsenokoitai: two Greek terms left untranslated here because their exact sense is disputed. Malakoi means literally “soft ones” and in this context is usually taken to refer to the passive partner in male homosexual acts; arsenokoitai (“men who lie with males”), apparently drawn from the Greek of Lev 18:22 and 20:13, is usually taken to refer to the active partner, though some interpreters limit both terms to exploitative practices such as pederasty or prostitution.
- b (6:11) The Lord Jesus Christ: “our” is bracketed in the Westcott–Hort text after “the Lord.”
- c (6:12) I am free to do anything: the quotation marks here and in v. 13 reflect the common view that Paul is citing slogans used at Corinth.
- d (6:16) Gen 2:24.
- e (6:20) Body: many later manuscripts add “and in your spirit, which are God’s.”

Chapter 7

1 Now, regarding what you wrote about: “It is good for a man to have no sexual contact with a woman.”[a] 2 But because of the cases of sexual immorality, let each man have his own wife and each woman her own husband. 3 Let the husband give his wife what is due to her, and likewise the wife to her husband. 4 The wife has no exclusive right over her own body, but the husband has; likewise the husband has no exclusive right over his own body, but the wife has. 5 Stop refusing each other, unless it is by consent and for a limited time, to have leisure for prayer,[b] and afterward resume your relations, so that Satan does not tempt you because you lack self-control. 6 I say this, though, as a concession, not as a command. 7 My wish is that all people were like me; but each has his particular gift from God, this one in one way and that one in another.

8 My advice to those without spouses and to widows is that they do well to stay single as I do. 9 But if they are not exercising self-control, let them marry; for it is better to marry than to burn with desire.

10 To the married I give this instruction, which comes from the Lord, not from me: a wife should not part from her husband 11 (and if she has separated, she should either stay unmarried or make peace with her husband), and the husband is not to send his wife away.

12 To everyone else I speak for myself, not for the Lord. Suppose a brother has an unbelieving wife who agrees to go on living with him: he should not send her away. 13 And suppose a woman has an unbelieving husband who agrees to go on living with her: she should not send him away. 14 For the unbelieving husband has been made holy through his wife, and the unbelieving wife has been made holy through the brother.[c] Otherwise your children would be unclean, but as it is they are holy. 15 But if the unbelieving partner separates, let the separation take place. In such circumstances the brother or the sister is not bound. God has called you[d] to live in peace. 16 For how do you know, wife, whether you will save your husband? Or how do you know, husband, whether you will save your wife?

17 Nevertheless, each person should live in the situation the Lord has given them, the situation in which God called them. This is my instruction in all the congregations. 18 Was someone already circumcised when he was called? Let him not try to undo his circumcision. Has someone been called while uncircumcised? Let him not be circumcised. 19 Circumcision counts for nothing and uncircumcision counts for nothing; what counts is keeping God's commandments. 20 Each one should stay in the condition in which he was called. 21 Were you a slave when called? Do not let it trouble you. But if you are actually able to become free, make use of the opportunity instead.[e] 22 For a slave who was called in the Lord is the Lord's freed person; in the same way, a free person who was called is Christ's slave. 23 A price was paid for you; do not turn yourselves into slaves of men. 24 Each one, brothers, in whatever condition he was called, in that let him remain before God.

25 About virgins I have received no instruction from the Lord, but I offer my view as someone the Lord in his mercy has made reliable.
26 My view, then, in light of the present crisis, is that a person does well to stay just as he is. 27 Tied to a wife? Do not look for a release.
Released from a wife? Do not look for a wife. 28 But if you do marry, you have not sinned, and if a virgin marries, she has not sinned. Yet those who marry will have trouble in the flesh, and I would spare you that.
29 What I mean, brothers, is this: the time has been cut short. From now on let those who have wives be as though they had none, 30 those who cry should live as if they were not crying, those who are happy as if they were not happy, those who purchase as if they owned nothing, 31 and those who make use of the world as though not making full use of it. For the present shape of this world is passing away.
32 I want you to be free of worry. An unmarried man cares about the Lord's work, about how he can please the Lord. 33 whereas the married man has the world's affairs on his mind and how he may please his wife, 34 and he is divided. And the unmarried woman and the virgin are concerned about the Lord's affairs, so as to be holy in both body and spirit; but the married woman is concerned about the affairs of the world, how to please her husband.[f] 35 I am saying this for your own benefit, not to throw a noose around you, but to promote what is fitting and to secure undistracted devotion to the Lord.
36 If anyone believes he is acting dishonorably toward his fiancée,[g] if she is getting on in years and there is need, he may do what he likes; he does not sin. They should marry. 37 But the man who is firmly settled in his mind, who is under no pressure and has authority over his own choice, and has decided in his heart to keep his fiancée unmarried, does well. 38 So then the one who marries his virgin does well, and the one who does not marry will do better.

39 A wife is bound for as long as her husband lives. But if her husband dies,[h] she is free to be married to whom she wishes, only in the Lord.
40 But she is more blessed, as I see it, if she stays as she is; and I believe I also have God's Spirit.

Notes

- a (7:1) It is good…: most interpreters take this as a quotation from the Corinthians' letter, which Paul then qualifies.
- b (7:5) Prayer: many later manuscripts read "to fasting and prayer."
- c (7:14) Through the brother: that is, through the believing husband. Many later manuscripts read "through her husband."
- d (7:15) Called you: many manuscripts read "called us."
- e (7:21) Make use of the opportunity instead: or "rather make use of your present condition." The Greek says only "rather use," and interpreters divide over whether the object is freedom or slavery.
- f (7:34) And he is divided…: the text and punctuation of vv. 33–34 vary among manuscripts. The translation follows the Westcott–Hort text; other manuscripts read "and the wife and the virgin are divided: the unmarried woman is concerned…"
- g (7:36) His virgin: probably his fiancée, though some take it as a father and his virgin daughter (so that "marries" in v. 38 would mean "gives in marriage"), or as a couple living in spiritual marriage.
- h (7:39) Dies: literally "falls asleep."

Chapter 8

1 Now concerning meat offered to idols: we realize that "we all have knowledge."[a] Knowledge puffs up, but love strengthens. 2 If anyone imagines he has come to know something, he has not yet come to know it as he ought. 3 But if anyone loves God, that person is known by him.
4 So then, regarding the eating of food sacrificed to idols, we know that "an idol is nothing at all in the world" and that "there is no God but one." 5 Granted, there may be beings called gods in heaven or on earth (and indeed there are plenty of "gods" and plenty of "lords"), 6 yet for us there is a single God, the Father, source of everything and the goal of our lives, and a single Lord, Jesus Christ, by whom everything exists and by whom we live.[b]

7 Not everyone, however, has this knowledge. Some, through being accustomed to the idol until now, eat the food as something actually sacrificed to an idol, and their conscience, being weak, is defiled. 8 Food will not commend us to God. We lose nothing by not eating, and gain nothing by eating.[c] 9 Only watch out that this liberty of yours does not trip up those who are weak. 10 For if someone sees you, who have knowledge, reclining at table in an idol's temple, will not his conscience, weak as he is, be emboldened to eat food sacrificed to idols? 11 And so the weak one, the brother for whom Christ died, is destroyed by your knowledge. 12 When you sin in this way against the brothers and wound their weak conscience, you sin against Christ. 13 Therefore, if what I eat causes my brother to fall, I will never again eat meat, so as not to cause my brother to fall.

Notes

- a (8:1) All of us possess knowledge: probably a Corinthian slogan, as also the phrases quoted in v. 4.
- b (8:6) Through whom we exist: compare Deut 6:4, where "one Lord" stands for Yahweh; Paul here divides the confession between the Father and Jesus.
- c (8:8) The order of the two clauses in this verse is reversed in many manuscripts.

Chapter 9

1 Am I not free? Am I not an apostle?[a] Have I not seen Jesus our Lord?
Are you not my work in the Lord? 2 If to others I am no apostle, at least to you I am, for you are the seal that certifies my apostleship in the Lord.

3 This is my defense to those who would put me on trial. 4 Have we no right to eat and drink? 5 Have we no right to take along a sister as wife, as the other apostles do, and the Lord's brothers, and Cephas? 6 Or are Barnabas[b] and I the only ones obliged to earn our own keep?
7 What soldier ever pays his own wages? What man plants vines and never tastes the grapes? What shepherd gets no milk from his flock?
8 Is this mere human reasoning? Does the Law not say it too? 9 For Moses' law says, "Do not muzzle an ox as it threshes grain."[c] Is God worried about oxen? 10 Or does he really speak entirely for us? Yes, it was written for us, because the plowman should plow with hope, and the one threshing should do so expecting a portion. 11 Since we have sown in you the things of the Spirit, is it so great a thing for us to harvest your material goods? 12 If others share this right over you, do not we have a stronger claim? Yet we have not made use of this right; instead we bear with everything rather than put any obstacle in the way of the gospel of Christ. 13 Do you not realize that those who work in the temple are fed from the temple, and those who attend the altar receive a portion of the altar's offerings? 14 Likewise the Lord ordered that those who announce the gospel should be supported by the gospel.

15 But I have made use of none of these rights. And I am not writing this so that it may be done in my case. I would sooner die than have anyone make my boast an empty one. 16 Preaching the gospel is nothing for me to boast of, for I am under compulsion. How wretched I would be if I failed to preach it! 17 If I do it willingly, I earn wages; but if I do it unwillingly, I am still entrusted with a task. 18 So what is my pay? Just this: to make the gospel available without cost when I preach, and so not to press my rights in the gospel to the full.

19 Free as I am from everyone, I have enslaved myself to everyone, in order to gain all the more of them. 20 With Jews I lived as a Jew in order to gain Jews; with those under the Law, as someone under the Law, though I myself am not under the Law,[d] in order to gain those under the Law. 21 With those without the Law, I lived as one without the Law (not that I am free from God's law; I am bound by Christ's law), in order to gain those without the Law. 22 To the weak I became weak, to win the weak. I have become all things to all people, so that by all means I may save some. 23 I do it all for the sake of the gospel, that I may have a share in it.

24 In a race, as you know, all the runners compete, yet a single one carries off the prize. Run so as to carry it off. 25 Every competitor practices discipline in everything. They do so for a perishable crown, but we for an imperishable one. 26 That is why I do not run without a finish line in view, and I do not throw punches at empty air. 27 Instead I pummel my body and make it my slave, for fear that after preaching to others I myself might be disqualified.

Notes

- a (9:1) Am I not free? Am I not an apostle?: many later manuscripts reverse the order of these two questions.
- b (9:6) Barnabas: explained in Acts 4:36 as "son of encouragement."
- c (9:9) Deut 25:4.
- d (9:20) Though I myself am not under the Law: absent from many later manuscripts.

Chapter 10

1 I want you to understand, brothers, that our forefathers were every one of them beneath the cloud, and every one of them went through the sea, 2 and all were baptized into Moses in the cloud and in the sea, 3 and all ate the same spiritual food, 4 and all drank the same spiritual drink; for they drank from a spiritual rock that went along with them, and the rock was Christ. 5 Yet with most of them God was not pleased, for they were struck down in the wilderness.[a] 6 These events serve as patterns for us, warning us not to set our hearts on evil as they did. 7 Do not become idolaters, as some of them were; as it is written, "The people sat down to eat and drink, and rose up to play."[b] 8 Nor should we commit sexual sin, as some of them did, so that twenty-three thousand died in one day.[c] 9 Nor should we try the Lord's[d] patience, as some of them did, and the serpents killed them. 10 Nor should we murmur, as some of them murmured and perished at the hand of the Destroyer. 11 Now these things happened to them by way of example, and they were written down as a warning for us, on whom the ends of the ages have come. 12 So let anyone who thinks he is standing take care that he does not fall. 13 Every trial that has come upon you is the ordinary human lot. And God can be trusted: he will not allow you to be tried past what you can endure.
Along with the trial he will make an exit as well, so that you are able to withstand it.
14 Therefore, my dear friends, flee from idolatry. 15 I am addressing people of good sense; weigh what I say for yourselves. 16 The cup of blessing over which we say the blessing: is it not participation in Christ's blood? The bread we break: is it not participation in Christ's body? 17 Because there is one loaf, we who are many are one body, for we all partake of the one loaf. 18 Look at the people of Israel by physical descent: do those who eat the sacrifices not share in the altar? 19 So what do I mean? That meat offered to idols counts for something, or that an idol is something? 20 No, but that what they[e] sacrifice, they sacrifice to demons and not to God.[f] I do not want you to become partners with demons. 21 You cannot drink the cup of the Lord and the cup of demons. You cannot partake of the table of the Lord and the table of demons. 22 Or are we trying to provoke the Lord to jealousy?

[g] Are we stronger than he is?
23 "Anything is allowed," but not everything helps. "Anything is allowed," but not everything builds up. 24 No one should look out for himself; let him look out for his neighbor. 25 Anything on sale in the market you may eat, without asking questions on grounds of conscience, 26 for "the earth is the Lord's, and everything in it."[h] 27 If one of the unbelievers invites you to dinner and you want to go, eat whatever is set before you without raising any question for conscience' sake. 28 But should anyone tell you, "This meat came from a sacrifice," then abstain from it, out of regard for the person who pointed it out, and for conscience' sake.[i] 29 I mean the other person's conscience, not yours. For why should another's conscience pass verdict on my freedom? 30 If I partake with thanksgiving, why am I denounced because of something I give thanks for?
31 Whatever you are doing, then, eating or drinking or anything else, do it all to bring glory to God. 32 Give no offense to Jews or to Greeks or to the church of God, 33 just as I try to please everyone in everything, not seeking my own advantage but that of the many, so that they may be saved.

Notes

- a (10:5) Struck down in the wilderness: see Num 14:16, 29–30.
- b (10:7) Exod 32:6.
- c (10:8) Twenty-three thousand: Num 25:9 gives twenty-four thousand.
- d (10:9) The Lord's: so the Westcott–Hort text, with Vaticanus and Sinaiticus (as reported); P46 and many other manuscripts read "Christ," and a few "God." See Num 21:5–6.
- e (10:20) They: "the nations" (that is, the pagans) is bracketed in the Westcott–Hort text.
- f (10:20) To demons and not to God: echoing Deut 32:17.

- g (10:22) Provoke the Lord to jealousy: echoing Deut 32:21, where the Lord is Yahweh.
- h (10:26) Ps 24:1. In the Hebrew text, "the Lord" is Yahweh.
- i (10:28) Conscience' sake: many later manuscripts add "for the earth is the Lord's, and everything in it" (compare v. 26).

Chapter 11

1 Take me as your model, just as I take Christ as mine.
2 I commend you for keeping me in mind in everything and for holding fast to the traditions just as I passed them on to you. 3 Yet I would have you understand that Christ is every man's head,[a] a husband is his wife's head, and God is Christ's head. 4 Any man who prays or prophesies with something hanging down over his head brings shame on his head. 5 And any woman who prays or prophesies with her head uncovered brings shame on her head, for it is just the same as if her head were shaved. 6 For if a woman will not cover herself, she might as well cut her hair short; but if it is shameful for a woman to have her hair cut short or shaved, let her cover herself. 7 A man ought not to cover his head, since he is the image and glory of God; but the woman is the glory of the man. 8 Man was not taken out of woman; woman was taken out of man. 9 Nor was man made for woman's sake; woman was made for man's. 10 That is why the woman ought to have authority over her head,[b] because of the angels. 11 In the Lord, though, neither is woman anything apart from man, nor man apart from woman. 12 For as woman came from man, so too man comes into being through woman; and all things come from God. 13 Decide among yourselves: is it fitting for a woman to pray to God uncovered? 14 Does nature itself not teach you that long hair on a man is dishonorable to him, 15 but if a woman wears her hair long it is her glory? For her long hair has been given to her as a covering. 16 If anyone is inclined to be contentious about this, we recognize no such custom,[c] nor do the churches of God.
17 In giving the following instructions I do not commend you, because your meetings do more harm than good. 18 First of all, I hear that there are rifts among you when you meet as a congregation, and I partly believe it. 19 For there must indeed be factions among you, so that the genuine among you may stand out. 20 So when you meet together, it is not really the Lord's supper that you eat. 21 For as you eat, each of you goes ahead with his own supper, and one stays hungry while another gets drunk. 22 Really! Do you lack homes where you can eat and drink?

Or do you hold God's church in contempt and put to shame those who are poor? What shall I tell you? Should I praise you? On this point, no praise from me!
23 What I passed on to you I myself received from the Lord: on the night of his betrayal the Lord Jesus took a loaf, 24 and after giving thanks he broke it and said, "This is my body, which is for you.[d] Do this to remember me." 25 In the same way he took the cup after dinner, saying, "This cup is the new covenant sealed by my blood. As often as you drink it, do so in memory of me." 26 For as often as you eat this bread and drink the cup, you proclaim the Lord's death until he comes.
27 Anyone, then, who eats the bread or drinks the Lord's cup unworthily will be held guilty of sinning against the Lord's body and blood. 28 Let a person test himself, then, and only so eat of the bread and drink of the cup. 29 Whoever eats and drinks[e] without recognizing the body brings judgment on himself by his eating and drinking. 30 That is why many among you are weak and sick, and a number have died.[f] 31 If we would examine ourselves properly, we would escape judgment. 32 When we are judged by the Lord, however, we are being disciplined, so that we may not be condemned along with the world.
33 So then, my brothers, when you gather to eat, wait for one another.
34 If anyone is hungry, let him eat at home, so that your gatherings do not lead to judgment. The remaining matters I will set in order when I come.

Notes

- a (11:3) Head: Greek kephalē. "Man" and "woman" may also be rendered "husband" and "wife" throughout this passage. Whether the word here implies authority, source, or prominence is debated.
- b (11:10) Authority over her head: or "a sign of authority on her head"; the Greek is simply "authority on (or over) her head." Some early Latin and Greek witnesses (as reported) read "a veil."

- c (11:16) No such custom: that is, no custom of contentiousness, or of praying uncovered.
- d (11:24) For you: many later manuscripts read “broken for you,” and some “given for you” (compare Luke 22:19).
- e (11:29) Eats and drinks: many later manuscripts add “unworthily” and, after “body,” add “of the Lord.”
- f (11:30) Died: literally “are sleeping.”

Chapter 12

1 On the subject of spiritual gifts,[a] brothers, I would not have you left in ignorance. 2 You know that when you were pagans you were drawn away, however you were led, to idols that cannot speak. 3 Understand, then, that nobody who speaks by God’s Spirit ever says, “A curse on Jesus!” and nobody can say, “Jesus is Lord!” except by the Holy Spirit.
4 There are distributions of gifts, but the same Spirit; 5 distributions of service, and the same Lord; 6 distributions of activity, and the same God, who brings about all of them in everyone. 7 To each one the Spirit is made manifest for the common good. 8 To one is given through the Spirit a word of wisdom, to another a word of knowledge according to the same Spirit, 9 to another faith by the same Spirit, to another gifts of healing by the one Spirit, 10 to another the working of miracles, to another prophecy, to another the ability to distinguish spirits, to another various kinds of tongues, and to another the interpretation of tongues. 11 All these are the work of one and the same Spirit, who apportions to each individually just as he wills.
12 For just as the body is one and has many members, and all the members of the body, many as they are, make up one body, so it is with Christ. 13 In one Spirit we were all baptized into one body, Jews and Greeks, slaves and free alike, and of one Spirit we were all given to drink.
14 For indeed the body is not one member but many. 15 If the foot should say, “Because I am not a hand, I am no part of the body,” it would not for that reason cease to belong to the body. 16 And if the ear should say, “Because I am not an eye, I am no part of the body,” it would not for that reason cease to belong to the body. 17 If the whole body were an eye, where would hearing be? If the whole were hearing, where would the sense of smell be? 18 But as it is, God has arranged the members, each one of them, in the body as he chose. 19 Were they all one single member, what would become of the body? 20 In reality there are numerous members but a single body. 21 The eye cannot tell the hand, "I do not need you," nor can the head tell the feet, "I do not need you." 22 Quite the reverse: the members of the body that appear feebler are the ones we cannot do without, 23 and those parts of the body we think less honorable we clothe with greater honor, and our unpresentable parts are treated with greater modesty, 24 which the more presentable parts have no need of. God has put the body together so as to give more honor to the part that was lacking it, 25 so that there may be no division in the body, but that the members may have the same concern for one another. 26 When one part hurts, every part hurts along with it; when one part is honored, every part celebrates along with it.

27 Now you are Christ's body, and individually members of it. 28 And God has placed in the church first apostles, second prophets, third teachers, then miracles, then gifts of healing, helping, guiding, and various kinds of tongues. 29 Are all apostles? Are all prophets? Are all teachers? Do all work miracles? 30 Do all possess healing gifts? Do all speak with tongues? Do all give interpretations? 31 Set your hearts on the greater gifts.[b] And now I will point you to a way that surpasses them all.

Notes

- a (12:1) Spiritual gifts: or "spiritual people"; the Greek pneumatikōn can be masculine or neuter.
- b (12:31) Set your hearts on the greater gifts: or, as a statement, "You set your hearts for the greater gifts." Many later manuscripts read "the better gifts."

Chapter 13

1 Though I speak with human tongues and angelic tongues, if I lack love I am a noisy gong or a clashing cymbal. 2 Even if I have the gift of prophecy, and grasp every mystery and every kind of knowledge, and have complete faith that can relocate mountains, but lack love, I am nothing. 3 Though I hand out all my possessions in food for others, and though I give up my body so that I may boast,[a] if I lack love it profits me nothing.

4 Love is patient; love is kind; love is not jealous; love does not brag, is not puffed up, 5 does not behave shamefully, does not seek its own interests, is not easily angered, does not keep account of wrongs, 6 takes no delight in injustice but rejoices with the truth; 7 it bears all things, believes all things, hopes all things, endures all things.
8 Love never fails. As for prophecies, they will be done away with; as for tongues, they will cease; as for knowledge, it will be done away with. 9 For we know in part, and we prophesy in part; 10 but when what is complete comes, what is partial will be done away with. 11 In my childhood my speech, my thinking, and my reasoning were a child's; now that I am grown, I have laid aside childish ways. 12 For the present we see as by reflection in a mirror, indistinctly,[b] but then we shall see face to face. For the present my knowledge is partial; then I shall know as completely as I have been known. 13 So now faith, hope, and love remain, these three; but the greatest of these is love.

Notes

- a (13:3) So that I may boast: Greek hina kauchēsōmai, the reading of the Westcott–Hort text, supported by P46, Sinaiticus, Alexandrinus and Vaticanus (as reported). Many other manuscripts and early translations read hina kauthēsomai (or kauthēsōmai), "to be burned," a difference of a single letter in Greek. "So that I may boast" is generally taken to mean boasting in self-sacrifice (compare 9:15–16; 2 Cor 11:30), or possibly selling oneself into slavery; "to be burned" would refer to martyrdom, or to branding as a slave.
- b (13:12) Indistinctly: literally "in a riddle." Ancient mirrors were of polished metal.

Chapter 14

1 Make love your aim, and be eager for spiritual gifts, especially that you may prophesy. 2 For whoever talks in a tongue talks not to people but to God; nobody understands, since he speaks mysteries by the Spirit. 3 The one who prophesies, by contrast, speaks to people for their upbuilding, encouragement, and comfort. 4 Tongue-speaking edifies the speaker; prophesying edifies the church. 5 I would be glad if every one of you spoke in tongues, but gladder still if you prophesied.

Prophesying ranks above speaking in tongues, unless the tongue is interpreted so that the church gains from it.

6 Suppose, brothers, I came to you speaking in tongues: what use would I be to you, if I brought you no revelation, no knowledge, no prophecy, no teaching? 7 Think of lifeless things that make a sound, a pipe or a lyre: unless the notes are distinct, how can anyone tell the tune on pipe or lyre? 8 And if the trumpet gives an uncertain call, who will get ready for battle? 9 You are in the same position: if the speech your tongue produces is not clear, how can anyone follow what you say? Your words will be lost on the wind. 10 There are, it may be, ever so many kinds of languages in the world, and none is without meaning. 11 So if I do not grasp what the sounds mean, the speaker and I will be strangers babbling to each other.[a] 12 So it is with you: since you are eager for spirits,[b] strive to excel in building up the church.

13 That is why someone who speaks in a tongue ought to pray to be able to interpret it. 14 For[c] if I pray in a tongue, my spirit prays, but my mind is unproductive. 15 What then? I will pray with the spirit, and I will pray with the mind as well; I will sing praise with the spirit, and I will sing praise with the mind as well. 16 Else, when you bless God in the spirit, how is the uninstructed person[d] sitting among you to add his "Amen" to your thanksgiving? He has no idea what you are saying. 17 Your thanksgiving may be fine, but it does nothing to build up your neighbor. 18 Thank God, I speak with tongues more than any of you. 19 yet in the assembly I prefer to say five words with my understanding, to teach others too, rather than countless words in a tongue.

20 Brothers, stop thinking like children. Be babies when it comes to malice, but adults in your thinking. 21 The Law has it written:
"Through men of other tongues and through foreign lips I will speak to this people, and not even so will they hear me, says the Lord."[e] 22 Tongues, then, serve as a sign for unbelievers, not believers; prophecy serves as a sign for believers, not unbelievers. 23 So if the entire congregation gathers and everyone speaks in tongues, and visitors or unbelievers enter, will they not conclude that you are mad? 24 But if everyone prophesies and an unbeliever or visitor enters, he is exposed by everything said and examined by everyone; 25 his heart's hidden things are revealed, and he will fall on his face and worship God, announcing, "God truly is among you!"[f] 26 What should we conclude, brothers and sisters? When you assemble, each person contributes a psalm, a lesson, a revelation, a tongue, or an interpretation. All of it must serve to build up the community.

27 As for tongue-speaking, let two speak, or three at the most, taking turns, and have someone interpret. 28 But if there is no interpreter, let him keep silent in the church and speak to himself and to God.
29 Let two or three prophets speak, and let the others weigh what is said. 30 If a revelation comes to another person sitting there, let the first one be silent. 31 All of you are able to prophesy in succession, so that everyone may be taught and everyone encouraged. 32 Prophets' spirits are under the control of the prophets. 33 For God is the God not of confusion but of peace, as in all the churches of the saints.[g] 34 Let the women keep silence in the assemblies,[h] for it is not granted them to speak; let them rather be subordinate, as the Law also says. 35
If they want to learn something, let them ask their own husbands at home. For it is shameful for a woman to speak in church. 36 Was it from you that God's word went out? Or has it come to you and nobody else? 37 Anyone who considers himself a prophet or a spiritual person must recognize that the things I write to you are the Lord's command.[i] 38 If anyone disregards this, he is disregarded.[j] 39 In short, my brothers, set your hearts on prophesying, and do not prevent anyone from speaking in tongues. 40 But let everything be done decently and in order.

Notes

- a (14:11) Strangers babbling to each other: literally "I will be a barbarian to the speaker, and the speaker a barbarian to me." Greek barbaros, "foreigner," is one whose speech sounds like babbling.
- b (14:12) Spirits: that is, manifestations of the Spirit.
- c (14:14) For: bracketed in the Westcott–Hort text.
- d (14:16) The uninstructed person: Greek idiōtēs, a non-specialist; perhaps an enquirer or an uninstructed believer.

- e (14:21) Isa 28:11–12, in a form that differs from both the Hebrew and the Greek Old Testament. In the Hebrew text, "the Lord" is Yahweh. "The Law" here refers to Scripture generally.
- f (14:25) Compare Isa 45:14; Zech 8:23.
- g (14:33) As in all the churches of the saints: the punctuation is disputed. These words may instead begin v. 34 ("As in all the churches of the saints, let the women keep silent…").
- h (14:34) Let the women keep silence in the assemblies: vv. 34–35 stand here in all known Greek manuscripts and in the Westcott–Hort text, but in a group of Western witnesses (Codex Claromontanus [D], Codex Augiensis [F], Codex Boernerianus [G], some Old Latin manuscripts, and the Latin writer Ambrosiaster, as reported) they are placed after v. 40. Some scholars infer from this, and from scribal sigla reported in Codex Vaticanus and Codex Fuldensis, that the verses began as a marginal gloss that was later copied into the text at two different points; others hold that they are Paul's and that the Western order is a scribal relocation intended to keep the discussion of prophecy together. How the instruction relates to 11:5, where women pray and prophesy, is also debated. The traditional verse order is kept here.
- i (14:37) The Lord's command: many manuscripts read "the Lord's commands," and some omit "command."
- j (14:38) He is disregarded: that is, he is not recognized (by God). So the Westcott–Hort text with Sinaiticus and Alexandrinus (as reported); P46, Vaticanus and many later manuscripts read "let him be ignorant."

Chapter 15

1 Now, brothers, I am reminding you of the gospel I proclaimed to you, which you also accepted, on which you have taken your stand, 2 and through which you are being saved, if you hold firmly to the message as I preached it to you; unless your believing was to no purpose. 3 For among the first things I handed on to you was what I in turn had received: that Christ died for our sins in keeping with the Scriptures, 4 that he was buried, that he was raised on the third day in keeping with the Scriptures, 5 He appeared to Cephas, and after that to the Twelve. 6 After that he appeared to upward of five hundred brothers at one time, most of whom are alive to this day, though some have fallen asleep. 7 After that he appeared to James,[a] then to the apostles as a body. 8 And last of all he appeared to me also, as though to one born out of due time.[b] 9 For I am the smallest of the apostles, unfit even to be called an apostle, because I harassed God's church. 10 But by God's grace I am what I am, and his grace toward me did not prove fruitless. On the contrary, I toiled harder than all of them, though it was not I but the grace of God that was with me. 11 So whether it was I or they, this is how we preach, and this is how you came to believe.

12 Now if the message is that Christ was raised from the dead, how do some among you claim there is no resurrection of the dead? 13 If there is no resurrection of the dead, then Christ has not been raised either; 14 and if Christ has not been raised, then our preaching is empty and your faith is empty as well. 15 Moreover, we turn out to be lying witnesses about God, since we testified that God raised Christ, whom he did not raise, supposing the dead are never raised. 16 For if the dead are not raised, neither has Christ been raised; 17 and if Christ has not been raised, your faith is futile; you are still in your sins. 18 It would follow that those who have died in Christ[c] are lost. 19 If for this life only we have set our hope on Christ, of all people we are the most to be pitied.
20 But as things are, Christ has been raised from the dead, the firstfruits of those who have fallen asleep. 21 For since death came through a man, through a man has come also the resurrection of the dead. 22 For as in Adam[d] all die, so too in Christ will all be made alive. 23 Each, however, in proper sequence: first Christ, the firstfruits; afterward, at his coming, Christ's own people. 24 Then the end will come, when he delivers the kingdom to his God and Father, once he has put down all rule and all authority and power. 25 For he must reign until he has put all his enemies under his feet.[e] 26 The last enemy to be abolished is death. 27 For "he has put all things in subjection under his feet."[f] But when it says "all things" are subjected, it is evident that he who subjected all things to him is excepted. 28 Once everything has been placed under him, then the Son himself will also come under the one who placed everything under him, so that God will be everything to everyone.
29 Otherwise, what will those people accomplish who are baptized on behalf of the dead?[g] If the dead are not raised at all, why are people baptized on their behalf? 30 And why are we ourselves in danger every hour? 31 I die every day! That is as sure, brothers, as my pride in you, which I have in Christ Jesus our Lord. 32 If with merely human hopes I fought with wild beasts at Ephesus,[h] what have I gained? If the dead are not raised, "Let us eat and drink, for tomorrow we die."[i] 33 Make no mistake: "Evil associations spoil good morals."[j] 34 Sober up, as is right, and stop sinning; for some have no knowledge of God. I say this to your shame.

35 But someone will ask, "How are the dead raised? With what kind of body do they come?" 36 You fool! The seed you sow is not brought to life unless it first dies. 37 And the thing you sow is not the body that is to come into being but a bare seed, of wheat, say, or of some other grain. 38 Then God clothes it with a body of his own choosing, giving each seed its proper body. 39 Flesh is not all alike: human flesh is one sort, and animal flesh another; birds have another, and fish another. 40 Bodies exist in heaven and bodies on earth, but the glory of those in heaven differs from the glory of those on earth. 41 The sun has one kind of brightness, the moon another, and the stars another; indeed, one star outshines another. 42 So it is with the resurrection of the dead. What is sown perishable is raised imperishable. 43 It is sown in dishonor; it is raised in glory. It is sown in weakness; it is raised in power. 44 It is sown a natural[k] body; it is raised a spiritual body. If there is a natural body, there is also a spiritual body. 45 So also it is written,
"The first man, Adam, became a living being";[l] the last Adam became a life-giving spirit. 46 Yet the spiritual does not come first; the natural comes first, and afterward the spiritual. 47 The first man came out of the earth, a man of dust; the second man comes out of heaven.[m] 48 The earthly are like the earthly man; the heavenly are like the heavenly man. 49 And just as we have borne the likeness of the man of dust, let us also bear[n] the likeness of the man of heaven.
50 What I am saying, brothers, is that flesh and blood can have no share in God's kingdom, and decay can have no share in what does not decay. 51 Listen, I tell you a mystery: we shall not all fall asleep, but we shall all be changed,[o] 52 in a moment, in the blink of an eye, at the last trumpet. For the trumpet will sound, and the dead will be raised imperishable, and we shall be changed. 53 For this perishable body must clothe itself with the imperishable, and this mortal body must clothe itself with immortality. 54 And once this mortal nature is clothed in immortality,[p] the word of Scripture will be fulfilled:

"Death is swallowed up in victory."[q] 55 "Death, where is your conquest?
Death,[r] where is your sting?"[s] 56 The sting of death is sin, and the power of sin is the Law. 57 But thanks be to God, who gives us the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ!
58 Therefore, my dear brothers and sisters, stand firm and unshakable, always excelling in the Lord's work, aware that your toil in the Lord is not wasted.

Notes

- a (15:7) James: Hebrew Yaakov (Jacob), traditionally "he grasps the heel" or "may he protect"; here the Lord's brother (Gal 1:19).
- b (15:8) Born out of due time: Greek ektrōma, a premature or stillborn birth; perhaps a term of abuse used of Paul.
- c (15:18) Died in Christ: literally "fallen asleep in Christ."
- d (15:22) Adam: Hebrew, "human being," related to adamah, "ground."
- e (15:25) Ps 110:1.
- f (15:27) Ps 8:6.
- g (15:29) Baptized on behalf of the dead: the practice referred to is unknown, and its meaning has been widely debated.
- h (15:32) Fought with wild beasts at Ephesus: probably figurative, for fierce opposition.
- i (15:32) Isa 22:13.
- j (15:33) A line from the comic poet Menander (Thaïs), which had become proverbial.
- k (15:44) Natural: Greek psychikos, "belonging to the soul (psychē)," that is, animated by ordinary life; so also in v. 46.
- l (15:45) Gen 2:7, with "first" and "Adam" added.
- m (15:47) Out of heaven: many later manuscripts read "the Lord out of heaven."
- n (15:49) Let us also bear: so the Westcott–Hort text, with P46, Sinaiticus, Alexandrinus, Claromontanus and most manuscripts (as reported); Vaticanus and some others read "we shall also bear," a difference of one vowel in Greek (phoresōmen / phoresomen) which many editors prefer on grounds of context.
- o (15:51) We shall not all fall asleep, but we shall all be changed: so the Westcott–Hort text, with P46 (in part), Vaticanus and most manuscripts (as reported). Sinaiticus, Alexandrinus and some others (as reported) read "we shall all fall asleep, but not all of us shall be changed," and the original hand of Claromontanus and the Latin Vulgate (as reported) read "we shall all rise, but not all of us shall be changed." P46 is reported to read "we shall all not fall asleep, but not all shall be changed." The variants apparently arose because Paul's generation had in fact died.

- p (15:54) Clothed in immortality: the Westcott–Hort text, with P46, the original hand of Sinaiticus and others (as reported), lacks the words "and this perishable nature is clothed in the imperishable," which most manuscripts include before this phrase.
- q (15:54) Isa 25:8, in a form close to the later Greek versions of Theodotion and Aquila.
- r (15:55) Death: many later manuscripts read "Hades."
- s (15:55) Hos 13:14, adapted from the Greek Old Testament.

Chapter 16

1 As for the collection for the saints: follow the directions I gave the churches of Galatia. 2 On the first day of every week, each of you is to set something aside at home, storing up whatever he has been able to spare, so that collections will not have to be made when I arrive. 3 On my arrival I will send those you endorse, with letters of recommendation, to deliver your gift to Jerusalem. 4 And if it seems right that I should make the journey as well, they will travel with me.
5 I will come to you after passing through Macedonia, since I intend to pass through Macedonia, 6 and perhaps I will remain with you a while, or even winter with you, so that you may speed me on to wherever I travel next. 7 I would rather not see you only briefly on my way through; I am hoping to stay with you for a time, Lord permitting. 8 But I will remain in Ephesus until Pentecost,[a] 9 because a wide door for effective work has opened to me, and there are many who oppose me.
10 Should Timothy come, make sure he has no reason for fear among you; he is working at the Lord's work as I am. 11 No one is to treat him with contempt. Speed him on his journey peacefully so he can rejoin me, since I am waiting for him with the brothers.
12 Concerning our brother Apollos, I strongly encouraged him to come to you with the other brothers, but he was quite unwilling[b] to come now. He will come when the opportunity arises.
13 Keep alert; stand firm in the faith; show courage; be strong. 14 Let all that you do be done in love.
15 You are aware that Stephanas' household were the first converts in Achaia,[c] and that they have appointed themselves to minister to the saints. So I appeal to you, brothers, 16 to subordinate yourselves to people like these, and to all who labor and toil alongside them. 17 I am glad that Stephanas, Fortunatus, and Achaicus[d] have arrived, because they have made up for your absence. 18 They have put fresh heart into me, and into you too. Value men like these.

19 Greetings to you from the churches of Asia.[e] Aquila and Prisca,[f] and the church in their home, greet you heartily in the Lord. 20 All the brothers here send you greetings. Greet one another with a holy kiss.

21 This greeting is in my own hand: Paul. 22 A curse on anyone who does not love the Lord![g] Marana tha![h] 23 The grace of the Lord Jesus[i] be with you. 24 My love be with you all in Christ Jesus.[j]

Notes

- a (16:8) Pentecost: Greek, "fiftieth (day)," the Jewish Festival of Weeks (Shavuot), seven weeks after Passover.
- b (16:12) His will: or "God's will"; the Greek says simply "it was not at all the will."
- c (16:15) First converts in Achaia: literally "the firstfruits of Achaia," the Roman province of southern Greece, of which Corinth was the capital.
- d (16:17) Fortunatus, and Achaicus: Fortunatus is Latin, "fortunate"; Achaicus is Greek, "the Achaean," perhaps a name for a freedman.
- e (16:19) Asia: the Roman province in western Asia Minor, whose capital was Ephesus.
- f (16:19) Aquila and Prisca: Aquila is Latin, "eagle"; Prisca (diminutive Priscilla, Acts 18:2) is Latin, "ancient, venerable." Many later manuscripts read "Priscilla." They had lived in Corinth (Acts 18:1–3).
- g (16:22) A curse: Greek anathema, "let him be accursed."
- h (16:22) Marana tha: Aramaic, "Our Lord, come!" The Greek letters can also be divided maran atha, "Our Lord has come" (or "is coming"). Compare Rev 22:20.
- i (16:23) The Lord Jesus: many later manuscripts read "our Lord Jesus Christ."
- j (16:24) In Christ Jesus: many manuscripts add "Amen."

2 Corinthians

New Testament

Chapter 1

1 From Paul, by God's will an apostle of Christ Jesus, and from Timothy[a] our brother, to God's church at Corinth,[b] together with all the saints throughout Achaia:[c] 2 grace to you and peace from God our Father and the Lord Jesus Christ.
3 Blessed be the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, the Father of mercies and the God who gives every comfort,[d] 4 who comforts us in all our trouble, so that we in turn can comfort those in any trouble through the comfort with which God himself comforts us. 5 For just as Christ's sufferings overflow into our lives, so too through Christ our comfort overflows. 6 If we are afflicted, it is for your comfort and salvation; if we are comforted, it is for your comfort, which takes effect when you patiently bear the same sufferings that we also suffer.
7 Our hope for you is unshaken; we know that as partners in the sufferings you are partners in the comfort too.
8 We would not have you unaware, brothers, of the trouble that came upon us in Asia.[e] We were weighed down far past our strength, so much so that we gave up hope even of staying alive. 9 In our own minds we had heard our death sentence pronounced. That happened to make us trust not in ourselves but in the God who brings the dead back to life. 10 He rescued us from so deadly a peril, and he will rescue us; on him we have fixed our hope that he will go on rescuing us, 11 as you too join in helping us by your prayers, so that thanks may be given on our behalf by many people for the favor granted to us through the prayers of many.
12 Here is our boast: our conscience testifies that we have behaved in the world, and most of all with you, with purity[f] and sincerity that come from God, relying not on human cleverness but on God's grace.
13 Nothing we write to you is beyond what you can read and take in, and I hope you will take it in completely, [14] just as you have partly understood us, that we are a reason for you to be proud, as you are for us, when our Lord Jesus comes.[g]

[15] It was in this confidence that I intended to come first to you, so that you might have a second joy,[h] [16] My plan was to visit you on the way to Macedonia, then to return to you after Macedonia, and to be sent on by you toward Judea. [17] When I planned this, was I being fickle? Or do I make my plans in a worldly way, ready to say "Yes, yes" and "No, no" in the same breath? [18] God is faithful, and as surely as he is, our message to you was never "Yes" that was also "No." [19] For the Son of God, Jesus Christ, whom Silvanus,[i] Timothy, and I announced to you, was not "Yes and No"; in him it has always been a firm "Yes." [20] For however many are God's promises, in him they find their "Yes." That is why it is through him also that we say the "Amen" to God, for his glory. [21] Now it is God who makes both us and you secure in Christ, and who has anointed us; [22] He has stamped us with his seal, and has put his Spirit in our hearts as the first installment of what is to come.[j]

[23] With my life at stake I call God to bear witness: I stayed away from Corinth in order to spare you. [24] Not that we lord it over your faith; we are working with you for your joy, for it is by faith that you stand firm.

Notes

- a (1:1) Timothy: Greek, "one who honors God."
- b (1:1) Corinth: capital of the Roman province of Achaia.
- c (1:1) Achaia: the Roman province of southern Greece.
- d (1:3) Every comfort: Greek paraklēsis, which can mean comfort, encouragement, or appeal; the related verb occurs throughout vv. 3–7.
- e (1:8) Asia: the Roman province in western Asia Minor, whose capital was Ephesus.
- f (1:12) Holiness: so the Westcott–Hort text, with P46, Sinaiticus, Alexandrinus and Vaticanus (as reported); many manuscripts read "simplicity" or "frankness."
- g (1:14) Our Lord Jesus: many manuscripts add "Christ."
- h (1:15) Second joy: so the Westcott–Hort text, with the corrected Sinaiticus, Vaticanus and a few others (as reported); most manuscripts read charin, "favor" or "benefit" ("a second benefit"), and the two words differ by one letter in Greek.

- i (1:19) Silvanus: Latin form of Silas (Acts 15:22), probably from Aramaic sheila, “asked for”; associated in Latin with silva, “forest.”
- j (1:22) The first installment of what is to come: Greek arrabōn, a first installment that guarantees the rest.

Chapter 2

1 So I made up my mind not to pay you another painful visit. 2 For if I cause you pain, who is left to cheer me except the very one I have pained? 3 And I wrote just as I did[a] so that when I came I would not be pained by those who ought to make me glad, for I am confident about all of you that my joy is the joy of you all. 4 Out of deep affliction and heartache I wrote to you, shedding many tears,[b] not to grieve you but so that you would know how overflowing my love for you is.
5 Whoever has given grief has grieved not me alone but, to a degree (I do not want to press the point too hard), every one of you. 6 For such a person this punishment by the majority is enough, 7 so that now, instead, you should rather forgive and comfort him, or he may be overwhelmed by excessive grief. 8 So I urge you to confirm your love for him. 9 For this was my purpose in writing too: to test you and find out whether you are obedient in everything. 10 Whomever you pardon, I pardon too. And what I have pardoned, if there was anything for me to pardon, I have pardoned for your sake before Christ, 11 so that Satan may not gain the advantage over us; for we are not ignorant of his designs.
12 When I came to Troas[c] for the gospel of Christ, though a door was opened for me in the Lord, 13 I had no peace of mind, since my brother Titus[d] was nowhere to be found; so I took leave of them and set out for Macedonia.
14 But thanks to God, who constantly leads us in victory as prisoners in Christ’s parade[e] and uses us to spread the aroma of knowing him everywhere. 15 We are Christ’s sweet scent offered up to God, both among people on the way to salvation and among people on the way to ruin: 16 to the one, a smell of death leading to death; to the other, a fragrance of life leading to life. And who is equal to such a task?
17 For we are not like so many,[f] peddling the word of God for profit;

we speak in Christ with sincerity, as men sent from God, in God's presence.

Notes

- a (2:3) I wrote just as I did: this and v. 4 refer to a letter written "with many tears" between 1 Corinthians and this letter, often called the "tearful letter." See the introduction.
- b (2:4) Shedding many tears: see the note on v. 3.
- c (2:12) Troas: Alexandria Troas, a port in northwestern Asia Minor.
- d (2:13) Titus: a Latin name, of uncertain meaning; a Gentile co-worker of Paul (Gal 2:1–3).
- e (2:14) Triumphal procession: the Roman victory parade, in which captives were led along; the image may be of God leading his apostles either as captives or as fellow victors.
- f (2:17) So many: many manuscripts read "the rest."

Chapter 3

1 Is this the start of more self-commendation? Or must we, as certain others do, present letters of reference to you, or ask you for them? 2 Our letter is you yourselves, inscribed on our hearts,[a] recognized and read by all the world. 3 It is clear that you are Christ's letter, delivered by us, inscribed not in ink but by the living God's Spirit, not on stone tablets but on the tablets of human hearts.[b] 4 That is the kind of trust we place in God, through Christ. 5 Not that we are competent by ourselves to reckon anything as coming from us; our competence comes from God, 6 who has made us competent as ministers of a new covenant, not of the letter but of the Spirit. For the letter kills, but the Spirit gives life.
7 The ministry that brought death was engraved in letters on stones, and yet it came in glory, so much so that the sons of Israel were unable to fix their eyes on Moses' face because of the glory shining there, glory that was fading.[c] 8 Then surely the Spirit's ministry will have still greater glory! 9 If the ministry that brought condemnation was glorious, far richer in glory is the ministry that brings righteousness.
10 In fact, set beside this surpassing glory, the thing that was once glorified has lost its glory altogether. 11 For if what was fading away came with glory, much more does what lasts remain in glory.

12 Possessing a hope like this, we speak out with complete frankness.
13 We are not like Moses, who would cover his face with a veil to stop the sons of Israel from staring at the end of a glory that was being abolished.[d] 14 But their minds were hardened. For to this day, when the old covenant is read, that same veil remains unlifted, because only in Christ is it done away with. 15 To this present day a veil covers their hearts whenever Moses is read aloud; 16 but whenever someone turns to the Lord, the veil is taken away.[e] 17 Now the Lord is the Spirit, and where the Spirit of the Lord is, there is freedom. 18 And all of us, with unveiled faces reflecting[f] as in a mirror the glory of the Lord, are being transformed into the same image from one degree of glory to another, as it comes from the Lord, the Spirit.[g]

Notes

- a (3:2) Our hearts: a few manuscripts, including Sinaiticus (as reported), read "your hearts."
- b (3:3) Tablets of human hearts: literally "tablets that are hearts of flesh," echoing Exod 24:12; 31:18 and Ezek 11:19; 36:26; compare Jer 31:33.
- c (3:7) Fading: compare Exod 34:29–35.
- d (3:13) The end of a glory that was being abolished: or "the outcome of what was being abolished," or "the goal of what was fading."
- e (3:16) Taken away: echoing Exod 34:34, where "the Lord" is Yahweh; the subject ("someone," or "Moses," or "their heart") is unexpressed in Greek.
- f (3:18) Reflecting: or "beholding."
- g (3:18) The Lord, the Spirit: or "the Spirit of the Lord," or "the Lord who is the Spirit."

Chapter 4

1 Because we hold this ministry by God's mercy, we never give up. 2
We have renounced shameful, underhanded ways; we do not practice cunning or tamper with God's word; but by openly declaring the truth we commend ourselves to everyone's conscience in the sight of God. 3 And even if our gospel is veiled, it is veiled to those who are perishing. 4 The god of this present age has blinded the unbelieving minds of these people, so that the light of the gospel, which displays the glory of Christ, God's image, does not dawn on them. 5 It is not ourselves that we proclaim; we proclaim Jesus Christ as Lord, and ourselves as your servants[a] on account of Jesus. 6 For the God who commanded, “Let light shine from the darkness,”[b] has made light shine in our hearts so that we can illuminate the knowledge of God’s glory shining from the face of Christ.[c]
